On Wednesday evening, August 28, an interesting remony took place in St. Mary's Church, Maldon, sex. Rev. J. M. Eppstein publicly baptized two con- ted Jews in the presence of a large congregation. e is a Russian Jew and the other a German. Mr. pstein, who is himself a convert from Judaism, and earnest worker on behalf of the Society for Pro- ting Christianity among the Jews, delivered an im- ssive address founded on Rom. xi. 25, 26.

On Tuesday, October 15, it is intended to hold a Day Devotion, Instruction, and Conference, conducted by Chancellor (Canon Bernard), under direction of the shop of Bath and Wells, at Wells Cathedral, for lay aders, teachers of Bible-classes, managers of religious sociations, superintendents of Sunday-schools, head achers of other schools, and persons engaged in like vices in the Church. It is desired to make the eeting an occasion of spiritual refreshment and en- uragement in their work.

At Richmond Parish Church, Yorkshire, on Sunday ek, Canon Roberts, the rector, preached, devoting discourse to racing. The text was "So run that ye ay obtain." He alluded to the sporting doings of the cient Greeks, and compared bygone days with the esent era, when a man who had been in the habit of ending race meetings had published a book saying w he had lost £250,000 in two years. There was no re harm in two horses running together than two en, but what he wished to impress upon their minds s the evil attending race meetings, and the company drunkards, gamblers, and sharpers.

BAPTIST.

A pleasing instance of Christian fraternity is just now tnessed at Pontypool. The Baptist Chapel is closed several weeks for renovation, and the Baptist con- gation is meeting for worship with the Primitive ethodists.

At the Conference of the Lancashire and Yorkshire neral Baptist Churches to be held in North Parade apel, Halifax, on September 18, there is to be a dis- ssion on the question, "Ought the Church to Provide nusements for the Young?"

The committee of the Liverpool Baptist Union, in njunction with the Baptist Union of England, is anging for a series of special evangelistic services be held in the Baptist chapels of Liverpool, com- encing on Monday next, at which the assistance of nisters of other evangelical denominations has been vited.

Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, who has resigned the pastor- e of Auckland Baptist Tabernacle, New Zealand, will, is anticipated, after a period of rest, devote his ergies to the work of an itinerant evangelist. This is lieved to be the course advised by his father, Mr. H. Spurgeon, who, with Dr. Maclaren, of Manchester, ll select his successor at Auckland.

METHODIST.

The Minutes of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference 1889-90 have been issued to the circuits. There is own a net increase in the membership of the body of 61 in the year. There are at present in Great Britain 0,982 full members, and 1579 ministers, besides super- meraries.

Rev. W. H. Beeken, who is attracting large numbers working people to his services at Ilkeston, has cepted an invitation to become the pastor of Scotland- ad Free Methodist Church, Liverpool. This church situated in the midst of a large working-class popula- n, and it is proposed in future to work it on "Forward vement" principles.

The memorial chapel and schools erected at Epworth, ncolnshire, in memory of John and Charles Wesley, re formally opened on Thursday last, when members the Wesleyan community from all parts of the country ended. The door was unlocked by Mrs. Garrett, wife Rev. Charles Garrett, ex-president of the Conference, o originated the scheme, which will, when completed, cessitate an expenditure of £4000. Rev. C. Garrett eached the opening sermon; afterwards public meet- gs were held in the old and new chapels.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Dr. Thain Davidson resumed his monthly sermons to young men at Colebrooke-row Church, Islington, on Sunday evening last. He thus commenced the twelfth year of these special services, which have been a blessing to hundreds of the young men of the metropolis, and to many now scattered in all parts of the world.

SALVATION ARMY.

Major Condy has been conducting some enthusiastic meetings at Tavistock, Devonshire. Much interest was manifested, several seeking pardon and purity.

The Grecian Theatre, City-road, London, has been the scene of some earnest revival work. On Sunday week twenty-three persons sought salvation and purity.

General Booth has decided to largely extend the scheme for providing night shelter for men and women, and depôts for cheap food in London and other large cities.

On Friday last Miss Eva Booth hoisted the Salvation Army colours at Eastbourne. The ceremony took place on a plot of ground in Langney-road, which has been bought by the Army with the intention of building a barracks there. This is the first time the Army proper has appeared in Eastbourne.

The persecution of the Army at Whitchurch, a little town in Hampshire, has caused widespread indignation. In many cases those who have gone to prison were once drunkards who have been rescued and saved by the Army's operations. One of the girls who went to prison, and has yet to serve twenty-one days, was one of the most notorious characters in the town previous to the Army's advent.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Bristol and Frenchay Monthly Meeting, on the 3rd inst., recorded Frederick John Williams, of Bristol, a minister of the Gospel. He has taken a leading and most useful and successful part in adult school work, besides his Gospel service in meetings and elsewhere.

The Christian Worker states on the authority of The Independent that orthodox Friends in America number about 84,000, with 763 meetings, and over 1000 ministers. The Hicksites number 23,000 members. The orthodox body is largely evangelistic, and steadily grows, while the Hicksites decline.

The sudden and unexpected death of Mr. J. F. B. Firth removes another Quaker statesman who has distinctly made his mark, and seemed to have a very useful future before him, from the House of Commons. On all moral and social questions his vote and influence were wisely used, and his death is a public loss, especially to London.

Regret will be felt in England that, owing to advanced age, Francis T. King, of Baltimore, has been obliged to withdraw from official connection with North Carolina Yearly Meeting. A committee was appointed to convey the appreciation of the Yearly Meeting for his noble services on its behalf. Sabbath-school and missionary work is flourishing therein.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. William Pierce, of Soho-hill, Birmingham, has received a call to the pastorate of New-court Congregational Church, Tollington-park, N.

A new chapel has been opened at Felton, near Bristol. It is the only place of worship in the village, and is supplied by preachers of the Bristol Itinerant Society.

The mission by Rev. W. A. Meaton, at Albany Chapel, Albany-road, Camberwell, S.E., commenced on Wednesday, September 11, and will close on Thursday, the 19th.

There are about 1000 Christian Chinamen connected with the Congregational churches of California and Oregon. They contribute about 2500 dollars for home mission work, and have also organised a foreign missionary society.

Rev. W. A. Blake on Sunday week entered upon the pastorate at High-road, Upper Clapton, the church which for more than a quarter of a century was under the ministerial charge of the late Rev. H. J. Gamble. It is a well-appointed church, and the various organisations of a religious and philanthropic character, which are effectively sustained, testify to the spirit of active energy which animates the members.

A series of free lectures and concerts for Saturday evenings has been arranged, and the services of a number of effective speakers have been secured for the Sunday evening services at Knott Mill Hall, Manchester. The friends connected with the mission are looking forward with much hopefulness to the winter's work. A missionary has been engaged for a time to visit the neighbourhood for the purpose of inviting the people to the hall. The Sunday evening services will take the form becoming familiar as "Pleasant Sunday Evenings for the People."

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

In the town of Beauly, within the last two months, the Free Church pulpit has been occupied by three different preachers of the Established Church.

Hamilton Free Church Presbytery, at its next meeting, will hold a conference on betting and gambling, a vice which is believed to be on the increase in the district.

During his recent summer holiday at Carnoustie, Rev. Duncan Sillars, of Haverstock-hill, London, held services for young people on the sands. On Sabbath evenings the services were held in the United Presbyterian Church, but for the valedictory meeting a larger building had to be secured, and the congregation which gathered in the Free Church numbered fully 800, of whom the larger proportion were young people.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A well-attended and interesting conference of the Church of Ireland Young Men's Society was held in Clarence-place Hall, Belfast, last week.

Collections are to be taken up next Sabbath in all the churches under the care of the General Assembly on behalf of the Irish Presbyterian Missions, which are doing a good work in many parts of the South and West of Ireland.

During the last five weeks a series of Gospel meetings has been held by Messrs. Nesbitt and West in one of the Irish Evangelisation Society's tents at Ballyward, co. Down. The services have been well attended, and have been the means, it is believed, of much blessing in the neighbourhood.

The subject of religious education in day-schools was considered in most of the meetings of Irish Presbyteries held last week. The Banbridge Presbytery decided that missionary meetings should be held in all the congregations under its care, and that a conference on missions should be held in Banbridge.

The agents of the Irish Temperance League are entering on their winter's campaign with great vigour. They have recently held meetings at Cookstown, Irvinestown, Pettigo, Newtownbutler, and Clones, and are making arrangements for many other places. The temperance people in Ireland are sadly disappointed in reference to the Sunday Closing Bill, and the executive of the League have passed a series of resolutions recording their deep dissatisfaction that the Government should have allowed the Parliamentary session to terminate without making an effort to secure the passing of the Bill.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. William Leay, for the past thirty-seven years vicar of Christ Church, Downside, Bath.—Rev. Samuel Andrew, since 1853 rector of Halwell, Devon.—Rev. A. S. Robertson, senior minister of the Free Church, Burrelton, Perthshire.—Mr. William Cozens, of Wood Green, N., an earnest Christian worker and temperance advocate.—Rev. David Davies, Baptist minister, Penysarn, Mon.—Rev. C. S. Russell, parish minister of Stair, N.B.—Rev. James North, who was from 1833 to 1873 incumbent of St. Catharine's, Liverpool.—Rev. John Vignolles Brabazon, since 1847 rector of Rahan, co. Meath.—Miss Ida O. Phillips, American Free Baptist missionary, Balasore, Orissa, India.—Rev. Benjamin Evans, rector of Llanstephan, Carmarthenshire, probably the oldest clergyman in Wales: he was ordained seventy-seven years ago.—Rev. B. P. Pratten, Haslemere, a retired Congregational minister, who formerly held pastorates at Boxmoor and Guilsborough.—Rev. D. S. Hodgson, incumbent of St. Paul's, Halliwell, near Preston, Lancashire.—Rev. David Bonallo, minister of Blackford Parish Church, Perthshire.—Rev. T. Cooper, late rector of Portstewart, Ireland.—M. J. B. Keller, Knight of the Legion of Honour, one of the leading Protestants of France, and a member of nearly all committees for evangelical work in Paris.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—J.J.N. E.G. C.G.D. A.C. J.F.R. J.H.W. A.M.S. F.C.C.L. J.H. S.J.F. G.H. G.K.S.M. S.C. G.E. W.A.C. T.H. R.B. R.J. T.N.Y. J.C. W.W.C. G.F. A.K. L.V. L.K.S. P.P. A.M.M. W.S.M. M.S.H. A.B. F.L. A.E.B. H.B. C.D. E.F. G.K. J.E. M.H. A.B. M.A.W. T.D. H.G. R.G. J.P.L. S.A.H. W.M. L.S. C.P.E. C.G.D. A.E.S. E.G.S S.H.B. H.L. R.B. J.H.S. J.P.P. W.I.E.P. J.W.A. C.J.P. H.C. S.A.B. F.G.H. D.F.L. A.S.D. A.W.D. H.C. R.H. S.J.W. J.J. J.B.F. H.H.B. G.G.A. G.B. M.F.J. M.E. J.M. A.R. F.A.M. W.W.L.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—Leonard Langsford, 6, Cherson-terrace, Wood Green, N.; E. Wheatley, Hazelwood, West End, Pinner; H. Hawkins, 582, Mile End-road, E.; F. Ashby, 35, Tamworth-road, Croydon; W. Benson, 129, Royal-road, Kennington Park, S.E.; Secretary, King's-cross Y.M.C.A., Evangelists' Association, 91, Euston-road, N.W.; W.H. Stephenson, 103, Loughborough Park, S.W.; F. J. Key, College School, Lampeter; J. J. Wilson, 145, South-street, Keighley; H. Wakeford, 77, Douglas-street, Deptford, S.E.; Miss F. Francis, 100, North-end, Croydon, Surrey; A. Jennings, 39, Mornington-road, New Cross, S.E.; W. Hambly, 99, Exmouth-street, Commercial-road, E.; H. Ramsay, Lady Warkstair's House, Dundee, N.B.; G. Gregory, 103, York-road, St. Pancras, N.; H. A. Woodhouse, 7, Globe-buildings, Globe-road, Mile End, E.; H. Matthewman, 3, Pleasant-terrace, Leigh, Essex; Mrs. Stevens, 103, Lucas-street, Commercial-road, E.; Miss A. M. Scantlebury, Brook House, Bridge-street, Cadoxton, near Cardiff; G. K. Cuthbert, 10, Wellbraehead, Forfar, N.B.; W. Stringer, Right-lane, Old Hill, Staffordshire; W. J. Allsworth, 25, Brady-street, Whitechapel, E.; T. D. Jones, Clifton House, Barnard's Green, Malvern; Miss S. Pearson, 104, Stamford-street, S.E.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

REQUEST FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on services by Mr. Opie Rodway, at St. Mary-street Baptist Church, Newport, Mon., Sept. 15—17.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY CONGRESS of delegates of the Powers which have signed the Treaty of Berlin will be opened at Brussels, in the Palace of the Academies, on Oct. 15.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, E.C. — Daily prayer-meeting, 1.30 to 2 p.m. Missionary meeting, every Fri., 6.30 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Sept. 15, 3 and 7 p.m., Captain W. J. Robertson. Mon., 2.30 p.m., mothers' meeting; 7 p.m., open-air service. Prayer-meetings—Weds., 7.30 p.m., followed by Bible address. Sats., 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45 and 7.30 p.m., Mr. Oscar Owers. Mon., to Fri., 8 p.m., Gospel meetings for men. Bible-class, Thurs., 8 p.m. French Bible-class, Thurs., 8 p.m. Bible-reading, Colonel Puget, Sat., 8 p.m. Prayer-meeting, daily (Sat. ex.) during Sept. Mr. Oscar Owers.

Y.M.C.A., 91, EUSTON-ROAD, N.W.—Evangelistic meetings, London Cabmen's Mission Hall, Gray's Inn-road, Mon., Thurs., and Fri., 8 p.m., and Sun., 11 a.m.

Y.W.C.A. INSTITUTE, 12, Portland-terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.—Thurs., Sept. 19, united meetings for praise and prayer for Hampstead, Kilburn, and St. John's Wood, 7 and 11 a.m., 3 and 8 p.m. Hon. Emily Kinnaird, Mrs. Legg, Miss Mason, Miss Meredith Brown, and others are expected to take part.

Y.W.C.A., PRINCESS HOUSE, 106, Brompton-road, S.W.—A quiet day with God, Tues., Sept. 17. Meetings and addresses, 11.30 a.m., 3 and 6 p.m., conducted by Mr. A. B. Stoney. Missionaries from Java, Japan, &c., are expected. All lady workers welcome.

THE WEST LONDON MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Fri. morning and evening services are given up till October.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun. next, at 11 and 6.45, Mr. J. S. Harrison.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. F. C. Bland, during Sept., Sun., at 11 and 7; Wed., at 8, Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W.

MORLEY HALLS, 316, Regent-street, W.—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Matthews and Paddy and Jennie Swift, aborigines from Australia, will give addresses, Wed., Sept. 18, 8.30 p.m. Open to all.

TALBOT TABERNACLE, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.—Sun., Sept. 15, morning and evening, Rev. John Wilkinson, of Mildmay Mission to Jews.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—The all-day meetings will be resumed on Fri., Oct. 4. 11 a.m., prayer and accounts of mission work; 3 p.m., Rev. F. B. Meyer; 7 p.m., Mr. Reader Harris.

HOME OF INDUSTRY, 29, Bethnal Green-road, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Wed., Sept. 18, 7 p.m. Mr. E. H. Glenny, with a party of missionaries leaving shortly for North Africa, will take part. Lord Radstock, it is expected, will give the address.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun., Sept. 15, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Rev. W. J. Mayers; 3 p.m., Rev. Henry Bright.

CLAPTON HALL, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton, N.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch during Sept., Suns., 6.30 p.m.; Fris., 7.30 p.m.

OUR FUTURE MEN.—Meeting of those interested in the welfare of working lads, Albert Youths' Christian Institute, 49, Lamb's Conduit-street, W.C., Tues., Sept. 17, 8.15 p.m. Mr. Quintin Hogg, chairman. Mr. J. Kirk, Secretary, Ragged School Union, and other gentlemen will address the meeting.

COMING CONFERENCES.

DUNDEE CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE, Kinnaird Hall, Sept. 17—19. Subject—"Discipleship."—Programmes can be had from Mr. R. Anderson, 4, India-buildings, Dundee.

WAKEFIELD CONFERENCE.—Third annual Conference on the Christian Life and Claims of the Heathen, Sept. 17—19. Subject for conference—"Love of God."

PARK HALL CONVENTION, Sept. 18—20.—Particulars from Mr. T. Livingstone Learmouth, Park Hall, Polmont, N.B.

UNITED KINGDOM BAND OF HOPE UNION.—Autumnal Conference, Edinburgh, Sept. 21—26.—Mr. C. Wakely, Secretary, 4, Ludgate-hill, London, E.C.

DUBLIN CHRISTIAN CONVENTION, Sept. 23—26.—Mr. Robert Cotter, Secretary, Christian Union-buildings, Dublin.

SALISBURY CONFERENCE of Believers, Sept. 23 to 27. Particulars from Rev. Edgar N. Thwaites, Fisherton Rectory, Salisbury.

GLASGOW ANNUAL CONVENTION, St. Andrew's Hall, Berkeley-street, Glasgow, Sept. 24—27.—Programmes from Mr. William Sloan, 8, Gordon-street, Glasgow.

[832]

CLIFTON CONFERENCE, Victoria Rooms, Clifton, Bristol, Oct. 1—3.—Rev. James Ormiston, Rector of St. Mary-le-Port, Bristol, convener.

SPECIAL CONFERENCE CONCERNING ISRAEL, Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, London, N., Oct. 1—3.

CHURCH CONGRESS, Cardiff, Oct. 1—4.

DORKING CONFERENCE for the Deepening of the Spiritual Life, St. Paul's Church, Oct. 7—11.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE CONGRESS, Birmingham, Oct. 21—25.—Mr. R. Rae, Secretary, 33, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.—Annual Conference, Cheltenham, Oct. 22—24.—Programmes to be had from the Alliance House, 7, Adam-street, Strand, London, W.C.

MANCHESTER CHRISTIAN CONVENTION, Oct. 29—31.—Communications respecting apartments, &c., should be addressed to the Secretaries, Conference Hall, Stranegways, Manchester.

Appeals.

Neath Fair.—Mr. SETH JOSHUA, 19, Alfred-street, Neath, sends an appeal for tracts to be distributed in connection with the annual fair at this place, which began yesterday and lasts for over a week.

Tracts for Gibraltar.—Mr. Joseph Hannington writes an urgent request for Gospel tracts to help him in his work among the soldiers at Gibraltar. Small books for prizes to the children are also much needed. Will friends send some (prepaid) to Colonel CLARKE, Church Pastoral Aid Society, Falcon-court, Fleet-street, who will forward them. A. CLARKE.

Bristol.—Mrs. MARRIOTT, Secretary of the Ladies' Committee of the Bristol Penitentiary, 60, Upper Maudlin-street, Bristol, appeal for help towards necessary repairs in the institution and for the support of the work. The funds received for some time have not been sufficient to meet the ordinary expenditure, and it has been found necessary to send some of the workers away to recruit at the seaside. Orders for washing and needlework are also asked for.

Feeding the Hungry.—On account of the strike at the docks, only one minute's walk from our hall, there are many women and children suffering the pangs of hunger. We have been giving free teas, &c., for the past few weeks, and we are besieged for tickets, and have to listen to sad tales of many. If your readers could help either in money or kind we would be glad, as our funds are entirely exhausted.

GEORGE FULLER, Superintendent.
Brunswick Hall, Brunswick-road, Poplar, E.

Madrid Young Men's Christian Association.—Lectures by various friends attracted a goodly number of strangers to the rooms of this Association last year. The members desire to continue the work in order to influence the young men of the city in favour of the Gospel. A room in a street centrally situated is sadly required, and, as the young men are not able themselves to find the needful money, they appeal to English friends for help. The work of the Association has the hearty good word of those who know it. The secretary is FRANCISCO ALBRICIAS, Calle Cisneros 55, 2°, Madrid, Spain.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

There are 1900 members in the Glasgow Mizpah Band, all abstainers.

The London County Council are letting temperance kiosks in the parks under their control.

The Echo says one reason why more people on a railway journey do not take coffee or tea is because of the way in which these drinks are made and served.

There is just now a well-founded demand that Bands of Hope shall educate as well as amuse. We trust in the ensuing winter the managers will bear this in mind practically.

The Norfolk and Norwich Gospel Temperance Union are taking steps for an organised and persistent crusade against the drink curse in city and county during the coming winter.

Mr. Macartney, M.P., has ascertained by personal inquiry that ether-tippling is becoming common in the north of Ireland. Small grocers give it even to children sent on errands to their shops to induce them to come again.

FOREIGN.

The fifteenth anniversary of the American National W.C.T.U. will be celebrated at Evanston, Illanois, November 7, in connection with Miss Willard's birthday.

In the most populous districts of the Caucasus Russian drinking habits are rapidly extending. Prior to the Russian conquest intemperance was comparatively unknown.

The New Zealand Methodist regrets to find that there is a widespread disposition in the House of Representatives in that colony to look with favour upon the proposal to establish State distilleries.

The new High Licence law went into operation in Connecticut on the first day of this month. This makes the tenth State which has adopted this method of dealing with the liquor traffic, all of them Northern and Republican States except Missouri and New Jersey. The Connecticut law establishes a 400 dol. fee for a licence, and imposes various restrictions on the establishments which obtain it.

Mr. R. Coad has arrived in New Zealand in good health, and has been most heartily welcomed.

Over 180,000,000 gallons of spirits were imported last year in the district of Sierra Leone, and in Lagos it was far larger, while all the land was strewn with demi-johns. The Royal Niger Company imported 220,000 gallons during the last two years, and 500 cases of gin; 500,000 gallons of rum were landed by the Caliban. The selling price of rum is less than a penny a gallon, and the gin is threepence a bottle. The liquor so sold was of the most execrable character.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1889.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
China Inland Mission—A.G.D. 5s; S.R. 2s 6d; Famine Fund—B. 2s 6d; Miss H. 7s	0	17	0
McAll Mission—Amicus	0	2	6
Pastor F. Fliedner's German Mission, Madrid—S.G. 2s 6d; X. £5; Hospital—London, W. £5 5s	10	7	6
THE CHRISTIAN to Forgn. Misnaries.—A Servant	0	2	6
Doomed Eurasian Children, Japan—G.B.	0	3	0
Pastor Jacob, Oroomiah—S.G.	0	10	0
Pastor Chiniquy—S.G.	0	10	0
Miss Whately's Work, Cairo—S.G.	0	2	6
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—S.G.	0	2	6
Keith-Falconer Mission, Arabia—S.G.	0	2	6
Balolo Mission—S.G.	0	2	6
Mr. Baldwin's Work, Mogador—S.G.	0	2	6
Day in Country Fund—A.J.L. £1 1s; G.M.C. 5s; H.R.P. 10s; Bath, 2s: W.R.R. 10s; T.Y. 2s 6d; G.N. 2s; E.F. 1s; Miss B. 2s 6d; W.S. £1; C. 5s; E.S.H.R. 10s 6d; Misses P. 10s; Elitta, 12s 3d; J.F.H. 3s; A.D. 10s; J.J.K. 5s; J.D. 3s; Mrs. W.S. 5s; E.W. 5s	7	4	9
Dock Labourers' Mission—U.T.C. 5s; S.R.H. 5s; Arthur, £1 10s; Ed. W.H. 2s; A.C., Malvern, 5s; W.G.H. 2s 6d; Mrs. H. 2s 6d.	2	12	0
Miss Robinson's Work—Bath, 5s; E.T.H. £2 ...	2	5	0
Children's Country Holiday Fund (Buckingham-street)—S.A.B. £1 7s 6d; Owny T. £1; E.T.H. £1	3	7	6
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—G.D.C. 8s 6d; A.C.J. 5s; A.G.D. 5s; E.T.H. £2; Rev. E.B.R. £1; Collected, M.L. 15s	4	13	6
Miss Mittendorff's Orphan Homes—D. & M. ...	0	2	6
Friendless & Fallen—A.G.D.	0	5	0
Salvation Army—S.G. £1; Dock Labourers—A.H.R. 2s 6d; Madame C.V.G. £1	2	2	6
Relief of Strikers, &c. (Rev. J. Chadburn)—S.G. ...	1	0	0
Church Missionary Society—P.W.	50	0	0
Mr. F. N. Charrington's Work—M.E.R. 5s; Dock Labourers, &c.—Mrs. M.E.R. 5s; E.B. 5s; A.H.R. 2s 6d; Sympathy, 2s; X. £5; S.G. £2; Madame C.V.G. £1.	8	19	6
Cancer Hospital, Brompton—P.W.	25	0	0
Wanderers' Home, London Jews' Society—P.W.	25	0	0
Mount Hermon Orphanage (Girls)—M.A.D. ...	0	10	0
British & Foreign Bible Society—P.W.	50	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—K.R.H 1s; Hebrew Testaments—H.G. £3	3	1	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C.L.M.T. £1; S.G. 2s 6d	1	2	6
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—W.E.	0	5	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—W.E.	0	5	0
Home of Industry—W.E.	0	5	0
East London Wesleyan Mission (Dock Labrs.)—A.H.R. 2s 6d; Madame C.V.G. £1	1	2	6
N. E. London Gospel Mission (Dock Labourers)—A.H.R. 2s 6d; Madame C.V.G. £1	1	2	6
Army Scripture Readers' Society—Mrs. W. ...	0	7	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—S.G.	0	2	6
Mr. H. Cook's Work, Gosport, &c.—X.	10	0	0
Rev. J. W. Atkinson (Cry of the Children)—S.G.	0	10	0
Labourers' Strike—M.	5	0	0
	£219	10	3

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Ladies' Samaritan Society—F. 5s.

London Samaritan Society & Homerton Mission (Convalescent Homes at Sandgate and Bournemouth)—Miss M.W. 5s; Miss K.R.R. 10s.

Union Hall Mission (Mr. R. Bilke)—Bodmin, £1; Anon., J.E. 5s.

The Editor of The Quiver begs to acknowledge the receipt of 5s from F.A.J. & S. on behalf of The Quiver Lifeboat Fund.

"An East-end Free Library"—Colonel B.H.M. 6s.—Mr. F.A. BEVAN, Treasurer, 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

"A Minister's Request" (for sending THE CHRISTIAN to Ministers with small Stipends)—R.D. 5s, received as R.O.W. THE CHRISTIAN, August 23; Mrs. T. 2s 6d.

NEW MAGAZINE ON SPIRITUAL LIFE.

CONSECRATION. 1d. MONTHLY.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C. And Booksellers.

Sovereign Grace.

ITS SOURCE, ITS NATURE, & ITS EFFECTS.

By D. L. MOODY.

nted cover, 1s.; Limp cloth, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Particularly useful as showing the part which the ce of God takes in the work of conversion and re-neration."—Preacher's Analyst.

ondon: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Power from on High.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS IN CHRISTIAN LIFE AND WORK.

By D. L. MOODY.

nted covers, 1s.; Limp cloth, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

The personality of the Holy Spirit is the great truth which the author insists with a practical forces derived n experience."—The Christian Leader.

ondon: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ow ready, price One Penny; 6 copies, post free, 6d.

HE "SECOND BLESSING:"

What It Is, and How to Get It.

BY WILLIAM GOURLAY.

ondon: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

PERMANENT ENLARGEMENT OF THE CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH.

ITH the beginning of the Ninth Vol. on Oct. 10th, the CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH will be per-nently enlarged by the addition of four pages. It then be one of the largest as well as one of the hest Religious Papers of the present day. Its usual ures will be maintained, while special attention will given to the HOME CIRCLE and HINTS AND LPS TO WORKERS, &c. Many of the ablest men England are engaged upon its literary staff.
rder the Paper of your Local Newsagent, to begin this new Vol.

EVERY THURSDAY. ONE PENNY.

FICES: 73, LUDGATE HILL, LONDON, E.C.

FRENCH DRESSES.

To our LADY PATRONS.

WILL Ladies please note that our preparations for the Autumn and Winter Season have been made on a very liberal scale, embracing the choicest products of La Belle France, and also British manufactures, the excellence of some of which has commended them to our notice, though, as heretofore, our choicest Dresses have been personally selected in France, and are not only very beautiful, but bear that impress of rarity and exclusiveness which commends them to Ladies before any others procurable. Moreover, we are to the front in an all-important essential—viz., in Combination Dresses—Dresses which are undoubtedly au fait for the Autumn and Winter, and which are possibly unobtainable in any other Goods. Ladies may rely on our Fabrics being found not only excellent in style, correct in taste, and thoroughly Haute Nouveauté, but also intrinsically cheap. Thus, The Queen says:—"To dress well, it is necessary to feel the 'PULSE OF FASHION'—to know what French people are making, selling, and wearing. . . . The design and colouring of Jaques' Fabrics display the perfection of French taste, and ladies who would see the newest and most elegant designs should not fail to examine their patterns."

AMONG many others we would call particular attention to the following:—

ST. DENIS Habit Cloth, which is, as its name implies, of French manufacture; we offer it as being, to the best of our knowledge, the cheapest real Habit Cloth, with the distinguishing hair line selvedge, in the English market. Double width 42 in.; Prix 2 fr., = 1/7 per yard.

ANTIBES Habit Cloth. We have given the name of the ancient French Town of Antipolis, where Napoleon landed in 1815, to this Fabric, as a symbol of our intention to land it on the English market as the best and finest finished, winter weight, real hair line selvedged Habit Cloth ever offered at 2 fr. 50 c. per yard.
Double width, 42 in., price 2/- per yard.

And also we would specially mention the subjoined:—

ALL DOUBLE-WIDTH FABRICS.		Per yard
"Luxemburg" Habit Cloth	price	2/11½
"Cherbourg" Habit Cloth	"	3/10½
Drap Calais	"	1/4
Drap Dieppe	"	1/6½
"Lamalou" Combination Dress	"	1/9 & 2/6
"Riviere" Combination..	"	2/3 & 2/10½
Drap Pontarlier	"	1/6½
"Caledonian" Serge	"	1/0½
"Caledonian" Check	"	1/9
"West Riding" Serge	"	1/10½
"Cambrian" Combination	"	2/6 & 2/9
"Anglian" Combination	"	2/6 & 2/10½
Henrietta Francaises	"	2/6
"Snowdon" Suiting	"	2/3
"Criccieth" Suiting	"	3/3
"Glen Laura" Suiting	"	2/10½
"Avenue de L'Opera" Robe	"	£2 5/-
"Strasbourg" Robe	"	£2 15/-

And MANY OTHERS.

OUR One Shilling Series includes a splendid All Wool Sateen-finished FRENCH HABIT CLOTH, bought much under value, and worth fully 1s. 6d. per yard; also FRENCH FOULINES, New AUTUMN CHECKS, and MANY OTHERS, all of which are at One Shilling per yard. We now only await the kind permission of ladies to lay before them our extensive collection, asking them to please state when writing whether Patterns in black, Colours, or both, are required. All Patterns Post Free. All Parcels Carriage Paid.

JAQUES AND JAQUES,

Maison Francaise,

DARLINGTON.

Bouillon Fleet.

PURE BEEF & NOTHING BUT BEEF.

BEEF TEA, SOUPS, GRAVIES ENRICHED, MADE DISHES GREATLY IMPROVED.

A DELICIOUS CUP CAN BE MADE WITH THE ADDITION OF BOILING WATER ONLY.

Made in the shortest possible time without the aid of Butcher's Meat.

for "a few Practical Cookery Recipes."

Kemmerich's Peptone.

KEMMERICH'S PEPTONE

Is so highly nutritious that, taken with a little farinaceous food, it will sustain and strengthen without the aid of further supportor stimulants.

FOR DYSPEPTICS, INVALIDS, CONVALESCENTS,

Can be taken either in solid form or dissolved in Water, Wine, Coffee, or Tea. Sole Agents—

BOUILLON FLEET, Ltd., Camberwell. LONDON.

"I am of opinion that KEMMERICH'S PEPTONE OF BEEF is not only a highly nutritious article of food, but one especially adapted eak digestive organs, on account of the readiness with which it will diffuse and enter into the circulation of the body.
"JOHN CLARK, M.D., F.C.S., F.I.C., Public Analyst for the City of Glasgow."

If you find difficulty in obtaining BOUILLON FLEET or KEMMERICH'S PEPTONE from your own grocer or dealer, please send and remittance direct to BOUILLON FLEET, LTD., 1, Fenchurch Avenue, E.C., and Camberwell, London, S.E. Sole Consignees for parkling KAISER BRUNNEN, the Emperor's TABLE WATER. 100 Bottles, delivered free, 28s. Retailed at 4d. a bottle.

SOLD AT ALL THE STORES.

SLEEP AND ITS LOSS.

ONE of our greatest authorities upon this subject says:—"There is no fact more clearly established in the physiology of man than this, that the brain expends its energies and itself during the hours of wakefulness, and that these are recuperated during sleep. If the recuperation does not equal the expenditure, the brain withers—this is insanity. Thus it is that, in early English history, persons who were condemned to death by being prevented from sleeping, always died raving maniacs; thus it is also that those who are starved to death become insane—the brain is not nourished, and they cannot sleep." The practical inferences are these—

1. Those who think most, who do the most brain work, require the most sleep.

2. That time "saved" from necessary sleep is infallibly destructive to mind, body, and estate.

3. The fact that the brain liquefies and expands for work until the meridian of the day, and hardens and contracts for rest towards night, is of itself sufficient to teach us that no man ever yet tried to reverse this order, by attempting to turn night into day, without ere long paying the penalty in impaired mental and physical power. Although many attempt to do this the law of retribution is none the less certain.

Sleep, one of the first requisites of life and health, should be maintained in its integrity, for, if tampered with in its due observance (like most common blessings), when once lost it is not easily regained, as most of those who are sufferers in this respect too well know. The readiest means of regaining natural and healthful sleep is described in the following statement:—

MRS. HODGKINSON, 47, Stafford-street,
Longton, Staffs.

"I have found more benefit from Mr. B. Copson Garratt's remedy than from any medicine I have ever tried. I had suffered for a long time from Nervous Debility and sleepless nights, but after trying his treatment a week I began to have natural sleep and to gradually improve."

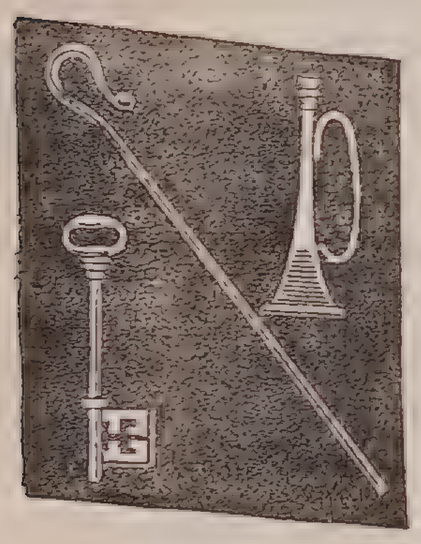
It will be regarded as a pleasure by Mr. B. C. Garratt to do anything to extend the knowledge of the subject and to afford any desired information. His advice may be had gratuitously by personal application or by letter, and those whose sufferings have become chronic through the failure of ordinary remedies, are, if possible, more especially welcome to his attention. A thoughtfully candid opinion may always be anticipated, with the fullest consideration of all necessities and varying features of the case submitted.

B. COPSON GARRATT,
16, Finsbury-square,
LONDON, E.C.

IMPORTANT WORK for TEACHERS of the YOUNG.

220 pages, Crown 8vo. Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

CHILDREN'S MEETINGS:



AND HOW TO CONDUCT THEM.

BY LUCY J. RIDER AND NELLIE M. CARMAN.

CONTAINS

FOURTH THOUSAND.

Sixty Outline Lessons for the Class,
Forty-three Diagrams for the Black-board,
Twenty-five attractive Children's Hymns.

"A thoroughly practical book, by teachers who have learned by experience the best methods. Teachers will find it most helpful, especially in blackboard word-work. The Addresses are teachings—which very many Children's Addresses are not."—The Teacher at Work.

"We do not remember meeting with any better book than this for help in Children's Meetings. It is first-rate. There are objects to be drawn on the blackboard; but there are also capital lessons to go with them. Blackboards get very, very black; and the children are very bored, when it is all chalk and no sound sense. Many of these Addresses would make sermons of the first water—and what more can we say of Addresses?"

Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in The Sword and Trowel.

"We have no hesitation in advising all who are engaged in the good work of teaching children and young people in Gospel principles, and the way of salvation, to possess themselves of a copy of this work. It will be found to be a very valuable and suggestive book, and helpful to the teacher of the Infant—as well as to the teacher of the Bible-class."—Baptist Messenger.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

BEING A COMPLETE AND AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE LIVES, SUFFERINGS, AND TRIUMPHANT DEATHS OF CHRISTIAN AND PROTESTANT MARTYRS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

With twelve full-page ILLUSTRATIONS. Complete in One Handsome Volume. 1,083 pages.

Cloth boards, 10s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"We are pleased to see the BOOK OF MARTYRS well to the front. It is a great thing to have such a copy of FOXE in the market at 10s. 6d. We wish Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT an immediate sale of the present issue, which is marvellously cheap."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in The Sword and Trowel.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

With twelve full-page ILLUSTRATIONS. Complete in One Handsome Volume. 1,083 pages.

Cloth boards, 10s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"As a complete edition of FOXE'S MARTYRS, this is by far the most attractive we know."—Primitive Methodist.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

With twelve full-page ILLUSTRATIONS. Complete in One Handsome Volume. 1,083 pages.

Cloth boards, 10s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"We welcome this edition, which well deserves to find its place in every household which does not possess a copy of the book; and it should find its way into our libraries, juvenile and other."—Baptist.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

With twelve full-page ILLUSTRATIONS. Complete in One Handsome Volume. 1,083 pages.

Cloth boards, 10s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"An excellent edition of this great standard work; and very cheap withal."
Christian Age.

"It is a cheap and complete Book of Martyrs, well printed and elegantly bound, and suitable for a gift book."—Record.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES

THIRD EDITION.

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a Plan for Consecutive Daily Reading.

By Dr. J. ANDERSON,
Graduate of King's College, Aberdeen, and Member of Royal College of Surgeons, London.

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth limp, 2s.

"It is impossible to speak too highly of this volume, which is the result of immense labour and consecrated talent. To the Bible student, the Sunday-school teacher, or local preacher, its aid is indispensable."—The Christian Age.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES

THIRD EDITION.

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a Plan for Consecutive Daily Reading.

By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S.

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth limp, 2s.

"It will stimulate and help all of whom it can be said, 'his delight is in the Law of the Lord, and in His law doth he meditate day and night.' The historical and general remarks which preface each book of Scripture, and the table showing the order and circumstance of each Psalm, are truly valuable additions to the work."
Baptist Messenger.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES

THIRD EDITION.

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a Plan for Consecutive Daily Reading.

By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S.

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth limp, 2s.

"A very valuable work. The subject is one that, although of immense importance, is too often overlooked. Dr. Anderson has done well in thus taking it in hand. The tone of the work is excellent throughout; and the suggestions offered are of a very practical character."—The Rock.

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES

THIRD EDITION.

IN ORDER TO ABIDING COMMUNION WITH GOD. Also Suggestions for Bible Reading and Study, and a Plan for Consecutive Daily Reading.

By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S.

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.
Cheap Edition, tinted covers, 1s. 6d.; cloth limp, 2s.

"For those who aspire to have a thorough knowledge of the Bible, this little volume will be an invaluable help."—Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S SERIES OF PENNY BOOKS

Well printed, in attractive covers. Suitable for giving or lending
ONE PENNY per copy. 100 copies for SEVEN SHILLINGS
(either Assorted or of any one sort).

ROBERT ANNAN: The Christian Hero.

By Rev. J. MACPHERSON. ILLUSTRATED. (150,000

"A striking example of the power of divine grace, exhibited in the conversion and devoted life Robert Annan—a Christian Hero indeed."—Gospel Magazine.

"It is a book to be read by all, but especially adapted to do good to the working-classes."
Baptist Messenger.

In speaking of the MARATHAI TRANSLATION the Bombay Guardian says:—

"It is the memoir of a man who for many years was the slave of sin, was powerfully converted God, and during the remainder of his life was characterised by singular devotedness to the service God and his fellow-men."

TELL JESUS: Recollections of Emily Gosse

By ANNA SHIPTON. ILLUSTRATED. (50,000.)

"Presents us with notices of a life spent in loving, intimate, and uninterrupted communion with personal Lord. . . . We have read the book with deep interest. We would that indolent professors might read it and be quickened, and that suffering saints might read it and be comforted."—Christian Times

"Calculated to produce a certain impression upon the hearts of true Christians that will be greatly beneficial to them."—Sword and Trowel.

"We have read this work with interest. It contains much that is suggestive and important."
Gospel Magazine.

JOHN B. GOUGH, The Great Temperance Orator

ILLUSTRATED. (50,000.)

"An admirable pennyworth, giving a clear and well told account of Mr. Gough's early sorrows and sins, and the great deliverance God wrought for him."—Christian Miscellany.

"An illustrated sketch of this remarkable man. It is a marvellous pennyworth, and ought to sell by scores of thousands."—Gospel Magazine.

"This brief sketch has all the charm of a romance, combined with the force of argument and impassioned appeal."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"This should command an immense circulation, and should do immense good."—Baptist Messenger

"A capital illustrated Life of the great temperance orator for ONE PENNY."
Presbyterian Messenger.

"It is written in an attractive style; large in size; clearly printed in readable type; and contains several Illustrations. It is a wonderful pennyworth, and deserves to be distributed by thousands."
Nonconformist.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKERS FOR DEEP SEA MISSION and others requiring first-class Knitting Wools, Yarns, and Fancy Wools of every description should send for price list to

H. M. WRIGHT,

2, SOUTH HILL PARK, HAMPSTEAD, N.W.

Paton's celebrated Alloa Yarns, direct from the factory, at lower prices than ever quoted before. Goods delivered free to any part of London value over 5s.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.

PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of NERVOUS DISEASES, have received Testimonials from three Physicians to Her Majesty the Queen and the leading Physicians of Nine London Hospitals, including Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians of London.

The distressing symptoms of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, Loss of MUSCULAR POWER, RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, PARALYSIS, EPILEPSY, &c., are speedily removed by means of Pulvermacher's World-famed Galvanic Belts, which convey the electric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all the nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of premature waste and decay.

Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the profession and scientific men."

Dr. H. A. ALLBUTT, M.R.C.P., 24, Park Square, Leeds, writes, October, 1888: "I always recommend with confidence Mr. PULVERMACHER'S BELTS. Ladies recovering from illness incidental to their sex will find these BELTS of vast assistance in restoring lost nerve power."

For Full Price List and Particulars, see New Pamphlet, "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY." Post free from

PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC DEPÔT,
194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
(ESTABLISHED OVER 40 YEARS.)

CUCKOO CLOCK and WEATHER HOUSE (COMBINED).

A handsomely carved wood clock, 22in. in height, with ivory hands and figures, strikes the hours and half hours on a powerful wire gong. Each time the clock strikes a charming little cuckoo pushes open a door at top of clock, and comes out, and cuckoos the hours and half hours, then retires, and the door closes after it. Above the clock is the Weather House, containing beautifully modelled figures of male and female peasants, 3in. high. The man comes out if about to be wet, and woman if fine. We warrant these clocks to go for years, and for time-keeping qualities no better clock can be obtained at any price, while they are ornamental and fit to decorate a palace.

Packed in case free and sent to any address on receipt of 21/-.

SWISS NOVELTY IMPORTERS,
E. BAYLY (SOLE AGENT),
55, HIGH STREET, KINGSLAND, LONDON.
Next to London and County Bank. Same address 20 years. One minute's walk from Dalston Junction.

UNEQUALLED for INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

SCOTT'S Midlothian OAT-FLOUR

BISCUITS & OAT CAKES.

EIGHT FIRST-CLASS EXHIBITION AWARDS.
Highly recommended by the Medical Profession.
SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND GROCERS.
A. & R. SCOTT, LTD., GLASGOW, MANCHESTER & LONDON.
By Special Appointment to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

VAN HOUTEN'S PURE SOLUBLE COCOA

BEST & GOES FARTHEST.

EASILY DIGESTED—MADE INSTANTLY.

"Once used, always used"—"Its purity is beyond question."—HEALTH.
"It is admirable"—"and so pure."—BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL

C. J. VAN HOUTEN & ZOON.—WEESP-HOLLAND.

Now Published in one
HANDSOME SHILLING VOLUME
Post Free.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS," AND THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY
SHOWING THE
PERMANENCE of CURE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirtieth Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

LETTER from REV. B. DAIN.

"MY DEAR SIR,—I have a letter from Mr. T. C., for whom I wrote you for medicine. He says he is wonderfully better, almost well. I have sent (I should think) for over twenty bottles for members of that family, with the greatest success.

"'I am pleased to say I continue in splendid health, though once given up in consumption, but cured through your medicine; so it has had a fair trial with me.'

"Yours truly, B. Dain, 49, Bond-street, Leigh, Lancashire."

N.B.—The reader is referred to the case of this minister, Letter 8, page 83, of Appendix to my work on Consumption.

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

RATIONAL CORSETS.

Invaluable for growing girls, delicate persons, and ladies of all ages, relieving the hips from the weight of the skirts, and allowing the greatest freedom.

Young Ladies' 4s. 6d., White or Drab.
" " 6s. 6d., Scarlet.
Ladies' 6s. 6d., White or Drab.
" 9s. 6d., Black, Scarlet, or Sanitarie.
" 18s. 6d., Satin, Black, and Colours.

All makes in CORSETS (medium and best) and UNDERCLOTHING (wool, long-cloth, and silk) are supplied.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,
263, Oxford Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

Already Cooked—requires neither boiling nor straining—is made in a minute.

ALLEN & HANBURYS' Infants' FOOD

A nutriment peculiarly adapted to the digestive organs of Infants and Young Children, supplying all that is required for the formation of firm flesh and bone.

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER

DINNER AND SUPPER DAINTIES
CLEVER RECIPES are GIVEN AWAY!
With Every Packet of Bird's Custard Powder.
This admirable substitute for Eggs is most enjoyable with Tinned and Preserved Fruits, and provides an Endless Variety of Choice Dishes.

A GREAT LUXURY.

Sold Everywhere, in 6d. Boxes, sufficient for 3 Pints; 1s. Boxes, for 7 pints.

"I heartily recommend it. Eggs may disagree; this will not.—GORDON STABLES, C.M., M.D., R.N."

"PASTRY AND SWEETS," GRATIS.

The new and enlarged edition of this valuable little work, containing Practical Hints and Original Recipes for Tasty Dishes for the Dinner and Supper Table, will be sent, post-free, on receipt of Address, by ALFRED BIRD & SONS, Birmingham.

N.B.—Grocers can have copies for distribution among their customers on application.

Allen & Hanburys'
A Castor Oil

Tasteless. Pure. Active.
Sold everywhere at 6d., 1/, 1/9 & 3/.

"It is taken both by children and adults without the slightest difficulty, whilst its aperient effects are unquestionable. It possesses all the advantages claimed for it."—Lancet.

WHAT IS LIME JUICE?

The answer is that it should be THE JUICE of the LIME FRUIT without admixture.

In Montserrat alone is the Lime Tree cultivated for this purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain this brand (as supplied to the Government), and not any of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, or prepared Lime Juice, &c.

MONTSERRAT
(TRADE MARK.)
PURE LIME-FRUIT JUICE.

It can be had everywhere, in Imperial Quarts and Pints, can be diluted and sweetened to taste, and is far stronger than any other. See name of Sole Consignees—EVANS, SONS & CO., is on the Capsule and Label of each Bottle.

Tonga
The SPECIFIC FOR NEURALGIA.

"Tonga maintains its reputation in the treatment of Neuralgia."
Lancet.

"Invaluable in facial Neuralgia. Has proved effective in all those cases in which we have prescribed it."—Medical Press.

2/9, 4/6, & 11/. Of all Chemists.

USED BY HER MAJESTY'S SERVANTS.
Gold Medals and Diplomas of Merit at all Exhibitions.

Needham's Polishing Paste

Dazzling Mirror Finish.

The reputation of nearly a century as the most reliable preparation for Cleaning and Brilliantly Polishing BRASS, COPPER, TIN, BRITANNIA METAL, PLATINOID, &c. Can be obtained Retail everywhere, in 6d. and 1s. Pots, 2d. and 1d. Tins, and 1d. Cardboard Boxes. Inventors and Sole Manufacturers—

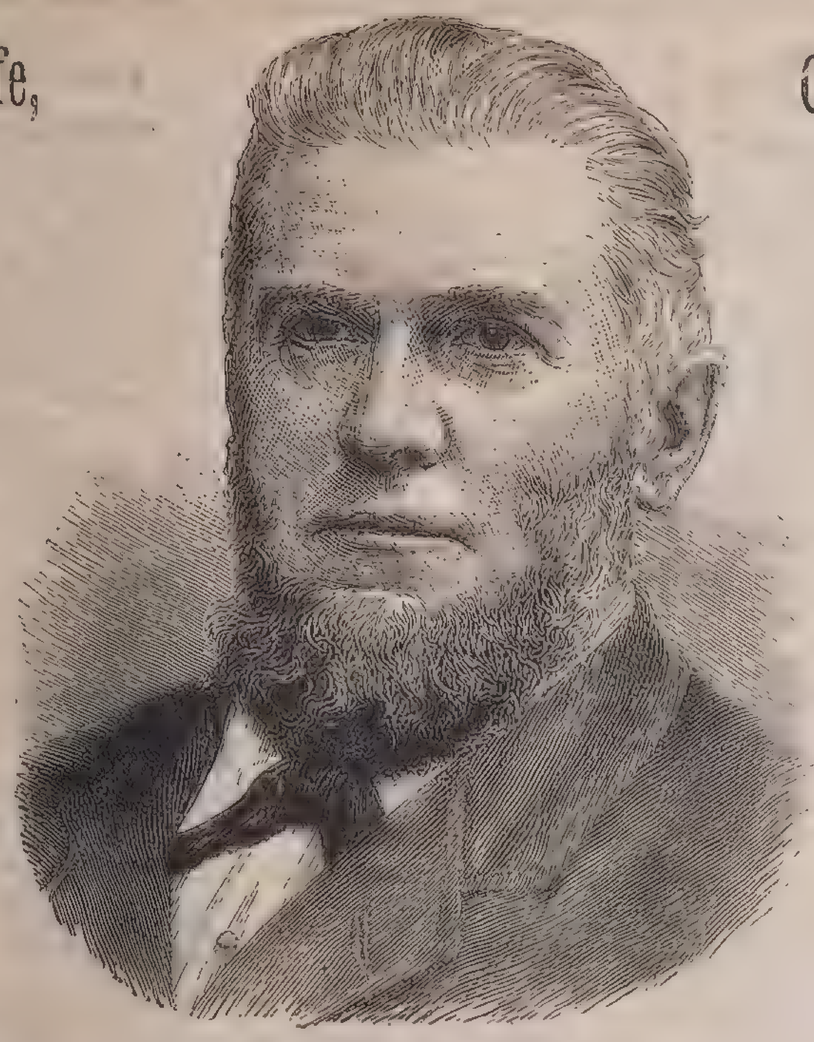
JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
LONDON OFFICE: St. George's House, Eastcheap, E.C.

CADBURY'S

REFRESHING COCOA SUSTAINING

CADBURY'S COCOA is absolutely pure.—The Public Analysts have submitted CADBURY'S COCOA to close tests, and the result has always proved its great value as a sustaining and nourishing beverage. THE POPULAR BEVERAGE for Breakfast, Luncheon, Tea, and Supper in all seasons is CADBURY'S COCOA.—Comforting, strengthening, nourishing—for old and young, robust and feeble. CADBURY'S COCOA is absolutely pure.

Pears' Soap



The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

Rev. F. B. MEYER'S PAPER ON "PETER." Page 10.

Rev. JOHN McNEILL ON RICH AND POOR. Page 16.

[Rev. William Cuff.]

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

Dr. PENTECOST in Scotland 8
The Hire of the Labourers 9
The Need of Men. By Rev. J. ROBERTSON .. 9
Volunteers ar Pontymoile 10
Railway Men in Ireland 11
Self-Sacrifice. By Rev. W. HASLAM 12
Slaves of the Drink. By Miss MARIA WEST .. 12
"Blind Aggie" of Crieff 13
The World's Marseillaise. By Rev. JOS. COOK .. 13

Count Campello's Movement 14
China's Greatest Statesman 14
Salvation Army in France 15
Portrait and Sketch of Rev. WILLIAM CUFF .. 17
Perth Christian Conference 18
The Gospel in Ireland 20
Morality in Legislation 21
Y.M.C.A. Work in Europe 22
The Patna Case 24

No. 1025.] FRIDAY, SEPT. 20, 1889.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

THE
LARGE QUARTO EDITION.
441 PIECES.
SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.
Tastefully printed, with Rules round pages, handsomely bound, Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges 16/6
Elegantly bound in Morocco, Gilt Edges 30/-

THE
SMALL QUARTO EDITION.
441 PIECES.
SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS
Paper Boards... ... ... 5/-
Cloth Boards 6/-

THE
SMALL QUARTO EDITION.
SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS
441 PIECES.
AND
THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.
IN ONE VOLUME.
Cloth Boards 7/6
Cloth, Bevelled Boards 9/6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The QUARTO Edition of "ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,"
SUITABLE FOR THE ORGAN, PIANO, OR HARMONIUM.
JUST READY.
ADDITIONAL
SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,
With Standard Hymns.
COMPILED AND SUNG BY
IRA D. SANKEY.
CONTAINING 309 PIECES (Nos. 442—750).

QUARTO SIZE (MUSIC AND WORDS)
Cloth Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.
Cloth Back, Paper Sides .. .. 4s. 6d.

"The volume of ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS includes a very winsome assortment of entirely fresh pieces, gleaned from authors and composers on both sides of the sea, with an excellent selection of old standards. There are no fewer than 309 Hymns and Tunes, not being so very far short of the number in the well-known SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS. The two volumes are quite independent of each other; and nobody who appreciates the first will fail to obtain the second."—Christian Leader.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The QUARTO Edition of
JUST READY.
SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS
(750 Pieces),
SUITABLE FOR THE ORGAN, PIANO, OR HARMONIUM.
Consisting of "Sacred Songs and Solos" (441 Pieces), and "Additional Sacred Songs and Solos, with Standard Hymns" (309 Pieces).
COMPILED AND SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY.
750 PIECES IN ONE VOLUME.

QUARTO SIZE (MUSIC AND WORDS).
Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Ditto (with "Christian Choir") .. .. 8s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 9s. 6d.
Ditto (with "Christian Choir") .. .. 10s. 6d.

"In this Collection are many entirely new contributions to popular hymnology while the reprinted pieces are all well-established favourites."
Literary World.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with thankfulness 10s., "A Gift from Two Sisters," Clothing from an "Unknown Friend."

The Infant Day Nursery. Free Ragged Day Schools. Hungry Children fed. Toy Classes. Penny Bank. Children's Services. Scripture Union. Clothing Club. Industrial Classes. For Young Women and Elder Girls: Meetings, Classes, Bible Readings, Library, Reading and Tea-room, Parlour, &c. For Young Men and Lads: Reading and Tea-room, Weekly Prayer Meetings, Bible Classes, &c. For Adults: Temperance Meetings, Bible Classes, Prayer Meetings, Mothers' Meetings, Clothing, Boot and Coal Clubs, Mission to Inebriate Women, Room to room visitation by the Bible Women, Missionary and Female Missionary to Drunken Women, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest contributions in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

For 103 years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 240 Christian men and women.

Funds are urgently needed.

The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

ATKINSON ANNUITY FUND.— The Committee invite Christian friends who desire to recognise the zealous services of JAMES JOHN ATKINSON as a Christian worker during his 28 years of holding the Secretaryship of the Islington and Highbury branch of the Y.M.C.A. (which post, owing to continuous ill-health, he is obliged to resign), to send subscriptions to purchase him an annuity. Address to Mr. G. T. KEELE, Hon. Sec., 81, St. Paul's-road, Highbury, or to Mr. M. H. RACKSTRAW, (Hon. Treasurer), 203, Upper-street, N. The Farewell Meeting, at which George Williams, Esq., President of Y.M.C.A., will preside, is arranged to take place at the Priory Hall, Upper-street, N., on Thursday, 26th inst., at half-past eight p.m. All friends are invited.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—Next session opens September 30. The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years, board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies. Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

MILDMAY HOME, TORQUAY.—For Consumptive Female Patients. Terms 10s. 6d. and 7s. weekly. Open all the year. Apply, SECRETARY, Smyrna, Bronshill-road. Entirely dependent on voluntary contributions. St. Matt. xxv. 40.

WICLIFFE HOUSE BIBLE TRAINING INSTITUTION for Mission work, Home and Foreign, 34, Brunswick-road, Brighton. Conducted by Dr. and Mrs. ANDERSON. Detailed prospectus sent on application. Open and free of charge to all Christians.

BEULAH, 30, Prince's-avenue, Prince's-gate, Liverpool. The Lord has given the above beautiful home in place of the late "Bethshan," 11, Great George-square. Meetings: Tuesday, 7.30 p.m.; Wednesday, 3.0 p.m.; Friday, 3.0 p.m. Persons desirous of rest to body and soul, also such as need light concerning salvation, holiness, and Divine Healing, can be accommodated at the above address.—For particulars apply to Mrs. CROOK.

PARK HALL CONVENTION will meet in the Barn on September 18, 19, and 20, and conveyances will be provided from Polmont station, on the North British Railway. Mr. Bowker will preside; and Revs. Evan Hopkins, W. Haslam, J. Gelson Gregson, and others have promised to attend. All are invited.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

Educational.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Educational Home for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Every advantage for health and education. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest references. PRINCIPALS, College House, Suffolk-road.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Apply to PRINCIPAL. School re-opened Sept. 18.

HOME SCHOOL AT BOURNEMOUTH. —Mrs. W. VENIS ROBINSON can receive two or three little girls to educate with her own daughter. 2, Madeira-rise, Bournemouth.

CHERTSEY HOUSE LADIES' SCHOOL, Red-hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS invites reference to Gentlemen of high Christian standing, and to parents of past and present Pupils. Prospectuses on application.

BURLTON HOUSE. — High-class Boarding School for Girls, Castle Hill, Reading.—Principal, Miss K. RATCLIFFE. Old established. Highest references. Inclusive terms.

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, S. Terms from Six Guineas. Day pupils from 5 years of age. Three separate departments, each under the care of Ladies; seniors, under a staff of resident masters, thoroughly qualified to prepare for examinations, Public Schools, or Commercial life. Delicate boys and boys from the Colonies receive special care. A carpenter's shop and a chemical laboratory have recently been built on the premises. Autumn term commences Saturday, September 21. For prospectus, apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal.

COMBE DOWN SCHOOL, BATH.

Principal—Mr. W. FRANKLIN.

Boys prepared for the various University and Civil Service examinations. Thirty-five scholarships won the last three years, including Exhibitions in first and first-class Classical Tripos, Cambridge, open to boys of this school. Gymnasium, workshop, playground, cricket field, and bath. A few vacancies for the present term, which began September 11. Referees permitted by Dr. Bickersteth, Archdeacon Lefroy, W. Hoare, Esq., the Hon. and Rev. J. Moreton, Rev. H. Moule, Dr. Meadows, Bath; Rev. Canon Bell, Salisbury, and Surrey.

EDUCATION (SUPERIOR), St. John's Wood. Two vacancies. Resident English and foreign governesses. High-class visiting professors. Every home comfort and careful training. Local exams. Inclusive fees 40 to 60 guineas per annum. ALPHA, Library, 67, Abbey-road, St. John's Wood.

HOME AND EDUCATION, with motherly care, in small school of good class children. Only a limited number of boarders received. Very healthy climate. Terms moderate. Highest references. — Mrs. HALL, St. Clement's-road, St. John's, Guernsey.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A First-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Pupils will prepare for the Public Schools, Woolwich, Sandhurst, &c. A few vacancies. The next term will begin on Thursday, September 19.

YOUR BOYS will receive sound education, and thorough Christian training, with Mr. and Mrs. DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. 18 to 25 guineas. Entrance any time.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter. —Boys are prepared for the Universities, the Army direct, and at the Royal Naval College, Dartmouth. Special attention is paid to the backward boys. Terms, &c., on application to the Rev. J. E. TIPTAFT, M.C.P.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for Young Ladies, 3, Lansdowne-walk-road, W.

MANY CHRISTIAN PARENTS, who desire to have their boys carefully trained in GENTLEMANLY HABITS, and receive a sound CLASSICAL AND COMMERCIAL EDUCATION, will find the above combination at the BOARDING SCHOOL, Ryde, Isle of Wight. Principal, Mr. W. C. FEGAN. Terms moderate. Prospectus on application. The boys, comprising the sons of Clergymen and Christian gentlemen, receive a first-class Education.

The Premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run from London. Parents and Guardians may rely upon the strictest attention being given to the moral and religious training of the boys. Many parents have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School.

Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

STANLEY HOUSE,
CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.
Principal—Mrs. ELLIS, M.C.P.

A thorough modern education, combined with kind and firm training. Individual attention, especially to delicate or backward pupils. New schoolroom and recreation ground added. Prospectus on application.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Deepdale, Caterham Valley.

MADAME ROMAN (widow of a Pastor) and her daughter would receive a few Ladies at her home, 98, Avenue de Villiers, Paris. References kindly permitted to Rev. Thomas Vincent, Vaucresson, and Rev. R. Lyon, of Versailles. Avenue de Vaucresson, Vaucresson, Prance.

BRIGHTON.—INKERMANN HOUSE, Eaton-road.—The Misses ASHBY receive a few gentlemen for Board and Preparatory Education, at 2, Lansdowne-road. Constant attention is paid to health and the pleasures of home are combined with the regulations of school.

A CLERGYMAN wishes to recommend a School for young Ladies in healthy seaside resort, with an Evangelical ministry.—Apply in first instance to Rev. T. CAMERON WILSON, Paignton, S. Devon.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian"
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

Miss Sarah Robinson, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth,

is now completing her Scheme for the benefit of Soldiers, Sailors, their Families, Widows, and Orphans, and the poor of Portsmouth, by the erection of a large Gospel Hall and Coffee Palace (with 170 beds), opposite the Portsmouth Town Railway Station, at a cost of £30,000, including site. This is her fifth, and last, House; will be self-supporting; and, like the others, will be vested in Trustees.

Having no family claims and few personal wants, Miss Robinson has always freely spent her own money on these Institutions, besides collecting the needful funds. She is now making a great effort, at the cost of much personal suffering, to obtain help for the new building. After being confined to the house for eight years, she is undertaking a three-months' tour, by road, in an invalid's coach, built for the purpose, intending (D.V.) to travel a thousand miles, and address meetings in fifty towns, after which she will publish a full account of her journey and its results. She travels at her own expense, accompanied by one helper.

DONATIONS ARE EARNESTLY ASKED.

EDUCATIONAL.—The notice of Parents seeking a truly godly individual training for their daughters, is invited by a Christian Mother, who esteems it a privilege to bear testimony to the incalculable benefit derived by her daughters whilst completing their education at a well-known High-class Ladies' School. Guardians of orphaned [illegible] confident of [illegible] so essential to [illegible] healthful surroundings. — Mrs. H. K. M., c/o Housekeeper, 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Rosehill Preparatory School.—Principal, Miss BAYNE.—The Rev. W. H. Rednap, Incumbent of St. James', Ryde, strongly recommends this School as an Educational Home for boys (number limited to six). Reference permitted to resident nobility and gentry, parents of former pupils. Terms 40 guineas per annum, inclusive.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance. W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, Glastonbury, Somerset.—High-class Ladies' School.—Miss M. CRUSE receives a limited number of Boarders. Efficient governesses and visiting masters. Home comforts. Individual influence and attention. Pupils received from abroad. Kindergarten class for juniors. Terms moderate.

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester.—Large premises. Sound education. Manual training. Boarders return on Tuesday, September 17. For prospectus of Ladies' School, apply to Miss KOPLER; of Boys' School to Rev. W. BIRTILL.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced September 17.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received. — For terms and references, address Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

BOARDING-SCHOOL FOR GENTLEWOMEN.—Sound instruction, firm yet loving discipline. Special advantages in languages and accomplishments. Articled pupil can be received on half terms. Miss ESSER, Rockfield, Lansdowne-road, Croydon.

EDUCATIONAL HOME. — Twelve young Ladies, of good position, received. Highest educational advantages, combined with every home comfort, and individual training and guidance. Recommended by clergymen, parents of pupils, and others. One vacancy.—D. C. L., Lane's Library, Fitzjohn's Parade, Hampstead.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

MOUNT HOUSE, Ryde, Isle of Wight.—High School for Girls, with Preparatory for Boys under 12. Principals, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. GRENUP. Sound education and Christian home. Autumn term begins September 19. Prospectus on application.

TO CHRISTIAN PARENTS.—The safeguards of home, together with the advantage of French, may be secured in London, for a youth of high principles and of good education.—Send application, care of Pasteur DU PONTET DE LA HARPE, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W.

OCKBROOK, NEAR DERBY.—Moravian School for Boys. Pupils successfully prepared for Public Exams. Cricket field 10 acres; large swimming bath; hot baths in the house. Milk from school farm. Playground sheltered from north and east winds. Rev. J. MALLALIEU, Head Master.

KESWICK HOUSE, Dartmouth-row, Blackheath. Principals, Mrs. and Miss HOBBS. The School is conducted on strictly moral and religious principles. High-class education, visiting professors, resident English and foreign governesses. Cheerful home, healthy situation. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest testimonials.

MANADON VILLA SCHOOL, Tavistock-road, Plymouth.—The Misses LANE receive a limited number of Resident and Daily Pupils whose education and Christian training are combined with the utmost care. Preparation for all the Local Examinations. References to parents of present and former pupils.

REV. G. D. BARTLET, M.A., receives, at his residence in Highgate, ten Pupils (from 9 years) to board and educate for commercial or professional spheres. Able masters, individual attention, and careful Christian training. Highgate is strongly recommended by the medical profession. Fees, from 18 guineas per term.

September 20, 1889.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of the late Mr. H. F. Bowker.

A telegram reached us while at press that our revered friend, Rev. Dr. Somerville, of Glasgow, died at noon on Wednesday.

Conscious that mission work depends for its success upon spiritual forces, and recognising the fact that missionaries in various parts of the field are realising the need for a baptism of the Holy Spirit, the secretaries of the London Missionary Society invite the churches which support that Society to devote the week commencing Sunday next to special prayer and supplication for the outpouring of the Spirit of God upon the workers. The Society was founded in 1795 after a week of meetings for prayer and deliberation, from September 21 to 28. It is hoped that under the designation of the "Founders' Week," this season will, year by year, be observed with an earnestness which shall claim and secure God's blessing both at home and abroad.

The magistrates of Overton, Hants, seem to have set themselves to exterminate the Salvation Army in the little town of Whitchurch. So far, over forty persons, male and female, have suffered imprisonment for taking part in outdoor meetings. Many residents have been summoned on no other ground than that, as sympathisers, they were standing within earshot of Army meetings. It is greatly to be regretted that the administration of the law should be brought into discredit through harsh proceedings, having for their object the curtailment of the Englishman's boasted right of outdoor assembly. We trust this popular right, which has been so much used of God in various places, will be maintained, and that anything like magisterial intolerance will be defeated through the influence of a healthy public opinion.

We sincerely join in the chorus of congratulation that has greeted the closing of the Dock Labourers' strike. Now that the toilers have, broadly speaking, gained their point, we hope they will loyally abide by the agreement entered into. There will be some inevitable friction before the huge machine that has stood still for the last month can again move forward steadily and smoothly; but a little of the oil of mutual forbearance and forgetfulness of the past will help to that end. It is not to be expected that the stoppage of the strike will much abate the tide of sin and wretchedness that flows through East London. Deeper and more far-reaching changes will have to take place before that can come to pass. If the public-houses could be disestablished, and the rush of destitute immigration diverted or stayed, there would be a gleam of hope. Christian workers in the East-end will still need sympathy and help.

At the request of many British friends, Dr. Pentecost has published an English edition of his pamphlet on Evangelisation. Its wide circulation among the churches in America was followed by much increased activity in the direction of soul-winning; also by an advanced sentiment in favour of a more evangelistic type of ministry. The English edition (4d. Hodder & Stoughton) is introduced by letters of cordial sympathy from Rev. Drs. Alex. Whyte and J. Marshall Lang, and Principal Cairns. We trust it will be largely used of God at the present time in our country.

The interesting and important interview referred to elsewhere, between the Chinese Viceroy and Mr. William Jones, of the Peace Society, shows how heavy is the responsibility that lies on the Indian Government for its persistent participation in the opium trade. The Viceroy declares that it would be a great satisfaction to himself if the British Government would wash its hands of the traffic, though he acquiesces, perforce, in the existing state of things. It surely adds little to our renown as a Christian nation that we should make it appear to other and less enlightened peoples that we cannot carry on our national concerns without the price of the misery of our neighbours.

The British Association, which has closed its meetings at Newcastle-on-Tyne, has been marked by its wonted spirit of absorbing devotion to its own special sphere—the advancement of science. The reading, however, of the copious daily reports which have appeared in The Times, conveys the impression of a caution and freedom from the dogmatic formulating of theories which have not always marked the proceedings. The science of life is felt increasingly to be a problem of which there is greater readiness than heretofore to confess ignorance. It would be well if all scientists adopted the cautious attitude recommended in his opening address by Professor Flower, the President of the Association. Speaking of the wonderful variations of form and structure in the animal and vegetable kingdom, and of the guesses so often made about them, he said:—

> Until the time comes when we shall have more light, a frank confession of ignorance is the most straightforward, indeed the only honest, position we can assume when questioned on these subjects...It is impossible to be blind to the fact that we who are engaged with the investigation of those subjects which are commonly accepted as belonging to the domain of physical science are unfortunately not always, by virtue of being so occupied, possessed of that most precious gift, "a right judgment in all things." Can it be said of any of us that our observations are always accurate, the materials on which they are based always sufficient, our reasoning always sound, our conclusions always legitimate? Is there any subject, however limited, of which our knowledge can be said to have reached finality?

In this opening address an outsider might have noted an exception to the caution we have spoken of. Evolution through some agency was described as a force which is continually tending towards the perfectibility, not only of the whole living world, but of the human race and of the individual. Where, through simply natural causes, are the evidences of the tendency of human beings towards either physical or moral perfection? The entire history of men, when left to themselves, tells a very different story. A time will come, as even members of the British Association are hoping for, when science will rise to its highest truth, and tell men that it is only through Divine grace working in the soul and will of man that he reaches to a true perfectibility.

An address which excited special attention was that on Heredity, by Sir William Turner, President of the Anthropological Section. Science is now occupied in showing how physical, moral, and intellectual qualities, with faults and excellencies, are capable of transmission. But this truth runs all through the Scriptures, and gives tremendous weight to Bible history, and to the commandments of God in relation to the duties of life. And this is the grand culmination to which true science must come. Men will learn to say to the Lord, "Thou hast commanded thy testimonies in righteousness and in very faithfulness."

The Manchester Courier gives a forcible illustration of the fact that freethinking means very often the refusal to allow any thought but its own. M. Eiffel, the constructor of the famous tower, has been recommending young men in Switzerland to remember God as well as their country, and for this utterance certain journals in Paris have taken to vilifying the Tower and its architect. The street Rue Pasteur has been changed into Rue de la Gare, because the great scientist recommended the municipal council of Arbois to keep up the public worship of the Almighty. So much for the claim to freethinking!

A correspondent, who has been sojourning at Eastbourne, writes to us:—

> Except the children's services, now closed, all out-door preaching is effectually stopped here. But one's spirit is stirred to see a place so largely given to the most utter worldliness. Sabbath-breaking could scarcely be worse in a city in France, so far as the bulk of the visitors are concerned, and in this, children of the better class are taught to participate. Indifference about eternal things is palpably obvious, and in a way hitherto unknown in English watering-places. If out-of-door preaching is stopped, might not godly men consult, so that the Town-hall should be taken for preaching? The sermons in churches and chapels do not seem to me even to attempt to meet the case.

Principal Edwards, of University College, Aberystwith, dealing with the subject of "Expository Preaching," in the annual address to the students of the Baptist College, Bristol, a few days ago, laid stress upon the fact that not only has every great and lasting movement in the Church been brought about by preaching, and has produced preachers, but all these movements have been marked by an advance in the study of Scripture, and have given birth to great expositors. He urged that the danger to Christianity in the immediate future is likely to spring from the lack of preaching power in our exegetes, and the lack of exegetical power in our preachers. Dr. Edwards's advice to the students was to shun all "skeletons" and outlines of sermons, and to read the Bible for themselves. He added:—

In order to draw water from these wells, our study of Scripture must be constant, persevering, intense, prayerful. It must become our soul's habitual life.

A reaction appears to be setting in in Germany, where it is announced that a popular edition of the works of Luther is about to be issued. The time is ripe for the undertaking, and, as the ninety-six volumes of the Great Reformer's writings will bear condensation, there is no reason why a careful and competent editor should not be able to present in a concise and cheap form the most powerful of them. Their publication must necessarily direct attention to the thoughtful study of the Scriptures; wherever these are prayerfully read, Rome trembles.

It is not material resources, extensive empire, superabundance of wealth, leviathan ships, or huge battalions, but righteousness that "exalteth a nation." This is a truth which is in danger of being neglected and obscured by the materialistic tendencies of these days. At a time when England, in common with other European nations, is constantly adding to her huge armaments, it is well that she should be reminded of the true source of her past greatness and her best hope for future stability. In a recent sermon the Bishop of Manchester is reported to have said:—

The future of England does not depend upon the widening or the narrowing of the boundaries of her Colonial or Indian Empire. It does not depend upon the amount of her income, nor upon the study of the arts and sciences. No, it depends on the religious and moral conduct and discretion of the people. What was it in the past that has been pointed to as having prevented England from following the example of France, and breaking her national institutions and throwing herself into the chaotic throes of revolution? It was the religious revival connected with the names of men like Wesley; a religious revival which planted the fear of God in the hearts of the masses of this country. And so it is yet. If our national life is to be preserved it will not be by wealth or worldly wisdom, but by the godly training of our children, and by the imbibing of godly principles by our adult population—those religious principles which carry within them the impulse and the motive of all forms of mutual help and improvement.

The recent report of the Secretary of the railway department of the Board of Trade is not pleasant reading. It appears that during the year 1888 there were 396 railway servants killed, and 2193 injured. Though some of these "accidents" were doubtless due to the recklessness common among this class of men, it is not too much to say that very many might have been avoided by the use of suitable and improved appliances. The Times remarks:—

The travelling public has no right to be contented with appliances for its personal security so long as the provision for that of railway servants keeps pace so ill with them. The number of accidents, deadly or not, to the staff of British railway companies remains far too large for the national conscience to be entitled to feel at ease.

Humanity alone demands the large and immediate reduction of the yearly preventable death-roll, and if the railway companies will not move voluntarily in the matter, the necessary legal force must be brought to bear upon them through Parliament. The time is also ripe for some limitation of the hours of labour.

Dr. Pentecost in Scotland.

AFTER a prolonged visit, Dr. Pentecost preached his farewell discourses in St. Andrew's Free Church, Edinburgh, on Sunday last, having for five months filled the pulpit there on behalf of Rev. J. Sandeman.

In addition, he has undertaken a large amount of outside evangelistic work. During a considerable portion of the summer, he held crowded meetings on Sabbath evenings in the Free Assembly Hall, under the auspices of the Carrubbers Close Mission, when it was not unusual to find two thousand people present an hour before the advertised time for commencing. Large week-night services were also held all through the season in the hall and the aforenamed church, and even during the time that the Church Courts were sitting the attendances were very large.

He has been warmly supported by the local ministers, and the effects of the work are both remarkable and varied, rich and poor alike being influenced by it. Among the "well-to-do" have been many who have beforetime evinced no interest whatever in Divine things beyond a mere outward show; others, again, who had even taken prominent parts in Church affairs, but without having had any personal experience of the power of God in the soul; from each of these classes, together with some of the most influential residents of the city, numbers have publicly taken a bold stand for Christ. Seldom, if ever, has Edinburgh been so thoroughly stirred in its upper stratum of society.

But while thus gaining access to the higher ranks, Dr. Pentecost had also shown himself, as his Master did, the friend of the poor. After holding on consecutive Sabbath afternoons enormous open-air gatherings in the Queen's Park (as recently reported in these columns), which were attended by respectably attired audiences, he took his stand in the Grass-market, thus to reach the very poorest. Nor did he fail in his object, for of the 8000 persons or thereabouts who listened to his voice, more than half were of the class he especially desired to reach. Surrounded as he was by innumerable one-room tenements, hundreds at the open windows were within sound of his voice. These windows are generally occupied in some way; on weekdays the stranger's eye is attracted by the amount of drying linen they display; on these Sunday afternoons they presented a vast array of human heads. Taking up his position on the seat of a carriage which had been suitably placed, Dr. Pentecost's imposing figure stood forth in bold relief as his powerful voice rang forth with the glorious message of salvation.

It was a touching scene on Sunday afternoon last, when, at the close of the meeting, a crowd of eager hands—some delicate and gloved, others horny, hard, and bare—were stretched forth to grasp that of the preacher. Regardless of caste or position, the crowd pressed around him to bid him farewell.

At his indoor meetings Dr. Pentecost has observed no special rules, and has successfully avoided any ruts. At times he has had most effective and fruitful after-meetings; at others, after an equally impressive discourse, he has dismissed his audience at once. He has usually dealt with a theme, rather than a text, which he has illustrated by a number of pictures drawn from Scripture, and has always succeeded in leaving one great idea in his hearer's mind. He has manifested a wonderful knowledge of Scripture, and has excelled as a teacher as well as an evangelist. His extensive experience furnishes him with a vast store of incident upon which he draws freely and effectively.

The meetings have been attended throughout by a very large number of ministers, many of whom have come in from outlying and more distant localities to hear the word preached. It may also be mentioned that the impression which Dr. Pentecost made when addressing the General Assembly of the Free Church will long live in the minds of those who were present.

On Sabbath morning, in St. Andrew's Church, the theme of his discourse was Acts xx. 32. With no little feeling, he thanked God that his labour had not been in vain in the Lord, but that his heart was greatly rejoiced to know that many had been led to Christ. He valued the great kindness which had been extended to him on every hand, but with it all the strongest bond which would ever exist between him and the Christians of Edinburgh was the spiritual relationship in which he stood to many of them.

This was in essence his farewell address. Those given later in the day in the Grass-market, and at night in St. Andrew's Church, had for their subject "The Forgiveness of God to Sinners."

One incident, out of many which might be mentioned, is of special interest. At one of the meetings, Dr. Pentecost was especially struck with the singing of a young lady in the choir, who, as he said, "threw her whole soul into it." In conversation with her at the close of the meeting, he found that it was in connection with one of his earlier meetings that she had determined to abandon the idea of a professional career, upon which her heart had been set, and to consecrate her vocal powers to the service of her Lord.

Dr. Pentecost is, we are glad to note, in excellent health, and in no way ill affected by the strain of his work. He has, from time to time, paid flying visits to a number of places around the city to conduct services. He is this week addressing the conference at Dundee, and has prospective arrangements made for the next eight or nine months.

WESLEYANS IN SOUTHWARK.

ENCOURAGED by the success of the "Forward Movement" in East, West, and Central London, the Wesleyans have now begun operations in the South. At the last Conference, Rev. J. H. Hopkins, of the Barry-road Circuit, East Dulwich, was appointed to the charge of the Southwark Mission, with the chapel in Long-lane for headquarters. The stewards and congregation there have given in their hearty adhesion to the arrangement.

Last Lord's Day Mr. Hopkins began his ministry at Long-lane Chapel, with every token of coming success. In the morning the Christians were exhorted to seek an outpouring of the Spirit of power and wisdom. In the evening the Gospel was preached to a crowded congregation, many of whom had been drawn in from the neighbouring streets by personal visitation and the distribution of handbills. Quite a number came forward as inquirers at the close of the sermon, and the workers believe that there were not a few cases of genuine decision for Christ.

On Monday evening some 400 friends sat down to tea, and a large public meeting was subsequently held. Mr. J. H. Lile presided, and addresses full of hope and good cheer were delivered by various friends, including Mr. Hopkins, Rev. Walford Green, Rev. Peter Thompson, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, Mr. Nix, &c. The new effort has got a good send off, and we heartily echo the good wishes for its future prosperity. Certainly the neighbourhood is one that amply justifies this fresh departure among our earnest Wesleyan brethren. Around Long-lane the population is dense; the public-houses are numerous, and religious agencies seem to be few and far between. Our representative, in his search for the place of meeting on Monday evening, asked a group of young men and women in Long-lane as to the whereabouts of the chapel, and, though they were within a stone's throw of it, about all the responses he could get were vacant stares from the lads and giggles from the girls. The Southwark Mission has got plenty of work before it, but we doubt not its leaders will rise to the occasion.

The Good Tidings of the Reign of God.

VIII.—THE HIRE OF THE LABOURERS.

"To the poor the Gospel [the Glad Tidings of the Kingdom of God (Luke viii. 1)] is preached."—LUKE vii. 22.

"How hardly shall they that have riches—that trust in riches—enter into the Kingdom of God."—MARK x. 23, 24.

"He that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent [unpunished]...He that hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him."—PROV. xxviii. 20, 22.

"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content. But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is a root of all evil."—1 TIM. vi. 7—9.

"Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days. Behold, the hire of the labourers...which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth; and the cries of them...are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter."—JAMES v. 1—5.

No more accurate picture of the present state of society could be drawn, no warnings more needed could be given, than the Spirit of God has caused to be written in the above passages from the Old and New Testaments; and these pungent and uncompromising testimonies are as much a part of the Gospel of the Kingdom of God as they were of the older Theocracy.

To take the market price of labour, even though reduced to a "cruel cheapness," as the righteous wage of the labourer, God, by the Apostle James, calls FRAUD; as He had said by the Prophet Habakkuk, "Woe to him that increaseth that which is not his! how long? and to him that ladeth himself with thick clay." There are two things which cry unto God—the blood of Abel, and the "unearned increment"—the hire of the labourers kept back by fraud.

The omission of the Kingdom from the Gospel, the preaching of grace without rule, and faith without obedience, leads of necessity to other inconsistencies. The Sermon on the Mount is practically ignored; the Epistle of James is neglected as legal; and so the principles and commandments of the Kingdom as set forth by the Lord Christ, and the Royal Law of liberty as declared by his Apostle, are conspicuous by their absence from much of the preaching which professes to be "the Gospel of the grace of God."

"Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the Kingdom which He hath promised to them that love Him? But ye [who have coveted an evil covetousness—gained an evil gain—that ye may set your nest on high—Hab. ii. 9] have despised the poor. Do not rich men oppress you?...If ye fulfil the Royal Law according to the Scripture—'Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself'—ye do well...For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all. For He that said, Do not commit adultery, said also, Do not kill. Now if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill [by slow murder, by fraudulently keeping back wages, by turning down the screw], thou art become a transgressor of the law. So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty. For he shall have judgment without mercy, that hath shewed no mercy" (Jas. ii. 5—13).

The verse "Whosoever shall...offend in one point he is guilty of all," is often quoted doctrinally, apart from the context; but how seldom is it observed that the offence instanced is respect of persons, and not loving our neighbour as ourselves. There is, indeed, a spirit of Humanitarianism abroad which alleviates the condition of society; but it largely lacks the element of GOD, and therefore is comparatively ineffective.

There is the widest difference between law and grace; but the dispensation of grace superseded the dispensation of law chiefly in this particular, viz., the Law regarded as a covenant of works. The Law could only condemn the man who sought to be justified by it; but "what the law could not do...God sent his own Son...that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh but after the Spirit" (Rom. viii. 1—4). The notion that Grace has so superseded Law as to relax its righteous requirement, is partly due to forgetfulness that the Gospel is the Good Tidings of a Kingdom, and law is inseparable from a kingdom. Forgiveness of injuries is a fundamental law of that Kingdom. So is the payment of wages sufficient to afford food and raiment wherewith the bread-winner may be reasonably content. The parable of the vineyard labourers, some receiving for an hour's work the same pay as those who had wrought all day, suggests a generous counterpoise to the principles of a too rigid Political Economy, and a kindly innovation on the usual method of paying wages.

"Ye shall not oppress one another; but thou shalt fear thy God," is part of the law of Sinai. It is also the very essence of the Gospel. It is Humanitarianism with the missing Factor supplied. It is loving our neighbour as ourselves because we love God with all our hearts. As the greater contains the less, so the Divine considerateness of the poor and weak, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, which is so emphatic in the law of Moses, includes a fair day's wages for a fair day's work; and if we seek a more definite statute we have it in the command—"Thou shalt have a perfect and just weight; a perfect and just measure shalt thou have" (Deut. xxv. 13—15). Surely this applies in principle to wages as well as to commodities.

The Preacher of old time "considered all the oppressions that are done under the sun and behold the tears of such as were oppressed, and they had no comforter; and on the side of their oppressors there was power; but they had no comforter." But the royal father of the Preacher-King looked forward with opened eye to the time when great David's greater Son shall break in pieces the oppressor; and the central characteristic of the reign of the Greater than Solomon, noted in that Psalm for Solomon (lxxii.) in which "the prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended," is that—

All kings shall bow down before Him,
All nations shall serve Him:
FOR He shall deliver the needy when he crieth;
The poor also, and him that hath no helper.
He shall spare the poor and needy,
And shall save the souls of the needy.
He shall redeem their soul from deceit and violence
And precious shall their blood be in his sight.

"Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy Kingdom come!" "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly!"

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness." M.

The Need of Men.

BY REV. JAMES ROBERTSON,
Wesleyan Methodist Church, Belfast.

THE words "home missions" open up a very wide subject. The best supporters of foreign missions are generally the most ardent home missionaries, and for this reason: that both are loyal to the one Master; and so the claims of the one can never be antagonistic to those of the other. After an absence of eleven years from Belfast I find it on my return more highly organised. The advance in this respect is extraordinary; it seems literally honeycombed with Christian workers and workings. But the question that has been suggesting itself to me is: Are the results in soul-winning commensurate with the immense organisation and the numbers of workers? Reluctantly, my observation compels me to say, "No." Why is this? Because (1) more attention seems to be concentrated on the machinery than on the quality of the agent at work; and (2) because we are not ourselves working up to the mark that God demands. If we were, God could and would save Ireland by us. But is the point I want to enforce. God indicates what is needed in Ezek. xxxvi. 37, 38: "Thus saith the Lord God: I will yet for this be inquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them; I will increase them with MEN like a flock. As the holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts; so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of MEN: and they shall know that I am the Lord." We want MEN, and a peculiar type of man, like "the flock of Jerusalem in her solemn feasts"—a consecrated band. Here there is neither male nor female. So we want holy, consecrated, men and women. I use the word men here in contrast with children. We want men, not children. Now there are four things peculiar to children:—

THE QUALITY OF THE AGENT

(1) "I can't!" is an expression continually on children's lips. So with Christians who have not reached the stature of men in Christ Jesus. True men of faith hear the voice which says, "One man of you shall chase a thousand; for the Lord your God He it is that fighteth for you as He hath promised you."

(2) "Wait!" is another child's word, and it is a great favourite with spiritual children.

(3) Children are very superficial. They are taken with appearances. So with the Christian who has not fed on the Word, and thus grown into manhood.

(4) Children are vacillating. They are soon tired of their toys, and are for ever changing them. So with many poor dwarfed Christians; ay, and Christian workers. Give them but one look of disapproval and they will go off in a pet, and throw up the work they were engaged in. It is not even necessary to give them the look. If you do not keep up a continuous current of flattery and admiration, they will sulk and lose heart; and they will interpret the most harmless interruption of attention to them as an intentional affront, a studied insult. Oh how thin-skinned some of these people are, and how small and contemptible it is! "Charity" (true Christian love) "seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil." O friends, be men, not children: men and women with backbone and resolution.

The man in Christ says:—

(1) Not "I can't," but "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me."

(2) His lips touched like Isaiah's with the live coal from off the altar, he exclaims, not "Wait," but "Here am I, send me."

(3) Instead of being superficial in his religion and life, like that other man, he would say, "To me to live is Christ." (4) When manhood is reached, vacillation ceases, for the man can say, "None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus to testify the Gospel of the grace of God."

In Eph. iv. 13: "Till we all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ," we have the measure and the stature of this man. It is that of the fulness of Christ, and constitutes him a perfect man. Do not be frightened by the word "perfect." You need not misinterpret it. The word "man" is its limitation. It is not a perfect angel, but a perfect man. The Christian ought to be perfect at each stage of his growth—that is, full of Christ, though not matured, but perfect enough to keep on growing to the ideal perfection of the fulness of Christ.

VOLUNTEERS AT PONTYMOILE.

SOME of the best Christian work is done by men who are fully occupied in secular employment, but who know that to them is committed a dispensation of the Gospel, and woe are they if they preach it not. Such a work is the Undenominational Christian Mission carried on under the honorary superintendence of Mr. Thos. M. Wintle, a young turner in the rolling-mills at Pontymoile, near Pontypool, Mon. His objection to work on Sunday necessitates his being in the mill in the small hours of Monday morning, which is a severe tax after an exhausting day's toil on the Sabbath. But love yields willingly what money could not buy.

Mr. Wintle is well supported by a staff of workers equally willing with himself. There are four branches of the Mission, and every evening brings some Gospel meeting, or something to do for factory girls, children, or mothers, for teachers or young believers. Gospel Temperance, Lending Library, or Penny Bank, affords scope for the energies of these useful men and women.

The anniversary is usually celebrated by camp meetings held in a tent at Pontypool. These took place recently, and were addressed by Mr. Richard Cory, of Cardiff, the president of the Mission; Mr. C. Dauncey, solicitor; Pastor O. Tidman, the consulting secretary; Rev. H. B. Robinson; Mr. James Jones, Mr. W. Catlin, and Mr. Morgan, of London. There were many professed conversions at and after the meetings, and much quiet good was done. Those who attended were of the working class, and gave according to their means. But a work of this kind has to be helped from outside, and there is none known to us for which we have more pleasure in receiving aid.

Mr. Wintle has just been granted a site for a much-needed building, which will provide a hall seating 600 to 800, besides coffee-bar, reading-room, recreation-room for factory girls, and other accommodation. This will cost about £1000, and will be an immense boon to a very hardworked body of men and women.

GOSPEL PURITY ASSOCIATION. — The Battersea branch are engaged in taking steps to prevent the granting of a licence for music and dancing for the Albert Palace, Battersea, believing that if such a licence were granted it would be a source of danger to the morals of the neighbourhood.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

THE PRELUDE.

1 PETER i. 1, 2.

THIS Epistle was the child of many tears and of much sorrow. It was written probably about the year A.D. 65, when the followers of Jesus of Nazareth were regarded with growing dislike, whilst clouds of suffering and persecution were blowing up over the house of God (iv. 17). The disciples had already begun to learn by bitter experience that they were to follow their Master's steps by way of the Via Dolorosa to the light of the Easter morn; and that they must not expect softer names or usage than had been accorded to Him. They needed comfort, a stimulus to patience, a recital of the arguments for heroic endurance, all of which the Spirit of God supplied through these fervid and persuasive paragraphs.

And thus there is hardly any portion in the Word of God which has been more eagerly read than this Epistle, by those who were pressed with many trials and weaknesses. By exiles in distant lands, shut out from all human tendernesses; by travellers and voyagers; by persecuted and suffering saints, hunted into the dens and caves of the earth, or immured in the living rock and beneath the boom of the ocean wave; by those whom sore sickness or venerable age have incapacitated from meeting with the visible Church, these words have been lovingly pondered and treasured, as a priceless heritage.

To a student of the earlier life of the Apostle Peter it would have seemed in the highest degree unlikely that one so impulsive, so rough-handed, so fond of action, should be selected to write some of the tenderest and most consolatory words that have ever fallen on the ears of suffering and persecuted saints. Yet so it befell. And we are left to infer how keenly this strong nature must have suffered before it could have become so sweetened and softened, so humble and tender, as to afford a tropic soil for the luxuriant growth of the balsam and rosemary of Divine comfort. Very different was this Apostle of Jesus Christ, when he wrote this Epistle, from the fisherman who girded himself in early life to his toils, from the disciple who abandoned all to follow the Master with enthusiastic ardour. Frost and fire had disintegrated the rock. Age had diminished his strength, taken the sparkle from his eye, sown his head with grey, and bowed his frame. His self-reliance had learnt to cling to a stronger than himself; his wisdom to defer to a wiser. The asperities and ruggedness of his character had been toned and mellowed by suffering and sorrow, as the tints of a picture are softened by the breath of the years. In the deepest sense he was converted at last, that he might set himself to strengthen his brethren (Luke xxii. 32).

We cannot now recover his hidden history, lost in the gulf which separates this Epistle from the moment when last we caught sight of him emerging from the prison at Jerusalem (Acts xii. 19), or exciting the indignation of St. Paul at Antioch (Gal. ii. 11). We have no certain record of how those years were spent. Though, since he speaks so familiarly to those saints, scattered throughout Asia Minor, many of whom may have received their first impressions from his lips on the day of Pentecost (compare first verse with Acts ii. 9), we should judge that he travelled with his wife (1 Cor. ix. 5) for some time throughout those regions, settling for a longer time in the new city, which was rising on the ancient site of Babylon (v. 13). This Epistle was written there, and the countries mentioned are enumerated in the order which would naturally have suggested itself to one looking out on them from a commanding central position.

I. THE INSCRIPTION.—"To the Strangers of the Dispersion." These words clearly designate Jews as principally addressed. When the wolf yet led her cubs over the site where Rome was to be built, the King of Assyria was already engaged in carrying into exile the ten tribes of Israel (2 Kings xvii. 6, &c.). They were captives, therefore, quite a century and a half before Judah and Benjamin were transplanted to Babylon, and it does not appear that they participated in the restoration decreed by Cyrus, to any great extent. They remained in the land of their adoption, and travelled in all directions until, at the time of the writing of the New Testament, they were found in all the principal cities of the world. These were the strangers of the Dispersion. Their speech, their garb, their physiognomy, their religious rites marked them out as perfectly different from those around them, and related them to that distant city and that peculiar people whose names they bore.

Many of them had become Christians, not only through the influences experienced when visiting their national metropolis, the very atmosphere of which must have been impregnated with Christian thought; but also through the labours of the Apostle Paul, whose first efforts were always directed to his own people, as they must be for ever associated with the infant churches which he founded in these same regions.

But we must not limit the scope of these words to Christian Jews. There are phrases which demand a wider interpretation. That, for instance, which alludes to former lusts of those addressed (i. 14), and that which speaks of them as not having been a people in time past (ii. 10). Besides which, the term strangers is distinctly employed in a spiritual sense (ii. 11), which applies equally to all who go out to Christ without the camp, bearing his reproach, and who confess that they have here no continuing city, but seek one to come.

Do we cultivate enough the spirit of the stranger? We know what it is to turn from the attractions of a foreign city, with its wealth of art, its churches and its picture galleries, its antique buildings, and the glitter of its modern boulevards, towards a tiny box of brick in a grimy street, which is endeared to us as home. We may not linger longer; we are going home. Or if we stay on from day to day, we hardly unpack our portmanteaus, and certainly do not secure a settled abode, because it is not our home. Nor are we too much troubled by the discomforts and annoyances of our hotel, or by the risings of popular excitement around. Of what consequence are such things to those who may indeed bestow a passing interest on events transpiring around them, but whose interests are elsewhere, in the place which, however humble, differs from all the world beside in being home.

Oh for more of the tent life amongst God's people! But it is only possible when they catch sight, and keep sight, of the city which hath foundations. When that city is a city of tradition or a dream, men will begin to dig the foundations of permanent homes and ample fortunes. But when it is realised as the object of passionate persuasion, embraced by outstretched eager arms, and descried by faith rising above the mists and plains of time, they dwell in tents, and confess themselves strangers and pilgrims.

It is said that when, in a strange land, the Swiss soldier hears the rude melody which gathers the cows back from the pastures, he is so filled with longings for home that he will cast down his sword, tear off his foreign livery, renounce his claims for wage, in order to hurry back to his mountain home. Would that such an effect might be experienced, after a spiritual sort, by many readers of these lines, who, as we speak of the inheritance, shall also array their spirits in the pilgrim garb, and start, not as they did in the Middle Ages for the holy sepulchre, or in quest of the holy grail, but for the New Jerusalem, on which the hand of invasion has never fallen, or sin left its blight.

II. THE SPIRITUAL DESIGNATION.—"Scattered in the countries, and yet gathered in God's election, chosen or picked out; strangers to men, amongst whom they dwelt, but known and foreknown to God; removed from their own country, to which men have naturally an unalterable affection, but made heirs of a better."

Elect.—Before all worlds God chose us in Christ (Eph. i. 4). There is no election outside of Christ. He was chosen, and all who were one with Him, in a union which was before time, but which is manifested in the process of time. We know little or nothing of the secret transactions of Eternity, but we can tell if we were included in them by a very simple test. All whom the Father gave Christ come to Him (John vi. 37). If, therefore, we have come to Christ, attracted to Him, as steel filings to their magnet, we may assure our hearts, and dare to lay claim to the blessings and responsibilities included within that mystic circle.

But notice to what we are elect!—We are elect to obedience. Not merely that we should escape the penalty due to sin, or that we should pass into a region where storms do not rave and sin does not molest. No, this is but a small thing in the history of our souls. We are elect to obey; elect to suffer, that through suffering, we may become strong; elect to be the saviours, and helpers, and priests, of other men, through a very baptism of blood and tears; elect to be nearest Christ, because resembling Him most closely in ministry and devotion and love.

Election is no selfish thing.—Those who think it is, and who lay flattering unction to their hearts that they at least are right, and may therefore leave the world to its fate, are probably utterly deceived, or have only beheld the faintest glimmer of what God means by his high calling and choice. We are chosen to obey, to serve, to learn, to suffer, to die daily, that others may be blessed and saved. Elect stars shine, to illumine the night. Elect nations to lead the van of the world's progress. Elect spirits, like Isaiah, Jeremiah, Paul, Luther, and Knox, to be the channels down which, at much cost to them, the grace of God may better reach the world beneath their feet.

According to the foreknowledge of God the Father.—From all eternity He knew those who would accept the overtures of mercy. Shall we say that He foresaw the certain affinity between the elect One and those who would cleave to Him by faith? And concerning all these, whom He foreknew, He also predestinated, determined, resolved, that they should be conformed to the image of his Son. To those who are really saved by faith in the Lord Jesus, there is an infinite source of comfort here, in knowing that, beneath all the changes of our moral and spiritual condition, outlasting time, strong as Omnipotence, tender and true as the heart of God, there is a Divine purpose which is pledged to carry us onwards to beauty of moral character, and an obedience which is fashioned after the pattern of Christ's (Rom. viii. 29).

Through sanctification of the Spirit.—The election of the Father in Eternity is made effectual through the work of the Holy Spirit in time. That which is election in the Father, appears as sanctification in the work of the Spirit. Sanctification is setting apart. The root idea of the word is just separation from common uses to the service of God. The saint is one who has separated himself from known evil in an act of consecration, which is drawn out through all his after life, and who is animated by but one aim and purpose, to be only for Jesus. We cannot do more than this, nay, we cannot do this without the Holy Spirit. From Him comes the first conviction that we are wrong, and the indication of the infirmity, or weight, or evil from which we must get free. From Him also comes the grace by which we are set free. From Him comes the in-filling with the love and life of God, which is inseparably connected with each act of consecration. And thus there is evolved at last the obedience which pleases God, and which is thus wrought through, and in sanctification of the Spirit.

Yield to the Spirit. Recognise his indwelling. Do what He commands, and forbear from doing aught that his still small voice forbids. Every such act of consecration to his will must lead to the fuller light and love and power which make up holiness. And out of all this there will unfold the fair life of obedience, which is the perfected blossom of the hidden subsoil root of election. Election, the root; the grace of the Spirit, the atmosphere; obedience, the flower.

Unto sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ.—Here, then, is the Trinity—Father, Son, and Spirit—all engaged in the work of lifting us from the bondage of corruption into a life wherein we shall as much love to do right as now to do wrong.

Very fitly does this mention of the blood follow that of obedience, as if to remind us that the best obedience could not avail to save us apart from the precious blood, and that our best acts need sprinkling. "The very tears of the purest repentance, unless they be sprinkled with this blood, are impure. All our washings without this are but washings of the blackamoor—labour in vain" (Jer. ii. 22; Job ix. 30).

How necessary that the prayer of the contrite Psalmist should not be far from our lips on our holiest days and after our best services! "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow."

III. THE SALUTATION, "Grace and peace be multiplied."—The Apostle here blends the Western and Eastern modes of salutation. The Greek used grace, the Hebrew peace; and whatever each meant was intended to be conveyed in this salutation.

Grace is the unmerited love of God, stooping to save and bless, the source of all those bright and holy gifts which come from his infinite heart. As one beam of light will break into many colours, so does the grace of God decompose into the several priceless gifts of his grace; "grace upon grace," like ripples breaking in music on a silver strand.

Peace follows upon grace. There is first peace with God, and then the peace of God. We lay down our arms of rebellion, and are welcomed into the family, so that there is no longer discord or dispute. And then the very peace which dwelt in the heart of Jesus begins to float like a sweet odour through our inmost being, and it garrisons our heart and mind.

Such is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and there is no higher wish to be entertained for them, than that this grace and peace should be in them, and increase in geometrical progression, and so be multiplied.

RAILWAY MEN IN IRELAND.

THE first annual public meeting in connection with the Railway Mission in Dublin was held on Friday, September 6, in the Christian Union Buildings. About 1000 people were present. The chair was taken by Mr. R. G. CALHOUN, Traffic Manager, Great Southern and Western Railway, who thanked God for the growth of the work. What they wanted was to see every railway man a member of the Mission.

Mr. W. M. OATTS, Secretary Y.M.C.A., Glasgow, spoke of the work in that city, and told how it had been blessed among the men. Miss CROSSLE, Irish District Secretary, gave a brief sketch of the work in Ireland. Three years ago one meeting was opened in Dublin and now there are fourteen branches in Ireland, including a very flourishing one in Belfast. She knew of several cases of conversion in Dublin. A band of three hundred ladies are at present working in connection with the Dublin branch; they visit the homes and send The Railway Signal each month to men at stations in the country.

Mr. W. H. SEAGRAM, London, said the Mission had a threefold object—to stir up Christians, to preach the Gospel to the unsaved, and to promote temperance. It did not work in antagonism to the churches, but as a companion to them. Mr. R. NIXON, General Secretary, London, said that many on the other side of the Channel sympathised with and prayed for them. The work had been making great strides in England. There were now two hundred and seventy branches in England, Ireland, and Scotland. Pastor H. D. BROWN gave a short address warmly advocating the Mission, after which several delegates from country branches told of the work being done in various parts of Ireland.

Mr. R. Nixon has conducted a mission in a tent at Dundalk for the railway men employed in the extensive works there.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Sept. 22, Mark xvi. 1—20; Mon., Sept. 23, Jer. vii. 1—16; Tues., Sept. 24, Jer. vii. 17—28; Wed., Sept. 25, Jer. x. 1—13; Thurs., Sept. 26, Jer. xvii. 5—14; Fri., Sept. 27, Jer. xvii. 19—27; Sat., Sept. 28, Jer. xviii. 1—16.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICES.

Mr. C. H. Nash, B.A., Athenæum, Derby, Sept. 26—27. Mr. Henry Hutchinson, St. Paul's, Brixton, Sept. 29 to Oct. 7; Northampton (with Mr. James S. Tyler), Oct. 9—18; Liverpool, Oct. 14; Manchester, Oct. 15. Mr. Alfred Armitage, Carlisle, Oct. 3—11; Newcastle, Oct. 12—19. Two meetings for reports of seaside services, Princes Hall, Piccadilly, Oct. 8, 3 and 6.30 p.m., with addresses by various workers.

More Leaves from my Notebook.

BY REV. WILLIAM HASLAM, M.A.
Author of "From Death into Life. An Autobiography."

XXVI.—SELF-SACRIFICE.

A GENTLEMAN of intelligence was very averse to the Gospel, even in theory. He was ready enough to talk of any system of religion—Roman Catholic, Hindoo, Mohammedan, or any other—but the plan of salvation he had no patience with. The carnal mind is enmity towards God, and therefore averse to his way of salvation.

I asked him one day about this apparent inconsistency in his character. I said to him, "These various religious systems, which are human, and no profit to you, you will talk about; but the only one religion which is Divine, and which can avail for your benefit, you deny to yourself."

"I hate your idea of substitution," he said, impatiently; "one person dying for another, and all that!"

"Yes," I replied, "that is very clear, you do hate it; but what do you admire?"

He answered, "I admire true devotion—self-sacrifice; you know there is no true religion without self-sacrifice. Not another's sacrifice," he added, with scorn.

Such at least was this gentleman's conviction. Not that he was living the life of sacrifice, which he professed to admire so much; on the contrary, he and his wife and family were entirely taken up with the world, its gains and pleasures.

There was, however, an uprightness and candour in this gentleman, which was worthy of a better occupation than the round of frivolous engagements into which his family led him.

I said, "I like your idea of devotion and self-sacrifice, and cannot help thinking that if you knew about the Christian life you would see that there is more real and true sacrifice in it than in any other. You would find more real self-sacrifice and less will-worship in Christ's religion, than in that of Rome, the Hindoos, or Mohamet."

"What do you call will-worship?" he inquired sharply.

I answered, "Why, when a man pleases to sacrifice himself, and chooses a painful and unpleasant path instead of a pleasant one, that is not self-denial or self-sacrifice; it is only doing your own will still, and that in a disagreeable way; racking and punishing the poor body for nothing, and deceiving yourself the while."

I had evidently hit a nail on the head, for he drew his chair closer to me, and asked questions in another tone.

It came out in the course of conversation that the prejudice in his mind was against people who made use of God for themselves and their salvation, and cared for nothing more. I told him that I was as much against that life of selfishness as he was, but I could not help adding, "Blessed is the man that trusts God for everything."

I said, "It is not because we hope to gain by it; but because we have given up all, and received all. The idea is rather to give up ourselves and our wills to be used of God, according to his will, and for his glory; not making use of God for ourselves, but letting Him have us for his use."

As he did not appear to take in my meaning, I repeated again: "It is not because we hope to gain by the sacrifice of ourselves, but that we have gained. The idea is rather to give up ourselves to be used of God, according to his will, and for his glory—not making use of God for our own benefit, but letting Him make use of us."

"That is what I mean," said my friend eagerly, "the Romish religion commends itself to me on that account."

I said, "He is a bad Romanist who trusts God nakedly like that. The proper Romanist is one who trusts in his Church, priest, the Virgin Mary, and what not. Take these away, and where would be his Romanism? Of all religions in the world the Romish is that which has more of self in it than any other, though it professes, and that very loudly, to deny self. It is all will-worship, and a voluntary humility and worshipping of angels and saints."

"You surprise me, sir," said the gentleman.

"This is the proof," I continued; "let a Romanist or Hindoo give his heart to God, and receive the Holy Ghost, and he will cease to be what he is. He will turn to the Lord, to praise and love Him for what He has done for him. To be a Romanist or Hindoo is to be something and somebody; but to be a Christian is to be nothing. The Christian has given himself up to be saved, and kept by the power of another, according to the Word of God.

"This is what I call self-sacrifice proper. Human nature does not like this kind. It rather delights in doing, giving, or being something. A real Christian sacrifice is to be dead to self, and alive unto God."

"I should like to understand what you mean," said the gentleman; "you revolutionise all my ideas."

"I do not care for you to understand," I replied. "I want you to be changed, and then you will know in your own experience these things. This is more easily attained than the understanding which you are aiming at—you may have it as a free gift."

"How can this be?" he asked.

"Simply by yielding yourself up to God as a lost, unprofitable sinner, who cannot save himself."

He did not reply. So I added: "We are altogether lost and ruined, and it is only a delusion to think of our making any acceptable sacrifice to God. We are so lost that God sent his Son to make an atonement for us, which we could not make for ourselves. This is done and finished, and even were we capable and in a position to do anything there is nothing left to be done: the atonement is finished. The Son of God has taken our place and punishment as sinners, that we might have his place as sons of God. He was made sin for us that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him. This is the meaning of substitution which you profess to hate. For all that, you will have to believe it, or perish!"

"I do not think," he said, in an altered tone, "that I ever understood this matter."

"No, sir, I am sure you do not," I said, "or you would not have supposed that Romish or Hindoo self-sacrifice is better than Christian. When a man accepts a substitute's work, he gives up himself as one unable to do it. There is more self-denial in this than in doing meritorious work for yourself. I advise you to give your heart to God, and ask Him to give you his Holy Spirit in token of his acceptance of your heart; and after that give your will, and then present your body a living sacrifice. That is the way, and the only way to know the subject in full, by personal experience."

We knelt together in prayer. There is nothing brings people to God like getting them upon their knees, particularly if we can get them to speak in prayer to God for themselves. The answer will surely come, and the desired blessing be given.

It was so in this case, the gentleman began to pray for himself with the simplicity of a little child. He pleaded, "Lord, teach me to pray." God heard and answered his prayer, and enabled him to believe as well.

"Look here," I said, "if I owed a debt and was very anxious about it, and you most generously paid it for me as my substitute—should I oppose or object to your doing so, should I do my best with great self-sacrifice to pay my debt, or should I come and thank you for having paid it?"

"I see what you mean, and thank you—thank you from my heart."

I said, "You dear man, let us both thank God, and that not only with our lips, but with our lives, by making a sacrifice of ourselves on the altar of thanksgiving. Give your will to God, and let Him be Master. Give your body to Him, and let Him be general in full command, and you his soldier."

SLAVES OF THE DRINK.

I WAS weary with my writing, the other day, and, passing from the verandah upon the quiet street for a little exercise, spoke to an aged man sitting in the doorway opposite. Just then, a bright, pleasant-looking young man came by, and said, "He did not hear you, ma'am," adding, "he is a good old man." "Yes," I replied, "and very aged. He will be one hundred years old next January." "That is a great age," he responded; "not many men live to that age, even in the old country." "Do you know why?" I answered. "That man has lived a quiet, sober, abstemious life, and therefore enjoys the use of all his senses and faculties, as he never could have done had he been a drinking man."

This led to a very interesting conversation, in which the stranger stated that his life had mostly been spent in Liverpool, England. Since coming to this country he had given way to drink as never before, and had not entered a church here; but he had lately broken off from drinking, and hoped never to go back to it. I was earnestly placing before him all that a Christian life would bring him, of happiness here and hereafter, and the certain hope of a home of his own, if his earnings were not worse than wasted, to which he respectfully listened and heartily assented, when another man, passing by with a basket on his arm, paused to listen. "See that pretty house yonder, being built for a thousand dollars?" I was saying. "How soon that sum could be saved if a man gave up drink and tobacco; and if he has a good name, the 'Building Association' would lend the sum, to be repaid in the value of rent, after which it is his own. But," I added, "a drinking man has no right to a family!"

"I like talk the like of that," exclaimed the new comer. "It's true, every word, and I would like to be good, ma'am; but I was never taught these things, and I don't know how; drink often gets the better of me." Then, looking at the papers in my hand, he said, "Won't you give me a tract? Are these tracts? I would like one for myself, and to read to the boys." The younger man also joined in the request, and I soon brought them copies of The Cottager and Artisan, The Friendly Visitor, issued by the Religious Tract Society, London, and some other things. "Where is the one from London? Let me have that," said the young Englishman, eagerly; and when I mentioned one of the leaflets as from Scotland, the other man said, "Oh, ma'am, were you ever at Paisley? My father was born in Paisley." Alas! that father is now a rumseller in Brooklyn, N.Y., and that accounts for the son's low estate. Again he spoke of his desire to become a good man, but how to begin he did not know; how to go to Christ to be kept from falling was all dark to him. Glancing at the frontispiece of the paper he held in his hand, I saw it was that of the brazen serpent and the smitten ones looking up to be healed of the deadly plague. "Ah, my man," I exclaimed, "there is the very thing for you. Satan has bitten you, and Christ on the cross is your only remedy. Look and live."

With many thanks the two men went on their way, while I returned to think of the many souls from the "Old Country" that are drifting, if not rushing to ruin, all over our broad land. Pray for them.

MARIA A. WEST.
31, Park-place, Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

"BLIND AGGIE" OF CRIEFF.

CHRISTIAN visitors to Crieff, N.B., until lately, largely availed themselves of the privilege of calling upon "Blind Aggie," a saint of God, who has recently gone to her rest. Colonel Oldham thus writes of one who had the reputation of being "the happiest woman in Crieff":—

Her dwelling was in the High-street, a single room, up steep wooden stairs. She had friends in all parts of the United Kingdom, and rich and poor were equally welcome in the name of the Lord. At first a stranger could hardly believe that Aggie was totally blind. The sight of one eye was evidently gone, but the other seemed piercingly bright. The room was always clean and tidy. Aggie told everything to her Heavenly Father, and loved to acknowledge answers to prayer. Each of the many texts which hung on the wall had a history. One was, "He will keep the feet of his saints" (1 Sam. ii. 9). This came to her in a time of need. She had neither shoes nor stockings, and a neighbour said, "What will folks think of your Father, if they see you like that?" "But they do not see," said Aggie, "for I put my feet under the chair." The question, however, led Aggie to tell her Heavenly Father of her need. A gentleman called in the forenoon with a parcel from a friend—it was a pair of stockings. In the afternoon a lady called. To her, in the fulness of her heart, Aggie related how the Lord had whereupon the lady said: "And do you know, Aggie, I have brought you a pair of shoes from England." In remembrance of this the lady sent the text mentioned.

ANSWERED HER PETITION SPEEDILY,

Aggie came from the North of Ireland, and had the wit and humour of her country, but it was all sanctified. One day the postman delivered a box, addressed "Miss Agnes Graham, High-street," containing a fashionable hat, with abundance of feathers. Aggie at once decided that the Lord never meant the hat for her, because if He sent her wings, they would not be fixed on the top of her head! It was at the age of twenty-two that Aggie became blind. She lived in darkness for thirty years, and through her affliction came to know the Lord. She was interested in every good cause, showed practical sympathy with the afflicted, and collected for the Bird's Nest in Dublin.

Those who visited Aggie for the first time soon discovered two things—first, that they were in the presence of a saint; and, secondly, how they personally stood in relation to God. One winter evening I found her sitting by the fireside in the gloaming. She said:

"DO YOU EVER SEE JESUS?"

I replied: "What do you mean, Aggie?" She rejoined: "Sometimes when I am sitting here I think I see Him, all white and glistening." "No, Aggie," I said, "I never see Him like that; perhaps I am not blind enough." In all our intercourse, during five years, we never spoke except on matters of spiritual import, and never parted without prayer. I always came away uplifted in soul by her simple faith and joyous patience.

Besides the loss of eyesight and much pain in the head, Aggie suffered from many bodily infirmities. When I first knew her, she could scarcely walk, and her fingers were almost useless from rheumatic gout. She had tried remedies of all sorts for years, but with little advantage, and latterly she found prayer her greatest solace. I had bought her a stout stick to help her in walking, just at the time when a dear lady friend, much used in the ministry of the Lord's healing, visited the town. Perceiving that Aggie had faith to be healed, she interpreted to her the Scriptures, and immediately Aggie was delivered from her pains. She hung up her stick, and in answer to all inquiries as to her health, said she was "going about like a butterfly."

Many a summer visitor got blessing in Aggie's room. One of God's children, who suffered much from darkness and depression, asked her what to do in order to gain relief. "Tell the Lord about it," was the advice given. "But what," continued the inquirer, "is to be done when Satan prevents me from even going to God in prayer?"

"HURL A TEXT AT HIM!"

was Aggie's reply; and this method proved effectual. A member of the Soul Winning and Prayer Union, Aggie highly valued the privilege of uniting with others on the tenth of each month in presenting special requests at the throne of grace. The promise from God's Word which headed the magazine for the month of August was one of her favourite texts, and had her name appended to it: "I the Lord do keep it; I will water it every moment: lest any hurt it, I will keep it night and day" (Isa. xxvii. 3).

When the magazine reached on the evening of August 9, Aggie was unconscious, having sustained a paralytic stroke. The last letter she received was from one for whose conversion she had earnestly prayed for months. Her "Wee Pet," as she called her, had been to the Keswick Convention, and she wrote to ask Aggie to rejoice with her that she now knew the Lord. Aggie lay until the 14th of the month without a look of pain on her face. Loving hands ministered to her until the last, and many Christian friends followed her remains to the grave. Shortly after her departure, a friend wrote: "She felt convinced that she would one day recover her sight, and she has not been disappointed." "Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty; they shall behold a far-stretching land" (Isa. xxxiii. 17, R.V.).

HUGUENOT SEMINARY, S. AFRICA.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to us with respect to this educational institution:—

I was glad to see a reference to the Huguenot Seminary, at Wellington, in the sketch of the life and labours of Rev. Andrew Murray, which recently appeared in THE CHRISTIAN. It was my privilege, during a visit to the Cape in 1886, to spend a few days at the Seminary, and I am certain there could hardly be a greater blessing in the colony. The first object of the principal, Miss Ferguson, and her staff, in dealing with their pupils, is to lead them to Christ, and I believe it is a rare exception for this object not to be attained.

Miss Ferguson is full of zeal and love for souls, and this led her recently to forego a year's holiday in America in order to go on a missionary tour to the various mission stations of South Africa. Her missionary spirit has been infused into her pupils, old and young, past and present, and they have formed a society of their own, known as the Huguenot Missionary Society. This little society not only sends what help it can to meet various claims abroad, but it now sends out lady missionaries, recruited from the ranks of the pupils themselves to labour among the heathen in Africa. Among those who have thus gone forth from the seminary is a daughter of Rev. Andrew Murray, by whom the seminary was founded, and to whose earnest spiritual teaching it owes so much.

"ABIDE WITH ME."—A correspondent writes regretting that this well-known hymn has undergone alteration in some collections. The author was Rev. Henry Francis Lyte, incumbent of Lower Brixham, Devonshire, who wrote the hymn about two months before his death in 1847. There were originally eight stanzas, the last beginning, "Hold Thou thy cross before my closing eyes." This has, we think, been decidedly improved by alteration to "Reveal Thyself before my closing eyes."

THE WORLD'S MARSEILLAISE.

BY REV. JOSEPH COOK, BOSTON, U.S.

Now girt with lightnings, docile, fleet,
There stands an angel, with his feet
The one on sea and one on shore;
And time henceforth shall be no more.

All men are men, and men are one,
Join hands all zones beneath the sun,
White, bronze and black and brown and red,
All climates' tintings myriad.

Like rainbow colours, all are kin,
One God above, one Law within;
Man's sky with colours seven may glow,
But colours seven make heaven's bow.

Now drumbeats call from God's vast sky,
Earth's listening heart to Loyalty;
And now no land can foreign be,
And now at last there is no sea.

One sun is in our single sky,
And underneath one family;
On earth so huge and yet so small,
Are all for each and each for all.

Let God's great order through men run,
So pray the stars and moon and sun;
Amen, we answer, every one;
God's will in us be wholly done.

—Our Day.

WORK IN PORT SAID.

DEAR SIR,—Since my return here three months ago, I find the state of things much as before: sin and evil abounding. I am thankful to the Lord for his goodness in renewing my bodily strength during my stay in Europe for further service in this place. In the Egyptian Hospital, where patients of different nationalities are received, I find an open door. Many of the patients look forward to my coming to speak a word of comfort, cheer, or instruction from the Word of God to them. Everyone is presented with a New Testament in his or her own language. With the Lord's help I will seek to spend as much time as possible amongst these poor sufferers, who otherwise have none to visit them except the Romish priest and the monks.

As there are great numbers of foreign ships passing through here, I feel led to give my time more directly to these, both in distributing the Scriptures, speaking to individuals, be it to passengers or seafaring men on board. This work requires especial patience, and only the day of the Lord can reveal the true results.

In the town I have opportunities to set forth the Gospel amongst some of the European families, although they are not easily induced to come to the meetings.

We are still in want of means toward the building of a Rest. A Christian lady has given me £100 towards it; besides this sum, £240 are given by promises.

We shall be glad, as formerly, to meet with missionary friends going out to foreign fields. We would earnestly ask your readers to hold us up by their prayers for blessing on the work.
—Yours in the Lord, G. A. EOLL.

CLIFTON CONFERENCE.—Amongst those who are expected to take part in the proceedings of this Conference, on the first three days in October, are:—Rev. J. R. Cotter (Colchester), Rev. Thomas Davis (Birmingham), Rev. W. D. Austin (Ireland), Rev. W. Lancelot Holland (Hatcham), Rev. W. Elliott (Plymouth), Dr. Culross (President of the Baptist College, Bristol), Rev. Talbot Greaves (vicar of Clifton), Rev. Isaac Hawker (Plymouth), Rev. Titus E. Laurie (Cumberland), Rev. D. Grahame, and Rev. James Ormiston (Convener); also Mr. James Wright (Ashley Down Orphan Houses), Colonel Molesworth, Mr James Inskip, Mr. Joseph Stancombe (Yeovil), Mr. Benjamin Thomas, &c.

Count Campello's Movement.

It is surely a new thing to find amongst an Italian Catholic-born population, the Papacy in the minority, and Protestantism in the ascendant. Yet such is the case in this village of Arrone, in the Valnerina, the headquarters of the Italian Catholic Church Reform movement. Here the Reformed Church is popular, whilst that of Rome is viewed with disfavour. Evangelistic meetings are crowded, whilst Rome's services are deserted. Evangelical ministers are honoured, whilst the priests are disliked, and are passed unsaluted in the streets. The tables have been completely turned upon the Church of Rome.

How has this momentous change been brought about? Through the earnest and faithful proclamation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ by well-educated, self-sacrificing, pious men, and by the adoption of a form of worship agreeable to the traditions and wishes of the Italian people. The men to whom I refer are Count Campello and several young evangelists who have associated themselves with him in his work.

Of Count Campello I need not speak. He has made sacrifices of his social position, of worldly wealth, and professional prospects, of relationships and friendships, which are only explicable on the ground of his single wholehearted devotion to the person and the cause of Jesus Christ. The young evangelists are all men who have distinguished themselves in their schools and colleges. They are men of ability and education; they, too, are men of disinterested motive. Two of them are qualifying themselves for the bar that they may preach Christ without necessarily living by their ministry. They are men of exemplary conduct, and the people cannot but admire them as they see them pass in and out amongst them. In contrast to such men are the ordinary priests. As a rule they are uneducated. They have been taught only how to perform their church duties, but they do not possess books, and do not read those of others. These priests gamble in the national lottery, drink wine, and have low looks, faces "part of iron and part of clay." It is to insult the common sense and intelligence of the Italians to suppose that they can prefer such men to the evangelical workers as objects of esteem and affection.

The same contrast that exists between the priests and the Reformed Church workers exists between the work which they respectively do. We all know what the Romish service is. The offering of the sacrifice of the Mass, and on certain days other offices, all performed in a tongue unknown to the people, and only known to the extent of his breviary by the priest. They are utterly unprofitable to priest and worshipper, excepting when the latter engages the former to offer extra masses which put money into the priest's pocket. The price of a mass has gone up in this district lately. It now costs thirty soldi (fifteen pence), instead of twenty-two as heretofore. When sins are confessed, the priests frequently inflict fifteen pence masses as their expiation!

The Catholic Reformed Church workers, on week-day and Sunday, proclaim Isaiah's call, "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." On week-nights, what are called "conferences" are held. These are simply evangelistic meetings of an earnest, hearty nature. I have never heard more eloquent and powerful exhibitions of the Gospel, and appeals to sinners to accept Christ, than I have heard on these occasions. The rooms are invariably well filled, and sometimes crowded, while many stand outside at the doors and windows listening. Men who are never seen to enter a church door find their way to these meetings. I believe there are few people in this place who do not attend them with more or less regularity. They have become a part of the village life. I cannot doubt but that the Gospel is proving itself in the experience of many the power of God unto salvation. The Reformed Catholic Church service is almost as popular as the evangelistic meeting. The Italians say: "Here we have our own church service made intelligible and profitable to us," and they are delighted with the change.

In this movement we have a cause which all Christians may cordially support. If we seek simply the extension of the kingdom of Jesus Christ, independently of all questions of church forms and government, this ought to be. Count Campello and his assistants are men of liberal minds. Everything outside of faith in Jesus Christ is held secondary and non-essential. The movement is fitted to be an incalculable blessing to Italy, by being a means of winning back its sons and daughters to faith in Christ.

(Rev.) Alexander Robertson.

Arrone, Italy.

TRAINING CHINESE GIRLS.

I should like to bring before the notice of your readers the Girls' Training Institution at Tientsin, North China, opened in May last. It is attached to the English Methodist New Connexion Mission, and is intended principally for the children of native converts. The first and even the second generation of Chinese Christians often appear unable to train up their children properly. Hence it devolves upon the church with which they are connected to lead the little ones into the promised land, and teach them there to fulfil its righteous laws by the love, not of a natural, but of a regenerate heart.

The New Connexion Mission has a bright past history. Revs. Nelthorpe Hale and John Innocent landed here twenty-eight years ago, the first Chinese missionaries of the Society. Mr. Hale was a God-made and God-sent minister. He received remarkable answers to prayer, and the word he preached was confirmed with signs following. It is now eleven years since Mr. Hale joined the "innumerable company beyond."

Mrs. Innocent has for many years been desirous to organise in some way a systematic training for the girls of the Mission. She dedicated her own daughter to the work, and sent her to prepare for the service in a German Moravian school. She completed her studies, but was not permitted to take up her mother's life-work. The Lord called her to a higher service above. During the six years that have since elapsed, Mrs. Innocent has laboured and prayed without intermission for the necessary means wherewith to build a training institution, and this substantial edifice is the outcome of her toil.

When Miss Innocent was taken from us, the secretary of the New Connexion Missionary Society requested me to accept the post which she had hoped to fill. I feared my health would not bear the trying climate of China, so dare not accept without a very definite call from the Lord. I waited upon Him in the matter, and was soon convinced that He called me to a mission in France. Work there was owned of Him, and at the end of five years I wrote to the New Connexion Missionary Society to recommend a young Frenchman who was desirous of entering foreign mission work. The reply came: "Have you no call to China?" and I found that the post offered me five years before was still waiting for me. I knew it was the Lord's doing, and accordingly accepted it without delay. The friends here at once began to build, and this school was in May last opened free of debt, and given to the Society by Mrs. Innocent. Pray for us that the little ones who go out from this institution may become shining lights in their native heathen land.

(Miss) Mary J. Waller.

Tientsin, North China.

China's Greatest Statesman.

An exceedingly interesting letter, sent from Tientsin by Mr. William Jones, late secretary of the Peace Society, to Sir Joseph Pease, M.P. appeared in The Times of Wednesday week Mr. Jones is travelling through Australia, China Japan, and North America, in the interests of peace, temperance, &c., on behalf of the Society of Friends. This letter details an interview he had on July 10 last with Li Hung Chang the Chinese Viceroy, whom Mr. Jones describes as the greatest personality in China, next to the Emperor, and as being "China's greatest, if not her only, statesman." Mr. Jones's main object in going to Tientsin was "to interest this influential ruler in the recent progress in the western world, of the principle of arbitration as a substitute for war."

In the course of the conversation, which lasted an hour and a half, and in answer to a question from Mr. Jones, Li Hung Chang said China would be prepared to unite with other powers in such a league or treaty of peace as had been proposed between England and America. China, he added, had always been pacifically disposed, and, unless molested by other powers, would not fight. The principles of the young Emperor, added the Viceroy, were identical with his own. We append the full text of that part of Mr. Jones's letter which relates to the opium question:—

"Wishing to approach Li Hung Chang on the opium question, I told him I was intimate with the president of the English Anti-Opium Society, and was surprised when the Viceroy promptly asked whether I meant Sir Joseph Pease, with whose name he was evidently familiar. It would interest the friends of China, I said, to know whether the Viceroy was satisfied with the existing state of the opium question, or whether there were any changes which he desired in the treaty rights or in the fiscal arrangements connected with them.

"The Viceroy replied that he had always been given to understand that the Indian Government could not afford to lose the revenue from opium, and that, therefore, agitation in England against the traffic would prove ineffective. His manner seemed to me to imply that he acquiesced in the present state of affairs. I therefore proceeded to remark that many enlightened persons in England were dissatisfied with the fact of the Indian Government being directly implicated in the manufacture and diffusion of a noxious drug whose demoralising effects I had frequently witnessed both in China and Australia, and I should be glad to know how far the Viceroy approved of the efforts continually made in England to induce the Government to wash its hands of the opium traffic altogether.

"The Viceroy replied that he had not thought much about that aspect of the question; but that if the British Government would indeed wash its hands of this traffic it would be a great satisfaction to himself.

"Here I could not but feel that for so intelligent a statesman the amount of interest shown by the Viceroy on a question so vital to the best interests of his country was rather disappointing. His languid interest might, in part, arise from his knowledge of the immense revenue now derived by China from the import of the Indian drug, a revenue which is largely devoted to the Imperial Navy, of which he is chief administrator. In part also it might arise from his feeling the utter hopelessness of further attempts to suppress a practice which has, alas! become at length deeply rooted in the habits of multitudes of the Chinese people."

AT MELBOURNE, Australia, in connection with the Anglican Church, there has been formed a new order of total abstainers for young people who have passed the customary Band of Hope age. It is somewhat on Good Templar lines.

Salvation Army in France.

BY CATHERINE BOOTH-CLIBBORN.

I FEEL constrained to write to you about the Lord's doings in Paris just now, assured that your readers will rejoice to know that the Spirit of God is moving on these dry bones.

At our new hall, 3, Rue Auber, these last days there has not been room to contain the crowds. The audiences are rich, intellectual, and sceptical. Almost every nationality is represented, and every creed; without counting the principal nations of Europe, there have been Polonaises, inhabitants of Monténégro, of Tiflis, Arabs, North American Indians, &c., in our meetings; and every faith represented as well as Infidels and Freethinkers. In one meeting there were Jews, Mahometans, Catholics, Protestants, and Deists. The nobility of Paris is also represented. What is more remarkable still is to see this audience listening in breathless silence to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, some standing for two hours, and at the end not appearing weary or anxious to leave the prayer-meeting, although the hour be advanced.

The longer one works in this centre the more one feels the exceptional opportunity there is of sowing the seed on an immense field; indeed, it is difficult to estimate the result of only one of these meetings. Already blessed fruits have appeared, a little group of converts have gathered round us, besides those who have left for other countries, as the population here is ever floating. Let me give you a few examples:—

A young painter—Austrian, Catholic—only a few months back was plunged in the world. He said: "Had one offered me a million of money to abandon my canvas or my political opinions, I should have refused." His conversion has been radical, and Jesus Christ has taken the place of these two ruling passions in his life. He has now consecrated his all to God, and only awaits the day when he will be free to go himself as a missionary.

Another case is that of a middle-aged literary man, a victim to the famous Renan. His face bears a melancholy, wearied expression. He would come every night alone, and sit till the very end in rapt attention. A few weeks ago one of our officers received the following letter from him:—"You have stirred a whole world within me. You say that your religion is peace, but since I have heard you the tempest within has arisen more furious than ever. The first time I entered the hall it was from simple curiosity, and Christ once more was placed on my path; but has He not been proved to be a mere man? And what you call a soul, is it other than a combination of refined instincts—a vital flame which grows, declines, and perishes with the body? If God gave me faith and life He would perform a greater miracle than when He raised Lazarus from the dead! Strange fact which throws me thus into doubt and uncertainty. I have heard great Christian orators without being much touched, but what has moved me has come from poor people, laughed to scorn and despised. Have they a charm? a secret? No; but doubtless they believe truly what they say, and they speak from the heart. But what must one do to believe, as you believe, to become a new being?...I am weary of my doubts. To forsake the world would not cost me much. I hate this world of short-lived glory and everlasting discussion; this world of bombast, of falseness, of stupid mockery, with a hatred that you have not experienced in forsaking it, for you want to save it, whereas ofttimes I would have destroyed it. Whether you are in error or not in your belief, you have in your heart a great pity for those who suffer. It is not those who are without bread that are the most to be pitied. If there is a heaven, and if I do not go there, it will not be laid to your charge."

A few nights later he came forward before all to seek Jesus; and to enable him better to overcome his pride, and to declare himself before the world as his disciple, he wrote the following declaration:—

"Having found out that all was vanity in the world, I come now to you to follow your direction. I have looked for glory, and have only found shame and humiliation; I wanted to love, but all that I could do was to hate. I sought to be true, and my life has been entire falsehood; I sought joy, and have only found pain; I wanted peace, and have nothing but war; I wanted life, and have had worse than death. Recognising my incapacity to be right and to be happy through my own effort, I come at length to the feet of Jesus Christ, of whom I have heard so much, abandoning myself entirely into his hands. I come more humble than a child, more humble than dust; I come full of folly, misery, and doubt. I place everything at the foot of his cross. I come to the feet of Him who said: 'I am the way, the truth, and the life.' I take Him at his word, so that He may heal my heart and mind, and that He may give me faith and the necessary light. Oh that He may give me peace with myself, and speak to me, showing me his will in everything. I give up entirely my own will to Him."

An extract from his last letter is as follows: "I hope yet to fight one day with you, even if it only be as a valet. Pray for me."

A third case is a valet de chambre, a French Catholic, who came to the first meeting curious and light. To-day he is known among all his fellow servants, and by his master, as a follower of the Nazarene, and, although persecution has begun, his love for souls is beautiful to witness. It is his delight to distribute the notices for the meetings on the Boulevards.

(To be concluded.)

A YORKSHIRE ORPHANAGE.

THE Ilkley and Wharfdale Orphanage and Children's Home originated nine years ago in efforts put forth by Mr. W. H. Conyers, of Ben Rhydding. Situate in Weston-road, Ilkley, the Home has at present seventeen inmates. Educated free of expense at the national school, they are, as a rule, ultimately trained for domestic service.

The annual meeting of friends of the institution was held a few days ago, when its undenominational character was demonstrated by the presence of subscribers belonging to various sections of the Church. The advantages of the Home are not confined to a district, or county even, but needy children are received from all parts. Nor is it the rule that children should have lost both parents to be eligible for admission, the committee of management being of opinion that cases may arise in which children having one parent may need and deserve help quite as much as those who are quite orphans. Satisfactory accounts are continually being received of girls who have entered situations on leaving the Home.

The present is the third house which the institution has occupied, as it is grown in usefulness. The first contributions towards purchasing it were from the orphan inmates, who gave of their little savings. There is, we regret to hear, still a debt of several hundred pounds on the premises. Communications should be addressed to Miss Bruce, Fern Bank, Ilkley.

IRELAND is again sending out missionaries as in the olden days. One town, Wexford, has now three representatives in the mission field. Miss Johnson has left for China, where she is to work with Dr. Rigg at Ku-Chang, in the Fuh-Kien province. She has had three years' special training in hospital work in Manchester, and follows her sister, who has been engaged in mission work at Foo Chow for some years. The other Wexford missionary is labouring in Palestine.

THE GOSPEL FOR THE KAFFIRS.

IT is cheering to report a godly zeal on the part of the Boers of Natal, for the conversion of the many Kaffirs residing on their farms. Being very large, these farms have from seventy to 150, sometimes even more, black people connected with them. Evangelisation has been stimulated of late, through the Boers becoming convinced that missions to the Kaffirs must be largely their own responsibility.

Only a few years ago there was an extremely widespread impression that Kaffirs never could become Christians. Nevertheless there have always been some who have sought the conversion of their household servants. One of these was Mr. Bruwer, an elder of the church at Greytown, who went to his rest six or seven years ago. For a long time he earnestly sought the salvation of an old Kaffir servant, but it was only when the aged saint was on his deathbed, and using his last strength in testimony for Christ, that the man showed signs of the operation of Divine grace. This Kaffir's conversion was the beginning of a missionary movement which is making itself felt to-day. A revival among the Boers followed, and since then all doubts as to Christianising the Kaffirs have entirely vanished.

At a conference of missionaries held in July last at Durban, Rev. James Turnbull, minister of the Dutch Reformed Church, Greytown, described an important agency, which has been established in connection with his church, and is known as the Boer Farm Mission. The object is to introduce Christian life into the kraals, or huts, of the Kaffirs. Native evangelists are associated with the distant farms, and, under the superintendence of Christian farmers, they preach and teach in the kraals. The farmers in some cases render willing assistance, and are expected to contribute one-third of the sum of £15 allowed for the support of the evangelist. In his address Mr. Turnbull said:—"The Kaffir population offers splendid opportunities to the evangelist, the Sabbath-school teacher, to him that hath gifts of ruling, and to everyone who would recommend Jesus, the Saviour of sinners, to his fellow-men. The Kaffir is spread abroad as sheep without a shepherd. Our churches, our congregations, our members, men and women, have but to arise and lead them to Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep." We trust the good work thus undertaken will be abundantly blessed of God, and the example emulated by the various churches of the colony.

THE COLLIERY DISASTER AT PENICUIK, near Edinburgh, by which sixty-four lives were lost, has left forty homes desolate in one village, and about 160 dependents in want of daily bread. The circumstances are sad in the extreme, as Rev. S. R. Crockett and his fellow labourers have found. In a letter to The Times, this esteemed Free Church minister appeals for help to meet the immediate needs of the widows and orphans. Mr. A. J. Copplestone, superintendent of the Scottish Evangelistic Association, informs us that a recent tent mission among the miners was greatly blessed. "We have," he adds, "the assurance that many of the men were on the Lord's side, and thus prepared for the sudden change."

NATIONAL BIBLE SOCIETY OF SCOTLAND.—At a meeting of the Western Board, in Glasgow, the death of Mr. Mungo Lauder, for some years a useful member of the board, was noted with regret. A number of meetings was reported to have been held in Orkney, where the Bible cause has taken a firm hold on the confidence and affections of the people, as evidenced by their contribution last year of close on £150. Proposals for the better organisation of Bible work in Japan were favourably received. There were laid on the table two publications of the Hindu Tract Society specially intended to prejudice students in mission colleges against the Scriptures. The committee deeming the Bible itself the best answer to such attacks, agreed to sanction another native colporteur, and to make a grant of 100 Persian and Hindi Testaments for use in schools in the district of Budaun.

London Churches.

Regent-square Presbyterian Church.

Rev. JOHN McNEILL on RICH and POOR.

The popular pastor of Regent-square is back again at his post in North Central London, after a breathing space of two months. His native air and the ozone of the Sussex coast, with such rest as Mr. McNeill's active temperament would permit him to take during his vacation, have given him the needed access of robust health, and he looks as fit for the winter's work as his most ardent well-wisher could desire. When he stood up in his reconstructed platform-pulpit on Lord's-day morning to give out the opening Psalm, he was greeted with the welcome spectacle of a crowded and expectant congregation.

The frequent references to the poor and oppressed, in Scripture, and Psalm, and prayer, during the opening service, must have led many hearers to suppose that the preacher's thoughts were on the strike, and that it would be the theme of his discourse. In a measure this presumption was correct, for he gave out as his text the story of the rich man and Lazarus. The sermon was a running exposition of this parable, and was full of forceful application of the truth to the circumstances of our own time. At the outset he emphasised the fact that the Bible never condemns rich people as such, though, of course, they are exposed to special dangers, and need solemn and special warnings. But the poor may be as proud and selfish as the rich. In this narrative Christ takes us beyond this mortal scene to that within the veil; we can vouch for it that as regards the earthly part of the story there is no exaggeration. The scene might be laid in our own city; in Hyde Park we may see the rich man rolling along in his carriage, while Lazarus lies on the grass just across the railing. The Bible is not afraid to handle the rich man very freely; would that all Gospel preachers were like it. Yet there is no caricature and no needless denunciation; there is photographic truthfulness. Caricature, said Mr. McNeill, seldom does good; he had seen the representation of a certain great city magnate (an evident reference to Mr. Norwood), but his effigy did not do him justice. Then in describing the poor man, Christ shows the same calm tone of speech. He does not fling himself with fury upon a lay figure He has created, and tear it to tatters with a "noble rage." The rich man is anonymous, but Christ gives the name of the poor man, and he evidently intends it to teach us something. Lazarus simply means, "God is my help." What a name for such a man! The sceptic might point to it as a contemptible designation for a lump of human wretchedness, and as a refutation of religion. But God in his own time will justify the name and all that it implies.

With calm majesty Christ flings aside the curtain that hides from us the "undiscovered country"; to Him it is familiar ground, and the books of judgment are an open scroll. He tells us that Lazarus died and was carried into Abraham's bosom. Nineteenth century philosophers would have said that he died, and—and—there was an end of him. If that were so, what a poor world this would be; how misery would be heaped on misery. That little conjunction "and" is put to a very different use by Christ. It teaches us how Lazarus had been a prince of the blood-royal all his days. We see here, not only the awful problem of the inequalities of this present life, but how the problem is to be solved. Blessed are the true Lazaruses, for theirs is the kingdom of God. One day they shall drop their rags, and don the regal purple. How all this alters our views of death! Since Christ has brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel, we see that it is life, not death, that is the jailer; death is an angel sent to draw the bolts and set us free. Then truly sudden death becomes sudden glory. Who can exaggerate the blessedness that death brings to the poor and wretched?

We have to stay a little longer on the earthly scene before we get rid of the rich man; he "died and was buried." He was always large and visible, and he is so to the last. We hear of no funeral for Lazarus.

> Rattle his bones, over the stones;
> He is only a pauper whom nobody owns.

But the rich man's burial is mentioned. If the survivors cannot shed willing tears over him, there will be hired mourners who will rend the air with their shrieks, and shed tears, at so much a shriek and so much a tear. That was the Oriental way, and we have not greatly improved upon it. There is great difficulty in restraining sarcasm when we see the pomp and pride and retinue that attend the burial of some titled, fat, and wealthy nobody.

With what calmness and majesty, too, Christ describes the rich man after death. With some people, to change hell into Hades puts out the fire. Not so thought Christ. "In Hades he lifted up his eyes, being in torment." How faithful to truth was the Saviour when He spoke these words. Be astonished and amazed, O preacher of to-day, as you think how you are tempted with bated breath and whispered humbleness to address men of great commercial genius and influence. Christ dared to tell the proud and selfish Pharisees of a Jew in hell—a Jerusalem gentleman in hell. And why should we forbear to say that it is possible for an Englishman to be in hell—a Regent-square man in hell and in torment. Oh, think of it, and do not miss the point of it, for your soul's sake. If ever you find your preacher softening and wavering here, send him into ignoble retirement.

Mr. McNeill went on to show how this rich man in hell awoke five minutes too late to the realisation of his responsibility for the salvation and help of others, as well as for his own salvation. In applying this, he referred to the heartless way in which many fat and wealthy people regard the sorrows and miseries of those around them, and the need they have to pray to be delivered from blood-guiltiness. Are we not responsible for the Lazaruses in our midst? It is not for nothing that Lazarus and the rich man appear on the same page of the Word of God; the first will be either the salvation or the condemnation of the second.

The discourse was more subdued in tone and phrase than is usual with Mr. McNeill, and that well befitted the gravity of the subject; but it was most effective. Collections were made at both services on Sunday on behalf of the poor in East and South London affected by the strike, and of the sufferers from the mining disaster at Penicuik, in Scotland. Mr. McNeill said he had preached there to some of those who had been so suddenly called away. The Wednesday evening "Services for the people" are now resumed at Regent-square, and also the Tuesday evening open-air meetings at King's-cross. Mr. McNeill evidently means not only to work hard himself, but to keep his people at it, during the winter months, among the masses of the neighbourhood.

The City Temple.

Rev. FERGUS FERGUSON, of Glasgow.

This well-known Glasgow Presbyterian pastor is filling Dr. Parker's pulpit on the two closing Sabbaths of the latter's summer vacation. Last Sunday evening Dr. Ferguson preached to a large congregation a very interesting and helpful discourse, based on some aspects of the life of Alexander I., Czar of all the Russias. The text was the first verse of Psalm xci.: "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide in the shadow of the Almighty." In the beginning of his discourse, the preacher related some very remarkable facts connected with the career of Alexander, in the time of his defensive campaign against the great Napoleon. When he was about to set out for Moscow, Countess Tolstoï put a paper into his hand, and on reading it the next night he was surprised to find that it contained Psalm xci. beautifully written out. Some weeks after, in his study at Moscow, his eye lighted on the same Psalm in a old Saxon Bible. A little later, in an interview with Prince Galitzin, he heard the opening words of the Psalm for the third time; and later still the Court preacher, on a day of humiliation and prayer that had been appointed, preached from the same words. These recurring coincidences so deeply impressed the mind of the Czar that he did not rest till he had found in Christ his hiding-place. Dr. Ferguson addressed his discourse in very brotherly and impressive words to those among his hearers who had not fled to Christ for refuge. He is strong in incident, and one of these he told related to himself. When a boy he attended some revival meetings, and became anxious about salvation. His mother repeated to him a hymn which, she understood, had been composed by one under sentence of death. The lines are as follow, with one stanza omitted:—

> Against the God that rules the sky
> I stood with hand uplifted high;
> Despised the offers of his grace,
> Too proud to seek a hiding-place.
>
> Indignant Justice was in view;
> To Sinai's fiery mount I flew;
> But Justice cried, with frowning face,
> This mountain is no hiding-place.
>
> At length a gentle voice I heard,
> And Mercy's angel form appeared;
> She led me on with blessed face
> To Jesus as my hiding-place.
>
> On Him the awful vengeance fell
> That must have crushed this world to hell;
> He bore it for a ruined race,
> And thus became a hiding-place.
>
> . . . .
>
> A few more setting suns at most
> Will land me on fair Canaan's coast;
> There I shall sing the song of grace,
> And see my glorious hiding-place.

The departing shadow of the dock labourers' strike seemed to be present in the City Temple as in Regent-square. In his prayer Dr. Ferguson thanked God for the cessation of this collision between capital and labour. Near the end of his sermon he entreated his hearers on this day after the great strike to settle their strike against God, and to enter into a covenant with him to be wholly the Lord's till they die. The service of praise in the City Temple is very inspiring and yet truly devotional. It was an interesting coincidence that the morning assembly in Regent-square and the evening gathering on the Holborn Viaduct were both closed with that grand ascription of praise, "All hail the power of Jesu's Name," sung to the stirring tune of "Miles Lane."

Next Lord's Day morning Dr. Ferguson will preach in the City Temple on "The Inspiration and Power of Holy Scripture," and in the evening on the lessons of the life and death of General Gordon. Dr. Parker resumes his ministry on Sunday week.

REV. WILLIAM CUFF,

Pastor of Shoreditch Tabernacle, London, E.

THERE are not a few men who have been educated in the Pastors' College who have honourably distinguished themselves in the Lord's service; for, as one mentally takes a survey of what is being done in London and the provinces, one finds that several important positions are occupied by those who were educated for their work in Mr. Spurgeon's institution. It is almost invidious to mention names where so many have done well; but conspicuous among the noble band is WILLIAM CUFF. His lot has been cast in East London, and his pastorate includes the densest quarter of Bethnal Green, Shoreditch, as well as other equally crowded parts of that too-little understood territory. A more arduous and responsible post could hardly be held by any earnest preacher of the Gospel. It may be doubted whether such men receive all the sympathy and aid they might reasonably expect from Christian people who enjoy more pleasant surroundings, while possessing the means to help those who cannot always help themselves.

(From Photograph by the Stereoscopic Company, 54, Cheapside, E.C.)

Somewhat over forty years of age, Mr. Cuff is a native of Gloucester, so that he has many pleasant recollections of rural life in his early days on the banks of Old Severn. Though engaged in business, he commenced preaching in the villages around Cheltenham at the age of twenty. When Mr. Spurgeon first preached in the fashionable town, the young tradesman was accepted as a student, and he entered the Pastors' College some twenty-five years ago. In a usual way one great advantage enjoyed by students during their two years' course is that of attending the preaching of Mr. Spurgeon; but such was the active service in which Mr. Cuff was from the first engaged, that he never enjoyed even one quiet Sunday at the Metropolitan Tabernacle.

His first settlement was at Ridgmont, Bedfordshire, a picturesque village on the confines of the Duke of Bedford's magnificent park of Woburn Abbey, which claims to have had associations with John Bunyan. It was soon found that additional accommodation would have to be provided, or that the chapel itself would have to be enlarged. Numbers of conversions took place, the moral tone of Ridgmont improved, and preaching stations were set up in the villages around. There is nothing like the Gospel for creating that excitement which most effectively breaks up the somnolent religious indifference that is too often a baneful accompaniment of rural seclusion.

At length there came a letter from Mr. Spurgeon, and the sequel was that the preacher who had done something to promote a revival of religion in one part of Bedfordshire became co-pastor with Rev. Cornelius Elven, of Bury St. Edmunds. For a man of twenty-five to work with a veteran of over seventy must necessarily be a trying position; but the crowded chapel and the conversion of many rough characters at the street services were encouragement to go forward. The Saturday night services on the Market Hill were especially successful, although they were of course not carried on without provoking opposition.

It was so ordered, however, that Mr. Cuff's life-work would have to be done in London. In 1872 he settled at Acton, and six months later undertook the work at Providence Chapel, Hackney-road. The congregation here was in a low state, analogous, indeed, in that respect to the condition of New Park-street Chapel when Mr. Spurgeon himself first came to London. The people in Shoreditch had been served by a succession of godly men, who, however, had made little or no endeavour to produce any impression on the tide of heathenism which surged up to their very chapel doors.

Old Providence Chapel at once began to wear a new face by being crowded at every service; and at length the more ample accommodation of the Shoreditch Town Hall was secured for Sunday evenings. Of course, under such conditions, the immediate want was a larger building; and when the scheme was broached which represented an outlay of between £20,000 and £30,000, the people, poor though they were, resolved with commendable enthusiasm to carry it out, meanwhile looking for assistance to such outsiders as would be glad of an opportunity of giving something to the poor. The first part of the enterprise has been carried out; the great Tabernacle was opened by Dr. Maclaren, of Manchester, in 1880, and a schoolroom in the rear has since been added. Unhappily, there is a debt which the Lord's stewards would have done well to remove before now; while, to complete the original scheme, more extended space for Sunday-school classes is imperatively needed. The present school, which is arranged for four hundred children, is sadly overcrowded, and many who ask to come have to be refused through want of room; the consequence being that the young creatures waste precious hours in the street, when, at the most impressionable age, they might be benefiting by Bible lessons. Thus the pastor and his people, who already possess an eligible site in the rear of their chapel, have now in hand the urgent enterprise of erecting school and classrooms adequate to the needs of the neighbourhood. This will involve an immediate outlay of four thousand pounds.

As Mr. Cuff is pastor of a working mission church, the aggressive Christian work carried on is of the most comprehensive kind. The lower room of the new schoolhouse will be used for week-night services and other meetings, and will thus open new opportunities of usefulness at what may be called headquarters; for it must be borne in mind that there are six important mission stations in the great outlying, densely populated district known as Shoreditch, Bethnal Green, and Hoxton. The mission stations are right down amongst the poor; one hall seats four hundred people, and is filled with a Sunday-school of four or five hundred children, many of whom belong to the Band of Hope. Thus every Sunday night, while he is preaching the Gospel to his own people, Mr. Cuff has the satisfaction of knowing that there are two hundred volunteers associated with him in labour who are out in the streets, in the common lodging-houses, or elsewhere, doing downright aggressive work for the Lord. There is a house-to-house visiting society, which distributes tracts and papers. Then the congregations both at the Tabernacle and at the mission-stations are resident congregations; that is to say, they do not come from afar, but out of the immediate district. How many classes and characters are represented among them, we would not undertake to say, but a large proportion are of the poorest sort; and, in point of fact, honest souls may at times be encountered at the Sunday morning services who have been obliged to come without breaking their fast.

The case is thus one of the poor helping the poor; but a vast deal more might be done in the way of effective service, if only the necessary buildings were provided free from debt.

Mr. Cuff is to be regarded as a preacher to a large congregation of resident poor in one of the most densely populated quarters of London. It is the best evidence of his success that he can attract working people; and we know that the chief satisfaction of his life is found in the fact that he is pastor of a working mission church.

Since the foregoing was written, considerable progress has been made with the new Sunday-school buildings. Plans have been accepted for a building which will accommodate 1500 children, in twenty-six good class-rooms, all well lighted and properly ventilated. The cost will, as already stated, be about £4000, and so liberally have all sections of the Church responded to Mr. Cuff's appeals that only about £500 will be needed to enable this large building to be opened free of debt. On this Mr. Cuff has earnestly set his heart, and though the plans are quite ready, and the builder's contract is in hand, the Pastor waits for a little more generous help from those who have a real interest in such work carried on amongst the very poor.

One Sunday in last June Mr. T. A. Denny attended a Sunday evening service at the Shoreditch Tabernacle, when he spoke to the crowded audience. After the service he carefully went into all the facts and figures of the Sunday-school scheme, and found that there were three small houses standing on the ground, which the committee had resolved to sell, in order to give the money to the School Building Fund. Mr. Cuff and his friends are most anxious to keep these houses for future extension of the work; for they could be turned into a coffee-room, reading-room, &c., for the young people. A publican close by offered £950 for the property; but, seeing their value, Mr. Denny at once very generously promised £250 in order to save these houses. This promise has secured two other sums of £50 each, and some smaller gifts. Only about £500 more will be needed, therefore, to complete the entire scheme. Of course, the whole property is properly put in trust on behalf of the church.

Thus, at the Shoreditch Tabernacle, we find a great mission church, with a membership of nearly 1200, made up almost entirely of working people and the poor. The Pastor is in the vigour of his life and power, and has a band of willing and devoted helpers around him. Above all, he preaches the Gospel "with signs following." Very many souls are saved, and added to the church. Those who really desire to give to the poor of London will do so with effect by helping this enterprise.

PERTH CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

FOR the twenty-seventh time has the annual invitation gone forth from the Christians of Perth to their fellow labourers in the Gospel to meet in conference and fellowship. Many are the hallowed memories of bygone years, and although, owing to the multiplication of similar gatherings all over the country, the attendance is not so large or as representative as in former days, there is still the same heartiness of welcome and joy of fellowship which has characterised the Conference from the first.

Mr. Jas. Mudie, of Montrose, who has been one of the secretaries from the beginning, having been absent from only one gathering (and that from illness) in all these years, is still to the front; and though, from advancing age, his bodily strength is somewhat abated, his heart is as warm, and his genial grasp of the hand as firm as ever.

The Conference was held from Tuesday till Thursday of last week; on the Monday evening Col. Malcolm, of Burnfoot, with Rev. D. D. Bannerman and Mr. Mudie, the secretaries, welcomed the visitors who had come from a distance, and two hours were spent in social intercourse and prayer. Each morning, too, a meeting for prayer and conference on Christian work was held; but we cannot help feeling that if this had been better supported the effects of the Conference would have been more appreciable. The success of Mildmay and Keswick Conferences is largely due to their well attended prayer-meetings.

Especial interest was felt in the presence at the Conference of Dr. Andrew Bonar, who sat as a prince among the peers. Though his addresses were but brief, they were characterised by much of his wonted weight and energy. Rev. Mark Guy Pearse too, though giving but one address, contributed largely to the store of good practical thought set before the audience. Seldom, if ever, have we heard him speak with more manifest power than on this occasion.

The general subject was "The Holy Spirit in His Gifts and Operations," which was commenced at the first session by the consideration of the Spirit in and with the Word made flesh (John i. 4), and in and with the written Word.

In the absence of Lord Polwarth, Lord KINNAIRD presided, and in a few opening words pointed out the need of the power of the Holy Spirit in Christian life and work. The chief reason why this power is lacking is the neglect of Bible study. The race of Christians whose lives form the subjects of biographies is characterised by prolonged early morning study of the Word of God; but it is to be feared that now such Christians are rather the exception than the rule. Other causes of failure may be our unwillingness to incur being ridiculed or misunderstood by others (Acts ii. 13); or the fact that God sees something in us which is contrary to his will (Deut. xxiii. 14), such as choosing our favourite form of Christian work instead of that to which He would direct us, or enjoying ourselves at conferences, when God would have us bearing reproach for his name or rescuing some degraded one from the mire. Lord Kinnaird added a wholesome protest against imaginary visions or inward feelings being preferred before the written Word, and against the substitution of commentaries and expositions in the study, or of religious story-books in the Sabbath-school, for the direct study and use of the Bible itself.

Rev. KENNETH MOODY-STUART drew attention to Luke iii. 22; iv. 1, 14, 18, as showing the relation of our Lord, "the Word made flesh," to the Holy Spirit. It was "through the Eternal Spirit" that He "offered Himself without spot to God" (Heb. ix. 14). The obedience of Christ was wrought out in his human nature (Ps. xl. 6, 8). Some men are born to live; Christ, in his human nature, was born to die. It is by the broken body of Christ that the Spirit breaks hard hearts (Zech. xii. 10; John xii. 32). The Spirit must come through a human channel, and therefore dwelt first in Christ; and now in his people, that they in turn may show Him forth to the world. The sacrifice on Calvary of the human nature of Christ was offered as the sinner's atonement before the Spirit was given; the world was not awakened until after He had come. When we look for and pray for the Spirit, we must look for and pray for Him through Christ. Christ's human nature was FILLED WITH the Holy Spirit "without measure;" the Apostles were also filled, and we, too, may be filled, even though our vessels be not so large as theirs, nor their as Christ's. According to our capacity for receiving we may be filled. Christ was LED by the Spirit (Luke iv. 1), and so are we (Rom. viii. 14); and as the Spirit WORKED in Christ, so does He work in us to will and to do of his good pleasure.

The next speaker was Rev. Dr. ALEXANDER WHYTE, of Free St. George's, Edinburgh, who reserving until the evening his address upon the subject appointed, "The Spirit in the Written Word," brought before his hearers in succession of the of the Church. Many Christians attend conferences to hear good things worth remembering, but if they would read such books as he named, they would enjoy perpetual conference with the spirits of the great masters. Of all Christian literature, the purest, the richest, and most fruitful field is that of Christian autobiography. The most precious portions of Holy Writ, such as the Psalms, Paul's Epistles, &c., are, in great part, autobiographical; as if the writer called to the followers of Christ in all ages, "Come, hearken unto me and I will declare what the Lord hath done for my soul." The writers of such Psalms as xxxii., li., lxxiii., cxvi., have shown their own hearts, and thus have blessed the hearts of others; and how incomplete would the Epistle to the Romans be without chap. vii.! Dr. Whyte then at some length characterised the merits of the following works:—Augustine's Confessions—a masterpiece of sanctified intellect; The Writings of Dante—one of the great engines of political and personal reformation; Memoir of Fraser, of Brea—a book for poor tried, distressed, and tempted souls; The Memoirs of Haliburton, of St. Andrews—the record of a great sceptic to whom was given great faith; Thomas Boston's Life—one of the best spiritual biographies ever written; Richard Baxter's Saint's Rest—about the saintliest book ever penned by human hand or poured out m human heart; Baxter's Life—of especial lue to every minister, as being the record of e who preached as a dying man to dying en; Bunyan's Grace Abounding—unspeakly precious as the foregoing writings are, as . Duncan said, "Methinks the tinker beats m all," for style and evangelical truth, but ore for a sense of sin and an understanding the human heart. I love him as a scholar, cause of his exquisite style; I love him as a eologian, because he teaches the doctrines of ace; but I love him most of all as a poor ner, who knew his own heart and mine.

"GREAT MASTER BOOKS"

Dr. Whyte then earnestly appealed to his arers to read such works as these. "What you Christians reading?" he exclaimed. What trifling twopenny-halfpenny trash are u reading, while the great master-minds of e Christian Church are unknown to you? I ieve I can do you no better service than to commend these great master books of the urch. But let them be but pillars on which lay your pipe, to run it up to the fountain—e Word of God."

In the evening Dr. WHYTE gave an admirable ctical supplement to the foregoing address. sing his remarks upon Heb. iv. 12, he ught out the bearing of God's Word on the science and the heart. He commenced by oting from "The Pilgrim's Progress" the ne where Great Heart examines the sword of liant for Truth, which he characterised as a ht good Jerusalem blade. This was the ord of the Spirit, which was the Word of God. is sword pierces to the thoughts and intens of the human heart. We cannot know a n till we get to his heart, for he will keep thoughts hidden from even his best and rest friends. There is no thought so deep, vever, that the sword of the Spirit cannot ch it. Again, a man is not known by his rds, nor by his deeds, not even by his books companions, but only when you go to his rt and find out what his thoughts are in tude, in the silent watches of the night. It wonderful thought this, that there is an which searches the hearts of all, and this es a nobility to every sinner's heart. It gives lignity to a sinner's life that his every ught is registered in heaven; and not only thoughts, but even his intentions which ulate his will, and thus come out in the life action. Ministers, he said, do not preach ugh about intention. There is need of the aching of the law of God in its searching er. For, as you choose, the law of God sanctify or slay you; but only as you ose.

sword is nothing in itself unless it has the l of a swordsman behind it. The sword n becomes part and parcel of the swordsn, and is imbued with his spirit. Thus, then, law is just what God is. He is in and be- l the law. So also with the Bible. It is 's sword. He is in it. But too often this rd is like the swords of olden days—hung n the hall for ornament.

r. Whyte's address, delivered rapidly, and impassioned fervour, left a marked impres- on the large assembly.

he subject for the second morning session—e Spirit in Awakening, Regeneration, and version"—was introduced briefly by Lord WARTH, the chairman, who read parts of xliv. and Joel ii. Professor LAIDLAW, of nburgh, who followed, prefaced his address lescribing a community of Christians he lately visited at Ziegen, in Westphalia, ng whom he had spent some happy hours Conference held there. As he listened to discourses given to those simple-hearted ers, ironworkers and peasants, upon suffering, cing, and waiting for Christ, his heart had thrilled, and he now brought their greetto the friends at Perth.

e weakness that exists in many German ches, said the Professor, is due to the sion of teaching relating to the work of Holy Spirit, and any such omission in ish churches must produce a like result. Spirit, in awakening, is not a mystical, mesmeric influence, but a reality. Dr. Whyte had shown at a previous meeting that every sword—even the "sword of the Spirit"—needed a swordsman to wield it; equally necessary is it for the swordsman to have a sword to wield. The Spirit wields his sword, which is the Word of God. "But," it may be asked, "does not the Spirit work otherwise than through the Word? Does He not work through our circumstances?" The Word is his sword; our which the Spirit may use to do his work. The earthquake aroused the jailor of Philippi but it was the Word, used by the Spirit, that convinced him of sin and led him to repentance. So it was with the shipwreck on the occasion of John Newton's conversion.

CIRCUMSTANCES MAY BE THE HANDLE

The relation between the Spirit and Christ is set forth in John xv. 26, and xvi. 13, 14, showing that repentance is brought about by the Spirit holding forth Christ. At Pentecost it was not by the signs and wonders that the people were converted; they were, as it were, the bell which was rung, but they were not the sermon. The results were achieved by Peter, filled with the Spirit, giving forth plain words about Christ. The Spirit was in Peter, and Peter's individuality was hidden by the Spirit; he testified of Christ, and his hearers were convicted and cut to the heart. And this is the way the Spirit is convicting sinners still.

Nor is the Spirit just a moral effect of the testimony. John xv. 26, 27 shows Him to be a living, divine Person, in the speaker and in the word. It is not talking about the Spirit, nor holding correct doctrines about his work, that is going to convert the world, because the world cannot understand such doctrine. Impression can only be made by the Spirit testifying, through living visible instruments, of Christ.

The next speaker was Rev. JOHN SMITH, of Edinburgh, who in vigorous style vindicated the doctrine of Regeneration as taught in the Inspired Word. We have to deal, he said, with men who are opposed to the possibility of regeneration, and with teachings that have come from without, which would throw us back upon ourselves, into a hopeless stoicism and a religion of haze, with no definite ideas about anything. How can those who hold the Bible teaching of the new birth to be merely metaphorical, account for the changed hearts and lives of generations of believing men—men who believed that they were dead in trespasses and sins who in their helplessness turned to God, who were set free, and in whom, by the eternal Spirit, was built up a mighty spiritual personality which has influenced not only their own, but succeeding times? Who can dare say that these men were deceived? I believe, said the speaker, in the literal truth of the teaching of these words, "Begotten again," "Born of the Spirit," "Born anew"; and I believe that this great doctrine of renewal is reasonable, in the deepest sense of the term.

(a) Born again by the Word (1 Peter i. 23).—This is a rational process. I was recently conversing with an American gentleman who had come to Edinburgh to consult a physician concerning a disease of his eye. Said he, "I am very much impressed by the skill of these physicians. I went to one in America, and, after examination, he localised the disease as being at a certain point behind the eye. I have now seen one in your city and, without a hint from me, he has traced it to the same spot." What is the remedy? The patient places himself in the physician's hands, is put under chloroform, and awakes cured—by

A PERFECTLY RATIONAL PROCESS.

So does the Holy Spirit come to me, convinces me of sin, and regenerates me through the Word.

(b) Born of the Spirit (John iii. 8).—What is birth? The entrance of a principle of life, reorganising old matter and creating a new existence. Thus does "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus" make us "free from the law of sin and death." This is not life in its fulness, it is only birth; this is not perfection, and the man who most realises his salvation in Christ should be the last man to think himself sinless.

(c) Born anew (John iii. 3).—Are we not new? When we realise that we are born again, that God has cast all our sins behind his back, all our life is changed, and we are new with a newness that we cannot describe. "Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me."

Dr. ANDREW BONAR then followed with a few concise and appropriate words on the subject.

On Thursday forenoon, after some introductory remarks by the chairman (Lord Polwarth), the subject—"The Spirit in the Church on Earth"—was taken up by Rev. MARK GUY PEARSE, whose earnest words were listened to with the closest attention. Said an infidel to one of the workers in the West Central (London) Mission: "I hate and scorn Christianity." "But what do you think of Jesus Christ?" he was asked. "Oh, Jesus Christ was the grandest man that ever walked the earth, but Christianity is not like Him." Men do not find fault with Christ, but with present-day Christianity. The sole object of many people in being Christians is to get to heaven. Only the power of Pentecost can cure this selfishness which is so utterly un-Christlike.

In Eph. i. 15, 16, we find Paul praying without ceasing for those who had believed in Jesus. We are too apt, as soon as we have brought a soul to Christ, to leave him, and go and look after others; but instead of this, Paul makes such the special object of his prayers; his anxiety is for those inside the Church, because a holy church will conquer the world; and his desire for his converts was that they might know (1) what they had in Christ—salvation; and (2) what Christ had in them—faithful followers, who, in patient self-denial, would do his will.

Turn to Matt. xvi. 13. Here we have the Saviour asking his disciples: "Whom do men say that I, the Son of Man, am?" The reply of his disciples shows that men had placed Him as high as ever man had attained. This is the natural estimate of Christ. But Peter places Him higher than the highest had ever reached. Then follows our Lord's reply to Peter (vv. 18, 19), which Peter so greatly misunderstood. To his Jewish mind it only conveyed the idea of earthly supremacy; the Church was the kingdom which was to gain the supremacy over the Roman power. Peter was to have the keys—the symbol of authority—and would occupy the chief position in the newly-formed realm? But Christ now draws from that which was in the ambitious disciple's mind (ver. 21), and Peter instantly stops Him; but he was met with the stern rebuke, "Get thee behind Me, Satan." Peter was doing the devil's work, which is to make people think about themselves. Satan came to Adam and Eve, with "YE shall not eat," "YE shall not surely die," "YE shall be as gods;" and to our Lord with "If THOU be the Son of God;" "I will give THEE;" "He shall give his angels charge over THEE, to keep THEE." Peter said to Jesus, "Pity THYSELF" (margin); and Satan's aim is to get men, be they great sinners or great saints, to think about themselves, to occupy their minds with wrapping themselves about themselves, to save themselves until they lose themselves. The work of the Holy Spirit, on the other hand, is to fix our thoughts on Christ, to testify of Him.

A VERY DIFFERENT PICTURE

From this point there is a cloud between Christ and his disciples; He, longing for their sympathy, knowing what was in store for Him; they, occupied only with the one idea of an earthly kingdom, and their respective positions in it. There is a week of silence, during which nothing is recorded (Matt. xvii. 1; Mark ix. 2; Luke ix. 28). Three times in his life on earth it seemed as if Christ must have died, had not help come from above—(1) of bodily hunger (Matt. iv. 10); (2) of heart grief (Luke xxii. 43); and (3) for want of fellowship (Matt. xvii. 3). But here it was not an angel that appeared; angels could bring Him bread, and could impart strength, but in the mystery of his death they could take no part; and the two great saints of old appeared, and "spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem." Is not this

A PICTURE OF PRESENT-DAY CHRISTIANITY?

We want to be happy, and like a Christ who will take us to heaven; but we do not have fellowship with Him in his sufferings. We do not like to think of the suffering and misery by which we are surrounded; we prefer singing about heaven, and talking about our prospects of getting there—and that is all; and all the time the Saviour is bearing alone the sorrows of the world. Mark ix. 31—33 and x. 32 show that He had been walking apart from his disciples. Oh, the pathos of these incidents! In each case He had been speaking of his coming suffering, and in each case, while the words were on his lips, their miserable questions as to who should be the greatest grated upon his ear and pierced his heart (Mark ix. 34 and x. 35). And as He drew nearer to the Cross, until He sat under its very shadow—even as He brake the bread and poured forth the wine —"there was a strife among them which of them should be accounted the greatest" (Luke xxii. 24).

Is there no power in Christianity which can rid us of this terrible selfishness? Yes, we have the remedy in Acts ii. Pentecost has come; the Holy Ghost has been given. And now Peter, perhaps for the first time, speaks that word "crucified." What a change! "All with one accord, in one place"—all the wrangling dead; all that was out of tune gone. "All things common"—no one wanting to have more than his brother. "Singleness of heart" —one great heart beating in them all, pulsating with that of Christ. Peter and John "together" (Acts iii.)—no more jealousy or rivalry. But where is Peter's high office, where the realisation of his ambitious hopes? "Silver and gold have I NONE!" he cries, in exulting tones. He takes the beggar by the hand, regardless of apostolic dignity; he finds himself ere long within the prison walls; but worse, he is beaten and bleeding. And what then? He and his brethren left the presence of the council "REJOICING that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name."

That is what the Holy Ghost can accomplish. He can transform us from ambitious, self-seeking, wrangling Christians, into saints of the highest type. May He open our eyes, to see what we have in Christ, and what Christ has in us!

Dr. BONAR followed with a brief address upon "The Spirit in the Church in Heaven," which was the second aspect of the subject for the day. Christ's desire for those who have been led by the Spirit to Him is that they should be with Him (John xiv. 2), the Spirit abiding with them for ever. Referring to Rev. xxii. 17, 20, Dr. Bonar pointed out that the Spirit in the redeemed ones cries "Come" to the Lord Jesus, but first cries "Come" to the sinner—"Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly; but, O sinner, come quickly too, lest the door be shut." It is a picture of the Church within the veil yearning for the salvation of souls on earth. Saved yonder, they have not forgotten the perishing world below. Have we these two characteristics—a yearning desire for the salvation of souls, and for the return of the Lord Jesus? They are represented by the "Whosoever will" and the "Come" of ver. 17. The water of life is offered "freely"—without money and without price; Christ was "hated without a cause," and He offers salvation on the same terms.

The afternoon and evening meetings were chiefly devoted to accounts of the Lord's work and evangelistic addresses. Rev. R. McAll, the English Deputation Secretary, described the work of the McAll Mission in France. Of the 138 halls now acquired by the Mission, 38 are situated in and around Paris, and good fruit is borne by such agencies as dispensaries, mothers' meetings, libraries, visitation, in addition to the nightly public meetings. Mr. McAll instanced the value of the work by the following incidents. Two policemen were passing a notorious dancing saloon which had been converted into a mission hall, and, on learning of the change, one of them remarked to the hall-keeper, "I would willingly have given a day's money from my scanty wage toward this alteration, so knocked about did we sometimes get when called upon to quell disturbances within." In St. Etienne, too, a man threatened to kill the preacher, but the latter visited him at his house, in company with his little boy. The little lad, instructed by his father, ran up to the man and kissed him, with the words,

"THAT IS TO SHOW HOW FATHER LOVES YOU."

This simple scene, so unexpectedly enacted, won his heart, and he subsequently yielded himself to Christ and warmly supported the work.

Miss DE BROEN also told of her work among the French poor of Belleville, in Paris. She related the providential circumstances which led to her engaging in the work of ministering the Gospel to the poor in that district, which in the time of the war was the chief lodgment of the Communists; and how, by her medical mission, mothers' meetings, classes for the young, &c., many thousands, in the course of the year, have the Gospel preached to them. She urgently asked for more ladies to join her in the work.

The lepers of India also had their sad cause presented by Mr. Wellesley C. Bailey, who for some years has laboured amongst them. Rev. Mothoora Nath Bose, of the Bengal Evangelistic Mission, gave an interesting account of how he had been led to turn from his idols to serve the living God. He was baptized in 1865, and as a graduate of the University and an advocate in the high court, he had especially good prospects in life; but he abandoned these in order to preach Christ to his fellow-countrymen. An exceedingly interesting account was given by Mr. James Campbell White of work in the African Lake district, in which, as one of the directors of the African Lakes Company, he is especially interested.

The evening evangelistic addresses were given by Colonel Craig, Rev. John Smith, Mr. Campbell White, and Mr. J. M. Scroggie, the latter carrying on similar meetings for the succeeding fortnight or more.

Following shortly after the forenoon meeting on Thursday the Lord's Supper was observed, about five hundred persons, representing various denominations, uniting in showing forth his death. An earnest address was given by Rev. John Smith, who pleaded for a fuller consecration of life and talents to the Lord.

Special meetings for ladies were held during the Conference, which we hope to notice in our next issue.

LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY.—The secretaries of the London Missionary Society have issued a circular to ministers whose churches subscribe to the funds of the Society, asking that the week commencing Sunday next should be devoted solely to public and private prayer to God, "for a larger and more effectual manifestation of his spirit in connection with the work which He permits his servants to do in the mission field."

THE DOCKERS' WIVES AND CHILDREN in East London, during the recent strike, had their pressing needs supplied by various agencies. Among individual Christians who seized the opportunity to show kindness, for Christ's sake, was Mr. Simeon Clayton, of Bow Common-lane, Burdett-road. From the very beginning of the strike, Mr. Clayton distributed food on a large scale to men in receipt of no wages, and day after day fed hundreds of poor women and children. Missions at Stepney and Canning Town were greatly helped by the timely bounty of Mr. Clayton, who was one of the first to satisfy the hunger of the dockers' children.

THE GOSPEL IN IRELAND.

THE readiness of the people of Ireland to listen to the Gospel as kindly presented by the Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland is as gratifying as it is noteworthy. Told in a loving manner, the message that God justifies believers in Christ apart from legal works or ceremonial observances, almost everywhere finds very attentive hearers. Curiosity as well as anxiety may of course account for this, but we are glad to learn that a spirit of real anxiety is undoubtedly manifesting itself alongside an independence of thought which is by no means favourable to Romish superstition and retrogression. Our friend Captain J. Kearney White, secretary of the Society (Offices: 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin), recently showed us some letters from Scripture Readers, and certainly they are full of intimations of an encouraging character.

While the South Down riflemen were in camp at Saul, meetings were held daily, and attended by a goodly number of men, some of them Roman Catholics. The Scriptures were read and explained, and at the close of the encampment cordial thanks were expressed on behalf of the riflemen. A Reader who has been labouring in county Tipperary describes a visit to an "emergency" man in charge of an evicted farm. The reception was hearty, and God's Word was read and his love contemplated in the inhospitable seclusion of the neglected place. A third Reader, resident in county Mayo, reports the death of a believing old lady who some time ago, with her husband, came out of the Romish Church. Many of the Readers remark upon the pleasure with which they are received in Roman Catholic families. One, whose sphere is in an inland town, says: "I visit two Romish families, the members of which listen most attentively. More than that, they read God's Word for themselves, and look forward to my visits with great joy."

The method of the workers is shown by the following sentences from a conversation in a town in county Cork between a Reader and some Roman Catholics:—Q.—Would you have us believe that the Apostles were Protestants? A.—The Apostles preached salvation through faith in a crucified Redeemer, just as evangelical Protestants do. Q.—Do you believe in the Blessed Mother? A.—The Virgin Mary was one of the saints of God, but we do not pray to her. Q.—If the Virgin were on earth now, to which Church would she go, yours or mine? A.—How could she go to yours and say, "Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for me a sinner"? Instead of praying to herself in that way, she would of course go to a Protestant church, and sing again the holy song: "My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour." Q.—You believe then that the Virgin was saved by faith in her Son? A.—Yes, for Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by Me." This Reader had about forty Romanists hearing him and asking questions for the space of two hours; and when the time to part came, all were on the best of terms.

WEARY MOTHERS AND CHILDREN.—The want of a Seaside Home has long been felt by the Director and friends of the North-East London Gospel Mission; and it is with deep thanksgiving we state that the way has now been opened, through the kindness of a friend of the Mission placing a suitable house at disposal at Lancing-on-Sea. Here already a few parties of mothers and children have enjoyed their first sight of the blue sea, and gained fresh life and increased health. During the past fortnight the friends staying at the Home have been able to hold most interesting meetings on the beach, and in the little mission-room attached to the property. The director of the Mission is Mr. William Chorley, 2, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, N.

MISSIONS IN BURMA.

HE annexation of Upper Burma, in 1885, eemed to constitute a clear call for extended issionary effort on behalf of that country, rmerly known as Independent Burma, but ow incorporated a province of our Indian mpire. It is a sparsely populated country; ut, as it is of great extent, it has added several illions of Buddhists and demon worshippers Britain's rule and responsibility.

The Burmese were the ruling race, but there a large population of Shans inhabiting the ateau that is situated to the east of Burma. hey are strict Buddhists; speak a language of eir own, and under the immediate rule of eir own chiefs, who, however, have to acknowdge the British Government. Then there are e Kachins about Bhamo and the hills to the orth, a predatory and warlike people who have ot become Buddhists, and therefore offer better cilities to the Christian missionary; also the hins, on the west, about the Chindwin River, d some other tribes.

Burma is well served in its fine navigable vers by the steamers of the enterprising Irraddy Flotilla Company, and the Burma ate railways are being rapidly pushed forard. Already over 200 miles of new railway ve been constructed and opened for traffic th very encouraging results. Much of the untry is still unexplored or but little known; t, as there is promise both of mineral and ricultural wealth and of a growing trade, the fficulties will doubtless be overcome. Dacoity still prevalent, and requires the utmost gilance to make headway against it, and cify the country. The establishment of order, er so much of misrule, is a matter requiring ne.

The two missionary societies working in wer Burma previous to the annexation ve, of course, entered the upper country. e Society for the Propagation of the Gospel umed its work in Mandalay, which had been spended during Theebaw's reign, and has o established a flourishing medical mission Shwebo. The American Baptist Mission, nded by the famous Dr. Judson, in Lower rma, has commenced work in Mandalay, in amo, and in Sagaing.

The Wesleyan Mission entered Burma in 37, and now occupies Mandalay, Pakokku d Kyanksè. The Burmans are devout Budsts, and it is almost an invariable rule for ry male some time in his life to don the low robe of the monk, though in some cases y for a week or two. The number of regular nks is very large. This makes Buddhism ve a very strong hold of the people. Apart m religion the people are a very merry, erful, easy-going race, naturally intelligent d quick to comprehend, but somehow not people to develop the fine resources of their ntry. The Chinese in some things, and the ives of India in others, take the lead, and re are indeed few departments of trade or erprise in which the Burman leads the way.

The prospects for Christianity are fairly enraging. Buddhists are not quick to accept Gospel, but they are free from caste, which uch a hindrance in India, and they are most rteous and willing to hear the Gospel ached. Street preaching and the circula- of tracts and Scriptures, together with ts from house to house to impress the ms of Christ and expound the truth are at sent the chief means of dealing with the ple. Schools, too, are found useful. Already encouraging number have been baptized. missions in Burma need more support.

W. R. W.

HE ANTI-SLAVERY CONGRESS announced for commencement of August at Lucerne, then put off frivolous pretext, has been again postponed. inal Lavigerie's proposals have met with little pathy on the Continent. Protestants have dised his methods, while adherents of the Romish rch, from whom he expected much, have rendered only slight support.

MORALITY IN LEGISLATION.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE International Congress of the British and Continental Federation, which was held at Geneva from Monday to Friday of last week, was in every sense an important gathering. The Federation exists to offer resolute opposition to any law, licence, or regulation, in any country the world over, which countenances, or permits, or makes terms with public immorality; and the fact that last week's Congress was the fifth triennial gathering of its kind proves that the Federation is an old and experienced champion against this form of vice.

The people who assembled at this Congress were many of them strangely significant and suggestive; for example, from Holland the head of the police, whose duty it is to carry out the system of Government licensing of vice (M. Schermbeek), came to publicly denounce that system; and in this he was accompanied and supported by Dr. Swinderen, the chief judge in the Dutch town of Groningen. Then, also, there were pronounced Socialists, Church of England clergymen, Agnostics from France and other places, and every section of English and Scotch Dissenting ministers and church members, all uniting shoulder to shoulder to combat and destroy this one form of legislative iniquity. And what is, perhaps, even more gratifying, was the presence of Mr. D. Naoriji as the acknowledged representative of the native population of India—people who have very little knowledge of Christianity, but are yet keenly sensitive of the immorality of the Cantonments Act as it is worked by the professedly Christian Government of England.

The Federation has a broad basis, as is shown by the fact that duly appointed delegates from branches were sent to the Congress from Great Britain, America, Belgium, Denmark, France, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, India, Italy, and Russia. M. Emile de Laveleye, the well-known political economist of Liège, presided, and around him were gathered representatives of the wealth, religion, morality, and legislation of the various countries. Professor Stuart, M.P., Mr. H. J. Wilson, M.P., and Mr. Walter McLaren, M.P., were present, and a large number of doctors, and professors in the Universities of the Continent. Others in official capacities took part.

Among the reports of work done by the branches throughout Europe some startling facts were mentioned. Professor Stoukowenkoff, of the University of Kieff, Russia, who is a specialist in the maladies that follow vice, read a paper criticising the Government regulation of vice in Russia, and condemned it as wholly ineffective. Another important paper was read by Professor Chanfleury, who, after administering the regulation system for some years, pronounces it useless, and proposes the substitution of voluntary dispensaries. Dr. Pelizzari, of Pisa, secretary to the Italian Governmental Commission which examined this subject, gave an account of the labours of that Commission, which terminated in the abolition throughout Italy of the regulation of vice and the registration of women who practise it. From Holland, M. Pierson contributed a report, which was one of the most important documents submitted to the Congress. He showed by facts that, as a result of the International Congress of the Federation, which was held at the Hague some years back, both the ladies of Holland, who had previously been quite unaccustomed to public work, and the ministers, who had been quiescent on this subject, had developed the most astonishing activity of organisation, and were contesting the question with the municipal authorities, and doing their utmost to secure a repeal of the system. A midnight mission had also been formed in many large towns, the members of which patroled streets of the lower order at night, and brought moral suasion to bear upon those who were practising or were tempted to practise vice.

Geneva contributed a powerful proof of activity. About a year ago, the ladies of the city resolved to petition the Government to abolish the licensing of houses of accommodation, and in a very short period the enormous number of 21,000 signatures was obtained, or one in five of the entire population. In private conversation a party of these ladies gave a most interesting account of the way the signatures were collected. Ladies of leisure would patrol the streets all day, the petition in one hand, and pen and ink in other, and solicited signatures from the public. In the evening, scores of other workers, who had been engaged all day in other business, came to swell the ranks, and from shop to shop, and house to house, this army of workers gathered in the names of supporters of the agitation. But, notwithstanding the large number of petitioners, the Government have not yet taken action, and it may be that one of the most immediate results of last week's congress will be the presentation of a second petition to the Government, in which case the number of signatures will be greatly enhanced.

The legislative section of the Congress passed resolutions in favour of an International League for suppressing immoral traffic in young women, and for returning to their own country minors who had become immoral.

Mr. W. A. Coote, the Secretary of the National Vigilance Association, 267, Strand, W.C., speaking as a delegate gave an interesting and important résumé of the work of his committee in rendering succour to oppressed young women, and in prosecuting the publishers of obscene literature and pictures. His address created a significant impression, especially on the Genovese.

On Friday night a great public meeting was held in the Hall of the Reformation, which was crowded to excess.

CANADIAN INDIANS.—The Bishop of Rupertsland recently made a lengthened tour amongst several of the principal Indian mission stations in the far North-West of Canada. He visited the C.M.S. stations at Fairford, at Lac Seul, and at Islington. In all these he found the spiritual condition of the converts to be very satisfactory. Their knowledge of Divine things has distinctly advanced, and they seem to have reached a higher level of spiritual life than was perceptible on any of his former visits. At the last-named place, Islington, there resides a very remarkable chief, David Landon. It was this man who risked the loss of his position as chief rather than attend a Government Council on the Sabbath, and who, two years ago, kept up the services during a whole winter, during which the missionary was working in another field. He also organised a Missionary Society amongst his people, sending his young men out, two by two, to preach the Gospel to the heathen beyond him.

BISHOP TAYLOR'S AFRICAN MISSION.—Writing on May 18, from St. Paul de Loanda, to The African News, Bishop Taylor says:—"Our people in Angola are generally well, and hard at work. Brother C. M. McLean, who has been healthy and hard at work here for over four years, and his sick wife, who has been here over two years, sailed for New York on the 16th inst. Brother Wm. P. Dodson, a holy young man, also here over four years, and every way reliable, holds the fort in Loanda Station, but needs the assistance of a good man and wife from America. We have to begin at the bottom in a barbarous country like this, and it requires good, patient, holy school teachers. Dodson now preaches in the Portuguese and the native Umbundu languages. He, and others of our faithful men, women, and children at the front, have translated a number of our charming hymns into the Umbundu, and are teaching the heathen to sing the songs of salvation. Our work has suffered here by the abrupt departure of so many of our workers, on account of sickness, but the field is immense and important. We are hoping for recruits of true men and women for Angola from America in July." The African News is the organ of Bishop Taylor's self-supporting Missions, and is published by Messrs. Welch & Son, Vineland, New Jersey, U.S.A.

Y.M.C.A. WORK IN EUROPE.

Mons. C. Fermaud, the secretary of the International Y.M.C.A. Committee, whose headquarters are at Geneva, has recently been visiting Great Britain in connection with the British Y.M.C.A. Conference at Dublin. Bright, sympathetic, and consecrated to the Lord's work, speaking five Continental languages fluently, and well advanced in a sixth, M. Fermaud is eminently fitted for the position he fills.

Speaking at a young men's meeting in the Y.M.C.A. at Aldersgate-street, he said that the work on the Continent of Europe is developing. A few years ago there was not one stipendiary secretary set apart for the work; in June last the first Continental General Secretaries' Conference was held, when eight of these officers were present; now there are twenty secretaries whose whole time is devoted to the Association. The Continent is divided into three groups:—Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Greek Church. There are Associations in every country but Greece. In 1878 there were no Associations in Denmark, now there are eighty. In Sweden and Norway there were none a few years ago. Between four and five years ago he visited Sweden. He was introduced to some officers of the army, and, being himself an officer in the Swiss service, he soon found himself en rapport with his new friends. Through the instrumentality of his brother-in-law, a clergyman, a meeting was gathered, to which these officers and others were invited; the method of work amongst young men was explained, and an Association was formed on the spot. In the course of two years the work had so developed that the friends at Stockholm suggested that the next International Conference should be held in that city. M. Fermaud visited Stockholm to ascertain if it would be desirable to entertain the proposal. He interviewed the Bishop of Upsala, and enjoyed the honour of an audience of H.M. the King of Sweden on the subject. The proposal found marked favour, and last year the Conference was held in due course with abundant success. It has tended greatly to develop and strengthen the work throughout the Scandinavian countries. M. Fermaud gave an interesting and detailed account of his interview with King Oscar.

Contrasted strongly with the brightness and facility of these negociations was his account of Y.M.C.A. efforts in Spain and Austria, both countries involved in the gross darkness of Popery. In Vienna, his first meeting, in 1885, was proscribed by the police authorities, and when eventually the gathering was sanctioned it was on the condition that all apprentices, all students, and all soldiers should be excluded, and that at this and every subsequent meeting a police officer should be present to take notes.

In Spain there are whole provinces where no Protestant is permitted to live. One morning a milliner who had become a Protestant found that all her employées had deserted her by the commands of the priests. The functionary in Madrid corresponding to the Speaker in the English House of Commons, through fear of the Roman Catholic priests, had refused to lease a residence belonging to him to a Protestant pastor.

In Madrid, notwithstanding, Bible-classes in connection with the Y.M.C.A., are held, educational classes have been established, and social and Gospel meetings are held.

M. Fermaud gave a detailed account of a visit to one of the villages in Andalusia, where he learned that a Protestant church had been formed. He found the few inhabitants were agricultural labourers. One of these while working in a field adjoining the road had purchased a Protestant Bible from a colporteur. When he first took it into his hands he trembled from head to foot, remembering the awful consequences threatened as the result by the priest. He took it home, however, and read it, and received the truth concerning salvation through faith in Christ; he taught his wife and children; he then lent it to a neighbour. This man also became a disciple. The light and blessing spread from one to another, until a little church was formed entirely on Scriptural principles, without any outside aid from pastor or missionary, the two first-named men being appointed elders and teachers; the members, twenty to thirty in number, did not know that it was a Protestant church until they were informed by the first visitor who happened to become acquainted with them in passing through.

M. Fermaud told, amongst other touching little incidents, how at the close of each of their Sunday services a collecting bag was passed round, and out of their extreme poverty every member of the congregation placed some coin in the purse; the object of the collection was the support of a missionary in South Africa!

In conclusion, M. Fermaud gave some encouraging information about work in Italy, in connection with which the second National Y.M.C.A. Conference has just been held in Turin.

TRAINING FOR WORKERS.

In a circular recently issued, Mr. Moody says:—"A foremost demand of our day is that of a training school for Christian workers, where they can learn how to do good work for God, and put their knowledge and skill to the test of doing it. Our colleges and theological seminaries do not wholly meet this want. They turn out leaders, captains of the Lord's host, fitted to plan and lead the campaign; but, hundreds of volunteers and raw recruits have no time nor money for the full course of education, but want to get ready for the humbler, but quite as needful, work of the common private in the ranks.

"Those who have but one talent, as well as those who have ten, must be taught how to use it for the Lord. To help to meet this need, a training school for both men and women will open in Chicago, September 26, and continue without a break the year through. All students who bring certificates of membership in some evangelical church, and of good character, who wish to prepare themselves to be of service, may join the classes without charge, except for board, which will cost from four to six dollars a week.

"Every morning will be spent in study under the best trainers that can be had in this country or over the sea. The afternoons will be spent in visits from house to house; the evenings, in Gospel meetings of various sorts. The main object of this evangelistic 'training school' is to give the best practical instruction in the English Bible, and in all that has to do with mission work of every kind.

"Much attention will be paid to music as a great help in reaching souls. Chicago and the neighbourhood offer a grand field for actual work among the masses of the people, and here workers may put to the proof their willingness and fitness to serve God and souls. Applications by intending students (with the specified certificates and information as to needs and purposes) must be made to Mr. F. G. Ensign, 154, Madison-street, Chicago, U.S.A.

AUSTRALIAN ABORIGINES. — Rev. J. B. Gribble writes to us from Temora, N.S.W., Australia, with reference to the recent correction by Dr. Steel, of Sydney, of his figures estimating the number of surviving aboriginals. On referring to Mr. Gribble's letter, in which the original statement was made, we find that his words were:—"In this great southern land there are about 200,000 Aborigines remaining." Dr. Steel and others have evidently been of the opinion that by "this great southern land" was meant New South Wales, whereas it is clear that Mr. Gribble meant by the words to designate the southern continent of Australia. In that view his statement therefore seems to have been perfectly correct.

Letters to the Editor.

CHAPLAINS AND ARMY SCRIPTURE READERS.

Sir,—In reply to your Southampton correspondent's letter in The Christian of Sept. 6, it appears to me to be absurd to talk of "Church Discipline, or spiritual control," in 1889. Considering the undisguised way in which the law is disobeyed by bishops, and very many others in that section of the Church in England which is at present by law "established," at a time also when humble believers in the Word of God are mourning the modern innovations of man's devising, such as the "Reredos," the millinery and the posturing of the "priest," and the many Popish practices openly adopted, year after year, at home and abroad, in garrison chapels and elsewhere, by chaplains and a multitude of other men like-minded.

(2) As regards the confidence between the Scripture-reader and the chaplain, I remember well one Scripture-reader, in particular, saying to me actually with tears in his eyes, "Let me serve under any Christian officer, or committee of officers, or under the Presbyterian chaplain, but I can't get on with the Episcopal chaplain." And, if asked why there are so few Scripture-readers between Peshawur and Cape Comorin, I unhesitatingly say it is because few men can conscientiously serve under the ordinary Episcopal chaplain.

(3) I fully concur in what a well-known Christian officer not long ago said to me of the Army Scripture Readers' Society—viz., that it is one of compromise; and, with the many I believe that very many of "the chaplains in the army are teaching doctrines contrary to the Word of God, and I also have the painful conviction that too often the chaplain thinks more of his authority and dignity, and the teachings of what he calls "the Church," than God's gift to proud man and eternal life through Christ Jesus the one Saviour. In time (mercifully) past how often have I been sickened by hearing chaplains' utterances of "the teaching of our beloved Church of England"—not of Him who was "God manifest in the flesh."

Droitwich. G. G. A.

"THE SCAPEGOAT."

Dear Sir,—In reference to the article on "The Scapegoat" in The Christian of Sept. 6, permit me to ask a few questions, which some one of your numerous correspondents may be good enough to answer.

First: When it is said in Lev. xvi. 5, "And he shall take of the congregation of the children of Israel two kids of the goats for a sin-offering; and in ver. 7, "And he shall take the two goats and present them before Jehovah at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation"—are not the two goats associated and identified in the one sin-offering?

Second: Is it not stated ver. 10, "But the goat on which the lot fell to be the scapegoat, shall be presented alive before Jehovah, to make an atonement with him"? How is it, then, your correspondent says in reference to this same goat, "could no longer have anything to do with atonement"?

Third: The Authorised Version renders it, "to make an atonement with him," that is, with the second goat; but your correspondent states that this goat "may be viewed...as a type of Satan." In what state, or in what manner is atonement made with Satan?

Fourth: The Revised Version renders ver. 10 thus, "But the goat, on which the lot fell for Azazel, shall be set alive before the Lord, to make atonement for [margin "over"] him." Here Azazel is adopted in the text as a proper name which your correspondent informs us means the devil and Satan. Is, then, atonement made for Satan, and over Satan, and how?

Fifth: Your correspondent states, "Azazel figures here as the prince of the wilderness, for thither the goat was sent to him;" but he says elsewhere "Azazel's goat may be viewed as a type of Satan." How is Satan sent to Satan? See Luke xi. 18.

Yours truly, Thomas Newberry.

Alexandra Villa, Weston-super-Mare.

The first part of an illustrated serial edition of [illegible] Cunningham Geikie's Holy Land and the Bible [illegible] be published on the 26th inst. by Messrs. Cassell & [illegible] The designs for the illustrations have been executed [illegible] Mr. Henry A. Harper, of the Palestine Exploration Fund, who has spent several years in the East preparing drawings for the work.

Obituary.

MR. GOODERHAM, TORONTO.

WE hear with deep regret of the sudden death f Mr. Gooderham, of Toronto, Canada. He was ttending a meeting at his "Haven" for fallen omen. In accordance with his custom, he rose to ffer prayer, when he suddenly fell back dead. Mr. ooderham's death is generally deplored as a public ss. He was possessed of great wealth, and most f the religious and philanthropic institutions of he country found in him a generous friend.

MR. HENRY FRANCIS BOWKER.

The mortal remains of this well-known Christian ere laid to rest in Kensal Green Cemetery on Thurs- ay afternoon last week, beside those of his first ife, who died many years since. He had entered pon his eightieth year. During the spring of this ear he had an accident which greatly shook him, nd this is now seen to have been the probable use of later developments of illness. At the me he made light of it, and would hardly take e rest which the circumstances demanded. But, ough he tried to reassure his friends, they could t but regard with anxiety the effect of such a ock upon an octogenarian. Later in the spring the year evidences of internal disorder were anifest, and these were followed by partial ralysis of the throat, so that he was quite unequal any public speaking at the recent Convention. e was taken for a time to the seaside home of his ughter, in Yorkshire, whence, much refreshed, he ent on to Keswick, and thence to the house of his tached friend, Thomas Lancaster, of Amberley, ar Stroud, whither it had been Mr. Bowker's cus- m of late years to resort, and where everything that nerous affection and solicitude could devise was ne for him. He was refreshed in body and spirit this last visit to his old friend; but he had only ined strength for his journey home, and, after a w weeks of increasing debility, the end came on nday week, and he entered, with but little suffer- g, into the joy of his Lord. In our next issue we pe to give a portrait and sketch of the active life our departed friend.

LADY LILIAS SHERBROOKE.

"Immediately He putteth in the sickle, because e harvest is ripe."

Thus alone can we reconcile to our minds the ange, unnatural shock that almost staggers th, when a beautiful life, consecrated by early votion to Christ and being spent in his blessed rvice, is cut off in its earliest prime, and

> Death, a backward course doth hold,
> And smites the young and spares the old.

Such a life has just passed away from amongst us, at midnight of September 5 Lady Lilias Sher- ooke heard the heavenly summons, and with peace her heart and peace on her lips, she left the happy me circle, of which she was at once the centre d the crown, and went forth to meet her Lord.

From her earliest childhood she responded to careful Christian training of her devoted mo- er, and her character formed itself on the model her father's, the noble and rarely gifted first rl Cairns, of blessed memory. She was like him face as well as in mind, and his companionship, which she delighted, enriched her thoughts and veloped her talents, for he possessed in a re- rkable degree that quality, often found com- ed with the highest intellect, which can bring eat truths within the grasp, and give lucid expla- ion of difficult problems, to younger or less tructed minds. From him, as well as from her ther, she learnt those clear evangelical and ritually-Protestant principles from which she er wavered.

had known her from her childhood; but it s not until she was in her fifteenth year that personal friendship began between us, which never waned, and which, blessed be God! for eternity. At a roadside station in Scot- d I was detained waiting for a train, and d just begun to beguile the time by reading my New Testament, when I was joined by ias Cairns (detained by the same cause), the y picture of sunny youth—blue eyes, fair hair, eks like roses, and lips all smiles. Seating self beside me, she asked if she might share my reading. Then, when, in response to my ghted welcome, we read together, she showed he reverence of her demeanour, and the look of p interest in her face, that the Word of God indeed precious to her. By its holy precepts was seeking to guide her young life, and its ious promises were even then the treasure of heart.

Whilst still in her girlhood she married the Rev. H. Nevile Sherbrooke, Incumbent of Portman Chapel, well known for his steadfast Christian character and earnest work for his Divine Master, first as an officer in the army, and afterwards as a clergyman in the Church of England. In her new life her character shone with a fresh lustre, for to the brightness and energy of youth she seemed to add, before her time, the wisdom and tenderness of age. She was her husband's right hand, his trusted friend and counsellor, not alone in home matters, but in all the various concerns of the large district of which he was in charge; he found her "ready for every good work," both amongst her richer and her poorer neighbours. She was a wise, tender, and devoted mother, and yet, whilst new duties, new interests, and new ties, rapidly multiplied around her, she continued to cling with as great love as ever to the old ties of father, mother, brothers, and sister.

So the happy, useful, purposeful life went on, year after year adding to her blessedness, and bringing her fresh opportunities of influence throughout an ever-widening circle. Looking back over her daughter's brief life, Lady Cairns wrote thus:—"In so many ways she resembled her beloved father, in his power, his purpose, his faithfulness. As a wife, mother, child, sister, friend, worker, she was always devoted and self-forgetting." During last spring and summer she was more busily occupied than ever. The illnesses of some of her children, and of other beloved ones, gave her much anxiety and unavoidable fatigue. But her spirit and courage always rose with the occasion, and it was impossible to get her to see the need of laying aside any of the work she had undertaken. There was no sign to indicate danger or create alarm, but the seeds of that deadly malady, typhoid fever, had already implanted themselves in her constitution, and, little as it seemed possible, yet her race was almost run.

On August 23 a little daughter was born, to add to the full cup of her parents' happiness in the goodly family of boys and girls springing up around them. Who that reads this will not lift up the heart in prayer for the stricken mourners, and especially for the motherless children, asking of God that the whole family may be reunited in the heavenly home? For a few days the fever was kept in abeyance, but then it took the alarming form of pleuro-pneumonia, and her life was in imminent danger.

At her own request her former doctor at Bournemouth was sent for, to hold a consultation with the doctors in attendance. Doubtless she was fain to live for the sake of her devoted husband, and of all those she loved, and that her new-born child should be spared the sad doom of growing up without ever knowing a mother's sheltering love. She also requested that her family and some of her friends should be summoned. She longed for even one more sight of them, and most of all of their mother. But this was not to be—and no human skill could avail even to delay that fast ebbing tide. In the midst of her sufferings her one desire was for patience, and her tender Saviour would not let her continue in the furnace. So, watched over by her now desolate husband, she fell asleep in her Saviour's arms, even before her bereaved mother could reach her side for one farewell look or word of love.

> Swift to its close ebbed out life's little day,

But amidst these shades of sorrow we see, as through a vista, the joyful entrance of this sweet saint into the heavenly land—into the presence of the King Eternal. We can almost hear the welcome of her honoured Father to his beloved child. And even those most deeply bereaved as they follow her in thought within the Veil would scarcely wish to recall her, desolate though their home is without her.

> Our beloved have departed,
> While we tarry broken-hearted,
> In the dreary darkened house.
> They have ended life's brief story,
> They have reached the home of glory,
> Over death victorious.

Sept. 10. C. M.

CHINA INLAND MISSION.—We are asked to say that there is immediate need for two or three competent teachers (who must be earnest Christian men) in the China Inland Mission Boys' School, at Chefoo. This school is known as the Chefoo Protestant Collegiate School, and is available for the sons of missionaries and merchants. Its design is to provide in China all the advantages of a high-class classical or commercial education. Application should be made to the Secretary of the China Inland Mission 4 Pyrland-road London, N.

Personalia.

Mr. H. M. Stanley, according to the latest intelligence, is expected to reach the eastern coast of Africa towards the end of October next.

Mr. Thomas Edison, the American inventor, who has recently paid a visit to Paris, has given 10,000 francs for distribution among the poor of the city.

Mr. Spurgeon's health lately has not been at all good, and, fearing a return of his old disorder, he has decided to leave this year for Mentone earlier than he at first intended—probably about the middle of October.

Mr. W. H. Whitehead, the Gospel temperance singing evangelist, of Manchester, will leave England at the end of October, after a farewell visit to London, from October 7 to 14. He expects to open his mission under the auspices of Dr. Cuyler, in Brooklyn, at the beginning of November. He will then proceed, viâ Canada, Chicago, &c., to San Francisco. Y.M.C.A. and temperance friends on the Southern Pacific route may address him care of Mr. J. N. Stearns, National Temperance Society, 58, Reade-street, New York.

The German Emperor, in sending his best thanks to the Bible Society for the copy of the Holy Scriptures and the address recently presented to his Majesty, intimates that he has ordered the annual subscription of £25, so long contributed by the Emperor William I. to the Society, in consideration of its work in furnishing the Royal Prussian army with the Scriptures in several tongues, to continue to be paid out of the Imperial Privy Purse as in the past. The Emperor Frederick had just given similar instructions during the short period of his rule.

Mr. J. J. Atkinson.—As our readers are aware, this tried and faithful servant of the Y.M.C.A., who filled the office of secretary at the Islington and Highbury branch for nearly thirty years, has now retired on account of failing health. We are very glad to know that the friends of the work are raising an annuity fund, so that his declining days may be made comfortable. Mr. Geo. Williams has contributed £100 to the fund. Doubtless many who in times past have received benefit from Mr. Atkinson's Christian counsel, and who are now filling responsible positions in different parts of the world, will be glad to join in this tribute of esteem. The hon. sec. of the fund is Mr. G. T. Keele, 81, St. Paul's-road, Highbury, London, N.

AN ALPHABET OF CHARACTER.—Every disciple of Christ should be amiable, benign, cheerful, devout, enduring, faithful, gentle, holy, innocent, just, kind, loving, meek, noble, obliging, pure and peaceful, righteous, spiritual, truthful, useful, virtuous, wise, Xtn (a Christian) indeed, or X (Christ)-like, yielding to God, and zealous to do his will. G. K.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on special services, commencing on Sunday next, to be conducted by Mr. James Jones, at the Pontynewdd branch of Mr. T. M. Wintle's Undenominational Christian Mission, Pontymoile, Mon.——For blessing on a special mission at the Gospel Hall, Kingston-on-Thames, conducted by Mr. J. Connor, to Sept. 30.——For blessing on a week's meetings in Wellington Church, Hawick, commencing on Sept. 29, by Rev. G. G. Macmillan, Cabrach.——For blessing on missions to be held by Mr. J. S. Harrison, at Whitechapel, Canonbury, King's Cross, and Bath.——For blessing on a special Gospel mission at Bovey-Tracey, commencing on Sunday next.

THE SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY carries on a large work. It takes the Gospel to the numerous Indian tribes in South America; provides pastoral oversight for many communities of English-speaking people, also for sailors frequenting the harbours; and promotes evangelistic endeavour among the native population, mostly Roman Catholic, speaking Spanish and Portuguese. Rev. R. J. Simpson, secretary, referring to a recent article in our columns on "The Claims of Chili," writes: "We rejoice to find our American cousins working side by side with us in the same great and blessed cause, and we are conscious with them of the immensity of work still to be done. We ask their prayers, as we offer ours for them, that God may bless our joint efforts for the faith of the Gospel of Christ."

THE WALDENSIAN BI-CENTENARY.

THE "glorious return" of the Waldenses, two centuries ago, to the valleys of Piedmont, has been commemorated with great rejoicings. The anniversary was eminently worthy of celebration, and the celebration was nothing less than a tribute of heart-felt praise to God who enabled the exiles, under the heroic leadership of Henri Arnaud, to fight their way back to their native valleys and compel the dukes of Savoy to accord toleration to their evangelical creed and worship.

The commemoration proceedings were well planned to recall the very interesting events of history. The "glorious return" was the return of persecuted Christian men from the inhospitable mountains of exile to the valleys from which, by the tyranny of Rome and her instruments, they had been cruelly banished. Determined to regain their native homes, 800 Waldenses, all who survived of the thousands that had been driven forth, banded themselves together, and, on August 16, 1689, set forth from Prangino, on the Lake of Geneva, to cross the terrible Alps and win back their valleys, or die in attempting to secure them. The celebration included a "rehearsal" of this hazardous journey by a number of brave young men, who, completing their task just at the time of the great victory two centuries ago, arrived on the morning of August 27, at Balsiglia, where a congregation of some three thousand persons, including Christians from many lands, heartily cheered them, and shed tears of joy over the thrilling associations of the day.

Balsiglia lies 5000 feet above the sea, and about 3000 above Perosa. Being the first Waldensian village, it was fitting that the initial celebration should be held there. After prayer by Mr. Turin, of Genoa, Ps. xlvi. ("God is our refuge and strength") was sung, and Matt. v. read. Mr. Geymonat, of Florence, in an eloquent address, contrasted 1689 with 1889. His words of hearty welcome to the many foreigners assembled were very touching. Subsequently he spoke on Ps. cxliv. 15, maintaining that the Waldenses have been, and are, a happy people enjoying the favour of God. After other addresses, Pastor Peyrot, of Augrogna, delivered a speech. In words of living power, he told the story of Waldensian suffering and triumph. The enthusiasm excited was remarkable, affecting even those strangers who could but imperfectly follow the speaker's flowing French. M. Appia, of Paris, Rev. Mr. Clarke, moderator of the Irish Assembly, and Dr. Matthews, secretary of the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance, also spoke, and it was felt that a great occasion had been admirably improved.

On succeeding days many other commemorative meetings were held in various towns and villages, including the inauguration of a Church House and Synod Hall, at Torre Pellice. At this the king of Italy, whose warm sympathy with the loyal Waldenses has been repeatedly shown of late, was represented by the Prefect of Turin.

THE NORTHFIELD STUDENTS' CONFERENCE.—"A British Delegate" sends a sketch of this recent gathering to The British Weekly. He says:—"The foreign delegates were much impressed by the zeal and enthusiasm displayed by the American students. If they took back much with them, of this I am sure, that they also gave much, and that we of the British delegates returned from Northfield enriched in many ways by our stay there. Now we are back at our own colleges, and we cannot doubt that the outcome of this Conference will be that our work at home will receive a distinct impetus, and our methods be greatly increased in efficiency. And if, in the coming winter, we enter on our various spheres of service with the zeal and enthusiasm of our American fellow-students, we shall feel that our visit to Northfield has not been unproductive of fruit."

THE PATNA CASE.

SIR,—Considerable feeling has been awakened in many missionary circles in Northern India by what is known as "The Patna Case." A girl of tender years was made over by her mother for pecuniary considerations to a man, to be one of his mistresses. This girl and a woman who was the acknowledged kept mistress of the man, in the middle of October last, left the house of the man with the desire of leaving their evil life, and found refuge with a lady zenana missionary, Miss Abraham. The man and the mother of the girl prosecuted Miss Abraham for detaining the girl for "an unlawful purpose," and alleged that the girl was married to the man. The case was taken up with great earnestness by Mr. Dyer, a gentleman well known in England in connection with the Gospel Purity Association, who was able to prove, on appeal to the High Court, that the magistrate had acted without jurisdiction, and had no legal power to take the girl from Miss Abraham's care and to hand her back to her mother and alleged husband by the section of the Criminal Procedure Code under which the case was brought. The Court of Appeal declined, however, to reverse the order of the magistrate. Hence a great wrong, as most of us believe, has been done, and left, as it appears, without remedy.

There is something very mysterious to us laymen in the action of the Court of Appeal, for the Court refused to hear counsel on the evidence taken by the magistrate, and yet in the judgment the evidence is dealt with at length, and the decision largely based upon it. The magistrate is said not to have had jurisdiction; the evidence he took had, therefore, no legal value; yet, though counsel was refused a hearing on the evidence, the Court, apparently, accepted the evidence as valid. The missionaries, as a body, have not taken action in the matter till recently, as Mr. Dyer was attending to it. Unhappily, as some of us think, Mr. Dyer used very violent language regarding the magistrates and judges, and the authorities generally, which has, I fear, diverted attention from the graver matters concerned, and prejudiced the public mind.

The Calcutta Missionary Conference appointed a sub-committee a few weeks ago to inquire fully into the case. The result is the adoption of a memorial to the Governor-General of India, asking that steps may be taken to remedy the wrong which has been done. The main point insisted on is that, through the mistake of the responsible officer of the Government, there has been a miscarriage of justice, and the Government should take steps to undo the wrong. Kindly publish in your paper the memorial, of which I send you a copy.

Yours faithfully, GEO. KERRY.

Baptist Mission House,
Intally, Calcutta, Aug. 22.

COPY OF THE MEMORIAL.

To His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India in Council.

THE MEMORIAL OF THE CALCUTTA MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

RESPECTFULLY SHEWETH,

I. That your memorialists have watched with the deepest interest the progress of what is known as "The Patna Case" in which Miss Abraham, a zenana missionary, residing at Patna, was prosecuted under section 551 of the Criminal Procedure Code for the detention of a girl for an unlawful purpose.

II. The facts of the case your memorialists believe are as follow:—

(1) A girl widow, named Lutchmin, was made over by her mother, Mahtabo, a poor woman, to a man named Radha Kissen, living at Patna, who had at least one woman named Sundari of loose character living in his house as his kept mistress. In the middle of October last Lutchmin and Sundari went to Miss Abraham, who gave them shelter.

(2) Proceedings were commenced against Miss Abraham, in the first place, for abducting Lutchmin; but for some reason or other they were dropped. Radha Kissen then, in conjunction with Mahtabo, instituted proceedings in the Court of the Magistrate of Patna, against Miss Abraham under Section 551 of the Criminal Procedure Code for detaining the girl for an unlawful purpose. It was alleged that the girl was under fourteen years of age, and that she was the married wife of Radha Kissen. It was contended for Miss Abraham that the girl was over fourteen years of age, had not been married to Radha Kissen, and was not unlawfully detained for an unlawful purpose; but that she had left the house and protection of Radha Kissen of her own free will in order to give up the life she was leading. The proceedings ended with the magistrate ordering the girl to be restored, with Radha Kissen's consent, to her mother. Application was made to the magistrate, requesting him to suspend the execution of his order pending an appeal to the High Court. But the magistrate rejected the application.

(3) An appeal against the decision of the magistrate was carried to the High Court, Calcutta, and was heard by Mr. Justice Mitter and Mr. Justice Macpherson who, on March 28, in their judgment declared that the magistrate had no jurisdiction to make the order; but they declined to restore the state of things existing before.

III. It is therefore clear that the magistrate had no jurisdiction in this case under Section 551 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and that the order he made for the delivery of the girl to her mother was ultra vires. Indeed Section 551 was intended to protect female children from being detained for unlawful purposes, and its application by the magistrate to this case amounted to a declaration that it was unlawful under British rule to instruct a Hindu child in the Christian religion. There was thus not only a miscarriage of justice, but a cruel wrong was done to the girl who, as the result of the magistrate's illegal order, and of his refusal to suspend its execution, was once more, against her will, and by force used in open court, consigned, and if the High Court's view of its powers be accepted, irremediably consigned, as your memorialists believe, to a life of infamy.

Your memorialists respectfully submit that the error of the magistrate was not simply an error of law, but an error fraught with most serious moral consequences, which even the highest court in the land is professedly powerless to remedy.

IV. Then as regards the appeal to the High Court your memorialists submit, that while the appeal was being heard, the Court, presided over by Mr. Justice Mitter, ruled that it could not go into the evidence which had been recorded in the Magistrate's Court at Patna, inasmuch as the proceedings were taken without jurisdiction. In consequence of this ruling, the counsel supporting the appeal was precluded from going into the evidence as he otherwise would have done. Notwithstanding this ruling, the judgment of the Court is largely based upon the evidence recorded. The judgment states:—"The magistrate took evidence and found that the girl was under fourteen years of age." "No facts were established which would disentitle the husband or mother to the charge of the girl." "There is ample evidence to support his conclusions." "The magistrate found on ample evidence that there was a marriage." It appears to your memorialists a matter of great regret that the appellant's counsel was prevented from dealing with the evidence by the ruling of the Court when in the judgment so much is made of that evidence; for had opportunity been given, it might have been shown, as indeed the counsel undertook to show, that neither Radha Kissen nor the mother was a proper person to have charge of the girl. It is also important to note that the judgment does not disclose any reason why the honourable judges, after their emphatic ruling in the course of the hearing of the appeal that the evidence could not be looked into, should have at last practically taken a different view and proceeded to judgment without first giving the appellant's counsel the opportunity of commenting on the evidence, which had been refused to him.

V. If the above view is correct your memorialists respectfully submit that the Government whose responsible officer made the fatal mistake of returning a helpless girl forcibly, as your memorialists believe, to a life of shame, may be expected to take all possible measures to undo the wrong which has been done. Your memorialists do not believe that Your Excellency in Council can be indifferent to the misery and degradation of a poor girl who tried to escape from her life of shame, and failed in her effort because of the illegal action of a magistrate who misunderstood the law which he was expected to administer, and made his action apparently irremediable by refusing to suspend the execution of his order pending appeal, when it was clear from the facts before him that no possible harm could have resulted from a temporary suspension of his order.

VI. Your memorialists are gratified to learn from the judgment of the Court of Appeal that Section 551 of the Criminal Procedure Code cannot be used in the future as an instrument for the infliction of lasting ruin on girls who may try to escape from an infamous mode of life; and your memorialists humbly trust and pray that Your Excellency in Council will take such step as may seem right for remedying the great wrong which has been done in the case now brought to the notice of Your Excellency in Council.

And your memorialists will ever pray.

W. MILNE, Chairman.
K. S. MACDONALD,
Secretary to the Calcutta Missionary Conference.

FOLKESTONE.—DEAR SIR,—We find it necessary to ask you to state in your columns that the "Home of Love," conducted by Henry James Allen, no longer exists; that he has left Folkestone, and that no further subscriptions should be sent.—Yours truly, A. J. PALMER.

MARTIN HENRY,
Folkestone. Hon. Sec. Y.M.C.A.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 22.—1 Samuel XIII.

THE chronological difficulty in ver. 1 is variously explained. Dr. Blaikie suggests that two words have probably dropped out of the original text, and reads, "Saul was forty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned thirty-two years over Israel." Considering that Jonathan was old enough to take an important part in the war, this suggestion is more probable than that of the Revised Version. Adding the seven years of Ishbosheth's reign to that of Saul, we get the (about) forty years of Acts xiii. 21.

Israel's distress (1—7, 19—23).—The Philistines held strongholds in the lands, and their present distress was occasioned by Jonathan's valiant attack upon Geba—only a few miles from Gibeah (3, 4). The vast army of the Philistines (5) terrified the people (6), so that even the presence of their king could not relieve their fear (7). What could an unarmed host (19—22) do against such a multitude? If they did but know it, their very helplessness is their strength. The extremity of man's weakness is ever God's opportunity.

Saul's failure (8—10).—He was on his trial. The seven days' waiting is his time of testing. Active service is easier than quiet waiting, especially when distress seems so great that prompt action is urgently needed. Saul failed, first in not obeying God's command (8, 13); and next, in doing what God had not commanded. To sacrifice was no proper function of the king, and could not atone for his disobedience (xv. 22). At the root of his sin lay his unbelief. "He that believeth shall not make haste." He had not learned to "stand still, and see the salvation of God."

Samuel's reproof (11—14).—Saul is not yet deposed, but the kingdom cannot continue in his family (14). This was a grief to Saul when Jonathan had just proved himself so brave and skilful. See how a man's conduct affects others. As a king, his sin prevented the full triumph of his kingdom; and, as a father, he deprived his son of the prospect of the throne.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 23.—1 Samuel XIV.

At the beginning of this chapter the position of the two armies remains the same, The 600 men continue with Saul (xiv. 2; xiii. 15); while of the rest of the Israelites some have gone into the camp of the Philistines (21), and others are still hidden in caves (22). They are full of trembling, and but poorly equipped for the war (xiii. 7, 22). Before this chapter closes, the position of the two armies is changed. The host of the Philistines are seized with trembling and fearfulness (15), and are fleeing terror-stricken from before the victorious Israelites (21—23, 31).

Jonathan's valour (4—23).—It was this, not any act of Saul's, that changed defeat into victory. What could two men do against a garrison, with the whole Philistine army close by? But Jonathan did not reason so. "There is no restraint to the Lord to save by many or by few" (6). Leave the Lord out, and the enterprise was madness; but with Him in his right place it was highest prudence (Josh. xxiii. 10). The sign by which they were to be certified of God's favour (9, 10) was not meaningless. "We will come to you," was a threat of resolution; "Come you to us, was a challenge of fear."—Bishop Hall. This valiant attack suggests (1) That if God works with us it matters not how great the odds against us. One man with God on his side is always a majority (Rom. viii. 31). (2) Faith overcomes (1 John v. 4). The lack of this made Saul fearful and helpless. The possession of it gave Jonathan courage to dare, and strength to do.

Saul's foolish curse (24—52).—One remarkable feature about the character of Saul at this time was his increasing regard for the outward forms of religion (3, 18, 19, 24, 35, 37, 44). This is significant and instructive. Regard for the forms increases as the experience of the power of religion declines. The fast which he enjoined upon Israel (24) was a sad blunder. It made the victory over the Philistines less complete than it might have been (29—30); involved Jonathan in the guilt of unwittingly violating the oath (27—43); led the people into another sin (32—34); imperilled the life of Jonathan (44); and brought the people into conflict with their king, to his great dishonour (45). Contrast xi. 13 with xiv. 45.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24.—1 Samuel XV.

The Amalekites were old and cruel enemies of the Israelites, and sentence of extermination had long since been passed upon them (Exod. xvii.).

Note (1) Saul's sin (1—9).—The command given to him was a very terrible one (3). But God is righteous, even in his judgments (Gen. xviii. 25). The iniquity of this people was full—the harvest was ripe for the sickle. Israel's future peace and prosperity demanded their extermination. Saul's conduct reminds us that partial obedience is disobedience. Moreover, it was evidently not humanity, but pride that prompted the sparing of Agag—hence the monument which he set up in Carmel (12). And so, what was intended by God to be a solemn judgment upon a wicked nation, became a mere massacre for the sake of plunder.

(2) Saul's excuses (13—23) make his guilt the greater. There was something suspicious in his loud profession made as he met Samuel (13). It was an attempt to quiet an uneasy conscience, and to prevent the reproof which he feared. Sin always leaves some result to testify against the sinner (14). Both his excuses (15, 21) were false (19); and, even if true, were no justification of Saul's conduct. All attempts to excuse sin are foolish and futile.

(3) Samuel's reproof (10, 11, 17—23).—Samuel's grief was mingled with anger (11, R.V.); but before attempting to meet Saul he spent the night with God. Such a man is not afraid to reprove kings. His word in ver. 22 was twice quoted by our Lord (Matt. ix. 13; xii. 7), for it contains teaching valuable for all time. Conduct is more than ceremonial. No amount of sacrifice can be an excuse for a disobedient life. Even faith in the atoning sacrifice of Christ is valueless if it does not lead to obedience. And so Saul lost the kingdom (23), through rejecting the word of the Lord. Alas! that so many should be losing a better kingdom through the same sin.

Saul's conduct at the close of the chapter is despicable (24—35). Even his confession of sin is worthless (24).

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25.—1 Samuel XVI.

The two events of this chapter are:—

(1) The anointing of David (1—13).—Even in Samuel's day Bethlehem had some interesting associations (Gen. xxxv. 19 and Ruth). The birth of David, and still later of David's greater Son, gives it far greater interest to us. The king after God's own heart was found on the hills where the angel host afterwards celebrated the birth of Jesus. The feast is probably that referred to by David (xx. 6). Some such reason for his visit was required to save Samuel from the angry and jealous king. Samuel's mistake (6) was not unnatural. The best of men can but look on the outward appearance. The heart, not the appearance, is important in God's judgment (7). He finds his most useful servants among those whom men despise (1 Cor. i. 26—29). David was not thought worthy of a place at the feast (11). He was only a youth, yet he had been in good training for the kingdom. The work of a shepherd bears remarkable resemblance to that of a king. What the shepherd is to his sheep, that the king is to his flock (Jer. xiii. 20; Ps. lxviii. 70, 71). He who has been a good shepherd, fearing not to risk his life for his flock, will not make a bad king. So does God train us for a higher work by making us faithful in that which is least (Luke xvi. 10).

(2) David at the Court of Saul (14—23).—The providence of God begins at once to work towards giving effect to the call of David. His presence at the Court is needed as a further training for the office of king. The three links which bring this about are—the departure of the Spirit of God from Saul, and his consequent fits of madness (14); the skill of David in minstrelsy, by which such mental diseases might be relieved; and the knowledge which one of Saul's servants had of David (18). How mysteriously God works for the accomplishment of his purpose! Saul's condition in these verses is dreadful. The Spirit of God, whom he has so sadly grieved, has left him, and an evil spirit troubles him. Gloomy, fearful, dejected, mad—such he appears at times. Music only relieved temporarily; it could not cure a diseased mind. What a fearful thing it is to trifle with the Spirit of God! The darkest gloom succeeds in those who have rejected the clearest light.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26.—1 Samuel XVII.

The lessons of this chapter are many and interesting. I. The unanswered challenge (1—11).—The armies of the Philistines and the Israelites again confront each other, and are pitched on opposite sides of the valley of Elah (1—3). A challenge to single combat is given by Goliath of Gath, a giant over ten feet in height, of prodigious strength, and heavily armed (4—7). For forty days (16) the taunting challenge is repeated; and from Saul downwards there is not a man in the whole army of Israel willing to accept it. Vaunting "words" make them "dismayed and greatly afraid" (11). Such is the army of Israel when led by a God-forsaken king. Their failure is complete and humiliating.

II. The challenge accepted (12—37).—God introduces (1) an unlikely deliverer. For David was not thought worthy a place in the army (15). His brethren despised him (28), and they and Saul sought to discourage him (33). These experiences were useful; for, if he had not resolution enough to meet these discouragements, how could he hope to overcome so great an enemy? (2) God's providence introduces him to the battle.—Jesse had his reason for sending David upon that errand (17, 18); but God had another reason, of which Jesse did not dream. Was it only accident that he came and heard what was probably the last challenge (20, 21) before the two armies closed for deadly conflict? The distress of God's people did not move them to cry to Him, but it moved Him to work mysteriously for their deliverance. (3) He had the right spirit.—He noticed in the giant's challenge what others had overlooked. They heard the words: "I defy the armies of Israel" (10); and, as among the Israelites there was no man of equal size and strength, they feared. David heard more. To him the Philistine was defying "the armies of the living God" (26, 36). If the armies were powerless, the living God was not. Justly indignant at the dishonour done to God, David was willing to meet the champion in God's name. (4) He had been in training for such a combat (34—37).—His victory over the lion and the bear had taught him, not his own strength, but the strength of God. Much more than the lives of his flock was involved in this conflict; the lesser victory assures him of the greater.

III. The combat (38—54).—The armour of Saul was heavy and cumbered him (38, 39). He who fights God's battles must let God choose the weapons to be used. Saul's armour may not share with God the glory of this victory. When David laid it aside he left more room for God to work. His very appearance—with staff, and wallet, and sling—wounded the pride of the Philistine (40—43). The stone is hurled, it enters the giant's brow, and the despised youth has won the victory in the name of God (49—51). It was a representative victory, like that Christ won for his people. It was a victory of faith. In the spirit of it the weakest may repeat the act to-day (1 John v. 4, 5).

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.—1 Samuel XVIII.

David's victory won for him two things—viz., the friendship of Jonathan (1—4); and the jealous hatred of Saul (5—30). The second would have been intolerable, if it had not been for the sustaining power of the first. And perhaps the first would have elated him too much, if it had not been for the influence of the second. Both had their part in the development of his character.

David and Jonathan (1—4).—The world's history gives us no instance of true friendship more beautiful than this. Here it is commenced—all that Jonathan had to give—not only his robe and his weapons (4), but himself (1) was made over to David. See in it an illustration of the wondrous grace of Jesus in entering into friendship with us (John xv. 14, 15). Are not his robe and weapons ours? In the one we appear before God; with the other we are equipped before men.

Saul's jealous hatred (5—30).—This arose from the songs of the women (6—9); and was strengthened by every indication of God's blessing upon David (12, 15, 29). Twice he sought to slay David by his own hand (10, 11); and, this failing, he sought to accomplish his death, while seeming to desire his promotion (17, 25). Note Saul's fear of David (11, 12, 15, 29), and David's increasing popularity, in spite of Saul's efforts against him. He fights in vain who fights against the man of God.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28.—1 Samuel XIX.

Again is David (1) helped by the friendship of Jonathan (1—7). True friendship does not spend itself in words. Jonathan has power over Saul, and is willing to use it for David's advantage.

(2) In danger through Saul's rage (8—24).—The evil spirit took possession of Saul through jealousy, after David had won another victory over the Philistines (8—10). God delivers him—first, through his own agility (10); next, through the deception of Michal (12—17), which He uses, but does not therefore justify; and then through Samuel (18—24). The mysterious power which came upon Saul after his anointing (x. 10) was again repeated to him. God has no lack of servants for effecting the deliverance of his people.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, September 29.

REVIEW OF THE QUARTER'S LESSONS.

GOLDEN TEXT: "God is the Judge; He putteth down one, and setteth up another" (Ps. lxxv. 7).

THE Golden Text is well and strikingly illustrated in the quarter's lessons. Eli was judge at the beginning of the Book of Samuel; but he was "put down" for the sin of his two sons, and for failing to reprove them (chapters iii. and iv.). But while rejecting one, God was setting up another in the person of Samuel. He, too, failed in appointing his sons (viii. 2—4), and was set aside by the people, who demanded a king. God raised up Saul to be king according to their wish (xii. 13), and would have prospered his kingdom if the condition of blessing had been fulfilled. But he also sadly and utterly failed. Then God chose and anointed David, a man after his own heart (xvi). The subsequent lessons show the gradual decline of Saul, and the steady advance of David. In the closing lesson Saul and his sons are dead, and the way is thus prepared for God to "set up" David in his place. In all this there are solemn lessons as to the way of certain failure and the conditions of true success. Let the scholars learn to aim, not at promotion, but at faithfulness to God in any position, leaving Him to advance them when and as He will.

The prominent persons introduced to us in these lessons are all suggestive. Question the scholars as to Eli—his character, his sin, and sorrowful death; Hophni and Phinehas, who they were, and the circumstances of their death, enforcing the solemn lesson that sin is more terribly judged in those to whom much light is given (Matt. viii. 10—12). Samuel—the lesson suggested by his call, his early devotion to God, the influence of this upon his life and character, his power in prayer (a remarkable feature, deserving much study, vii. 8—9; viii. 6; xii. 23; xv. 11; Jer. xv. 1), and his consequent power over men. Saul—his promising commencement, his advantages, his early victories, his disobedience and rejection, the departure of the Spirit of God from him, and the evil spirit which afterwards troubled him. No life more terribly illustrates the progress of sin and its terrible consequences. Then David—the defects already manifest in his character, yet the confidence in God, and zeal for the glory of God, which gave him all his strength and nobility, and which were the secret of all his success. True godliness is thus exemplified in three different persons—all good but imperfect men. Will the scholars choose to be followers of them, or, with such instances of the evil results of disobedience, will they repeat Saul's sin (xv. 23)?

DRIFT CHILDREN'S MISSION.—We have previously spoken of the excellent work in East London of Mr. Charles Boyer, who was for some years engaged in mission effort among the poor of American cities. During the past few weeks, when hunger has been so sadly prevalent, Mr. Boyer has been collecting large bands of children, and leading them in singing bands to and from places where meals have awaited them. Living at 56, Beaumont-square, Stepney, Mr. Boyer is in the midst of the class upon whose welfare he has set his heart and soul, and, as a result of his endeavours during the past twelve months, many homes have been made happier than formerly by the banishment of strong drink. Mr. Boyer keeps a list of the names and addresses of all the children whom he looks up; and, classifying them as to age, he places them under "captains," by whose help he can call out two thousand juveniles in three hours. Mr. Boyer has been working in various parts of London, and rendering much help to missionaries and others. Among the cripples in the small houses and tenements he has organised a toy exchange system, which works well, and brightens many lives which would otherwise be cheerless and heavy.

MILDMAY OCTOBER CONFERENCE, 1889.

BELOVED CHRISTIAN FRIENDS,—

THE time seems opportune for holding a special Convention concerning God's ancient and beloved people who continue to be the perplexity of the unbeliever, the unanswerable and miraculous proof of the truth of God, a byeword among the nations of the earth, and, alas! neglected and ignored by large sections of the Church of Christ.

ISRAEL,

But the Jews cannot much longer remain unnoticed. Nations and statesmen who do not take them into account will find their reckonings delusive. The national life of the Jewish people is stirring now as it has not stirred for many centuries; they are conscious of their increasing influence; their wealth and natural abilities are indisputable; they can stand erect and unabashed in all the great capitals of Europe. Whether there is much longing for a return to their own land we need not here stay to inquire. Our concern is with their spiritual condition, which is lamentably low and saddening; and the question for every Christian heart is, how can we help in awakening them from the sleep of unbelief; how press home the truth concerning Jesus of Nazareth as their true Messiah and King.

For this end we need to turn to the inspired record, and review the purpose and promises of Jehovah concerning his chosen nation, his present dealings with them, and his glorious future assured to them. Unless we see clearly in God's light, our plans will miscarry and we shall only be hinderers of his work.

We therefore affectionately invite all lovers of Israel who are within reach of Mildmay to gather with us on October 1, 2, and 3 next, for consideration of the following topics, as well as on Monday, September 30, when we purpose holding preliminary prayer-meetings to seek the Lord's special guidance and blessing on the work of the three days of Conference.

Asking meanwhile much prayer in private and in the family circle on this behalf,

We remain, your companions in the patience of Jesus Christ,

S. A. BLACKWOOD, ALF. R. PENNEFATHER,
JAMES E. MATHIESON, J. HERBERT TRITTON,
HARRY C. NISBET, EDWARD TROTTER.

Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, N.

Programme.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1.

Room No. 5, 7 a.m.—Early prayer-meeting, Mr. Robert Paton.

THE PAST.

Large Hall, 11 a.m.—"God's purpose in Israel," as illustrated in history, type, and prophecy, Rev. Adolph Saphir, D.D.; "God's promises to Israel," their nature, security, and guaranteed fulfilment, Rev. H. Lindsay Young. Chairman, Mr. James E. Mathieson.

Large Hall, 3 p.m.—Missionary meeting.—Work of the London Society for the Jews, Rev. J. C. S. Kroenig (Hull); Work of the Church of Scotland, Rev. D. Brown Spence (Constantinople); Work of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews, Rev. John Wilkinson. Chairman, Mr. R. C. Morgan.

Room No. 5, 3 p.m.—Bible reading.—The Saviour and salvation of Israel, Mr. G. H. Pember. Chairman, Dr. William Gauld.

Large Hall, 7 p.m.—"God's purpose in Israel," Rev. E. W. Bullinger, D.D.; "God's promises to Israel," Rev. Wm. Fuller Gooch. Chairman, Rev. D. B. Hankin.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2.

Room No. 5, 7 a.m.—Early prayer-meeting, Dr. James L. Maxwell.

THE PRESENT.

Large Hall, 11 a.m.—"God's dealings with Israel," between the first and second advents of our Lord, Rev. Donald Fraser, D.D.; "The Church's duty to Israel," between the first and second advents of our Lord, Rev. John Wilkinson. Chairman, Rev. John Edmond, D.D.

Large Hall, 3 p.m.—Missionary meeting.—Work of the British Society for the Jews, Rev. C. A. Schonberger (Vienna); Work of the Free Church of Scotland, Dr. Torrance (Tiberias); Work of the English Presbyterian Church, Dr. Robert Kerr (Morocco). Chairman, Rev. H. Sinclair Paterson, M.D.

Room No. 5, 3 p.m.—Bible reading.—The sinful people and suffering Saviour, Mr. G. H. Pember. Chairman, Dr. Henry Soltau.

Large Hall, 7 p.m.—"God's dealings with Israel," Rev. James Smith; "The Church's duty to Israel," Rev. J. Hood Wilson, D.D. Chairman, Mr. J. Herbert Tritton.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3.

Room No. 5, 7 a.m.—Early prayer-meeting, Mr. Benjamin Broomhall.

THE FUTURE.

Large Hall, 11 p.m.—"God's plan realised"—in Israel's restoration and salvation, Mr. G. H. Pember; "God's plan realised"—David's throne re-occupied; the Millennial Kingdom; Israel a blessing to the world, Rev. Canon Fausset, D.D. Chairman, Mr. Harry C. Nisbet.

Large Hall, 3 p.m.—The Lord's Supper, Rev. D. Abraham Herschell. (After united communion.) The Jewish movement in Russia, Hungary, &c., Rev. C. A. Schonberger. Chairman, Rev. Theo. J. Meyer.

Large Hall, 7 p.m.—"God's plan realised," Rev. Henry E. Brooke and Rev. James Neil. Chairman, Rev. J. Hudson Taylor.

READING FOR OUR ARMY.

DEAR SIR,—Your readers are aware of the very liberal offer by Mr. H. L. Hastings of his anti-infidel lectures and publications. I venture to appeal to Christian friends to help me in disseminating these valuable writings throughout the army at home and abroad. When we consider that the army, mustering 210,000 men, is composed entirely of young men, the average age being about 25 and the average service only five years, and that they come into the service imbued with the various opinions of the day, a very large number inclined to infidelity and scepticism, it must be evident that a great influence for good or for evil is exerted by these men one upon another, which will continue when their short service expires. 30,000 men on the average pass out of the army every year.

No writings are more calculated, in my humble opinion, to do good in the army than Mr. Hastings', not only on account of the subject which they treat, but from the style in which they are written; full of downright common sense, they seem to breathe the reasoning of the Apostle, "I speak as to them which have understanding, judge ye what I say." I shall be most grateful and thankful for any help. One common fund will be formed for the purchase of these publications. I trust, through the kindly response to this appeal, that I shall be able to take advantage of Mr. Hastings' liberal offer before October 15, and obtain a very large supply, which I can guarantee shall be most carefully and wisely distributed through the instrumentality of the Army Scripture-readers and other Christian men in the army at home and abroad.

I would ask every donor to encircle his gift with prayer that each publication may be abundantly blessed of God.—Yours very truly,

W. J. EVERED POOLE, Major.

Rockholme, Southampton.

JEWS OF SPITALFIELDS.—Mr. M. S. Bergmann, London City Missionary, holds meetings on Friday and Saturday evenings in the Jewish Mission-hall, 114, Brick-lane. Instruction is given in English reading and writing, which is highly appreciated by many foreigners of the Hebrew race. The rector of Spitalfields, Rev. J. H. Scott, takes a warm interest in the work, and friendly conversations over the Word of God take place at all the meetings.

MONTE CARLO.—Mr. E. C. Newbery, writing on September 12, says:—"More than sixty readers of THE CHRISTIAN, in answer to my letter of March 15, joined in praying for the downfall of the Casino of Monte Carlo. We have believed that God's power is 'mighty to the pulling down of strongholds.' The hour of victory is at hand! We are marching round the Casino, which to-day, on account of the death of the Prince of Monaco, is closed for the first time in twenty-five years! All work is prohibited, and a death-like stillness reigns. When Major Colquhoun and myself left Bordighera we knew nothing of the death of the Prince. We have had a grand day, distributing Testaments, Gospels, and tracts, which were gladly received. The new sovereign of Monte Carlo, Prince Albert, is an enemy to the Casino. The lease runs out in 1892, and the place is doomed. We believe God is now intervening, and that we shall shout our cry of triumph long before that date. We want this 'hell' to be changed into a Garden of Eden, and we ask God to give us this spot for his glory, that it may become a beacon-light for the whole Italian and French Riviera."

RATIONAL CORSETS.

Invaluable for growing girls, delicate persons, and ladies of all ages, relieving the hips from the weight of the skirts, and allowing the greatest freedom.

Young Ladies' 4s. 6d., White or Drab.
" " 6s. 6d., Scarlet.
Ladies' 6s. 6d., White or Drab.
" 9s. 6d., Black, Scarlet, or Sanitarie.
" 18s. 6d., Satin, Black, and Colours.

All makes in CORSETS (medium and best) and UNDERCLOTHING (wool, long-cloth, and silk) are supplied.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,
263, Oxford Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

The Note Paper of the Day.
For Private and Professional use.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

See Watermark in Each Sheet.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE

Can be obtained from all Stationers.

THE GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

1s. per 5 Quire Packet.
Court or Heraldic Envelopes to match, 1s. per 100.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

PERMANENT ENLARGEMENT
OF THE
CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH.

WITH the beginning of the Ninth Vol. on Oct. 10th, the CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH will be permanently enlarged by the addition of four pages. It will then be one of the largest as well as one of the freshest Religious Papers of the present day. Its usual features will be maintained, while special attention will be given to the HOME CIRCLE and HINTS AND HELPS TO WORKERS, &c. Many of the ablest men in England are engaged upon its literary staff.

Order the Paper of your Local Newsagent, to begin with this new Vol.

EVERY THURSDAY. ONE PENNY.
OFFICES: 73, LUDGATE HILL, LONDON, E.C.

Gold Medal Awarded, Health Exhibition, London.

Benger's Food

For INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

EXTRACT FROM PRIVATE LETTER.

"The infant was very delicate; our medical adviser ordered your Food. The result in a short time was wonderful; the little fellow grew strong and fat, and is now in a thriving condition—in fact 'the flower of the flock.'"

BENGER'S FOOD is Sold in Tins at 1/6, 2/6, and 5/-, by Chemists, &c., Everywhere.

The Trade Supplied by all Wholesale Houses.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on
CONSUMPTION
AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"
ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW APPENDIX
TO THE
WORK on CONSUMPTION,
CONTAINING
226 MOST INTERESTING
AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE
PERMANENCE of CURE.

IN ONE VOLUME, from the AUTHOR,
ONE SHILLING, POST FREE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

The THIRTY-FIRST SERIES of WEEKLY CASES will commence appearing in the first week of October.

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

VAN HOUTEN'S PURE SOLUBLE COCOA

BEST & GOES FARTHEST.

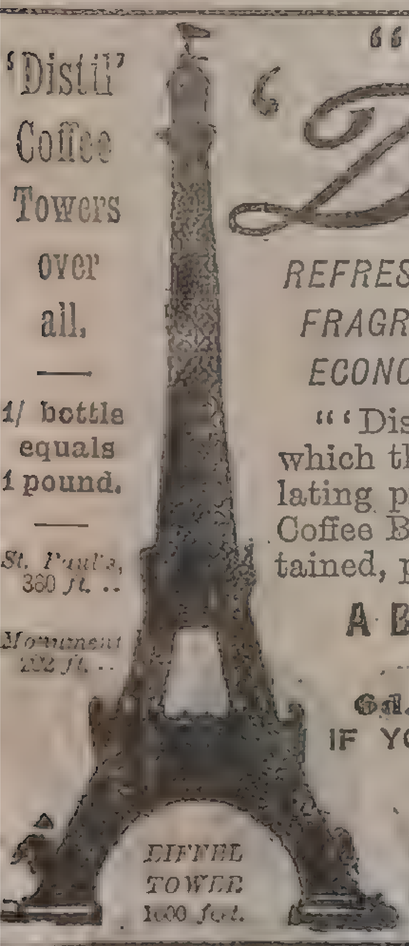
EASILY DIGESTED—MADE INSTANTLY.

"Once used, always used"—"Its purity is beyond question."—HEALTH.
"It is admirable"—"and so pure."—BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL

C. J. VAN HOUTEN & ZOON.—WEESP-HOLLAND.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.



SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

'Distil' Coffee Towers over all.

1/ bottle equals 1 pound.

St. Paul's, 360 ft. ..

Monument 202 ft. ..

"A DELIGHTFUL CUP."

'Distil' Coffee

EXHILARATING, CONVENIENT, DIGESTIVE.
REFRESHING, FRAGRANT, ECONOMICAL

"'Distil' Coffee is a Concentrated Extract, in which the Fine Flavours, True Aroma, and stimulating properties—so valuable in freshly-roasted Coffee Berries—are preserved and permanently retained, providing a superb article of diet."

A BOON TO COFFEE CONSUMERS.
PURITY GUARANTEED

6d., 1s., and 2s. per Bottle. Sold Everywhere.
IF YOU LIKE A SUPERB COFFEE, ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

If any difficulty in obtaining "DISTIL" COFFEE, the Proprietors will forward a Shilling Bottle Free, on receipt of Twelve Stamps.

BEARE, GOSNELL & FRY, 81, Southwark St., LONDON.

For DISTRIBUTION among SEAMEN, FISHERMEN, &c.
MISS WESTON'S "ASHORE & AFLOAT."
ONE PENNY, MONTHLY.
SPECIAL TERMS FOR BACK NUMBERS.

MESSRS. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW.

NEAVE'S FOOD.

FOR INFANTS,
INVALIDS,
AND THE AGED.

TO STOUT PEOPLE.

"Mr. Russell's aim is to eradicate, to cure the disease, and that his treatment is the true one seems beyond all doubt. The medicine he prescribes does not lower, but builds up and tones the system." Book (128 pages) with recipe and notes how to pleasantly and rapidly cure OBESITY (average reduction in first week is 3 lb.), post free eight stamps.

F. C. RUSSELL, Woburn House, Store St., Bedford Sq., London, W.

Supplied at 1s. and 2s. (and an extra large size at 2/9) per packet of One Dozen, being the actual cost of washing, by Outfitters, Chemists, and Drapers, Everywhere.

Wholesale Agents:-SHARP, PERRIN & Co., 31, Old Change; and STAPLEY & SMITH, London Wall; London.

PARIS, RETAIL: — "Old England," "Au Gagne Petit," Paris (Rayon de Trousseau). Wholesale and Shipping:—W. J. ABLETT, 10, Rue d'Uzès, Paris.

Royal Letters Patent.

SOUTHALL'S SANITARY TOWELS

(TRADE MARK.)

For protection against useless and injurious imitations, each Packet bears the signature of the Patentees.

They have the approval of the entire medical press, and are strongly recommended by the most eminent physicians and trained nurses, as an immense boon to ladies travelling, for health, comfort, and economy.

SOUTHALL BROS. & BARCLAY, BIRMINGHAM.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

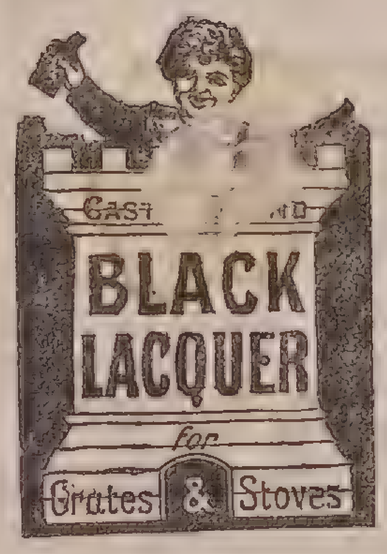
AUTUMN PATTERNS NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Sold.



Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

6 MONTHS' HARD LABOUR IN BLACKLEADING

Saved by one coat of

Castle Brand Black Lacquer,

A Thin Liquid, applied with a Brush, giving a Jet Black Finish.

NO SMELL. DRIES IMMEDIATELY.

Retail Everywhere, in 3d., 6d., and 1s. Bottles; or post free, 6d., 8d., and 1s. 2d.

ALSO CASTLE ENAMEL,
IN EXCLUSIVE ART COLOURS.

CASTLE BRAND Co.,
Newcastle-on-Tyne.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS

TRADE-MARK REGISTERED

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
VEST WOOL
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.
If any difficulty is found in obtaining, apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836

WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKS.

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

COMFORT FOR THE FEET.

Corns and Bunions may be removed, and Enlarged Toe Joints reduced, by using THOMPSON'S NEW FRENCH CORN PLASTER. Those who are troubled with the discomfort of Corns, &c., will be glad to have attention called to this remedy, as it removes pain very speedily.

"It is a simple Plaster, thin as Silk, and comfortable to the Foot."—LADY MAUDE.

Sole Proprietor, M. F. THOMPSON, Homœopathic and Dispensing Chemist, 17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW, and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH.

Packets 1s. 1½d.; post free for 14 stamps.

☞ Ask for Thompson's Plaster, and Beware of Worthless Imitations.

WALKING IS NOW A PLEASURE TO ME.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

That BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR possesses very valuable qualities as a food for all classes, at all periods of life except earliest infancy, has been attested by eminent dietetic authorities, as well as by universal public experience during over thirty years.

Interested attempts to set aside these facts in favour of other foods only appeal to ignorance and prejudice, and it remains true that no other kind of food can serve the special purposes of Corn Flour.

Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ✣ NOURISHING. ✣ STRENGTHENING.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

DEATH OF
Dr. SOMERVILLE,
Page 16.

THE BAPTIST FORWARD MOVEMENT,
Page 8.

PRINCIPAL

Notes and Comments 7
Good Tidings of the Reign of God 9
Rev. F. B. Meyer on the Christian Inheritance ..10
Hungry Women & Children. Dr. BARNARDO ..11
"That Lady." By Rev. W. HASLAM 12
The West Central Mission 12
A Story of a Russian Emperor 13
Work among Southern Villages 13
Evangelizing in India, Austria, and Ireland ..14

CONTENTS.

Correspondence on Army Chaplains 15
Portrait & Sketch of late Mr. H. F. BOWKER ..17
Salvation Army in France 18
Ladies' Conference at Perth 19
Conference at Park Hall, Polmont 19
Scottish Y.M.C.A. Conference 20
Dundee Christian Conference 20
Wakefield Conference 21
Workers in Council 24

[The late Mr. H. F. Bowker.]

No. 1026.] FRIDAY, SEPT. 27, 1889.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

The Salvation Army.

SELF-DENIAL WEEK.

Thousands of Soldiers and Friends of The Salvation Army are pledging themselves to give up some article of food or clothing, or in some way to deny themselves during the week commencing SEPTEMBER 29, 1889, in order especially to help forward the war without lessening their usual gifts to the cause of Christ.

WILL YOU KINDLY TAKE PART IN THE EFFORT?

The rapid extension of our Work, and the very success with which God favours it, notwithstanding our methods of self-support, and the practice of the severest economies, unavoidably involve a considerably increased expenditure.

Some three years ago it was suggested to our poor people that by denying themselves for one week of something not absolutely necessary, they might assist the war at home and abroad without lessening their ordinary and local gifts. This idea was welcomed and acted upon at the time, and a considerable sum was raised, the example being favourably noticed by the Press, and in some instances imitated by other Christian communities.

We are intending to repeat this effort this year. Our poor people, many of whose lives, humanly speaking, are very hard and cheerless, and whose comforts are very few and small, are going to hunt up some pleasant things which they can relinquish, in order to raise a little money to replenish our empty exchequer, and enable us to carry on the conflict with still greater vigour.

Will you join us in this Self-Denial?

I think the readers of THE CHRISTIAN will discover in the work and extension of the Army a reason for thanksgiving and prayer to our Heavenly Father. There may be some things about its methods not exactly in harmony with their views; but, nevertheless, its bold witnessing for Christ; its determined attack on the powers of evil; its success in saving the worst, the poorest, and the most unfortunate; and its willingness to endure continued suffering and sacrifice, are, I think, beyond controversy, matters for thankfulness and praise to everyone really concerned for the welfare of their generation.

With its existing income the Salvation Army supports over 8000 officers (or paid Evangelists) who hold annually 2,300,000 services in 32 nations and colonies; and all this effort can be multiplied with added means. Since last year there has been an increase of 1610 officers, and 227 organised societies of unpaid active Christians, and the demands for more men and money are continuous and urgent.

Its work is instrumental, in God's hands, in bringing thousands of sinners of all kinds to the Saviour.

Friends may assist by the following different methods:—

1. By Donations of Money.
2. By Collecting; Cards can be obtained by post from Headquarters.

   If the junior members of a family take these, they can collect the Self-Denial money of the other members.

   Much of the success of the entire scheme will depend on the collection of small sums.
3. By Gifts of Jewellery, clothing, or other articles that can be disposed of, will be gratefully received.
4. By Circulating Appeals, which will be sent in any number, post free on application.

Contributions may be forwarded to GENERAL BOOTH, International Headquarters, 101, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C., and friends can have their Subscriptions applied to any branch of the work, or to the carrying on of the war in any particular country, by making known their wishes.

All Cheques and Postal Orders should be crossed "City Bank."

(For further particulars see page 27.)

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from Richmond £1. P.S.—We shall be glad of the flower cuttings.

The Infant Day Nursery. Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Free Ragged Day Schools. Classes for Rough Boys. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Penny Bank. Toy Classes. Young Men's Christian Society. Classes, Meetings, Library, Reading-room, Parlour, for Young Women and Elder Girls. Bible Classes for Men and for Women. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Evangelistic Services. Temperance Meetings. Common Lodging House Services. Room to room Visitation, and other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest contributions in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

For 103 years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 240 Christian men and women.

Funds are urgently needed.

The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

MISS SHARMAN'S HOMES. — A Meeting on behalf of the above will be held at the Mansion House, on Friday, October 4, at 3 p.m. The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor will preside. Rev. Canon J. McConnell Hussey, D.D.; Rev. John McNeill; Rev. D. McEwan, D.D.; Rev. Fleming Williams, Ald. C.C.; R. C. Morgan, Esq., and others will take part.

ORPHAN HOME, WALTHAMSTOW.

The Sale of Work and various useful and fancy articles will be held (D.V.) on

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY,

October 9 and 10, at The Home, Eastfield House, Hoe-street, Walthamstow. Open at 3 o'clock each day. Admission free. Gifts of every kind are wanted to furnish the stalls, and will be thankfully received by Mrs. PARSONS, addressed as above.

EAST END DISTRESS.—Rev. J. W. ATKINSON, Claremont, Cawley-road, London, N.E., urgently appeals for Help on behalf of starving families of Dockers. Clothes, and even bedding, in pawn; children crying for bread. Every gift, great or small, promptly acknowledged by above.

BEULAH, 30, Prince's-avenue, Prince's-gate, Liverpool. The Lord has given the above beautiful home in place of the late "Bethshan," 11, Great George-square. Meetings: Tuesday, 7.30 p.m.; Wednesday, 3.0 p.m.; Friday, 3.0 p.m. Persons desirous of rest to body and soul, also such as need light concerning salvation, holiness, and Divine Healing, can be accommodated at the above address.—For particulars apply to Mrs. CROOK.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

Educational.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Educational Home for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Every advantage for health and education. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest references.
PRINCIPALS, College House, Suffolk-road.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Apply to PRINCIPAL. School re-opened Sept. 18.

GIRLS' SCHOOL, The Gables, Holden-avenue, Woodside-park, N.—Thorough education. Christian influence, and home comforts. Special attention paid to physical culture. Pure bracing air and lovely country. Highest references. The experience of the Principal is specially suited to the requirements of children from India.—For particulars apply to the Principal, Mrs. RAMSAY WILSON.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and references, Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

BRIGHTON.—Home School for Girls, recommended by the Rev. J. B. Figgis. First-class education combined with motherly care and every comfort. Terms moderate.
Mrs. SCOTT, 35, Upper Rock-gardens,

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, St. Leonards-on Sea. Boys received from 6 to 18 years of age. Three separate departments: juniors, under the care of Ladies; seniors, under a staff of seven resident masters, thoroughly qualified to prepare for commerce, Public Schools, or Universities. Delicate boys and boys from the Colonies receive special care. A carpenter's shop and a chemical laboratory have recently been built on the premises. Autumn term commenced Saturday, September 21. For prospectus, apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A.; Vice-Principal: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A., T.C.D. School will re-open, (D.V.), Thursday, September 26.

YOUR BOYS will receive sound education, and thorough Christian training, with Mr. and Mrs. DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. 18 to 25 guineas. Entrance any time.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the last twelve years pupils have obtained more than two hundred certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

STANLEY HOUSE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Principal—A. E. COZENS, M.C.P.

A thorough modern education, combined with kind and firm training. Individual attention, especially to delicate or backward pupils. New schoolroom and recreation ground added. Preparation for all exams. Term commenced September 18.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Deepdale, Caterham Valley.

MADAME ROMAN (widow of a Pastor) and her daughter would receive two young Ladies at 125 francs per month each, including lessons in French. References to Pastors of Valence, and Joseph R. Pim, of Valence.
Avenue de Chabeuil, Valence, Drôme, France.

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS desires re-engagement in Christian family. High-school system. Thorough English, French (Paris), German, music (late pupil, four certificates), drawing (A.C.P.) water-colours.
DELTA, 17, Old Cavendish-street, W.

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS requires re-engagement to children under 12. English, French, music, drawing, and good needlework. Willing to take entire charge. Good references.
E., 5, Ingram-street, Huntingdon.

DAILY GOVERNESS.—Young Lady seeks an engagement in the vicinity of Clapton, Enfield, Highbury, or Stoke Newington. Good English, French, Latin, drawing, music. Good testimonials. Fond of children. Four years with last pupils.
K., 29, Fountayne-road, Stoke Newington.

GOVERNESS, aged 20, desires re-engagement as Governess in a family with children under 14. Has certificates for Senior Oxford and South Kensington.—Apply first to Miss BEWES, Hillside, Plympton.

A SWISS GENTLEMAN who has recently completed his theological studies, wishes to find a situation as Tutor in a family (London or Glasgow preferred), where in exchange for lessons in French he would have a comfortable home and the opportunity of acquiring English. Small salary required.—Mme. Vuilleumier, c/o Mrs. Budd, 4, Park-crescent, Clissold-road, N.

A YOUNG LADY (19) seeks re-engagement as Governess to young children (ages 5 to 12), in Christian school or family.
Y. S., Norfolk House, Devonshire-road, Balham.

A YOUNG LADY, 18 (Dissenter), desires an engagement in School or Christian family, to teach English, French, music, and drawing. Good references.
153, Holmesdale-road, South Norwood.

GOVERNESS-PUPIL wanted immediately.—Miss SCULLARD, Glengarry, Birkdale-park, Southport.

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS
"The Christian"
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

Miss Sarah Robinson, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth,

is now completing her Scheme for the benefit of Soldiers, Sailors, their Families, Widows, and Orphans, and the poor of Portsmouth, by the erection of a large Gospel Hall and Coffee Palace (with 170 beds), opposite the Portsmouth Town Railway Station, at a cost of £30,000, including site. This is her fifth, and last, House; will be self-supporting; and, like the others, will be vested in Trustees.

Having no family claims and few personal wants, Miss Robinson has always freely spent her own money on these Institutions, besides collecting the needful funds. She is now making a great effort, at the cost of much personal suffering, to obtain help for the new building. After being confined to the house for eight years, she is undertaking a three-months' tour, by road, in an invalid's coach, built for the purpose, intending (D.V.) to travel a thousand miles, and address meetings in fifty towns, after which she will publish a full account of her journey and its results. She travels at her own expense, accompanied by one helper.

DONATIONS ARE EARNESTLY ASKED.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

EDUCATIONAL HOME. — Twelve young Ladies, of good position, received. Highest educational advantages, combined with every home comfort, and individual training and guidance. Recommended by clergymen, parents of pupils, and others. One vacancy.—D. C. L., Lane's Library, Fitzjohn's Parade, Hampstead.

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Rosehill Preparatory School.—Principal, Miss BAYNE.—The Rev. W. H. Rednap, Incumbent of St. James', Ryde, strongly recommends this School as an Educational Home for boys (number limited to six). Reference permitted to resident nobility and gentry, parents of former pupils. Terms 40 guineas per annum, inclusive.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, Glastonbury, Somerset.—High-class Ladies' School.—Miss M. CRUSE receives a limited number of Boarders. Efficient governesses and visiting masters. Home comforts. Individual influence and attention. Pupils received from abroad. Kindergarten class for juniors. Terms moderate.

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester.—Large premises. Sound education. Manual training. Boarders return on Tuesday, September 17. For prospectus of Ladies' School, apply to Miss KOFLER; of Boys' School to Rev. W. BIRTILL.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced September 17.

MOUNT HOUSE, Ryde, Isle of Wight.—High School for Girls, with Preparatory for Boys under 12. Principals, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. GREENUP. Sound education and Christian home. Autumn term begins September 18. Prospectus on application.

BRIGHTON.—INKERMANN HOUSE, Hove.—The Misses ASHBY receive young gentlemen for Board and Preparatory Education, at 3, Lansdowne-road. Constant attention is paid to health, and the pleasures of home are combined with the regulations of school.

KESWICK HOUSE, Dartmouth-row, Blackheath. Principals, Mrs. and Miss HOBBS. The School is conducted on strictly moral and religious principles. High-class education, visiting professors, resident English and foreign governesses. Cheerful home, healthy situation. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest testimonials.

MANADON VILLA SCHOOL, Tavistock-road, Plymouth.—The Misses LANE receive a limited number of Resident and Daily Pupils, whose education and Christian training are conducted with the utmost care. Preparation for all the Local examinations. References to parents of present and former pupils.

REV. G. D. BARTLET, M.A., receives, at his residence in Highgate, ten Pupils (from 9 years) to board and educate for commercial or professional spheres. Able masters, individual attention, and careful Christian training. Highgate is strongly recommended by the medical profession. Fees, from 18 guineas per term.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE LOCAL EXAMS.—Two well-bred Girls can be received on special terms to join classes for either of the above in high-class School. Results this year, twenty-four successes, no failures. Thorough education and training.—EXAMINATION, 42, Craven-hill-gardens, Lancaster-gate, W.

MIDDLE-CLASS SCHOOL for Boarders and Day-scholars. Good opening in healthy country village, two miles from the sea. For particulars, address
C., 2, St. John's-road, Lowestoft, Suffolk.

BACKWARD BOYS, who would be under special care of Principal can be received as Boarders in a private School near London. Terms moderate. Healthy neighbourhood.
St. Augustine's, Wanstead.

EDUCATION.—Two Pupils, about 14, can now be received in a good Ladies' School for the inclusive terms of £30 per annum. Thorough education, with Christian training and home comforts. Preparation for Public Examinations. Good music, French, and drawing.
B. A., 179, South Lambeth-road, London.

TO FILL UNEXPECTED VACANCY, a Gentleman's Son would be received in a well-established Preparatory School at reduced terms.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Gazette Office, Weston-super-Mare.

AN ENGLISH UNDERGRADUATE, in delicate health, residing in the North-Western postal district, would be glad to meet with a young Gentleman willing to walk with him a couple of hours daily, and who would be desirous of instruction in Greek (especially Greek Testament), or elementary Hebrew, on terms to be arranged. Strict references required.—By letter only, A. B., Albion Bakery, 354, High-road, Kilburn, N.W.

FRENCH TUTOR seeks appointment in England. Young, but of some experience. Highest recommendations. Reference permitted to M. le Pasteur DAN. COURTOIS, Laon (Aisne, France), who will give further particulars.

September 27, 1889.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give a new portrait of the late Earl of Shaftesbury, with some interesting reminiscences of his life.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Matthews, of the Maloga Mission to the aborigines of Australia, have arranged a farewell meeting in Exeter Hall, on Thursday, October 3, at 7.30. They will be accompanied by two aboriginal converts, in native costume, who will sing and speak.

The Strangers' Rest in Ratcliff-highway began its present financial year with £60 in hand. We regret to state that it is closing it with more than that amount on the other side. Nothing could be worked more economically, as all the helpers are voluntary and unpaid. The condition of the locality has been greatly improved since the Strangers' Rest and the Welcome Home were established, but it would revert to its former estate were these and other similar agencies withdrawn.

A timely, and we should hope an effective, blow has been struck at the proposal recently made by a Committee of Convocation to found a monastic order of workers, with vows of poverty and celibacy, in connection with the Church of England. A number of well-known members of that Church, both clerical and lay, have expressed, through the pages of Church and People, their strong objections to the proposed order. On the basis of their combined protest The Times of Tuesday has a trenchant leading article, which it sums up as follows:—

> If the proposed brotherhood involves the revival of monastic or quasi-monastic vows, we cannot believe that public feeling and public opinion in this country would readily tolerate it. On the other hand, vows are surely not of the essence of a Christian brotherhood, and, if the belief of the Committee is well founded in the existence of "a reserve force of enthusiasm adequate to any emergency," we should hope that this force could be evoked and turned to good account without an untimely revival of institutions which time has overthrown, and ideas which history has condemned.

Prejudiced utterances about mission work, which are often little better than a caricature of native opinion, have called forth an able article in The Christian Advocate of New York. An officer in the U.S. army has affirmed that only menials, who can gain thereby four dollars a month, become converts in China. Dr. Baldwin, whose knowledge of mission work is exceptionally accurate, has replied that if this were so the sum spent, in paying converts, would be more than twice the entire amount spent in every department of labour by all the Protestant missionary societies in China. "What," asks Dr. Baldwin, "would Tiong Dhok, a Chinese merchant in Foochow, who gave ten thousand dollars to an Anglo-Chinese College, think of such a statement?" It is astonishing that sensible persons continue to listen to ill-informed travesties of mission work from men who know little but what is one-sided, of that on which they speak and write.

The paper read by Dr. Oliver before the British Association upon "Our Local Industries in their Social and Pathological Bearings" contains much that is of interest to social reformers. It appears that great danger to health attends the lead-making industry, which claims its victims especially among young women and girls. "No industry on Tyneside sends to our medical charities such human wrecks as lead works do;" it was stated that one hundred and thirty-five cases of lead poisoning had been treated in Newcastle Infirmary in five years. An excellent system of medical inspection prevails at the lead works, and all precautions are taken by the masters, but the high wages tempt the workers, not only to deceive the doctor, but also the employer.

Dr. Oliver drew attention to the evil results of girls in shops being too long on their feet, and of long hours, and confinement in ill-ventilated rooms. He also condemned the wholesale pulling down of old dwellings without providing in their place healthy and easily accessible houses for the labouring population. "How," he asked, "can we expect our working classes to rise to the moral and physical level we desire, unless we are prepared to help them in this direction?" The British Association could not focus its collective wisdom upon better objects than that of amending the deadly conditions under which some of our industries are carried on, nor bring its influence to bear in a more needful direction than in the provision of improved dwellings for the industrial classes.

Before the memories of the British Association meetings at Newcastle pass away, it will be useful to quote the opinion of one of the greatest scientific authorities of the Continent on Darwinism as it bears relation to the origin of man. Professor Virchow has lately affirmed at Vienna that the attempt is increasingly shown to be vain to discover a transitional man, which would establish a connection between man and the ape. Spite of all that modern science has assumed and attempted, any trace of an intermediary link is as far off as ever.

Whatever remains to be done to promote a better understanding between employers and the employed, there can be no doubt that the nation is increasingly bent upon broadening and perfecting the common school education. One of the best sectional meetings of the British Association was devoted to matters relating to the training of mechanics. Technical teaching, science classes for boys, with special regard to their future employments, manual instruction, and the extension of the system of evening classes for these ends, were treated of by very practical papers, and discussions. Northern manufacturers and philanthropists are not merely theorising, but working most effectively in these directions.

At the meeting of the British Medical Association at Leeds recently, a paper was read by Sir James Browne, M.D., on "The Hygienic Use of the Imagination," which we should like to see published for general circulation as being a most valuable contribution to the literature of an important subject. Dr. Browne deals with his subject as a Christian scientist and philosopher should. He admits that the relation between the brain and the mind is "unthinkable," and denounces as a gross error the modern assertions as to mind being simply an exhalation of brain matter. Many persons utterly neglect the discipline of the imagination, though its healthy condition has much to do with the health of the body, and still more with the health of the soul. Not only should the Christian pray that the "chambers of his imagery" (Ezek. viii. 12) may be kept pure, and the meditations of his heart be acceptable in God's sight, but he should watch carefully over his imagination, and exercise it in pure and holy directions.

The Nonconformist and Independent, of last week, has a passage from its correspondent in New South Wales to this effect:—

> It is not a pleasant truth, but it is one, that we are not able to interest young Australia sufficiently in church matters. The theatres and places of amusement are doing a roaring trade on Sunday evenings. Sunday concerts are preferred to the churches. In regard to church guilds, in which Australia is imitating England, it is hard to keep out the Christy Minstrel element, and to make everything tend upward.

We repeat what has been often said in our columns, that if Christ's followers attempt to compete with the world they will inevitably be defeated. There are weapons of warfare that are mighty through God, and any loss of faith in these will prove disastrous in the New World as well as the Old.

There is much misapprehension in regard to the State allowance to the Roman Catholic College of Maynooth, in Ireland, and therefore it may not be out of place to state that when the grant of £26,300 appeared in the annual estimates there was an angry debate each year, led by the late Mr. Newdegate. Sir Robert Peel then made the sum an annual charge upon the Consolidated Fund. At the passing of the Irish Church Disestablishment Act a sum of £372,331 was given "as compensation." Maynooth also received £30,000 for "new buildings." In the face of this it may well be asked, What necessity is there for any more public money to be expended in the same direction? Rome, however, proverbially, is never satisfied.

The recent decision of Mr. Keys, the Dublin magistrate, in regard to a number of roughs who assaulted some evangelists, has given rise to much correspondence in the local papers, and to much indignant protest, but as yet no practical steps have been taken in the matter. It is to be regretted that our friends across the Channel have not moved in the direction of testing the soundness of the judgment. It is a matter of common notoriety that in regard to noisy bands on the Sabbath day, and to gangs of football players, who annoy the worshippers in more than one place of worship on the Sunday, the police and the bench are only too lenient. The liberty of the subject to preach the Gospel in Ireland, in any place where no public inconvenience is caused, is too precious a right to be swept away at the dictum of one magistrate.

The result of the decision has been to give the roughs an idea that they are masters of the situation. On Sunday week over a thousand of them attacked a few Salvationists and ladies who were singing hymns in the Phœnix Park, and but for the help of the police it is doubtful if the evangelists would have escaped with their lives. In Dublin, as at Whitchurch, the time has come for a clear exposition of the law, and we trust that those who are interested in the preaching of the Gospel will see that it is obtained and acted upon.

A city missionary, working among Jews in Spitalfields, writes to us:—

For many years past it has been customary for a large number of Hebrew Christians to have a special meeting for prayer and meditation on the eve of the Day of Atonement. Allow me to suggest to your readers to set apart not only the eve, but also the Day of Atonement (which will this year be Saturday, October 5), to special prayer on behalf of God's ancient people, so marvellously preserved in all their dispersions.

We would remind our readers that a meeting of unusual and special interest is to be held at St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, on Thursday next, Oct. 3, at 2.30 p.m., when over eighty outgoing missionaries of the Church Missionary Society will be commended to God for work in different parts of the world.

The Roman Catholic "Missionary Annual," which has lately been issued, contains figures to show that the impulse which Leo XIII. has given to missionary work, and also his "wise and firm government of the Church," are contributing largely to the expansion of Romanism. Since 1886, according to these statistics, the increase in Europe has been 118,553; in Asia, 87,113; in America, 486,861; and in Oceania, 142,807. If these statistics are at all accurate, there is food in them for much thoughtful reflection, because it may be taken as an axiom that where the Bible is given its proper position, there Romanism will not spread.

THE RAINY RIVER CHURCHES.

A FEW weeks ago an appeal was made in this paper for help towards building two churches for the Christian Indians, on the banks of Rainy River, N.W. America. Archdeacon Phair thanks those kind friends who responded, and sent him help to the amount of £60, with some articles of jewellery, which are to be sold for the benefit of the churches.

He has now £400 in hand, out of the £500 required, and is encouraged to hope that before leaving in about two weeks for his distant mission, the required amount may be made up. Further communications may be addressed to Archdeacon Phair, care of Church Missionary Society, Salisbury-square, London, E.C.

EASTBOURNE.—With reference to a note in our last issue on the stoppage of out-door preaching here, a correspondent writes to say that services are held on the beach between 11 and 12.30 each morning (Saturdays excepted); also on Sundays at 11, 6, and 8; on Tuesday evenings a short Gospel temperance service is held.

[856]

The Baptist Forward Movement.

On Sunday last a "Forward Movement" in connection with the London Baptist Association was commenced in John-street Chapel, Bedford-row, W.C. The scene of the ministry of Rev. J. Harington Evans and the Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel, of blessed memory, the chapel is in the midst of a large population, to reach which the present pastor, Rev. J. E. SHEPHARD, has put forth vigorous efforts, with very encouraging results. Many new agencies designed to break through the prevalent religious indifference are about to be organised, and it is hoped soon to have a very comprehensive scheme of evangelisation in full working order.

The inaugural proceedings were cheering in a high degree. There has been much waiting upon God to bless the endeavour, and pastor and people believe their prayers will be abundantly answered. The unusually large attendances at the services on Sunday are looked upon as intimations of coming blessing, such as will not only make a decided spiritual impression upon Holborn, Clerkenwell, and King's Cross, but give impulse to a similar movement throughout the country.

At the morning service Mr. Shephard addressed some kindly and earnest words to the young from Prov. iii. 1, 2: "My son, forget not my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments: for length of days and long life a d peace shall they add to thee." The hymns were definite prayers for a revival of God's work, which was also the burden of the united petitions. In the course of some announcements, the pastor intimated that the lodging-houses and other places in the district are to be tackled; if the people cannot be got to the sanctuary, the Gospel will be taken to their homes; if the message may not be delivered in the houses, then it shall be told in the street outside the people's doors. On Saturdays there will be musical evenings, and special efforts are to be made in the interest of young people.

The sermon was a powerful statement and defence of the proposition—

"FORWARD!" THE CHRISTIAN'S WATCHWORD.

The text was Isa. liv. 2, 3: "Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes; for thou shalt break forth on the right hand and on the left; and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited." Taking these words to indicate the destined amplitude of the Church, the preacher brought to view several facts that led up to an obvious conclusion. When the early believers were expelled from the Jewish Temple, and cut off from the synagogue, the separate organisations we know as churches became a necessity. Development and growth have characterised the Church from the first. As necessities have arisen, the Church has gone forth to meet them, and God has set his seal upon what has been done. In proportion as the needs of the times and localities are realised, will she be successful in prosecuting her mission in the world.

Among the instrumentalities God has blessed from the very first is the preaching of his word. All great revivals of religion, and all great aggressive movements in the Church of Christ, have been organised and carried out by the preaching of the Gospel. Not simply by eloquent sermons, however, has the Church been enlarged, but also by the individual efforts of God's believing children, in introducing acquaintances and friends to the worship of God's house, and showing solicitude for their eternal salvation. The preacher said he did not believe God ever ordained a bare and heavy form of religious service. In the old dispensation He ordained the Levites, who were capital singers and good players on musical instruments, and worship was in a Temple which was beautifully furnished. God's house should be no less beautiful than the homes of the worshippers. The service should not make us sad and melancholy, but bright and joyous. To secure these are within the province and power of the Church.

Referring to the movement begun that day, Mr. Shephard expressed a hope that it would touch the whole of the Baptist denomination throughout the country, and extend to the States of America. It is not to be a nine days' wonder, speedily to be eclipsed by something else, but to reach the masses who are living in sin and perishing in misery. The extension of the Church will result in the desolate cities being inhabited; so the forward movement has for its object the scattering of darkness in many houses, and the spreading of the light of the Gospel, with its love, joy, peace, and other blessings.

A PERMANENT EFFORT

In the afternoon Mr. Shephard gave a "Homely Talk." There was a goodly assemblage of people, some having entered in response to invitations given to them in the streets. The subject was "Forward," and the "talk" was based on the word of God to Moses as found in Exod. xiv. 15: "Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward." The meaning of the "Forward movement," was explained in a very satisfactory manner. It is not forward as to doctrine. In regard to doctrine, Mr. Shephard confessed himself old-fashioned, abiding by that which is Apostolic. The movement is forward in relation to Christian life and activity. There has been enough resting, and the time has come when believers should arise and go forward in the discharge of their duties; that each should do his best to seek a higher, and holier, and more completely spiritual life for himself and the people round about. "Forward!" means "forward to better things, and to increased work for God among those who are living in sin and sorrow." By faith in the living Lord, the way will be opened to progress which nothing can hinder, and those who are now the slaves of intemperance and vice will be helped to a better life.

Having spoken of duties in the light of privileges, Mr. Shephard pointed out that "Forward!" is God's order. God is a leader who never errs in his judgment, so the order may be confidently acted upon, no matter what obstacles present themselves. Mr. Shephard seems to have energy equal to the important task he has undertaken. We trust grace and strength will be given to him to continue the work so well begun.

On Monday evening the first of a series of public meetings was held. There was a goodly attendance, a number of members of the Baptist Prayer Union, which is now holding its annual session in London, being among those present. Brethren from a distance evinced an enthusiastic interest in the proceedings, for they expect soon to be themselves engaged in efforts of a like progressive character. The chairman, Rev. J. E. Shephard, having delivered an explanatory address, Rev. Charles Leach spoke at length on work among the masses. His own wide experience, rapidly surveyed, was an inspiration to many present. Rev. Dr. Clifford followed with a stirring appeal to Baptists to support the movement. The question is no longer how to reach the masses, but how to bring the forces of the churches into such immediate application to the needs of the people, as that the Gospel shall be put into their hearts and become an influence in their lives. He urged to a leaving of conventionalism, and to an earnest endeavour to push forward the true work of the Church—the saving of men and women.

The Good Tidings of the Reign of God.

IX.—THE HOLY SPIRIT.

"The Kingdom of God is not meat and drink: but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost."—ROM. xiv. 17.

"'That which is born of the Spirit is spirit.' That is, that which is wrought by the Spirit of God is of a spiritual nature, and so suitable to the Kingdom of God."—CRUDEN.

IF, as we have maintained, the Gospel of Jesus Christ is in fact the Good Tidings of the Reign of God; if the only message that would be a Gospel to a world under the tyranny of a liar and murderer who through guile had usurped dominion over it, must be that the rightful King takes his great power and reigns: then we should expect that such Good Tidings would be demonstrated, and its heralds accredited, by power and authority adequate to the occasion. This is found to be the case. The Spirit of holiness and power, who moved upon the waters at the first, is the motive energy of the Gospel of God.

The herald and forerunner, John, who came crying in the wilderness, "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand," was filled with the Holy Ghost from his mother's womb (Luke i. 15).

Jesus, begotten of the same Spirit, grew in wisdom and stature, until at thirty years of age He was baptized of John, acknowledged by the dove-like Spirit descending and abiding on Him, and thus revealed to John as the Son of God who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost (John i. 33).

Full of the Holy Ghost He was driven by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted and tested by the devil, who departed from Him defeated for the first time by Man acting in the power of the Spirit of God. In the power of the Spirit Jesus returned into Galilee, and struck the keynote of his work in the Synagogue at Nazareth with "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me!" Anointed of God with the Holy Ghost He went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil: until by the Eternal Spirit He offered Himself without spot to God. But on the third day the Son of David according to the flesh was declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead.

After forty days He was taken up, when He had, through the Holy Ghost, given commandments unto the Apostles whom He had chosen, speaking unto them of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God (Acts i.). These commandments were such as these: "That repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem." "All power is given unto Me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you. And, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the age."

When the Apostles asked, "Wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" He only answered them by the promise, "Ye shall receive the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon you. And ye shall be witnesses unto Me."

In due time the Spirit was given, and sat upon each of them. For what purpose was He given? That they might be witnesses unto Him, preaching the Good Tidings of the Reign of God. Thus Peter spake freely of the Patriarch David that he was dead and buried, but that God, of the fruit of his loins, had raised up the Christ to sit on David's throne, and had made that same Jesus whom Israel had crucified both Lord and Christ. In his next recorded testimony Peter charged them with having killed the Prince of life, whom God raised from the dead. Again, filled with the Holy Ghost, Peter said, "This is the Stone which was set at nought of you builders, which is become the Head of the corner." And after being examined by the chief priests and elders, they said in their prayer, "The kings of the earth stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord and against his Christ." And later still—"Him hath God exalted a Prince and Saviour...and we are his witnesses...and so is also the Holy Ghost."

Stephen, full of the Holy Ghost, speaks concerning the Kingdom of God, the words of God, "Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footstool." And looking up steadfastly into heaven, he saw the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God—on the right hand of the Majesty on high.

The active agency of the Spirit in the preaching of the Kingdom of God is conspicuously seen in Philip's interview with the eunuch. The Spirit said to Philip, "Go near, and join thyself to this chariot." And Philip preached unto him Jesus. But preaching Jesus means preaching the Kingdom of God, and Jesus as the King; for earlier in the chapter preaching Christ at Samaria is further explained to be preaching the things concerning the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. By this sudden mission of Philip to the desert, the Holy Spirit, seeing Ethiopia, in the person of the treasurer of Queen Candace, stretching out her hands to God, opened to Africa the good tidings of the Kingdom of Heaven.

When Saul was converted, and filled with the Holy Ghost, he confounded the Jews at Damascus, proving that this Jesus is the very Christ—the promised King. When the Roman centurion sent from Cæsar's city to inquire about the Kingdom of God, it was the Spirit who sent Peter to Cornelius at Cæsarea, where, when he had spoken, the Holy Ghost fell on all who heard the word; and thus, as already at Jerusalem and at Samaria, the Pentecostal outpouring of the Spirit was given to the Gentiles, no less than to the Jews and the Samaritans. What was the subject of Peter's discourse in the house of Cornelius? Read carefully Acts x. 34—48. It was things concerning the Kingdom—the Reign—of God, culminating in this: "It is He—the anointed Jesus of Nazareth, son of David—that was ordained of God to be the Judge of the quick and dead." And on Gentiles—representatives of the Roman Government, who believed the Gospel of the Kingdom of God—was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost. These Romans at Cæsarea, having the Gospel preached to them, seem an anticipation of the closing paragraph of the Acts, from which we learn that "Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house [at Rome], and received all that came in unto him, preaching the Kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him."

We have seen that Peter at Pentecost, under the power of the Holy Ghost, preached that God had raised up Christ to sit on David's throne. The first recorded discourse of Paul, at Antioch in Pisidia, under the power of the same Spirit, is to the same effect: "The promise made unto the fathers God hath fulfilled to us their children, in that He hath raised up Jesus again: as it is also written in the second Psalm, 'Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten Thee... from the dead." And he adds from Isa. lv. 3, "I will give unto you the sure mercies of David." The second Psalm is that wherein the Father says: "I have set my King upon my holy hill of Zion." "The sure mercies of David" are much more than blessings relating to David's earthly throne: they include all such promises as 1 Chron. xvii., and all those in the Messianic Psalms.

We have seen how the Spirit, by Philip, sent the Gospel of the Kingdom into Africa, in the person of the treasurer of Queen Candace. The same Divine Spirit suffered not Paul and Silas to go into Bithynia, but by the vision of the man of Macedonia opened Europe to the Gospel. And that it was the Gospel of the Reign of God that they preached in Philippi is evident by Paul's commanding the evil spirit of divination, in the name of Jesus Christ, to come out of the damsel. Compare Matt. ix. 35, x. 1—8, where the Gospel of the Kingdom is authenticated by healing the sick, cleansing the lepers, raising the dead, and casting out devils.

Passing from the Acts and passing over all the Epistles, we have in the Revelation, which is specially the book of the Kingdom, grace and peace from the Eternal King, and from the seven Spirits which are before his throne, and from Jesus Christ the faithful Witness (when on earth); the First Begotten from the dead (now in resurrection); and the Prince of the kings of the earth (when He comes to reign) (i. 4, 5).

In the vision of Him that sitteth upon the throne John sees seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God (iv. 5). All the visions of the Apocalypse are seen by John "in the Spirit." The book of Revelation is the supreme effort of inspiration; in it is gathered and condensed the essence of all the preceding books, as the fruit is the ultimate outcome of the tree; and to Him who is the Root and the Offspring of David the King, and the Bright and Morning Star, the Spirit and the bride say Come.

The Holy Ghost sent down from heaven is the demonstration and power of the Gospel. And the Gospel of which He is the power is the Good Tidings of the Reign of God.

M.

THE LEPER HOSPITAL AT THE CAPE.—In response to the request of a friend, the committee of the Religious Tract Society have sent a donation of interesting reading, pictures, and texts for the walls, in the hope of doing something to cheer the dreary lot of the poor inmates in this hospital, described in Blackwood's Magazine.

PASTOR ARCHIBALD BROWN'S work in East London, large as it already is, continues to grow apace. That the needs of the region are great, no one will doubt. Not long ago Mr. T. A. Denny went over a block of buildings in Bow Common, and was as grieved as Mr. Brown himself with the sights and sounds that presented themselves. Hearing subsequently that it was in the market, Mr. Denny bought the block of property and handed the deeds over to Mr. Brown. The houses are now being put in thorough repair, and will in due course be let at a nominal rent to Christian widows and aged couples, whose means are scarcely sufficient to pay the weekly sum which is usually demanded as house rent. It is hoped that a colony of Christian people will exercise a wholesome influence upon the surrounding sin and misery. A mission-hall connected with the Tabernacle is at hand, and efforts put forth in the name of the Lord must in due time bring forth fruit.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

II.—THE INHERITANCE.

1 PETER i. 3, 4.

How little does the wailing infant, over whose cradle glistens the coronet first won by the stout arm of a soldier ancestor, understand of the inheritance to which he has been born. The ancestral home, the far-spread lands, the noble rank, the prestige of an ancient and lofty lineage—all these things are his; but years must pass ere they can be truly realised or appreciated. And how much less do the most saintly and heaven-taught spirits conceive of that inheritance which is ours so soon as we become the children of God through faith in Jesus Christ! See how this fervent Apostle, though he would fain find words to tell us in what its bliss consists, is obliged to content himself with negatives. It is so much easier to say what the inheritance is not, than to set down the elements of its exceeding weight of glory. It were easier far to enumerate all the ills of this mortal life, and to say of each, This is not there, than to give an inventory of all that awaits the saints, as one by one they pass through the veil, and find themselves in the land of their choice. But surely, in dealing with the ungodly, it were well not only to dwell on the woes they must incur, but to insist on the glories they must miss unless they bethink themselves and repent. Ah! if only we could speak in glowing terms enough, tinged with the certainty and rapture of our own glad hopes concerning the fair land to which we are going, we should induce many a dweller in the City of Destruction to start with us on pilgrimage. But how can we talk with vivid conviction of that which occupies so small a space in our own inner life.

THE NATURE OF OUR INHERITANCE.—Many and varied descriptions might be given of it. Salvation, in its fullest and most perfect form, which is ours in germ, but which waits for its hidden glories of colour and form to be revealed in the summer that is coming (5, 9; Mark xiii. 28). The City of God, the vision of which, as its walls and pinnacles rose above the mists of time, allured the patriarchs forward, and made them content to dwell in frail and shifting tents. Heaven, with its cloudless light and sweet societies. Glory, as we shall see it on the face of our Emmanuel, and as it shall flood our own happy spirits.

But there is a deeper and more comprehensive view than any of these, one which includes them all, as the ocean includes seas, and bays, and straits, which, though known by separate names, are parts of its majestic and all-embracing fulness. In the law of the Jewish priesthood, "the Lord spake unto Aaron, Thou shalt have no inheritance in their land, neither shalt thou have any part among them. I am thy part, and thine inheritance, among the children of Israel" (Num. xviii. 20). It was a very satisfactory arrangement for the pious priest. He could well dispense with the oliveyards and vineyards, the cornfields and homesteads of Palestine, if he might have God to be the strength of his heart, and his portion for ever. And the Psalmist greedily caught at the thought, gladly surrendering all portion in this life, if only he might be satisfied with God (Ps. xvii. 14, 15). "The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: Thou maintainest my lot. The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage" (Ps. xvi. 5, 6).

Our inheritance is God Himself.—Not the golden harps. Not the sea of glass mingled with fire. Not rest from pain and immunity from sorrow. Not the blessed society of heaven. From all these, apart from God, we should at last turn away dissatisfied. They are but the accessories and embodiments of something deeper, more inward, and rapturous, the possession of God. Heirs of God, i.e., of all the communicable glories of the Divine nature. The Psalmist expressed the literal truth when he said, "Whom have I in the heaven but Thee?" To know Him, to explore his Being, to live on his fulness, to discover new tracks and continents in the terra incognita of Godhead, to see his glory, to be changed into his image—this is "the heritage of the servants of the Lord."

Our inheritance begins here.—As a matter of right all God's nature is ours directly we are born into his family, as a vast tract of country, filled with woods and rivers and ore, belongs to the heir at the moment of birth. But, as a matter of fact, we shall never occupy all, even when eternity is passing over us; the finite can never fully grasp the infinite. Yet, from the first moment of conversion, we may begin to enter on our inheritance. We begin by studying the inspired chart, which maps out that inheritance, and tells us what God is, and what He is prepared to be to us. Next we begin to appropriate and make use of his attributes and properties for daily need. Then we become possessed of the indwelling Spirit of God, who brings his very nature into ours. And so we come to possess God just in proportion as He possesses us. We inherit Him as our portion up to the measure in which He inherits us. "The Lord is my portion, saith my soul." "The Lord's portion is his people."

Up! friends; you are living on a vast estate. Around you on all hands are God's love, and grace, and power, and wisdom, awaiting your use. Set yourselves to know, and then to appropriate and enjoy. There is much ground yet to be possessed. Do not be content to be circumscribed and limited as were the Danes by our great Alfred. Be rather like the early squatters in the Western States, who roll back their fences, taking in evermore of the rich virgin soil, so adding field to field.

But our inheritance can only be perfected hereafter.—It is "reserved in heaven." We tire and faint amid our most rapturous experiences. The body refuses to sustain the weight of glory. The machinery of mortality breaks down beneath the pressure of the loftiest spiritual emotion. "I fell at his feet as dead." "Thou canst not see my face, for no man can see my face and live." And it may be that just as there are qualities in the universe which we cannot perceive because we have only five senses, so there are properties in God which we know not of because our powers of perception are limited. It is therefore quite conceivable that when clothed upon with our house which is from heaven, which will have a great many more windows in it than the earthly house of this tabernacle which is built for stormy weather, there will be sides and aspects of the Divine nature that we know nothing about to-day, but which shall be communicable and communicated to us. Ah, fair inheritance; if earth and heaven, which are but as his vesture, are so lovely, what will He be?

THE QUALITIES OF THIS INHERITANCE.—Incorruptible, i.e., as to its substance. It is not liable to decay. Nature looks her best in the days of early autumn. The golden corn sheaves, the gorgeous tints of the fading branches, the berries of the wild rose and the rowan, the undiminished foliage of the forest trees, the ruddy wealth of the orchard; but amid all, our enjoyment is tinged with sadness, for we know that decay lies beneath, eagerly at work, and that ere long the woodland glade will be strewn with the dying leaves, falling in myriads before the gale, and rotting in drenched heaps. So, too, amid our happiest converse with beloved ones a sad foreboding sometimes invades our hearts, suggesting that it will not last: the artless child must leave the mother's embrace; the brother will choose another confidante than the sister whom he dearly loved. But the knowledge of God, like our treasure in heaven, cannot corrupt, nor can it be stolen from us by any thieving hand. It cannot pass from us, nor we from it. It cannot share the fate of any earthly possession. Nay, when we are stript of all things else, and sit like another Job amid the wreck of former wealth, then we begin as never before to take measure of our eternal treasure; and there arises before us such a conception of the magnificence of our inheritance in God that we cry, "Give what Thou wilt; without Thee I am poor; and with Thee rich; take what Thou wilt away."

Undefiled, i.e., as to its purity.—"All possessions here are defiled and stained with many defects and failings." No marble without its flaw. No flower without its freckle. No fruit without its blight. No face without its blemish. No joy without its taint. No day without its regret. No heart, except one, without sin. The leprosy of human sin has so spread itself throughout the whole creation that, as in Israel of old, garments and houses are alike infected (Lev. xiii., xiv.). And even in the purest earthly friendships, a love which in its inception is innocent and natural too often becomes tainted with jealousy and selfishness, if not pollution.

But to know God is to come into contact with the source of Purity itself. "He that is near Me is near to the fire" is one of the sayings which the Apocrypha puts into the mouth of Christ. A wisp of straw might sooner survive the flame than defilement outlive contact with God. "Neither shall evil dwell with Thee." So far from our heritage becoming defiled, we cannot enjoy it unless we love Purity. The pure in heart alone see God: and the more they see of Him, the more pure they become.

Unfading, i.e., as to its beauty.—Here grows the Amaranth, the flower that fades not. One never tires of what is really beautiful. There is always some fresh expression on a beautiful face, some new witchery of colour on a beautiful landscape. We can easily understand how a great preacher of this century, after some masterly effort, would quiet his mind by taking from his pocket a handful of precious stones which he always carried there; handling them, rolling them to and fro, holding them up to the light, and never tiring of their ever-changing beauty.

There is all this in fellowship with God. To know Him is a fountain of ever fresh delight. He never palls on the satiated appetite. We never feel that there is monotony, sameness, weariness in his love. "All the happiness of this life," said William Law, "is but trying to quench thirst out of golden empty cups." But who shall speak thus of the river of God's pleasure, which, as it gratifies the thirst, increases it; which is ever more and better than we could conceive, and which allures us on to deeper and yet deeper draughts, to desires which grow in being satisfied?

OUR TITLE TO THIS INHERITANCE.—"Begotten again." It is not ours by merit; or by conquest; or by natural birth. We may be the children of parents who have passed into the skies, and may yet miss the inheritance of the saints in light. "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God"; so said One who could not err. "If children, then heirs," is the indispensable order.

Nor is it difficult to see why it must be so. The inheritance is spiritual, and it requires spiritual faculties to apprehend and enjoy it. But in such as have not been born again those spiritual faculties are wanting. A blind man may stand amid the fairest landscape unconcerned, because the one organ by which he could enjoy it is wanting. A lunatic may live in a house stored with treasures of art and literature unaffected, because his mind is blank to all its attractions. And the unregenerate man might stand in heaven itself, and miss God, for want of those powers of spiritual perception of which he is deficient. Sin blinds the eye, stops the ear, and hardens the heart. The prime necessity is life, and life can only begin in the new birth.

We cannot possess God unless we love Him. We cannot love Him, unless there is a kinship and reciprocity of nature. But this nature is not ours by the first birth; and if it is to be ours at all, it can only be by the impartation of a new nature and life, which are the gift of God, through his Word (ver. 23).

Hast thou been born again? The certain sign is the faith which receives Christ. "To as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become sons of God, even to them that believe on his name; which were born of God."

THE LINK BETWEEN OUR PRESENT AND FUTURE.—"A living hope." We already have something of our inheritance, but at the best it is only the earnest—what the half-crown of the labourer in the feeing market is to the year's wage, or the sod of the estate to the broad acres. "Now through a glass darkly"—glimpses soon shadowed; outlines not filled up; dark sayings we cannot interpret.

But the time is coming when we shall know even as we are known, and see face to face; when our communion with God shall be as unfettered as our service; when we shall love Him better, and possess Him more fully. Towards this blessed consummation, as yet reserved, our hope stretches out both her hands; meanwhile, it is an inspiration and stimulus for every moment of our life. It is, indeed, "a living hope."

Hope is said sometimes to die; this never can. Sometimes, though it lingers in the breast, it is inoperative; this is always quick and powerful. "Worldly hopes often mock men; they are not living, but lying and dying ones. We live to bury them. But this hope answers our expectations to the full, and deceives in no way, but far exceeds them."

Its basis is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.—The man who was once so hard to convince as he ran to the empty tomb, now realises the full meaning of that marvellous fact. Our Brother, Representative, and Lord, not only identified Himself with us in life and death, but has made us one with Himself in the Resurrection, which is also God's seal and Amen to all He said and did; and is, therefore, a Divine corroboration not only of his words, but of all the structure of hope and expectancy which we have built on them.

OUR ASCRIPTION OF PRAISE, with which this paragraph begins, and with which we close, is most befitting: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Who shall compute the full measure of his abundant mercy. Mercy that He gave his Son to die and to rise again! Mercy that He has adopted us to a position which angels might envy, because we are children, therefore heirs! Mercy that He is willing to be the inheritance of such as we are! Mercy that He has given us such strong consolation, and an anchor so sure and steadfast! What multitudinous, infinite, inexpressible mercy. Let us bless Him for it. The Father of Jesus, and our Father in Him. Praise Him! praise Him!

"It is a cold, lifeless thing to speak of spiritual things on mere report, but they that speak of them as their own, and as having some experience of their sweetness, cannot mention them, but their hearts are straight taken with such gladness as they are forced to vent in praises. This is such an inheritance that the very hopes and thoughts of it are able to sweeten the greatest griefs. What, then, shall the full fruition of it be?"

HUNGRY WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

DEAR SIR,—Very early in the history of the recent strike our visitors among the poor recognised the urgent importance of at once providing rations for the women and children. Accordingly we opened our usual breakfast and dinner table to children whose cases were thoroughly known to us, and in addition provided daily one thousand extra hot meals for adults. For weeks we have been quietly, but I trust very effectually, feeding some 2400 women and children every day. We made no public appeal, as we hoped our usual relief fund would suffice for the emergency. But this has long been exhausted, and now, unless special gifts for the purpose are received, the work will be sadly hindered.

Our organisation is very complete, so that no overlapping takes place; and it is a great comfort to know that the half-fed children and weakly women around us are receiving each day one, or, in some special cases, two, really nourishing hot meals. I regret to have to add that, so far as I can form any judgment on the matter, one result of the recent strike must be to greatly accentuate the distress in East London during the coming winter, and much earnest effort will be needed to avert suffering among the poorest.—Yours most truly,

THOS. J. BARNARDO.

18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

HARRINGAY, N.—A useful work has been commenced in this growing district by Rev. W. Frith. Some weeks ago a small iron mission-hall, seating about 160 persons, was opened for evangelistic work. God has greatly blessed the effort, and the building is already proving too small for the numbers attending. A Union Church has been formed on the doctrinal basis of the Evangelical Alliance. It numbers some fifty members, and others are waiting admission. It is proposed to erect an iron church to seat 800 persons.

THE CHRISTIAN GIVING UNION of the Presbyterian Church of England is an attempt to lift giving out of the rut into which it has sunk, that it may become a means of grace, and an act of worship worthy of Him who giveth all. The conditions of membership are: (1) To set apart a proportion of income for religious and charitable purposes; (2) to try to induce others to do the same. No one is asked to pledge himself to any particular amount, it being left to his own conscience to determine whether he will give one tenth, one twentieth, or any other proportion of his income. The amount ought prayerfully to be set apart as the Lord's portion, for religious and charitable objects. Rev. J. S. Rae, of Sunderland, in a circular recently issued, intimates that he will be glad to supply cards of membership and explanatory leaflets to any who may desire them.

SAND BUILDERS.

WHERE the sands of silvery hue
Fringe the ocean's mantle blue,
And the billows crested white,
Flash with myriad sunbeams bright,
Tiny sons of Neptune bold,
Mermaids wee with tresses gold,
Revel 'midst the azure waves,
Seaweed, boulders, shells, and caves;
Till the fast-receding tide
Leaves a playground smooth and wide.
Then these merry elfin bands
Castles build upon the sands.
But beyond yon sunny creek
Smiles the ocean's shining streak;
And ere long its rippling flow
Layeth tower and rampart low.

. . . .

So, beside the boundless sea
Of a vast eternity,
All the tribes of earth's broad lands
Seem but children on the sands;
Moulding unto thought or will
Shrines of labour, art, and skill.
But ere long, with ruthless sweep,
O'er them flows the mighty deep.
Yet upon this treacherous shore,
'Midst the cyclone's fearful roar,
'Midst the wildest hurricanes,
Firm, secure, a Rock remains;
Let your all on Him abide,
Safe beyond destruction's tide.

HARRIET JULIA EVANS.

Tollington Hall Gospel Mission.

THE members of this unsectarian Mission, in Hornsey-road, Holloway, are meeting with much success in the work. During the past two years many have professed to pass from death unto life. In addition to the Sunday services, a large Bible-class for men and women is held during the week, as well as Gospel and temperance meetings. In January last a Gospel Samaritan Mission was instituted; the object is the seeking and saving of the lost, and the relieving of temporal needs. Two sisters labour almost day and night to bless these poor ones. The many happy hearts and homes where, but a short while ago, reigned misery and despair, testify of God's grace and power to save. Mr. Henry Bird has accepted the position of hon. pastor of the Mission.

The lease of the hall expires in March next, and the present building will have to be pulled down. It is greatly desired to erect a new hall, and within a few yards of the present meeting-place there is a vacant plot of ground admirably adapted for the erection of a suitable structure. The ground landlord requires that a building shall be raised to the value of £1000. If any of our readers feel led to help, the superintendent of the Mission, Mr. F. J. Brazier, 56, Seven Sisters'-road, Holloway, will give fuller information. We heartily commend the effort. A very good work is in progress, and its deserves help.

BASEL GERMAN EVANGELICAL MISSIONARY SOCIETY.—The forty-ninth report of work in South-Western India gives details of a large amount of effort. The native church has now 9391 members; this is not including many converts who have, for one reason or another, joined other Christian communities. When the Mission was founded, its sphere was the home of idolatry; now a generation is growing up, under educational and religious privileges. It is hoped that in the near future many of these will come out on the Lord's side, and be added to the Church. The schools of the Mission number 119, with 6191 pupils—two-thirds of them heathen. Evangelistic and medical work are carried on with vigour; and, if the record discloses circumstances of anxiety in some places, it is full of encouragement as to others.

More Leaves from my Notebook.

BY REV. WILLIAM HASLAM, M.A.
Author of "From Death into Life. An Autobiography."

XXVII.—"THAT LADY."

"IT is wonderful! That lady has done me more good than scores of men speakers or preachers either. Who is she?"

"That, sir, is the question which a certain Sultan of Turkey always asked when any remarkable event occurred. He had an idea that a woman was sure to be connected with it somehow."

"Ah, just like Eve," said my friend; "but this one makes an honourable amend. This lady does good—unmitigated good."

I said, "I will tell you something about her if you like, and how she began speaking. It was in a similar manner that a lad said he was converted, that was, partly by himself, and partly by God. When the boy was interrogated as to what he meant, he said, 'I did all the opposition, and God did all the rest.'

"So it was with this lady. She began in early days, more than sixteen years ago, by strongly objecting to women speaking—protesting, disliking, and criticising. As to herself, she was not accustomed even to read aloud, and said that she did not know how. She could sing in a drawing-room, but not without being pressed to do so. She was worth pressing, however, for her voice was very rich and strong.

"In the course of two years she happened to hear Messrs. Moody and Sankey in the north. She did not think much of them, for she had heard better preaching and better singing too; but, for all that, she was greatly struck with the clear articulation of Mr. Sankey's singing. She remarked that she could hear and distinguish every word he sang; he kept the tune, and threw emphasis into it, from the meaning of the words. This was a new idea to her, for she had hitherto been particular about her time and notes, making the words secondary; whereas Mr. Sankey's words were everything, and the tune only an accompaniment.

"When she returned to the south she became interested in a place where hundreds of people were living in almost a heathen state, utterly regardless of every effort that was put forth to do them good. Having received the consent of the vicar and the use of a suitable room, it came to her mind to invite some of these careless and thoughtless people to attend a meeting. There she sang the Gospel to them in clear articulation. As they took an interest in this, she soon persuaded them to join in the choruses of hymns while she sang the verses. Between these she took opportunity to speak directly to those present about the salvation of their souls. At the close of the hour she bid them go home, and come again the following week, bringing others with them. They did so, and in a short time the room in which they assembled was well filled, and continued to be so during a space of five years without a single week being missed. Some scores of souls were saved, and the neighbourhood greatly changed. An iron church was afterwards put up in this place, and the members of the weekly class formed a good nucleus for the congregation of it. Now there is a handsome and flourishing stone church where the work thus simply commenced is being carried on.

"Since that time that lady has gone on speaking wherever she has had place and opportunity, receiving many seals to her ministry, while not a few preachers are content to speak without any such result; too many of them think they have done well when the sermon has been heartily rendered and has given satisfaction."

"Now, sir," said my friend, "I like your interesting and practical description. It seems to me there are hundreds of gifted ladies who are doing nothing, but who might easily begin and go on like that."

"Yes," I said, "I know some who have already taken a leaf out of her book, and many more might well do the same. But they must have courage and energy enough to stand against opposition and discouragement."

My friend laughed and said, "Did the lady in question, then, begin her spiritual career with opposition?" I replied that I did not know her when she was converted. I only became acquainted with her subsequently, at a mission I was holding in her neighbourhood. Then, it appears, without knowing her, or who she was, I gave her one of my tracts, "The Lord's Messenger," little thinking what a messenger she was afterwards to become.

Soon after this, when we were introduced, she manifested her spirit of opposition and criticism, and gave me her mind about missions and mission preachers: it was the most extraordinary proceeding she had ever witnessed in a church or in a pulpit, and so on. The vicar had told me that his congregation would not stand an after-meeting, and that some of them had said that they would walk out of the church if I spoke to them personally.

I repeated this to the congregation from the pulpit, and added: "'Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take.' I promise not to come nearer to you than I am now. Do not run away from the after-meeting."

"The very idea of that!" said the lady. "And just think of your singing a solo in the pulpit, expecting us to join in it, when we had never heard such words or such a tune before: 'I do believe, I will believe, that Jesus died for me.' Then the idea of telling us that we were all saved or unsaved. I never heard of such a thing!"

I saw from the first that this lady had some vitality in her, and I was taken with her frankness. I daresay the strangeness or novelty of a mission service, with its irregularities, as contrasted with the stated and stately formalities of an ordinary service, were sufficient cause to arouse the criticisms in question. Being accustomed to my own work, it had not occurred to me how uncouth my manner might appear before such proper people.

The alleged strangeness, however, wore off in time, and the lady became as much at home in the deep sea fishing work as she had been in the sylvan glades of quiet pastoral teaching. Her career has been one of success and blessing, and her example very catching and easy to be followed—all the more so for the common-sense and reality of her words.

Two well-educated young ladies took her meeting for several weeks, and then became so interested in the kind of work that they also began. They obtained the use of a schoolroom in their own parish, and opened it for the benefit of outside people who went nowhere. These were quickly attracted to the meeting; for, besides the kindness of these ladies towards the people, they sent down their harp from the drawing-room to accompany the singing.

One evening, as I was going by invitation to give an address in that place, an enthusiastic passer-by, not knowing me, hustled me along, saying, "Come on, the harp's up to-night!"

"Indeed," I said to my friend, "the Lord is using women in a marvellous way in these days. They often have far more influence with rough and unmanageable people than we men have."

"Sir," said the gentleman, "I wish you much joy in your exemplary disciple."

"Thank you," I replied, "I have much joy in the same."

"Pray, sir," he said, "and have you set other ladies going like this?"

"Yes," I answered, "thank God, I have been enabled to do so. Many scores it has been my privilege to help forward in the path of usefulness during the last forty years, for the glory of God and the good of many souls."

WEST CENTRAL MISSION.

THE scattered forces of Christ's army throughout our great City are returning to their posts, and resuming aggressive work among its masses for God and man. The work of our Wesleyan friends in West London did not entirely cease during the holidays, but several branches of the work were dropped for a time. The resumption of the Friday evening meetings in Princes Hall, Piccadilly, last week, may be said to mark the fresh start of the winter's work. There was a very fair attendance, and the exercises of the evening were most profitable and stimulating. Rev. H. Price Hughes presided, and gave the address.

Some preliminary announcements by Mr. JOSIAH NIX may be noted. He told of the "Goose Club" that is now an interesting item in the machinery of Wardour Hall, Soho. This club not only makes provision for the supply of creature comforts to the poor at the Christmas season, but helps to keep the people outside the blighting influences of the ginshop. Mr. Nix hopes to have a membership of at least 500 this year, and he is anxious that other friends may take a practical interest in the doings of the club. Then he purposes having harvest festivals, at Wardour Hall on October 6 and at Cleveland Hall October 13. For these occasions he covets the possession of about three tons of vegetables. So if any of our country readers have been blessed with good crops, they can send a thank-offering in the shape of a sack of potatoes or other cereals to Mr. Nix, at Wardour Hall, Little Chapel-street, Soho.

On these Friday evenings, Mr. HUGHES will lead his hearers this winter in an unconventional study of the Acts of the Apostles. In opening the subject last week, he said we should all be anxious to be continually adding chapters to that record. To this end he would consider the methods and the triumphs of the early disciples. Luke wrote this treatise apparently for the special benefit of Theophilus; he little thought what was to be the outcome of it. In this we see the value of seeking the salvation and the culture of a single soul. We read here of what Jesus "began to do and to teach." It is not enough for a Christian that he should live Christ; he must witness for Him; he must be a teacher as well as a doer. Throughout Roman Catholic Europe the symbol of Christianity is the crucifix, but at Pentecost the symbol of the faith was the tongue of fire. Jesus began the work, and it is left to his followers, in all ages, to continue and to complete it. Our work is the very same work as Christ began—that of turning this world, which is now a veritable hell, into a paradise. Every man and woman must wait on God to know what special part of the work he is fitted for. If we are willing to put ourselves in God's hands, He will empower us and endow us with the needed gifts and graces. In closing his brief talk, Mr. Hughes said they would need a special baptism of the Spirit for the work of a fourteen days' continuous mission which they proposed to hold in Princes Hall in November. Before that they hoped to visit every house in the neighbourhood, and invite the people to these meetings.

The anniversary of the West Central Mission will take place in St. James's Hall on the last Friday in October. The first number of the new monthly penny magazine Advance, which is to record in detail the doings and plans of the West Central work, is issued this week.

THE SOCIAL PURITY ALLIANCE makes an earnest appeal to the public on behalf of its funds. Its work is mainly of an educational character. It seeks especially to get hold of young men and encourage them to work and fight for purity; also to enlighten parents, and encourage them to watch over their children, and at the proper time to warn and and arm them against the temptations which are sure to come sooner or later. The secretary of the Alliance is Mr. C. P. Edwards, 7, Victoria-street, Westminster, S.W.

For the Young.

CAUGHT IN A SHOWER.

THE following brief and true account of a remarkable incident in the life history of an Englishman, who, with his family, resided in Brussels during the first quarter of the present century, is abridged from the full narrative in The Sunday at Home:—

On a certain day Edward Hammond and his wife, a God-fearing, Bible-reading couple, sat at their table, the Scriptures open before them, conversing upon the sad fact that the business of tailoring, in which the husband was engaged, had proved insufficient to afford them support and to pay their rent, and that in a very few days they would be constrained to acquiesce in the demand of their landlord to yield possession of the building. The almost despairing words of Edward were interrupted by the entrance of two fine little boys of eight and six years, who, in a breath, cried out to their father and mother for permission to go out with the maid. It appeared that the Emperor of Russia was in the city, on a visit to the King of the Belgians, and certain public festivities were in progress in honour of the notable event.

The children having received the permit they craved, Edward, after more conversation with his hopeful wife, rose and walked towards the door that led from the parlour to the shop, saying as he did so:—"You are right, Mary. Your faith rebukes my unbelief. I will try to learn from you, and trust Him; and at least I know that whatever happens He will not forsake us."

Edward was the son of an English clergyman, who dying early, the education of the young man was summarily put a stop to; and that he might not be a charge on his brothers and sisters, but rather that he might aid in their support, he had engaged in a calling which at the outset was by no means congenial to his tastes. His business in Brussels, at first successful, had of late fallen away very much; and, although he was one who had been extremely kind to his assistants and workpeople, and had been a ready helper to the poor, he now knew of no one to whom, in his extremity, he could turn for assistance.

Upon the day in question, the assistants having been given a holiday, Edward occupied the time, alone in his shop, looking over his account books. While engaged in this manner, a tall officer in grey military undress entered the shop. Rain was falling, and he asked permission to remain under shelter until it ceased. Edward assured him that he was welcome, and was about returning to his interrupted occupation, when the stranger, who seemed inclined to converse, began talking of the attractions of the city, and then of the rain, which he trusted would not injure the crops. "A little sunshine," he continued, "will do a great deal of good after this rain."

"Yes, with the blessing of God," said Edward.

At this remark the stranger gave evidence of interest, and manifested his approval of the sentiment by responding, "We sow and reap, but God giveth the increase." In the land of his self-exile, grateful to Edward's ears were the Scripture words. They established a bond between the two so casually thrown together, and, after that, talk flowed so freely that, when the shower was over, both forgot to notice the fact. Edward saying that he was an Englishman, his visitor answered that he had been in England, and went on to speak of the country and the people with interest and admiration, dwelling with peculiar pleasure upon the profitable intercourse he had enjoyed while in London with members of the Society of Friends.

Then the stranger questioned Edward upon the length and circumstances of his residence in Brussels, its advantages and disadvantages, and did not rest until he had heard all about the difficulties under which Edward laboured, who his landlord was, where he lived, and so on. Rising finally, the stranger feelingly referred to some labour of pity and love that had come under his notice while in London, and concluded with the expression of his belief that God who pitieth the sparrows would not forget the Christian man who trusted in Him. With thanks for the shelter, and a pleasant glance of farewell, the stranger left the shop; while Edward, going back to his books, felt greatly cheered through the words of sympathy that he had heard, the attentive listening to his troubles, and the evident sharing of his faith in the Unseen.

Nevertheless, five anxious, sorrowful days for Edward and his wife wore slowly by, until the morning dawned on which the former must tell his landlord that he was a ruined man, and prepare to quit the house that for ten years had been his home. Again husband and wife sat at the table, the meal almost untouched, discoursing sadly of the future. Though not prepared to believe that their God had forsaken them, yet hope, with Edward especially, had well nigh vanished. In this hour of gloom, their boy Willie rushed in, flushed and breathless, with a parcel in his hand.

"Oh! mother, father," he cried, "such a strange thing has happened. A gentleman—an officer—has been in the shop asking for father."

"Nothing so strange in that, my son."

"Not in an officer asking for father, of course. But this was such an officer. He wore a splendid green coat all covered with gold, and a sword with gold on the hilt. He leaped from his horse, and a servant who rode after him took the bridle; then he came into the shop and asked for Monsieur Hammond. Jacquard bowed down to the ground and said he would call you. The officer said, 'Do so, for I have a packet to give him, and it is of importance.' Then I spoke to him and told him I was your eldest son, and that he might trust it to me, and I would give it to you right safely; I often did your messages for you. 'Then give him this,' said he, 'and say to him these words: From his Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of Russia.'"

Edward persisted that it must be all a mistake, but his wife, pointing to the address, his own name on the packet, in much bewilderment he broke the numerous seals, and found within the parchment title-deeds which conveyed to him the house from its late owner. An accompanying slip of paper contained these words: "In remembrance of him to whom you gave shelter from the rain last Wednesday." Edward then narrated—what he had not done before—the incident of the stranger's call. With deeply thankful hearts their morning meal was finished, while lips of gratitude and praise uttered those words of the Psalmist: "I love the Lord because He hath heard the voice of my supplications. Because He hath inclined his ear unto me, therefore will I call upon Him as long as I live."

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Sept. 29, Jer. xxiii. 1—8; Mon., Sept. 30, Jer. xxiii. 23—32; Tues., Oct. 1, Ps. lxxviii. 1—16; Wed., Oct. 2, Ps. lxxviii. 17—33; Thurs., Oct. 3, Ps. lxxviii. 34—54; Fri., Oct. 4, Ps. lxxviii. 55—72; Sat., Oct. 5, Ps. lxxix. 1—13.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. C. H. Nash, B.A., Athenæum, Derby, Sept. 26—27. Mr. Henry Hutchinson, St. Paul's Parochial Hall, Ferndale-road, Brixton, Sept. 29 to Oct. 7, at 7; Northampton Temperance Hall (with Mr. James S. Tyler), Oct. 9—18; Liverpool, Oct. 14; Manchester, Oct. 15. Mr. Alfred Armitage, Yeovil, Sept. 22—27; Carlisle, Oct. 3—11; Newcastle, Oct. 12—19. Mr. H. W. Pewtress, Baptist Church, Shooter's Hill-road, Blackheath, Oct. 20—25, 7 p.m. Two meetings for reports of seaside services, Princes Hall, Piccadilly, Oct. 8, 3 and 6.30 p.m., with addresses by various workers.

A CHINESE PROCLAMATION.

THE Governor of Ningpo has issued the following curious proclamation to the agriculturists of his district, enjoining them not to kill certain of the smaller animals:—

"Frogs are produced in the middle of your fields; although they are little things, they are small human beings in form. They cherish a life-long attachment to their natal soil, and at night they melodiously sing in concert with clear voices. Moreover, they protect your crops by eating locusts, thus deserving the gratitude of the people. Why go after dark with lanterns, scheming to capture the harmless and useful things? Although they may be nice flavouring for your rice, it is heartless to slay them. Henceforward it is forbidden to buy or sell them, and those who do so will be severely punished. Sparrows, again, sing at their season sweetly in the trees. They are not like wolves, tigers, or leopards, which may take to injuring men when they grow large. Why go out with nets to catch them all from the hills and woods? Know that for the strong to slay the feeble for food is the way of wild beasts and rapacious birds. Resist the lust of your mouths and bellies for savoury meats, and thus act in unison with heaven, which loves to preserve life. Both these sorts of creatures you are forbidden to catch from henceforth. Do not flatter yourselves that after this warning the punishment for disobedience will be mild."

THROUGH THE VILLAGES.

WRITING recently to a friend, Mr. John M. McAuliffe, director of the Wayside Village Mission, thus describes the work during the summer:—"Our Bible-carriage has, in some eighty days of very real work in the counties of Kent and Sussex, visited forty-two villages, not including many lonely hamlets. This means visiting every house, from the hall and parsonage to the lonely wayside cottage. The preaching and visitation have been done by two missionaries, with the assistance of myself and a gentleman friend who devotes much time and substance to the Redeemer's kingdom.

"During the entire period 150 meetings were held, at which there was an average attendance of fully 200 persons. Thus we were able to speak of God's salvation to over 30,000 village folk. Moreover, children's meetings have been held, and I have received quite a pile of letters containing answers to Bible questions. Large numbers of cheap Bibles and many thousands of Gospel tracts and cards have been sold; also some 16,000 four-page tracts have been given away. Many souls have been dealt with, everything being made subservient to the work of winning souls. My own personal expenses and those of my gentleman friend are met by private means; but the expenses of the two missionaries, with horse, &c., and outlay on books or tracts given away or sold at reduced prices, amount to £85.

"The three giants we meet in our village work are: (1) The stolid indifference of the people; this by God's grace we are often able to overcome. (2) Hyper-Calvinism held in a fatalistic spirit. (3) Ritualism. Do not underrate this last. It is a hundred-fold stronger than most people think. My work is to preach the Gospel, not to defend Protestant principles. This latter I most surely do in preaching Christ crucified. But in taking the Gospel to those places, I am but too plainly convinced that Protestant principles and Protestant truth are undermined to an extent little dreamt of. The great enemy to the Gospel to-day in the villages is sacerdotal practices and teaching."

The work is very interesting indeed. In addition to discharging the responsibilities of director, Mr. McAuliffe is engaged in hearty effort in and about Tunbridge Wells, where he resides.

ENGLISHMEN IN INDIA.

THE Anglo-Indian Evangelisation Society exists for the spiritual benefit of Europeans, Eurasians, and English-speaking natives of India. The eighteenth annual report tells of operations which amply justify the existence of the special agency, and indicates needs which constitute an eloquent appeal for largely increased activity. Only, however, in proportion as support is accorded, can the Society send workers forth into the field.

It is grievous to read of the religious destitution in which many Englishmen live in India. Doubtless, in not a few cases, the love of darkness rather than light explains the sad spiritual condition. Yet there are a large number who are distinctly unable to secure ministrations which they are conscious of needing, and greatly desire to enjoy. Not only are the Europeans in India in the midst of heathenism, but they are bringing up families without the blessing of Christian influences. A long chapter might be written of opposition from Romish and semi-Romish quarters. Rev. G. W. Oxborough, who is now in Assam, tells of a service on a ferry steamer, and says, "It was something new to the natives to see us singing, praying, and preaching, on the deck of the ferry-boat on the Ganges, and the skipper on his knees pleading with God to save the souls of his men." Rev. H. Rylands Brown, whose work is chiefly among the tea planters, writes of a visit to Pubna:—Early on Sabbath morning I spoke to a crowded meeting of English-speaking Babus in the Town Hall; subject, 'The Influence of the Bible on Character.' This meeting has been followed by nearly thirty applications for Bibles, which I am enabled to circulate by the Society for the Free Distribution of the Scriptures. In the evening, service was held in the house of our host, attended by all the Europeans in the station, and the civil surgeon and his wife, who are Bengali Christians."

Rev. Dr. A. G. Fraser, who has rendered important voluntary service to the Society, heartily approves of the projected plan of sending young men out to India for a limited period, to evangelise before entering upon their life-work as ministers or missionaries. He asks:—"Will this plan be carried out into action, or only talked about? The Society ought to have fifty such agents in India to-day ... Your Society must remove this deplorable destitution, or it will continue to the eternal loss of myriads of souls." We advise friends of the work of this excellent Society to secure copies of the report from the general secretary, Rev. John Fordyce, "Simla," 124, Kensington Park-road, Notting-hill, London, W.

THE CONSUMPTION OF TOBACCO.—Official statistics, says the Monthly Letter of the Anti-Narcotic League, give too much reason to fear that there is a distinct increase in the tobacco habit in Great Britain, and that the consumption per head of the population, after falling off greatly since 1877, has again nearly reached the very large proportion of that year. Those who are labouring to educate the public mind to the renunciation of an injurious and costly custom must regret this deeply, but they will frankly recognise the fact and find in it a potent call to renewed and increased exertion.

APPLEDORE SAILORS' REST.—The first anniversary of the North Devon branch of the Seamen's Christian Friend Society was recently held at Appledore, under the presidency of Colonel Carnegy, of Bideford. The building was crowded; the local ministers and many other friends were present. The Sailors' Rest, at Appledore, has proved a great success. It has been well frequented by seamen and fishermen, many of whom have been brought to the Saviour. Mr. Cairns, the missionary, has also done a good work at Bideford, Barnstaple, and Fremington Quay. Rev. G. J. and Mrs. Hill have been conducting a week of special services at Appledore. Night after night the place has been crowded, and at the after-meetings many have been dealt with.

EVANGELISTIC WORK IN AUSTRIA.

PUBLIC Gospel meetings are forbidden in Austria, and it is only by means of private gatherings that evangelical truth can be brought under the notice of the people. The Church of Rome holds the millions in the chains of darkness and error, and by means of Jesuit espionage and the confessional, effectually prevents many who would come into light and liberty from enjoying that pleasure and advantage. Consequently, Roman Catholics who, by God's grace, are led to abandon the doctrines and practices of Popery, have to suffer much persecution and oppression.

Let it not be thought, however, that these precautions keep the Gospel out of Austria. There are little bodies of believers here and there, as well as spiritually minded Christians living in isolation in many parts. Itinerating work has been carried on for years, by missionaries who have held Bible-readings and prayer-meetings, as well as distributed the Scriptures and Gospel books and tracts. A missionary who has laboured in the Tyrol and other provinces, writes: "I often meet with Protestants, who, in their lonely position among Roman Catholics, are in great danger of being caught in the bondage of Popery. The priests, and especially the nuns and monks who abound everywhere in Austria, consider it a work of special merit to lead 'heretics' into the bosom of the 'Holy Catholic Church' of Rome. By the grace of God I have been able to keep not a few back from this step, and they and many others are always very grateful for my visits." Here and there, people have openly and bravely come out from Rome and declared themselves Protestants, giving notice to the authorities of the step they had taken. This is required by the law of the land, and often has very serious consequences for the business or profession of those who have the courage to do it.

What with visiting the sick, lending books, and rescuing young women from positions of danger, the workers have done much to deserve the thanks rather than incur the suspicion of the authorities. But Rome is only tolerant of herself, so that it may be said, in a definite sense, with regard to Austria, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation." At present, the work is but as a grain of mustard seed in the land, but in due course, with God's blessing, it will make a salutary impression upon the abounding sin and impurity.

FAREWELL TO WESLEYAN MISSIONARIES.—At a meeting a few evenings ago in the chapel of the Richmond Training College, good-bye was said to six missionaries designated for work abroad. Two of the brethren go to India: Revs. J. Lewis and Dr. Hudson (medical); three to the West Indies—Revs. A. J. Andrews, A. Hardy, and C. Ridge; and one to Ceylon—Rev. E. M. Weaver. Rev. Dr. Jenkins, who presided, entreated the new missionaries to make up their minds not to be discouraged. He maintained that it was quite worth while to go to India for the illumination of one's mind, although twenty years may thus be spent. The proceedings were characterised by a wholesome enthusiasm throughout.

THE MISSION BAND AND TRACT SOCIETY, at City-road Wesleyan Chapel, London, held its annual meeting a few days ago. The band now numbers fifty-five, and the Society twenty-five members who distribute over 500 tracts weekly. Mr. J. Allan Baker presided over the meeting, at which several speakers delivered addresses in praise of both branches of effort. Mr. T. C. Garland, of the Seamen's Mission, told of a man to whom a tract was given. He signed the pledge at the Mission house, and afterwards gave his heart to God. He soon became the captain of a ship; it was Mr. Garland's great pleasure to assist him in his first service on board, and to hear before long the joyful news that all the men were "tarred with the same brush" as their captain. Mr. Josiah Nix urged young people to join the Mission Band. They could not all become local preachers, nor were all qualified to be Sunday-school teachers. The Mission Band forms a link between the two, and gives elder scholars something to do. The Mission Band Union now contains more than 4000 members.

OPEN-AIR WORK IN IRELAND.

FOR the past seven or eight weeks, open-air services have been conducted in Kingstown, the premier township of Dublin, under the auspices of the Kingstown Young Men's Christian Association.

The services have been held near the East Pier, the fashionable promenade of the place. Since the great burning of the Bibles by the Redemptionist Fathers, about thirty-four years ago, in the precincts of the Roman Catholic Chapel, as a protest against the open-air services then held by Rev. Mr. Wallace, a Methodist minister, and which had to be discontinued through the persecution of Roman Catholics and the representations of the authorities, no such effort has been attempted in a place of public resort, though five years ago a small service was conducted by some Christians in a field in a quiet part of the neighbourhood.

From 200 to 400 have attended during these services, the majority being Roman Catholics, and the Gospel has been faithfully preached under great difficulties. Numbers of the "corner-boy" class have done all in their power to interrupt and break up the meetings, and in some cases successfully. But on other occasions the members have had the joy of seeing an attentive audience, notably on one occasion, when Mr. Thomas H. Reilly, of Dublin, addressed about 400 people with telling effect. One good result of the meetings has been that we have been able to announce our meeting on Sunday evening for both sexes in our rooms at 8.30, with the result that large numbers of men have been brought inside to hear the Gospel; they have listened most attentively, and have made no disturbance.

The services will be discontinued shortly for this year, but may we not hope that the good seed sown will spring up in many hearts, bearing precious fruit?

S. A. MARTIN, Hon. Sec.

ARTILLERY-LANE GOSPEL MISSION, 5, Artillery-street, Bishopsgate, E., is a genuine Christian agency in a very needy part of London. The seventeenth annual report states that special attention continues to be paid to the common lodging-houses, in fourteen of which services are held every Sunday evening. It is admitted that very few conversions are seen among the degraded people who live in these places, yet great attention is paid by many to the Gospel message, and there is reason to believe that not a few decide to follow Christ, although they are afraid to confess Him openly. The model dwellings and public-houses are also visited, and the mission-hall is the home of many agencies having for their object the salvation of men, women, and children. The income during the year for all purposes amounted to only £114, but with this a large amount of good work was well done. The hon. superintendent is Mrs. S. Finn, 14, Talbot-place, St. Ann's-road, Stamford-hill.

THE LEYSIAN MISSION, in Whitecross-street, E.C., is as excellent in working as it is interesting in history. The old Leysians did a brave thing in incurring mission responsibilities in honour of their estimable school, and for the glory of God. They are throwing much vigour into the management of the many valuable agencies, and they see cheering fruit of their labour. The site for the new hall and buildings in Errol-street, off Whitecross-street, will allow of the erection of such spacious buildings as the Mission requires. Of the needful outlay, £8500, about one-half has already been received or promised, and it is hoped that friends will come forward without delay to encourage the good Leysians, and help in spreading the blessings of the Gospel among the dense population in the centre of which their Mission stands. Social, educational, and religious work are admirably combined for the benefit of young and old. In a recent circular we read that it is difficult to estimate the extent to which the efforts of the labourers will be fostered by the acquirement of larger and more suitable premises. All communications should be addressed to the secretary, Mr. F. A. Holman, 23, St. Mary Axe, E.C.

Letters to the Editor.

ARMY CHAPLAINS AND SCRIPTURE READERS.

SIR,—I am very glad that the practice adopted by the Army Scripture Readers' Society of placing their agents under the superintendence, in very many cases, of High Church chaplains, is receiving attention. That practice is, in my judgment, wholly indefensible on the part of an evangelical society, and very unfair, and even dangerous, to the Scripture-readers themselves.

Some five and twenty years ago I left the committee of the Society, mainly because I did not approve of such a policy, and, if I recollect rightly, the late Captain Trotter resigned at the same time, and for the same reason. The course suggested by "G. K. S. M.," with whose views I entirely coincide, appears to me the only right one to follow, and I sincerely hope that it will be strongly urged upon the Society.—Yours,

S. ARTHUR BLACKWOOD.

SIR,—As rector of the parish of Carrigrohane, Cork, in which the military station at Ballincollig is situated, I beg to say, in reference to some letters which have lately appeared in your paper, that the barracks in question, being Government property, are considered to be extra parochial and as such free from my control, although at present I assist the chaplain in the week-day duties there. I would also mention that Divine service is held in the parish church every Lord's Day at 11.30 a.m. and 5 p.m., a later evening service being quite unsuited to the circumstances of our remote and scattered country population.

As to Ritualism, or anything approaching thereto, I need scarcely say it finds no place in my church or ministrations. It never did, and, with God's help, never shall.—Yours faithfully,

FREDERICK DOBBIN, M.A.

SIR,—My attention has been called to a letter in THE CHRISTIAN of September 13, signed "George Haycraft, Royal Gunpowder Mills, Ballincollig." In this letter is the following statement:—"All the work of the 'chaplain' at Ballincollig is a short service on Sunday mornings, conducted by curates from the Cork churches. They drive out from Cork on a car, conduct service for an hour, mount the car, and back to Cork again for morning service at their own churches. So much for chaplaincy at Ballincollig."

If this statement were true, the acting chaplain would incur dismissal for neglect of his prescribed duties, and the commanding officer who certifies that those duties are performed would incur grave censure. Besides the regular service with sermon on Sunday morning, which your correspondent states is "all the work of the chaplain," and which, by the way, is always performed by the chaplain or his curates assistant, and not by the clergy of other Cork churches, the following religious duties are regularly performed throughout the year. There are a service and Gospel address by the clergyman of the parish in the garrison church every Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Twice in the week the barracks and hospital are visited, with prayer and exposition of Holy Scripture in the hospital. Three classes are held in each week for the instruction of the young in Holy Scripture, one being for the boys of the military band. There is also pastoral visiting to soldiers and their families. So much for "chaplain's" work.

Besides this, ladies authorised by the chaplain visit the barracks and hold Gospel and temperance meetings; and before the advent of the Scripture-reader referred to they held the meetings, with much acceptance, on Sunday evenings. They visit the soldiers' families, distributing generally books, tracts, &c., and conducted Sunday-school for the children of 4th Hussars, the regiment referred to by your correspondent. So far I have stated the work done by, or under the supervision of, the chaplain. Your correspondent also states that the "service" conducted by the Scripture-reader on Sunday evenings was "the only Protestant Sunday evening service in the parish from year's end to year's end." The readers of THE CHRISTIAN ought to know that this also is incorrect, as evening service is held in the parish church every Sunday in the year by the respected incumbent, Canon Dobbin. The services on Sunday evenings during Lent were this year held by the senior chaplain at Cork, who voluntarily undertook these services, not being in any way required to do so. The fact that your correspondent is not a member of the Church would prevent me from entering into any controversy with him on the question of the form or ritual of those services. The animus manifested by his language, however, disentitles him to any consideration. I have very reluctantly fulfilled the duty urged on me of refuting the false statements of his letter.—I am, Sir, &c.,

MERVYN ARCHDALL, D.D.,
Archdeacon of Cork, and Acting Chaplain to Church of England Troops at Ballincollig.

Cork.

DEAR SIR,—I write to correct a mis-statement in Mr. Haycraft's letter which appeared in THE CHRISTIAN of September 13. He says: "All the work of the chaplain at Ballincollig is a short service on Sunday mornings...So much for chaplaincy at Ballincollig." For years past a weekly prayer-meeting has been held in the barrack schoolroom, conducted by the chaplain appointed by the Church of England, who also has a "religious instruction" class one day in the week for the soldiers' children, besides regularly visiting the military hospital. In addition to this the ladies of his family conduct a Sunday-school in the barrack schoolroom for the soldiers' children, and visit the "married quarters" every week.

I may further add that in my lengthened experience of work among soldiers in Cork and Ballincollig I cannot speak too highly of the kindness, sympathy, and help accorded to me by the chaplains.—Sincerely yours,

ELISE SANDES.

Soldiers' Home, Cork.

SIR,—My object in writing my letter was not to discredit the Society that Major Poole represents, but rather to call attention to what I firmly believe to be hindrances to greater usefulness in the Lord's service. It was a mistake on my part to write in connection with the Soldiers' Christian Association, and I take this opportunity of saying that the entire responsibility of my letter rests with myself, and that the Association named is in no way to be considered implicated in this correspondence.

Now to the subject. I am very glad to see the letter of "G. K. S. M." in your issue of September 13. It fully bears out the statement of mine which Major Poole denies, namely, that "very many, if not most, of the chaplains are Ritualists, teaching doctrines contrary to the Word of God." Agreed that superintendence of the Readers is necessary, but is the Committee not able to exercise that superintendence without bringing in the chaplains?

As to the difficulty of the Reader going into the hospitals and other places without authority, I would suggest that the Society try to arrange that with the War Office in the first place, and get the authority for all their agents. Thus there would be no danger of the chaplain upsetting or hindering the work.

I received a postcard bearing no name or address, but post-marked "Edinburgh," a few days ago, which appears to be from an army officer, in which he states that for many years he was interested in the A.S.R.S.; but, finding that some of the Readers had become tools in the hands of High Church chaplains, he withdrew his support. Both in India (he says) and in one or two cases at home, he found some chaplains had nothing to say to the Readers, and in those cases the work was most successful.

A lady, lately a superintendent of a Soldiers' Home, wrote saying that my letter was too true. Another lady, very well known as an earnest worker amongst soldiers, wrote to Mr. Cummings on reading my letter, and said that her experience of ten years was that chaplains were opposed to lay agencies, and their own teaching is in direct opposition to the simple Gospel. Sir, facts cannot be disproved, and when so many agree that the chaplains are Ritualists (that there are many exceptions I do not deny) it is surely high time that Christian workers should refuse to be controlled by them. In Christian work in the Army, there is a great deal too much of the fear of man. Thank God, his work cannot be overturned though all the powers of darkness be united to do it. Then let those who seek to win the soldiers for Jesus put their whole trust in the Lord, and in Him alone, and our work must be blessed.

"G. K. S. M." fears that the A.S.R.S. may lose some honoured patrons, if they cease to compromise with evil doctrine. Well, they will have my support, small though it be, and I believe that many who at present do not sympathise, will gladly do what they can to help extend the knowledge of Jesus Christ in the Army.—Very truly yours,

5, St. James-square, Bristol. CECIL SMITH.

YOUNG ENGLISHWOMEN IN PARIS.

DEAR SIR,—We have been asked by well wishers who have seen our "case" in the Paris Exhibition why it is that there is no one from whom they could receive a paper giving some account of our work among the English girls in Paris, or even a box into which they might drop a gratuity as an expression of sympathy?

Allow me to answer these inquiries through your columns. We are not permitted to distribute such papers or take money for charitable purposes in the Exhibition. The only good resulting to our work from "the World's Show," to counteract the increased strain upon our resources from the price of provisions being greatly raised, has been the influx of visitors to our Institutions.

It appears that my former letter was open to some misconception. Mrs. Lewis (née Miss Ada Leigh) will be in constant communication with her workers in Paris and London, and so remains the directress of the Institutions which bear her name. It is her purpose to re-visit them, if God will, a few months hence. All has been arranged to carry on the work, as heretofore, through her tried helpers.—Yours faithfully,

(MRS.) EMMA E. HORNIBROOK.

22a, Queen's-road, Bayswater.

VICTORIA HALL.—Through the kind generosity of various friends the committee have been enabled to take a fresh lease of the Royal Victoria Hall, Waterloo-road, and the Sunday evening mission services will be recommenced on Sunday evening next. The help of friends to assist the choir will be welcomed by Mr. Neale F. Horne, hon. sec., whose address is Bracklebury, Brandram-road, Lee, S.E.

BLACKGANG, I.W.—It was my privilege to be at the annual harvest meeting of the Blackgang Mission, on Wednesday, September 18, and your readers will be glad to know of the unabated interest which is taken in the work. The people come from all parts on that side of the island. It was most cheering to hear the people tell of God's goodness to them, and of the great spiritual blessing the ministry of the word had been through the beloved Reade family. A new hall would be a boon if the Lord would lead someone to give such.

Forest Gate. WILLIAM BROWN.

JEWS IN LONDON.—The building lately known as the Cambridge Heath "Unitarian Christian Church," has been secured by Rev. J. B. Barraclough, minister of the Episcopal Jews' Chapel, Palestine-place, for Hebrew Christian meetings and Jewish mission work, and will henceforth be known as "Emmanuel Hall." Mr. Barraclough earnestly appeals for the help of Christian friends, ladies or gentlemen, on Monday or Thursday evenings, especially in teaching English, &c., to foreign Jews. His address is 46, King Edward-road, Hackney, E.

BULL-FIGHTS IN PARIS.—The correspondent of The Record writes:—"I am sorry to say that bull-fights, against the introduction of which into Paris the authorities so long stood out, are now established in no less than three different quarters. Worse than this, they are immensely popular. On Sunday week, according to The Figaro, there were in the great amphitheatre in the Rue Pergolèse no less than 21,000 spectators. From the lowest to the highest tier the building was crowded, and the boxes had all been let for some days before. The whole exhibition is essentially Spanish, and differs little from the bull-fights of the Peninsula, except that the animals must not be killed. It is greatly to be deplored that the Government has yielded in the matter, and taken a step which it will not be easy to retrace."

IN THE HOP-FIELDS.—A correspondent who, on a recent Lord's Day, visited the hop-pickers at Selling, Kent, writes:—"I found the pickers in huts erected for the purpose. Every year between 4000 and 5000 men, women, and children, are employed for about five weeks on the extensive gardens at Selling. Accompanied by two Gospel workers, one of them Mr. Heath, of Norman-road, Canterbury, who for some fifteen years has given his heart to the work, I visited about fifteen settlements, travelling twelve miles, and holding eight open-air meetings. In these latter we were helped by some Christian hop-pickers, and on all hands we were well received as we distributed tracts among the people. I write in the hope that next year more of the Lord's people will be led to take up this work, for, although we travelled so far, we saw no other attempt being made to evangelise the hop-pickers of this immediate district."

LUTHER'S LAND AWAKE.

THE people of Thuringia are once more beginning to realise what a treasure has been given them in their Protestant faith, and what their responsibility is to keep it pure, to work for its protection against Rome, and its advancement everywhere. There are, all over the land, good men and true, who preach Christ crucified, and work in unobtrusive devotion among the mountains of their home.

The country, with the exception of a few parishes which have escaped the general lethargy, is, as it were, buried under the accumulated débris of rationalistic ideas, and it takes much time and much prayer for these souls to be excavated and brought out to the full free light and warmth of God's Word.

At Eisenach, a town closely associated with Luther's name, there is a house of deaconesses which provides ample sick-nursing among the poor. Lay-workers, women who give their whole time and strength to seeking and saving the lost, have gathered a large number of factory girls in a Home, built for the purpose by a wealthy citizen. A soup-kitchen of more than forty years' standing—founded by the Duchess of Orleans—provides soups for hundreds of sick and poor, daily and gratuitously. A Y.M.C.A. is in full force, and Bible-lessons and Sunday-school are held regularly. These last are all in the hands of a warm-hearted, spiritual man, whom the earnest believers in Eisenach—a goodly number at present—have chosen as their pastor, and about whom they have gathered as a strong and faithful congregation. He is a true servant of God, and an earnest Lutheran withal.

In Rudalstadt, there is a thriving Y.M.C.A., as well as a Y.W.C.A. Deaconesses in town and hospital are constantly at work; there is a "Herberge zur Heimath"—i.e., a Christian Home for wandering craftsmen; a Women's Association, which, at Christmas, clothes hundreds of poor children, besides caring for the sick and needy all the year round; a "Volksküche," or kitchen, at which workmen and poor families can get cooked food at low prices, and where, in winter, poor children are fed gratis. Bible-classes and Sunday-school have been going on for many years, and are well attended, and other works of Christian love and rescue are projected and being started.

In Germany there is a Bible in every house. Schooling is enforced by law in every class of society; no child, be its parents ever so poor, is without schooling. If unable to pay for it, it is given gratuitously. Religious instruction is part of the fixed programme, and every child must have a Bible for school use. If too poor to buy it, he gets it as a gift from the committee of the school. Consequently the Bible is well known to every German child, and is, and must be, in every house. Whether it, and its spirit, be in every heart, is another matter. Colporteurs, supported by Christian societies, go all over the country, and sell Bibles, tracts, and good popular books, written in a Christian spirit, and each and all of these are gladly bought.

The natives of Thuringia are certainly doing good Christian work. They love the Lord Jesus warmly, and have had as ample proofs of his love, and presence, and faithful leading.

A FOREIGN RESIDENT.

HAMPSTEAD HEATH.—The friends of the Hampstead Heath Open-air Mission, to the number of about seventy, recently held their annual meeting in the hall of the Y.M.C.A., Willoughby-road. The meetings have been very encouraging, being more largely attended than any previous season. There has not been much ascertained result, but this is felt by all to be pre-eminently a work of faith. Mr. Gawin Kirkham gave a short address to the workers.

The late Rev. A. N. Somerville, D.D.

SUNDAY and Monday last were days of painful interest in Glasgow. At most of the churches loving tribute was paid to the memory of the valiant and revered "father in Israel," who last week passed away, and whose mortal remains were committed to the earth on Monday.

He had had no prolonged illness, though for some months past his health had been ailing. Only the day before he died he had returned from a visit to the Highlands. Now and again he had felt pains in the region of the heart, and this proved the source of the fatal result.

On Wednesday morning, the 18th instant, as his sons were raising him in the bed, he remarked, in the bright, happy manner which was so characteristic of him, "I'm in the hands of the Philistines!" To which one of them replied, "No, you are in the hands of Samson." Not long after he was heard to exclaim, "Oh, what's this?" as he instinctively placed his hand on his heart; a moment or two more, and his spirit had fled. Mrs. Somerville, entering the room, asked if he were suffering, and received the reply, "No, he is in heaven."

Needless is it for us to picture the grief which reigns in the bereaved household. Yet one and all acknowledge the goodness of God in calling his servant home so peacefully.

At the noon meeting in Glasgow, on Monday, tender allusion was made to the event, first by Rev. Alex. Andrew, of the White Memorial Free Church, who was himself brought to the knowledge of the Lord by Dr. Somerville's instrumentality; then by Rev. W. Ross, of Cowcaddens; and by Rev. D. M. Cameron, of Wandsworth, who, as a boy, threw his lot first among the people of God by joining Dr. Somerville's church. On that occasion the Doctor placed his hand on the lad's head with the words, "You know you have a steep hill to climb; press onward." A few months after, when much cast down, as young Christians often are, he entered a meeting just as the Doctor was repeating in his own impressive way the text: "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." These words were burnt into Mr. Cameron's soul, and led him back to confidence and peace. Two of Dr. Somerville's favourite hymns were sung—the one, written by his old friend, the late Dr Horatius Bonar—

> Pray, brethren, pray...
> Eternity is drawing nigh.

And the other—

> There's a cry from Macedonia, to which his later years had been so living a response.

The funeral service was held in the church to whose congregation he had so long ministered—Anderston Free Church. There were several features which were, like the man, unique. Generally the churches are draped in black on such occasions, but on this, at the special request of his family, only the pulpit bore any emblems of mourning. On the contrary, the oak coffin, raised upon the platform in front of the pulpit, was not only covered with many beautiful wreaths, but was also surrounded by plants and flowers—a fitting token of the brightness, beauty, and fragrance which characterised the life that had closed. Upon the coffin, too, was a small sheaf of wheat—emblem of one whose fruitful work was done, and who was now a gathered sheaf, fully ripe.

Rev. Dr. Colin Mackenzie, Moderator of the Glasgow Free Church Presbytery, presided; after prayer by Rev. Dr. Laird, Moderator of the Free Church General Assembly, Rev. Ross Taylor, of Kelvinside, read part of 2 Kings ii., the calling home of Elijah; Rev. Dr. Elder Cumming, of the Established Church, gave utterance to a beautiful thought in his prayer: "We rejoice that only a thin veil separates us from our dear departed one, and even that does not hide Thee from us"; and, again, as he drew the contrast between the silent dust in our presence and the glorified soul in the presence of the King.

Rev. J. Hood Wilson, of Barclay Free Church, Edinburgh, read a passage from Revelation, and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Wallace, the congregation being dismissed by Rev. Thomas Adamson, Dr. Somerville's co-pastor, and now successor.

Upon the sheet of hymns were three favourite texts: "Behold, I stand at the door...," "Go ye into all the world...," and "My Beloved is gone down into his garden to gather lilies." His favourite hymns, too, were selected: "Jesus, thy Blood and Righteousness," "Let not your Hearts with Anxious Thoughts" (John xiv.), and "The Crowning Day is Coming." This last had been often used, translated into Hungarian, during his last Continental tour.

At the grave, Rev. Thomas Adamson committed the remains to the earth in a touching and appropriate prayer, in the presence of a large concourse of ministers and friends who had followed to pay a last tribute of affection and esteem to the one who had set them such a noble example of earnest enthusiasm in the loved cause of his Divine Master.

Evangelistic Notes.

Mr. G. R. Cairns lately concluded a ten days' mission at Galashiels. It has been most successful; one great attraction was Mr. Cairns' singing. He has since been evangelising at the hall in James Morrison-street, Glasgow, and next week he will be at work in Manchester.

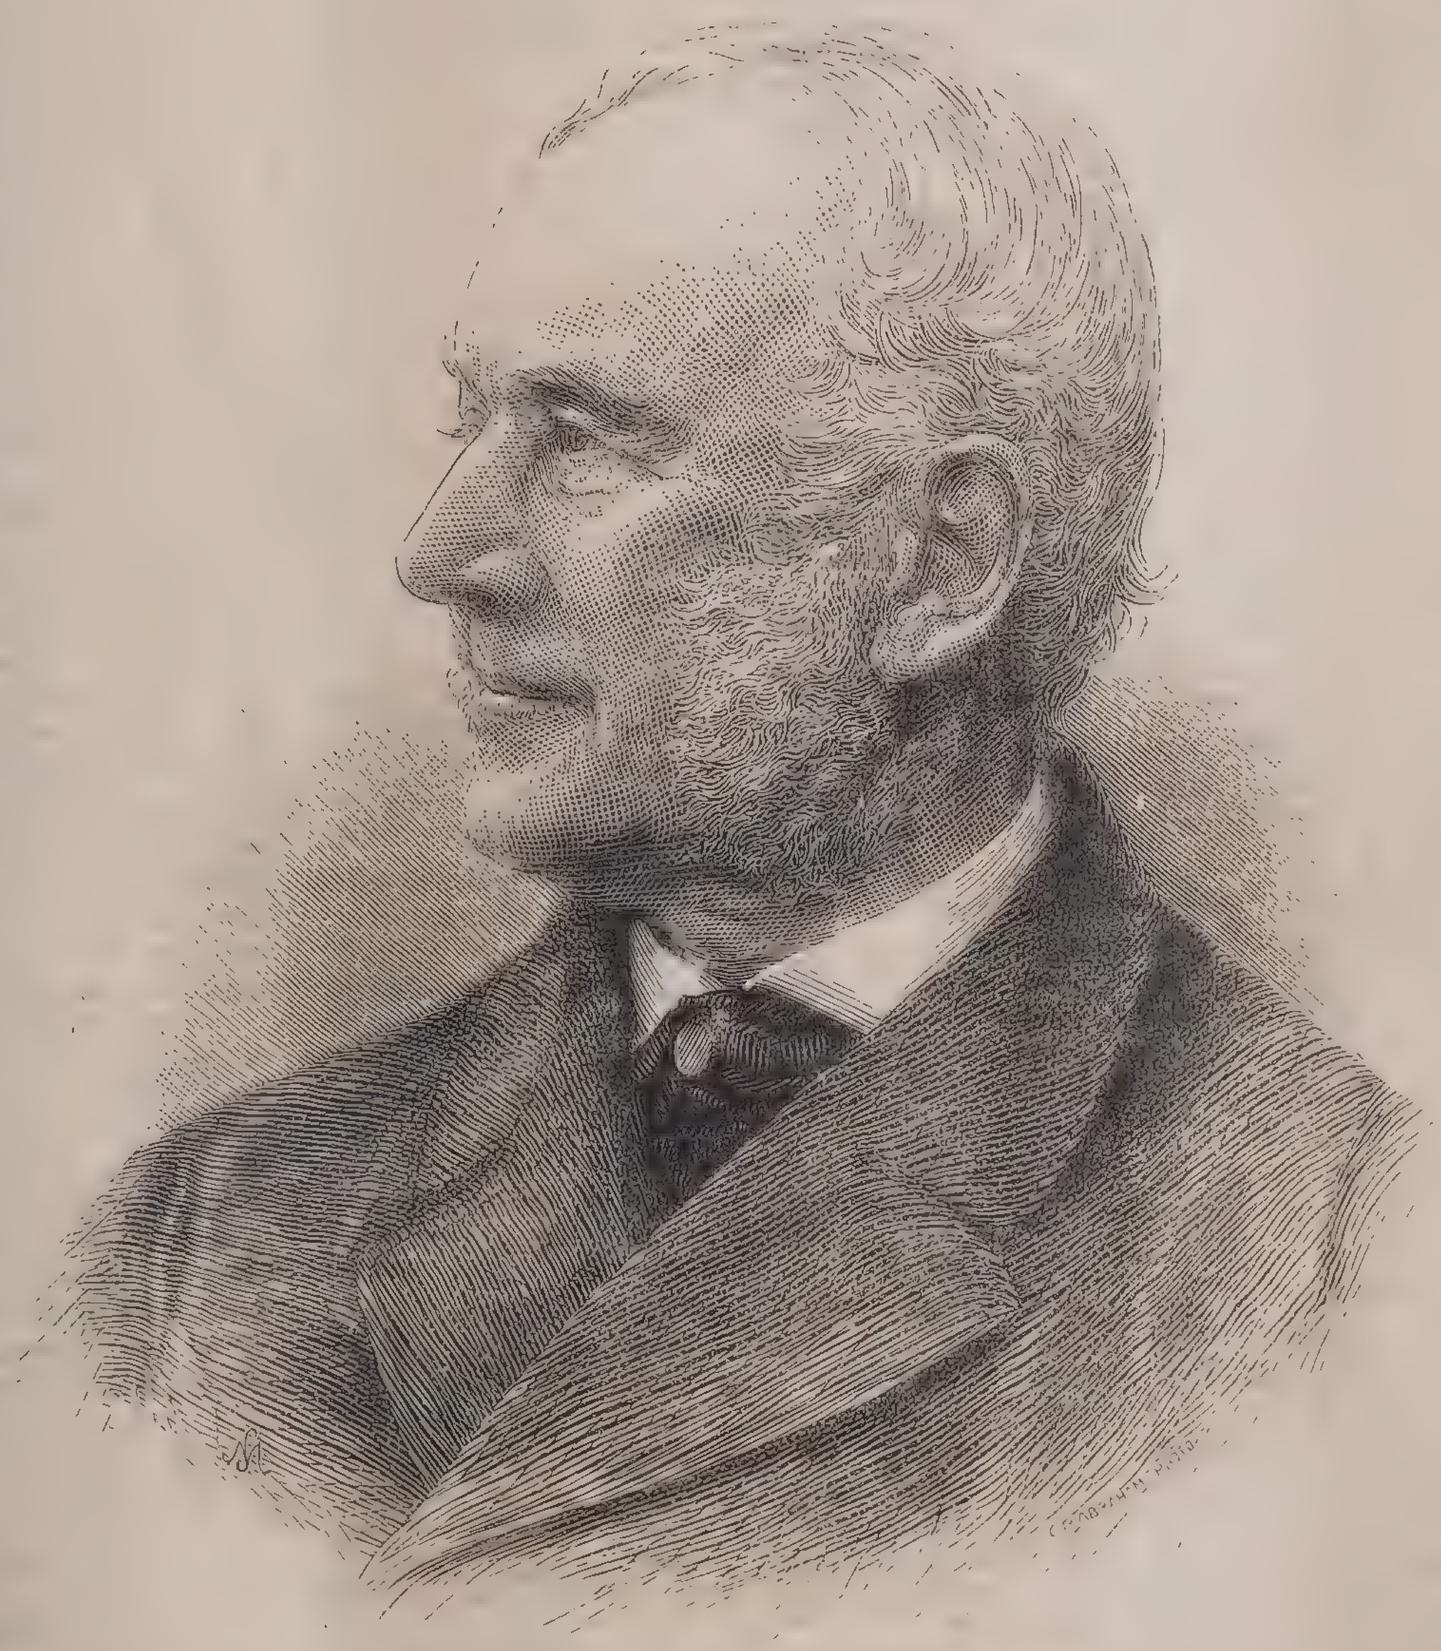
Mr. Richard Howton is conducting a ten days' mission in Bacup. Great power is being felt in the large open-air and indoor meetings, as well as in the Bible-readings. It is believed a lasting work is being done; some of the roughest have attended, and got converted.

Basingstoke.—An eight days' mission, conducted by Mr. H. Crawley, of the Evangelistic Mission, has been well attended. Mr. Crawley dealt in a forcible and intelligent manner with the claims of the Gospel. By his persuasive and simple mode of speech, he has made the way of salvation plain and easy to understand, even to the most illiterate.

Evangelistic Mission.—The summer services of the Children's Service Band were brought to a close by a fortnight's mission on the sands at Broadstairs. Many children gathered twice daily to the meetings, and Bible-readings for workers were conducted each morning, with good attendances. Mr. Newton Jones, sec., will be holding a mission at Epsom, from Sept. 22 to 29.

BIBLICAL INSTITUTES IN AMERICA.—There is a great movement on foot (writes our American correspondent) to multiply Biblical Institutes in order to give every helpful qualification to volunteer missionaries. Noble young men are ready to go to the ends of the earth, but the ordinary curriculum of a theological seminary is too heavy and protracted for these fervent souls. Many of them are well educated, who now only need a year or two of Bible instruction.

SUNDAY WORK IN BOMBAY.—A largely attended public meeting was held at Bombay on Wednesday, last week, to protest against the Sunday mail. The Chief Justice presided. The speakers pointed out that the proposed despatch of the home mail on Sunday would revolutionise the existing business customs, and would not only destroy the Saturday half-holiday, but would force business men to convert Sunday into an ordinary working day. All sections, equally with the Christian community, condemned the proposed change as inflicting an unjustifiable burden upon Bombay. Various resolutions were framed and supported by numerous speakers of different nationalities and creeds. The Government of India have sent home a despatch supporting the opposition.



The Late Mr. HENRY FRANCIS BOWKER.

THE subject of our sketch this week, who has just gone to his rest, was widely known among Christians, and especially esteemed by such as aimed at fully realising the Divine life. "Like as a shock of corn cometh in his season," so at the full age of fourscore he has been gathered to the Lord's garner. His life was a pre-eminently useful one, with lessons which we do well to ponder as we follow him even as he followed Christ.

Born at Paston, in the Fen Country, Henry Francis Bowker left his village home more than seventy years since to enter the Bluecoat School, or, as its alumni delight to style it, "The Ancient and Royal Foundation of King Edward the Sixth"—Christ's Hospital, in London. His father had attained some celebrity as an agriculturist, and was the trusted adviser of landed proprietors in the neighbourhood. His mother was a daughter of Rev. Dr. Paget, for many years rector of Bath. At the age of fifteen young Bowker left the school, and was appointed one of the junior teachers in Christ's Hospital at Hertford. There he remained for a few years; but, returning to London in 1831, he worked in the old School, in which, on its being reorganised a few years later, he was appointed Head Master of one of the two divisions into which it was arranged.

It was about 1839-40 that Mr. Bowker gave serious attention to religious matters, and he was very soon brought into the full light of the Gospel. Impressions for good were received at an earlier date through reading a tract given to him by a poor man in Newgate-street. His conversion was, apparently, a gradual work, the chief instrument being, it is said, his wife, to whom he was united in 1839. His only surviving contemporary at Christ's Hospital, and lifelong friend, Mr. William Edwyn Shipton, thus describes (in The Record) his progress in the life of faith:—"After he came to the knowledge of the truth for himself, he took great pains with the Scripture lesson for his class of boys, and no doubt laid the foundation of that full knowledge of the Word of God which was one of his great characteristics. At that time he used often to attend the week-night services, in John-street Chapel, Bedford-row, of Rev. J. Harington Evans, and read his sermons with great benefit. The first thing he did in connection with public work was attending a committee meeting of the Church of England Young Men's Society, held in St. Bride's, Fleet-street, in the year 1846. A few weeks later he heard of the Young Men's Christian Association, and, feeling there was greater scope for direct religious work among them, he attached himself more closely to the organisation. It was also more fully in accord with his large-hearted catholicity of spirit, delighting to co-operate with all who were working for the Master whom he loved."

Intercourse with good men was an encouragement to engagement in good works, and as Mr. Bowker grew in grace, so his love to Christ found means and avenues of useful exertion. This is how he joined the Y.M.C.A. Having heard from Mr. George Hitchcock of the bedroom prayer-meetings and social Bible-classes held in houses of business, Mr. Bowker resolved to investigate the matter further. In the meantime, leaving church one day, he saw the writer of The Record narrative, which we are largely following, and inquired, "Where are you going?" To the reply, "The meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association in the City," he rejoined, "Take me with you; I want to go." That night, just forty years ago, he became a member of the Society in which in after life he did a great work. He was the father of a young family, with duties at Christ's Hospital covering a long day, and with almost every moment of leisure claimed by work at other public schools where he was examiner. But he had seen a Bible-class of business young men, more than a hundred in number, gathered on a Sunday afternoon to deliberate upon the contents of the Holy Book, and the sight was an inspiration. To him the Young Men's Christian Association became a Society for the promotion, conduct, and regulation of Bible-classes, and this, though to some only a secondary object of the Association, was to him its chief interest, and in this direction he looked for its chief utility. An opportunity soon offered for the realisation of his idea. A branch of the Association was formed in the West of London, and he consented to superintend the new branch as its secretary. He opened a Bible-reading, which soon became largely attended by the commercial young men of Oxford-street and Regent-street, and was afterwards thronged by others, old men as well as young, from further distances.

(From Photograph by Mr. G. P. Abraham, Keswick.)

Out of this Bible-reading grew Mr. Bowker's acquaintance with the late Mr. George Moore, and from this again the yet closer intimacy with the late Mr. Robert Culling Hanbury, M.P. The personal obligations of these gentlemen to Mr. Bowker for religious advice and assistance led them to seek his aid in efforts to reclaim and reform persons of the neglected classes. Mr. Moore's labours in the interest of religion and education in the county of Cumberland were earnest and successful; Mr. Hanbury sought the guidance and encouragement of Mr. Bowker in the founding of the Reformatory and Refuge Union, the Boys' Home at Whitechapel, the Orphanages at Swanley, and the Little Boys' Homes. For a long series of years, moreover, Mr. Bowker conducted Bible-readings in West-end mansions, exercising an important influence upon the city magnates who attended them.

Among young men Mr. Bowker did an important work in many ways. In addition to the spheres already described, mention should be made of his more private efforts. At his house in St. John's Wood, young men were always welcome, and they soon came to understand him, and to delight in his company. Many ladies sought his spiritual teaching and help, but his heart was with the "boys," as he called all under five-and-twenty.

Some years ago, attending the Christian Convention at Brighton, his mind was led to a consideration of the fact that believers do not live up to the demands or privileges of the Gospel. Such truths as holiness of life, victory over sin, Divine power for service became the burden of his thoughts and words, and his declining years were spent in promoting the advancement of the spiritual life. The last ten years of his earnest life were devoted to assisting in the promulgation of the great truths which to-day form the subject-matter of periodical conventions and conferences in various parts of the country. Up to 1883 Canon Harford Battersby arranged and presided at the Keswick Convention; but in that year, being ill shortly before the time of meeting, he invited Mr. Bowker to take the chair for him. When the week arrived, Canon Battersby was dead, and from that time the conventions have been presided over by Mr. Bowker; his arrangements have conduced much to the success of the meetings, which have also grown rapidly in usefulness. His settled conviction has been well expressed by a recent writer in The Record: "He believed that the Church of Christ as a body has failed to realise what Divine grace can do for the believer, and that the vast majority of even real Christians miss the power and the peace which are theirs if they will but take them; but any profession of sinlessness he dealt with most severely. 'I have not sinned for a fortnight,' said a young man to him. 'Say that again,' was the reply. 'I have not sinned for a fortnight,' was repeated. 'Why, you are the greatest sinner in Keswick at this moment.' 'How do you make that out?' 'Why, you are telling a lie on the most solemn of all subjects.' The attitude he took for himself before God, and the attitude he desired all who came under his influence to take, was that of the publican, 'God be merciful to me a sinner.' But he always said that every Christian ought to be able to describe his experience in St. Paul's words, 'I can do all things through Him that strengtheneth me.'" It was Mr. Bowker's firm belief to the last that only in the righteousness of the Son of God, robed in his perfect merits, can man enter eternity in peace.

During the spring of this year Mr. Bowker met with an accident, which greatly shook him. Later on, evidences of internal disorder were manifest, followed by partial paralysis of the throat, so that he was quite unequal to any public utterance at the recent Convention at Keswick. After staying with friends in Yorkshire and Gloucestershire, he seemed reinvigorated, but on returning home a few weeks ago, he declined in health, and expired on Sunday, September 6, with but little suffering. For many years he served his Lord, having great veneration for the Word of God, and sympathy for the souls of others. His first wife, a daughter of Mr. Hodgson Heath, has been many years dead; his second wife, the widow of the late Dr. Walker, of Edinburgh, survives him. Of a family of eight, four daughters and two sons are living, one of the latter being Rev. Henry Clarke Bowker, rector of Collingham, Notts.

Mr. Bowker was joint editor with Rev. E. Hopkins, of The Life of Faith, for the next issue of which Rev. C. A. Fox is writing a poem in memoriam. Short articles are also being contributed by Revs. J. A. Jacob, Hubert Brooke, and Handley C. G. Moule.

[908]

Salvation Army in France.

BY CATHERINE BOOTH-CLIBBORN.

[Concluded from last week.]

But I must tell you of Belleville, where we have lately hired a theatre holding from 400 to 500 people (for which we pay only £60 a year). A blessed work has begun there. The other evening I counted only four or five bonnets in an audience of more than 400 people—the men in blouses, many of their faces a perfect study, stamped with discontent, unhappiness, and sin; the women, pale and tired, holding babies in their arms. Yet all seemed very glad to welcome us, and it was thrilling to hear the singing of "Blanc, plus blanc que neige," &c. I noticed those whose hearts had been already won by Christ's love singing with a new-found joy and heartiness.

Among the converts is a washerwoman who was brought up to be a nun. She had been a year in a convent; but, finding it such a sad life, she left just before pronouncing her vows. Since then she has never set foot in a church, and had abandoned every trace of religion. She has lived in Belleville fourteen years, and is now the mother of a family. One night, passing accidentally by the hall, going to the public laundry, she stepped in out of curiosity, began her washing, and stayed till the end of the meeting. A few days afterwards she gave her heart to God, and now persevering as at the first she came the other night, her face and hands being swollen with blows, and smilingly said: "I no more know myself; I, so hot-tempered, to feel no desire to retaliate! I can only sing all the time."

A lame young man thought we were fools; but on coming to the meeting he was deeply convinced of sin, and yielded his heart to Jesus. He was in the greatest misery for want of employment; but quite simply he asked the Lord that he might find work, and his prayer was answered.

In passing I may note the beautiful way in which the Catholic converts, when they get into trouble, come to ask God to help them to find new situations; their simple, child-like faith is rewarded.

At Quai Valmy, which, as many of your readers know, is our chief station in France—of the worst description—the meetings are largely attended. One could not wish for better order and attention than we have there; and it is delightful to go from bench to bench, as I did recently after a crowded meeting, and find people who were saved there one, two, three, or four years before in that same hall. Almost every evening some poor wanderer stays behind to pray. One of the last cases was a man who exclaimed with tears: "It is time I turned to God. I have no one else to go to; my wife, child, and money, were all taken in three hours."

A few weeks back, at the close of a week-night meeting, two poor women, each bringing an infant, came to the penitent form. One of these was in great sorrow about her sin. She wanted to marry the man with whom she was living, and asked us to speak to him. The Colonel dealt with him, and I asked the woman, "Have you other children?" She answered, "Yes, a little boy five years of age." This child was sent far away into the country to be nursed (as thousands are in this country), and so so lost sight of by the parents later on. The Spirit of God had troubled her about this child, and the mother and father, having worked hard to get enough money, have since brought him home, recognised him as theirs, and they wish us now to consecrate the two to the Lord, as it is their one desire to train them up for Him. The parents themselves are making the necessary formalities for legal marriage. An interesting detail in this history is that at the opening of the woman's conversion a lady had accompanied me to see the work in that quarter—one of the intimate friends of the late Empress of Russia, and in whose arms the Empress died. This lady had found salvation through attending our meetings at Rue Auber, and she held that poor little bundle of a baby with delight while the poor woman fell at Jesus' feet.

In visiting from house to house our officers found a husband and wife in the greatest misery; heartbreaking despair was plainly written on their faces. The officers prayed and asked God to send them work, then invited them to the meeting. A few days afterwards they came, and the woman gave herself to God at once; a little later on the husband followed her example. On the Captain's returning to visit them, the wife said: "Ah! you do not know what we had determined to do when you first came; we had everything ready to end our lives, the charcoal was provided, and we had decided to die together, 'asphyxié,' but through your visit hope entered our hearts, and that same evening your prayer was answered, and we found work."

Space fails in which to multiply these blessed cases as we would like to.

Another opportunity similar to the one at Belleville opens to us now at Grenelle, where a hall is offered, but funds are needed to enable us to embrace the offer.

From many towns in France comes the cry, "Send help." More loving hearts and hands are needed, and no words can express the glorious opportunity for young men and women who have accepted the true Apostolic life. These young lives are offered now all over France and Switzerland, and could you witness, dear reader, what it means for even one consecrated soul to be placed in some benighted French town, you would gladly hasten to help us send them forth. There is a more wonderful prospect before us than my pen can describe of reaching tens of thousands who are in darkness in the 71 Departments we have not yet entered. The encouraging results we see in the ten where we are labouring, make us long to go forward.

The other day we received a letter from a southern Department written by a lone man of God, who says: "All is so dark here, and what religion there is is so formal and cold. Our eyes turn to you for help. Will you not send us officers?"

From Alger comes the same cry, and other towns which are for the most part void of spiritual life. It is touching to see the eagerness with which the people receive our comrades in some places; where too poor to contribute money, they give all the food needed, saving out of their hard earnings to help in paying the rent and expenses of halls.

Our progress, especially among the Catholics, fills my heart with hope for the future; not only do they come by hundreds to our halls but they listen, and are convinced, and on receiving the light would make many Protestants blush by their loyalty and devotion to Jesus.

PERTH CONFERENCE.

LADIES' MEETINGS.

. Brown Douglas presided at the tea-ing on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Murray shore gave a favourable report of the progress oung Women's Christian Associations in land. Two new departments—Foreign Mis- and Emigration—have been started since , 1888. Miss Stuart has been labouring n with much acceptance among the ing curers at Peterhead. Miss Miller gave encouraging report of the Girls' Friendly ety work carried on in Perth, and of the in which girls are befriended, not only in country, but when they emigrate. Mrs. s spoke strongly of the importance of sing the subject of temperance on our ng women. Mrs. Colville urged those who e Bible-classes for young women to give n a thorough knowledge of the Scriptures. dy from Paris spoke of temperance work e in connection with the World's Woman's perance Union. Miss M. Petrie gave a rt account of the growth of the College by t, as the Students' Branch of the Christian men's Education Union is now called. ring the past eight years there have been ut two thousand students, and, as the work arried on through correspondence, it does in any way clash with professors' classes, reading societies. It combines the intel- ual with the religious element.

Mrs. Sharp presided at the tea-meeting on dnesday. Mrs. Stevenson gave a short and eresting account of work carried on by her- and her late husband at Pachamba, 250 les north-west of Calcutta. Mrs. Brown uglas read a letter from Mrs. Stott asking prayer, as she returns alone to her work in ina. Miss Campbell, from Glasgow, pleaded more workers among the police. Miss Lloyd m the Pershill Soldiers' Home, near Edin- gh, spoke of work carried on among the diers and their families, resulting in many es in definite conversion. Miss de Broen rnestly pleaded for more workers in Paris. Mrs. Malcolm presided at the meeting for ayer and thanksgiving on Friday morning, en various ladies gave brief expositions. The annual meeting of the Christian Women's ducation Union was held on Friday afternoon. ev. Robert Barbour, of Bonskeid, who pre- ded, spoke of the advance of woman in the me and in public work, and especially in re- ion to the Church, the Founder of which ered an equal franchise to men and women. e sketched briefly the growth of the C.W.E.U. gun by Miss Cavendish, and now the mother several kindred societies. Referring to the port, he pointed out that the Bible Guild has w been developed into the Scottish Women's ble Study Association. The other sections Student's Branch, School Branch, and Doc- al Band go on as before.

Miss M. H. C. Petrie, B.A., spoke of educa- n as aiding physical, intellectual, and iritual growth. Many people regard the ble as a string of texts, instead of studying systematically; nothing, for instance, the dvance of the teaching of the Prophets upon e Pentateuch on such a subject as the future e, or how the promise of the Messiah grows re and more definite. Many lay aside their telligence when they open the Bible. Other- se such a book as "Robert Elsmere" would e its influence. Though knowledge is im- rtant, it is not enough. No set of people had ter head-knowledge than the Jews, and yet ey rejected the Lord. We must have first ith, then knowledge.

Rev. J. Robertson, D.D., Whittingham, spoke of the danger of the Bible being crowded out at the present day, not only by social distractions, but by secular studies. Mrs. Lindsay, Glasgow, said our intellects should be cultivated for God to use. Rev. J. Corbett, D.D., Glasgow, spoke of the painful ignorance of the Bible existing in many churches, and said, though the Bible is the easiest book in the world, it is also the most difficult; it demands and repays careful study. After a few words from Mr. E. A. Stuart Gray, of Kinfauns, and Rev. D. D. Bannerman, Perth, the meeting was closed.

POLMONT CONFERENCE.

The annual Conference was held at Polmont, N.B., from Wednesday to Friday last week. There are many special features which give this a unique position among the gatherings for the Deepening of Spiritual Life.

It is convened by Mr. Livingstone Learmonth, a gentleman of considerable property, and is held upon his own estate. Two large barns are admirably fitted up for the occasion, seating some twelve hundred persons; two others are devoted to accommodation for refreshments, which are provided free of charge by the generous host, who also bears the expense of brakes, &c., which ply to and from the railway station (three miles distant) to bring his guests together.

The audience is composed for the most part of simple country folk, who come many miles from the districts around. On entering the meeting-place, the stranger's notice is attracted by the number of "Salvation Army bonnets" that meet his view; but closer inspection reveals the fact that the well-known red band is missing, while on the jerseys of the men the word "Brigade" takes the place of the familiar "Army." The truth is this. For some years Mr. Learmonth employed two Bible-women and two missionaries to labour among the people, but it did not appear that many conversions took place. Mrs. Learmonth became convinced that work on "Army lines" would be better adapted to the needs of the neighbourhood, and, accordingly, donning the blue dress and bonnet herself, she founded the present brigade. This effort has been signally blessed, as was evident from the number of regenerated drunkards and rough characters who entered the Polmont temple "leaping and praising God."

Upon the platform were the well-known forms of such Keswick representatives as Revs. W. Haslam, Evan Hopkins, Gelson Gregson, J. Sloan, and the chairman, Mr. Robert Wilson. Besides these were Mrs. Todd Osborne, Messrs. J. Colville, and W. Govan. Several of the "Faith Pilgrims," too, attended, but did not take an active part in the meetings.

The teaching was very much that of Keswick, and great care was taken by Mr. Hopkins to define clearly its limits, as well as its extent. Having made special study, in the original languages, of such terms as "the flesh," "the old man," "cleanse," "sanctify," "consecrate," around which the truths enforced specially cluster, he is better qualified to explain the shades of meaning which the words possess. His efforts in this direction are not always appreciated by those who build their edifice upon the loose English apprehension of the terms, and once he was even asked if he "supposed Paul studied Greek!" It is, therefore, evident why such special care is taken in the selection of the speakers at Keswick, and the other Conferences convened under the same auspices.

More than one allusion was made to the breach in the ranks caused by the death of Mr. Bowker, who had in previous years presided at these meetings.

Below are enumerated some of the leading thoughts put forth during the Conference, which were the means of leading many fully to consecrate themselves afresh, or for the first time, to the Lord.

Mr. Gregson, speaking from Heb. iii. 7, &c., showed that it was possible to hinder the fulfilment of God's promises by unbelief, which keeps many from enjoying the rest here spoken of. He drew an apt illustration from the quiet confidence which a passenger in an ocean steamer may enjoy in storm or calm, if he has full faith in the competence of the captain. He does not rush on to the bridge or to the wheel with the idea that he can manage the vessel more efficiently himself, but enjoys the rest of perfect faith, and in due time reaches his desired haven.

Mr. Haslam followed, and, in his own racy style, told the story of a rough sailor he once met, who, in course of conversation, proved to be a backslider—drifting pilotless upon the sea of doubt and sin. But he was brought to entrust himself again to Christ, as the Captain of his salvation, and became an earnest worker under Him. On another occasion Mr. Haslam dwelt upon the words "happiness," "help," "hope" (in Ps. cxlvi. 5), which came from the God of Jacob; and illustrated his points by the history of Jacob's wrestle, when it was not until he yielded that he obtained the blessing.

Mr. Hopkins also followed this line of thought in one of his addresses, by showing that the exchange of worry for peace, of defeat for victory, of scarcity for plenty, of gladness for gloom, could only be obtained by yielding to the will of God. He also gave a helpful address, from Rom. xv. 19, upon "Christ," "the Gospel of Christ," "the blessing of the Gospel of Christ," and "the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ." These he termed "a chain of four golden links, reaching from heaven to [illegible]."

Mr. Wilson, who presided at each meeting, generally had a useful, opening word. At one time he showed from Eph. v. 22 to vi. 10 how practical a help for everyday life is the knowledge of a heart in which Christ reigns, enabling one to perform one's ordinary duties in a manner well-pleasing to Him. At another Mr. Wilson drew attention to the standard of Christian life as shown in John xvii. 16, and pointed out that Christians are "sent into the world" as Christ was (18); should be "one," as Christ and his Father are one (21); have the "glory" which Christ had from his Father (22); and are "loved" as He was loved of his Father (23).

Mr. Sloan drew from Ps. cxxvii. and cxxviii. a "picture of domestic happiness, as a result of walking with God." First, we have the negative side, "Except the Lord build...Except the Lord keep." Then the positive side, "Thou shalt eat...Thou shalt be happy."

On the last afternoon, Mr. Haslam gave an account of his own experience, first as to the way he was brought into the light, and then into the fulness of blessing. He related many striking stories connected with the early days of his ministry.

This was followed by personal testimonies from those who had been attending the meetings of the Convention. Many very touching and remarkable instances of definite blessing were related. Mr. Hopkins dwelt chiefly on practical directions bearing on the question: How to continue in the blessing.

At the evening meeting, Mr. Wilson spoke briefly, but with clearness and power, on John xv. 9. He was followed by Mr. Haslam, who addressed himself chiefly to backsliders, enforcing his remarks by many telling illustrations taken from his own experience.

The teaching of the three days was then summed up by Mr. Hopkins, and brought to a practical issue by an after-meeting, where many dedicated themselves to God, and made confession of blessing received during this Convention. The meeting was brought to a close by a very hearty hymn of praise.

Each afternoon the "Brigade" assembled on the terrace in the front of the house, with band, &c., and held testimony and Gospel meetings in true "Army" style.

SCOTTISH Y.M.C.A. CONFERENCE.

THE Conference meetings in Dunfermline, September 16 to 18, were hearty and stimulating. The local Y.M.C.A. had done everything to make the gathering useful and pleasant, and they succeeded thoroughly. About one hundred and sixty delegates were present from all parts of Scotland.

The proceedings commenced on Tuesday evening with a reception meeting. The Provost of the city presided, and addresses of welcome were delivered by clergymen and others. The business of the Conference began on Wednesday morning by a prayer-meeting attended by almost all the delegates. The first paper was one read by Mr. Andrew Williamson, of Glasgow, on "Intemperance, Gambling, and Impurity." He treated it in a masterly way, dealing specially with the alarming spread of the sin of licentiousness. The impression produced was so great that, on the motion of Lord Kinnaird, the Conference unanimously passed a resolution recommending all Y.M.C.A.'s in Scotland to form a "White Cross Union" in connection with their Associations.

The second paper was "How to meet apathy on the part of members in regard to spiritual work." A lively and interesting discussion followed.

At noon a prayer-meeting was conducted by Mr. Wm. Brown, of Edinburgh. Several short reports of Association work were given in during this hour.

After dinner the secretary read the annual report for the past year. It stated that at present there were 246 Associations and Fellowship Unions, with a membership of 24,000 young men. It told of progress in many branches, and of spiritual results in several places. The travelling secretary's and evangelist's reports were most encouraging.

At night a public meeting was held, attended by over a thousand people. Mr. Stevenson, of Townhill, presided. "How to maintain the spiritual life of our members" was the topic, and addresses were delivered by Mr. Forrester, of Kirkcaldy, on "Bible Study and Prayer"; Mr. Kyd, of Montrose, on "The Holy Spirit," and by Mr. William M. Oatts, of Glasgow, on "Consecration."

Next day the delegates had an excursion to the Forth, inspecting the new bridge, one of the world's wonders, returning in the afternoon after a pleasant sail along the coast. The Conference was brought to a close with an evangelistic meeting, addressed by Mr. John McPhail, of Greenock, and Mr. Charles G. Roger, Association evangelist. It has been decided to meet next year in Aberdeen.

EAST AFRICA.—The Sultan of Zanzibar, has issued a proclamation giving the right of search of all Arab dhows to England and Germany, in perpetuity, in his territorial waters. He also decrees that all slaves entering his territories after November 1 shall be free. Mr. Portal notifies that the same applies to British subjects. These reforms have been obtained through the efforts of Mr. Portal and General Mathews. The Reindeer's cutter caught a slave dhow, with 131 slaves, at Pemba.

THE YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION is again prepared with an excellent programme of evening classes for the coming winter in London. These classes are held at upwards of twenty institutes in all parts of London and the suburbs; and the subjects taught include book-keeping, shorthand, type-writing, dress-cutting, cookery, ambulance, nursing, French, music, singing, &c. Certificates and seventy-two prizes are offered to successful candidates. Physical training and recreation, including gymnastics, calisthenics. Musical and Swedish drill are provided at two excellent gymnasia in the City and West-end. Classes to prepare candidates for the civil service are also held under an experienced tutor. A prospectus giving all information will be sent free on application to Mr. H. Kidner, 316, Regent-street, W.

[868]

DUNDEE CONFERENCE.

THIS three days' Conference has been pre-eminently a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. In interest and attendance the meetings were everything that could be desired, the body of Kinnaird Hall being filled during the day, and the whole building, which can accommodate over 2000, being crowded to excess in the evenings. The Conference meetings proper are held in the forenoon and afternoon, while the evening is devoted to evangelistic addresses.

Rev. W. J. Cox, Dundee, presided at the first forenoon meeting. The general subject for consideration was "Christian Discipleship," and its particular aspect treated on at this meeting was "Discipleship in relation to personal spiritual life." Rev. J. MACPHERSON, Dundee, spoke on the "Foundation of Discipleship in Grace." After dwelling on Christ as the source of our discipleship, he referred to the privileges of the disciple. Among these were friendship and fellowship with Christ. The highest privilege that any Christian could enjoy was to sit at the feet of Jesus and learn of Him. Rev. T. MILLAR, Leith, spoke on "Discipleship as seen in a holy and separated life." It was for this end that Christ had redeemed his people. The average Christian life of the nineteenth century gives the world a poor idea of the Christian religion. The inconsistencies of Christians too often keep the world away from Christ. Hence one of the mightiest forces we can wield, in drawing men to the Saviour, is to live out the life of Christ.

Rev. N. K. MACKENZIE, Longforgan, occupied the chair at the afternoon meeting, which was a conversational one, the subject being: "The place of self-denial in life and work." The chairman said it was not simply denying oneself a few pleasures, but it was the denying of self. This could be accomplished by letting Christ in to take the place of self. After some remarks by Colonel Oldham, Rev. Mr. Smoldon, Dr. Pringle, and Mr. Nicol, Rev. A. INGLIS said that self-denial was not asceticism, nor was it a religion of calculation. It was rather the spirit of Mary, who gave her all, when she gave the ointment; for her whole heart was in the gift. Lord KINNAIRD observed that little things were not to be overlooked. How many are there who exercise the self-denial of rising earlier in the morning for prayer and meditation? Rev. J. Macpherson, and Mr. G. E. Morgan, London, also spoke.

In the evening Rev. J. REID, Dundee, presided, and gave an effective address on the purpose for which Christ's disciples were called. Mr. G. E. MORGAN afterwards delivered a pointed and telling address, well adapted for young men. Rev. R. MCALL spoke from the words, "Is it peace?"

WEDNESDAY.

At the forenoon meeting Rev. ALEX. ANDREW, Glasgow, spoke on "The Anointing of the Spirit." It is the Spirit's office (1) to open our eyes to see our sinful state in the sight of God; (2) to "lead us into all truth"; (3) to sanctify; (4) to qualify for work. Rev. F. B. MEYER spoke on "Devotion to the Lord and his Cause." A devoted life, he said, is a life on fire. In any work for God five things must be kept in view: (1) The right motive—purity of intention; (2) cleanness of heart—the Master would not put pure water into an impure vessel; (3) the anointing of the Spirit for every act of service; (4) making much of the Word of God; (5) reckoning always on God.

The subject for conversation in the afternoon was "Sanctified Affliction." It was introduced by Mr. MEYER, who said afflictions might come to us as the result of personal sin, or through others, or direct from God. A bad thing may begin in another's malice, but before it can reach us, it has to pass through the environing presence of God. The secret of bearing sorrows joyfully is to say Yes to God's will. Colonel OLDHAM said that the victory was gained when we praised God for the trial. Mr. McAll quoted the Turkish proverb, "God never strikes with both hands," and remarked, if the one hand of the Lord smote, the other soothed and supported the stricken soul. Dr. Pringle, Rev. A. Inglis, and Mr. Guthrie bore testimony to the sanctifying power of affliction.

The first speaker at the evening meeting was Rev. ALEX. SOUTTAR, Glasgow, who founded his address on 1 Pet. i. 19, and dwelt on three points—(1) the blood of Jesus is precious because of the dignity of his nature; (2) because it was love's offering; (3) because it was the only remedy for sin. Mr. Meyer followed with a stirring address on man's twofold relation to Adam and Christ.

THURSDAY.

This morning Mr. MEYER spoke on "Our Lord's full Glory and his Award to Disciples." In a simple manner he enumerated some of the glories that belonged to Christ; as the Son of God; by reason of his perfect manhood; in connection with his mediatorial work; in the unity of his Divine-human personality; in his ultimate victory. Christ desires to share his glory with his followers. For every act done for Him there is a reward, not for the deed itself, but for faithfulness in the doing of it. Our perfect reward is hereafter, and the charm of it will be that we shall still be serving Christ.

Rev. Dr. PENTECOST spoke on Missions encouraged by the prospects of eternal issues. The scheme of foreign missions, he said, is not a modern one. It was the initial one of the Bible. After quoting many passages from Scripture, Dr. Pentecost said that among the early promises of the Gospel were practical promises to carry on foreign missions. If they were to be in line with the eternal purpose of God then they must be in line with his great purpose towards the Gentile world. In Scotland, with a population of four millions, there are more Presbyterian ministers than there are missionaries in all the foreign field. There is something wrong there. We will never see a great revival in this country unless it come back as a reflex wave from foreign missions.

The afternoon meeting was devoted to addresses from those engaged in foreign mission work. Rev. R. McAll gave an account of mission work in France. Dr. Torrance explained his work among the Jews. Rev. J. H. Lawrie spoke on his work in the New Hebrides, and Dr. Pringle on mission work in India.

In the evening Colonel Oldham and Dr. Pentecost gave stirring addresses, well fitted to lead souls to Christ.

FIJI AND THE WESLEYANS.—Some 1000 persons recently listened to an interesting story at the Crystal Palace, by Captain Charles Reade, R.N., F.R.G.S., on "Personal Reminiscences in Fiji." Mr. Reade began with a brief history of the former cannibalism of the islanders, which he contrasted with their present Christianised condition. The missionary labours of Mr. Calvert were ably touched on, and the story of the king's conversion to Christianity well told. The great change was, the speaker said, the result of the Wesleyan ministry, and he thought the audience would agree with him that all honour was due to them. This statement is all the more valuable coming from a member of the outside public.—Methodist Recorder.

THE SABBATH IN INDIA.—Rev. John Forgan, of Simla, writes a strong and timely letter to The Indian Standard, urging the necessity of organising an Indian Sabbath Alliance. The Indian Witness seconds the motion, and says:—"There seems such a complete marriage between heathen disregard of the Sabbath and European lust for filthy lucre that we shall soon have no Sabbath. With some noble, noteworthy, and praiseworthy exceptions, mills, railways, banks, shipping firms, and even European retail shops join in trampling upon the commandment to hallow the Sabbath. The bold Sabbath desecration of Darjeeling sporting men emphasises the need for a Sabbath Alliance that would make these and similar offenders feel the force of the law. Unchecked, this growing evil will soon rob us of the holy Sabbath altogether."

WAKEFIELD CONFERENCE.

of the pleasantest and most useful of the r Christian Conferences held this year took last week at Wakefield. It originated in a n held two years ago by Mr. Spencer Walton, which souls were saved and believers ened. No more important subject has been at before any such gatherings since the first rence at Barnet, in 1856, than that which occupied attention, viz., LOVE: the love of the world and to his believing people; love broad in our hearts, and manifested in making known to the world.

ese gatherings have been convened by the C.A. through its devoted hon. secretary, Mr. d Haley, and the active and genial secretary, I. French Ridley.

Monday evening a considerable number bled in the Cathedral, when the Rev. Canon by, vicar of Dewsbury, preached, after wh ch remained to show the Lord's death till He Tuesday morning Mr. Lane opened with a exposition of 1 John iv., followed by Rev. J. anan, Glasgow, and Rev. J. J. Luce. The ct on which they spoke was Christ the Gift d's love, and believers as beloved in Christ. the afternoon Mr. Morgan, and Revs. J. J. and J. Buchanan considered the world as bject of God's love, and believers as his mes- rs. At night Mr. McAuliffe and Mr. Luce upon the believer's heart the home of love, and the Holy Spirit shedding it abroad heart. Mr. Luce, in speaking on Ps. lxviii., hat some years after his conversion a lady to him while sitting in a meeting, and asked, you happy?" "Oh, yes," was the reply. you doing anything for Jesus?" All his happiness was gone, and he began to think, at am I doing? Nothing." He remembered y begins at home, and so he wrote to an absent , and began to bear witness at home. Now, r, and mother, and sisters, are all gathered in: ne missing. He owed it all to that lady.

this and the following evening an evange'is- dress, rich in Gospel truth, was given by Mr. ; at the after-meetings several testified essing received during the previous week's on, and some anxious ones were led to Christ.

Wednesday morning Mr. J. McAuliffe, who lways overflowing with life and love, spoke a rugged freshness that quickened the pulse eryone. Referring to the Church as the e of God's love, he said that God made the in six days, but this temple has occupied 6000 years. The Bible is a book full of word- es and object-lessons for God's little children. Tabernacle was set up on the sand to teach to walk as pilgrims in the wilderness; the ple, with its massive and costly stones, its gold glory, showed what God had prepared for his e when settled in the Promised Land. Both rnacle and Temple bore witness to the blood tonement and of sprinkling, and showed his le then and now how to draw near to God. A an monarch required designs for a temple to un. Many were sent in; but one was all of to be full of the sun, and to reflect his light. Christian should be transparent, full of light, hus reflect the glory of God.

. Luce spoke of Epaphras as a fellow-prisoner, -worker, and fellow-sufferer, of the Apostle dwelling specially on his labouring fervently is fellow-saints in prayer.

. Morgan compared John i. 18 with 1 John : in the former passage it is said that no man seen God at any time, but Jesus came to l Him. In the latter, no man had seen God, f we love one another God dwelleth in us, and He is revealed by those in whom He dwells. revealed the Father then; we are to mani- Him now by loving one another—washing one er's feet, as Jesus washed his disciples'.

Wednesday afternoon the addresses were by J. Buchanan, Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, and Lane. Subject: Love's Service: Its Endur- and Purpose. Mr. Taylor's thought was ser- for love's sake; Mr. Lane pressed the import- of pure motive in all our service; a little done right motive is far more than a great deal a faulty one.

e same evening Mr. Hudson Taylor spoke ne bride's words in S. Song i., "Let Him me." Has the bride more desire for com- on than He who came from the Father's and died for her? We can never be satisfied until we have fully surrendered our souls to Him. Separation is insupportable: "Draw me, we will run after Thee." What follows? Some terrible sacrifice required from her? No. "The King hath brought me into his chambers...I sat down under his shadow with great delight...his banner over me was love." Mr. Radcliffe applied what had been said, and prayed. It was a very solemn and searching season.

On Thursday morning several brief addresses were given on consecration. Mr. Hudson Taylor said that love makes little need of consecration. The mother needs no exhortation to love and care for her child. Mr. McAuliffe compared the withered hand to a withered life, which Jesus heals. Rev. J. Buchanan spoke from Rom. xii. 1, 2. The body is the vehicle of the soul, and to present it a living sacrifice is our reasonable service, our spiritual worship. Rev. J. Wilkinson considered obedience as the proof of love, and Mr. Morgan spoke of love as the source of obedience.

In the afternoon, Mr. Reginald Radclife said it was a question whether even at home we have been holding our own these past thirty years. We speak the language, the climate agrees with us, we have the comforts of home; but statistics show less attendance on public worship in our large cities than thirty years ago. God tells us to share our blessing with the heathen abroad, to gather in the sheep of other folds. We have been disobedient, and hence our leanness. When Israel obeyed, God threw down Jericho; when they disobeyed, they ran away like grasshoppers from giants.

Rev. J. Wilkinson observed that power comes on the line of God's plan, and blessing on the line of obedience.

Dr. Howard Taylor, M.A.: We were looking this morning on love as the fulness of consecration; we have now to consider it in relation to our fellow-men. We had the Gospel for a thousand years without sending it abroad. We have known and preached at home that Jesus died, till the words mean nothing; they would mean everything to the millions who have never heard them.

Rev. J. Hudson Taylor read part of a letter from Rev. E. O. Williams, now in China, who received his marching orders at this Conference two years ago. Of the Cambridge Seven, one was a cavalry officer, whose address at Exeter Hall was this—"He says 'Go!' and I am going." He is now on the borders of Thibet, waiting for an open door, and his sister is soon following.

In the evening Mr. Wilkinson gave a stirring account of work among the Jews; but we will not forestal our report of the Conference on the Jews to be held at Mildmay next week.

Dr. Howard Taylor said "Love's Appeal" involves commencing work in our own home and neighbourhood; giving up time to the study of God's Word; some to prepare themselves for pastors, Sunday-school teachers, &c., but these are all preparatory to preaching the Gospel to every creature; and though some are needed at home, many can be spared for the millions in darkness.

Rev. J. Hudson Taylor spoke of the bride as compared to a company of horses in Pharaoh's chariots. The pure Arab horse first came from Egypt. Those of Pharaoh were perfect in form, perfectly trained, perfectly guided, and King Pharaoh was carried by willing steeds. Mr. Taylor's greatest blessing in America last year had come from a father whose only and much-loved daughter was going to China. He spoke of all she was to him, but added, "I have nothing too precious for my Jesus." After a week's fever this beloved young sister has been called up higher. We knew the grief of the father would be exceeding great; and so it was; but he said again, "I have nothing too precious to give to my Jesus!"

Mr. Radcliffe spoke of Dr. Baedeker, who was converted under Lord Radstock twenty-five years ago, and has only one lung, having preached five times a day in Russia; now he is telling the Gospel to the poor prisoners in chains in Siberia. Shall there not be men and women in this meeting ready to go anywhere to preach the Gospel to those who know it not?

Mr. Wilkinson had received intelligence that through the distribution of Hebrew New Testaments in Russia, 500 Jews were leaving the Talmud and reading the Old and New Testaments. This is irrespective of Rabinowitz's movement. A few months ago orders were given that the distribution must be stopped; but misapprehensions have been removed, and the work is going on. But many more thousands of New Testaments will be required.

The mission held by Mr. W. R. Lane and Mr. John McAuliffe in connection with this Conference has extended over a fortnight; and workers' meetings, Bible lectures, and evangelistic services have been fruitful of the best results. Christians generally have been refreshed and knit together in love, and the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. have been greatly encouraged. The children's meeting on Saturday was attended by 700. On Lord's Day morning the streets were visited, and men personally spoken to. The closing thanksgiving service brought 500 together, and very many testified to blessing received.

Obituary.

MDLLE. C. MALVESIN, PARIS.

THIS lady was for many years director of the Deaconess Institution in Paris. A teacher in early life, she no sooner found peace with God than she consecrated herself to soul-saving work. When Pastor Vermeil sought a deaconess in 1841, she was in search of the precise work, and by remarkable providences was led into the sphere in which she so long served her Lord and Master. Many who in years past benefited by her loving care and efforts attended her funeral a few days ago.

MDLLE. LOUISE ZEERLEDER, BERNE.

A generous supporter of Christian work, and a true benefactress of the poor, this Bernese lady expired last month under somewhat singular circumstances. Seated under the verandah of her house, engaged in some embroidery work, she conversed cheerfully with a friend on death and the future life. After a remark to the effect that God sometimes takes his children to Himself so gently that they hardly feel the sting of death, she fell dead in the arms of her friend. Her end was, in fact, characterised by the very sweetness of which she had expressed admiration, and which she attributed to the loving goodness of God.

ADVICES FROM TANGIER state that the Moorish authorities have issued a proclamation in Tetuan warning the subjects of the Sultan not to harm Christians, under pain of death.

MR. GEORGE C. NEEDHAM, at the request of a number of Baltimore pastors, is arranging a Conference in that city, to be held at the end of October, for expounding the Scripture doctrine of the Holy Spirit.

WORKING LADS IN LONDON.—A meeting of those interested in the welfare of working lads was recently held at the Albert Youths' Christian Institute, 49, Lamb's Conduit-street, W.C. The chair was occupied by Mr. Quintin Hogg. Before the public meeting a gymnastic display was given by the lads. The institution was founded in March, 1885, by a few members of the Polytechnic Young Men's Christian Institute, the object being to get hold of some of the poor working lads of this great city, and tell them the Gospel. The present membership is about one hundred and fifty, but as winter approaches it is expected that a large augmentation of that number will take place.

AMERICAN COLOURED FOLK. — At the noon prayer-meeting at the Aldersgate-street Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday last week, an address was given by Mr. Herbert R. Francis on missionary work among the coloured people of the United States. Mr. Francis alluded to the effects of slavery in the United States, many of which effects are to the present day discernible amongst the coloured population. Various incidents occurring in the course of his recent evangelistic tour were related by Mr. Francis, showing that, while in darkness or superstition to a certain extent, those amongst whom he has laboured are anxious and ready to know and accept the truths of Christianity.

MORE AMERICAN MISSIONARIES. — A memorable meeting, on the occasion of the departure of a large number of missionaries to different parts of the world under the care of the A.B.C.F.M., was lately held in Pilgrim Hall, Boston. The missionaries number forty-nine in all, of whom nineteen are returning to fields of labour which they have already occupied, some of them for a long term of years, while thirty are going out for the first time, several of them being children of missionaries. Of the whole number, twenty are going to Turkey, eight to Japan, seventeen to China, and four to India. One of the new missionaries is a grand-daughter of the Rev. William Goodell, D.D., of Constantinople, whose life was spent in planting the institutions of the Gospel in the Turkish Empire.

Personalia.

The Bishop of Truro hopes to pass the winter in Egypt, with a view to the restoration of his health.

The Bishop of Liverpool, who is staying in the Lakes District, holds a service in his house on Sunday afternoons.

Mr. Samuel Smith, M.P., has promised £1000 towards the reduction of the debts on the Nonconformist chapels in Flintshire.

Mrs. Hedenstrom Welin, of the Scandinavian Sailors' Home, East India Docks, has been overwhelmed with calls on her charity during the strike.

Lord Brassey has undertaken to arbitrate in the dispute between the London master lightermen and their men, as to rates of pay and hours of labour.

Rev. D. S. Hankin, of St. Jude's, Mildmay Park, has, we regret to know, seriously broken down in health, and is ordered complete rest for several months.

Alderman Cory, of Cardiff, has offered to endow the theological chair of the North Wales Baptist College at Llangollen, with a sum of £2000, and the Home Mission Fund with a like amount.

Mrs. Bailhache, well-known in connection with rescue work in North London, is now quite recovered from her late severe illness, and although not at liberty to devote the whole of her time to the work, as of yore, is yet able to assist very materially, and be an inspiration to others.

Rev. Dr. Ginsburg handed to each person present at the recent Oriental Congress at Stockholm, including King Oscar, a specimen copy of the first sheet of his Massoretico-critical text of the Hebrew Bible, with a prospectus describing the distinguishing features. It is the result of thirty years' critical study, and the collation of more than fifty manuscripts. This important work is to be published by the Trinitarian Bible Society.

Rev. Thomas Champness delights to see his Joyful News Mission work at last provided with a suitable centre. "Castleton Hall," the new House at Rochdale, was opened last week. It is an ancient mansion, standing in spacious grounds, and well suited to the purpose for which it has now been dedicated. Mr. Champness will reckon to have from twenty to twenty-five evangelists—one fourth of the whole number—at home at a time training; and he will reside at the Hall with his family.

Dean Vaughan.—Replying to an attack of a contemporary on the Dean of Llandaff, Truth says that "for every hundred a year which Dr. Vaughan draws from the Church, he gives back at least two. Dr. Vaughan has been famous for his princely liberality for nearly forty years, and the Welsh Church is fortunate to have obtained the services of so distinguished a man; one, moreover, who might have been Archbishop of Canterbury; for if Dr. Vaughan had accepted either of the bishoprics which were offered to him by Lord Palmerston, he would certainly have ended at Lambeth."

Miss E. Needham, after a training of eleven years at the Princess House Restaurant for Women, 106, Brompton-road, S.W., is about to leave for Germany, in order to start, a month hence, with a number of German missionaries for Sumatra. Miss McLean writes to us: "I feel sure there are many who have sympathy with God, and his work, who would be glad to bear his devoted servant, Miss Needham, on their hearts in prayer at this time, going forth for his name's sake, 'Taking nothing of the Gentiles.' May many be stirred to go and do likewise!"

Dr. A. T. Pierson, as our readers know, is about to visit Scotland, where he purposes to hold missionary meetings. At a meeting of his church in Philadelphia a resolution was drawn up accepting his resignation, and making recognition of his especial fitness for the work in which he proposes to engage. The resolution closed with these words: "His voice has been heard for years at home in many conventions and assemblies, in eloquent advocacy of the cause of the world's evangelisation. In his book, 'The Crisis of Missions,' and with his pen in the columns of missionary magazines, he has done noble and most effective service in stimulating the interest of Christian people in the great work. Presbytery rejoices to believe that in other lands he may also be blessed of God in his earnest pleas in behalf of Christian missions.

The Book World.

FARMER GEORGE OF DEVONSHIRE. By Henry Deming. 1s. J. Kensit. In language partaking more or less exactly of the Western style, Farmer George is here allowed to speak out on religious and political questions. Matters of religion are, however, with him hardly ever considered apart from patriotic and ecclesiastical institutions.

LIGHT IN THE LITURGY. By Maria Sandberg. 1s. S. W. Partridge & Co. This is a companion to the Book of Common Prayer, intended to occupy five minutes' preparation for the morning service of the Church of England. There is a portion for every Sunday of the year, with a suitable hymn. Reliable in expounding evangelical truth, this little volume has reached its third edition, which is sufficient evidence that it fills a useful place.

THE EXPOSITORY TIMES is a new monthly, the object of which is to encourage an intelligent interest in the Bible, as it is preached from the pulpit, taught in the school, or read in the home. It aims at occupying a place between popular periodicals and publications of a more special character. The contents of the first number, for October, have evidently been got together with great care and good judgment. (3d. Aberdeen: William Diack, Schoolhill.)

THE SOCIAL OUTLOOK is an occasional magazine, edited by Rev. Herbert V. Mills. It is issued on behalf of the Home Colonisation Society, whose object is to deal with surplus labour and poverty by organising colonies and planting industrial villages; in these work will be created, with the result of a steady supply of the necessaries of life, on the basis of co-operative effort. The scheme is deserving of consideration by all who give attention to great social problems. (William Birkett, Highgate, Kendal.)

PLATFORM AND PULPIT ADDRESSES ON TEMPERANCE TOPICS. By Rev. H. E. Legh, M.A. Wells Gardner, Darton & Co. As an organising secretary for several years in connection with the Church of England Temperance Society, it fell to the lot of the author to deliver some six hundred sermons and addresses. A few of these are here presented in outline, with an appendix of illustrative notes. The articles are generally suggestive, but cannot be described as specially informing or vigorous. The dual basis is recognised, and but weakly defended.

A VILLAGE PROPAGANDA FORTY YEARS AGO. By Robert Harvey Smith. David Douglas, Edinburgh. According to this singularly fresh and interesting volume, the movement now so widely spread for promoting mutual improvement and instruction was born in the little village of Rhynie, Aberdeenshire, some forty years ago. It is a deeply engrossing narrative, told by one of the leading projectors of the scheme, the genesis of which it unfolds. We are now so familiar with the benefits derived from co-operative plans of imparting useful knowledge, that we wonder the idea should be of such recent growth. All honour to those who planted a seed from which great and beneficial fruits have sprung.

FROUDACITY: WEST INDIAN FABLES BY JAMES ANTHONY FROUDE, explained by J. J. Thomas. 6s. T. Fisher Unwin. Himself a negro, Mr. Thomas throws much feeling alike into protestation and argument. In him his race has an able defender from misrepresentation, whether arising from ignorance or prejudice. Impartial readers must allow that several strong points are in this volume scored against Mr. Froude. In the chapter on "Religion for Negroes," the author assumes ground infinitely higher than Mr. Froude, whom he reminds that Christianity is more than an empty creed. Moreover, he names Josiah Henson and Sojourner Truth as showing that Christ is the true Saviour of coloured men and women.

THE HERALD OF MERCY, annual volume for 1889. 1s. Morgan & Scott. Carefully edited, in the sincere hope that it may be blessed to plain English readers, this paper is likely to prove as acceptable in volume form as it is, we are glad to know, very useful in its monthly issues. Every page carries the Gospel message, expressed in simple language, and the illustrations render the various articles bright and attractive. For the instruction of youth in the love of Christ, and the comforting of God's aged saints, this little magazine has in the past been signally owned of God, and will, we trust, continue to enjoy a like favour in the future. For village libraries and cottage lending circles this annual volume has long been a favourite with many.

TO MEET THE DAY, THROUGH THE CHRISTIAN YEAR. By the author of "The Recreations of a Country Parson." Longmans. Here are readings for every morning, also for saints' days, following the arrangement of the Prayer Book. The meditations are varied in tone and thought, some of them discursive and rather weak. Verses are added in every case, and sometimes the selections are as truly beautiful as they are suitable. Though these pages contain many helpful thoughts, we cannot but regard some of the meditations as stopping short of stimulating intercourse with God. This may be owing to the fact that, in varying his style the author appeals alternately to head and heart, to literary taste and spiritual sense. The book has good features, which the author's admirers will know how to profit by, but it does not come up to our idea of a work of "practical devotion," although Dr. Boyd seems to regard it as such himself.

MEMOIRS OF REV. JAMES FRASER OF BREA. Marlborough & Co. In speaking of this book, Dr. Alexander Whyte, of Edinburgh, says:—"Fraser is one of my prime favourites; he stands beside Augustine, Bunyan, Baxter, Edwards, Boston, Shepard, and Halyburton, at my elbow." We endorse the high opinion entertained of Fraser by so good an authority. To read the book with profit it is necessary to keep in mind a lesson which Fraser himself had learned, and which he thus expresses:—"The Lord's dealings and method with others are not our rule." There is a danger lest in reading of Fraser's experiences some may look for God to deal with them in the same way. What real work Fraser's conversion was! It is safe to say that much that passes for conversion now would hardly have satisfied him. The matter was too important to be only half done. David prayed for thorough cleansing, and Fraser was as concerned to be thoroughly converted. We commend the book as calculated to awaken the thoughtless; to help the seeker; to instruct and inspire the saint; and to interest all. The style is old and quaint, often amusing, but always clear and forcible. The matter is "a feast of fat things."

ECHOES FROM JAPAN. By M. McLean. Passmore & Alabaster. The author of "Open Doors in Japan" here gives us over 300 intensely interesting pages about a very interesting people. After a brief sketch of the past history of Japan, Miss McLean depicts its present condition, writing the whole with animation on her personal experiences in the country. The book is entertaining in a high degree, and that it is accurate in details is attested by a Japanese gentleman, resident in England, who writes some prefatory remarks. He also says:—"Your residence of nine years in Japan gives you a very fair insight into the feeling and thought of the people, and throughout your papers I distinctly discern your true sympathy with my own country." The progress of Christian work in the "Britain of the East" is very near Miss McLean's heart, and in the chapters specially relating thereto she evinces more than usual enthusiasm. The book will richly reward perusal, and should some Christians who sit at ease in England determine, through reading its pages, to go and shine for Jesus in Japan, the author will greatly rejoice, and we shall thank God for giving her grace to write so forcible a book.

ANOTHER IRISH TOWN is sending a missionary to foreign lands, Rev. J. H. Fitzsimons having been ordained at Castle Dawson for service in India. It is noteworthy that fifty years ago one of the General Assembly's first missionaries to India, Rev. Dr. Glasgow, was devoted to the missionary work in the same place of worship in which the recent service was held.

MR. JOHN CARSON, who for the past twelve years has laboured in connection with the Seamen's Bethel, and the poorhouse and gaol at Campbelltown, Argyllshire, has just left for Australia. Among the fishing folk Mr. Carson has done a specially interesting work. His open-air services at the Quayhead, conducted regularly every Sunday night, in all conditions of the weather, have told upon his once strong constitution, and now he is compelled to seek rest in a warmer climate. A few days ago, at a public meeting, the general esteem in which Mr. Carson is held was shown by a subscribed testimonial of £200 and other gifts. As the steamer Kinloch moved away on Monday morning, many tears of parting were shed by kind friends and spiritual children left behind, and prayers were breathed from fervent hearts for Mr. Carson's speedy restoration to health and strength.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 29.—1 Samuel XX.

At Naioth God had, by miracle, interposed for David's deliverance (xix. 23, 24). Yet in this chapter he is fearful of Saul again (1—3). Confidence in God, such as his recent deliverance warranted, would have saved him from the crooked policy he adopted for his own safety (5—10).

Many things in this chapter show how real was Jonathan's friendship for David.

(1) His relationship to his father.—He was more than a son, he was treated with the fullest confidence (2). Saul's previous attempts upon the life of David he attributed to fits of madness, not to deliberate purpose. To love his father so that he could think no evil concerning him, and yet be true to the man who believed that his father was seeking deliberately to kill him, was no easy thing. That it was his friendship endured.

(2) His renewal of the covenant with David (11—17).—Their friendship had been formed in the hour of David's popularity; but the changes that already appear in David's circumstances do not diminish Jonathan's love for him. The passing of the kingdom over to his friend does not excite his envy, but only intensifies his love, as the covenant is renewed (17).

(3) His enduring his father's anger for David's sake (24—34).—What a melancholy spectacle Saul presents! At a religious feast, he allows his passion to overcome him, and, in the absence of David, vents his anger upon his son! Yet Jonathan was grieved, not for himself, but "for David" (34). To dishonour David was to wound Jonathan. Could friendship meet with a severer test?

(4) His farewell to David (35—42).—The sign was to be a message if there was no opportunity for an interview. Nothing could be more touching than the leave-taking (41, 42). Thus they parted; David to be henceforth a persecuted wanderer and fugitive, Jonathan to remain till death faithful to his father's tottering kingdom. Love so true and self-sacrificing reveals and illustrates the far greater love of Him who deigns to call us friends.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30.—1 Samuel XXI.

The incidents of this chapter are greatly to the dishonour of David.

David and Ahimelech (1—9).—Note: (1) David's lie (2).—Strange that, in referring to the incident, our Lord does not mention this (Matt. xii. 3, 4). Was this because when He forgives He forgets also? Yet the sin was great, and was followed by terribly disastrous consequences. What sad falls are possible even to the best of saints. (2) He obtained bread from Ahimelech (3—6).—Though God allowed David's lie to produce its terrible results, He did not withhold from him needful food. The letter of the law was violated, while its spirit was fulfilled. This is the point the Saviour emphasises. A ceremonial law may not prevent the preservation of life. (3) He obtained Goliath's sword (8, 9).—None could have been more valuable to him. It was calculated to remind him constantly of his great victory, and was a pledge of what he might expect in the future.

David in Gath (10—15).—Fear led him here (10), but one would have supposed that fear would have kept him away from the city of Goliath. He acted without God's counsel, and soon found that he had cause for greater fear in Gath than he had in Israel. Again he fails. By feigning madness he secures his escape; but how such an acted lie dishonours him! From Ps. lvi., which is supposed to refer to this incident, it is evident that David profited by his experiences, and learned that to trust in God when he was afraid was better than to scheme for himself.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1.—1 Samuel XXII.

The cave of Adullam (1) was situated in the valley of Elah, not far from the scene of David's combat with Goliath. Like the sword he had just received, the place would be calculated to strengthen his faith in God. The oppressive rule of Saul was already causing disaffection among his subjects (2). Not only these, but David's own family resort to him (1). As in the case of Joseph, the despised brother becomes the protector and leader. Gad the prophet is also among his followers (5). Is not this a picture of the kingdom of God in the world? While the oppressor still rules, Jesus sets up his kingdom, and gathers to himself those who are willing to own Him as Captain. Was not our first reason for coming to Christ very much like that for which these men came to David?

The massacre of the priests (6—18), and the destruction of the priests' city (19), was the blackest act of which Saul has been guilty. True, it was the execution of the sentence long since pronounced against the house of Eli (ii. 31—33), and solemnly teaches that God's word of threatening is as true as his word of promise. But this did not lessen Saul's guilt. The fact that not one of his footmen would execute his command should have warned him against such a deed (17).

To make it worse, there was no good reason for it. The speech which Saul addressed to his men falsely accused the people of conspiring against him (8); and as falsely suggested that both David and Jonathan were wanting in fidelity to him. The tale which Doeg told so far as it was true declared nothing really guilty in Ahimelech (9, 10). But in Saul's judgment to befriend David was a capital crime. Who would have thought that Saul, "the choice young man and goodly," would ever be capable of committing such a deed as this?

David, however, sees in this deed a result of his own sin (22). It would appear that his conscience was not quite easy in lying to Ahimelech; and one evidence of the sincerity of his repentance is that he makes no allusion to the sin of Saul or of Doeg, and attributes the whole evil to himself. A policy of lying can never be other than disastrous in its ultimate results.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2.—1 Samuel XXIII.

In reading this chapter it is delightful to note how the care of God over David appears. God is sufficient to ensure David's safety, however dangerous the circumstances in which he may be placed.

His victory over the Philistines (1—5) was manifestly of God. The enterprise was undertaken by God's direction (2), twice repeated to remove the fears of David's followers (3—4). For six hundred men to attack a vast army of Philistines was madness; but if God leads them their victory is sure. If you see in yourself reason for nothing but fear, "remember the name of the Lord your God" (Ps. xx. 7).

The treachery of the Keilites (7—13) was even a greater danger to David, besides wounding him by the base ingratitude it revealed. But see how, when God is consulted in time of need, He defeats the purposes of the wicked. It is impossible for either force or treachery to prevail against the man who lives in communion with God. The base wickedness of men only affords another opportunity for God to reveal his wisdom and might. You are safe beyond the reach of harm if God is your defence.

The interview with Jonathan (14—18) was an experience of a totally different character, yet enforces the same lesson, viz., that God is taking the charge of David. In the wilderness of Ziph this last meeting of the two friends took place. It was very brief, but refreshed David's spirit, and "strengthened his hand in God" (16). If the Keilites were treacherous, Jonathan is still true. With what infinite tenderness God balanced his trials and his consolations. Is it not ever so? He who in the darkest hour of his anguish received strength from the angel (Luke xxii. 43) does not forget to mingle comforts with our griefs.

The treachery of the Ziphites (19—28) again exposes David to danger from Saul. There was no excuse for the base cruelty of the men of Ziph. It was a pure attempt to curry favour with Saul (19, 20). Never was David in greater peril than now (25, 26). How can he escape? Unbelief may ask, How can even God deliver him now without performing a special miracle? A Philistine invasion requiring Saul's immediate attention (27) compels him to return, when he seemed at the point of seizing his prey. Read this not only as the history of what God has done, but as an indication of what He does. For you and for me He is still the same.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3.—1 Samuel XXIV.

Here is (1) David's opportunity for revenge, and how he used it (1—8).—Engedi was on the western coast of the Dead Sea, about midway between north and south. In pursuit of David among the rocks of this region, Saul enters the very cave where he and his men are concealed (3). Why should he not yield to the temptation? Why not rid the kingdom of Israel of a cruel and oppressive monarch, and begin at once a more righteous rule? Or, at least, why not let his men strike the blow (7)? Surely he has reasons enough for consenting to such a deed. But David cannot act so. Revenge, to a man of God, can only take one form—that of Rom. xii. 19—21. His aim is to save the life of Saul, while destroying the enmity which renders his own life so wretched. There is no better way of destroying one's enemies than that. Is not that the method which God has taken with us? (Rom. v. 10, and John xv. 13).

(2) Saul subdued and softened by David's kindness (9—22).—David's noble deed was followed by not less noble words (9—15). (Comp. Ps. vii. 3, 4, and 8, 9 with this chapter, 10, 11, and 15). His first aim is to establish the fact of his innocence against such calumniators as "Cush the Benjamite." The skirt of Saul's robe is evidence that David has no intention against his life (11). The effect of such an appeal was as great as David had hoped. It touched chords long since silent, and recalled happier days, when intercourse between the king and David had not been clouded by jealousy and hatred (16—22). It called forth the confession of his own sin, and of David's righteousness (17, 18). But the change in Saul was only temporary. It is, perhaps, only another evidence of his weakness. He lives in his passions. Whether he raves or whether he weeps, he acts not from principle, but from impulse. It is possible for a bad man to be temporarily moved to grief over sin (Hos. vi. 4).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4.—1 Samuel XXV.

The death of a good man is a serious loss to any nation; but to Israel, oppressed with the reign of a cruel, God-forsaken king, the death of Samuel was cause for special lamentation (1). His godly life, his fearless denunciation of wrong, his self-sacrifice for his people's good, and especially his power in intercessory prayer, made him such a man as the nation could ill spare.

The Wilderness of Paran was situated south of Palestine, not far from Maon, in Judah, where Nabal dwelt. Through this wilderness the Israelites wandered. Its associations were, therefore, full of interest and instruction to David.

Nabal, though a descendant of Caleb (3), possessed none of his great ancestor's spirit. He had great wealth, but little wit. David's demand was modestly made (4—9); and if there had been no other ground for it than the need of himself and his followers, Nabal might have been expected to grant it. But there was ground (7, 15, 16), as the servants themselves acknowledge. Nabal's shepherds had kept his sheep; but David and his men had been a wall of protection to the shepherds. What he might have taken by force as his right, David asked as a favour. But Nabal replies not only by refusing, but by insulting and reviling words (10, 11). Such a speech justifies his servants' (17) and his wife's (25) description of his character.

David, who has borne patiently Saul's bitter and cruel persecution, is provoked by Nabal's insult to seek for an unworthy revenge (13, 21, 22). What possibilities of evil are in even the best saints!

Nabal's servant and wife are as prudent as he himself is foolish (18, 19, 23, 31). Though David was a good man, he had formed a wicked resolution; and Abigail succeeds in convincing him of this. Not only the safety of Nabal's household, but David's own peace of mind, required that he should not shed innocent blood (31). Her "soft answer turned away David's wrath" (Prov. xv. 1, xxv. 12). The spirit of revenge gives place to that of blessing (32—35).

The remarkable death of Nabal which follows so soon indicates how much better it is to leave our cause in God's hand then to take vengeance ourselves. David was God's anointed, and Nabal had injured and insulted him; God therefore pleaded David's cause (1 Peter ii. 23).

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5.—1 Samuel XXVI.

The incidents of this chapter are somewhat similar to those of xxiii. and xxiv. The Ziphites repeat their attempt to deliver David up to Saul (1). David again spares Saul's life (5—12); and Saul is again subdued and softened by David's kindness (13—25).

The guilt of this renewed attack by Saul is all the greater after his previous confession (xxiv. 20). He knew that in attempting to destroy David, he was resisting the will of God. Yet he repeats it at the first opportunity, after the impulse of kindness has passed away (Job ix. 4).

David's visit to the camp of Saul was a bold and daring enterprise. Why should he be so gentle towards Saul, and yet so furious towards Nabal? Possibly because Nabal's insult came when he was off his guard; and though it was a little thing in comparison with what Saul had done, it immediately aroused the spirit of revenge. He expected injuries from Saul, and was prepared to receive them. But he expected not injuries but favours from Nabal. Is not this the explanation of many of our failures? Oh to learn how to trust Him who never slumbers, and can never be surprised! (Ps. cxxi.; Isa. xxvii. 3).

Saul's confession of guilt (21) is of little value. Remorse and shame in the presence of men are possible where there is no true repentance towards God. A bad man may have good impulses, as in the receding tide there are advancing waves. Not the impulses, but the set of a man's life, determines his true character.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, October 6.

THE TRIBES UNITED UNDER DAVID.
2 SAM. v. 1—12.

GOLDEN TEXT (Ps. cxxxiii. 1).

WHEN Saul died he left the kingdom of Israel in a disordered and weakened condition. Religion was at a low ebb, the tabernacle at Nob was neglected, and the ark remained at Kirjath-jearim. Divisions existed among the people, so that their powerful enemies — the Philistines — prevailed against them.

David, though anointed king by God's direction, was not eager to grasp at the kingdom. It was not to him the object of mere ambition. He had no hope of discharging its responsibilities and duties unless God led him to it.

During the seven and a half years which followed his being anointed as king over Judah (ii. 1—4), he had little opportunity to improve the condition of things. For Ishbosheth was at the same time king over Israel (ii. 8—10). A divided kingdom cannot be a strong kingdom. But steadily, and without any aggressive movement on David's part, he has been growing strong, while the house of Saul has become weak (iii. 1), until the revolt of Abner (iii. 6—12) renders Ishbosheth's cause hopeless. Then by the jealousy of Joab (iii. 22—27), and the treachery of Baanah and Rechab (iv. 1, 2), both Abner and Ishbosheth are slain, and David's way to the throne is cleared. Even yet he does not act, but waits for God to turn the people to him. By their pressing need He does this. They saw that the condition of the kingdom required such a leader as David.

Ver. 1—5.—Hebron was situated about the middle of Judah. Here David was anointed (ii. 4), and reigned over Judah for seven and a half years (5). Note his age—thirty years. "The prime of life; the age at which the Levites entered upon their duties (Num. iv. 3); at which Joseph was made ruler over Egypt (Gen. xli. 46); at which Jesus Christ was anointed with the Holy Ghost at his baptism, and began his public ministry (Luke iii. 23)."

Note the three reasons the people gave for making David king: the tie of relationship (1); the evidence he had already given of skilful generalship (2); and the fact that God had chosen him. (See Deut. xvii. 15, and chap. iii. 18.) "Feed" (2) means shepherd (Ps. lxxviii. 70—72). The Shepherd of Israel was taken from the sheepfold, as the "fishers of men" were called from the fishing boats of Galilee. "Elders of Israel" (3).—See these more particularly described, 1 Chron. xii. 23—40. His appointment to this high position was the Lord's doing, and was the result of his fidelity in previous humbler positions. Not the ambitious, but the faithful, does God exalt (Matt. xxv. 21).

Ver. 6—9.—God evidently directed David in the choice of a new capital (1 Kings xi. 36). It was as much God's choice as David's, and became the religious as well as the political centre (Ps. lxxviii. 68). Its central situation and its impregnable position made it eminently suited for this distinction. "The Jebusites" (6), one of the tribes of the Canaanites, retained possession of the city. "Except thou take away the blind," &c.—This is better rendered, "Thou shalt not come hither; but the blind and the lame shall keep thee off." It expresses the confidence the Jebusites had in the strength of their fortress; the blind and lame would be sufficient to defend it. But David and his men were not easily daunted by difficulty. A way into the city was found by "the gutter" (8), or R.V., "the water course." This was some "water-worn gully in the rock, or a subterranean channel which had been constructed to supply the fortress with water."—Cambridge Bible. "Hated of David's soul" (8).—The taunt of the Jebusites had roused his indignation. The Septuagint reads, "Who hate David's soul." Joab led in this enterprise (1 Chron. xi. 6); and the memory of the victory was perpetuated in a kind of proverb directed against vain self-confidence. "Millo" (9) "appears to have been some fortification already in existence. It may have protected the city on the north, the only side on which it had not the defence of precipitous ravines."

Ver. 10—12.—The progress of the kingdom soon began to appear. "David went going and growing" (10, margin). "Tyre was one of the two great cities of Phœnicia, celebrated for its commerce, its mechanical skill, and its wealth." The king of Tyre formed an alliance with David, by sending materals and workmen to build him a house (11). Devoutly David attributes all his success to God (10, 12).

LESSONS.

(1) How David got the kingdom.—It was not by his own ambition, but by the choice of God. And he waited God's time, and allowed God to lead him to it in his own way. His concern was to be faithful to God, first as a shepherd; next, as the object of Saul's envious hatred; after this, as the king of Judah—then God exalted him by the choice of the people. God bestows his honours upon the meek.

(2) The reasons for the people's choice of David.—All the three reasons given (1, 2) apply also to the King whom David foreshadowed. He has entered into kinship with us (Heb. ii. 14); has proved his power to subdue our enemies during his life, and at his death and resurrection; and is Divinely chosen as King. Is He our King? If He does not rule us, who does? If we reject his rule, what must be the result? (Luke xix. 14, 27).

(3) The blessings which immediately follow David's accession.—The character of the king determines the character of the kingdom. What but disaster could follow the rule of a man like Saul? But changes for the better appear as soon as David begins to reign. What will follow if we admit Jesus to be King over us? He will subdue enemies (sins) that have been too great for us, and will bring our whole lives under his control (Isa. ix. 6, 7).

(4) The taking of Jerusalem, and its subsequent history.—Of the glory of Jerusalem before the time of David we have heard nothing. The city which had a more glorious future than that of any other city of the world was possessed by the enemies of God's people. What has it become since? And even greater glory is in store for it. In all this, it illustrates the change which the capture of our hearts makes in us. Let Him take them, and cleanse them, and make them glorious with his own presence.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL PEACE ASSOCIATION.—It is well that Sunday scholars should be taught in conformity with the objects of this Association, to seek peace, and preserve it also, by all means in their power. In a recent appeal, Sunday-school superintendents and teachers are asked to help in the endeavour to check the prevalent war spirit by enlisting the young under the banner of the Prince of Peace. Miss E. J. Peckover, Bank House, Wisbech, is secretary of the Association.

GEORGE-STREET MISSION, LAMBETH WALK, S.E.—During the summer months the Gospel has been proclaimed in the "highways and byeways" under the auspices of this Mission. At the crowning meeting of the season, held a few days ago, in the "Walk," Mr. G. Goodman, city missionary, was assisted by several members of the Open-air Mission. Tracts setting forth the Gospel, advocating temperance and exposing infidelity, will be gratefully received by Mr. Goodman, whose address is 29, Princes-square, Kensington.

SEATS FOR SHOP GIRLS. — The Early Closing Association is showing at its offices, 100, Fleet-street, a very simple and ingenious contrivance, in the shape of a shop-seat for assistants or customers, called the "Humane Safety Collapsing Seat." It occupies about the same space when not in use as a closed umbrella. It is extremely simple and marvellously cheap, cannot be upset nor become detached from its position by accident; yet it can be moved to right or left, backwards or forwards, at the option of the user. The invention will be a great boon to shop assistants; for there is little doubt that it will be adopted by many of the more considerate employers who care for the health of their assistants.

LOST OPPORTUNITIES.

O FOR the times that are past,
O for the year that is sped,
O for the spring with its flowerets sweet,
That blossomed and clustered about my feet,
In the garden of the Lord.
Only to grasp
In a holy clasp,
With silent prayer,
Some blossom rare;
To leave it in his hand,
As an offering from the land
In the garden of the Lord.

Alas, for the year is past,
Alas, for the spring is sped,
And the flowers, by other hands than mine,
Are plucked for the crown of our Christ Divine,
From the garden of the Lord.
And I still hold,
With pain untold,
But a gaudy weed
That is long since dead.
The fleeting year that's gone
Has left me this alone
In the garden of the Lord. X.

WORKERS IN COUNCIL.

THE workers' meeting at the Home of Industry, Bethnal Green-road, last week was presided over by General Haig, the chief subject of the evening being North Africa. Mr. E. H. Glenny, and three ladies shortly leaving for North Africa were present. General Haig urged on all present the importance of remembering two fundamental facts — that the heathen are perishing, and that God desires they should be saved. The North Africa Mission is working entirely amongst Mohammedans, excepting in a few instances where work has been started amongst Europeans — Italians, Spaniards, French, &c. The mass of the population is scattered in villages and small towns, so that itinerating is absolutely necessary. The devotion and courage of Miss Herdman and the ladies with her are matter for deep thankfulness to God. They have undertaken the journey from Tangier to Fez alone, excepting their mule attendant. The Governor of Tangier said to Miss Herdman, "You may go anywhere; no one will touch you." The native converts have to undergo great persecution if they confess Christ. Tripoli has been opened up by God for the Gospel message. Mr. Michell and Mr. Harding have found perfect freedom and an open door where it was thought the Turkish power would have interfered. God Himself seems to be curbing the Turkish animosity, for there is a dread of the action of the Christian Powers; where the murder of a Mohammedan might be condoned, the murder of a Christian would be punished by death.

Miss Gritton, who is going out to Tangier to work amongst the Spaniards, told something of the way in which God had led her in the fulfilment of her desire to go to work in Africa. Miss Gill, hoping to go to Tlemcen, gave a bright testimony of how the Lord had cleared her path, and of her joy in going out. Miss Johnson, bound for Tunis, spoke of the strength the Lord had given her, though that morning she had been parting with loved ones.

Mr. Merry asked prayer for Miss Macpherson and others in Canada. He intimated that, all being well, Miss Macpherson and Miss Stock would be present at the next workers' meeting on October 16.

CHILD MARRIAGE IN INDIA.—A case illustrating the evils of child marriage is reported from Bombay. In this instance the husband of the victim, as in Rukhmabai's case, is resolute in his refusal to acknowledge the obligation of infant marriage, and declines to receive his wife, with the result that he has been ruined by legal costs.—The Times.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

In July Rev. Dr. Cassel, of Christ Church, Berlin, baptized a Jewish lawyer, and also a Jewish lady and her child. In August Dr. Cassel baptized two Jews and a Jewess.

Rev. C. Musgrave Brown, curate of St. Luke's, Liverpool, has declined the living of St. Paul's, Halliwell, Bolton, as he considers that, having been ordained only eighteen months, further experience in work as a curate necessary before taking charge of a parish. Since he went to Liverpool, Mr. Brown has gathered together a large number of young men in his various classes and meetings. During the summer months he has been conducting open-air services from St. Luke's steps, and these have been very largely attended.

It is hoped forthwith to found a "League of the Church for the Promotion of the Improvement of the Homes of the Poor." This League will, by all lawful measures, and by all moral means, seek (says the Rector of Holy Trinity, Windsor) to purify, redeem, and sanctify the cottage life of England, by delivering it from that awful pollution which reproaches our civilisation and rebukes our Christianity. A vast proportion of the immorality, vice, and crime, which are so often shielded and sheltered by the slums, is due to the appalling depravity of inhuman homes. The work of the League of the Church will be thoroughly to instruct public opinion and awaken the public conscience.

SALVATION ARMY.

Seven more arrests have been made in connection with the Army open-air meetings at Whitchurch, and the persons arrested will be tried this day (Friday).

Commissioner Coombes, who for five years has managed the affairs of the Salvation Army in the Dominion, has been appointed to the command of the Army in Australia.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Dr. Steel, of Sydney, states that fifty years ago the Presbyterian ministers in all Australia did not number twenty-five, and now they are about six hundred.

Rev. Dr. Verner White, of South Kensington Presbyterian Church, will attain the fiftieth year of his ministry in December next, and he then intends to retire from the active discharge of his ministerial duties. Dr. White has been minister of his present charge since 1873.

Rev. W. S. Swanson, after a well-earned holiday has again entered with vigour into his labours as missionary agent of the English Presbyterian Church. On Sunday week he preached to large congregations in Jersey, and this week he has been taking part in the Dublin Christian Convention.

Rev. Robert Wylie, late of Stirling, was last week inducted to the charge of Trinity Presbyterian Church, Canonbury, N. There is a numerous and increasing Presbyterian community in this part of London, with one of the handsomest churches belonging to the denomination in the Metropolis, a large and growing attendance at the Sabbath-school, Band of Hope, and other institutions connected with the Church.

METHODIST.

The Primitive Methodists have resolved to enter upon an extension scheme for the London area, which will differ from the London Wesleyan Mission in comprising a series of small centres rather than a few great centralised halls. A committee has been directed to make exhaustive inquiries into the subject.

The "Forward Movement" is making great headway in Lancashire. Manchester leads the way, and Liverpool, Blackburn, and Rochdale follow well behind. The work of Rev. S. F. Collier and Mr. R. Johnson are very highly appreciated by the whole community. The Free Trade Hall services promise to become a great power during the coming winter.

The old stable at Hatfield, Herts, used for many years by the Wesleyans as a place of worship, has at length disappeared, and the Sunday services and other meetings will be held in the schoolroom, which was recently completed, until the chapel, now in course of erection, is ready. Meanwhile Rev. Thomas Champness has sent one of his Joyful News evangelists to Hatfield, and aggressive work has begun in right earnest. The new chapel is to be opened about the end of October.

The evangelistic committee appointed by the last Primitive Methodist Conference met at Derby a few days ago to consider the question of organising a distinct order of Connexional evangelists. The feeling generally entertained seemed to be in favour of employing in this movement either male or female agents, married or single, of any age that was considered prudent, if their suitability in gifts and religious life and experience, with marked aptitude for evangelistic work, was clear.

Rev. B. Senior, pastor of New Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars-road, London, has returned home after a three months' trip to the United States and Canada. Everywhere he went he received a cordial welcome. He preached in some of the largest churches in the country, besides visiting numerous camp meetings, and was gratified everywhere by the evangelistic activity he witnessed in the conversion and sanctification of souls. On Sunday last Mr. Senior conducted special services in connection with the second anniversary of the opening of New Surrey Chape

CONGREGATIONAL.

A meeting was held on Friday week in Abbey-hill Chapel, Kenilworth, to bid farewell to Mr. T. Arnold, formerly a scholar and Sunday-school teacher at Abbey-hill, and his colleague, Mr. W. R. Hunt, of London, who are going out to China in connection with the London Missionary Society.

A new chapel, for the erection of which a sum of £2500 was provided by the will of the late Mr. Joseph Jackson, a London merchant, who died in 1871, was opened at Little Ashby, Westmoreland, on Friday last. The village has a scattered population of about 100, for whom there has been little facility for attending on the means of grace.

Rev. U. R. Thomas, of Bristol, speaking recently on the relation of the Church to the labour world, said that the Church of Christ must face the problems of the labour world. The preacher urged that he who followed on the sweating system had no more right to his name on the roll of the church than the wilfully unchaste and perpetually intemperate.

Rev. J. C. Harrison on Sunday week resumed his special evangelistic services for the people at Park Chapel, Camden Town. These services are held monthly, and have been the means of attracting a large number of persons residing in the neighbourhood who do not regularly attend a place of worship. Several who were first attracted to the chapel by these special services have recently been admitted to the membership of the church.

BAPTIST.

Foundation-stones of a new chapel in Princes-street, Northampton, were laid last week. Among the donations received was one of £25 from Mr. H. Labouchere, M.P.

Rev. J. J. Doke has been recognised as pastor of City-road Church, Bristol, in succession to Rev. Walter J. Mayers, now one of the deputation secretaries of Dr. Barnardo's Homes.

A valedictory service was held a few days ago at St. Mary's Church, Norwich, to bid farewell to Miss Annie Theobald, a member of the church, who is about to join the Zenana Mission in Delhi. A sum of £100 was subscribed to assist in establishing the missionary in her work.

Rev. P. T. Stanford, a coloured man, has accepted the pastorate of a Baptist Church in Birmingham. It is said that he can not only speak English most correctly, but five other languages. He was born a slave, but obtained his freedom through the Civil War. He attributes his conversion to Mr. D. L. Moody.

At Upper Holloway Chapel, on the 11th inst., eleven men and eight women were baptized, their ages varying from fourteen to seventy. The candidates were all connected with the Tollington Mission-room, in Hornsey-road. After an address by Rev. J. R. Wood, Mr. Henry Bird, one of those immersed, who is over sixty years of age, gave a brief account of his conversion, and expressed his firm belief that baptism was a clear command of Christ.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Dr. Moss has reached Antananarivo, and C. N. Southall his destination at Hanchung, China. The Syrian work at Brumana and Ramallah is in a healthy state. The idea of a general First Day School Teachers' Conference grows. It is suggested that Bristol or Birmingham would suit the purpose, and that it might lead to a great spread of the work among other churches than Friends, as is the case in both those cities.

Dr. William Nicholson urges the necessity of a periodical conference of all the Yearly Meetings, having ultimate authority for unification of the faith and practices of Friends, but the Review dissents in toto from what it calls Centralisation, and rather encourages an advisory conference.

Western Quarterly meeting, held in Leominster on the 18th inst., was a favoured time. Hereford meeting-house is being enlarged. Dr. Whitney, of Tokio, Japan, gave a most interesting and able lecture on Japan to an appreciative and good audience, mostly Friends. Mary E. Robinson, Isabella Young, and Elizabeth Stevens were present from other Quarterly Meetings.

The Freeman writes on Sept. 13 on "The Decline of Quakerism," yet encourages its own people to imitate the fellowship meetings of Friends. It adds: "But we have sometimes thought that if Friends feel perfectly free to sing, or read, or pray, or to exhort, or to teach, or to evangelise; if traditions and questions were not allowed to restrain the Spirit, Quakerism might yet revive." The revival and the liberty thus indicated are now largely realised; hence Friends are not declining, but increasing.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

An eight days' series of successful evangelistic services has been held by Rev. George C. Grubb in the new mission church, Townsend-street, Dublin.

Sermons in aid of the Universities' Mission in Central Africa were preached last Sabbath in several churches in the neighbourhood of Dublin by Revs. Archdeacon Farler and Duncan Travers, both of whom have recently returned from Zanzibar.

The sad news was received last week of the death, from fever, of one of the Irish Presbyterian missionaries in India—Rev. Thomas M'Anlis, of Rajkot, Kattiawar. Mr. M'Anlis had been but a short time in the field, and great things were anticipated from him in the work of the mission. His loss is very keenly felt.

During the last seven weeks Gospel services have been held night after night by Rev. Jas. Kirkwood in a tent at Derryall, near Portadown, and similar services have been held by Rev. James Stewart in a tent at Magheragall, near Lisburn. In each case there was a very large attendance, and much spiritual blessing followed the labours put forth.

The annual Christian Convention commenced at Dublin on Monday evening. We hope to give a sketch of the proceedings in our issue of next week.

Rev. Thomas Cook, the Wesleyan evangelist, concluded an eight days' evangelistic mission in Newry on Sunday. The attendance has been excellent, and there have been conversions at each meeting.

On Tuesday evening last week the Presbytery of Magherafelt met to ordain Mr. James H. Fitzsimons, as a missionary to India. An immense congregation assembled in the Church to witness the proceedings.

The annual meeting of the Irish Baptist Association was held last week in Belfast, under the presidency of Pastor E. T. Mateer. Encouraging reports of the work carried on by the various churches represented were submitted, and the session was a very pleasant and hopeful one.

A most successful meeting on behalf of the British and Foreign Bible Society has been held in the Parochial Schoolhouse, Wicklow, and a similar meeting on behalf of the Theatrical Mission was held in Rathbarry Rectory, co. Cork. In the latter case Mr. Courthope Todd, of Macready House, London, gave an interesting account of his work among the theatrical employés at home and abroad.

Several meetings have recently been held in Western Donegal in connection with the Evangelical Alliance. Addresses were delivered by Rev. D. Mullan, secretary of the Irish branch, in Bundoran, Donegal, Killybegs, Ardara, and Bunbeg, in the district of Gweedore. The meeting in Bunbeg was the largest Protestant gathering which has been held in the neighbourhood for some years, a considerable number of persons coming over by boats from the adjacent island to attend it. The people seemed delighted to have the opportunity of listening to the encouraging reports that were given of the progress of the Gospel in other parts of the country, and in foreign lands.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. William Griffith, Welsh Calvinistic Methodist minister, Disgwylfa, Arvon.—Rev. G. R. Taylor, curate of Kedleston, near Derby.—Rev. Henry Hall-Houghton, of Melmerby Hall, Cumberland, a retired evangelical clergyman, at one time curate of St. Peter's, Cheltenham.—Rev. P. C. Kidd, rector of Skipton, Yorkshire.—Rev. W. H. West, LL.D., Congregational minister, Wellington, New Zealand.—Rev. Oliver Raymond, for the past sixty-six years rector of Middleton, Essex.—Mr. David James, for nearly sixty years a Sunday-school teacher connected with the Baptist Church at Abercarne, South Wales.—Rev. Roderick Macgregor, since 1851 pastor of the Free Church, Canisbay, Caithness.—Mr. John Matchett, an esteemed elder of Ormond Quay Presbyterian Church, Dublin.—Rev. Henry Graham, of Hull, for fifty-two years in the Wesleyan ministry.—Rev. A. P. Irwine, vicar of Bingley, Yorkshire.

CHRISTIAN UNION FOR PROMOTING INTERNATIONAL CONCORD.—Canon Westcott is chairman of the provisional committee of this Union, which has issued a very lucid statement of principles. That the attitude of the great nations of Europe towards one another is inconsistent with the spirit of the Christian faith is becoming more and more clearly acknowledged. During the last three centuries attention has been directed mainly to questions of personal conduct, and the lessons of the Gospel have not been applied to the problems of international life. The time seems to have come when Christians should be called upon to realise and give effect to their creed in the discharge of the widest social duties—the duties not only of class to class, but also of nation to nation—as members of one race. The statement urges these matters, and briefly considers mediation, arbitration, and (ultimately) disarmament, as measures tending to peace. We trust many of our readers will secure copies (gratis from Dyer Bros., 31, Paternoster-square, E.C.), and join this Union, which already includes among its members adherents of various denominations.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a special mission by Mr. John Scroggie, at the Rink Hall, Blackheath, Oct. 6 to 20. Bible-readings each afternoon at 3; evangelistic services at 7.30.——For blessing on a series of meetings at Alva, N.B., to be conducted by Mr. Thomas Wales (of the Evangelisation Society), commencing Sunday next.——For blessing on services by Messrs. H. A. Squire and H. M. Barnett, at Tunbridge Wells, Lewes, Ramsgate, &c., from Sept. 29 onwards.——For blessing on evangelistic services at Comrie, N.B., in connection with the Perthshire Christian Union.——For blessing on a week's special mission to young men, at the Y.M.C.A., York, Oct. 13 to 20, to be conducted by Mr. Lomax Mackenzie, of London.——For blessing on the opening services of the South Norwood City Mission Hall, on Tuesday next.——For blessing on missions by Mr. Henry Lakin, at Harrold, to Oct. 4, and Maryport, Oct. 5 to 18.——For blessing on missions by Rev. W. Haslam, at Christ Church, Silloth, Cumberland, commencing Sept. 28, and at South Creake, Norfolk, Oct. 4.——For blessing on a six days' Gospel Temperance mission, at the Gospel Hall, Southgate-road, Wood Green, N., commencing on Monday next.

Notices.

MR. J. GORE, 10, Thorndale-avenue, Belfast, would be glad to know whether any black or red ink is manufactured which, when used on Indian paper (such as that used in Bibles), does not show through.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—C.H. F.L. W.D. C.B. F.D. W.P.G. J.P. J.B. M.T. G.S. S.K. C.P. G.W.O. G.J.H. F.G. J.D. A.B. H.S.S. M.A. H.V.E. S.F. E.S. H.P. G.W. A.C.D. H.K. R.D.F. G.T. D.J.E. C.B.W. A.B. M.C. F.B.M. F.A.W. A.M. E.W.W. M.F. R.C. T.G. J.B.B. W.B. A.B. J.P.H. L.S. F.W.S. W.M.C. S.V.H. S.A.B. B.B. K.W. W.P. C.S. N.F.H. A.M.C. F.S. M.B.D. E.J.T. W.J.M. C.M. G.S. A.J.B. H.S.L.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—E. A. Howe, 75, Thomas-street, Limehouse, E.; A. Doward, 200, Whitechapel-road, Mile End, E.; C. Black, 137, North Hill-street, Toxteth Park, Liverpool; H. M. Barnett, 17, Queen Elizabeth's-walk, Stoke Newington, N.; R. Roberts, The Rest, Mortlake, S.W.; Corporal H. R. A. Wilson, D Company, 2nd Suffolk Regiment, South Camp, Aldershot; S. Booty, 13, Loftus-road, Uxbridge-road, W.; B. Rogers, 35, Sewardstone-road, Victoria Park, E.; Mrs. Grundy, 14, Bonner-road, Victoria Park, E.; Miss E. Allman, Billingshurst, Sussex; D. Fenton, Yeaman-street, Forfar, N.B.; Miss L. M. Clinch, Disraeli Villa, 57, Disraeli-road, Upton, E.; R. E. Meadows, 39, Payne street, North Shields; H. Powers, 11, Bridlington-street, Hull.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

The Salford School Board has authorised a further series of temperance lectures in the Board schools.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearse delivered the opening lecture of the present (the fifth) series under the auspices of the Glasgow Abstainers' Union.

A competition for pupil teachers on "The Effects of Alcoholic Liquors on the Human System," is to take place November 15 at Liverpool under the auspices of the National Temperance League. Information to be had from Mr. R. Rae, 33, Paternoster-row, London. £100 is to be given in prizes.

At the Eastbourne Brewster Sessions on Monday the temperance societies of the town opposed the numerous licence applications, all of which had previously been refused by the magistrates. With the exception of a confectioner's refreshment-room licence, the justices again refused all applications.

In a letter to The Times the Archdeacon of London says: "The best result of the present controversy about the policy of the Church of England Temperance Society would be that the great mass of non-abstainers should throw aside any fastidiousness or want of sympathy which they may feel, and earnestly join the tectotalers in their crusade against an appalling evil.'

On Monday, at Cardiff, on the resumption of the inquiry into the working of the Sunday Closing Act, a number of witnesses gave strong evidence in favour of the Act. They included the chairman and vice-chairman of the Montgomery County Council, and the chief constable. The witnesses agreed that the bonâ fide traveller clause should be either amended or repealed.

A conference of ministers of religion and others engaged in philanthropic and educational work in Manchester was held on Friday to consider the action to be taken in opposition to the granting of a licence for the palace of varieties now in course of erection in Manchester. A resolution pledging the meeting to offer the most determined opposition to any application for a licence by the promotors of the undertaking was adopted, and a committee was appointed to give it practical effect.

FOREIGN.

A temperance congress was held at Cologne, September 14—16.

The Army Temperance Association, India, has now a paid agent who assists the secretary in visiting regiments and batteries in India and Burmah. Its monthly organ, On Guard, is to be published weekly.

It is not to be wondered at that there should be so lamentable an increase of intemperance in Paris, seeing that during the past few years the dram-shops in the city and suburbs have increased over 5000, there now being 29,000, while the consumption of spirits has increased threefold.

Union Hall Mission.—Mr. ROBERT BILKE, Abergeldie, Greenhill Park, Harlesden, London, N.W., writes:—"We are greatly in need of funds to enable us to sustain our evangelistic work among the poor. The means for the support of our work have greatly fallen off, so much so that we are seriously thinking of closing three of our halls, and I have also to dispense with the help of several fellow-workers in the Mission for the same reason."

A Request.—DEAR SIR,—I am trying to collect incidents where tracts have been used and resulted in conversion. Will you request your readers to give me information as to where such results have followed tract distribution? Some may have known of such cases personally, others may have clippings from papers, &c., still others may be able to refer me to a section or page of a book.—Yours in his service, C. B. WHITE.

Y.M.C.A., 7 and 9, East Third-street, Jamestown, N.Y., U.S.A.

[874]

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, E.C. — Annual meeting of members at Mr. and Mrs. Cawston's, Bromley Hill, Sat., Sept. 28, 4.30 p.m. Workers' conference, Wed., Oct. 2, 6.30 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Sept. 29, 3 and 7 p.m., missionaries departing for North Africa. Oct. 1, farewell meeting. Oct. 2, quiet day.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45 and 7.30 p.m., Mr. Oscar Owers. Mon., to Fri., 8 p.m., Gospel meetings for men. Bible-class, Thurs., 8 p.m. French Bible-class, Thurs., 8 p.m. Bible-reading, Colonel Puget, Sat., 8 p.m. Prayer-meeting, daily (Sat. ex.) during Sept. Mr. Oscar Owers.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W. — Public lecture, Thurs., Sept. 26, 8.45 p.m., by Rev. C. Wilson, on "An Hour in the Bible House Library." Sun., 3.15 p.m., evangelistic service, address by Sir Robert Phayre.

Y.M.C.A., FINSBURY PARK HALL, 255, Seven Sisters'-road, N.—Sun., Sept. 29, 3.15 p.m., address to young men, by Mr. J. H. Putterill, Fri., Oct. 11, 8 p.m., inaugural meeting of winter session. Chair taken by Mr. R. C. Morgan. Addresses by Rev. John McNeill and others.

Y.M.C.A., 91, EUSTON-ROAD, N.W.—Evangelistic meetings, London Cabmen's Mission Hall, Gray's Inn-road, Mon., Thurs., and Fri., 8 p.m., and Sun., 11 a.m.

Y.M.C.A., 234, KENNINGTON PARK-ROAD, S.E.—Thurs., Oct. 3, 8 p.m., address by Rev. W. R. Mowll.

THE WEST LONDON MISSION.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Princes Hall: Fri., 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sun., Sept. 29, Rev. James Neil, 3.30 p.m., "Seven Times Chastised"; 7 p.m., "The Sea Night Mist."

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun. next, at 11 and 6.45, Mr. J. S. Harrison.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Fri., Oct. 4. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Dr. Eccles will preside. Address by Rev. W. Fuller Gooch, on "A Threefold Aspect of the Christian Life." Mr. E. H. Glenny will be present with a party of missionaries shortly leaving for North Africa.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. F. C. Bland, Sun., at 11 and 7; Wed., at 8, Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Fri., Oct. 4, all-day meeting. 11 a.m., prayer and accounts of mission work; 3 p.m., Rev. F. B. Meyer; 7 p.m., Mr. Reader Harris.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun., Sept. 29, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Rev. W. J. Mayers; 3 p.m., Rev. Henry Bright.

CLAPTON HALL, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton, N.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sun, 6.30 p.m.; Fri., 7.30 p.m.

HYDE PARK HALL MISSION.—Closing services in Hyde Park, Sun. next, 3 p.m., Mr. Charles Cook and others.

SOUTH NORWOOD CITY MISSION HALL, Portland-road, South Norwood, S.E.—Opening meeting, Tues., Oct. 1, 4 p.m. Mr. F. A. Bevan will preside.

COMING CONFERENCES.

CONGREGATIONAL UNION. — Autumnal meetings, Hull Sept. 30 to Oct. 4.

CLIFTON CONFERENCE, Victoria Rooms, Clifton, Bristol, Oct. 1—3.—Rev. James Ormiston, Rector of St. Mary-le-Port, Bristol, convener.

DUMFRIES, N.B., Oct. 1—3.

SPECIAL CONFERENCE CONCERNING ISRAEL, Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, London, N., Oct. 1—3.

CHURCH CONGRESS, Cardiff, Oct. 1—4.

GLASGOW HALF-YEARLY MEETINGS OF CHRISTIANS, Waterloo Rooms, Oct. 3 and 4.

BAPTIST UNION. — Autumnal meetings, Birmingham, Oct. 7—11.

DORKING CONFERENCE for the Deepening of the Spiritual Life, St. Paul's Church, Oct. 7—11.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE CONGRESS, Birmingham, Oct. 21—25.—Mr. R. Rae, Secretary, 33, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE.—Annual Conference, Cheltenham, Oct. 22—24.—Programmes to be had from the Alliance House, 7, Adam-street, Strand, London, W.C.

Y.W.C.A. TOTAL ABSTINENCE CONFERENCE, Morley Halls, 316, Regent-street, W., Oct. 23, 3.30 p.m. Evening meeting, Exeter (Large) Hall, at 8.30.

MANCHESTER CHRISTIAN CONVENTION, Oct. 29—31.—Communications respecting apartments, &c., should be addressed to the Secretaries, Conference Hall, Strangeways, Manchester.

Appeals.

London Medical Mission.—Dr. LATCHFORD, superintendent, urges the claims of this excellent agency upon the prayers and purses of the Christian public. The convalescent home at Folkestone has been a blessing to 125 patients this year, but through lack of funds many have been deprived of its advantages. Moreover, some 240 boys and girls have spent a fortnight at the Children's Home in Kent. Visitors are always welcome to the Mission House, 47, Endell-street, St. Giles', where particulars as to the needs of the work may be obtained. The work is growing, and more friends are required.

A Village Need.—At the request of the men of Coombe, Miss ADELA BROOKE, of Coombe House, near Woodstock, Oxon., has for some time been engaged in an endeavour to build and establish a reading-room and coffee-tavern in the village. The population is small, and all working people. While the building proceeds it is hoped that friends will be heard from who will contribute £200 to furnish the place and pay other incidental expenses. Miss Brooke writes: "The building cannot be opened till this money is collected, and I would pray those interested in the welfare of others to lend me a helping hand."

Soldiers and Sailors at Barbadoes.—Mr. J. E. JOHNES writes with reference to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Rest, Bay-street, Bridgetown, Barbadoes:—"The appreciation in which it is held is shown by the efforts of the soldiers themselves to keep it free from debt. It is the only place where Christian sailors can sleep at night. The fleet is here only a few weeks of the year, and it is next to impossible for the Home to be self-supporting. Mrs. Worm, who keeps the place, has done all she can, and as a last resource I write in the hope of enlisting help in Great Britain. Miss Weston, of Portsmouth, would forward any sums that might be sent to her, or help might be forwarded direct to the Rest."

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1889.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
"T. S."—We do not receive amounts for the mission; please instruct us.
China Inland Mission—M.A.	0	10	0
Maloga Aboriginal Mission—M.	5	0	0
Rev. J. Chadburn (Dock Labourers, &c.)—E.S. 4s 6d; Faraway, £2	2	4	6
Bird's-Nest Mission, Dublin—F.C.E.	0	1	9
Society Free Distribution of Scriptures—Mrs. P.	0	10	0
Rev. J. W. Atkinson (East-end Distress)—M.O....	0	2	0
Day in Country Fund—E.H.D. £1; C.A.S. 1s...	1	1	0
Tower Hamlets Mission (Dock Labourers, &c.)—Brixton, 5s; W.R.T. 5s	0	10	0
Hunger in East London (Dock Labourers, &c.)—C.L.M. 10s; A.H. £1; B.C., Dover, £1 10s; P.L. 7s 6d	3	7	6
Dock Labourers' Mission—M.D. 3s; C.S.N. 5s; C.J.B. 3s; T.E.L. £1	1	11	0
Mr. Archibald G. Brown's Work (Dock Labourers, &c.)—F.B....	1	0	0
Friendless & Fallen—Mr. C.M.	1	1	0
Marylebone Medical Mission—Colonel W.S.H...	3	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Friend	0	5	0
Mrs. Charlotte Hunter—J.H.	1	0	0
Children's Country Holiday Fund—One who Loves Children	0	5	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—M.F....	0	5	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—Sydney	1	0	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—Sydney	1	0	0
Scutari Medical Mission Hospital (Home Fund)—Major F.D.	0	10	0
	£24	3	9

[DVERTISEMENTS.]

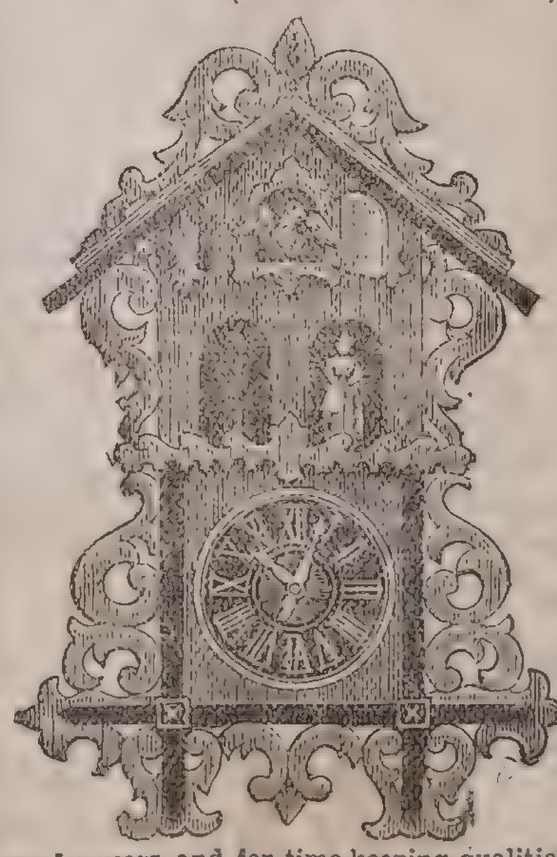
"An East-end Free Library" (New Building Fund)—Mrs. G. £5.—Mr. G. F. HILOKEN, Librarian, Bethnal Green Free Library, E.

London Samaritan Society & Homerton Mission (Convalescent Homes)—Colonel H. £3; Miss K. £1 1s.

Hunger in East London (Dock Labourers) Brunswick Hall, Poplar—E.A.T. 10s; H.H. 1s 1d.; F.D. 5s.

EQUALLED for INFANTS,
HILDREN, and INVALIDS.
SCOTT'S
Midlothian
OAT-FLOUR
SCUITS & OAT CAKES.
GHT FIRST-CLASS EXHIBITION AWARDS.
Highly recommended by the Medical Profession.
SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND GROCERS.
. SCOTT, LTD., GLASGOW, MANCHESTER & LONDON.
pecial Appointment to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

SELLING JEWELLERY,
SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,
For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.
SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]



IT COSTS NOTHING
But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

Bouillon Fleet.
PURE BEEF AND NOTHING BUT BEEF.
For BEEF TEA. A delicious Cup can be made with the addition of Boiling Water only.
SOUPS Made in the shortest possible time without the aid of Butcher's Meat.
GRAVIES ENRICHED.
MADE DISHES GREATLY IMPROVED.
Ask for "A FEW PRACTICAL COOKERY RECIPES."
Bouillon Fleet.
SOLD EVERYWHERE IN BOTTLES.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.
PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of ERVOUS DISEASES, have received Testimonials from three Physicians to er Majesty the Queen and the leading Physicians of Nine London Hospitals, cluding Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians of London.
The distressing symptoms of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, Loss of MUSCULAR OWER, RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, PARALYSIS, EPILEPSY, &c., are speedily re-oved by means of Pulvermacher's World-famed Galvanic Belts, which convey the ectric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all ne nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of premature waste and decay.
Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement om the profession and scientific men."
Dr. H. A. ALLBUTT, M.R.C.P., 24, Park Square, Leeds, writes, October, 1888: "I always recommend with confidence Mr. ULVERMACHER'S BELTS. Ladies recovering from illness incidental to their sex will find these BELTS of vast assistance in storing lost nerve power."
r Full Price List and Particulars, see New Pamphlet, "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY." Post free from PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC DEPOT,
194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
(ESTABLISHED OVER 40 YEARS.)

VAN HOUTEN'S
PURE SOLUBLE COCOA
EST & GOES FARTHEST.
EASILY DIGESTED—MADE INSTANTLY.
Once used, always used"—"Its purity is beyond question."—HEALTH.
is admirable"—"and so pure."—BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL
C. J. VAN HOUTEN & ZOON.—WEESP-HOLLAND.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on
CONSUMPTION
AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.
Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on
ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"
ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW APPENDIX
TO THE
WORK on CONSUMPTION,
CONTAINING
226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES
That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with
NOTES APPENDED TO MANY
SHOWING THE
PERMANENCE of CURE.
IN ONE VOLUME, from the AUTHOR,
ONE SHILLING, POST FREE.
N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.
NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"
The THIRTY-FIRST SERIES of WEEKLY CASES will commence appearing in the first week of October.
NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

CUCKOO CLOCK and WEATHER HOUSE (COMBINED).

A handsomely carved wood clock, 22 in. in height, with ivory hands and figures, strikes the hours and half hours on a powerful wire gong. Each time the clock strikes a charming little cuckoo pushes open a door at top of clock, and comes out, and cuckoos the hours and half hours, then retires, and the door closes after it. Above the clock is the Weather House, containing beautifully modelled figures of male and female peasants, 3 in. high. The man comes out if about to be wet, and woman if fine. We warrant these clocks to go for years, and for time-keeping qualities no better clock can be obtained at any price, while they are ornamental and fit to decorate a palace.
Packed in case free and sent to any address on receipt of 21/-.
SWISS NOVELTY IMPORTERS,
E. BAYLY (SOLE AGENT),
85, HIGH STREET, KINGSLAND, LONDON.
Next to London and County Bank. Same address 20 years. One minute's walk from Dalston Junction.

A BOX OF PATTERNS POST FREE

FIRESIDE SHOPPING

SEASONABLE NOVELTIES NOW READY

FANCY DRESS FABRICS—CHOICE DESIGNS & SHADES

ECROYD'S SILK WARP HENRIETTAS and other DRESS FABRICS. Newest Shades. RICH, SILKY & DURABLE

FOX'S (PURE INDIGO DYE) WELLINGTON SERGES SUITINGS, HOMESPUNS, And TENNIS FLANNELS.

RICHARDSON'S LINENS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD Including every requirement for the family. "Suggested Outfit" on application.

Special Novelties in FANCY DRESS FABRICS.

Twenty New Ranges: The Teesdale Spray, Fife Brocade, St. Louis Black Border, &c.

FLANNELS & BLANKETS without advance from the lowest prices for a time.

Parcels paid in U.K. Cash with Order. Very Special Prices. Supplied direct by

ELLWOOD BROCKBANK, The Warehouse, SETTLE, YORKS.

HUTTON'S PURE IRISH LINENS.

IRISH LINEN COLLARS. Gent's four-fold all Pure Linen Collars, all sizes and shapes, 4s. 6d. per dozen. SAMPLE WHITE SHIRT, LINEN FITTINGS, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d. each, post free.

Pure Irish Linen Goods direct from the Factory at Manufacturers' Prices.

FISH NAPKINS, 2s. 6d. per dozen. DINNER NAPKINS, 4s. 6d. per dozen.

IRISH DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS 2 yards square, 2s. 9d. each. NURSERY DIAPER, all Pure Flax, 4½d. per yard.

REAL IRISH LINEN SHEETING, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1s. 11d. per yard. SURPLICE LINEN, yard wide, 7d. per yard. HUCKABACK TOWELS, 4s. 6d. per dozen.

IRISH CAMBRIC POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS guaranteed all pure Flax—Ladies' Size, 2s. 3d. per dozen; Gent's Size, 3s. 6d. per doz.

Samples and Price Lists free to all Parts.

All Parcels sent Carriage Paid to any Station in the Kingdom.

OLD SHIRTS. made as good as new, with very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free, ready to wear.

G. R. HUTTON & CO., LARNE, BELFAST.

BARRINGTON & MORGAN

Any Length Cut NEWTOWN

Orders of £1 and over free per rail.

DRESS FABRICS AND WELSH FLANNELS.

AUTUMN DRESS GOODS Now Ready.

Unrivalled for Beauty, Style, and Durability.

ABSOLUTELY WHOLESALE PRICES.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

BARRINGTON & MORGAN, Newtown, N. Wales.

SEND SIXPENCE

Can you read this?

Please NOTE that the Registered Word "COCOON" is on the Band.

For a Sample Box, containing 1 oz. Ball of

COCOON KNITTING WOOL,

And patterns of about 100 Shades, with Full Directions for knitting a number of useful articles with COCOON KNITTING WOOL.

The FASTEST POSSIBLE DYES used throughout. Apply to

COX & COMPANY, 99, New Oxford Street, London, W., or the Spinners,

WOOD & BURTT, Holmfirth, Yorks.

TRY ALSO SUNFLOWER KNITTING WOOL for Hard Wear, a rather Stouter Yarn than Cocoon.

WHITE HEATHER, a Thick Soft Yarn for Knickerbocker Stockings, Petticoats, and Tam o' Shanters, both in 2 oz. packets 1 lb. and boxes.

DIRECT FROM THE MILL.

WRITE for Samples and Price Lists (which are sent Free and need not be returned) to

GREENOCK KNITTING YARNS AND KNITTED HOSIERY

ARE THE BEST QUALITY AND VALUE IN THE MARKETS.

STOCKINGS, SKIRTS, VESTS, GLOVES MITS, JACKETS, JERSEYS, & JERSEY, SUITS.

FLEMING, REID & CO.,

Worsted Mills, GREENOCK.

Stores or Agents throughout the United Kingdom.

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is the most perfect emollient milk for preserving and softening the skin ever produced! It soon renders it soft, smooth, and white; entirely removes and prevents all roughness, redness, sunburn, tan, &c., and preserves the skin from the effects of the sun, wind, or hard water, more effectually than any other preparation. No lady who values her complexion should ever be without it, as it is invaluable at all seasons for keeping the skin soft and healthy.

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists; free or 3d. extra by the Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide), Washes well. Useful for DRESSES, CURTAINS, BLINDS, DRAPERIES, SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

LINEN FITTED SHIRTS

UNDRESSED FROM THE FACTORY.

"The shirts I ordered from you give every satisfaction. It is really astonishing how they are supplied at the money."

Write for Price List and Testimonials.

2s/3d

NEW STYLE. One Stud Hole in Front, and with SQUARE CUFFS.

Made specially for Full Dress.

Quality No. 4—3s. 8d. each.
Quality No. 5—Button at Back, 3s. 10d. each.

No. 1 Quality—2/3 each, Three for 6/6, Six for 13/.
No. 2 Quality—Extra Heavy, 2/11 each, Three for 8/6, Six for 17/.
No. 3 Quality—Button at Back, 3/1 each, Three for 9/, Six for 18/.

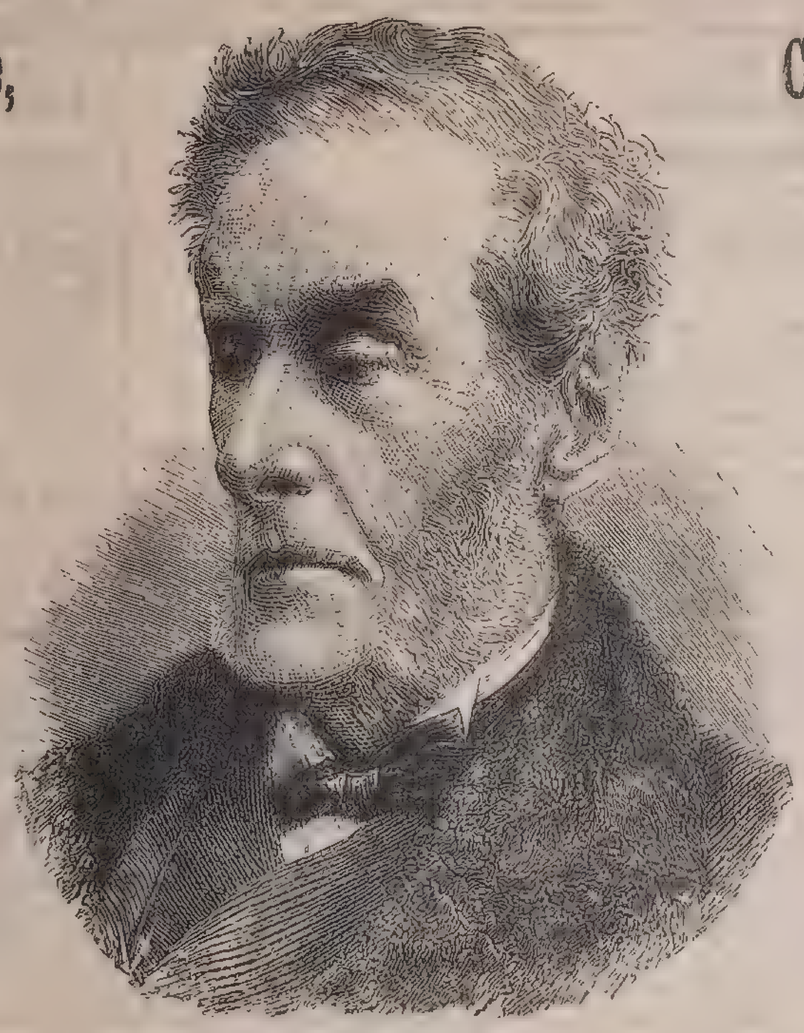
By Parcel Post, 3d. extra for One; 4d. for Two; 6d. for Three; 9d. for Six.

A really good White Shirt, with fine Linen Front and Cuffs, the whole beautifully stitched, the shape perfect. These Shirts are a marvel of cheapness, and we have sold thousands of them.

HENRY BLYTH, SHIRT MAKER (Established 1873), EARL GREY STREET, EDINBURGH.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."



A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

JOHN BUNYAN'S UNSECTARIANISM.

Page 9.

THE BALOLO MISSION PARTY.

Page 12.

[The late Lord Shaftesbury.]

PRINCIPAL

Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 10
"Doubts, Doubts." By Rev. W. HASLAM....11
Russian Prisoners. By Dr. BAEDEKER 13
Miss DE BROEN'S Work in Paris.....13
Mrs. EVERED POOLE'S Story for the Young ..14
CONFERENCES—Dublin, Glasgow, Salisbury..15
Wesleyan East-End Mission 18
Pilgrim Songs 18
The CHRISTIAN PORTRAIT GALLERY 19

CONTENTS.

Farewell to Mr. J. J. ATKINSON 20
Mr. GEORGE MULLER'S Tours.....20
Rescue Work in Poplar 21
Conference of Scotch U.P. Ministers 21
Band of Hope Union Conference 22
Major WHITTLE in Scotland 23
Mr. H. VARLEY at Work 23
Rev. JOHN McNEILL and Young Men.....24
Rev. J. WILKINSON'S New Book 24

No. 1027.] FRIDAY, OCT. 4, 1889.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

Sept. and Oct. Number Now Ready. Post free, 6d.

THE REGIONS BEYOND.

CONTENTS :—H. Grattan Guinness, D.D. (Portrait).—Institute Intelligence.—Thoughts on the Structure of the New Testament.—Revival at Aintab, Asia Minor.—The Argentine Republic.—Missionaries according to Matthew x.—Scutari Medical Mission (Illustrated).—Progress in Honan.—"In Perils in the City."—China and the Railway System.—Dr. Grant's Medical Mission in Fu Kien.—Baptisms in the Irrawaddy.—Our absent Director and his Work in America (Illustrated).—In the Far West.—Is there a Divine Method in Theological Education?—News from the Dark Continent (Illustrated).—Death of Mrs. Billington (with Portrait).—The Congo.—Balolo Mission: Progress of the Pioneer Party, &c., &c.

ADDRESS—

THE SECRETARY,
HARLEY HOUSE, BOW, LONDON, E.

THE
LARGE QUARTO EDITION.
441 PIECES.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS.

Tastefully printed, with Rules round pages, handsomely bound, Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges 16/6
Elegantly bound in Morocco, Gilt Edges 30/-

THE
SMALL QUARTO EDITION.
441 PIECES.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS

Paper Boards... ... ... 5/-
Cloth Boards 6/-

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The QUARTO Edition of "ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,"
SUITABLE FOR THE ORGAN, PIANO, OR HARMONIUM.

JUST READY.

ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,
With Standard Hymns.
COMPILED AND SUNG BY
IRA D. SANKEY.
CONTAINING 309 PIECES (Nos. 442—750).

QUARTO SIZE (MUSIC AND WORDS) } Cloth Boards .. .. 5s. 0d.
Cloth Back, Paper Sides .. .. 4s. 6d.

"The volume of ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS includes a very winsome assortment of entirely fresh pieces, gleaned from authors and composers on both sides of the sea, with an excellent selection of old standards. There are no fewer than 309 Hymns and Tunes, not being so very far short of the number in the well-known SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS. The two volumes are quite independent of each other; and nobody who appreciates the first will fail to obtain the second."—Christian Leader.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The QUARTO Edition of JUST READY.

SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS
(750 Pieces),
SUITABLE FOR THE ORGAN, PIANO, OR HARMONIUM.
Consisting of "Sacred Songs and Solos" (441 Pieces), and "Additional Sacred Songs and Solos, with Standard Hymns" (309 Pieces).
COMPILED AND SUNG BY IRA D. SANKEY.
750 PIECES IN ONE VOLUME.

QUARTO SIZE (MUSIC AND WORDS).

Cloth Boards .. .. 7s. 6d.
Ditto (with "Christian Choir") .. .. 8s. 6d.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges .. .. .. 9s. 6d.
Ditto (with "Christian Choir") .. .. 10s. 6d.

"In this Collection are many entirely new contributions to popular hymnology, while the reprinted pieces are all well-established favourites."
Literary World.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from B. W. G., 4s.; a Bible and Men's Clothing; M. Wrightson, £1 1s.; S., Plants for the garden at the Homes.

The Infant Day Nursery. Hungry Children Fed. Classes for Rough Boys. Children's Scripture Union. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Ragged Schools. Toy Classes. Christian Young Men's Society: Parlour, Tea-room, Library, Prayer Meetings, Bible Classes, &c. Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women: Parlour, Reading-room, Library, Bible Classes, Prayer Union, Evening Meetings and Classes. For Adults: Bible Classes, Prayer Meetings, Evangelistic Services, Temperance Work, Mothers' Meetings, Lodging House Services, various Clubs, &c., &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest contributions in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

For 103 years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 240 Christian men and women.

Funds are urgently needed.

The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

MISS SHARMAN'S HOMES. — A Meeting on behalf of the above will be held at the Mansion House, on Friday, October 4, at 3 p.m. The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor will preside. Rev. Canon J. McConnell Hussey, D.D.; Rev. John McNeill; Rev. D. McEwan, D.D.; Rev. Fleming Williams, Ald. C.C.; R. C. Morgan, Esq., and others will take part.

ORPHAN HOME, WALTHAMSTOW.

The Sale of Work and various useful and fancy articles will be held (D.V.) on

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY,

October 9 and 10, at The Home, Eastfield House, Hoe-street, Walthamstow. Open at 3 o'clock each day. Admission free. Gifts of every kind are wanted to furnish the stalls, and will be thankfully received by Mrs. PARSONS, addressed as above.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years, board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies for midwifery and other students.
Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

BEULAH, 30, Prince's-avenue, Prince's-gate, Liverpool. The Lord has given the above beautiful home in place of the late "Bethshan," 11, Great George-square. Meetings: Tuesday, 7.30 p.m.; Wednesday, 3.0 p.m.; Friday, 3.0 p.m. Persons desirous of rest to body and soul, also such as need light concerning salvation, holiness, and Divine Healing, can be accommodated at the above address.—For particulars apply to Mrs. CROOK.

ACTON BAPTIST TABERNACLE SCHOOL MISSION.—Rev. WILLIAM ARCHER, Pastor, has purchased the freehold ground and placed it in trust, and built a comfortable little chapel thereon. The people are poor, and have done their very best. We are still in debt to the builder £108, which is now 12 months overdue. Help is earnestly solicited to clear this off.

THE LORD'S PORTION.—All who approve of dedicating a fixed proportion of income to charitable purposes are invited to join The Proportionate-Giving Union. Formed in 1887. Nearly 200 members.—Full particulars from Rev. WATKINS, Ubbeston Vicarage, Yoxford.

CHESHAM BOIS.—Will any one who really loves Jesus help a clergyman in a poor country parish to build a Mission-room, where he can gather together those who are too far from the church and school? He has exhausted the resources of the neighbourhood, and still needs about £180 to complete the work he has ventured to undertake, feeling confident of the help of those who have the power to assist in work for the Master.—Rev. J. MATTHEWS, Chesham Bois Rectory, Bucks.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

E. T. S. BRITISH & FOREIGN EVANGELICAL TRACT SOCIETY & PRAYER UNION.

If you distribute tracts, the Committee invite you to apply as follows:—

1.—State how many tracts are desired, for your personal distribution only, for one month. The tracts are selected with a view to the simplicity and value of the message they bear—God's great plan of salvation through a crucified and risen Saviour—and care is taken to secure an ever-changing variety and assortment.

2.—Enclose (if able) a freewill offering towards the expenses. This is necessary, but let it be as "unto the Lord." If you are able, let your abundance be a supply for another's lack. In any case, if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to what a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

3.—Address your application to the Superintendent, SAMUEL E. ROBERTS, 48, Malvern-rd., Kilburn, N.W., and enclose Postal Order, payable at the Post Office, Cambridge-road, Kilburn.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian"

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
29 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

Miss Sarah Robinson, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth,

is now completing her Scheme for the benefit of Soldiers, Sailors, their Families, Widows, and Orphans, and the poor of Portsmouth, by the erection of a large Gospel Hall and Coffee Palace (with 170 beds), opposite the Portsmouth Town Railway Station, at a cost of £30,000, including site. This is her fifth, and last, House; will be self-supporting; and, like the others, will be vested in Trustees.

Having no family claims and few personal wants, Miss Robinson has always freely spent her own money on these Institutions, besides collecting the needful funds. She is now making a great effort, at the cost of much personal suffering, to obtain help for the new building. After being confined to the house for eight years, she is undertaking a three-months' tour, by road, in an invalid's coach, built for the purpose, intending (D.V.) to travel a thousand miles, and address meetings in fifty towns, after which she will publish a full account of her journey and its results. She travels at her own expense, accompanied by one helper.

DONATIONS ARE EARNESTLY ASKED.

Educational.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

EDUCATIONAL HOME. — Twelve young Ladies, of good position, received. Highest educational advantages, combined with every home comfort, and individual training and guidance. Recommended by clergymen, parents of pupils, and others. One vacancy.—D. C. L., Lane's Library, Fitzjohn's Parade, Hampstead.

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Rosehill Preparatory School.—Principal, Miss BAYNE.—The Rev. W. H. Rednap, Incumbent of St. James', Ryde, strongly recommends this School as an Educational Home for boys (number limited to six). Reference permitted to resident nobility and gentry, parents of former pupils. Terms 40 guineas per annum, inclusive.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, Glastonbury, Somerset.—High-class Ladies' School.—Miss M. CRUSE receives a limited number of Boarders. Efficient governesses and visiting masters. Home comforts. Individual influence and attention. Pupils received from abroad. Kindergarten class for juniors. Terms moderate.

MORAVIAN SCHOOLS, Fairfield, Manchester.—Large premises. Sound education. Manual training. Boarders return on Tuesday, September 17. For prospectus of Ladies' School, apply to Miss KOFLER; of Boys' School to Rev. W. BIRTILL.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and references, Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Apply to PRINCIPAL. School re-opened Sept. 18.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced September 17.

KESWICK HOUSE, Dartmouth-row, Blackheath. Principals, Mrs. and Miss HOBBS. The School is conducted on strictly moral and religious principles. High-class education, visiting professors, resident English and foreign governesses. Cheerful home, healthy situation. Terms moderate and inclusive. Highest testimonials.

MANADON VILLA SCHOOL, Tavistock-road, Plymouth.—The Misses LANE receive a limited number of Resident and Daily Pupils, whose education and Christian training are conducted with the utmost care. Preparation for all the Local examinations. References to parents of present and former pupils.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE LOCAL EXAMS.—Two well-bred Girls can be received on special terms to join classes for either of the above in high-class School. Results this year, twenty-four successes, no failures. Thorough education and training.—EXAMINATION, 42, Craven-hill-gardens, Lancaster-gate, W.

TO FILL UNEXPECTED VACANCY, a Gentleman's Son would be received in a well-established Preparatory School at reduced terms.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Gazette Office, Weston-super-Mare.

BRIGHTON. — Home School for Girls, recommended by the Rev. J. B. Figgis. First-class education combined with motherly care and every comfort. Terms moderate.
Mrs. SCOTT, 35, Upper Rock-gardens,

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

ILFRACOMBE.—Elmcote, Torrs Park.—A happy Home, with thorough education and Christian training, for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Every care taken of delicate Girls, or Children whose parents are abroad.—Terms, &c., apply to Mrs. TROUSDALE, Principal.

A LADY WISHES to place her Daughter in a good school, where in return for her services with juniors, she will receive board, lessons from professors in accomplishments, advanced English with book-keeping.
Mrs. WEBB, 8, Clifton-gardens, Chiswick, W.

A LADY WISHES to hear of a first-class Ladies' School for her daughter, age 11. Only a limited number taken, and no day boarders. Table must be good and plentiful, with comfortable bed-rooms. Sound evangelical teaching, with loving Christian training, and kindness shown most essential. None but those who can offer the above, and with highest references, need reply. Southern counties preferred.
H., West Lodge, Claremont, Sheffield.

MISTRESS.—Wanted immediately, a well-qualified Christian Mistress for a Girls' School in the neighbourhood of Birmingham.—Mrs. WRIGHT, Woodville, Handsworth, Birmingham.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A.; Vice-Principal: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A., T.C.D. School will re-open, (D.V.), Thursday, September 26.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the last twelve years pupils have obtained more than two hundred certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

STANLEY HOUSE, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Principal—A. E. COZENS, M.C.P.

A thorough modern education, combined with kind and firm training. Individual attention, especially to delicate or backward pupils. New schoolroom and recreation ground added. Preparation for all exams. Term commenced September 18.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Deepdale, Caterham Valley.

HIGHBURY HOUSE SCHOOL, St. Leonards-on Sea. Boys received from 6 to 18 years of age. Three separate departments: juniors, under the care of Ladies; seniors, under a staff of seven resident masters, thoroughly qualified to prepare for commerce, Public Schools, or Universities. Delicate boys and boys from the Colonies receive special care. A carpenter's shop and a chemical laboratory have recently been built on the premises. Autumn term commenced Saturday, September 21. For prospectus, apply to Mrs. DUFF, the Lady Principal.

A SWISS GENTLEMAN who has recently completed his theological studies, wishes to find a situation as Tutor in a family (London or Glasgow preferred), where in exchange for lessons in French he would have a comfortable home and the opportunity of acquiring English. Small salary required.—Mme. Vuilleumier, c/o Mrs. Budd, 4, Park-crescent, Clissold-road, N.

MRS. ENDERBY GORDON wishes to recommend a Preparatory School and Home for Boys. Christian training. Terms moderate.—Mrs. ENDERBY GORDON, 4, Park-place, Cheltenham.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—An opening in a Christian home for two or three Boys under 12 years, to be educated with the family. Terms seven guineas per term, including French, music, and Latin. Governess kept. The boys would have every home comfort, and be well cared for. Liberal table.
Mr. THOMAS, Post-office, St. Neots, Hunts.

FRANCE.—Professor PONGE, M.A., Arras (near Calais and Boulogne), will receive in his family one or two young Boarders. Brothers or Sisters taken on special terms. References exchanged.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—A Medical Man (M.A., M.D. Camb.) has a vacancy for a Resident Pupil, who will receive personal supervision in his studies, and every home comfort. Tennis, boating, and other advantages.
DOCTOR, Woodside, Crouch End, London.

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMAN disengaged in October) is highly recommended as an extremely well-qualified and accomplished Resident Governess. Churchwoman. English and Continental experience. Salary £80.—PAX, Stuart's Book Warehouse, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

MISS A. GOUGH highly recommends a Lady, aged 26, as Governess. English fluent French and German (abroad). Good music and needlework, elementary Latin. Salary £30 to £35.—17, Old Cavendish-street, W.

A GOVERNESS or Companion in Christian family. Teach one or two children under twelve. Fond of children. Age 28. English, good music, elementary French, drawing, painting. Domesticated. Church of England. Excellent references.
X., Mr. Dickenson, High-street, Maidstone.

A YOUNG LADY (19) seeks re-engagement as Governess to young children (ages 5 to 12), in Christian school or family.
Y. S., Norfolk House, Devonshire-road, Balham.

October 4, 1889.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give a new portrait of the late Dr. A. N. Somerville, of Glasgow, and some particulars of his later evangelistic journeys. The number, which will be enlarged, will contain a special report of the Jewish Conference held this week at Mildmay.

The London Cottage Mission is making the most of the late Strike, and is appealing for £100 a day. We hope none of our readers who may get its sensational appeals by post, will respond.

An ounce of fact is worth a pound of theory. The contention that increased facilities for drinking lead to increased consumption receives powerful confirmation from some figures which were elicited at the recent Alcoholic Congress at Paris with regard to Finland and Belgium respectively. In the former country, it appears, severe restrictive laws were passed in 1887, with the result that the amount of drink consumed per head of the population is now only one-third of what it was ten years ago. In Belgium, on the other hand, which contains a public-house for every forty-three inhabitants, the consumption, from 1884-87, was stated to be nearly four times as much as that of Finland; and the effects of what is practically free trade in drink are similar to those which are observable in France; namely, a great rise in the statistics of suicide, insanity, and crime.

The recent Report of the Government Inspector of Reformatory and Industrial Schools contains a mass of useful information with respect to a most important social work. It appears that, at the end of last year, there were upwards of twenty-two thousand boys and five thousand girls in the various Reformatory and Industrial Schools. As regards the results of the training of the inmates (who, be it remembered, have all either actually taken the first downward step in crime or have been rescued from vicious surroundings) it is satisfactory to know that of the boys discharged from Industrial Schools in 1885-6-7 eighty-three per cent. are estimated to be doing well, and that the average of the girls is nearly the same. Last year only fifteen out of sixteen hundred and fifty who left Reformatories were discharged as incorrigible, the remainder finding respectable employment.

A most praiseworthy branch of the system is that of the day industrial schools which have been recently established in several towns, where the children, often half-famished, are employed, educated, and partially fed, whilst continuing to live at their own homes. This obviates a defect which too often attends the herding together of large bodies in public institutions, which is indicated in the remarks of the Inspector when he says of the pupils in these day industrial schools, that "they invariably look cheerful and happy and more natural and like children than those in schools of long detention." It should be remembered, however, that if the natural parents performed their duty to their children, there would be no need for either industrial or reformatory institutions; and that it is largely the fault of society itself that so many should grow up to be criminals.

The new number of Regions Beyond is one of special interest. Mrs. Guinness replies at some length to Mr. E. F. Baldwin's paper on "Matthew X." methods, published in our issues of July 19 and 26, and fortifies her position by quotations from many commentators. An excellent portrait of Rev. H. Grattan Guinness is given, and many details of his important work in the United States. The missionary intelligence is copious and full of encouragement.

While reading Andrew Murray's chapter on Worship in the Spirit, in "The Spirit of Christ," the latest of his invaluable series of books on experimental godliness, we are reminded of a recent visit to a Friends' meeting. It was on a week-day, in the room for "Meetings for Sufferings." Few were present, and we sat for a long time in silent and conscious weakness. Then one spoke, not in power of speech or of spirit. Another pause, and one prayed. A sister remarked that a Scripture which she had in her mind before she came had been referred to both in the address and in the prayer, and she thus discerned their unity in the Spirit. An aged brother said a few weak words. A stranger prayed in a foreign tongue. There had been prolonged silence between each exercise, and after one more of considerable duration, this feeble gathering dispersed. It had been a humiliating time.

We went to another meeting, where there was bright singing, with musical accompaniment. Everything was short and bright and cheery, with no awkward pauses; for the hour was filled up in quick succession with prayer or praise, exposition and exhortation, report and testimony. It was a cheerful time.

Yet there had not been more of worship in spirit and in truth than in the former meeting; perhaps not so much. There the weakness was evident; here it was concealed. The humiliation, the chastening of spirit, had been good. As we meditated afterward on those two meetings of saints, we found the impression left by the earlier one to be deeper, more lasting, and more medicinal (Jer. xlvi. 11). It may be that in concealing our weakness from ourselves by an unbroken continuance of exercise, we may hinder ourselves from becoming worshippers in spirit and in truth, such as the Father of Spirits seeks to worship Him.

Many will have been pained by a very offensive passage which appeared emphasised in The Pall Mall Gazette of the 25th ult. The writer advocates the suppression of what he terms "The English Service Nuisance." The English service for tourists and English residents in Continental cities is called a craze, and chaplains are denounced as men who want to earn bread and salt, and whose presence in hotels is spoken of as an intolerable intrusion. Hostility to religion is no new thing, but it is new for an English journal to become the mouth-piece of this spirit.

A suggestive and important paper appears in The Evangelical Magazine on "The Perils to Evangelical Religion from the Spirit of the Age," by Dr. Alexander Thomson, of Manchester. There is, says the writer, a present mode of thought which approaches every question of the Divine administration from a human standpoint. God's purposes and aims are measured by the ideas and sentiments of man. In discoursing on the Bible it is the human element to which attention is drawn. Moral consciousness is made the judge of doctrines. Scripture representations of conversion, of the evil of sin, of the rights of the Supreme Ruler, of the principle of substitution, and of dependence on supernatural grace, are vanishing out of sermons, because man becomes the measure of the Divine.

It is a cause of thankfulness that a Congregational minister and a Professor has thus directed attention to the very root of the negative teaching which appears among many of the churches of his order. The great divines among earlier Independents accepted doctrines which transcended human reason. They knew that there were limitations to man's faculties. To them the statements of the Bible as to belief and duty were supreme. We are sure that the modern tendency to which Dr. Thomson has drawn attention, is not only mischievous beyond measure, but is inexpressibly belittling the age.

A recent issue of The Friends' Review (Philadelphia) says:—"The most signal sign of success connected with the modern peace movement and its advocacy of arbitration lies in the fact that since its commencement there have been over sixty actual cases of successful arbitration, and a large number of instances in which an arbitration clause has been inserted in treaties, amounting in the case of Italy alone, through the influence of Signor Mancini, to no fewer than nineteen." These facts hold out hopes to the friends of peace of much wider results in their relation to the state of the nations.

Father Barry's recent article in The Nineteenth Century, under the heading, "Wanted, a Gospel for the Century," has not attracted the attention which doubtless it was intended to gain; but it is, nevertheless, a remarkable paper, noteworthy chiefly in the evidence it affords of the inability of anyone occupying the writer's position to deal with the scope and effect of the Gospel. According to the writer, the Reformation threw back the civilisation of Germany two hundred years, and left to after ages "a Christianity bleeding almost to death." In order to patch up matters, Father Barry recommends that the "controversy of reconciliation" should be renewed. Lest, however, it should be thought by any who are not familiar with the history of the Romish apostasy that, in order to bring about a peace, concessions would be made from the Seven Hills, Father Barry promptly adds:—

However it may be with other Christians, Catholics cannot renounce their traditions. Her children will never forget the sublime and beautiful pages they have contributed to the story of the past.

Quite so. It is unlikely that Protestants will forget them either, but it is unfortunate for their beauty that so many of them are written in the blood of the saints.

Some little time ago the Baptists in the city of Havana opened a cemetery, and the Roman Catholic Bishop appealed to the Governor of the island to have it closed. The Government of Spain have decided that the Baptists are entitled to their place of burial, but the incident affords another striking instance of Romish intolerance.

We beg to remind our readers, especially young men, of the important Missionary Convention at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, on Tuesday, October 15, morning, afternoon, and evening. The claims of the heathen world will be set forth by experienced missionaries and others; for names of speakers see our list of forthcoming meetings.

Archdeacon Farrar contributes to Murray's Magazine a plea on behalf of his proposal for the organising of a Protestant "Brotherhood." While disclaiming all idea of the revival of mediæval monkery, he yet defends the adoption of vows of "poverty, celibacy, and obedience," with the proviso that they should be "dispensable." We have already referred to the powerful criticism of this old-time revival, in the leading columns of The Times. That journal in its issue of Saturday last has another telling article which leaves the Archdeacon with very little standing ground. The writer says:—

How anyone can at the same time condemn and repudiate monasticism, as Archdeacon Farrar does, and recommend vows of poverty, celibacy, and obedience, entirely passes our comprehension. It will be said, of course, that the word "dispensable" makes all the difference. To our thinking it makes no difference at all. The power of dispensation must either be automatic at the instance of the applicant, or subject to the discretion of the person who exercises it. If the former, the vow is voluntary and the dispensation superfluous; if the latter, anyone who knows what human nature is and what monasticism was will know well enough what to think of the matter. For our part, we cannot pretend to see the advantage of vows of the kind proposed, whether dispensable or not. To a tender conscience they are a burden; to a robust conscience they are a superfluity. If a man feels a vocation towards helping the poor, there is nothing whatever to prevent his voluntarily carrying his devotion to the fullest extent implied in the proposed vows. There is, moreover, nothing to be gained by his taking the vows if they are really voluntary, and, if they are not, nothing but mischief can come of it in the end.

This argument seems to us to be quite unanswerable, and, if logic and common sense are to rule the day, there will not be much more heard of the suggested Brotherhood.

The Daily Telegraph has now opened its columns to a discussion of "Women and Tobacco," in which the pros and cons of smoking as practised by women are accorded equal hospitality. It is certainly difficult, if we accept the desirability of such indulgence by the one sex, to deny it to the other. Our hope is that the revulsion of feeling caused in many minds by the bare idea of Englishwomen generally becoming devotees of the pipe or the cigar will lead, as it logically ought, to a more effective protest against the baneful practice, now so common among our boys and youths.

DAGON.

1 Sam. v. 1—5.

The Israelites had suffered a great defeat by the Philistines. The flower of the army was slain, and, worse than all, the Ark of God, which the Israelites had carried down to the battle, was taken. This symbol of Jehovah's presence was no doubt considered a great prize, and was placed as a trophy in the temple of the idol Dagon, the fish-god, in Ashdod. The Philistines must have exulted greatly in the possession of the Ark, as an evidence to them not only of their own prowess, but of the superiority of their god over the God of the Hebrews.

But the honour of Jehovah was now at stake. If the Ark had been allowed to remain with the other spoils in the hands of his enemies, and especially in the idol temple, it would appear as if Dagon had triumphed. The issue was joined; the question was, Shall Jehovah or Dagon be worshipped? There was a necessity for God to interpose and repair the wrong that his own people had committed in relying superstitiously upon the presence of the Ark to save them. When God's people put symbols in the place of God Himself, and rest in rites and ceremonies as if they were of saving value, disaster and defeat always sooner or later follow; and God must in some way interfere to rescue his cause from peril, and avenge his own great name.

So it came to pass, that by a remarkable and mortifying series of humiliations the supremacy of Jehovah was made evident, and Dagon subjected to shameful defeat. The scene presented on the second morning as the idol priests entered the temple, and saw the image of their deity prostrate and broken before the Ark of God, must have been an impressive object-lesson on the folly of idolatry. It is doubtful if any prophet's voice would have carried such power of rebuke and conviction. It was a triumph, not for Israel, but for Israel's God, and a most humiliating blow to the false worship of the Philistines. That it was felt to be such is plain from ver. 5: "Neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's house, tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod unto this day."

But the lesson is for our times, "for these things happened for our admonition, upon whom the consummation of the ages has come." We greatly mistake if we think of such incidents as of value for their historic interest merely, and as throwing light on ancient times, and not also for their moral example and teaching.

Men are still prone to try to have God and Dagon in the temple of their hearts at the same time. They are not willing to cast out their idols, but they wish to have God, too. Men set up wealth, or fashion, or literary culture, or pride, or vanity, or lust, in their hearts, and fall down and worship them; and then attempt to bring in also the Ark of God. On Sundays, perhaps, they go to church, or they read an occasional chapter in the Bible, and even sometimes utter some form of prayer; and thus they hope to gain whatever advantage there may be in religion, while they still keep their idols. There is a great deal of such mixed piety in the world. And, sometimes, men go farther than this; they treat religion and the Bible in a patronising way, and admit them to an inferior place in their hearts, giving their worship to science, or philosophy, or ethical culture, or some other idol of human wisdom and pride. Many in our day would admit God to their hearts very much as the ancient Romans would have placed a statue of Jesus Christ in the Pantheon; not as supreme, but as one among many objects of worship. The Philistines in placing the Ark in the temple of Dagon have had multitudes of successors.

But God will have no rivals. He will not submit to occupy any inferior place. He claims the supreme homage. He will sit upon the throne, if He enters the heart at all. "No man can serve two masters." It is impossible to divide our allegiance, and render a part to God, and a part to sin and the world. If we wish to have God in our hearts, we must turn out Dagon. Whatever it is that we have loved and cherished in the place of God, whatever we have preferred to God, no matter how good and innocent the thing may be in itself, must be sacrificed.

That is our idol, though it wear
Affection's impress or devotion's air.

It is only when our idols are cast out that God will consent to dwell in our hearts. There is an irreconcilable antagonism, an irrepressible conflict between God and Satan. Both cannot reign within us. One must expel and dispossess the other. "What agreement hath the temple of God with idols?" The great truth that Christians ought to be a separated people is one which never needed to be enforced more than in these days of prevailing and pervading worldliness. How many Dagons there are which dispute the supremacy with Jehovah. How many idols must be cast out of churches and out of individual hearts before God can come in and manifest his power. May God help his people to rid themselves of all sinful compromises, to put away all idolatry, and to be out and out for God.

The dearest idol I have known,
Whate'er that idol be,
Help me to tear it from thy throne,
And worship only Thee.

D. F. L.

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., U.S.A.

MR. SPURGEON'S EVANGELISTS.—Mr. Spurgeon presided on Tuesday evening last week over the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association. Mr. Elvin, secretary, read an encouraging report. Mr. Spurgeon, complimenting Mr. Elvin, said he generally observed that when one person took the lead in a work something practical came of it. Two things were needed to get on in life; one was elbow-grease, the other stick-to-it. There was no way to learn preaching like preaching. You could not make sailors except by sending them out to sea. He remembered once having to preach at Faversham, and after walking through a heavy thunderstorm for miles he got to his destination. There was nobody there! So he took his stick and walked round to the houses, and went "knock, knock." The people then gathered till he had a more than ordinary congregation. The Association wanted more mission stations. There was plenty of room in London, without opposing others. Let them begin to work early, doing what they could. Addresses were given by several evangelists.

John Bunyan's Unsectarianism.

WAS HE A BAPTIST?

This question is not only considered, but is answered in the negative by Rev. William Urwick, in a volume of Lectures recently published, entitled, "Bible Truths and Church Errors." So sure is the author of his conclusion that he even heads his lecture on this subject with the title, "John Bunyan not a Baptist." It is one of the "Church Errors" to which he opposes, not the "Bible Truth," but what he believes to be the truth of history. And in his judgment the Congregationalists, who practise infant baptism by sprinkling or pouring, have the strongest ground for claiming Bunyan as their own. And so it comes to pass that two hundred years after the great allegorist is dead, two rival denominations are contending one against the other as to which may claim the sanction of his name. Not an edifying spectacle, certainly, but one at which we need not be surprised so long as the spirit of sectarianism remains among us.

The contention is the more unseemly in view of the fact that many of the Baptists of Bunyan's day repudiated him; assailed him violently, often bitterly; and, to their arguments, added a considerable amount of abuse and scorn. This much Mr. Urwick makes clear by many quotations. As a specimen we give only the following: "I leave his (Bunyan's) manifold absurdities, contradictions, unbrotherly tauntings and reflections, contemptions, traducings of the wisdom of Christ and his holy appointments, to be called to account" (Henry D'Anvers on Baptism). That the Baptist opposition against Bunyan was formidable appears from his own words. He speaks of "Baptists so-called" who "seek to break us to pieces....Mr. William Kiffin, Mr. Thomas Paul, Mr. Henry D'Anvers, and Mr. Denne, fell with might and main upon me, comparing me to the Devil; others to a Bedlam, others to a Sot, and the like, for my seeking peace and truth among the Godly." When he was comparatively obscure and unknown, protesting against the sectarian spirit of his day with the same fearlessness with which he contended for evangelical truth, then Baptists disowned him; but now that his obscurity is past, and his fame is in all the churches, Baptists are eager to claim fellowship with him. Strange, is it not?

From the quotations given in Mr. Urwick's lecture it seems clear that the Congregationalists have as little right to claim Bunyan as have the Baptists. Replying to the charge that he indulged his members "in the sin of infant baptism," Bunyan says: "We 'indulge' them not; but being commanded to bear the infirmities of the weak WE SUFFER it; it being in our eyes such [i.e., an infirmity], but in theirs they say a duty, till God shall otherwise persuade them." To Bunyan evidently those who practised infant baptism were weak in the faith, and were received in the hope that God might bring them to a better mind. This quotation, supported as it is by many of a similar character, makes it clear that, however tolerant Bunyan was of those who were not able to receive and adopt the practice of believers' baptism, no body of Christians practising pædo-baptism can claim that his conviction was like their own.

What then was Bunyan? He evidently took a position which, for some reason, his contemporaries could not understand. May we not look for his successors among those whom orthodox Baptists delight to stigmatise as "No Baptists"? The spirit of denominationalism is incapable of understanding them, and so they are denounced, and regarded with something akin to contempt. Now, I do not think that John Bunyan's position was right merely because he took it; but we may be sure that the man who suffered twelve years' imprisonment for conscience' sake would not differ from his brethren without a strong conviction that he was right. And if there are some who find themselves exposed to similar taunts for taking a similar position, they may at least have the satisfaction of remembering that they are in the company of one whom all the churches delight to honour.

The following points seem to me to be clear concerning John Bunyan's position:—

(1) His conviction was in favour of believers' baptism.—The violence with which Baptists denounced the inconsistency of his position proves this. Indeed, William Kiffin alludes to Bunyan as "himself against the baptizing of children, and for the baptizing of believers upon their profession of faith in Christ." The witness of his opponents, therefore, as well as of his own writings, leaves us in no doubt as to what his convictions on the subject were.

(2) He did not make baptism a condition of church membership.—Upon this subject we could give many quotations, but one will suffice. "Question.—Do you not count that by water baptism, and not otherwise—that being the initiating and entering ordinance—they ought to be received into fellowship? Answer—No; for herein lies the mistake—to think that because in time past baptism was administered upon conversion, therefore it is the initiating and entering ordinance into Church communion." "It does not give the person baptized a being of membership with this or that church." Mr. Urwick is right in saying, "the difference between John Bunyan and the Baptists concerned a question far deeper than that of open communion."

(3) He evidently did not exclude from membership those who believed in the validity of their infant baptism.—There is no evidence that he ever consented to practise it himself, but he was evidently tolerant of it in others, whom he received as "weak in the faith." To him the Church of Christ was one, and to support any mere division of it, with even a Scriptural ordinance for its basis, was in his judgment contrary to the mind of that One Spirit, who unites the Church into One Body. These are his words: "Baptism is a holy ordinance, but when Satan abuseth it and wrencheth it out of its place, making that which was ordained of God for the edification of believers, the weapon to break in pieces the love, unity, and concord of the saints, then what is baptism? Then neither is baptism anything." It was this that his contemporary Baptists could not understand. To him the unity of the Church was more than the interests of a denomination. And so he was taunted with such questions as these by Mr. Kiffin, who is described as "one of the most careful and mild of Baptists": "I ask whether popularity and applause of variety of professors be not at the bottom of what you have said?" "Is not the spirit of Diotrephes of old in you?" "How long is it since you were a Baptist?" The fact is, Bunyan was too big for any denomination. Like his immortal allegory, he was for all the Church of Christ. His was not the spirit of exclusion, but the comprehensive spirit that would be in hearty fellowship with all the godly. Denominational barriers could not confine him.

(4) He saw the evil of denominationalism, and protested against it.—"Utterly foolish," say some; "in the present condition of the Church you are obliged to belong to a denomination." Possibly so; but are we obliged to perpetuate our denominational names? Are we obliged to put upon our churches and chapels, not the name that declares our attachment to Christ, but that which makes manifest our division from other Christians? Is that the most important fact concerning us? Does it declare the testimony by which the world is to be most blessed? Does it not openly confess to a condition of things which, so long as it exists, renders the answer to our Saviour's prayer and the triumph of his cause impossible? Note how in John xvii. 11, 21—23 our Lord makes the Church's manifested oneness the means of proving the Divine mission of the Saviour. If we are one, why declare it only upon platforms when only professing Christians are present to hear it; and give to the world the miserable spectacle of our divisions?

Hear John Bunyan upon denominational names. Referring to the name "Baptist" he says: "I know none to whom that title is so proper as to the disciples of John. And since you would know by what name I would be distinguished from others, I tell you, I would be, and I hope I am, a CHRISTIAN; and choose, if God counts me worthy, to be called a Christian, a believer, or other such name as is approved by the Holy Ghost (Acts ix. 26)." "As for those factious titles of Anabaptists, Independents, Presbyterians, or the like, I conclude that they came neither from Jerusalem nor Antioch, but rather from hell and Babylon." This is stronger language than I, with all my antipathy to denominational names, should have thought of using. It shows, however, how strong John Bunyan's convictions were, and how great an evil he thought sectarian distinctions to be. He was a man before his time, as every man must be in proportion as he is filled with the Spirit and guided by the Word of God.

Was then Bunyan a Baptist? My reply is Yes and No. Yes—if by the term Baptist you mean one who holds, and teaches, and practises the immersion of believers upon profession of their faith. But if by the term you mean denominational separation from other Christians, with the adoption of the denominational name—then the answer is manifestly No. And there are hundreds who hold and teach and practise believers' baptism who are bound to give the same answer for themselves. They believe it to be God's truth, and cannot surrender it; but the name is man's, and in the judgment of many only hinders the progress of the truth.

> Let names, and sects, and parties fall,
> And Thou, O Christ, be all in all.

Bournemouth. GEORGE WAINWRIGHT.

CHILDREN'S COUNTRY HOLIDAYS FUND.—DEAR SIR,—Kind gifts from the readers of THE CHRISTIAN have given a fortnight's country air to at least seventy of our poor London children. We hope this year to send a total of 20,000, and there are still many who would have been the better for a change. If your readers could compare the faces of those of the delicate who have been away with those left behind, they would feel how great a thing a gift of fresh air is.—Yours truly,

CYRIL JACKSON, Secretary.

10, Buckingham-street, Strand, W.C.

[877]

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

III. — "KEPT."

1 Peter i. 5.

To have been told, as in the preceding verse, that our inheritance was "reserved in heaven" could have yielded us little comfort, unless that assurance had been followed and capped by this, that the heirs also are being kept for its full enjoyment. The sailor's most pressing question is not so much as to the welcome which awaits him in his home, as whether he can ride out the storm, and safely pass the jagged edges of the rocks, on which the waves are dashing angrily. You must assure him of safety for himself, as well as of welcome to his home, if you would put him perfectly at rest. So it were vain for the Apostle to talk of the "long eternity which shall greet our bliss with an individual kiss," unless he could also assure us that we shall be kept from making shipwreck, and becoming castaways. What comfort there is in that word "kept"!

The Greek word translated "kept" is borrowed from the camp. It is used in 2 Cor. xi. 32; Gal. iii. 23; Phil. iv. 7; and, in each case, conveys the conception of an armed force, employed in sentry or escort duty, surrounding their ward, and interposing a wall of enclosure and defence. Thus does the Divine power surround the saints as a cortège during their sojourn in this perilous world. God is not only our exceeding great reward, but our shield. The purged eye sees the mountains round about us filled with horses and chariots of protection. We are hidden in the secret of his presence from the pride of man, kept secretly in a pavilion from the strife of tongues. God hath sent out his light and truth to lead us, and bring us to his holy hill, and to his tabernacles. "Ye shall not go out with haste, nor go by flight: for the Lord shall go before you; and the God of Israel will be your rearward."

It may be that many readers of these lines have come almost to despair. They know and approve the better, but do the worse. Notwithstanding bitter tears, and cries, and soul anguish, they are constantly being brought into captivity to some besetting sin. How often have their tears been their meat day and night, as they have poured out their soul in the fifty-first Psalm, or cried with the Apostle, "Oh, wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me." For all such there is infinite comfort in the announcement that those who have been begotten again, and are therefore sons, may claim to be "kept" by their Father's power unto full and consummated salvation. Oh that from this moment all such may realise to the full the keeping power of God!

I. What this keeping involves.—It does not mean that we shall lose our sinful nature, which consists in a perpetual tendency and liability to sin. Nor does it mean that we shall become sinless beings, who need not the daily cry for forgiveness; because in the best of us there must ever be much which is grievous in the sight of a holy God. Nor does it mean that we shall cease to be tempted; that, alas! cannot be our lot, as long as we are passing through an enemy's land to our inheritance. But it does mean that, though within us there is a strong predisposition toward sin, partly inherited and partly built up by long indulgence in evil habit, and though without us there is a hellful of wicked spirits, each of which is pledged to do his worst to make us fall, yet we may be kept from yielding to known and presumptuous sins, and conducted safely through "the proud waters," so as to stand at last with the overcomers on the shores of the sea of glass, having the harps of God. Not taken out of the world, but kept from the evil (Rev xv. 2; John xvii. 15).

Many are the images which suggest themselves to set forth the keeping power of God. What the framework of bone and the eyelid veil are to the delicate organism of the eye; what the shepherd's watchful care is to the flock, which dwells safely in the wilderness, and sleeps in the woods, though young lions are roaring around for their prey; what the lofty walls are to the tender grapes, guarding them from rifling hands and little foxes; what the wing of the mother-bird is to the brood menaced by the hovering kestrel; what the valiant of Israel were to Solomon's bed; what the iron safe is to its valuable contents, defying the robber's hand, and the forked tongue of flame—all that is the environing presence of God to his saints. Though dogs compass us, and the assembly of the wicked inclose us, yet there is an inner circle of defence through which they dare not and cannot penetrate. The strong man armed keepeth his palace, and his goods are in peace.

That there will be strife and war and temptation without, and cowering weakness within, seems implied in every one of these images, and specially in the metaphor we are considering. Of what need were keeping, unless there were danger without and frailty within? But amid all, it is evidently possible that we should be kept from stumbling, and spirit, soul, and body preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. "Faithful is He who calleth us, who also will do it." This keeping extends to the issues of life, and to the steps or goings of the saints; but it touches these, because it deals so completely with the inner man. There the power of God is exerted on the soul, on the heart and mind; unseen, but all-pervasive, and strong enough to quell the uprising of the wildest passion that ever swept down on the inner nature (Prov. iv. 23; Phil. iv. 7).

II. Why this keeping may be confidently expected.—It is demanded by the purpose of God.—We are elect unto obedience, as the first verses of this chapter tell us; but surely He who has called us with so high a calling will not fail to deal effectually with all that would prevent it from being realised.

It is demanded by the sacrifice of Christ.—The expenditure of Calvary was gladly borne by our Saviour, not to deliver us from hell so much as to purify unto Himself a people for his own possession, zealous of good works. But is it possible to suppose that the whole scheme of redemption is to be rendered abortive because, though He was able to purchase, He is not able to keep that which He has acquired? During his earthly life He kept those whom the Father had given Him, and none of them was lost, save the son of perdition, that the Scripture might be fulfilled; surely, then, since all power is now his, He is equally able to keep those who bear his name!

It is demanded by the indwelling of the Spirit.—He is most certainly in the heart of each believer; curtained, as of old was the Shekinah by the heavy veil, but still burning as a spark of fire in the most holy place. Above all things, He desires that the entire nature, which is his temple, should be kept clean and holy. And if He only is permitted to have his way, He will most certainly reduce the inward chaos to order, and keep the inner empire undisturbed. Would it not be in the highest degree at variance with his loving, holy nature to excite desires after holiness in the breast which He would not or could not meet? The very intensity of the passion for holiness which He instils is a pledge and harbinger of perfect satisfaction.

The credit of God demands it.—If sin must always master us, so long as we remain in this world, it would seem as if the remedy were not equal to the emergency. Here were indeed a subject for hellish merriment, if God were not able to counterwork the baleful influences which devils exert over human spirits. "Aha," methinks they would cry: "Thou canst make thy saints obedient only by taking them beyond the range of our power; but leave them here within our reach, and Thou canst not keep them from yielding to the temptations which we present."

Take heart, O tempted child of God; thou hast abundant reason to reckon confidently on being kept from known transgression.

III. How this keeping is effected.—"By the power of God."

Consider that power in creation.—Stand with the exiles in Babylon, and lift up your eyes on high to the starry hosts, spread out like a flock resting in the midnight sky: "He calleth them all by name by the greatness of his might; for that He is strong in power not one faileth." And if He can keep the heavenly bodies, revolving through orbits of measureless immensity, so exact to their hours that astronomers can calculate their return with unerring precision, surely He can keep one poor soul in its appointed orbit, especially when it is so eager to be kept (Isa. xl. 26).

Consider that power in history.—Notwithstanding the free action of human wills, warped and rebellious, He has been able to carry out his plans, and secure results on which He had set his mind from all eternity. And as a standing marvel the Israelite race remains to-day scattered among all peoples, but absorbed by none; isolated and alone, almost in spite of itself. But surely it must be as easy to preserve his Church, consisting as it does of those who are exceedingly desirous of knowing and doing his will (Jer. xxxiii. 25, 26).

Consider that power in the resurrection of our Lord.—It raised Him from the dead, past all created excellence, principalities and powers, until the glorified but human body of Christ passed to the very throne of the Eternal, where no created thing had ever come before. Nay, but more, in raising Him, the Father also raised us in Him. And the Apostle tells us that the very same power which bore Christ from the grave to the throne is extended towards the weakest believer, to lift him also to a similar level of resurrection being. Surely such a power as this is adequate to our direst necessity (Eph. i. 19, 20).

Consider this power in the human life of Jesus.—He met the devil in the wilderness and in Gethsemane. The prince of this world measured himself in mortal conflict with the Son of God, not once only, but many times. But he was always defeated. His legions were driven forth from haunted lives. He himself fell as lightning from heaven. His head was bruised. His chief allurement and bait, the world, was overcome. His attempt to hold the Saviour in the tomb was defeated, as when a man brushes through the cobweb that stretches across his path. And what Jesus did for Himself, He waits to do on the behalf of each of his own, and to repeat in each of us the conquests and triumphs of his own life on earth.

It is hardly necessary to say that the power of God is put forth by the Holy Spirit.—He lives in our inner man, and exerts there his marvellous energy He keeps Himself unseen, and focusses all our thought on the Lord Jesus, as light is sometimes made to fall on some beautiful face which attracts the observer's entire attention. Thus it happens that though the brunt of the inner war is borne by the Holy Ghost (Gal. v. 17), yet the believer is occupied with Jesus, appealing to Him in the conflict, and softly breathing his name as a talisman of victory. Yet, why do we need to distinguish thus, when they are One?

The power of the Holy Ghost works through our faith.—God will do all that we can trust Him to do; but He does not pledge Himself to work independently of our faith. When faith is in strong and blessed exercise, there is no limit to its possibilities, because it taps the reservoirs of Omnipotence, and opens the sluice-gates, so that all God's power begins to flow into the soul. Our faith is the means of our receptivity; the straits through which the ocean of Divine fulness pours its tides.

But if our faith be meagre and struggling, we cannot expect mighty deliverances. Smite but thrice upon the ground, and Syria will still defy you (2 Kings xiii. 19). If you do not expect that God is able to keep you, do not be surprised if you are not kept. According to your faith, or unbelief, so will it be done to you.

Would you realise God's keeping grace; give yourself entirely up to Him, renouncing all trust in yourself, and all connection with evil. Choose definitely and for ever the lot of the cross of Jesus. And then trust Jesus to keep you. Whenever temptation approaches, look up, and say, "Jesus, I trust thy keeping power." Ask the Holy Spirit to keep you so constantly in this attitude that it may become the habit of your soul to look to Jesus when temptation assails. Trust Him to keep you trusting. Nourish your faith by devout meditation on the promises of God. Do not look at your weakness or foes, but at the mighty bulwarks of God's salvation, which He has appointed. "The Lord is thy keeper." Hear his gracious words, and hide them in your heart: "I the Lord do keep it, I will water it every moment; lest any hurt it, I will keep it night and day" (Ps. cxxi.; Isa. xxvii. 3). Surely it were the height of blasphemy to affirm that the Almighty is not able, or willing, to keep the soul that trusts Him. Only man would shake the fugitive dove out of his bosom to the hawk!

Thus will you await the consummation of your salvation, which shall be yours at the coming of the Lord. Already it is finished and prepared; but it waits to be revealed. And when, amid the breaking light and exuberant gladness of perfect deliverance, you review the pathway by which you have come, you will better realise your indebtedness to his wondrous grace, in keeping that which you committed to Him against that day.

REV. F. B. MEYER will give a series of Bible-readings to young men at the Young Men's Christian Association, 186, Aldersgate-street, on Saturday afternoons, at 3 o'clock, commencing on Saturday, October 12. The subject will be the "Epistle to the Colossians," divided as follows.—Oct. 12, Why was it Written? Oct. 19, The Glories of Christ; Oct. 26, God's Scheme for Men; Nov. 2, Delivered from Ritualism; Nov. 9, The Grave and the Easter Life; Nov. 16, Home and Business.

More Leaves from my Notebook.

By Rev. WILLIAM HASLAM, M.A.

Author of "From Death into Life. An Autobiography."

XXVIII.—DOUBTS—DOUBTS.

"You have no doubts, I suppose," said a gentleman to me one day. "You do not know anything about them."

"Indeed," I replied, "I have very great doubts about people who have no doubts."

"What! do you mean to say that believers ever have doubts?"

"Yes, most certainly," I said; "for if they come from the devil, of course he sends them out against God's children, and not against his own."

My friend did not answer, so I continued, "Do you not know that Satan encourages unconverted people, more especially those who set out on a religious tack; and he does all he can to cheer them in their own efforts and self-righteousness by promising them heaven. Just as if he had the giving of heaven to men! With equal fascination he works at believers, persuading them to believe his lies against God."

"But," asked my friend, "how is a man to know what is true and what is not?"

I answered, "By the Word of God."

"But how am I to know that it is the Word of God?" he said, with a triumphant wave of his hand, as if he had quite settled the matter. "I have tremendous doubts about that, and sometimes about the existence of God also."

"Poor dear!" I exclaimed, "I am very sorry for you. You have indeed wandered far into darkness and away from the light. I do not wonder that you take for an enemy, even though he be the best of friends, every object you see in such a fog as that. You twist and turn good texts into hopeless ones."

"I am a miserable man, sir, I can tell you; and I cannot help myself."

I replied, "I do not doubt that in the least, and I am sorry for you; but I am sure it need not be so."

"I do not know what else to do," he said. "I read my Bible, and pray too; but something keeps telling me, 'The Bible is not true! God cannot hear such prayers as yours,' and such like things."

I answered, "I am afraid you have been yielding to the voice of the tempter for so long that he has acquired a power over you; but, notwithstanding this, I would advise you to put down your foot once for all, and decline to give heed any longer to such temptations. 'Hath God said?' is the way in which Satan began with Eve, and you know what trouble has followed from her listening to and parleying with him."

"But how am I to do this?" said the perplexed man. "I would give worlds if I could just——"

I answered, "Appeal to God, appeal to Christ who loves you, and is the Friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

"How am I to know Him," he asked, "but by the Word of God; and if I doubt that, what can I do?"

I said, "Your knowledge of God and Christ does not depend entirely upon your reading the Bible. God can manifest his ways to us by his Spirit and his providence as well as by his Word. There are millions of believers, I suppose, who cannot read, and yet they know God and are known of Him. You must have a transaction with a living, present Person—not merely read about Him, but speak to Him and hear Him speak to you."

The gentleman said, "I have been brought up to revere evidences, and I rely very much upon them."

I replied, "This may, at least in some measure, account for your present difficulty. Evidences are things which you must needs hold and balance in your mind, whereas God's truth holds you. You should ever remember, Satan can always blind the minds of those who do not believe with their hearts (see 2 Cor. iv. 4)."

My friend rose up from his seat, saying, "Do you mean to imply, then, that I do not believe with my heart?"

I replied, "I suspect you do not. When we believe from the heart, the subject-matter of our belief lays hold upon us; but when we believe with the mind only, we do so by natural effort, which fluctuates with the state of the mind. If God is the object of your faith, He will hold you firmly."

"I do not understand you," he said; "if believing the Bible is not believing God, then what is?"

"Believing the Bible," I said, "is by no means the same thing as believing in the Person who wrote or inspired it. You should believe in God Himself. There are multitudes of persons who believe in God and in Jesus Christ whom He has sent, and, what is more, they know they do so; but this is not enough. To tell the truth, it rouses my jealousy when I hear people talking about relying upon evidences. I am jealous for God, for I do not think God's veracity wants any propping up with such things. I like evidences as external confirmations, but to put them for the foundation of my belief is to cast a slur upon God Himself. I am a father," I continued, "and my children believe in me as their parent, without certificates duly attested!"

My friend said, "I do not like to undervalue the Word."

"You need not do that," I replied; "but do not undervalue the living God." As he hesitated, I put the question to him, "Have you ever spoken to God and received answers from Him? Are you saved?"

"Well," he replied (he began every remark with "Well"), "you ask me a straight question, and I wish I could give you a straight answer."

"Here," I said, "is the crack in your foundation which makes the superstructure so shaky."

He said, "I do not think I was ever taught to lay stress on the point of my conversion or salvation."

I answered, "Everything depends upon this. If you are not born, then you are not a child; and if not a child, then not an heir of God. Get this matter well settled, and your joy and peace will be equally well established."

"But how can I help these doubts coming in—they will come?"

"Certainly," I said, "they will, while there is an opening for them. Cracks in the foundation let in water from beneath; for this cause God has provided in Christ an unbroken whole Rock for the foundation. Get upon that."

"Well," said the gentleman, "I think I am upon it."

"Yes," I answered, "I think so too; but I want you to do more than think. I want you to be sure. Then, when Satan comes to you with his lies, you can oppose God's truth to his falsehood. Do you not see, friend, God has given you two ears, and if Satan whispers at one ear, listen for what God says in the other. The Holy Spirit by whom you were converted can also bear witness with your quickened spirit that you are a child of God, and as such you are under his care and love. The Word of God will come in to verify the work of the Spirit."

"Well, well," he said, "I think I see what you mean; I begin to understand you."

I said, "Mrs. —— was told that her husband was unfaithful to her. 'Never!' she replied, 'never! I know my Sam better than that. Never!' 'But,' said her informant, 'I have letters to prove it.' 'I do not believe one of them; I know him too well. No, never!' So it was; the letters referred to another man of the same name—her husband was true. If one person can trust another like that, do you not think we ought to trust God?"

"Well, thank you," said my friend, "I hope shall yet escape my troublesome doubts."

"No," I said, "I do not think you will escape, but I am sure God can deliver you. Ask Him; trust Him positively and definitely, and may He bless you in doing so."

I am inclined to think that there was some physical cause for my friend's trouble. But physical, spiritual, or both, the remedy is the same. The Lord can deliver, and He loves to doi t for as many as put their trust in Him.

The Balolo Mission Party.

By Mrs. McKittrick.

Banza Manteka, Congo, July 12.—It is early morning, about seven o'clock, and in a brief space we shall have to say good-bye to this place and people among whom we have spent six happy days. African carriers, as many of our friends have heard, are difficult to deal with; their ideas of time, and of the fulfilment of a contract, are exceedingly hazy. Our men are no exception. We arrived here last Saturday, expecting to proceed on our journey up country the following Monday. But the carriers, who are chiefly from this district, found the attractions of home so strong that they declined leaving before daybreak on Friday. We have been ready to start for an hour and a half; but they have not yet made their appearance, and my husband has gone off into the town to look them up.

Meanwhile I have turned into the little iron church, away from the work and busy life outside, and am rejoicing in the quiet of this house where prayer is wont to be made. It is a plain, unpretending building, light, lofty, and airy, well suited to its purpose, and capable of holding five hundred persons. At the upper end is a platform and reading desk; on either side is a little room, separated from the main building by a wooden partition. One of these is the dispensary, where Mr. Ingham administers medicine and advice to the sick; the other has served as prophet's chamber to one of our party during our stay here. The floor of the church is made of mud, and has one advantage over ordinary church floors. Crying and fidgety babies, who are brought to the meetings in goodly numbers, are deposited on the ground, and there find food and entertainment for themselves, by digging their little hands into the clay, and conveying it to their mouths! Every day, and often twice a day, services are held here, and the glad tidings of salvation through Jesus Christ are proclaimed to the people who gather together from twenty scattered towns.

As I sit writing, my thoughts almost involuntarily dwell on the tremendous difference between

BANZA MANTEKA PAST AND PRESENT.

On hearing from our brethren of the Lord's work among this people, and the way in which He has been pleased to manifest his power in their hearts and lives, we cannot but exclaim, thankfully, yet wonderingly, "What hath God wrought!" I have neither time nor ability to give a detailed account of the work here; that can better be done by those who have been privileged to share in it; but a brief review of the past, contrasted with the present condition of affairs, will be interesting to those who pray from their hearts, "Thy kingdom come."

Ten years ago, when the missionaries of the cross first came to Banza Manteka, strangers in a strange land, without home or friends, they found a people sunk in the idolatries and superstitions of heathenism; ignorant and degraded; without God, and without hope in the world. With much difficulty, and after long palavers, a piece of ground was given to them by an old chief who seemed to be kindly disposed towards the white men. For this action the inhabitants of a neighbouring town made war upon him; enmity was aroused and blood shed in the endeavour to drive the white men away. But God raised up a friend for his servants in the person of the old king Makokila who had given them the land. Amid much persecution and opposition the missionary built a house, and, having acquired some knowledge of the language, began to preach the Gospel.

For some years he saw no apparent results; the hatred and ill-will of the natives towards him were plainly displayed in their attempts to steal his goods and destroy his property. Day by day his soul was grieved by the misery and wickedness all around him. The men cruel and revengeful, the women despised and downtrodden, the children taught to sin from their earliest infancy, slaves bought and sold as household property: such was the domestic and social life of the people. Love and peace were words almost unknown to them; the expression of them certainly was. The different towns were continually at war with each other; the slightest provocation was an excuse for commencing hostilities between two or more tribes; lasting and bitter were the quarrels between individuals. The witch-doctors pursued their horrible trade of deceiving and deluding the rest of the people, and so imposing upon their ignorant credulity as to cause the death of scores of innocent persons who were ruthlessly murdered on a small eminence behind the mission station. The people were in complete bondage to these blind leaders of the blind, who exercised a terrible power for evil over the minds and bodies of men.

Three centres for the training of "Nkimba" (a system by means of which the boys and young men are introduced to various heathenish and superstitious customs) existed in the near vicinity of the newly planted mission-station; and everywhere the howls and shrieks of those being initiated into the sacred mysteries greeted the ear, especially during the night, when they were supposed to be hunting the evil spirits. The people, i.e., the uninitiated, were so in awe of the "Nkimba" that, in order to propitiate the idols, they allowed raids to be made upon their own property, and constantly made them offerings of food, &c. A wood, which marks the boundary of the present mission premises, was regarded with such dread by the natives, as being the favourite haunt of bad spirits, that none of them dared to walk through it, lest an awful and mysterious fate should overtake them.

This state of things lasted until 1885; the missionary's life was apparently a series of weary disappointments and trials. But the Master who sent him gave him grace to persevere, and during that year broke out the great revival, the history of which is known to your readers. Since that time the work has continued to grow, and by the blessing of God Banza Manteka is to-day a centre of Christian life and work. Verily "old things have passed away" from this people. We have met with a hearty welcome from many of those who, a few years ago, hated the white man and his words; their ready salutations and smiling faces testify to the kindly feeling of their hearts. Instead of crowds of people coming together to witness the witch dances or the poison tests, we see now a crowd of happy people, decently clad when compared with their former lack of clothing, coming up to the Lord's house to worship Him.

It was a pleasure long to be remembered when, on Sunday, we were privileged to join our dear black brethren and sisters in their morning service. Some of them come from a distance, and they are not satisfied with a meeting lasting less than two hours. To our English eyes some of their actions may seem strange, and perhaps unbecoming, but that they form a congregation worshipping in spirit and in truth is very evident. The church membership numbers two hundred and eighty, and these are all such as have proved themselves by a consistent life to be followers of Jesus. Yesterday a church meeting was held, which was attended by two hundred of these men and women, and the question of drinking palm wine after fermentation has set in was discussed, one of the members having lately taken more than was good for him. He publicly confessed his sin, and was retained in church fellowship, as this was his first offence. These native converts readily distinguish between right and wrong, and this is a clear indication that they have received light from on high. Before they were born again, truth and uprightness of conduct had no meaning for them.

We have visited five or six of the towns near at hand, which are now, practically, Christian towns. The Nkimba are nowhere to be heard or seen, but in their place we see children and grown-up people sitting in school, learning to read and write, and hearing for the first time the old Bible stories so familiar to us. The witch-doctors are turned into preachers of the Gospel. Not a few of the converts, male and female, go out and try to make known to their fellow-countrymen the good news which they have received into their own hearts, and their efforts have been greatly blessed. In some of the villages we saw a shed erected by the natives themselves, in which they meet in the evening for prayer and praise. And where this earnest Christian spirit is manifested there is no room for witchcraft and sorcery. No, thank God, that has died out, and the people are now rejoicing in the freedom and liberty of the Gospel of Christ.

Banza Manteka is a very green spot in the terrible desert of heathenism which overspreads poor dark Africa, and why should there not be many such? We are encouraged by all we have seen here to believe that we shall yet see as great and greater things among the millions of the Balolo in the far interior to whom we go as ambassadors for Christ. He has said: "All power is given unto Me." Our prayer is that this power may so work in us and for us and through us that thousands may be brought out of darkness into his marvellous light.

[In a note accompanying this interesting sketch, Mrs. McKittrick says the party hoped to proceed up country the following day. All were in good health; they had been preserved from severe fever, though some had had slight attacks.]

PROTESTANT STUDIES IN IRELAND.—The Council of the Irish Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, in issuing the programme for the session 1889-90, in connection with the scheme for promoting the study of Protestant Theology, again invites all Christian friends in Ireland to assist in the formation of the requisite Bible-classes. Subjects are set out for examinations in elementary and advanced grades. Persons not able to study in classes or compete for prizes, may nevertheless engage in the studies and present themselves for examination. Copies of the programme and other information may be had by addressing the Secretary, Christian Union Buildings, Dublin.

THE SMYRNA REST has now been open ten years, and continues to be a place of spiritual refreshment to many who would otherwise find themselves in a dry and thirsty land. It is the centre of varied effort, and God still owns the word spoken in his name, and the distribution of Holy Scriptures, as carried on by the earnest workers. Rev. Dr. Constantine, who superintends the work among the Greeks, reports some remarkable conversions through the power of God's Word. One man, while in gaol at Manissa, came in contact with a tract, which led him to send for a Bible, and then for someone to teach him how to pray. He was converted, and bore his testimony for Jesus; and not long afterwards his sentence was commuted, though he himself was banished from the empire. A hall in which the Gospel may be preached in the Greek language is greatly needed. The churches round about have received accessions of members through blessing on the agencies of the Rest. On all hands the Greeks are manifesting a spirit of inquiry, and an unprecedented readiness to accept the truth. Communications regarding the work may be addressed to Mr. S. S. Bagster, the Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, N.

RUSSIAN PRISONERS.

Dear Sir,—The horrors of prison-life in Siberia can scarcely be surpassed. Mr. Kennan's descriptions in The Century are by no means overdrawn. But every evil has its history of development; the force of circumstances and the accumulation of crime are not born in a day, nor can they be overcome by the efforts of a day. The present staff of prison officials are straining every effort to improve the institutions for the detention of criminals. At St. Petersburg, Moscow, and other towns in European Russia, the prisons have been reformed according to the most modern system, but Russia is too large and the needs are too great for the distant parts of Siberia and Transkaukasia to be reached at once. Improvements are being made everywhere, and, considering that only since 1861 the serfs have been emancipated, and the mass of the people were then suddenly, and without preparation, thrown upon their own resources, it is surprising what enormous efforts have been made to overcome and check the flood of evil which continues to flow from a people who have for so many years been kept under the terror of the knout, and whose religion has been forced on them by the same compulsive argument.

At Tjumen, Tobolsk, Tomsk, the prisons were overcrowded; at Tomsk, an accumulation had taken place for several months, so that at the time of my arrival, the usual weekly transports were stopped until a gradual drafting off to East Siberia would make room for fresh arrivals. It is a great privilege to be permitted to bring the Gospel to the thousands detained in prison, and very many of them chained. The sight of hundreds of them gathered together in the courts of the prison to listen to the words spoken, would be worth more than a journey from London to Tomsk to many evangelists. Their sufferings are great beyond conception, and only a people accustomed to patient endurance, as are the Russians, can suffer what they do and yet live.

The worst feature of the large overcrowded prisons are the prison hospitals, where the space is limited and patients with all kinds of diseases are indiscriminately placed together. Small-pox, typhus, scorbute, consumption, and other diseases are found in close proximity, all fear of infection being set aside. The medical practitioner in one of the prisons had during his thirteen years of service passed sixteen times through typhus fever. The officials are men whose sympathies have been stretched to the utmost, until they are forced to resignation to their fate. They do what is in their power to ameliorate the sufferings of the prisoners, but they are men under authority; their power is limited. They are the prisoners of the prisoners.

The greatest evil is the forced idleness of the criminals, and the saying that "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do" is terribly realised in the large prisons of Russia, where from want of space men are huddled together indiscriminately, and it is frequently found that the prison is the school for crime. Much has been said and written about the horrors of prison life in the Russian Empire, but the subject of crime and its remedies is one of the social questions for all nations, and it will yet be found to be true that no punishment will really remedy the evil; and, where the Gospel of the grace of God that bringeth salvation is withheld from those who most need it, there must inevitably be a sinking lower and lower in the scale of morality, and sin will enslave its victims without a check.

Never in any place have I seen a more acutely attentive audience than were the chained men in the crowded prisons of Siberia. No mocking there, no hypocrisy, but many a bowed head and moistened eye. May the prayers and the sympathies of God's children be more drawn to the needy places of the earth. Oh may there yet be the mighty wind from the Lord to prophesy to the dead and dry bones.

Through the generosity of the British and Foreign Bible Society, I am permitted to distribute freely to the prisoners the Gospels and other portions of Scripture. I hope now to visit Orenburg, Upha, Saratow, Zaritzin, Astrachan, all on the way to Baku.

Yours sincerely,

Samara. F. W. Baedeker.

MISS DE BROEN'S WORK IN PARIS.

Now eighteen years old, the Belleville Mission works vigorously among young and old in a very needy part of Paris. As the years have gone by, the responsibilities and anxieties of the work have steadily increased, and those who sympathised with Miss De Broen in her early efforts cannot but rejoice with her to-day in view of the abundant blessing which God still showers upon the labours which she so lovingly directs. The agencies are now as numerous as Christian ingenuity can devise for the comfort of the needy and the proclamation of the Gospel, if by any means weary men and women may by one effort or another be led to Him who alone can give rest to the soul. The report for last year, just issued, describes the work in detail.

The medical mission has, we rejoice to learn, been carried on with many tokens of blessing. The total attendance at the dispensary was 24,480, about one-fifth of them persons who had not previously availed themselves of its advantages. Cases of great interest present themselves, which, but for the aid afforded by the Mission, would not receive due attention. Patients in the Paris hospitals are not provided with medicines free; the charge made is, in fact, prohibitive. Some of those who have attended the Mission dispensary have, through being brought under Gospel teaching, evinced an interest in eternal things, and it is hoped that many more will thus learn of the love of God. Occasionally people from a distance visit Paris on purpose to avail themselves of the dispensary. One poor man, suffering from severe ophthalmia, travelled 200 miles in full confidence that he would be speedily cured by "les Anglais." By means of copies of the Holy Scriptures and tracts, which the patients take back with them, the Gospel is carried into places which are quite unevangelised. The specific Gospel work continues to be much owned of God.

AMONG THE INCIDENTS

which are related in the report are the following:—A man who had been brought up a Catholic, was deeply interested in the Bible given him at his marriage to a Protestant. He had been frequently visited, and his wife, long indifferent, is now, like him, a changed being. His touching words at a prayer-meeting for Christians were "I used to think that giving up my friends in the world would be like going into a desert, but I find that where I have been living is the desert, and now it is entering the family." One of the young men in his employment has been so influenced by his example that he is also changed, and has made a public profession of his faith by baptism. A woman, after attending services in the iron-room, showed her change of heart in a very practical way. She used to have false weights for the fruit and vegetables she sold from a handcart in the street. She became very serious, and felt it was impossible, as a Christian, to continue to do this. It was a hard struggle, and a real loss. Besides this, shegave up selling on Sunday, though it was the day of greatest sale; she persevered, however, and reaped an unexpected reward in her custom being increased, as people came to her because they got good weight, and goods that are well worth the money.

Sunday-school work is attended by much encouragement. A little fellow in the Mission Sunday-school asked his father why he did not pray? The man replied that he knew no prayer. "You had better say mine," said the child; and, climbing on his knee, he repeated to him the prayer he had learnt from the school teacher, putting his father's hands together. The man was struck, and, like many others, was led by his child. Now he has family prayer every evening. The night schools are a useful agency, young men attending them in goodly numbers. The prisons in France are filled with young men. Miss de Broen is anxious for more means to cope with the evil that lies in wait for young men from the penny "dreadfuls," the bad companions, and the fashion of mocking at all that is venerable and holy.

Visitors to Paris do not visit Belleville so much as formerly, to see the quondam communists and the evangelistic work which is carried on among them. Such as do inspect the work, however, cannot help commending it, because it is purely and distinctly for eternity. As is known to many of our readers, Miss de Broen has established a central office, Rue St. Honoré No. 205, where general information may be obtained, and whence friends may be conducted to the scene of operations. This office is an additional witness for God in the gay city, and at all hours weary faces may be seen at the large window reading the Scripture texts and open Bibles. The Mission has been styled "one of the wonders of Paris." We hope Christian sight-seers at the present season will not fail to visit and inspect it, for then they will surely have a desire to support one or more of its excellent agencies.

CHILDREN OF MISSIONARIES.

Many readers of The Christian will remember the melancholy incident which shocked us all on the occasion of the C.M.S. anniversary meetings last year, when news of the death, in Eastern Equatorial Africa, of Bishop Parker and Rev. Joseph Blackburn, was brought by telegram. Some may have seen the various friends watching at the doors of Exeter Hall, and searching among the audience, fearing that Mrs. Blackburn would be present to hear her husband's death thus suddenly and publicly announced.

It may not be generally known that Mrs. Blackburn was then on the eve of starting to rejoin her husband, and had secured a home in England for her little one, then only five months old. The trouble she experienced in finding a suitable home for her child has suggested to her the idea of offering to receive the young children of missionaries or others of the Lord's people who are obliged, on account of climate, to part from their little ones. She has established a little Home, "Kinderheim," in Hastings, for the reception of such, and will be glad to receive a limited number, to whom she will give a mother's care, together with her own precious child, and train and nurture them under her own eye.

Any person desirous of further information will receive a prospectus on application to Rev. S. J. H. Yewman, vicar of Emmanuel Parish, Hastings, where "Kinderheim" is located, or to Mrs. Blackburn herself, 71, St. Mary's-terrace, West-hill, Hastings.

"RESCUED FROM PERISHING."—The Salvation Army has issued a booklet in which Mr. Jonathan Grubb tells the story of the conversion to God of a man and woman who had for years lived in deepening sin and misery. How the labours of Mrs. Bramwell Booth and her helpers were blessed to the enlightenment of Lottie, and how officers of the Army brought Gospel artillery to bear on the hardened Joe, make a charming incident in evangelistic effort. The careers of the now happy pair are remarkable, and their progress from darkness to light is full of interest. The story is one which more than justifies such work as that of the Salvation Army, and doubtless many will be moved, on reading it, to pray for the workers, and support their varied and important enterprises.

For the Young.

A MOTHER'S PRAYERS.

Many years ago one who is now preaching the Gospel sent a letter to his mother informing her that he trusted he at last had become a Christian. All through his college course he had waited; finally, while away from home teaching, he began to hope in Christ. So he wrote to his mother, and he said, moreover, he had through the whole of his life been moved with the conviction of conscience that his life was eventually to lead to the pulpit.

He declared he could not explain how it came about, but it was true that he never had but one thought—that sometime he should become a true Christian and then should study for the ministry.

Across the Green Mountains with one tremendous ride of sixty-six miles in one day came that faithful New England mother, and in a half hour after she reached his side she told him in the shadows of the firelight, that a score of years before, in the old village church, the devout women were fitting out a box for a missionary. She had put in one of this son's small infant garments, with a slip requesting the prayers of that man of God to go with her prayers that this child might be a Christian, and, if God would honour her so much, might be a minister of the Gospel to dying men. That son is an elderly man now; but he soberly declares that he owes all he is to his mother's prayers, and he hopes to keep the faith till he sees her face once more.—Sabbath Recorder.

THE OAKLEAF'S TROUBLE.

By Eva Travers Evered Poole.

Far away in the forest there stood a great oak tree. Its strong, sturdy roots grew deep down in the earth, and its branches were thick with leaves, and crowned with acorns in little brown cups.

A sweet breeze swept through the wood, whispering to the leaves, and kissing the little flower-faces upturned here and there to catch a glimpse of the warm, bright sun, which had mounted high into the heavens, and whose rays reached them now and again through the shadowing branches. Some bright-eyed squirrels, with soft fur, popped in and out of the branches of the oak tree, and the tap! tap! of a woodpecker was heard occasionally.

Under the oak tree grew a soft carpet of moss and grass, dotted over with pink and white flowerets. The moss, ferns, and leaves mingled together, made quite a pretty pattern in nature's carpet; and, as each leaf held a bright, little dewdrop in its heart, which sparkled like a clear diamond, you can imagine the carpet at the foot of the oak tree was always green, and fair, and fresh.

Amongst the oak leaves was one little gold-tipped leaflet, as daintily pretty as any you have ever seen upon an oak tree's branch. This little leaf now and again uttered a soft sigh, or cry, which you perhaps might have mistaken for the sough of the summer breeze. But it came really from the heart of the little leaf—and the twig on which it grew was troubled, for it could not bear its child to be unhappy—so it said—

"What is the matter, little leaf?"

"The wind has told me a secret," sighed the leaflet, "and this secret has made me sad," and it shivered and moaned.

"Tell me your trouble, child," said the twig; "you should keep no secrets from your mother. Let her help you to bear everything, and your heart will never be sad."

Thus encouraged, the little leaf whispered: "The cold, cruel wind told me that one day, not far away, it would pull me off and throw me on the ground to die; and, O mother, I don't feel as if I could bear the thought! What shall I do?"

The mother-twig said, "Don't fret, child; things are never so bad when one sleeps on them. In the morning we'll talk to grandmother."

So the twig told the oakleaf's trouble to the branch, and the branch told it to the tree.

When the grand old tree heard it, it gave itself such a shake that all the branches knocked their heads together, and the squirrels and birds fancied an earthquake had taken place. But it sent back a message to the leaf. "Don't be afraid or troubled; hold on as tightly as you can, and you shall not fall off until you want to."

So the leaf was comforted and gave up sighing. It sang itself a little song instead, and played with the other leaves round it.

By and by the summer ended, and chill October set in. A frost or two nipped the leaves, one and all, and made them shiver.

The leaves of the forest were looking very beautiful, for they were coloured crimson, and gold, and brown by the bright days of autumn. Our little leaf was as beautiful as any, for it was striped with purple and yellow, like a lovely flower.

It asked the old tree the meaning of their gay dresses, and the tree said: "All these leaves are getting ready to fly away, and they dress in gay colours because they are so glad to go."

"May I go too?" asked the little leaf.

"Certainly, if you wish to," said the tree.

The little leaf thought it all over, and grew more and more beautiful the longer it thought. A longing crept over it to fly away. Its work was done, and it yearned for a glimpse of the unknown. But it had to be patient, for its stalk held yet tightly to the mother twig. But day by day as little puffs of wind blew harder than before, the little leaf let go without even thinking of it, and the wind carried it right away, turned it over and over as gently as possible, and left it lying in the heart of the forest, amongst hundreds of other fallen leaves, all fast asleep.

I have a letter lying before me, and in that letter a young Christian writes thus:—"I am often so miserable, and fear I am not one of Christ's sheep after all. I begin to think about dying, and am certain I shall never feel happy about it. I suppose I ought to be glad at the thought that Jesus may call me to Himself at any time. Good people always are, are they not? But I am not glad—I am quite frightened when I think about it, and don't want to go, so I suppose I am very, very wicked, and perhaps I am not a Christian at all. Oh, it makes me so miserable, and robs me of all my peace."

Now I felt like the mother-twig when I heard about the heart-trouble of this little girl, and I too told her not to fret; for when God's time came He would make her willing and glad to go.

Satan was just troubling and burdening her bright young heart by laying upon it the weight of the future, instead of letting her live happily in the present.

All she had to do, and all you have to do, is to live for Jesus day by day; when He wants you to die for Him, He will give you grace to do so gladly and cheerfully.

Don't bear to-morrow's burden; don't borrow the troubles of an unknown future.

Do not put yourself into imaginary positions and spend your time in wondering if you will have grace to overcome fancied difficulties or to bear fancied troubles. Just concern yourself solely with living for Jesus day by day, and hour by hour; brightly, happily, trustfully looking unto Him for grace to do it. When He asks you to die for Him, depend upon it, He will give you dying grace. Like the little oak leaf, you will daily lose your hold of earthly things, and feel the longing for heavenly things growing stronger and stronger; you will grow more and more lovely as you grow in likeness to the Lord Jesus, until at last, "clad in beauty not your own," your spirit bids farewell to earth, and floats gently heavenward. Yes, you may trust Jesus with past, present, and future.

"Out of his riches
Each need supplying;
Trust Him for living,
Trust Him for dying."

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Oct. 6, Ps. lxxx. 1—19; Mon., Oct. 7, Ps. lxxxi. 1—16; Tues., Oct. 8, Ps. lxxxii. 1—8; Wed., Oct. 9, Jer. xxiv. 1—10; Thurs., Oct. 10, Jer. xxix. 1—14; Fri., Oct. 11, Jer. xxxi. 10—20; Sat., Oct. 12, Jer. xxxi. 27—37.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Henry Hutchinson, St. Paul's Parochial Hall, Ferndale-road, Brixton, to Oct. 7, at 7; Northampton Temperance Hall (with Mr. James S. Tyler), Oct. 9—18; Liverpool, Oct. 14; Manchester, Oct. 15. Mr. Alfred Armitage, Carlisle, Oct. 3—11; Newcastle, Oct. 12—19. Mr. H. W. Pewtress, Baptist Church, Shooter's Hill-road, Blackheath, Oct. 20—25, 7 p.m. Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Leominster, Oct. 19—25; Hornsey-rise, Oct. 27—Nov. 3. Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, Westbourne-grove, Oct. 14—17, at 8; Leyton Congregational Church, Oct. 21—25; Athenæum, Camden-road, each Sun. in Oct., at 3.15. Two meetings for reports of seaside services, Princes Hall, Piccadilly, Oct. 8, 3 and 6.30 p.m., with addresses by various workers. Rev. E. A. Stuart, Mr. E. Arrowsmith, and other speakers will address two meetings at Gordon Hall, Blackburn-place, Liverpool, Oct. 14, at 4 and 7.30; and at Strangeways Hall, Manchester, Oct. 15, at 3.30 and 7.

WITNESSING IN CHINA.

In a recent letter, Mr. C. Horobin, of the China Inland Mission, Ninghsia Fu, writes:—"Forty-three patients have passed through the opium refuge this year. As yet we have not baptized any, but we expect soon to administer the rite to some who are on probation. We have enlisted more native help in the refuges, but now that there is less to do in that department, the two young assistants go out by turns, and engage in colportage work; one is now on a sixteen days' journey. I have spent some time in the villages this year, getting good audiences while preaching in the streets, and having good sales of Scriptures. It pains me that, having awakened an interest in a place, I am not able to go again for some months, and then, perhaps only for a day.

"We have had some opposition, which is a good sign, as it results in the strengthening of those who have taken their stand for Christ. Several who have been inclined to come among us have held back on account of the Sabbath institution, for which we have taken our stand. We have also taken a room in a city one hundred li north of us, and the last time I was there I sold 1000 cash of books in a short time in the street. We are praying that others may soon come and follow up this work. There are so many places all around, and the dry bones are as a voice calling us to go and prophesy to them.

"I have paid a visit to Wang-yeh-fu, the Mongol city, and had some good times preaching to the Chinese who live outside and supply the Mongols with all they need. But the poor Mongols could only look on and wonder. It is time something more noble was being attempted on behalf of this neglected people for whom Christ died. The Mongol prince being on a visit to Peking, his brother, who is a priest, rules during his absence, and sent out for a copy of each of my books.

"This morning I had three Mohammedans talking seriously for three hours about the Gospel. One wanted me to go and live in his neighbourhood, saying it was better than Ninghsia. He said, 'We believe eight-tenths of what you preach; could we not join you?' I told them they must come over the remaining two-tenths; and if they followed Jesus they could not also follow Mohammed."

Dublin Convention.

This well-established and popular assembly of Irish Christians was held in Dublin last week, and was a time of spiritual refreshment to many. The special features of this year's gathering were a great missionary meeting and a meeting for children.

The meetings commenced on Monday evening with a conversazione, held in the large hall of the Christian Union Buildings. Mr. John R. Fowler, who for many years has presided at these preliminary meetings of the Conventions, took the chair on this occasion also. He said that, as they looked back over the great gatherings held in connection with that Convention, they remembered with gratitude the way in which God had led them on in bringing together his people, and in uniting them in common sympathy for Christian work. They were thankful to think that the cause of Christian Union had thus been promoted. Rev. R. McCheyne Edgar, of Dublin, spoke of the law of overflow in the kingdom of grace as illustrated by the law of overflow in the kingdom of nature. Rev. Dr. Lathom, of Wexford, followed with an evangelistic address. Both utterances were listened to with deep attention by a very large audience.

FIRST DAY.

The Convention proper began on Tuesday morning with a prayer-meeting, after which Mr. R. P. Froste opened the proceedings at noon in the large hall. The first address was delivered by Rev. H. J. Berguer, of London, on "Fellowship with Jesus." He urged that, though knowledge was a primal necessity, a man might have a very correct creed, and yet be devoid of this fellowship. There must be on the part of the soul a giving up of all to Christ, an agreement of purpose, and a deep sympathy for the lost. Complete fellowship will only be attained when we see Jesus face to face. An able address on "The Self-revealing Power of the Gospel" was given by Dr. Marshall Lang, of Glasgow, who spoke eloquently upon the evidence of this self-revealing power to be gathered from the story of the woman at Jacob's well.

At the afternoon meeting addresses were delivered by Rev. Thomas Cook, Wesleyan evangelist, from England; Rev. H. A. Bren, C.M.S., Bombay; and Rev. George Davidson, of Edinburgh. Mr. Cook spoke powerfully on the exceeding deceitfulness of sin, and dealt some heavy blows at the doctrine of perfection in the flesh. At the same time he magnified the power of the indwelling Christ for holiness of life and for service. Mr. Bren delivered an earnest address on "The Christian's Mission." The principal attraction of the session, however, was the children's meeting, conducted by Rev. George Davidson. There was a very large attendance, both of young and old. Mr. Davidson spoke sweetly and simply of Jesus as a Friend, the divisions of his talk being "Jesus a rich Friend," "Jesus a royal Friend," "Jesus a true Friend," and "Jesus a tried Friend." The children drank in his homely, helpful words, and seemed at the close as if they would gladly have listened longer. It is to be hoped that a children's meeting will form a part of all succeeding conferences.

The evening meeting of the first day was devoted to addresses on foreign missions. Rev. H. M. Waddell, chairman, pointed out how so many countries that a few years ago were closed to the preaching of the Gospel, are now open. Rev. W. S. Swanson insisted on it that no Church could rise to the ideal of what a Church of Christ ought to be, unless it put foreign missions in the forefront; indeed, the Church exists for the Mission. Referring to China, where he has laboured for thirty years, he said its heathenism was not a dead factor, but was still a living power. Yet the Gospel had wrought wonders in that pagan land. When he went there, the Presbyterian Church, to which he belonged, had only two small meeting-houses and twenty or thirty members; now it has 120 churches, 4000 communicants, and 12,000 adherents. Rev. H. A. Bren gave an interesting report of missionary work in Bombay. Rev. D. A. Rees described his labours in the province of Mysore, which has a population of about five millions. It is exclusively evangelised by the Wesleyan and Church Missionary Societies, both of which work most amicably together, respecting each other's rights, and rejoicing in each other's prosperity.

SECOND DAY.

This morning Mr. Swanson opened the speaking with a vigorous address on "Church and Mission." The Church of Christ, he said, was a visible body of believers all throughout the world by whatever name they might be called, and he did not think there was anything like a right conception of the importance and position of missions in the Church. They wanted one big disintegration which would stir them up and then weld them together again, and bring them face to face with the great mission with which Christ had commissioned them in this world. He remembered the time when he was very jealous of other denominations, when he held secession ideas, and attached great importance to the Revolution settlement, the Solemn League and Covenant, and the question of patronage. He lived a testifying life, and probably would have died a testifying death, had he not gone to the mission field, and there learned to put things in their true proportion. Many people did not realise why Christ put his Church into the world. Christianity was the only religion the world had ever seen that did not end with self; and Christianity saved him, not for himself only, but to send him out to be a factor for saving others in the world. If there was one thing more than another which would draw them together, it was these missions at home and abroad. It was often said the greater portion of the people of this country were away from religion. He did not believe that was the case. They were not away from religion, but away from the Church, and that in his opinion was due to an idea which he was sorry to see existing in a kind of Christianity, which went upon the assumption that some men and women's souls were made of different material to others, and that their souls were of different colours. That idea was the curse of the Church, and the sooner it was out of it the better. They wanted to show their poorer brethren that Christianity was self-denying. They should not stand above them, but go down to them; and the only way they could do that would be to get mission work on the brain. They wanted to be revolutionised. They wanted a sound breath of common-sense blowing upon them, driving the cobwebs from their brain, and bringing them back to the simplicity of their Master and the simplicity of their mission. The Church of the mission was once a little company of men and women, weak in knowledge, weak in faith, but strong in love—the love of one Master; but, by God's blessing, the Church of the mission had spread now over the whole world. The Church had been a poor, weak Church, but he believed it was waking up. All round and round them they had missionary meetings, which were very different things to what they were when he first went to China. The mission was on its march, and on its march it must go until the Master has seen of the travail of his soul and was satisfied.

Rev. J. Taylor Smith, London, spoke well on "Influence," from the words "None of us liveth to himself," though his didactic essay seemed tame and flat after the rousing red-hot utterances of the missionary.

To a large gathering in the afternoon, brief addresses were given on varied forms of Christian service. Mr. W. Nobbs described the many-sided and blessed work carried on among the East-end masses by Mr. F. N. Charrington and his helpers. Mr. W. Hind Smith was, of course, quite at home in telling of the remarkable development of the Y.M.C.A. during the last twenty years. Rev. D. A. Rees, of Mysore, gave some interesting facts as to orphanage work in the province. Rev. Thomas Cook bore witness to the great blessing God had given him in doing the work of an evangelist; in this he was followed by Mr. George Clarke, who also made a remark worth remembering by our Irish fellow Christians: "If ever the dark cloud of Roman Catholicism and bigotry was to be swept away it would be when the Episcopalian forgot his differences with the Presbyterian, and the Methodists their differences with the Baptists, and when their only all-engrossing thought was to preach Christ and Him crucified." Rev. Henry Fishe urged greater zeal in presenting the pure Gospel to Roman Catholics. Surgeon-General Gunn represented the Prison Gate Mission, and Mr. Tierney the Sailors' Mission. Miss Crossle told of the Mission to Railway-men. Mr. Williams gave a report of the work of the Children's Special Mission. Mr. Macaulay recounted his labours in circulating the Douay Testament among Roman Catholics.

There was a vast throng at the evening meeting, when Dr. Marshall Lang spoke clearly and impressively on "The Spiritual Kingdom and its Conditions," his remarks being based on the interview between Christ and Nicodemus. Rev. Thomas Cook spoke with much unction and power to the unsaved, and at a second meeting many indicated a definite desire to accept of Christ as their Saviour.

THIRD DAY.

On Thursday morning an address on "Our Children for Christ" was delivered by Rev. J. Taylor Smith. He urged his hearers to consecrate their drawing-rooms and gardens to children's meetings. Rev. George Davidson delivered an earnest and striking word on "The Law of Spiritual Capital"—an impressive exposition of the Parable of the Talents, as found in Matt. xxv. The chief attraction of the afternoon meeting was a Bible-reading by Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, who took part in the Convention for the first time. Mr. Pearse, who was very cordially welcomed, expounded Eph. i. 18. The subject of the passage, he said, was "What have I got in Jesus Christ, and what has Jesus Christ got in me?" Paul's great concern was about the Church. If they could only get a holy Church, we may allow the world to take care of itself. The Christianity of the nineteenth century is an organised selfishness. People are satisfied if they can save their own little souls. Mr. Pearse spoke of the wrangling and jangling that took place among the Apostles as to which of them should be the greatest, and said it was a type of the professing Church of the present day. All that was cured when Pentecost came; and then Peter and John became friends, and Peter lost all his dignity. He became a brother to a poor lame beggar, and did not even shrink from persecution and death for Christ. The address was listened to with rapt attention, and evidently made a profound impression.

An interesting address on "Serving and Suffering" was delivered at the same session by Rev. H. J. Berguer, who directed the attention of the audience to Christ as their example in these particulars.

A vast audience came together to hear the closing utterances of the Convention by Rev. Mark Guy Pearse and Mr. George Clarke, both of whom gave earnest and impressive evangelistic addresses. An overflow meeting was held in a neighbouring Presbyterian church. It may well be hoped that the stimulus imparted to the many workers who attended the Convention will issue in a fuller consecration and a revival of spiritual life throughout the island.

SOUL-WINNING AND PRAYER UNION.—Text for October 10 (Rom. vi. 14): "Sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace."

Glasgow Convention.

For the eighth time the Christians of Glasgow have been invited to meet in annual conference upon "The Deep Things of God" in relation to spiritual life and walk. Almost the whole of last week was devoted to the Convention; it was held in St. Andrew's Hall, and attended by large audiences, which listened intently to the exhortations addressed to them. The subjects appointed were of a progressive character, and were considered in the following order: "God Searching the Heart," "What Wilt Thou?" "Believest Thou that I am able to do this?" "According to Your Faith," "Dead to Sin," "Risen with Christ," "Sacrifice," "Service," "Rest in God." These were dealt with by Revs. Dr. A. Bonar, T. L. Butlin, Dr. Elder Cumming, J. Gelson Gregson, G. C. Grubb, W. Haslam, Evan Hopkins, John Riddell, Pastor Stockmayer, J. Hudson Taylor, F. S. Webster, and A. Rambaut, Mr. J. Anderson, Col. Oldham, and Mr. Robert Wilson. Indeed, as compared with similar gatherings, was the unusual array of speakers, and of ministers present; this seems to increase year by year, betokening the influence which the Keswick Convention is exerting on ministers and laymen alike.

ONE OF THE FEATURES OF THIS CONVENTION,

Owing to the size of the hall, there was not, perhaps, the same degree of "warmth" as characterised the meetings when the Convention was, as formerly, held in the Queen's Rooms, the audiences being more scattered. But the demand for increased accommodation necessitated the change. The forenoon and afternoon meetings were largely attended by visitors from districts round Glasgow, while, speaking generally, the city residents were more often present in the early morning, and at night.

At the early meeting, Pastor Stockmayer, who conducted it daily in the Lesser Hall, usually had some six or seven hundred listeners, many of whom, owing to business and other calls, could not come during the day. The Pastor sought to lead his audience into the law of liberty that may be found in Christ; and for the beginning, middle, and end of the Christian life he found the whole fulness in Christ. What to many is only a theological expression has passed through the whole spiritual life of the Pastor, and his insistance upon the great power of the cleansing blood of Christ came from him with peculiar freshness, and with a depth of spiritual meaning too seldom realised. It was felt by many that there was a power in these meetings not exceeded by any held in the larger hall. At the first of them, Pastor Stockmayer had especially prayed for those who, by reason of temporal duties, were unable to attend the Convention; and urged upon those who were present the responsibility attending their higher privilege in this respect. More than once the same thought presented itself; as, on one occasion, when Rev. W. Hutchinson prayed, "Lord, let us not be content with keeping the truth to ourselves, but let us go forth with it, so that those outside may share in the blessing which Thou givest unto us." How far extending would be the influence of such meetings if all who are partakers of this grace would thus act toward them that are without.

The Convention was opened by a devotional meeting in the Lesser Hall, on Monday evening, when Mr. William Sloan took the chair, and an address was given by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. Many earnest prayers were offered, and the devout seeking of God by so many here and at the morning prayer-meetings could not fail to have a great effect upon the subsequent gatherings.

The ministry of the word, by Mr. Hudson Taylor, was greatly enjoyed. His simple manner, his earnest spirit, and his faith in God, led many to see how far short their own lives came of the fulness Christ is willing to bestow. On Tuesday Mr. Taylor spoke from 1 Kings x., urging that, as the reality of Solomon's glory far exceeded its fame, so all who would accept of Christ fully might realise in their own experience that He would be to them more than tongue can tell. One of the most terse remarks made during the Convention fell from Mr. Taylor's lips in an address, the same evening: "Unless Christ is Lord of all, He is not Lord at all." This may well be taken as of the week. A very welcome presence, too, was that of the venerable Dr. A. Bonar. Beloved as he is by all who have the privilege of knowing him, and revered by those who have not, his words of truth and soberness were received with the greatest attention; and, as he spoke with all the warmth of his heart of the love of his Divine Master, who present did not feel that "we must love Him too"? He told how, eleven years ago, the hymn (which had just been sung),

THE GERM OF THE WHOLE TEACHING

> I hear the words of love,
> I gaze upon the blood;
> I see the mighty Sacrifice,
> And I have peace with God,

had brought perfect peace to his soul, which he had never since lost. It is good, said he, to know what the Lord has done by means of the hymns that we sing. Dr. Bonar then spoke upon "God searching the Heart." In a cursory exposition of Isa. lviii. he showed that while we may (as in ver. 2) seek God daily, and even take delight in approaching unto Him—and these may be taken as characteristics of true worshippers—yet hindrances may intervene (ver. 3) to prevent our enjoying the blessings (set forth in ver. 8—12) which true worshippers may expect. Some of these hindrances are enumerated (in ver. 4—7), which will embrace such shortcomings as strife, gloom, neglect of duty, a selfishness toward man, a selfishness toward God, and (ver. 13) a mere selfish enjoyment, if not actual violation, of the Sabbath. God, searching the heart, will discover these failings, and they must be laid aside before the blessings can be enjoyed. With great earnestness Dr. Bonar pressed home, as one cause of failure, the neglect of many to "build the old waste places," and to "restore the breaches" which sin has made in the ranks of their fellow-men. Some may say that this chapter, with its admonitions and promises, belongs only to Old Testament saints. But, said Dr. Bonar, if they could claim the promises, the children of this dispensation, with their enhanced and multiplied privileges, can claim them a hundredfold more. Are we living up to them? Are we overtaking these saints of old? Or are we contenting ourselves with a spiritual experience of a lower type than theirs? George Whitefield, once preaching in Glasgow, said, "One sin in us may intercept the whole blessing." As an illustration, he placed his hand before his face, with the words, "This hand of mine can shut out from my eyes the light of yon glorious sun!" So with us; but, when the searching eye of God detects it, are we willing that it should go? Upon our will the whole result depends.

The unavoidable absence of Revs. F. B. Meyer and H. W. Webb-Peploe caused considerable disappointment; but their places were taken by Revs. G. C. Grubb and F. S. Webster. Fortunately it gave opportunity for Mr. Grubb's voice to be heard again, before his departure for India. He hopes shortly to set out, in company with other brethren, trusting to stir up English Christians there to a closer walk with God, that they may, in the power of the Spirit, declare the message of salvation to the heathen around. The words of both these speakers were weighty and wise, and characterised by which could not fail, under the Spirit, to carry conviction, and to emphasise the fact that the higher life (as Mr. Gregson once put it) "is not some lofty sentimental pinnacle on which we stand," but a life which is life indeed.

A RING OF REALITY

Mr. Webster gave one address upon 2 Chron. xvi. 9 (first part), drawing illustratior from the dealings of God with Abraham. This will form an interesting and inspiring study for those who will work it out for themselves. Mr. Webster asked two pointed questions: "Can God trust you? Can you trust God?" In Gen. xvi. the Lord appears to Abram as his "shield and exceeding great reward"; therefore he was to "fear not." In Gen. xvii. the Lord declares Himself to be the "Almighty God"; therefore Abram (or Abraham, for it was then that his name was changed) was to "walk before" Him, and "be perfect." But he did not fully trust Him, and during the years that followed, before the promise was fulfilled, he tried to secure the blessing in his own way, and failed. Summing up, Mr. Webster gave four rules—Keep in the will of God; Rest on the power of God; Lie at the feet of God; Look up into the face of God, and reflect his brightness. On another occasion Mr. Webster very concisely defined two classes of persons who receive no blessing at conventions. First, the self-satisfied, who have taken up a position on some pinnacle from which they view their neighbours; who are well informed as to the theory of the teaching, and can even detect the shades of belief which characterise each speaker. Second, the sin-satisfied, who know that all is not right with them, but are content to remain so. This was by way of introduction to a suggestive address upon Matt. x. 28—30, in which Mr. Webster pointed out three stages of Christian experience: (1) An attitude towards Jesus, in obeying his invitation, "Come unto Me." (2) Submission to Jesus, in taking his yoke. (3) A study of Jesus, in learning of Him. These constitute the rest of a satisfied heart.

Rev. G. C. Grubb drew some very practical lessons from 1 Chron. iv. 9, 10. All may well echo this prayer of Jabez to be "blessed indeed," i.e., to have a real blessing—one which is not, like wealth or position, liable to fade away. Mr. Grubb showed three phases of this "blessing indeed": (1) The forgiveness of sins (Ps. xxxii. 1); (2) A pure heart (Matt. v. 8); (3) The study of the Word of God (Rev. i. 3). But Jabez specialises his desires: (1) That his coast be enlarged. God gives wide scope for the exercise of spiritual life, see 2 Peter i. 5—7, and "he that lacketh these things is blind," or shortsighted (ver. 9); his horizon is bounded by circumstances; his sight is marred by which dims the glory of God, so that he "cannot see afar off." (2) That God's hand be with him, cf. Ezra viii. 22, 31, where the hand of the Lord, first guides, then delivers. (3) That evil might not grieve him. The name of Jabez means "sorrowful," and his prayer might be rendered, "Keep me from evil that it may not make me a Jabez"; in other words, "Thou who canst change a Jacob into an Israel canst change my nature from sorrow to joy, and let the Jabez-nature pass away."

A SPIRITUAL CATARACT

And, best of all, "God granted him that which he requested."

Rev. William Haslam was very happy in an exposition of Mark iv. 35—41. Christ invites his people to "pass over unto the other side," to cross the ripples of worry and the waves of strife to the glory-shore beyond; sharing, meantime, the blessing of his presence. The disciples "took Him even as He was," but truer it was that He took them. How helpless would they have been without Him! Like the "other little ships" that were trying to get across without Him. A man went from church to church in a southern town; in some he heard about "her" (the Church); in another, about "it" (doctrine); but his soul was rejoiced in another to hear about "Him." Whatever occupied the disciples' minds, it was not "Him"; and so, according to their faith, He was to them—asleep. But when they wanted

Him, He was awake to help. "Carest Thou not that we perish?" they ask. As if men cared more about their salvation than the Lord does! Then there was the calm, as soon as they acknowledged Him as Lord. In ver. 40, He asks them two questions, showing that their fear was due to lack of faith. How could He let them "perish," after inviting them to "pass over,"

NOT TO DROWN IN THE MIDDLE of the lake, but "to the other side." God does not send troubles and difficulties to swamp our bark, but to strengthen our faith, and to afford opportunity for the exhibition of his love. Following up his theme on this wise, Mr. Haslam emphasised the need of embarking with the Lord on the waters of life, and of constant faith in Him.

Perhaps the most rousing exhortations of the Convention fell from the lips of Rev. J. Gelson Gregson, whose bold, manly utterances were clothed with power. He has a vigorous way of saying what he means, and does not fail to make his meaning plain. After describing people with bad tempers as "striking a light on their own box," or as "gunpowder exploding at the slightest provocation," he pictured the meekness and lowliness which should adorn the character of every child of God. He had no mercy upon those who set up human judgment against the wisdom of God; those who propose Agnosticism as an antidote for the old Gospel

"WITH ITS FOSSIL REMAINS

as found in the Pentateuch"; and others who are "very careful of the corns of sinners, but do not mind how much they trample upon the spriritual susceptibilities of the saints." Speaking to the subject of Mark x. 51, he urged the need of sight. Comparing the life of a Christian before and after receiving the fulness of blessing, he exclaimed, "What a difference between groping after God, and seeing Him; between tapping the road with a stick and seeing how to walk; between feeling the guiding hand and beholding it! Light is a necessity. We do not want the microscope of criticism, nor the telescope of human common sense; these are of no use to blind eyes. We must have a spiritual eye for spiritual things; the channel of communication between the soul and God is not conscience, nor common sense, nor the maxims of the world, but the Spirit of God. Ask, then, for this, and it will be given, and with that sight you will find Christ to be "all in all." Mr. Gregson also gave a stirring address upon "Sacrifice and Service." The first sphere of service is in one's immediate surroundings. It is no use for a man to think he is called to go to India or China, if he has been neglecting his "Jerusalem," his home circle, in the meantime. Let him manifest in his home life what the grace of God has wrought in him. Let him because his porridge is burnt, or his meat overdone. These matters may seem trivial, and yet it is by our behaviour in trifling things that our Christianity is judged by those around us. Then, again, let us not talk of "sacrifice" when we do service for our Lord. Service should be the spontaneous expression of our love for Christ, and this is no sacrifice. Is a father pleased when his child comes to him and says, "Father, I love you, but it's a very great sacrifice for me to do so"? We should say with Paul, "The love of Christ constraineth us," and what shall separate us from that love? Shall the world, or society, or wealth? What have these done for us in the way of love? What love have they exhibited on our behalf? They are taskmasters; they crucified our Lord; and shall we let them separate us from Him? Rather let us seek "to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that we may be filled with all the fulness of God." Lack of space prevents our giving even an outline of many equally helpful addresses delivered by the other speakers present. Some of them will appear in The Life of Faith for November.

NO MORE LOSE HIS TEMPER

The largest meeting was that held on Friday evening, when the great hall was thronged; and after the various speakers had said their last word, an impressive sight was presented as a large number rose in their places as dedicating their lives to the Lord.

Next morning (Saturday) the customary testimony meeting was held at seven o'clock, and many bore witness as to how God had blessed them. At eleven o'clock there was the missionary meeting, presided over by Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, which drew an audience crowding the lesser hall to excess. News of work in various parts was given by Rev. J. Hudson Taylor (China), Rev. John Wilkinson (Mildmay), Mrs. Stott (China), Rev. N. Bose (India), Mr. A. S. Lamb (North Africa), and other tried workers in the great foreign field. There were also present several missionaries going out for the first time, and for them, and for the work at large, many prayers were offered. Although the meeting lasted two hours and a quarter, it was so full of interest from beginning to end that very few left until the closing Doxology of praise had been sung.

Salisbury Conference.

This is one of the smaller conferences, which are often more enjoyable than larger ones.

With preliminary meetings on Sunday and Monday, and a praise and thanksgiving meeting at the close, supplemented by evangelistic and children's services, the Conference occupied six days of last week. The subjects for the three mornings of the Conference proper were: (a) the calling of the saints; (b) the patience of the saints; (c) the inheritance of the saints; and of the evenings: (a) the believer in Christ—safety; (b) Christ in the believer—power; (c) the believer with Christ—glory. Several able and valuable addresses were given, notably those of Revs. J. B. Figgis, N. S. Taylor, and G. Wainwright. We regret that our limited space does not admit of our even summarising these, though much that was said was well worth preservation. But the interest of these gatherings at Salisbury lies as much in the brief and informal talks at the dinner and tea tables, as in the more important meetings.

Amongst others, Miss V. M. Skinner, of Bath, gave a most interesting account of the unique form of service which has fallen to her lot, in writing "Friendly Letters" to all sorts and classes of men and women, some few of the results of which have come to her knowledge, and are evidence of much wider blessing than will ever be known until the shadows have fled away. Mr. Elphinstone spoke of the Christian Vernacular Society of India. Mr. Henry Cook told a thrilling story of his two mission ships in French waters, crowded with eager listeners, and pelted with stones by opposing forces.

Mr. H. D. Brown gave a very racy talk about the Christian Colportage Association, noting the fact that, while the Englishman's house is his castle, the knocker belongs to the public, and his colporteurs make persevering use of it.

Mr. Daniel Matthews and Paddy Swift moved their hearers with accounts of the power of God among the aborigines of Australia. In a remarkable time of revival, a hundred people were in a fortnight brought to the feet of the Saviour.

The afternoon meetings were given to more extended descriptions of work. At these Miss Etcher, of Bristol, spoke of the factory girls in that city, and her deplorable pictures, brightened by cheering glimpses of good wrought by the Gospel, would doubtless apply to the same class everywhere.

Mr. David Baron led us through many countries of Europe to North Africa, where he had journeyed and laboured among his Jewish compatriots, and showed how the Spirit of God is moving among them toward their predicted national conversion.

Our venerable friend and brother, George Holland, spoke as might be expected from the patriarch of Whitechapel, the John Howard of George-yard. Rev. R. G. Walker gave some startling details of a visit to Germany. We shall, in later numbers, give our notes of some of these testimonies.

The hour after tea was devoted to personal testimonies and experiences, which were instructive and helpful.

At the praise-meeting on Friday morning, Rev. E. N. Thwaites urged those who had received blessing during the Conference to respond to the love of the Great Giver by yielding their lives unreservedly for his service (Rom. xii. 1). After a hymn of praise the meeting was thrown open for testimony, and one after another rose in all parts of the hall to testify to the help that God had given them through this Conference. Many gave a Scripture verse of praise, and others spoke of blessing received at past Conferences. One well-known worker rose to say that God had called him, when here two years ago, to yield himself for definite service abroad, and that he had since been enabled to travel 15,000 miles, preaching the Gospel 500 times, and had seen many souls brought to the Lord.

Miss Havergal's hymn, "Take my life"—sung out of full hearts—fittingly closed the meeting, and many workers from all parts of the Lord's vineyard separated with renewed strength for service, feeling that it had been good for them to be there.

Obituary.

MRS. A. A. REES, SUNDERLAND.

This lady, widow of Rev. A. A. Rees, peacefully entered into rest on September 25. A day or two before her departure, she said to the doctor, "All is well," and to her daughter, Mrs. Rees-Williams, "The Lord is with me; indeed He is." At another time she said, "I am waiting," and then, pointing to a text on the wall, she directed that it should be put on her tombstone. The text—her assured expectation—was, "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness."

REV. E. MACLEAN, NEWPORT.

By the sudden death of Rev. E. Maclean, of Newport (Mon.), the Baptist denomination has lost one of its leading pastors. Mr. Maclean was educated at Glasgow University. He was for some years in charge of a church at Greenock, and left there to accept an invitation to the pastorate of the important church at Stockwell, London, in succession to Rev. Arthur Mursell, who had then removed to Birmingham, and who has since returned. Mr. Maclean, after occupying that charge for some years, left for Newport, where he ministered to the largest Baptist church in Monmouthshire, and was greatly esteemed. He was a member of the Council of the Baptist Union.

DR. B. PROTHEROE SMITH.

On Sunday morning last, September 29, there passed away at his house in Park-street, Grosvenor-square, Dr. Protheroe Smith, nearly eighty years of age, the well known specialist in diseases of women, the founder of the first hospital for the diseases of women (Soho-square), and one who for very many years had proved that the exercise of his profession was not incompatible with an earnest Christian life. Many have cause to thank God for his having been the means of leading them to the Saviour. Not only in the hospital, where he often held services in the wards, but privately to many of his patients he testified of God's saving power, and he often had to endure the stigma of those who do not shrink from declaring the Gospel of Christ in the midst of their daily life. About the time of the Jubilee (1887) his health began to fail, and he retired from active practice. Though he spent most of the time since then out of London, he never rallied; for the past week he was so enfeebled that he was unable to hold converse with his family, and finally sank to rest quietly early on Sunday morning. He leaves a son and three daughters. His son, Dr. Heywood Smith, is well known in London as an able and devoted Christian physician.

WESLEYAN EAST-END MISSION.

The Mission which Rev. Peter Thompson directs in East London is going forward grandly. There are now five large centres, with an extensive and varied agency, and spiritual and social work of unprecedented interest is at present in progress. On Thursday, last week, St. George's Chapel, Cable-street, was re-opened after having undergone thorough renovation. However dingy the building may have been in days gone by, it is now bright, warm, and beautiful. The re-opening proceedings were attended by a large number of friends, all of whom rejoiced at what they saw and heard of the operations of the Mission. At noon there was a devotional meeting, later on a public luncheon at the "Old Mahogany Bar"; divine service in the afternoon was followed by a meeting of the Boys' Brigade and a children's demonstration. Vast though the work before the Mission may be, one thing is certain, and that is that not only have large numbers of the women been effectually reached, but many hundreds of the children. The workers take courage from the fact that the juveniles are being brought under the influence of the Gospel.

At a large public meeting in the evening it was plainly shown that the men are also being got at as never before. This involves a delightful story of conquest. Love has won them—love shown in the name of Christ. The recent strike afforded the opportunity, and Mr. John Jameson, Mr. Thompson's admirable co-adjutor, boldly embraced it, and God's blessing is now crowning his act. As is well known, when the dock labourers were holding out for an advance of wages, their wives and children were nigh unto starving. These were kindly cared for in large numbers by the Mission, and the men of three of the docks were given daily meals, and in other ways made welcome and happy at "Paddy's Goose." The strike is over, but the true kindness that was then shown to the men is not forgotten. As the re-opening of the chapel was also the anniversary of the Mission, the dockers met at "Paddy's Goose" after their day's work, and gave expression to their heartfelt gratitude. They afterwards marched in their hundreds to the chapel, and appeared greatly interested in what they heard.

After an address by Rev. Walford Green, full of sympathy with the work, Mr. Thompson spoke briefly of the blessed history of the Mission. He assured the riverside labourers that all the chapels were intended for them as well as other people resident in the neighbourhood. He told them that the Mission workers did not consider their best too good for the dockers and coalies, nor did they hesitate to announce their desire ever to exert themselves to the utmost for the highest good of anyone whom they might influence. Brief addresses were then delivered by representing two thousand men engaged in three docks. They thanked the Mission workers right heartily for their kindness, or, as one of them expressed it, for "their sympathy with us in our sufferings"; and the dockers present enthusiastically cheered their assent.

TWO DOCK LABOURERS,

From this stage the meeting had the dock labourers and their highest interests for its one great theme. Mr. Jameson delivered a powerful address, at the outset of which he said that he never had greater pleasure than when helping the dockers during the recent strike. He pointed out that since work began there has been less friction in Nos. 10, 11, and Eastern Dock, represented by the men present, than in the others; and he attributed this in a great measure to contact with the Mission workers during the strike. Proceeding, Mr. Jameson referred to the delight he had experienced in conversations with John Burns and Ben Tillett, the strike leaders. Visiting the house of the latter, he was pleased to find on one side of the mantelpiece an illuminated card bearing the words, "The Lord is my helper," and on the other side the text, "I will trust and not be afraid." The man who placed such words in the most prominent part of his home could not be a bad man, and so Mr. Jameson was not surprised to learn that Mr. Tillett was member of a church, the pastor of which was one of his own personal friends. Mr. Tillett has been a Good Templar for eighteen years, and Mr. Burns is also a pledged teetotaler of long standing. Having enlarged upon the way in which the hand of the oppressor and sweater is to-day being lifted by force of Christian influence, Mr. Jameson urged the men to strike without delay against intoxicating drink, which holds so many thousands in bondage, and causes so much suffering. In conclusion, he called upon them to conquer themselves by surrendering to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, in a vigorous address, showed that human freedom is the outcome of Christianity; and to-day, where the blessed influence of Christ is not felt, there is slavery. Drink and gambling were earnestly denounced, and the dockers listened with close attention to appeals to enter into the liberty wherewith Christ makes free. Altogether the day's meetings were very encouraging.

Mr. Thompson is anxious at once to fit up the upper hall at "Paddy's Goose" as a reference and lending library, and to secure a good supply of suitable books. The cost of the Mission for the present year will be increased, because of greater area of work and additional workers. "During the past four years," Mr. Thompson says in a circular letter, "friends have contributed generously towards the necessary outlay on the chapels and halls, and we believe they will, with even greater joy, aid us now in the spiritual and social work among these multitudes of poor who look to us for blessing."

A PORTSMOUTH MISSION.

Portsmouth has long been celebrated for its philanthropic efforts, but little has been publicly said of the efforts among the civilian population of the town by Mr. W. H. Fuller.

Although young, Mr. Fuller has interested himself in local affairs in such a manner that he has secured the affection and esteem of the working classes. Every Sunday dense crowds of working people pass his door on their way to the country, where they spend their rest-day in tea-gardens, and such like places. At one time we counted six tramcars quite full standing before Mr. Fuller's door. Mr. Fuller's father erected a spacious hall upon his own property; the main entrance is in a street at right angles with the main thoroughfare. This building is capable of seating 1100 persons. Besides the hall a spacious conservatory about thirty feet square is devoted to the purposes of the Mission. The then Mayor of Portsmouth opened the hall in November, 1886, and upon the following Sunday, November 6, 1886, services for the people were commenced. They have been continued without interruption ever since, and with such success, that from the day of their commencement until August 4 of this year 229,000 persons have attended. These persons are chiefly of the class which is outside of ordinary Christian efforts.

The services, which are called "Pleasant Sundays for the People," are held upon Sunday afternoons and evenings. There are hymns and solos, and a twenty minutes' address. In the evening a Gospel service is held from seven to eight o'clock, which is attended by a slightly poorer class. During the winter from a quarter past eight to nine another meeting is held, which is called an "At Home." The solitary difference is that the address at the "At Home" is of a temperance character. After a careful inquiry into the methods adopted at Fuller's Hall and their consequences, we are deeply convinced that Mr. Fuller has conferred a great boon upon Portsmouth. Would that in every town a similar work were attempted: it would undoubtedly meet with the like success.

J. J. E.

Pilgrim Songs.

Alpine Fancies.

THE EDELWEISS (Col. iii. 1).

Far up on high, above the smiling valley,
Travellers must toil to win this Alpine flower;
Lodged on the rocks, like a white star it opens,
Though never fed by rivulet or shower.

Near the cold snow, above the yawning chasm,
With nought but scanty moss and grass around,
There, where the surest foot alone may venture,
There, only there, the Edelweiss is found.

White starry flower, safe in its rocky shelter
Above all sounds of human toil and strife;
Is it mere wayward fancy to compare it
To the white beauty of a stainless life?

Few, few behold them, fewer still obtain them;
They are not flowers that bloom in every sod.
Only upon the mountain top they open,
Where souls grow white while communing with God.

Only above life's many Babel voices,
Far from the clamour of earth's wrangling mart,
Where God's own heaven and silver stars in silence
Impress their sacred likeness on the heart.

The Engadine. A. M. Charlesworth.

Farewell to Scotland.

My own bonnie land of the mist-wreath and heather,
Of moorland, and mountain, crag, torrent, and fell,
I shrink from the thought that ere long I must bid thee,
With all thy loved beauty, a tender farewell.

O land of my sires! I shall never forget thee;
My heart will be faithful wherever I roam;
Though now to the south I must soon be departing,
I oft shall remember with rapture my home.

Thy hills, as I write, are a deep, dreamy purple,
The sun has gone down in the fair golden west,
The bagpipes are playing their weird Highland music,
The cattle are lowing their tribute to Rest.

Soft clouds the proud head of yon "Ben" are enfolding,
The blue smoke is curling from shielings afar;
Away in the distance, serene, pure, and holy,
There gleameth the light of God's evening star.

God's evening star! O Father, "our" Father,
I thank Thee for Scotland, high, noble, and grand;
May each of her sons and her daughters be ready
To go at thy call to a still better Land.*

Perthshire, September, 1889. Charlotte Murray.

* Heb. xi. 16.

METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE BIBLE FLOWER MISSION.—Devoted workers visit hospitals and other public institutions, and distribute flowers, to which Scripture texts are attached. We are requested to state that just now the work is hindered somewhat for want of more flowers. Hampers should be sent, carriage paid, in time to arrive in London for delivery by ten o'clock on Wednesday morning, addressed: "The Secretary, Bible Flower Mission, Metropolitan Tabernacle, Newington Butts, London."

HANGCHOW MEDICAL MISSION.—Dr. D. Duncan Main, of the Church Missionary Society, continues to see cheering fruit of his earnest endeavours. The report for the year 1888, recently issued, shows that there were 551 in-patients and 8584 out-patients, the latter paying 24,410 visits to the dispensary. During the year 103 opium smokers were admitted, and 549 victims to the baneful habit treated as out-patients. The method of treatment involves immediate and total abstinence from the use of the drug. The patient suffers more or less for a few days, but about the eighth or ninth day the desire for opium has gone, and with a fortnight of tonic treatment, the patients are comparatively well. "Given grace and backbone they can be cured, but it is much easier to cure an opium smoker than to prevent him returning to the pipe." The Gospel is preached daily in the wards and to the out-patients, and there are meetings for inquirers. Moreover, evangelists carry on visitation with much acceptance. Mrs. Florence Nightingale Main, in some "Hospital Notes," tells of loving efforts among Chinese women. A new dispensary for out-patient work is an urgent need of the Mission.

The Late Earl of Shaftesbury.

WHEN "the good Earl" was taken to his rest, just four years ago, we gave a ortrait of him, with some account of his usy and singularly beneficent career. That ortrait, though one of the best available to s at the time, by no means did justice to he strongly marked and thoughtfully ex- ressive features of the deceased nobleman. n now publishing, in book form, a selection f the portraits and sketches that have ppeared in our pages, we have thought it ncumbent on us to secure a new presenta- ion of the face of Lord Shaftesbury: one hat should be worthy a permanent and eading place in our roll- all of Christian worthies. 'his volume, entitled, 'HE CHRISTIAN PORTRAIT ALLERY (the contents of hich are set forth in our dvertising columns), is lmost ready for issue, nd the portrait we give n this page constitutes frontispiece to the ork.

Since we began to give, eek by week, these por- aits of leading Chris- an workers, our readers different parts of the orld have expressed atification at thus re- eiving a personal intro- uction, through the en- raver's art, to so many ho have earned for emselves a good degree the college of practi- l, workaday Christi- nity. The weekly news- aper, however, is in ese times a very ephe- eral species of litera- re, and we are sure at many will be glad to ossess, in a compact and andy form, a selection the portraits and the companying literary etches.

The present volume, of urse, contains only a lection from those we ve published week by eek; to give them all one issue would not ve been feasible. The an adopted in compil- g the book has been to ake the list as repre- ntative and varied as possible. As this urnal is one that records the doings and yings of men and women connected with the communities professing the Reformed angelical faith, without regard to ecclesias- al distinctions or church affinities, so we rive to make our weekly portrait-gallery reflex of this principle. In compiling the lume we have sought to pursue the same urse, and trust we have succeeded. More an half of the hundred or so, whose features e pourtrayed in the pages of the volume, e "ordained" ministers of the Gospel, or ssionaries; but the ranks of laymen emi- nt in various departments of the world's work are well represented; while of noble and honourable Christian women there are a few. In the great Christian family there is a wonderful diversity of gifts and graces as well as of social standing, but in Christ Jesus all are one; and all who faithfully occupy the corner allotted to them by the Lord of the vineyard are deserving of equal honour. It is not, indeed, with the view of exalting the workers that we record their doings, but that the disciples of Christ everywhere may see how God works and is willing to work through all sorts of human instrumentality.

This volume should possess an additional interest because so many of those of whom it speaks have gone into the silent land. Since the sheets were in the press, two of the best known of them, Dr. Horatius Bonar and Dr. A. N. Somerville, have left this earthly scene, and gone to swell the ranks of the glorified.

(From Photograph by Mr. A. Bassano, Regent-street, W

INCIDENTS OF LORD SHAFTESBURY'S LIFE.

It will be fitting that we should give here a few facts respecting "the good Earl," without doubt the greatest philanthropist that this century has produced, and one whose name will for ever be embalmed in the hearts of true born Englishmen. These incidents, culled from Mr. Edwin Hodder's deeply interesting "Life" (Cassell & Co.), reveal something of his character as boy, man, and Christian statesman:—

"It was while he was at Harrow, and when he was between fourteen and fifteen years of age, that an incident occurred which, simple as it was in itself, influenced his whole after life. He was one day walking alone down Harrow Hill, when he was startled by hearing a great shouting and yelling in a side street, and the singing of a low Bacchanalian song. Presently the noisy party turned the corner of the street, and, to his horror, he saw that four or five drunken men were carrying a roughly made coffin containing the mortal remains of one of their fellows for burial. Staggering as they turned the corner, they let their burden fall, and then they broke out into foul and horrible language. It was a sickening spectacle. No solitary soul was there as a mourner. A fellow-creature was about to be consigned to the tomb with indignities to which not even a dog should be subjected. Young Ashley was horrified, and stood gazing on the scene spellbound. Then he exclaimed, 'Can this be permitted, simply because the man was poor and friendless?' Before the sound of the drunken songs had died away in the distance he had faced the future of his life, and had determined that, with the help of God, he would from that time forth devote his life to pleading the cause of the poor and friendless....

"He made it a matter of principle at the outset of his career — and he never wavered from it to the close of his life—not to take up any subject or advocate any cause until, as far as it lay in his power, he had acquainted himself with all the facts of the case; not at second-hand and from hearsay, but by close personal investigation. From the hour he consented to take the leadership of the movement in favour of the Ten Hours' Bill, he was at work night and day in prosecuting inquiries and in making himself master of all its details. This involved endless visits and conferences, innumerable letters, and an amount of toil which can scarcely be over-estimated. 'I made it an invariable rule,' he said, 'to see everything with my own eyes, to take nothing on trust or hearsay. In factories I examined the mills, the machinery, the homes, and saw the workers and their work in all its details. In collieries, I went down into the pits. In London, I went into lodging-houses and thieves' haunts, and every filthy place. It gave me a power I could not otherwise have had. I could speak of things from actual experience, and I used often to hear things from the poor sufferers themselves which were invaluable to me. I got to know their habits of thought and action, and their actual wants. I sat and had tea and talk with them hundreds of times.'" . . .

"Grand battles by the Indian mail, grand victories, and still grander injustice! Wrong and robbery on a splendid and successful scale are sure to be hushed up, if not applauded. I shrink with a combined feeling of terror and nausea from our national sins....Whither are we going? Oh, England! England! Magna luis commissa, yet there is no repentance, no shame, no self-abasement; in vain God's ancient people, by their history and by their prophets, exhibit the peril and point out the refuge. 'I have surely heard Ephraim bemoaning himself thus: Thou hast chastised me, and I was chastised, as a bullock unaccustomed to the yoke; turn Thou me, and I shall be turned, for Thou art the Lord my God'" (Diary, June, 1843). . .

"Dined yesterday with ——. The courtesies of life and ancient friendship demanded it. A splendid display of luxury and grandeur, yet unsatisfactory. The contrast so great to the places where I have passed so many hours lately, that I felt almost uneasy. The few pounds, too, that I want, and shall not obtain, for the establishment of Ragged Schools, seemed wasted in every dish. All this is very well according to their wealth and station now and then, but the crumbs which fall from their table are in scanty proportion to the number and abundance of their feasts. A greater simplicity even in permitted things would be more beneficial to the poor, to society, and to themselves. A life so led rivets the world in the heart, and all the externals of good humour, pious language, and occasional charities, &c., only contribute a hollow and delusive sanction to that system of things which the individuals and the world at large have predetermined to be right, because they know it is pleasant." . . .

"We are just at this time founding associations to teach the 'art of preaching.' Bishops and others are lecturing right and left upon Homiletics. Here come two simple unlettered men [Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey] from the other side of the Atlantic. They have had no theological training, and never read the Fathers. They refuse to belong to any denomination. They have no pretensions to the highest order of rhetoric. They seek neither to terrify nor to puff up; eschew controversy, and flatter no passions. Nevertheless, thousands of all degrees in station and mental culture bow before them."

In 1880 he wrote: "If my life should be prolonged for another year, and if during that year the Ragged School system were to fall, I should not die in the course of nature; I should die of a broken heart." He was spared for five more years, and lived to have the assurance that that system was not destined to fall. His last working days (says his biographer) were spent in labour and prayer for young children. Such a grand life will be an inspiration to all coming generations, and that inspiration will not be unneeded.

TAUNG, BRITISH BECHUANALAND, SOUTH AFRICA.—Rev. John Brown, of the London Missionary Society, hopes soon to experience a removal of the anxiety of years, by the erection of a church in which to carry on his very interesting work. The native Christians have thrown their hearts into the effort, which has also had the support of the Chief, who, although not professing to follow Christ, has encouraged his people to make bricks and quarry stones for the purposes of the much-required building. Mr. Brown says—"The foundation has been begun. I am very anxious to raise at once money enough to pay for the walls, doors, and windows. If I can do this, the work will, I think, be soon accomplished. Can any friends give us a helping hand? Help may be sent to the Mission House, Blomfield-street, London."

FAREWELL TO MR. ATKINSON.

A large number of friends met on Thursday evening, last week, to bid farewell to Mr. J. J. Atkinson, on his retiring from the secretariat of the Y.M.C.A., at the Priory, Upper-street, Islington, N. For some time Mr. Atkinson's health has been failing, and he therefore very regretfully tendered his resignation of the post which he has honourably filled for the past twenty-eight years.

Mr. George Williams, who presided over the gathering, passed a glowing eulogy upon Mr. Atkinson, saying that he had known him for a great number of years, and he had always used his gifts and talents to lead young men to the Saviour, in which service he has been largely blessed of God. Rev. W. H. Barlow, vicar of Islington, also testified to the high value of the work which Mr. Atkinson has been doing, saying he knew that while he was Principal of the Church Missionary College at Islington, many of the young men there received spiritual blessing through attending the Bible-classes and other meetings at The Priory.

Several other speakers, including Revs. A. J. Bridgman and W. H. King, Messrs. J. J. Drysdale, W. H. Mills, S. Pewtress, and M. H. Rackstraw, followed, all expressing their admiration of the retiring secretary's patient and zealous labour in the neighbourhood, which teems with young men, for the most part employed in the city; and their wishes for his future happiness in his declining days of quietness and rest. Mr. Atkinson feelingly responded, and, in the course of a brief address, mentioned that young men whom he had known as members of the Islington Association are now to be found in almost all parts of the world preaching the Gospel of Christ; there is scarcely one of the large London Missionary Societies but has a former member upon its staff of workers.

Dr. G. T. Keele, of 81, St. Paul's-road, Canonbury, N., remarked that only half the amount needed to complete the sum necessary for purchasing an annuity for Mr. Atkinson has been raised, and invited further contributions towards this object.

CHRISTIAN MAN, KEEP AT YOUR WORK. Gashmu will lie; Sanballat will hinder; Demas will forsake; Alexander the coppersmith will do what evil he can; and men whose craft is in danger will cry, "Great is Diana of Ephesus"; but do you keep steadily at your work. Build the walls of Jerusalem. Work the work of God. Preach the Gospel of the Kingdom, and when the devil and all his lies and liars are cast into the lake of fire, and the Master speaks in your ear the welcome word "Well done," you will have no more trouble with the devil's side issues, and will have no occasion to defend your character, prove your honesty, or demonstrate your orthodoxy.—Boston Christian.

MR. GEORGE MULLER'S TOURS.*

Mr. George Muller, of Bristol, has for fifteen years past made long preaching and missionary tours, in which he has visited forty-two countries. Some years ago Mrs. Müller published a sketch of the first nine tours. A second edition of the very interesting book brings the record well down to date.

Broadly speaking Mr. Müller's one purpose has been to preach the Gospel; but at the same time he has endeavoured to serve the Church of Christ in other ways. He has shown believers their high calling in Christ, urged them to a careful study of the Scriptures, and exhibited the communion of saints in its superiority to denominational separations. Moreover, he has advocated trust in God, holiness of life, and expectation of the return of the Lord from heaven. He has also stimulated Christian pastors and workers, and in every place seen cheering fruit of his labours—God's continual seal upon his movements.

Describing a tour in India five years ago, Mrs. Müller says:—"Though from our earliest days we had heard and read about missionaries and mission work, never, until we visited Benares, did we, to some extent, take in the awful condition in which the heathen of India, and of many other idolatrous lands, are living, and dying also. Millions upon millions of our fellow-creatures, plunged in the deepest darkness, are, from their birth to their death, a prey to the wildest delusions, and most devoutly believe the thousands of lies which the Devil palms off upon them. The various forms of Satanic religion which prevail in those countries, show how true it is that 'the whole world lieth in the evil one.'...Instead of remaining year after year at ease and in comfort at their own homes, ought not real Christians to rouse themselves? Should they not be willing to go abroad, to endure the trials and the hardships which are often connected with the labours of missionaries in distant countries?" Mr. Müller recently entered India for the second time, but through the great intensity of the heat, he had to seek northern latitudes, hoping, however, to return to Calcutta shortly, in order to preach the Gospel there and in other important centres.

Much of the preaching was by interpretation, by the help of brethren who could understand Mr. Müller in English or German. In China, workers in many cities were greatly cheered by his services. At Sydney, besides holding other meetings, he delivered nine lectures in succession in the Burton-street Tabernacle, on subjects connected with the second coming of the Lord. He also answered in public about sixty written questions, which had previously been sent to him, on a variety of subjects. He preached four times in Episcopal churches in Sydney, where the services were as simple and evangelical as possible, the ministers in charge being large-hearted Christian men.

Towards the end of the book, Mrs. Müller says: "My own work, during our travels, has consisted in giving away little Gospel books and tracts, as well as publications for believers, of which I have circulated many thousands altogether, and which I trust, with God's blessing, will be of great spiritual benefit to those persons into whose hands they have been directed. I have also written many thousands of letters for my husband in the course of the last fourteen years, in order that he might be saved the trouble of writing them himself. Although Mr. Müller has no property whatever of his own, no salary from the funds of the Scriptural Knowledge Institution for Home and Abroad, nor any stipend as a pastor, we have been able to spend thousands of pounds during the last fourteen years upon our long missionary journeys. For sixty years my husband has trusted in the Lord alone for all his temporal supplies, and God has honoured the faith which he still continues to exercise in Him, by graciously giving us the money needed for all our heavy travelling and hotel expenses."

Friends in all parts of the world do well to pray for and support this good work. The book is a grand record, and we trust it will be a blessing to many readers.

* The Preaching Tours and Missionary Labours of George Müller, of Bristol. By Mrs. Müller. 3s. 6d. James Nisbet & Co.

RESCUE WORK IN POPLAR.

e winter season comes fast, bringing with it es and anxieties to most people, but to me sure prospect of many a sad and painful e driven to my house, perhaps by stress of ther, poverty, or the long dark nights.
ny came last winter through the terror ch sunk into their hearts caused by the rders that sent such a thrill of horror ough the length and breadth of the land.
e more, unnerved by the feeling of inseity which the more recent tragedies have pired, the same kind of women find their to my door, and I am face to face with nest-looking, worn-out, poverty-stricken crea-es, whose presence says more plainly than ds, "Oh, take me in, and save me from truction." One of those who came in the ht after the discovery of the last murder sitting one morning last week, after prayer e, patiently searching for a hymn. I ched her some little time, and then said:
ell, have you found it." "Yes, ma'am."
What is it that you are so anxious to
?" "'Jesu, lover of my soul,'" was her
y. "I do love that hymn, and I like ere it says in the Bible about Lazarus and five virgins; but it is a long time since I rd any of them read."
Shall we sing the hymn to night, and shall ad about Lazarus?" said I.
I wish you would." Then she pleaded that might stay and get hold of something to her living by, so as not to have to go on the
ets. Only the previous night she had said:
have been out five years and am so sick of ll; last winter nearly killed me, for I knew zy Stride and Mary Jane Kelly well, poor
s, many and many a drink I had with them
; and I nearly finished myself, one way or ther."
touched me much that this poor wanderer uld be sitting there, after all her sad past, rching for the dear old hymn that so many
, and talking about Gospels learned in dhood, blessed lessons that were as bread on the waters years ago to return after ny days, while she began to think of the er of her soul. As the tears rose in my s I felt I should like some to know this who erstand Rescue Work, and who recognise
"cloud no bigger than a man's hand," ch is "the promise of abundance of ." The search for old hymns and texts ften a sign of coming change of heart, and listening ear and anxious eye tell that re is true work doing: not only the change n unprofitable ways to better ways, but a nge that makes it real rescue from the my of souls.
More than eleven years' quiet labour here taught me this is possible, and the dealing many hundreds of women and girls in that e has given me proof of changed hearts, and sequently changed lives, without which ue work would be an impossibility to conue at; but some cases are so full of hope and that they make up for all the disagreeables disappointments. I have had much kind pathy from friends in these past years, and ch practical help; but I need means for the ing winter's wants, and would ask your lers to help me as they have done before, the sake of Him who is our great example,
Divine Rescuer of mankind.

ANNA WILKES.

Manor Cottage, Kerbey-street, Poplar, E.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION of those aged in Christian work in the United States Canada is to meet October 24—30, in the First sbyterian Church of Buffalo. Mr. and Mrs. bbins are to have charge of the singing. Pro-ent lay and clerical workers, from all over the ntry, have arranged to be present.

CONFERENCE OF U.P. MINISTERS.

(BY A CORRESPONDENT.)

Two years ago sixty-seven ministers of the United Presbyterian Church met in Perth to humble themselves before God, and to seek for an increase of power for service. On that occasion there was, toward the close of the gatherings, an extraordinary manifestation of the Spirit of God. Since then the results of conferences have been so striking and blessed that a greater number have in each succeeding year identified themselves with this movement.

This year nearly two hundred ministers, coming from places so widely removed as Orkney and Stranraer, met at Bridge of Allan on Monday afternoon, September 23, and continued in conference and brotherly fellowship till the morning of Wednesday, September 25. Arrangements were made by which almost the whole Hydropathic Establishment was placed at their disposal, but many had to be boarded outside.

After dinner on Monday evening there was an hour for prayer between six and seven, and then two hours' conference, first on "Christ's Expectations as to our Usefulness," and afterwards on "Our Experiences of Shortcoming in Service." From the beginning there was a marked and growing interest—a deep hush pervading the gathering and a very solemn feeling falling at times on all. Rev. James Aitken (Edinburgh) brought his brethren into the presence of the Master as he opened up his great words about service. Then followed a burning word from Mr. Primrose (Broxburn) about shortcomings. He said they sprang from want (1) of a holy indignation of sin, (2) of earnest soul-conflict for our people, (3) of downright faithfulness with our people. Quite undesignedly the searching spirit of these words gave tone to the Conference. Speaker after speaker bore in upon the conscience of his brethren from various points of view with revealing power; the culmination in this direction being a singularly intense and beautiful address by Rev. George Hill Dick (Glasgow) on "Purged, Sanctified, Prepared."

But we have been anticipating. On Tuesday morning there was a prayer-meeting from 7.30 to 8.30. Then followed a most instructive and spirit-stirring season from ten till half-past twelve, during which were considered, first, "Christ's Recognition of our Powerlessness"; and, secondly, "Christ's Promises of Power." Mr. Dickson (Dundee), dwelling perhaps too exclusively on our self-created powerlessness, unsparingly exposed the sins and weaknesses which sap the power of ministers, and make them incapable of earnest aggressive work. Mr. Hunter (Stranraer) and others dwelt rather on the native powerlessness of man for all Christian service, which is not culpable, but which we must recognise as a fact, and which is indeed a source of comfort since it drives us entirely in upon Christ. It was most interesting to hear, following on Mr. McLean's (Kilcreggan) beautiful address, the heart-felt expressions of joy at realisation of some measure of power through faith in Christ. One brother told with touching openness of the three stages of his ministry: first of five years during which he was unconverted, then of conversion and of the glad consciousness of power, and now of the withdrawal of that power. No one who had the privilege of being present will ever forget the impressions of those hours.

We cannot speak at length of the afternoon and evening meetings—save to add that the subject of the former was "Soul-winning in the congregation and without," and of the latter, "Our Personal and Pastoral responsibilities." The close of the evening meeting recalled the wonderful ending of the first Perth gathering. By a sudden suggestion spontaneously arising, the whole assembly, led in prayer by the chairman, solemnly dedicate themselves anew to the service of God.

The morning prayer-meetings were presided over by the Moderator, Rev. Dr. Drummond, and Principal Cairns, and the meetings for conference by Rev. John Smith, Broughton-place, Edinburgh.

GOSPEL WORK IN SOUTH DEVON.

We have concluded our work here for the summer, and our hearts are filled with thanksgiving at the abundant help and blessing from the Lord Jesus Christ which has attended our efforts. It has been a "good season." There has been no depression in our trade. We can look back on no summer here fuller of the sunshine of heaven than that just past.

Many have come to help us, volunteers of sterling stuff, with hearts flowing over with the length and depth, as well as the breadth and height, of Christ's love; its man-ward and God-ward character. Among them may be mentioned Mr. T. B. Miller, of the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen, whose glowing words and cheery smile will not soon be forgotten; Captain Beachey, of Kingskerswell; General Grove, of Clifton; and Dr. Guinness, of London, also helped nobly. The children on the sands will always remember Miss Tracey, of Plymouth, who, coming here to rest, after her arduous toil among the fisher lads and butcher boys of Plymouth, did not do so, but laboured with us in the Gospel. Last, but not least, we mention our own indefatigable Rev. J. Cameron Wilson, vicar of Christ's Church, who has been to the fore, ready with a word in season on all occasions.

Our hall has been crowded out on Sunday evenings. The open-air meetings on the green have had rapt audiences. The Children's Special Service Mission on the sands has drawn more around than ever. Best of all, testimony has been borne to the blessing that all these services have been to many.

Our Gospel tent has also been in full swing at Stoke Gabriel and Broadhempstone. At the latter place a wave of revival has passed over the parish. Dr. Henry Soltau, late of Burmah, most providentially came to lodge for August in an adjoining village, and needed no great persuading to come to the help of the Lord two evenings each week. I drove out five times a week the eight intervening miles there and back. At our last meeting several stood up to witness a good confession of Christ before their neighbours and friends.

Leaving the work here in the hands of devout, God-fearing, and well-tried brethren, we seek to go into the regions beyond for a few weeks. We would ask the prayers of your readers for an eight days' mission at Brimscombe, near Stroud, Gloucestershire, from September 28 to October 7. After that, we hope to be in one or two places in the West of Ireland during October, and in November in Merrion Hall, Dublin.

J. CROFTON RAINEY.

Paignton, South Devon.

THE SHELTER, CWMDONKIN PARK, SWANSEA.—The second year's work of this much-needed benevolent institution, which ended in April last, was sealed with the blessing of God. Of the fifty-four young women dealt with during the year, thirty-five were fallen cases and nineteen preventive. Girls desirous of reformation are never denied admission, and after training they are drafted to other homes, or helped to suitable situations. Associated with the Shelter are evening classes for recreation and instruction. These have proved very successful, and have an attendance of about ninety. Garments for the use of the girls are kindly contributed by ladies; but, although the work has some good friends, the balance-sheet exhibits a balance of £11 17s. due to the treasurer. The hon. secretary is Mrs. Ebenezer Davies, Brunswick House, Swansea.

BAND OF HOPE UNION CONFERENCE.

The meetings in connection with the autumnal conference of the United Kingdom Band of Hope Union, held last week at Edinburgh, created much interest throughout Scotland. Among the speakers at an introductory meeting, on Saturday, September 21, was Mr. R. M. Ballantyne, who related how, while residing in the Canadian North-West, he was compelled to abstain from intoxicating drinks, and ever since then he has adhered on principle to the salutary practice. Sunday sermons bearing on the temperance question were preached in a large number of churches and chapels. In the afternoon, nearly six thousand children assembled in St. Giles' Cathedral, and were addressed by Revs. F. Storer Clark and Prebendary Grier. The latter rejoiced that the supporters of the Band of Hope Union are looking forward to a day when the Empire will be manned with a nobler and more Christian race than at present. If the children do not taste drink, they will not grow up to be like so many of their elders—drunkards, and a disgrace to the image of God.

A breakfast for secretaries and agents was held on Monday in St. Cuthbert's Temperance Hotel, Alderman White, of Birmingham, presiding. Afterwards, in the Museum of Science and Art, there was a grand reception of delegates and friends. Mr. George Tait, president of the Edinburgh Band of Hope Union, spoke some words of hearty welcome, and Councillor Macpherson, another local worker, dwelt upon the Band of Hope as a Christian agency. Mr. A. L. Brown, M.P., enlarged upon the hopefulness of work amongst the young. Christ took a little child and set him in the midst, in order that He might teach a great lesson. The Church, however, has done nothing for the young until lately, but it will certainly be shown that childhood is the time to lay a good foundation. Brief addresses were delivered by friends from far and near, all going to show that public opinion is undergoing a wholesome change in relation to the liquor traffic.

Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart entertained a large number of the delegates, on Tuesday, in the saloon of the Edinburgh Café, Princes-street. Among those who spoke was Mr. W. S. Caine, M.P., who remarked that while almost inclined to say that a seller of strong drink could not be a Christian, he asked, "What about the buyer?" He would not regard the responsibility of the buyer as one jot less than that of the seller. Mr. Caine also spoke at a garden party given by ex-Bailie Cranston, at Waverley Park, Abbeyhill. He said that on the ground which he used to cover as a commercial traveller—the north of Wales—there were 630 travellers, and he was the only teetotaler among them. But lately he found that out of the 630 there were now 330 teetotalers. Temperance hotels have proved a great blessing to that large section of the community, no one of whom was now bound to stick to the old absurd fashion of drinking "for the good of the house."

A demonstration, held in the United Presbyterian Synod Hall, on Wednesday, was largely attended. Mr. John Hunter, M.P., who occupied the chair, mentioned with joy the fact that young ministers are coming forward to take their proper place in the temperance reformation. Mr. Charles Wakely, secretary of the Union, stated that there are at present 1500 juvenile temperance societies and over 1,800,000 members who have signed the pledge of total abstinence. There are also nine or ten agents, giving their whole time to temperance teaching in the public schools. Vigorous addresses were delivered by Revs. J. Grant Mills and John Robertson, and Principal Cairns.

On Thursday Miss Wigham presided over a meeting of ladies, and Rev. Dr. J. H. Wilson over a conference of day and Sunday-school teachers. From first to last the proceedings were stimulating, and it is hoped that the delegates and agents will work the harder for the encouragement which the autumnal Conference afforded.

REVIVAL IN AINTAB, TURKEY.

A powerful work of grace has occurred this summer at Aintab, chiefly under the preaching of Rev. H. S. Jenanyan, of the Tarsus Mission. Particulars of this interesting work are given by Mrs. Jenanyan in a letter to her father, in New York. The first afternoon (says the writer) a mere handful—perhaps 150—were present. Mr. Jenanyan asked each one to come the next night, and bring at least one friend. Accordingly there were about 400 present the second night. The numbers increased rapidly. Special meetings for men, women, and children were arranged. The fifth day I went down and saw a wonderful sight. The church, large yard, the tops of the houses (flat roofs), the windows, and even the walls, were covered with women. They were seated so closely that I could not pass. There were hundreds of babies there: for the mother always takes baby when she goes out. The preacher for fifty minutes spoke to that great throng, telling them "the old, old story of Jesus and his love." The women as they went out were counted. Over 2000 were present, beside all the babies! Over half of this number were Gregorian Armenians, who had never before entered a Protestant church, or heard the Gospel preached.

There were services for men, where hundreds were present, among them some very wicked, bad men. At the Union services, where all could come, over 3000 attended. Think of the opportunity thus given for Gospel work! So for three weeks the blessed meetings continued daily. Inquiry meetings were held at the close of the services; but such crowds remained that it was necessary to talk to them again from the pulpit. One morning all the women who had been converted, and those who desired to find their Saviour, were invited to come to the second church for a special service. Six hundred were present. Mr. Jenanyan spoke from the text "This day has salvation come to this house." Then he asked any who decided "just now" to be Christians, to rise. Thirty at once stood. Afterward many more told the Christian workers that they had decided to become Christians, but were not quite ready to come out before the people and say so. The missionaries, the native pastors, and working Christians, have all taken hold, and helped in every way.

Aintab is considered a very hard field, and a very wicked city. Many of the worst characters in the city, some of them leaders, have been converted. One of the good pastors, who has been here thirteen years, often says: "It is wonderful, wonderful, to think this great blessing should come to Aintab!" Groups and single persons come daily to talk about their souls. Thus far nearly 200 have presented themselves for examination and admission to the church. Many say they "do love Christ," but are not quite ready to come out, "while there are many secret followers."

TENT WORK AT SOUTHSEA.—Mr. John Denning, of the Southsea Mission, Portsmouth, writes:—"We have had fourteen weeks of happy tent meetings on Southsea Common during this, the ninth, year of our Mission. Though the meetings on week evenings were not largely attended, the audiences on the Lord's Day were generally very large. We had the joy of seeing blessing both to believers and those unsaved, the Lord's presence being realised at all the meetings. Returned to our mission-halls, we now address ourselves to winter work, house-to-house visitation, tract distribution, &c. The Gosport branch of the Mission is also the centre of much effort."

MISSION WORK IN BERLIN.

Mr. F. Franson, who has engaged in Christian work for many years in many lands, writes to us with regard to the needs of Berlin. He says:—"This city has a million and a half of inhabitants, and only sixty churches and chapels. With another missionary, Mr. E. Olsen, from Upsala, Sweden, I have commenced a work of evangelisation. We have rented two small halls, and, as a result of effort during last spring, a little mission society has been organised. The only condition of membership is a being 'born from above,' and all God's children are welcome, no matter what their views may be on points as to which differences are common. The society has only three aims—to promote the unity of the children of God, to provide for Christian fellowship, especially for the care of young converts, and to undertake work for the unconverted. We wish, in fact, to start a work here similar to that in the National Church of Sweden, which in a very short time has grown from small beginnings to large proportions. A prominent pastor in Berlin has told us that he would not object to such a society being formed in his neighbourhood."

The society thus organised has received help and promises of support from Norway and Sweden, and expects the active sympathy of German friends, as well as prayerful co-operation from Great Britain. Personal help from intending residents is earnestly hoped for. Further information as to the Mission may be had from Mr. A. W. Day, 38, Hova-villas, West Brighton.

MR. SENIOR'S WELCOME HOME.

After his three months' visit to the United States and Canada, Rev. B. Senior, of Surrey Chapel, returned home, restored in health, in time for the first anniversary of his new church in Blackfriars-road. At this festive meeting on Wednesday evening, last week, Mr. Senior gave an excellent account of his trip. Judging from his description, he had the proverbial "good time." He was loud in his praise of the people he had met, and the places he had seen, and almost exhausted the vocabulary of complimentary adjectives. He visited New York, Boston, Chicago, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Thousand Islands, Montreal, Philadelphia, Washington, Ocean Grove, and other well-known centres of interest, including Mr. Moody's Northfield home. He received a very cordial welcome from his fellow Methodists, as well as those belonging to other denominations, and had many opportunities of preaching in churches, camp meetings, &c. He spoke of the happy results that had come from the union of the Methodist Churches of Canada, and declared that his visit to the other side would be an inspiration to him in his future service.

The other friends who spoke were all most hearty in their commendation of the good work going on at Surrey Chapel. They were Mr. A. Hawkins (chairman), Mr. Sinclair (treasurer of the building fund), Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, Rev. G. W. McCree, and others. Referring to the remarks on Methodist union in Canada, Mr. Hughes was very ardent in the expression of a hope that a like step would soon be taken by the different Methodist bodies in this country.

FOLKESTONE.—Dear Sir,—Will you allow us to say, in addition to the announcement recently made respecting the discontinuance of the "Home of Love," and Mr. Allen's leaving this neighbourhood, that the work has been undertaken, and is being most efficiently carried on by the Holiday Home Branch of the Ragged School Union. We sincerely hope that friends in different parts of the country who subscribed to the former enterprise will continue the help, and communicate with Mr. John Kirk, secretary, Exeter Hall.—Yours most faithfully,

A. J. Palmer,
Martin Henry.

JOR WHITTLE IN SCOTLAND.

a much-needed rest of a month in a ry manse in the South of Scotland, where k the regular church services, and where, know, Christ was lifted up, and souls drawn to Him, Major Whittle recom- ed his evangelistic labours in the little r town of Jedburgh. Here, for a week, Corn Exchange, addresses were delivered ldren in the afternoon, and to all in the ng. Mrs. Whittle and daughter, who are time in Scotland, rendered valuable ance by their singing of sacred solos and . Souls were blessed from day to day, since the meetings a Gospel Temperance has been constituted. A similar result followed the Major's ministry in the ntic village of Ancrum, where his holiday spent, as well as a weekly Saturday night r-meeting among the people themselves. ring the whole time Dr. Moxey assisted in ork, and preached in the surrounding dis- of Belses, Bowden, Bonjedward, and ers. The ministers of all denominations erated most heartily in all the services. er Jedburgh, Major Whittle went to Glas- commencing in the East-end, in Free y Church (Rev. J. J. Mackay's). Dr. y occupied the pulpit during the first and the Major for two weeks afterwards, ed by Miss Whittle. On Sabbath, Sep- er 22, Dr. Moxey gave the closing address e mission, and on the same afternoon and ng Major Whittle commenced a two ' mission in Free Finnieston Church A. A. Bonar's), preaching to crowded con- tions. On the following night, in spite of reliminary meeting in connection with nportant conference in St. Andrew's Hall, by, on the Deepening of Spiritual Life, hurch was nearly full. Many striking of conversion came under notice in y Church, and the Lord's people re- dly testified to blessing received. The r, Mr. Mackay, has a splendid band of d Christian workers, and he and they rted the evangelist right loyally from to night.

e work in Dr. Bonar's church seemed to hold from the very commencement, and t work of ingathering during the mission icipated. On the evening of the funeral . A. N. Somerville, the old man eloquent, e burning words have sounded forth the tidings of a Saviour's love all over the , Dr. Bonar mentioned to the meeting he third hymn sung on the occasion was, crowning day is coming by and by"; ords are by Major Whittle, and the music r. James McGranahan. Dr. Bonar said as Dr. Somerville's favourite hymn in elistic work, and had been sung in his ngs in every quarter of the globe. It has translated into the Hungarian language, omerville leaving it behind him as a legacy t people. Many present remembered Mr. anahan, the sweet singer, whose beautiful is wedded to the words, and Dr. Bonar ionately alluded to him in his long illness tiently borne.

DUCESTER.—A very useful and distinctly ual work is being carried on in this city by G. Mallett, chaplain of the Mariners' Church, is fellow-workers. Recently a Mission-hall een acquired at a cost of upwards of £1000, contributed in small sums, in the vicinity docks, where aggressive evangelistic work is carried on amongst the sailors, dock rers, and others engaged in maritime occupa- During the summer months the chaplain is friends have held open-air meetings, also l services from time to time on board vessels in the docks. Mr. E. J. Mitchell, of the elistic Society, has concluded a fifteen days' n in the mission-hall, which has proved a elpful and encouraging season.

AMERICAN NOTES.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Your readers will rejoice to learn that Rev. H. Grattan Guinness is being honoured of God in arousing the young men of the Western States to an intense pitch of enthusiasm for missionary work. Already three training homes are being established under his supervision in Boston, Minneapolis, and Kansas City. A band of earnest men in the States of Kansas, Nebraska, Dakota, and Missouri, full of strength and rugged power, have enlisted in service for Africa, and after a thorough course of Biblical instruction will be drafted onwards.

. . . . .

The vast Soudan will soon have witnesses for Jesus Christ. Some men are now ready, fully qualified, fortified, prompt to act. Mr. Guinness will meet 1000 young men in convention at Kansas on October 16, when the pioneer men will be started for the million-peopled Soudan. Pastors and professors second Mr. Guinness in his sublime undertaking. They have faith in his motives. His theories have been tested for years and not found wanting. I cannot but hope that in a few years he will see a thousand preachers from these new schools permeating the heart of the Dark Continent with the light of life.

. . . . .

Mr. Guinness has invited the co-operation of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Needham in carrying out some of his great undertakings throughout the West, and they cheerfully consent. Let no one think Mr. Guinness is hastily jumping at conclusions regarding these schools. Very carefully, prayerfully, and in counsel with the best of men, he has matured his plans, and the Lord has opened wide and effectual doors to his consecrated servant.

. . . . .

Pastors and evangelists are commencing their labours after the summer vacations. Mr. Moody will soon open his school in Chicago; Dr. Gordon, in addition to his manifold work of shepherding the flock, editing his magazine, and superintending the Home of the friendless, has assumed the presidency of the Boston Missionary Institute which Mr. Guinness established. Dr. Munhall is preaching at Newark; Rev. W. W. Clark has gone to Colorado; Rev. Thomas Needham may re-visit the South; George C. Needham has promised one month to Detroit before starting for Kansas; Dr. Brookes is preaching and teaching with his old-time fervour. His health is much better, and his hands are full of Western Convention work. Many others are at their respective posts holding forth the word of life.

MRS. KILBURN has, through interpretation, been holding meetings for women in Abo, Finland. The meetings were well attended. The last of the Swedish meetings was, through the kindness of the Archbishop, held in the Lecture Hall of the University.

MANCHESTER AND SALFORD WESLEYAN MISSION.—It is a year since the chapel in Great Bridgewater-street was converted into a centre of this Mission. At the anniversary meetings last week reasons for congratulation were found in the success which has hitherto attended Gospel work in the centre. In the course of a capital address at a public meeting, Rev. John Stevinson thanked God that Methodism is making efforts to reach the neglected and depraved masses in the large cities of the country. "Our mission," he said, "is to go to the very lowest of the low. Methodist ministers must not be priests, but brothers of the people, and in true sympathy with their everyday life. Moreover, the Church will never do the work which God has given her until she recognises that every Christian is an ordained minister of Christ, and has a responsible share in the evangelisation of the world." The superintendent of the Mission is Rev. T. Brain Castle, 73, Rumford-street, Chorlton-on-Medlock, Manchester.

MR. H. VARLEY AT WORK.

Mr. Henry Varley has been labouring continuously in Melbourne since landing there in November last. Each Sabbath evening he has preached in the Theatre Royal. This building is on a street, up and down which large crowds of young men and women stream in the cool of evening on the one day in the week when they find themselves at liberty. The capacity of the threatre has been severely taxed, and many have been turned away after 3000 persons have been seated. The Lord has given a message of power, and many have been drawn to Himself, there having been large numbers of conversions at each service.

This is but a small part of Mr. Varley's important work, for he has held series of services in the various suburbs, and many Christians have been helped and refreshed. We trust that, by the good hand of God upon him, our brother will continue to see fruits of his testimony for God and righteousness.

MEMORIAL TO DR. DUFF.

A Celtic cross, erected to the memory of Dr. Duff, was recently unveiled at Moulin, N.B., where the celebrated missionary received his early education, and within a quarter of a mile of Auchnahyle, where he was born. The ceremony was performed by Sir William Muir, principal of Edinburgh University. In the course of a tribute of warm admiration, Sir William said that Dr. Duff gave not only intellectual light and life, but sowed the seeds of a grand evangelisation in India. In a local guide-book, now out of print, it was said that lovers of missions would no doubt pay a pilgrimage of devotion and love to the spot where Dr. Duff was born. Though that guide-book no longer existed, Sir William trusted that that monument would long remain to point the place of Dr. Duff's early life.

Sir Francis Outram, on behalf of the inhabitants of Moulin, received the memorial with gratitude from the committee of erection. He trusted it would not only be an object of reasonable pride, but that it would be the means of stirring up many men and women to greater interest in missions. What made the Celtic cross a specially appropriate form of memorial was the fact that it carries the mind back to the early Celtic missionaries who did so much to extend the Gospel light. Hearty addresses were delivered by Sir John Kennaway, M.P., and Revs. Dr. George Smith and R. W. Barbour.

BAPTIST MINISTERS PRAYER UNION.—A series of meetings were held last week at John-street Chapel, Bedford-row, under the presidency of Rev. F. B. Meyer, which were largely attended by ministers from all parts of London and the country. Addresses were given by Revs. J. P. Clark, J. B. Figgis, Peter Thompson, and others, and were followed by prolonged periods of prayer and consecration. It was resolved that a weekly meeting should be held during the autumn on Fridays, at 3 o'clock, open to all Christian ministers for mutual help in the cultivation of the devout life.

"COOKIE'S" SUCCESSOR.—Those who were familiar with the late William Cook and his work as a tract distributor among the seafaring population of Folkestone will be gratified to learn that the work he originated is vigorously carried on by Mr. Richard May. "Dick," as he is familiarly called, is a fine specimen of a fisherman. Himself captain of a large fishing boat, he toils week in and week out in the stormy Channel for the bread that perisheth; and devotes his Sundays to the spiritual welfare of his brother fishermen and their families. He may always he seen on a Sunday afternoon in the Dover-road, surrounded by a crowd of young folk, each eager for a card for themselves, and a tract "to take home to mother." Although supported in his work by one or two local friends, he must often spend more than he can well afford from his own hardly-earned store to keep up his supply of good books. Help, either in books of a suitable character for evangelistic work, or in money to provide them, would be very acceptable, and should be sent to him at Saffron's-place, Dover-street, Folkestone.

REV. JOHN McNEILL & YOUNG MEN.

The inaugural gathering of the winter session of the Aldenham Institute, Goldington-crescent, Pancras-road, which is connected with Regent-square Church, was held on Saturday evening. Its object is to promote the moral and material welfare of young men, by placing within their reach the means of instruction. There was a large attendance of members and their friends. The chair was occupied by the President, Mr. James Robertson, and addresses were given by Mr. Andrew Moir, the secretary, and Rev. John McNeill. Mr. Moir made the gratifying announcement that the Institute had now become part of the scheme of the Charity Commissioners; like the chairman in his few opening remarks, while attaching due importance to the technical instruction and physical amusements provided at the Institute, he pointed out that the spiritual welfare of the members was a matter of far greater concern.

Mr. McNeill, having put his audience in a genial mood by a few flashes of wit and a quaint Scotch story or two, proceeded to deliver a telling and practical speech. He congratulated those who had obtained prizes, and dropped a few words of encouragement to the "dull fellows," urging them to more activity during the ensuing session. Addressing the young men before him, he said, "To be successful you must get rid of conceit, and of talking big. You must work steadily, continually plodding on, on, on. By all means go in for physical training. There is no reason why you should associate intellect with white faces and lantern jaws. The stronger the body, the more it will serve the mind. While giving full value to educational and industrial pursuits, as well as athletics, the top and bottom, the centre and circumference of this Institute is spiritual development. I am here to hold Christ up to you, and to ask you to look at Him and come to Him. As soon as you make up your mind to accept Christ this Institute will tell upon you as it has never done before. Your prayer-meetings, Bible-classes, and your Guild form the crown and flower of the Institute. Read your Bible regularly; especially the New Testament and the Gospels. The Bible will be a very dull and dry book if your heart is not in it. But when the heart wakens up to it, and when the veil which has been over the eyes of your understanding is lifted, the Bible presents a sight unsurpassed in magnificence—a stage on which you have your place and your part to act, and on which you find splendid opportunities to play the part of son, king, and prince." In some concluding remarks, Mr. McNeill sternly rebuked worldliness and hypocrisy, and showed that a pure and living Christianity is the key to true success.

MR. T. SHULDHAM HENRY will give addresses to young men at the Young Men's Christian Association, 186, Aldersgate-street, on the Thursday evenings in October, at half-past eight o'clock. The subjects are:—October 3, "God of Judgment;" 10, "God of Peace;" 17, "God of Glory;" 24, "Jehovah our Keeper."

THE GENEVA INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS.—In the recent account of this Congress our correspondent omitted to mention that Mrs. Josephine E. Butler was compelled, for the first time, to be absent, owing to the serious illness of her husband, Rev. Canon Butler, at Winchester. This omission has given rise to a rumour that Mrs. Butler has dissociated herself from this work—a statement which is absolutely unfounded. Mrs. Butler initiated the movement on the Continent, almost single-handed, and for fifteen years has been the main inspirer and director of the agitation. We have good ground for saying that so long as she lives it is her intention to strengthen in every country in Europe, so far as she is able, that spiritual and lofty moral element springing from the Christian faith which is acknowledged to be the life of the movement.

ISRAEL AND THE GOSPEL.

If the present is the century of missions to the heathen, it is no less a period of remarkable activity in the work of evangelising God's ancient people. The commission to preach the Gospel in all the world cannot, consistently with loyalty to Christ, be dissociated from the Scriptural order of procedure, "to the Jew first." Missions to Israel are unquestionably after the mind of the God of Abraham; and, what is more, they cannot but commend themselves with peculiar force to the reasonable interest of all who desire to spread abroad the Saviour's name. The Hebrews are acclimatised to all the countries of the world. When they see in Jesus the Messiah of ancient promise, they are ready-made missionaries, and to a large degree able, as well as willing, to declare in the tongues of all the nations the wonderful works of God.

Mr. John Wilkinson, founder and director of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews, has been enabled, by God's blessing, to do large things for Israel. For forty years his heart's desire and prayer to God has been that Israel may be saved, and as he has preached the Gospel to Jews, he has done much to elicit the sympathy of Christians in "Israel's Mission and Missions to Israel." This is the subject-matter of a beautiful book he has just issued, entitled "Israel My Glory."* The words of the Lord in Isa. xlvi. 12, 13, show the appropriateness of the title: "I will appoint salvation in Zion, for Israel my glory." The prophetic Scriptures and the utterances of Christ and his Apostles fully justify our confidence that in the days that are coming the Lord of Glory will invest the seed of Jacob with his own beauty and splendour, so that they shall shine among the nations, and be a praise and a joy in the earth.

Friends of Israel will do well to get Mr. Wilkinson's book, which occupies ground not covered by any other single volume. It is full of God's Word, plainly expounded, and tells of grand things already done in the Lord's name, and by his grace and help. The book deals comprehensively with the Jewish question, from the best of all points of view, and those who love the people for their fathers' sake will find on every page much to interest, and much to instruct. The national election is shown with ample clearness to typify the spiritual election, and promises of blessings to Israel are displayed because they are as certain of realisation as the threatened curses have most surely been. This is done by a vindication of the literal interpretation of Holy Writ, by arguments which are as unanswerable as they are admirably expressed. Mr. Wilkinson is no hair-splitter on topics upon which God has told us but little, but a reverent and careful student of the Bible. Notwithstanding his excellent attainments in divine things, he does not hesitate to say:—"There is scarcely anything that humbles me to the dust more than this—my very limited acquaintance with the Word of God." This is how a man instructed of God must ever feel, and should ever speak. The account of the circulation of Hebrew New Testaments among Jews in all parts of the world has a perennial interest, and many will read with hearty approval Mr. Wilkinson's plea for free distribution of the Scriptures among all who are still ignorant of their blessed contents.

Among the most important chapters in the book are "Conversational Answers to Jewish Difficulties," and "Questions on Messianic Passages put by Christians to Jews." There is much for all Christian readers in the chapter, "The Lord's Leadings in Mission Work among the Jews, including definite answers to prayer in the supply of needful funds." We trust the book will be largely circulated, and that, while proving a great direct blessing, to Jews and Gentiles alike, it will secure many more friends to the Mission which its author so wisely directs. Then we shall speedily hear of the erection of the hall which is so much required as a home and centre of the operations of the Mission in East London. We are glad to see that £4800 has been given and promised towards the £10,000 needed for this purpose. It will give us pleasure to learn before long that the remainder has been raised, so that evangelisation may be vigorously promoted, while yet we await the hastening time when, in the literal import of the words, "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, who shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob."

* Israel My Glory; or, Israel's Mission and Missions to Israel. 6s. 6d. By John Wilkinson. Mildmay Printing House, 60, Newington-green, N.

Personalia.

Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, according to a recei telegram, expects to return to England from th Niger about October 20.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearse has been visitin Belfast, and has been uniting the various Church in a remarkable way by his lectures and addresse

Mrs. Booth.—We much regret to learn tha Mrs. Booth is not improving in health; the drea disease which has attacked her seems to be makin rapid progress.

Mr. W. J. Orsman, who is so well know throughout the country as the founder and hon superintendent of the work at Costers' Hall, is candidate for the seat on the London Count Council, vacant by the death of Mr. Firth, M.P.

Dr. Barnardo.—On Monday night a crowde and enthusiastic assembly welcomed Dr. Barnard home after six weeks' absence, for much neede rest. The model of the Village Homes at Ilfor is in the Exhibition at Paris, and a gold meda has been awarded for it.

Mr. Douglas Russell embarked for Americ in the City of New York on Wednesday last. H purposes to devote a few months to Gospel wor in the United States and Canada, as doors may b opened. Letters addressed to 99, Clinton-place New York City, will reach him.

Mrs. Clement Leavitt.—An excellent portrai of this devoted American lady appears in th October number of The Family Friend. "Signin the pledge when she was but six years old, she ha from the time she became capable of thinking an acting for herself laboured steadily in the cause o total abstinence, both in her own family and amon the scholars of her week-day and Sunday-schools. Maternal instinct, instead of narrowing her sym pathies, led her to leave her own children as soo as they were old enough to dispense with her car and to start off on the wide-world campaign agains intemperance which has been productive of s much good."

Mr. G. H. Williams, ex-Attorney-General o the United States, was converted to God during Mr Moody's visit last winter to Portland, Oregon; an his social prominence gave to that event an unusua significance. An American contemporary says "During the past six months General William has been rendering invaluable service in Christia work in many ways. His work in charitable insti tutions, his talks to newsboys, his readiness to re spond on every occasion where his voice can hel the cause of Christ, furnish constant encourage ment to all Christian people. His lecture on th 'Divinity of Christ' is receiving great attention He refuses to receive a cent for any of these ser vices. He wants his lecture to be free, so tha everyone may feel welcome to come and hear him His lecture recently given in Salem, the capital o the State, was listened to by a great audience Eminent men of Oregon, who have been associate with General Williams for over thirty years, and hundreds who have long known him intimately listened to him as an old friend."

EAST LONDON INSTITUTE FOR MISSIONS.—Dr. H. Grattan Guinness writes to us:—"We are just recommencing our new session, and have the largest number of students that has ever been within our walls. We number now some 114 in London and Derbyshire, and have so many applications that we know not what to do, and will probably be building a new college in London, as well as enlarging our premises for deaconesses."

SAILORS' REST, PORTSMOUTH.—Dear Sir,—I asked some time ago for money to buy one ton of Mr. Hasting's anti-infidel tracts for the men of the sea. The ton was subscribed for in America and sent, and is now distributed. Another ton is on the Atlantic, and, through the kindness of Mr. Denny and Mr. Cory, I have something in hand but not enough to pay over £70, the bare cost of the printing. Six tons more, eight in all, are "donated" by Mr. Hastings, at bare cost of production, to British seamen. What an opportunity! A fine seaman, now in my "Naval Mission Band" at Portsmouth, was won from infidelity to Christ by reading one book out of the first ton. Any help can be sent to me for this purpose, at the Sailors' Rest, Portsmouth.—Yours very truly,

Agnes E. Weston.

The Book World.

dvance, the new monthly organ of the West don Wesleyan Mission, is to be a very "live' readable production, if we may judge from the issue; we wish it all success. (1d. Woodford cett & Co.)

EPPING STONES TO BIBLE HISTORY. I.—ies from Genesis. By Annie R. Butler. d. Religious Tract Society. Simple explana-s, put into the easiest language, of the cipal stories from the Book of Genesis.

HE BIRDS IN MY GARDEN. By W. T. Greene, . 2s. Religious Tract Society. One of those ghtfully natural books upon that section of ural history—our familiar birds. All lovers of ure, and nature in her nearest relation to us, be charmed with the book.

ADY MISSIONARIES IN FOREIGN LANDS. By . E. R. Pitman. 1s. 6d. Partridge & Co. e devoted women of God are here introduced to as four of them are but little known to the eral reader, we hope this little volume, with its est words, will carry the story of their lives many homes, and stimulate others to join 's missionary women in foreign lands.

Messrs. Cassell & Co. have commenced the serial e, in monthly parts (7d.), of Dr. Cunningham rie's HOLY LAND AND THE BIBLE. The author's -known vivid style finds ample scope in these nsely interesting pages, and hosts of readers follow his footsteps through the sacred fields Palestine. The work is profusely illustrated by pencil of Mr. Harper, and an excellent map is n with this initial part.

WALLOW HOME; or, My First Two Years of rried Life, spent in South Africa. By E. A. H. ot Stock. This is a simple and unadorned nar-ve by a Christian lady, of life at the Cape. She no startling adventures to record, but the nar-ve gives a clear idea of men and manners and es in that Southern Colony, while the notes of istian work and experience will make it doubly ful and welcome to many readers.

Y WELSH HOME. A Poem by John Morgan, tor of Llanilid and Llanharran, Glamorgan. ot Stock. This poem in subject as well as re, reminds one of "In Memoriam." Pictur-ue scenes, histories, memories are grouped nd the loved but lost home of the writer's boy-d. These verses are worthy of a Christian , though a brighter realisation of union with ever-present Redeemer would make the book e cheering for sad hearts.

HE LORD'S SUPPER. By Christopher Irvine, A. Elliot Stock. Scholarly, sensible, scriptural, itual. We have seldom seen the nature and cts of the Lord's Supper more satisfactorily lt with. Mr. Irvine is not afraid to point out plain language post-apostolic adaptations and nish corruptions of sacramental truth. He ws John vi. to refer, not to any outward cere-ny, but to habitual inward communion with ist. His appendices are singularly interesting.

HE NINE FAMOUS CRUSADES OF THE MIDDLE ES. By Annie E. Keeling. 2s. 6d. Wesleyan thodist Book-room. We have here an admirable rtrayal, in brief form, of the wars undertaken he name of religion for the rescue of the Holy nd from the grasp of the infidel Turk. It is l for us in these later days to acquaint ourselves h the mistaken views that prevailed in diæval ages, if only to quicken our gratitude for greater light in which we live, and the more ellent way by which God's Spirit has taught his e Church to advance and vindicate his cause.

HE WORLD'S SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION. nplete Record of Proceedings. 2s. Sunday ool Union. The addresses delivered at this nvention, held in the Memorial Hall and the y Temple, London, July 1—6 last, were well rthy of publication in this convenient form. ere is hardly a phase of Sunday-school work t does not find helpful treatment in these es, at the hands of one or other of the dele-es, who came together from various countries the old and new worlds, and numbered in all ut seven hundred. Many circumstances in-ted the Convention with a unique interest, and report not only reflects much of that interest, has an intrinsic worth which Sunday-school chers will not be slow to appreciate. Teachers o carefully peruse this report will be the better ipped for their work of instruction, and also, s hoped, stimulated to greater exertions in defi-soul-winning among the young.

WINTER'S FOLLY. By Mrs. O. F. Walton. Religious Tract Society. A very touching and beautiful little story. Mrs. Walton's knowledge of child-life is unique, and thoroughly natural. Poor old Winter is just such a character as all Mrs. Walton's readers will delight in, especially the young.

THE ARIAN CONTROVERSY. By H. M. Gwatkin, M.A. 2s. 6d. Longmans. A specially useful volume of the "Epochs of Church History" series. While lucid and interesting as a chapter of history, it has a distinct value as an exposition of theological thought. At the same time it is an admirable vindication of Scripture truth on the doctrine of the Son of God. The creeds of antiquity cannot be understood or appreciated apart from the Arian controversy, which also explains several of the Church councils of the fourth century. Those who know anything of the thought of our time will, on reading this book, discern that though Arianism has long been extinct as furnishing a party name, it still survives among those who refuse to see in Christ the Revealing Son of the Invisible Father.

THE TRIAL OF RESEN, OR SEMITIC FIDELITY. A Dream of the Past, in four cantos. By Rev. D. R. Morris. 6d. Office of the Protestant Evangelical Mission, 5, Racquet-court, Fleet-street. In this poem Semitic patriarchal faith is represented in conflict with increasing and encroaching idolatry. In Genesis x. the city Resen is mentioned as having been built by Asshur; Nimrod's kingdom is identified with Babel. The "dream" has its lesson for the present admirably pointed. The ancients were sustained by faith in the promise of the manifestation of the Woman's Seed. We, to-day, are cheered in view of the approaching second advent of Him who is our strength, our joy, our all. The plan of the poem shows much thought; the versification is happy, and at times majestic. Among some added compositions is one entitled, "Christ in the Promise; or the Dying Israelite."

THE BIBLICAL ILLUSTRATOR: ST. LUKE, vol. 1. 7s. 6d. Nisbet & Co. This compilation, by Rev. Joseph S. Exell, maintains in each succeeding volume its high character for usefulness. The third Gospel, with its many special features and narratives not mentioned elsewhere, affords ample opportunity for treatment by illustrative anecdotes and similes, with expository, historical, and homiletical notes. Here are 750 very full pages, carrying the work forward to the end of chapter vii. With great diligence Mr. Exell has gathered matter from a very wide reading, and if the Gospel is continued on the same lines of thoroughness, two more volumes will be required to complete the work. As a practical commentary, it would be difficult to improve upon this "Illustrator," which really contains the cream of many valuable works brought together with great care and wise discrimination.

A WINDOW IN THRUMS. By J. M. Barrie. 6s. Hodder & Stoughton. Mr. Barrie has leaped almost at a bound into the front rank of the artistic and faithful literary delineators of Scottish peasant life and character. His gifts of observation are truly phenomenal, but they are equalled by the graphic facility and dramatic skill with which he tells his story. These sketches of a lowly Scottish interior are limned to the very life, as any one who is familiar with the humbler classes of the north country must testify. By the force of Mr Barrie's literary genius, the commonest and most prosaic of daily events in the humble weaver's cottage take on a halo of romance. The elements of tragedy and humour are often strangely commingled in seemingly uneventful lives, and there only lacks a gifted pen to enshrine a record full of real human interest and pathos. This lack Mr. Barrie has fully supplied.

MANIFESTATIONS OF THE TRINITY IN THE OLD TESTAMENT. By Rev. H. Lindsay Young. 1d. Portsmouth: Tract Depôt, Protestant Institute Buildings. Clear in statement, and sound in exposition.

A deeply interesting booklet is GLEANINGS FROM CHINESE HOMES. 1d. Church Missionary Society. By Mrs. B. Van Someren Taylor, of Fu Ning Fu, Fuh-Kien Province, China. It is one of the Gleaners' Union tracts.

NAZARETH. By W. B.-M. 6d. Hatchards, 187, Piccadilly, W. An interesting pamphlet, containing thoughts suggested by a visit to Nazareth. Archæological and topographical information is well presented, and important lessons drawn from the life of Christ.

Two little books, published by Mr. R. J. Masters, at 1s. each, and respectively entitled, FOUR LAST WORDS FROM THE BOOK OF GOD, by Sarah Geraldina Stock, and OUT OF THE DEPTHS, a Message to a Backslider, contain nothing new in the way of treatment, but may prove acceptable to the two different classes of readers for whom they are intended.

The Seamen's Christian Friend Society (Offices: 225, Burdett-road, E.) has published in a neat booklet the powerful address of Rev. John McNeill at the forty-third annual meeting in Exeter Hall in May last.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE'S BIBLE SEARCHING ALMANAC FOR 1890 has already been published, and may be had from Mrs. Seaver, St. Mary's Vicarage, 147, Queen's-road, Peckham, S.E. Each month the quotations are on a different subject.

ROBERTSON OF IRVINE, Poet-Preacher, is the title of a new life of this distinguished divine, to be issued by Arthur Guthrie, Ardrossan, at the end of October. The title expresses the scope of the work; and Dr. Robertson was best known as a preacher.

A WOMAN'S RIGHTS is the title of a homely lecture on the temperance question by Ellen Moorhouse. It is admirable alike in matter and manner. To be obtained from Mrs. Moorhouse, Highway and Hedgerow Mission, Forest-hill, Newport, Isle of Wight.

UNCONSCIOUS ATTAINMENTS IN HOLINESS. By Rev. T. Greenwood. This is a paper which was read at the second conference of the Pastors' College Evangelical Association. It affords very profitable reading to the spiritual mind. (Passmore & Alabaster.)

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS ON THIS WORLD, AND ON THE WORLD TO COME. By Captain H. J. Yeatman. New edition. 1d. William Wileman, 34, Bouverie-street, E.C. Some earnest and wholesome words by one who thinks with clearness of God and his righteousness.

DAILY BANNERS FOR LITTLE BOYS. By M. M. 3d. Partridge & Co. Addressed as soldiers of Jesus Christ, lads are urged to be brave in battle against sin and Satan. To help them, "banners"—or prayers, injunctions, facts, and precepts—from Holy Writ, for a month are presented, with a few practical remarks.

Messrs. Jarrold & Sons have added to their useful handbooks on East Anglia a twopenny GUIDE TO SHERRINGHAM, a seaside village five miles west of Dover; and a sixpenny GUIDE TO FISHING IN NORFOLK WATERS, with full information as to stations, distances, bait, &c., by Robert Moll. Both these publications are admirably illustrated.

CHRIST ALL AND IN ALL. A discussion on the Divinity of Christ. By Rev. D. Pledge. 1s. Stock. A revised edition of a thoughtful pamphlet, setting out a conversation with one who had adopted Unitarian views. Not pretending to originality of argument or exhaustiveness of treatment, it is nevertheless a very useful statement of elementary Christian doctrine.

DIVINE FORGIVENESS, viewed in the Light of Seven Bible Texts. By Frank H. White. 1d. Partridge. A sterling booklet magnifying the forgiving love of God. The texts are some of the most precious in the Word of God, and we rejoice that this brief exposition of them has reached its fourth edition. Some beautiful verses by the late Mr. Joseph Tritton are added.

A second series of GOD'S MESSAGES FOR THE LITTLE ONES is issued by Mr. Caswell, of Edmund-street, Birmingham. 2d. Two sweet and easily digested morsels of Holy Writ are given on each page, besides an appropriate stanza, the whole forming delightful morning or evening portions for one or two months. It is an excellent compilation for little ones eight or nine years of age.

THE MINISTRY OF REBUKE. By Rev. G. Tonge. 2d. Birmingham: C. Caswell. Originally read at the meeting of a clerical society, this Scriptural study is full of suggestion on a topic which certainly occupies no secondary place among the "divers ministrations" whereby the members of the body of Christ are called upon to contribute to the healthy development and perfecting of the whole.

The Baptist Tract and Book Society, 22a, Furnival-street, E.C., has added two capital booklets to the Church Membership Series. SOME COMMON OBJECTIONS TO JOINING THE CHURCH is a fireside homily, by Vernon J. Charlesworth (1d.); and LOYALTY TO COVENANT VOWS, a tract for Church members (6d. per dozen). Two additions to the Distinctive Series are: WHAT THE BAPTISTS HAVE DONE FOR THE WORLD, by Rev. G. B. Taylor, D.D.; and DENOMINATIONAL ESPRIT DE CORPS (1d. each).

WHY WE DO NOT MEAN TO CHANGE OUR CONFESSION OF FAITH. By Rev. Kenneth Moody-Stuart, M.A., Moffat. A strong argument in favour of the confession of doctrines believed, and against the displacement of the Shorter Catechism, which some Scottish ministers are advocating. The author recognises the fact that this is not a creed-constructing age, and therefore he urges upon his Presbyterian brethren: "Whereunto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing." (1d. James Gemmell, 19, George IV. Bridge, Edinburgh.)

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on Gospel services in Bishopsgate Congregational Chapel, conducted by Rev. W. A. Meaton.——For blessing on a ten days' parochial mission, to be held at Red Hill, Oct. 6 to 16.——For blessing on an eight days' Gospel temperance mission, by Dr. Wade, at the North Camp Soldiers' Home, Farnborough, Hants, commencing Oct. 14.——For blessing on a mission at the Y.M.C.A., Langney-road, Eastbourne, Oct. 20 to 29, to be conducted by Mr. W. R. Lane.——For blessing on a mission, to be conducted next week at Wrexham, by Rev. J. Pugh.——For blessing on a mission in Edinburgh, by Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes, Oct. 13 to 21.——For a son going to the University, that he may be made stedfast in faith, holy in life, evangelical in doctrine.

REV. JOHN McNEILL & YOUNG MEN.

The inaugural gathering of the winter session of the Aldenham Institute, Goldington-crescent, Pancras-road, which is connected with Regent-square Church, was held on Saturday evening. Its object is to promote the moral and material welfare of young men, by placing within their reach the means of instruction. There was a large attendance of members and their friends. The chair was occupied by the President, Mr. James Robertson, and addresses were given by Mr. Andrew Moir, the secretary, and Rev. John McNeill. Mr. Moir made the gratifying announcement that the Institute had now become part of the scheme of the Charity Commissioners; like the chairman in his few opening remarks, while attaching due importance to the technical instruction and physical amusements provided at the Institute, he pointed out that the spiritual welfare of the members was a matter of far greater concern.

Mr. McNeill, having put his audience in a genial mood by a few flashes of wit and a quaint Scotch story or two, proceeded to deliver a telling and practical speech. He congratulated those who had obtained prizes, and dropped a few words of encouragement to the "dull fellows," urging them to more activity during the ensuing session. Addressing the young men before him, he said, "To be successful you must get rid of conceit, and of talking big. You must work steadily, continually plodding on, on, on. By all means go in for physical training. There is no reason why you should associate intellect with white faces and lantern jaws. The stronger the body, the more it will serve the mind. While giving full value to educational and industrial pursuits, as well as athletics, the top and bottom, the centre and circumference of this Institute is spiritual development. I am here to hold Christ up to you, and to ask you to look at Him and come to Him. As soon as you make up your mind to accept Christ this Institute will tell upon you as it has never done before. Your prayer-meetings, Bible-classes, and your Guild form the crown and flower of the Institute. Read your Bible regularly; especially the New Testament and the Gospels. The Bible will be a very dull and dry book if your heart is not in it. But when the heart wakens up to it, and when the veil which has been over the eyes of your understanding is lifted, the Bible presents a sight unsurpassed in magnificence—a stage on which you have your place and your part to act, and on which you find splendid opportunities to play the part of son, king, and prince." In some concluding remarks, Mr. McNeill sternly rebuked worldliness and hypocrisy, and showed that a pure and living Christianity is the key to true success.

MR. T. SHULDHAM HENRY will give addresses to young men at the Young Men's Christian Association, 186, Aldersgate-street, on the Thursday evenings in October, at half-past eight o'clock. The subjects are:—October 3, "God of Judgment;" 10, "God of Peace;" 17, "God of Glory;" 24, "Jehovah our Keeper."

THE GENEVA INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS.—In the recent account of this Congress our correspondent omitted to mention that Mrs. Josephine E. Butler was compelled, for the first time, to be absent, owing to the serious illness of her husband, Rev. Canon Butler, at Winchester. This omission has given rise to a rumour that Mrs. Butler has dissociated herself from this work—a statement which is absolutely unfounded. Mrs. Butler initiated the movement on the Continent, almost single-handed, and for fifteen years has been the main inspirer and director of the agitation. We have good ground for saying that so long as she lives it is her intention to strengthen in every country in Europe, so far as she is able, that spiritual and lofty moral element springing from the Christian faith which is acknowledged to be the life of the movement.

ISRAEL AND THE GOSPEL.

If the present is the century of missions to the heathen, it is no less a period of remarkable activity in the work of evangelising God's ancient people. The commission to preach the Gospel in all the world cannot, consistently with loyalty to Christ, be dissociated from the Scriptural order of procedure, "to the Jew first." Missions to Israel are unquestionably after the mind of the God of Abraham; and, what is more, they cannot but commend themselves with peculiar force to the reasonable interest of all who desire to spread abroad the Saviour's name. The Hebrews are acclimatised to all the countries of the world. When they see in Jesus the Messiah of ancient promise, they are ready-made missionaries, and to a large degree able, as well as willing, to declare in the tongues of all the nations the wonderful works of God.

Mr. John Wilkinson, founder and director of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews, has been enabled, by God's blessing, to do large things for Israel. For forty years his heart's desire and prayer to God has been that Israel may be saved, and as he has preached the Gospel to Jews, he has done much to elicit the sympathy of Christians in "Israel's Mission and Missions to Israel." This is the subject-matter of a beautiful book he has just issued, entitled "Israel My Glory."* The words of the Lord in Isa. xlvi. 12, 13, show the appropriateness of the title: "I will appoint salvation in Zion, for Israel my glory." The prophetic Scriptures and the utterances of Christ and his Apostles fully justify our confidence that in the days that are coming the Lord of Glory will invest the seed of Jacob with his own beauty and splendour, so that they shall shine among the nations, and be a praise and a joy in the earth.

Friends of Israel will do well to get Mr. Wilkinson's book, which occupies ground not covered by any other single volume. It is full of God's Word, plainly expounded, and tells of grand things already done in the Lord's name, and by his grace and help. The book deals comprehensively with the Jewish question, from the best of all points of view, and those who love the people for their fathers' sake will find on every page much to interest, and much to instruct. The national election is shown with ample clearness to typify the spiritual election, and promises of blessings to Israel are displayed because they are as certain of realisation as the threatened curses have most surely been. This is done by a vindication of the literal interpretation of Holy Writ, by arguments which are as unanswerable as they are admirably expressed. Mr. Wilkinson is no hair-splitter on topics upon which God has told us but little, but a reverent and careful student of the Bible. Notwithstanding his excellent attainments in divine things, he does not hesitate to say:—"There is scarcely anything that humbles me to the dust more than this—my very limited acquaintance with the Word of God." This is how a man instructed of God must ever feel, and should ever speak. The account of the circulation of Hebrew New Testaments among Jews in all parts of the world has a perennial interest, and many will read with hearty approval Mr. Wilkinson's plea for free distribution of the Scriptures among all who are still ignorant of their blessed contents.

Among the most important chapters in the book are "Conversational Answers to Jewish Difficulties," and "Questions on Messianic Passages put by Christians to Jews." There is much for all Christian readers in the chapter, "The Lord's Leadings in Mission Work among the Jews, including definite answers to prayer in the supply of needful funds." We trust the book will be largely circulated, and that, while proving a great direct blessing, to Jews and Gentiles alike, it will secure many more friends to the Mission which its author so wisely directs. Then we shall speedily hear of the erection of the hall which is so much required as a home and centre of the operations of the Mission in East London. We are glad to see that £4800 has been given and promised towards the £10,000 needed for this purpose. It will give us pleasure to learn before long that the remainder has been raised, so that evangelisation may be vigorously promoted, while yet we await the hastening time when, in the literal import of the words, "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, who shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob."

*Israel My Glory; or, Israel's Mission and Missions to Israel. 6s. 6d. By John Wilkinson. Mildmay Printing House, 60, Newington-green, N.

Personalia.

Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, according to a recent telegram, expects to return to England from the Niger about October 20.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearse has been visiting Belfast, and has been uniting the various Churches in a remarkable way by his lectures and addresses.

Mrs. Booth.—We much regret to learn that Mrs. Booth is not improving in health; the dread disease which has attacked her seems to be making rapid progress.

Mr. W. J. Orsman, who is so well known throughout the country as the founder and hon. superintendent of the work at Costers' Hall, is a candidate for the seat on the London County Council, vacant by the death of Mr. Firth, M.P.

Dr. Barnardo.—On Monday night a crowded and enthusiastic assembly welcomed Dr. Barnardo home after six weeks' absence, for much needed rest. The model of the Village Homes at Ilford is in the Exhibition at Paris, and a gold medal has been awarded for it.

Mr. Douglas Russell embarked for America in the City of New York on Wednesday last. He purposes to devote a few months to Gospel work in the United States and Canada, as doors may be opened. Letters addressed to 99, Clinton-place, New York City, will reach him.

Mrs. Clement Leavitt.—An excellent portrait of this devoted American lady appears in the October number of The Family Friend. "Signing the pledge when she was but six years old, she has from the time she became capable of thinking and acting for herself laboured steadily in the cause of total abstinence, both in her own family and among the scholars of her week-day and Sunday-schools... Maternal instinct, instead of narrowing her sympathies, led her to leave her own children as soon as they were old enough to dispense with her care, and to start off on the wide-world campaign against intemperance which has been productive of so much good."

Mr. G. H. Williams, ex-Attorney-General of the United States, was converted to God during Mr. Moody's visit last winter to Portland, Oregon; and his social prominence gave to that event an unusual significance. An American contemporary says: "During the past six months General Williams has been rendering invaluable service in Christian work in many ways. His work in charitable institutions, his talks to newsboys, his readiness to respond on every occasion where his voice can help the cause of Christ, furnish constant encouragement to all Christian people. His lecture on the 'Divinity of Christ' is receiving great attention. He refuses to receive a cent for any of these services. He wants his lecture to be free, so that everyone may feel welcome to come and hear him. His lecture recently given in Salem, the capital of the State, was listened to by a great audience. Eminent men of Oregon, who have been associated with General Williams for over thirty years, and hundreds who have long known him intimately listened to him as an old friend."

EAST LONDON INSTITUTE FOR MISSIONS.—Dr. H. Grattan Guinness writes to us:—"We are just recommencing our new session, and have the largest number of students that has ever been within our walls. We number now some 114 in London and Derbyshire, and have so many applications that we know not what to do, and will probably be building a new college in London, as well as enlarging our premises for deaconesses."

SAILORS' REST, PORTSMOUTH.—Dear Sir,—I asked some time ago for money to buy one ton of Mr. Hasting's anti-infidel tracts for the men of the sea. The ton was subscribed for in America, and sent, and is now distributed. Another ton is on the Atlantic, and, through the kindness of Mr Denny and Mr. Cory, I have something in hand, but not enough to pay over £70, the bare cost of the printing. Six tons more, eight in all, are "donated" by Mr. Hastings, at bare cost of production, to British seamen. What an opportunity! A fine seaman, now in my "Naval Mission Band" at Portsmouth, was won from infidelity to Christ by reading one book out of the first ton. Any help can be sent to me for this purpose, at the Sailors' Rest, Portsmouth.—Yours very truly,

Agnes E. Weston.

The Book World.

Advance, the new monthly organ of the West ondon Wesleyan Mission, is to be a very "live' d readable production, if we may judge from the st issue; we wish it all success. (1d. Woodford awcett & Co.)

Stepping Stones to Bible History. I.—ories from Genesis. By Annie R. Butler. . 6d. Religious Tract Society. Simple explana-ons, put into the easiest language, of the incipal stories from the Book of Genesis.

The Birds in my Garden. By W. T. Greene, .D. 2s. Religious Tract Society. One of those elightfully natural books upon that section of tural history—our familiar birds. All lovers of ture, and nature in her nearest relation to us, ll be charmed with the book.

Lady Missionaries in Foreign Lands. By rs. E. R. Pitman. 1s. 6d. Partridge & Co. ive devoted women of God are here introduced to ; as four of them are but little known to the neral reader, we hope this little volume, with its rnest words, will carry the story of their lives to many homes, and stimulate others to join od's missionary women in foreign lands.

Messrs. Cassell & Co. have commenced the serial sue, in monthly parts (7d.), of Dr. Cunningham eikie's Holy Land and the Bible. The author's ell-known vivid style finds ample scope in these tensely interesting pages, and hosts of readers ill follow his footsteps through the sacred fields Palestine. The work is profusely illustrated by e pencil of Mr. Harper, and an excellent map is ven with this initial part.

Swallow Home; or, My First Two Years of arried Life, spent in South Africa. By E. A. H. lliot Stock. This is a simple and unadorned nar-tive by a Christian lady, of life at the Cape. She as no startling adventures to record, but the nar-tive gives a clear idea of men and manners and aces in that Southern Colony, while the notes of hristian work and experience will make it doubly elpful and welcome to many readers.

My Welsh Home. A Poem by John Morgan, ector of Llanilid and Llanharran, Glamorgan. lliot Stock. This poem in subject as well as etre, reminds one of "In Memoriam." Pictur-sque scenes, histories, memories are grouped ound the loved but lost home of the writer's boy-ood. These verses are worthy of a Christian en, though a brighter realisation of union with n ever-present Redeemer would make the book ore cheering for sad hearts.

The Lord's Supper. By Christopher Irvine, .A. Elliot Stock. Scholarly, sensible, scriptural, piritual. We have seldom seen the nature and ffects of the Lord's Supper more satisfactorily ealt with. Mr. Irvine is not afraid to point out plain language post-apostolic adaptations and omish corruptions of sacramental truth. He ows John vi. to refer, not to any outward cere-ony, but to habitual inward communion with hrist. His appendices are singularly interesting.

The Nine Famous Crusades of the Middle ges. By Annie E. Keeling. 2s. 6d. Wesleyan ethodist Book-room. We have here an admirable ourtrayal, in brief form, of the wars undertaken the name of religion for the rescue of the Holy and from the grasp of the infidel Turk. It is ell for us in these later days to acquaint ourselves ith the mistaken views that prevailed in ediæval ages, if only to quicken our gratitude for e greater light in which we live, and the more xcellent way by which God's Spirit has taught his ue Church to advance and vindicate his cause.

The World's Sunday School Convention. omplete Record of Proceedings. 2s. Sunday chool Union. The addresses delivered at this onvention, held in the Memorial Hall and the ity Temple, London, July 1—6 last, were well orthy of publication in this convenient form. here is hardly a phase of Sunday-school work at does not find helpful treatment in these ges, at the hands of one or other of the dele-tes, who came together from various countries the old and new worlds, and numbered in all out seven hundred. Many circumstances in-sted the Convention with a unique interest, and e report not only reflects much of that interest, t has an intrinsic worth which Sunday-school achers will not be slow to appreciate. Teachers ho carefully peruse this report will be the better uipped for their work of instruction, and also, is hoped, stimulated to greater exertions in defi-te soul-winning among the young.

Winter's Folly. By Mrs. O. F. Walton. Religious Tract Society. A very touching and beautiful little story. Mrs. Walton's knowledge of child-life is unique, and thoroughly natural. Poor old Winter is just such a character as all Mrs. Walton's readers will delight in, especially the young.

The Arian Controversy. By H. M. Gwatkin, M.A. 2s. 6d. Longmans. A specially useful volume of the "Epochs of Church History" series. While lucid and interesting as a chapter of history, it has a distinct value as an exposition of theo-logical thought. At the same time it is an admir-able vindication of Scripture truth on the doctrine of the Son of God. The creeds of antiquity cannot be understood or appreciated apart from the Arian controversy, which also explains several of the Church councils of the fourth century. Those who know anything of the thought of our time will, on reading this book, discern that though Arianism has long been extinct as furnishing a party name, it still survives among those who refuse to see in Christ the Revealing Son of the Invisible Father.

The Trial of Resen, or Semitic Fidelity. A Dream of the Past, in four cantos. By Rev. D. R. Morris. 6d. Office of the Protestant Evangelical Mission, 5, Racquet-court, Fleet-street. In this poem Semitic patriarchal faith is represented in conflict with increasing and encroaching idolatry. In Genesis x. the city Resen is mentioned as having been built by Asshur; Nimrod's kingdom is iden-tified with Babel. The "dream" has its lesson for the present admirably pointed. The ancients were sustained by faith in the promise of the mani-festation of the Woman's Seed. We, to-day, are cheered in view of the approaching second advent of Him who is our strength, our joy, our all. The plan of the poem shows much thought; the versifi-cation is happy, and at times majestic. Among some added compositions is one entitled, "Christ in the Promise; or the Dying Israelite."

The Biblical Illustrator: St. Luke, vol. 1. 7s. 6d. Nisbet & Co. This compilation, by Rev. Joseph S. Exell, maintains in each succeeding volume its high character for usefulness. The third Gospel, with its many special features and narratives not mentioned elsewhere, affords ample opportunity for treatment by illustrative anecdotes and similes, with expository, historical, and homi-letical notes. Here are 750 very full pages, carry-ing the work forward to the end of chapter vii. With great diligence Mr. Exell has gathered matter from a very wide reading, and if the Gospel is con-tinued on the same lines of thoroughness, two more volumes will be required to complete the work. As a practical commentary, it would be difficult to im-prove upon this "Illustrator," which really con-tains the cream of many valuable works brought together with great care and wise discrimina-tion.

A Window in Thrums. By J. M. Barrie. 6s. Hodder & Stoughton. Mr. Barrie has leaped almost at a bound into the front rank of the artistic and faithful literary delineators of Scottish peasant life and character. His gifts of observa tion are truly phenomenal, but they are equalled by the graphic facility and dramatic skill with which he tells his story. These sketches of a lowly Scottish interior are limned to the very life, as any one who is familiar with the humbler classes of the north country must testify. By the force of Mr Barrie's literary genius, the commonest and most prosaic of daily events in the humble weaver's cottage take on a halo of romance. The elements of tragedy and humour are often strangely com-mingled in seemingly uneventful lives, and there only lacks a gifted pen to enshrine a record full of real human interest and pathos. This lack Mr. Barrie has fully supplied.

Manifestations of the Trinity in the Old Testament. By Rev. H. Lindsay Young. 1d. Portsmouth: Tract Depôt, Protestant Institute Buildings. Clear in statement, and sound in exposition.

A deeply interesting booklet is Gleanings from Chinese Homes. 1d. Church Missionary Society. By Mrs. R. Van Someren Taylor, of Fu Ning Fu, Fuh-Kien Province, China. It is one of the Gleaners' Union tracts.

Nazareth. By W. B.-M. 6d. Hatchards, 187, Piccadilly, W. An interesting pamphlet, containing thoughts suggested by a visit to Nazareth. Archæological and topographical information is well presented, and important lessons drawn from the life of Christ.

Two little books, published by Mr. R. J. Masters, at 1s. each, and respectively entitled, Four Last Words from the Book of God, by Sarah Geraldina Stock, and Out of the Depths, a Message to a Backslider, contain nothing new in the way of treatment, but may prove acceptable to the two different classes of readers for whom they are intended.

The Seamen's Christian Friend Society (Offices: 225, Burdett-road, E.) has published in a neat booklet the powerful address of Rev. John McNeill at the forty-third annual meeting in Exeter Hall in May last.

St. Mary Magdalene's Bible Searching Almanac for 1890 has already been published, and may be had from Mrs. Seaver, St. Mary's Vicarage, 147, Queen's-road, Peckham, S.E. Each month the quotations are on a different subject.

Robertson of Irvine, Poet-Preacher, is the title of a new life of this distinguished divine, to be issued by Arthur Guthrie, Ardrossan, at the end of October. The title expresses the scope of the work; and Dr. Robert-son was best known as a preacher.

A Woman's Rights is the title of a homely lecture on the temperance question by Ellen Moorhouse. It is admirable alike in matter and manner. To be obtained from Mrs. Moorhouse, Highway and Hedgerow Mission, Forest-hill, Newport, Isle of Wight.

Unconscious Attainments in Holiness. By Rev. T. Greenwood. This is a paper which was read at the second conference of the Pastors' College Evangelical Association. It affords very profitable reading to the spiritual mind. (Passmore & Alabaster.)

Lights and Shadows on this World, and on the World to come. By Captain H. J. Yeatman. New edition. 1d. William Wileman, 34, Bouverie-street, E.C. Some earnest and wholesome words by one who thinks with clearness of God and his righteousness.

Daily Banners for Little Boys. By M. M. 3d. Partridge & Co. Addressed as soldiers of Jesus Christ, lads are urged to be brave in battle against sin and Satan. To help them, "banners"—or prayers, injunc-tions, facts, and precepts—from Holy Writ, for a month are presented, with a few practical remarks.

Messrs. Jarrold & Sons have added to their useful handbooks on East Anglia a twopenny Guide to Sher-ringham, a seaside village five miles west of Dover; and a sixpenny Guide to Fishing in Norfolk Waters, with full information as to stations, distances, bait, &c., by Robert Moll. Both these publications are admirably illustrated.

Christ All and in All. A discussion on the Divinity of Christ. By Rev. D. Pledge. 1s. Stock. A revised edition of a thoughtful pamphlet, setting out a conver-sation with one who had adopted Unitarian views. Not pretending to originality of argument or exhaustiveness of treatment, it is nevertheless a very useful statement of elementary Christian doctrine.

Divine Forgiveness, viewed in the Light of Seven Bible Texts. By Frank H. White. 1d. Partridge. A sterling booklet magnifying the forgiving love of God. The texts are some of the most precious in the Word of God, and we rejoice that this brief exposition of them has reached its fourth edition. Some beautiful verses by the late Mr. Joseph Tritton are added.

A second series of God's Messages for the Little Ones is issued by Mr. Caswell, of Edmund-street, Bir-mingham. 2d. Two sweet and easily digested morsels of Holy Writ are given on each page, besides an appro-priate stanza, the whole forming delightful morning or evening portions for one or two months. It is an excellent compilation for little ones eight or nine years of age.

The Ministry of Rebuke. By Rev. G. Tonge. 2d. Birmingham: C. Caswell. Originally read at the meet-ing of a clerical society, this Scriptural study is full of suggestion on a topic which certainly occupies no secondary place among the "divers ministrations" whereby the members of the body of Christ are called upon to contribute to the healthy development and per-fecting of the whole.

The Baptist Tract and Book Society, 22a, Furnival-street, E.C., has added two capital booklets to the Church Mem-bership Series. Some Common Objections to Joining the Church is a fireside homily, by Vernon J. Charlesworth (1d.); and Loyalty to Covenant Vows, a tract for Church members (6d. per dozen). Two additions to the Distinctive Series are: What the Baptists have done for the World, by Rev. G. B. Taylor, D.D.; and De-nominational Esprit de Corps (1d. each).

Why we do not mean to Change our Confession of Faith. By Rev. Kenneth Moody-Stuart, M.A., Moffat. A strong argument in favour of the confession of doctrines believed, and against the displacement of the Shorter Catechism, which some Scottish ministers are advocating. The author recognises the fact that this is not a creed-constructing age, and therefore he urges upon his Presbyterian brethren: "Whereunto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing." (1d. James Gemmell, 19, George IV. Bridge, Edinburgh.)

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on Gospel services in Bishopsgate Congregational Chapel, conducted by Rev. W. A. Meaton.——For blessing on a ten days' parochial mission, to be held at Red Hill, Oct. 6 to 16.——For blessing on an eight days' Gospel temperance mission, by Dr. Wade, at the North Camp Soldiers' Home, Farn-borough, Hants, commencing Oct. 14.——For blessing on a mission at the Y.M.C.A., Langney-road, Eastbourne, Oct. 20 to 29, to be conducted by Mr. W. R. Lane.——For blessing on a mission, to be conducted next week at Wrexham, by Rev. J. Pugh.——For blessing on a mission in Edin-burgh, by Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes, Oct. 13 to 21.—— For a son going to the University, that he may be made stedfast in faith, holy in life, evangelical in doctrine.

Letters to the Editor.

THE ATONEMENT AND THE SCAPEGOAT.

Sir,—The word Atonement means made at one. In Scripture it sometimes signifies Expiation (Heb. ii. 17), or the means by which a sinner is made at one with God; and sometimes it signifies Reconciliation, or the state of oneness with God (Rom. v. 11).

The word Azazel occurs three times in Scripture—namely, Lev. xvi. 8, 10, and 26. In the text of the Authorised Version it is translated scapegoat, with Azazel in the margin. In the recent version Azazel appears in the text, and dismissal in the margin.

The word Azazel has given rise to many curious speculations. Some regard it as a proper name. Some take it as representing a heathen deity; others that it represents our risen Saviour; and others, including the Jews, that it represents Satan. This latter view was entertained by several of the Fathers; and some still adhere to this opinion.

The term is made up of two words—namely, aez, a goat, and azal, to take away. All that has been said and written has left many unconvinced that it means a heathen deity, or Satan, or our risen and exalted Saviour. Let us keep in mind that oneness with God implies holiness as well as pardon.

Two goats were brought forward, and both were required to represent the twofold prerequisite to oneness with God. To use the words of your recent correspondent, both were "associated and identified," not, however, "in the one sin offering," but to shadow forth what I have called the twofold prerequisite to atonement, or oneness with God.

Atonement, in the sense of reconciliation, or oneness with God, prerequires sacrifice for sin. Hence the sacrificial goat. But it equally requires the complete removal, or dismissal of sin. Hence the scapegoat.

The goat on which "the lot for the Lord" fell was sacrificed; and this sacrifice was typical of the sacrifice of our Lord. The goat on which the other lot fell was kept alive; and Aaron laid both his hands on its head, and confessed over it all the sins and transgressions of the people, putting them on the head of the goat, and then sent him into the wilderness, carrying with him all the iniquities of the people into a land not inhabited. This represented complete deliverance from sin (Micah vii. 18, 19).

Hence I venture, humbly, to say that the live goat had nothing to do, strictly speaking, with sacrifice, but everything to do with the remission of sin. The first goat shadowed forth expiation as accomplished by the death of Christ; and the second, sanctification as accomplished by the Holy Spirit.

Each of these goats, then, prefigured an essential part of the Atonement, which prerequires both pardon and holiness. The idea of Satan being concerned seems quite inadmissible, and many are probably of opinion that it would have been better to leave the word Azazel in the margin, than transfer it to the text of the Revised Version.

The whole matter seems to come to this. Pardon and holiness are equally necessary to oneness with God. The goat on which "the lot for the Lord" fell was sacrificed as a type of the great sacrifice, made once for all, which forms the only ground of pardon. But pardon is not the whole of salvation. Hence the goat on which the other lot fell had the sins of the people transferred to him, and was sent with them into the wilderness. This set forth the necessity of holiness—of sin being remitted, or sent away.

In a word, the one set forth the necessity of pardon, the other the necessity of holiness—both of which are essential, ere sinful man can become at one with, or reconciled to, the holy God.

Dunfermline, N.B. A. M.

[Our correspondent seems to make the remission of sin the same as holiness. This is not so. It is to men already redeemed and forgiven that God says, "Be ye holy, for I am holy." To us it seems that by the slain goat expiation of sin is made by blood, and Divine justice is satisfied. The live goat, laden with the confessed sins of the people, is led away never to return, and thus they are assured that their iniquity is put away and their sin purged. Holiness to the Lord is taught in other types, but not in the scapegoat. Mr. Baron's view does not contradict the above. It adds another thought—viz., that the sins put away from the people are sent to Azazel, or Satan, from whom they came and to whom they belong.—Ed.]

Dear Sir,—In answer to your correspondent, in your issue of Sept. 20, I may be permitted to quote a passage from an old work on the Old Testament, by a Hebrew Christian (Benjamin Weiss), which covers four out of his five questions. It is slightly abridged, and one or two of the expressions are recast, but in no wise altering the sense.

"In Lev. xvi. 5, it is not said that the two goats should be taken for a sin offering, but merely 'for sin,' or, in reference to sin. The Hebrew word chattoth, although in a secondary sense it also means 'sin offering,' primarily means sin. It was only when the victim brought for sin was slain, and its blood sprinkled, that it was called a 'sin offering,' because it was offered for sin. In the verse referred to above, it is merely said, 'And he shall take of the congregation of Israel two kids of the goats for sin,' or, in reference to sin. Only one goat was to be slain for a sin offering, and even that one was chosen by lot. This serious error was the source of great confusion. It caused considerable difficulty to explain how the goat, once devoted to Jehovah, could be sent to Azazel. Now all this was the consequence of mistranslation. The goats brought for sin were never devoted to Jehovah before the casting of lots. After they were brought into the Tabernacle, lots were cast. The goat on which the lot 'for Jehovah' fell was devoted to God as a sin offering by the priest immediately slaying it, and sprinkling its blood upon the mercy-seat; but the other, on which the lot 'for Azazel' fell, remained alive to be sent to Azazel. It was, therefore, called Azazel's goat, and there is no ground whatever to call it a sin offering. In ver. 5 the expression, 'two goats for sin,' or, in reference to sin, is used, because that, at the time referred to in that verse, it had not yet been decided by lot which of the goats would fall for sin. But as soon as the lot fixed one of them for sin, the other immediately received its proper name—viz., 'Azazel's goat.'

"Every Hebrew scholar well knows that in the 10th verse l'kapper alav cannot mean 'to make an atonement with him,' as rendered in the Authorised Version; the word itto alone would mean with him, but alaiv means, surely, upon him. The 10th verse, when properly rendered, reads thus: 'But the goat, on which the lot "for Azazel" fell, shall be kept standing alive before the Lord, to make an atonement upon him (or, to absolve, or cover upon him), to send him unto Azazel into the wilderness.' The words, 'to atone upon him,' or 'over him,' describe the action of the priest in putting the guilt of Israel on the head of the scapegoat before it was sent away into the wilderness, as we read in ver. 21: 'And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him (the same word is used which is rendered 'with him,' in ver. 10) all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, putting them upon the head of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of a man conveniently there into the wilderness.'"

Thus far the passage quoted. Your querist asks: "How is it then your correspondent says in reference to the same goat it could no longer have anything to do with atonement?" Simply because it distinctly says in ver. 20, "And when the priest hath made an end of reconciling" (or, as in the Hebrew, "When he shall have finished making atonement")..."he shall bring the live goat." Atonement was only effected by the priest shedding and sprinkling the blood of the victim offered, and since this was not the case with Azazel's goat, it could have nothing to do with atonement.

I confess I do not see the force at all of the last question. We should surely lose a great deal of precious teaching, were we to reject every type simply because in every minute detail it did not harmonise. Are there no instances of type and antitype meeting during the period of our Lord's history on earth?

It was not presumed that the interpretation of the mysterious ceremonial connected with the two goats given in the article to which your correspondent refers was altogether free of difficulty; neither was it introduced as a new dogma, for who can speak with absolute certainty on a point like this, though I am convinced in my own mind that the interpretation given is by far the most probable. It was the interpretation adopted by the ancient Jews, as was shown in the article itself, and was held in the primitive Church. But on this as on every other subject of Holy Writ we shall not arrive at the right conclusion by starting a controversy about it in the public press, but by an individual and honest study of the Word of God, praying for the teaching of the blessed Holy Spirit, in whose light alone we can see light, and understand the deep mysteries of God. For myself I must beg to be excused from answering any more questions on this point, for I have neither time nor inclination for controversial subjects.

Obediently yours, David Baron.

Dear Sir,—In answer to Mr. Newberry's questions, I submit the following points for the consideration of your readers:—

(1) The two goats constitute one sin offering (Lev. xvi. 5, 7). The various aspects of Christ's redeeming work are set forth by the several types of the Tabernacle service. In harmony with the general method, the two goats typify two views of the atoning work of the Lord Jesus.

(2) It is clear from ver. 8 (Revised Version) that one of the goats was intended for dismission to Azazel. There is no identity between the goat and Azazel. The Lord receives one goat, and Azazel the other.

(3) That Satan is here referred to by the name of Azazel, the evil spirit of the wilderness, I think to be evident, and in perfect harmony with the teaching of the Bible. When Satan is called "the prince of the power of the air," "the god of this world," &c., I think it perfectly consistent to call him Azazel when he is referred to as the god of the wilderness.

(4) I think the two goats typify the Atonement of Christ in its relation to the Father, and in its relation to Satan. The Bible teaches us, from Genesis to Revelation, that the Atonement involved the surrender of Jesus into the hands of the Father, and also into the hands of the adversary. Jesus came to do the Father's will. He laid Himself upon the altar because the Father required it. He placed Himself at the Father's disposal. "He was obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." The goat slain by the priest was the type of the death of Christ as a sacrifice unto the Lord. But Jesus was likewise surrendered into the hand of Satan. It was Satan who bruised the heel of the Seed of the woman. Our Lord said, addressing those who came to arrest Him, "But this is your hour, and the power of darkness" (Luke xxii. 53). As Jehovah chose one goat to be sent into the wilderness to Azazel, laden with the sins of Israel, so the Father sent Jesus into the world, bearing the sins of the world, that He might be slain upon the cross by Satan, "the god of this world." Oh, wondrous love! Jesus surrendered Himself, voluntarily, into the hands of his adversary, that He might fulfil all righteousness, and enable the Father to be "just, and the justifier of the ungodly." That our sin gave Satan a certain right or power of death over us, and that the blood of Jesus, who died, "the just for the unjust," cancelled that power, seems to be the teaching of the Word of God. Jesus took our nature, "that through death He might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil," &c. (Heb. ii. 14).

Yours faithfully, Alfred J. Wood.

The Manse, Bushey, Herts.

JEPHTHAH'S VOW.

Sir,—The compiler of "Notes on Daily Readings" for Judges xi. supports the view that Jephthah did not put his daughter to death, on the grounds that such an offering was distinctly prohibited (Deut. xii. 30, 31), that the marginal reading (A.V.), ver. 40, is "to talk with," instead of "to lament"; and ver. 31, "or," instead of "and." He, therefore, concludes, "She was evidently devoted to a life of perpetual maidenhood—a bitter sorrow to an Israelite woman."

If the marginal readings quoted can be upheld, the writer's case would be a strong one, though even then there is, to my mind, the insuperable difficulty of how Jephthah, in so acting, "did with her according to his vow." Enforced or compulsory celibacy was as repugnant to the divinely appointed institution of marriage, and, therefore, as contrary to the Divine will, under the Jewish, as it is under the Christian, dispensation.

The Revised Version, however, abandons these marginal readings, and the revisionists seem to have intentionally rejected this view as untenable (cf. also A.V. and R.V., ver. 39, last clause).

There is nothing in the narrative signifying the Lord's approval of the vow or of its fulfilment. If it was, as I believe it to have been, a sacrifice such as the Jews offered in after times, the merciful Creator thus describes his own feelings of horror at such unnatural cruelty, "which I commanded them not, neither came it into my heart" (Jer. vii. 31).

The daughter's affecting appeal for a two months' espite of the sentence loses all its force, if she had lifetime before her in which to bewail her virnity; her lamentation naturally arising from the ct that, had she been married, her father's vow uld not have affected her, as she would have been nder her husband's protection.

We know that apostate Christendom derived the lea of the special meritoriousness and sanctity of e unmarried state of life from the heathen—astern ascetics, Roman vestal virgins, &c.; but ave we any reason to suppose that the Israelites uld then have acquired any such opinions from e surrounding nations?

Corrard, Lisbellaw. CHARLES S. KING

[This same question equally applies to human crifice. If, as we are inclined to believe, Jephthah terally fulfilled his vow, must it not have been om the heathen nations that he learned a practice abhorrent to the God of love?—ED.]

"IRISH SUPERSTITION."

SIR,—A paragraph with the above heading ppeared in your issue of August 30, having refer-ce to the fact that thousands of persons went on lgrimage to the shrine of Knock, among whom ere many from England, Scotland, and America. hy Irish superstition? Why not English, cotch, and American? as each nationality shared the imposing pilgrimage, and attended the veral masses which were celebrated.

Vienna. G. SAUNDERS.

[We agree with our correspondent that the head-g is fairly open to his criticism.—ED.]

MAN'S METHODS—AND GOD'S.

DEAR SIR,—The "signs of the times" are very inous. There is truly a departure on the right nd and on the left from the "old paths." The faith once delivered to the saints" has become so storted by additions to it, and by subtractions om it, that I am afraid the "saints" wouldn't ow it, at least they would not recognise it as that th which was dearer to them than life.

I write, not for the sake of "rushing into print," t for the purpose of propounding the following estions to your numerous readers.

(1) Is there not a danger to-day in the endeavour reach the masses of pandering to the natural nd? The natural mind has ever craved for a ible representation of God, for a religion easant to the senses, for a worship in which the sh can delight. Now, there can be no doubt at these fleshly cravings are ministered unto by idolatrous and sensuous worship commanded the Romish Church, by the Ritualism practised the so-called High Church, and I fear, in a more less degree, by the ritual and methods adopted the Salvation Army and other kindred organisa-ns in their meetings. I write in all love, but I afraid that sometimes in our love for the rishing, and our zeal in God's work, we in a asure overlook God's honour and glory. It is ll to have sympathy with the fallen, but first l supreme there must be sympathy with God l a jealousy for his honour and glory.

(2) Have we any warrant in Scripture for using means adopted by so many in their work on alf of souls? To answer this question it is of use to shelter ourselves behind the Jewish ual employed in the Temple services. All that, are told, was "a shadow of good things to ne," and, therefore, not a pattern to be imitated. But under the New Covenant, when substance k the place of shadow, and spiritual worship is only accepted worship, we hear our Lord and ster saying, "Follow Me, and I will make you ers of men." Who ever fished for men as He ? And He, who is the wisdom of the infinite d, says to every believer in Him who longs to be soul-winner and successful "fisher of men," ollow Me."

Does it only mean to follow Him in a consistent, y life? or does it not also mean that in the tter of Christian service, with its methods and ans, He has set us an example to be followed, ing down for us Divine laws and principles for guidance of his Church in its endeavour to seek glory of God in the salvation of souls?

Much more I would like to say, but I fear to spass on your space. I can only pray that ry Christian will, by God's grace, repudiate the ld's maxim of the "end justifying the means"; dit the Holy Spirit with still being in his people work in them the purposes of God, and to con-ce the world of sin, righteousness, and judg-nt; credit the Gospel of Christ with still being e power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth"; and with a Jacob-like faith to lay hold upon God until He gives the blessing for which their souls crave.

The time may not be far distant when those who are "sanctified by God the Father," and "preserved in Jesus Christ" will have to "earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the saints," when perchance God will lay his word as heavily upon the hearts of his servants as He did upon that of the Apostle Jude, and when each servant of Christ will confess with Jeremiah of old, "His word was in my heart as a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I was weary with forbearing, and I could not stay." Then, when the Church of Christ shall walk closely in the footsteps of her Lord, when her faith goes out as never before towards his Holy Spirit, expecting Him to work mightily in her midst, and when in the greatness of his strength she arises "fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners," then shall "times of refreshing" come to this weary world, and the heathen shall know that the Holy One of Israel is in the midst of her.

Yours in the bonds of service,

CHARLES S. HULL.

94, Southover-street, Brighton.

ARMY CHAPLAINS AND SCRIPTURE READERS.

DEAR SIR,—I have read the letters of your correspondents with interest, surprise, and regret; though I am sure they do not wish to convey a misapprehension, their letters are nevertheless calculated to do so, respecting the Society's principles, and the Readers' position and work.

Your correspondent, "G. K. S. M." calls upon the Society to declare its principles decidedly. Surely these are well known to all who take an interest in the Society. However, I may quote the Chaplain-General's eloquent definition of the same, given in an address at Exeter Hall, on June 7, 1886:—

"The Scripture-readers are to proclaim Christ, and Christ alone. They are to go forth to preach and live Christ; they are to hold up Christ as everything—Christ, the atonement for sin; Christ, the pardon for sin; Christ working through the blessed Spirit. They are to hold up to men Christ the Captain of their Salvation, Christ the Leader, Christ the Forerunner, Christ the Example, Christ the Hope of Humanity. They are to preach and love Christ. They are not to trouble themselves about other matters. This Society does not wish them to go forth to find fault with this or that kind of service (not to proselytise), they have nothing to do with that! Their work is to proclaim Christ, as Christ must be proclaimed by men who have 'Christ in them the hope of glory.' I am thoroughly agreed with these principles of this Society which are, as the report says, of God."

This is no uncertain sound. Is there a chaplain in the army ignorant of this basis of the Reader's work so clearly defined by the Chaplain-General?

"G. K. S. M." has dwelt much upon the superintendence of the Reader. He does not appear to me to be quite candid when he says, "unless they are furnished with due authority [the italics are mine] many doors of usefulness will be closed to them—i.e., they would not be allowed into hospitals." He knows as well as I do that without such authority the barrack gate would be closed, and that "due authority" means the authority of the chaplain of the troops, also of the commanding officer. Anything else would be contrary to the custom and discipline of the army. This is the keynote to the whole question. "G.K.S.M." is evidently not aware that his solution of the difficulty, as he terms it, is exactly that adopted. No chaplain is obliged to superintend a Reader, but the Anglican chaplain of a garrison without a Reader, is asked if he will accept the superintendence of a Reader (the rules of the Society being sent to him). If he accepts, it is on the condition and under the rules prescribed by the Society, a copy of which I am sure the secretary would be glad to furnish to any of your readers. I do not think it probable that a chaplain of the extreme types referred to by "G. K. S. M." would accept on this condition.

Now, what does "superintendence" mean? It means that the chaplain consents to see that the Reader carries out the rules of the Society; that he is true to his profession, zealous, and earnest, and not merely perfunctory. The Society further asks the chaplain to forward a quarterly report from the Reader himself, with any remarks he may think fit to make. The Reader's work, though supplementary to, is distinct from, the chaplain's. It is an individual work with individual men. Your correspondents, I fear, convey the impression that the Reader may be hindered, if not actually prevented, in his work, and that he is required to subscribe to the chaplain's ecclesiastical views and doctrine. This is not so. I know of no such case, nor am I aware of a Reader having complained to that effect. If your correspondents do, let them by all means write the same to Mr. Blake, 4, Trafalgar-square, the secretary of the Society. I am sure the committee will be much obliged to them, though I am not writing in their name; what is more, that they will bring any such case before the Chaplain-General immediately, and remove the Reader, if necessary.

Again, "G. K. S. M." says that to send earnest Readers to be superintended by Ritualistic chaplains is to pave the way to hypocrisy, insincerity, &c. I demur to this opinion. Supposing such a chaplain to accept a Reader, I have much more faith in the earnest Reader, than that he will sacrifice or compromise principle. If he be not "grounded and settled" in the faith and in doctrine, with the courage of his convictions, he is not fit to be a Scripture-reader. Supposing, for the sake of argument, a garrison with one chaplain, and he a Ritualist; what then? Shall there be no Reader? This is not my view; surely if ever a Reader were wanted it must be in such a case as that: I would, if I could, send not one but a dozen, so that the men may hear something of the living word of the Living God.

Perhaps your readers are also not aware that Ritualistic practices in the army at Divine service, as understood in civil life, cannot prevail. The services are defined as to what shall and what shall not be. (I am not speaking of India, as I know not what is done there; the chaplains are not in India exclusively for the troops, but for the cantonments generally and are under a different régime altogether). The period to which Sir Arthur Blackwood refers (twenty-five years ago) was, indeed, different to the present. The lives of some chaplains then were a greater hindrance than even their false teaching, and made a Reader's or any other work intensely difficult. Thank God that day is past, and the devout character of the chaplains is acknowledged whatever their doctrinal views may be.

In the year 1860 I was brought, largely through the instrumentality of a Reader, into the light of the Gospel. I therefore have good cause to thank God for the Readers in the army. For twenty years afterwards I served, both with my regiment and on the staff, under very many chaplains and with many Readers, and learned from such experience what a great power for good the Readers can be, to officers and men. Will the Christian public believe my testimony and aid the Society in its endeavours to send amongst our soldiers God-fearing men, who shall be the means in God's hands of bringing many a soldier to the saving knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. "G. K. S. M." refers to instances of failure in the selection made; this is equivalent to saying that the committees, whether in the Indian Presidencies or at home, are not infallible. Full inquiry is made, and every care taken in their selection; we can only pray that God may keep the committees from making mistakes. I will close by asking your correspondents to do what they can to help and encourage the Readers by giving them the weight of their support and influence.—Yours very truly,

W. J. EVERED POOLE.

Rockholme, Southampton.

MR. GLADSTONE ON THE SABBATH.—To the Sunday Observance Congress in Paris Mr. Gladstone wrote to this effect:—"It seems to me unquestionable that the observance of Sunday rest has taken deep root both in the convictions and the habits of the immense majority of my countrymen. If it appears to many of them a necessity of spiritual and Christian life, others not less numerous defend it with equal energy as a social necessity. The working-class is extremely jealous of it, and is opposed not merely to its avowed abolition, but to whatever might indirectly tend to that result. Personally, I have always endeavoured, as far as circumstances have allowed, to exercise this privilege, and now, towards the end of a laborious public career of nearly fifty-seven years, I attribute in great part to that cause the prolongation of my life and the preservation of the faculties I may still possess. As regards the masses the question is still more important; it is the popular question par excellence."

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Dr. Scott, Bishop of North China, who came home to be married, has left for his distant diocese, the recruits who return with him including a lady physician, Dr. [illegible].

An appeal has been issued by the Bishop of Bedford for ladies who can provide for their own maintenance, and are ready to devote themselves to work among the poor people in East London.

A new mission church has recently been erected at Wimblebury by Prebendary Grier, vicar of Rugeley, Staffordshire. The interior is quite plain, as it is intended to use it for a schoolroom as well as a church. It will seat about 200 persons.

The Bishop of Manchester thinks that one main reason of small congregations is the dull and uninteresting sermons of the clergy. The bishop says he does not expect all to be orators, but thinks that with pains and an industrious use of the abundant expository helps now available, even ordinary preachers ought to be able to make their sermons instructive to the intellect, and stimulating to the emotions.

At the Carlisle Diocesan Conference last week, Rev. J. Llewellyn Davies read a paper on "The Church and Socialism." He said he was afraid it could not be said the Church had always been on the side of the poor in economic struggles, but it was obviously wisdom for the Church to make friends of the democracy now that democracy was in the ascendant. The Church had also the duty to the rich of reminding them of their obligations to their poorer brethren.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. T. B. Woffendale commenced a week of "great joy" special services on Sunday last in Somers Town Presbyterian Church, Ossulston-street, Euston-road, N.W. He is being assisted during the week by Rev. William Reit, of Birmingham.

BAPTIST.

Dr. Joseph Parker, of the City Temple, is announced to preach in the evening, on behalf of the London Baptist Association, at its next Quarterly Meeting at Upper Holloway Chapel on October 16.

A joint committee, composed of gentlemen of influence belonging to the General and Particular Baptists, have held several meetings, with increasing prospects that the union of the two sections will be accomplished.

In connection with the Autumnal Session of the Baptist Union at Birmingham next week, a meeting of the Ministers' and Missionaries' Prayer Union is to be held at Wycliffe Chapel, on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. F. B. Meyer is to take the chair, and an address is to be given by Rev. Charles Williams, of Accrington, on "Prayer in its Relation to Preaching."

At the annual meeting of the Bradford Auxiliary of the Baptist Foreign Missionary Association in the Westgate Chapel, the total contributions of the eight churches in the town during the past year were stated to be £697, an increase of £28, exclusive of £91 raised for the Jamaica Missions, and £162 by the Young Men's Missionary Society, which has a membership of 278, and the distinction of maintaining a missionary of its own on the Congo, Rev. Percy Comber.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. C. Higgins, reporting on his work at Cann Hall Church, Ramsay-road, E., states that he commenced last year with a congregation of three persons. A chapel has been built to seat 400 persons, a congregation of over 500 has been gathered, a church with fifty members formed, and the Sunday-school has over 200 scholars.

Mr. F. Lionel Marler, senior student of Western College, Plymouth, who has been appointed by the London Missionary Society to Geety, South India, was ordained at Wivelscombe a few days ago. The charge to the missionary was delivered by Rev. T. S. Marcy. Mr. Marler will proceed to Geety from London on November 14.

Rev. T. Rattley, of Burslem, holds a weekly class for the training of lay preachers at Hanley, the centre of the potteries. The evening is taken up as follows:—A short address by the president, criticism of outlines on selected text, sermon by a member of the class, criticism of same. The members of the class are doing good work in the neighbourhood.

Rev. R. O. Bainbridge, of Mount View Congregational Church, Strand Green, N., has accepted an invitation to become pastor of the Cambridge-heath Congregational Church, Hackney, vacant through the retirement of Rev. W. Marshall, under whose pastorate of [illegible] years a new church of 1200 sittings, the [illegible] and two mission-halls were erected, at a cost of some £6,000.

There is an active Young Men's Society in connection with Eaton-square Church, Pimlico, S.W., [illegible], 200 members last session, and has begun the session with every promise of success. There are gymnasium, cricket, swimming, and football clubs as well as a reading-room and lending library. One feature of special interest is that Dr. Miles Ritchens preaches on the second Sunday evening in each month specially to young men, who are attracted to the church in large [illegible].

SALVATION ARMY.

Commissioner Adams has been appointed to take charge of the Army work in Canada.

It has been decided to begin operations in the Argentine Republic, South America, and a special officer has been selected to proceed forthwith to open the campaign.

"A grand Indian Durbar" was held on Monday evening in the Congress Hall, Clapton, the occasion being a farewell meeting to a party of twenty officers leaving this week for India. Commissioner Booth-Tucker stated that they have already about 250 officers at work in India. Addresses were delivered by several of the outgoing missionaries, as well as by Mrs. Booth-Tucker and Mr. H. H. Booth.

METHODIST.

The Primitive Methodists report that a great religious awakening has taken place at West Hartlepool during the last few weeks. The spiritual movement is spreading, and the life of the Church is enriched and vigorous.

The committee of the London Wesleyan Mission at their last meeting found themselves threatened with considerable financial embarrassment, owing to the heavy and increasing expenditure, the overdraft at the bank amounting to a large sum. Steps are at once to be taken to relieve them from this pressure by an appeal to Wesleyans generally for increased funds.

The Wesleyan Methodist Sunday School Union has appointed Sunday, October 20, as "Children's Sunday." On that day it is recommended that there should be private prayer between 7 and 8 in the morning, and special prayer-meetings before and after the usual public exercises at the sanctuary and the school. Instead of the usual afternoon Sunday-school, there are to be services for officers, teachers, scholars, and parents, with practical addresses, followed by direct spiritual conversation and prayer.

At the suggestion of Rev. Thomas Champness, the Wesleyan Missionary Committee recently requested the President of Conference (Rev. C. H. Kelly) to name a day of special and united prayer on behalf of foreign missions. The President is, therefore, sending a circular to all Wesleyan ministers, asking them to set apart Sunday and Monday, November 10 and 11, for this purpose. They are urged in their ministration on the Lord's Day to make effective reference to the work in heathen lands, and during the days of special intercession encourage in their people, both in the public prayer-meeting and in their private intercession, and encourage also in the Sunday-schools, a spirit of thankfulness, and prompt them to "love and to good works."

A month ago Rev. T. D. Barnes, late of Egypt, began work at Westminster as successor to Rev. T. E. Brigden, who for the past three years has been doing splendid work. The Westminster "Scott Memorial Chapel," which for years had been going down in vitality and attendance, is now a busy hive of industry. At the Sunday services the chapel, which is capable of holding 1300 people, is fairly well filled, and at the evening service, which is evangelistic, large numbers of the poor from the neighbourhood attend. The students from the Wesleyan Training College, to the number of 120, add considerably to the heartiness of the services by their singing and stringed instruments, with which twenty of them accompany the organ. They have their own mission bands also, and thus by open-air work help to bring the people from the streets into the chapel.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Archbishop of Dublin has been compelled to postpone his visit to the United States by the illness of Lady Plunket.

About a hundred persons professed to have decided for Christ during the eight days' evangelistic mission held by Rev. Thomas Cook in Newry.

There are now forty-eight orphans on the books of the Galway Protestant Orphan Society; and the Meath Protestant Orphan Society, which is in its 46th year, is also in a promising condition.

A very successful series of Gospel services has been held by Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell in Portrush and Coleraine Methodist Churches. In each place God was pleased to pour out his Spirit, and save souls.

The foreign mission field is about to obtain the services of another Irish lady, in the person of Miss Cromwell, of Limavady, who is going out to India next month under the auspices of the Presbyterian Zenana Mission.

The Dublin Total Abstinence Association, which did such good work last year, is preparing for a vigorous campaign during the coming winter, and has already organised a series of important meetings for the beginning of November.

The Sunday School Society for Ireland has issued its 76th annual report. During the past year the Society circulated over 7000 Bibles and 5000 Testaments, in addition to various other school requisites. There are connected with it 1094 schools, 14,585 teachers, and 107,145 scholars.

The Irish Wesleyan Home Mission report has been issued, and in many respects it is most encouraging. Nearly 3000 were received into church membership during the year. The amount received under the head of public collections and subscriptions showed an increase of about £500.

The Belfast Methodist Mission has taken a new departure, and has decided to conduct Gospel services in various centres through the city during the winter, with the view of reaching the working classes, thousands of whom go to no place of worship. With this object a tent has been erected in the Sandy Row district, and the meetings promise to be a great blessing to that locality.

Mr. George Clarke commenced a series of special services in the First Presbyterian Church, Armagh, on Sunday last.

A very encouraging meeting, on behalf of the Bible and Colportage Society of Ireland, which works on non-sectarian lines, and was established in 1859, has just been held at Warrenpoint, co. Down, when Rev. Thomas B. Naylor, incumbent of the parish, presided, and addresses were delivered by Rev. David Mitchell, Presbyterian minister, and others.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

Dr. A. K. H. Boyd has entered on the twenty-fifth year of his ministry in St. Andrew's Established Church.

Rev. John Robertson, late of Stonehaven, has been inducted to M'Crie-Roxburgh Free Church, Edinburgh, in succession to Rev. John McNeill.

On Saturday week Rev. J. B. Sturrock laid the memorial stone of a new mission-hall being erected by the congregation of the Free High Church, Paisley. The building is to accommodate 250 persons.

A new Free Church has been opened in Binend village, Burntisland. Rev. J. Kinmont, who presided, said that the building was not to be too intimately or exclusively connected with any denomination.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Very Rev. [illegible], Archdeacon of Worcester.—Rev. C. J. Sparks and Mr. W. Knowles, agents of the Universities' Mission in Central Africa.—Rev. Chas. Harrison, pastor of the Congregational Church at Epsom, Surrey.—Rev. Richard Roberts, of Dolgelly, an ex-moderator of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist General Assembly.—Rev. Wm. Hoey, Methodist minister at Knock, Belfast, in the fiftieth year of his ministry.—At Ellistron, near Letterkenny, co. Donegal, Mr. Thos. [illegible], at the advanced age of 105 years, a genuine Orangeman, of great simplicity of character, and a member of the Presbyterian Church.—Rev. Dr. T. W. Ree, vicar of Ballymacarrett, aged 73.

Evangelistic Notes.

Dundalk, Ireland.—The mission here for railway-men and their families, conducted by Mr. R. Nixon and Miss Cressie, is now closed; it has been most fruitful in spiritual results.

Mr. George Hefford, of the Evangelisation Society, has concluded a fifteen days' special mission at the Gospel Hall in Manor Park. The Gospel, so clearly preached by him, has been greatly blessed to saint and sinner.

Burnham, Somerset.—During the past two months services have been held by Mr. A. C. Trew, [illegible] Mission Society. Large [illegible] of children and adults assembled on Harrison Sands, to listen to the Gospel message. Many have been blessed, and several have professed conversion.

Peckham Rye.—A successful series of evangelistic services, held in a large marquee on the site of the Peckham Rye new Tabernacle (Pastor Frank M. Smith), has been brought to a close. For nearly three months services have been held every night, except Saturday. Large numbers have attended, and many have professed to receive blessing.

Mr. W. Mapstone, evangelist, [illegible] with the Evangelisation Society, and [illegible] with the Y.M.C.A., has some [illegible] be glad to hear from friends [illegible] services.—Address, care of Secretary, Y.M.C.A., 167, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

UNIVERSAL WEEK OF PRAYER.

The programme of subjects for the Week of Prayer, at the beginning of the New Year, has been issued by the Council of the Evangelical Alliance. All the missionary societies cordially co-operate with the Alliance in making this [illegible] widely known, and copies of the programme are already on the way to mission stations in distant lands. In order that the document may appear in as inviting a form as possible, it is translated into a great number of languages; and thus many Christians may take an intelligent part in the services, praying with and for fellow-Christians in all regions of the globe on the same subjects, and, as nearly as possible, at the same time. The languages into which the programme is translated are too numerous to mention, but may include Gaelic, Welsh, Arabic, Turkish, Syriac, Hindustani, Chinese, Japanese, Tahitian, Fijian, and Norwegian.

The Week of Prayer commences with the first Sunday in the year, and meetings are held in different parts of the Metropolis, as well as all over the United Kingdom.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible d Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas chardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of om card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, epared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our ders will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," d take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6.—1 Samuel XXVII.

AVID IN GATH (1—4).—In nothing does the Bible ffer from other books more than in the faithful-ss with which it records the lives of its saints. aults and sins are recorded for our admonition; are virtues for our imitation.

How came David in Gath?—His fall was in many ings like that of other saints. Wearied with aul's long persecution, he begins to forget God. ear takes the place of faith (1). Instead of ding in the trial further opportunities for the splay of God's delivering grace, of which he has d so many examples already, he seeks only to cape from the trial. The fall of many a saint gins in the same way. We stand by faith. Do t look at your difficulties and dangers without so looking at God (Matt. xiv. 30).

Others are involved in his sin (2, 3).—He not only ts into the wrong place himself, but leads others ere too. Does any backslider ever sin alone? emember those who stand or fall with you.

ow foolish the step was.—If David cannot trust od to save him from Saul, how can he expect fety among the Philistines? When, through ar, we take our case out of God's hand, we are ly led into greater dangers than we seek to cape. Distrust has led the anointed of God—e vanquisher of Goliath—to seek refuge in oliath's city!

David's further sin (5—12).—When a man gets rong with God he will soon be doing wrong to en. By a feigned modesty (5, 6) David obtains klag; and so, though God did not sanction the ception, he used it for restoring that city to udah (Josh. xv. 31). From Ziklag he went out the slaughter of Israel's enemies, and returned ith a lie to Achish (8—12). This is contemptible any man, but specially so in David. Was he t a better and a happier man when fleeing for s life before Saul than when acting so despicably this?

MONDAY, OCTOBER 7.—1 Samuel XXVIII.

David finds that if he is free from Saul he is xposed to greater difficulty. How can he meet e request of Achish to join him in battle against aul (1)? Further deception is needed (2), and is ractised.

Saul's distress (3—6).—For the last time the hilistines and the armies of Saul pitch one against e other (4). Though Saul refused to heed God's ounsel when Samuel delivered it to him, and has ain God's priests, he yet makes use of the forms religion, and inquires of the Lord (6). There is value in such an appeal. He is moved to it, t by sense of sin, but by fear of the Philistines. o go before God in the spirit of penitent con-ssion never occurred to Saul. Has sin hardened m beyond the possibility of repentance? His peal is unanswered (6), not because God's ear is eavy, but Saul's unconfessed sins separate between m and God (Isa. lix. 1, 2). There is hardly any ore awful example of Prov. i. 24—32 than is fur-shed by Saul.

Saul and the witch of Endor (7—25).—This is a ysterious incident, but terribly solemn. It was aggravation of Saul's sin (1 Chron. x. 13, 14). e knew that to seek counsel of such a woman was ntrary to God's will; hence his attempt, made, rhaps, early in his reign, to banish them (3). here is no reason to doubt that Samuel appeared. he narrative seems intended to convey that pression (12, 14, 15, 16). It was clearly mira-lous; was a surprise to the woman herself (12); d therefore gives no encouragement to the idea at communion with the dead is possible now.

aul appealed for help (15).—Confessing that God s departed from him, he yet hopes for something om Samuel. As though Samuel could do any-ing against God. This was the great defect in aul's character throughout. He could use religious rms, and deal with God's servants, but never got to real contact with God Himself. There is no lp for a God-forsaken man.

Samuel's message was one of judgment (16—19).—e recalls Saul's sin (18); declares his rejection 7); and announces his certain doom (19). What solemn exhibition of the terrible consequences of jecting God's counsel. Verily, "God is not ocked"!

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8.—1 Samuel XXIX.

"What do these Hebrews here?" (3).—Well might the princes of the Philistines put the question. David and his men, not only among the armies of the Philistines, but occupying a special place in connection with Achish (2), and apparently going to help the Philistines against his own people, over whom he is yet to reign! Have not other saints since David's day got into similarly anomalous positions? Every Christian who fears to take up his cross is really strengthening the forces of the enemy. Of worldly Christians the same question may be asked.

David's guilt appears all the greater when Achish speaks so well of him (3, 6—10). The more confidence he has received from Achish, the more despicable is he in deceiving him. And, having begun a course of deception, he has to continue it still (8). How many sins follow the lead of one. Hate David's sin, yet be admonished by it (1 Cor. x. 12).

What is he to do?—He would gladly escape from his dilemma; but is he not hopelessly entangled? The princes of the Philistines decide it (4); and gladly, notwithstanding his dissembling (8), he leaves the ranks of the Philistines. Notice in 1 Chron. xii. how God still watched over David during his sojourn in Ziklag. His followers greatly increased in numbers and strength. Yet God did not hereby justify his sin. Chastisement awaits him. Correction for wrong-doing is one of the privileges of saints (Heb. xii.).

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9.—1 Samuel XXX.

In this chapter God proves Himself to be David's restorer. He begins with David's chastisement (1—6). His deception so frequently practised upon Achish, and the distrust which led to it, cannot go unpunished. Ziklag is destroyed (1); the women are taken captives (3); the people threaten to stone David (6). No wonder that David is overwhelmed with grief (4). Yet God was evidently restraining the Amalekites. How else explain their not slaying a single person? (2). In trouble David turns to God (6—8).—Deception cannot help him now. "He encouraged himself in God" (6), and then inquired of the Lord (7). Thank God for the bitter anguish that brings the wandering soul back to God.

God evidently leads in the expedition which David undertakes for the recovery of the people and the spoil. Only 400 men are able to accompany him (10); an Egyptian left by the Amalekites to die is discovered (11—15); by his guidance they are led at a most opportune time to their enemies (16); and with great slaughter recover all that had been carried away (17—20). How soon after David's restoration does God begin to display his power on his servant's behalf! Surely David is learning that what he needs to fear is not Saul's persecution, nor anything else that man can do, but only his own sin. And are we not learning the same lesson?

The character of David, in contrast with that of his followers, appears after the battle. He gives equal share to those who have tarried with the stuff, and to those who have gone forth to the fight (22—24), and, in further grateful recognition of God's goodness in giving the victory, distributes generous gifts to the neighbouring cities (26—31). To add to the comfort and happiness of others, is an appropriate way of expressing our own grateful joy.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10.—1 Samuel XXXI.

After his wretched night with the witch of Endor, Saul returned to his forces; and on the next day the Philistines attacked the Israelites upon Mount Gilboa (1). The three sons of Saul were slain (2); and Saul himself, sore wounded and dreading the torture which his enemies might inflict upon him, first sought death at the hands of his armour bearer, and, when he refused, fell upon his own sword (4).

"So Saul died" (6).—It is impossible to write the words without recalling the favourable prospects with which his reign commenced; the splendid opportunities he had of making his reign a success; the sins with which his decline began; the deeper guilt which he afterwards incurred; and the doom spoken by Samuel's lips the previous night. It is a sad record, full of solemn warnings. Beware of the beginnings of sins. Do not neglect or abuse means of grace. Be right with God; the lack of this condition explains all Saul's failure.

For the Philistines, Saul's defeat is a great triumph. They regard it as a victory of their gods against the God of the Hebrews (9, 10). But in contrast with the indignities they practised upon Saul and his sons, note the conduct of the men of Jabesh-gilead (11—13). It is a grateful tribute to Saul's former greatness. They have not forgotten the great deliverance wrought for them at the beginning of his reign (1 Sam. xi.).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11.—2 Samuel I.

The Second Book of Samuel is occupied with the history of the second king whom Samuel anointed. It covers a period of forty years, and faithfully records, on the one hand, the triumphs of David, and on the other, his sins and their grievous consequences; while over all God appears, displaying grace, and wisdom, and power. Typically, the incidents of David's reign may represent either the present kingdom of Christ in the world, or his future millennial kingdom. Promises spoken to David are some of them only fully accomplished in the person of Christ.

The Amalekite who came to David with the news of Saul's death (1, 2) invented a story in which he figured as giving the death-blow to Saul (5—10). It is difficult, if not impossible, to reconcile his story with the account of 1 Sam. xxxi. Will not David delight to hear it? and will he not rejoice to see and possess the crown and bracelets that Saul wore? The Amalekite understood human nature, but did not understand a man of God. Having given his message, he waits for his reward. He receives it, not as he had hoped, but as he had deserved (11—16). What else could he expect when he had, according to his own confession, put forth his hand against the Lord's anointed?

In "The Song of the Bow" (17—27) David poured out his bitter lamentation in language full of beauty, and showing how free he was from mere ambition. He had not much reason for regretting the death of Saul. Had not his own life been made bitter by Saul's cruel persecution? This is forgotten, and the Song speaks of him as he was in his best days. It breathes the spirit of forgiving love, and of zeal for the glory of God.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12.—2 Samuel II.

How excellently David begins!—Though the kingdom has been promised to him, and he has been anointed for it, he makes no haste to possess it. His first act is to "inquire of the Lord" (1). Better do this than eagerly grasp at the crown. He has learned the value of waiting upon God. Following his direction, he dwells in Hebron, and there is anointed king over Judah (3, 4). This is not all God has promised; but it is all He at present gives, and David is content to wait God's time for the rest (Ps. xxxvii. 5).

David's first act after being anointed king, was to show his regard to Saul by the message sent to the men of Jabesh-gilead (5—7). To show kindness to Saul and Jonathan was to show kindness to David. His message was an offer to supplement words with deeds, if needs be.

Ishbosheth was also made king over Israel, and was supported by Abner, captain of Saul's host (8—10). David made no attempt against him, but continued to wait for God to act. Then civil war begins with its terrible consequences (12—32); the defeat of Abner's forces (17); and the death of Asahel (23). While torn with internal dissension, there can be no progress against the nation's common enemies. The whole chapter illustrates the distress of a divided heart. Have you admitted Jesus to rule only over part of the kingdom? There can be no peace until He rules over all (Isa. ix. 6, 7).

GOD CARES NOT for the length of our prayers, or the number of our prayers, or the beauty of our prayers, or the place of our prayers, but it is the faith in them that tells. Believing prayer soars higher than the lark ever sang; plunges deeper than diving-bell ever sank; darts quicker than lightning ever flashed.—Dr. Talmage.

THE HOME FOR MOTHERS AND BABIES, 9, Stansfield-road, Brixton, S.W., of which Mrs. H. Harrier is the hon. superintendent, has now been established four years, and throughout its career it has been greatly blessed. During last year thirty-nine girls passed through the Home, all of whom, with one exception, are now doing well. Six of these were women who had been reduced to destitution through want of work or ill-health; two were orphans, who, after a short residence, were placed in service. The report states that there are 9000 girls on the streets in South London. The support accorded to this endeavour is by no means proportionate to its genuine Christian character. No salaries are paid, so only the bare expenses are required, and these, we regret to record, are not easily forthcoming.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, October 13.

The Ark brought to Zion.—2 Sam. vi. 1—12.

Golden Text: Ps. lxxxvii. 2.

Fuller accounts of the events of this lesson are given in 1 Chron. xiii., xv., and xvi. We have heard nothing of the ark of God since, after its sojourn among the Philistines, it was sent back to Kirjath-jearim (1 Sam. vii. 1). There is no sadder proof of the general decline of religion that prevailed during Saul's day (1 Chron. xiii. 3) than this neglect of the symbol of God's presence. For about seventy years no effort had been made to restore it to its rightful position—in the most holy place. Indeed, the Tabernacle itself was now 450 years old, and suffered also from neglect. This lesson records David's attempt—at first futile, but afterwards successful—to bring the ark to Jerusalem; an important movement, making the political capital to be also the religious centre.

Ver. 1—5.—David was undertaking a right thing, yet not doing it in the right way. Even our zeal for God will dishonour Him, if we fail to wait upon Him for direction. There was no inquiring of the Lord in this case, as there had been before (ii. 1, v. 19—23). He consulted with the chosen men of Israel (1), and sought to make it a national movement (1 Chron. xiii. 1—4); but did not consult God. This was his first mistake.

Baale of Judah (2) is another name for Kirjath-jearim (Josh. xv. 9, 60; 1 Chron. xiii. 6). A new cart" (3).—David did not consult the instructions previously given (Num. iii. 29—31, vii. 9). The shoulders of the Levites, not "a new cart," after the example of the Philistines (1 Sam. vi. 7), was the right way to bear the ark. The Philistines had no means of knowing God's command, but David had. Hence the serious consequences that followed his second mistake. God's work must be done in God's way.

Uzzah and Ahio, sons or descendants of Abinadab (3, 4), have charge of the cart and its precious burden; while David and all Israel rejoice before the Lord (5). The harp and psaltery were stringed instruments; the timbrel was a tambourine or hand drum. The instrument here called a cornet was played by being shaken so as to produce a tinkling sound. Cymbals were plates of metal, played by being clashed together. What religious enthusiasm! Who would expect such a disastrous termination to an enterprise so enthusiastically commenced?

Ver. 6—10.—David's neglect of God's command begins to bear fruit. The oxen stumbled, and shook the ark (6). Nothing of the kind occurred when the Levites bore the ark from Horeb to Jordan, and afterwards around the city of Jericho. A cart may seem to be safer than the shoulders of the Levites, but if God has commanded the latter, it must be the only safe course. The judgment upon Uzzah seems at first sight severe, but the sin was greater than appears to an ordinary reader. As the symbol of the Divine presence, upon which God dwelt in glory between the cherubims, to look at the ark was death (Num. iv. 20; 1 Sam. vi. 19); to touch it was even more guilty (Num. iv. 15). Moreover, the circumstances were special. After many years of neglect the true worship of God was about to be restored. To tolerate any want of reverence now would have serious consequences. (Recall Nadab and Abihu, Lev. x. 1, 2; and Ananias and Sapphira, Acts v. 1—11.) The death of one man for his error may save many others from similar irreverence. David, too, needed to learn that Uzzah's death was a judgment upon his disobedience to the law. Would he learn the lesson? At first it appeared not (8); he "was displeased," and was only "afraid of the Lord" (9). How disastrously this first effort at religious revival ended! Uzzah dead; and David, who commenced the movement with so much zeal, displeased and discouraged; and the ark, instead of being at Jerusalem, a blessing to the whole nation, was delayed in the house of Obed-edom (10).

Ver. 11, 12.—Read in connection with these the much fuller account in 1 Chron. xv., xvi. See the preparation David made for the ark (xv. 1, xvi. 1); how fully he had learned the lesson God designed to teach by the death of Uzzah (xv. 2, 12, 13); how carefully he carried out the Divine instructions (14, 15); and how God prospered the effort (26—28). The lesson to teachers is—Do God's work only in God's way. Our own methods, however zealously carried out, are sure to fail. God's methods, though we may deem them inferior to our own, He is engaged to own and bless.

For the scholars a useful lesson may be made by taking the question in ver. 9: "How shall the ark of the Lord come to me?" The ark is the symbol of the Divine presence. Its place was in the most holy place of the Tabernacle. How secure the continued presence of God with us? It is an important question, affecting greatly the future life of our scholars. (Recall how God's presence was the secret of Joseph's prosperity).

(1) Consult God as to the way.—In this matter our own judgment and the judgment of others must be distrusted. The Word of God teaches us. We are without excuse if, having his own directions, we do not act upon them.

(2) Having learned God's way, adopt it.—It may not always seem best to us, but it is the only way. Into the heart cleansed by the blood of Jesus, God comes by his Spirit. An infidel asked a Christian child, "Is your God a great God or a little God?" "He is both," answered the child; "so great that the heavens cannot contain Him, yet so little that He can dwell in my heart."

(3) Treat Him with becoming reverence.—Not only as He dwells in your body (1 Cor. iii. 16, 17), but as He is connected with all sacred things—his name, his word, his house, his worship.

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

ROME.—The Jews, so long confined in the Ghetto, propose to erect a magnificent synagogue. Much encouragement has been given to the project by wealthy British Jews.

RUSSIA.—The Lutherans are still experiencing much oppression. A recent order by the Minister of the Interior forbids the organising of the customary annual festivals for the raising of funds to carry on mission work. The collecting or despatch of money for the support of missions to the heathen is also interdicted by the same order.

THE ISLE OF ELBA.—There is at Rio-Marina a flourishing Protestant church, which owes its establishment, in a large measure, to Signor Giovanni Gignoti, a merchant who carried on business between the island and Nice. Accepting the Gospel at Nice, Signor Gignoti zealously disseminated it. His death has recently been announced, but his work survives.

BEGGARS IN INDIA.—A missionary at Coimbatore, South India, has a meeting of beggars every Sunday afternoon. Two hundred and fifty or three hundred is the usual number present. They eat their food in a shelter erected for them, and then listen to a short Gospel address, with hymns and prayer, while the missionary, in order to better fix the subject on their minds, displays striking pictures.

CORSICA.—M. Maurice Cuche, of Marseilles, has been making an evangelistic tour under the auspices of the Central Committee of the Evangelical Home Mission of France. Assisted by M. Billot, he did a specially interesting work in the distribution of Gospel tracts and copies of the Sacred Scriptures. At Vico they held a meeting in the house of Major Murray, an English gentleman, who has lived on the island during seventeen years.

THE "FORWARD MOVEMENT" has begun to make itself felt in Sydney, New South Wales, the Wesleyans there having started a Mission similar to those in London, Manchester, Birmingham, &c. The new "Centenary Hall" is the headquarters, and Rev. W. G. Taylor has been appointed superintendent. The Mission programme embraces a variety of special features. Conspicuous are the open-air missions, an evangelists' home, mothers' meetings, boys' club, young men's sectional committee, gymnasium, seamen's institute, free library and reading-room, temperance missions, and district visiting on a large scale.

EDUCATION IN EUROPE.—Statistics recently compiled show that Russia, Servia, and Roumania are at the bottom of the scale in Europe as to popular educational knowledge; only about 28 per cent. of the population know how to read and write. Among the Latin races, Spain has the largest number of illiterates, 63 per cent.; while Italy has 48 per cent., and France and Belgium only 15 per cent. Other figures are: Hungary 43, Austria 39, Ireland 21, England 13, the United States (among the whites) 8, Scotland 7 per cent. of persons unable to read and write. In Switzerland 2 per cent., and in Germany only 1 per cent. of the population are illiterate. In Sweden and Denmark the average is still better.

THE GOSPEL IN FRANCE.—The report of the Central Society of Evangelisation tells of a remarkable acceptance being accorded to the Gospel in some parts of France. At Pouilly-sur-Saône, recently, the Mayor allowed the use of the Communal Hall for a meeting, and after a faithful exposition of the Gospel, the people asked the preacher to visit them again. Subsequent meetings were attended largely by people who showed considerable anxiety to know the truth. The mayors of neighbouring communes have also invited the evangelist to visit them, but hitherto he has not been able to respond to the calls. From all quarters progress is reported; Roman Catholics are reading the Holy Scriptures, and Protestants present their testimony without the molestation which they formerly had to endure.

INQUIRERS' COLUMN.

THE NUMBER FORTY.

Dear Sir,—In a translation of notes of Professor Franz Delitzsch's Lectures on the "O Testament History of Redemption," by Profess Curtiss, of the Chicago Theological Seminary, found the following passage concerning the nu ber forty, and I now send it to you, so that y may make use of it, if you think it would be interest or use to the readers of The Christian:

"Israel, the people of salvation, God's first-bo was tried forty years in the wilderness, but yield time after time to its lusts, and proved itself, wi a few exceptions, to be incompetent for its callin . . . But Jesus, the Man of Salvation, God's onl begotten Son, the second Adam, overcomes all t attacks of the evil one, which after forty days spiritual conflict reached their climax, and prov Himself to be the One who is to accompli Israel's redemptive calling, and to restore in a tra scendant way that which was lost through Adam

"Forty is the number indicating continuan under similar conditions between polar extrem —the number of the time of waiting, of the cris of the way to the goal. The following a examples:—Forty days Goliath stands over again the camp of Israel, challenging them, until the s of Jesse comes (1 Sam. xvii. 16). Forty da Moses lingers upon Mount Sinai, neither eati nor drinking, until he receives the tables of t Covenant (Ex. xxiv. 18, xxxiv. 28). According the same principle, forty days also pass betwe the resurrection and ascension. This rhythmic return of forty days really seems to be, as Jo Peter Lange (b. 1802) has remarked, a secret la of historical life."—Yours in the Master's servic

Aberdeen. L. Scott.

SABBATH-BREAKING.

Dear Sir,—In The Christian of Sept. 6, y say that travelling on the Lord's Day "is one the most common forms of Sabbath-breaking no prevalent." The week before you asked, "Do an of the Christians of Leicester use the trains Sunday?" Now, I have often wished to hav your opinion, together with that of others wh write for your paper, as to whether Christians a Sabbath-breakers when they use a train, or driv to their work on Sunday.

A Christian brother and myself have, for number of years, held a Gospel-meeting at a sma village, about four miles from where we live; w have also a Sunday-school there. The way, f nearly three miles, lies across a marsh; we coul go by rail, but have never felt at liberty. Ther is, indeed, but little temptation to do so in summe when we are well and the day is clear and coo The green pasture at our feet, dotted over wit sheep and cattle, stretching away to the Solwa Firth, which flows at the foot of the Scotch hill bounding our view to the north; on the other han rich pasture, meadow, and woodland, with here an there a turnip or corn field reaching to Skiddaw an Saddleback, towering up full in view to the south tend to make one forget the train, and shorten th miles we have to walk before we get home. Bu when the storm-cloud suddenly appears, hiding th hills, making the white breasts of the circling gull to stand out like burnished silver from the ink sky, the lightning flashes, thunder rolls, and the rai comes down in torrents; or in winter, when it i sometimes scarcely possible to make headwa against driving wind and rain, while we have n prospect for three hours of a dry change of clothes or, when coming out of the heated mission-room wet with perspiration, into a snowstorm, with bitter north-easter to face, and no shelter, we coul wish to be convinced from the Word of God tha we are at liberty to follow the example of many o our brethren, who seem to have no scruple abou using either tram or train.—Yours truly, Burgh-by-Sands, Cumberland. J. B.

A SLAVE-TRADE CONVENTION has bee signed on behalf of their respective Government by Lord Salisbury and Signor Catalani, the Italia Chargé d'Affaires in London. The principal pro visions of the Convention, which are of a mor thorough and stringent nature than those of an other slave-trade convention hitherto concluded declare the traffic in slaves to be an act of piracy and any vessels attempting to carry it on will, b that fact alone, forfeit all right to the protection o their national flag.

CORNISH'S AMERICAN ORGANS

Warranted for SIX YEARS.

Sold direct to purchasers in Great Britain and Ireland at WHOLESALE FACTORY PRICES and shipped direct from Factory in the United States ON TEN DAYS' TEST TRIAL.

If Organ suits, purchaser is to send us its price and pay freight; on the contrary should Organ not suit, purchaser can return it and we will pay freight charges both ways.

(Freight on Organs to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom will not exceed 50s. This Elegant Solid Walnut Parlour Organ, shown by annexed cut,

ONLY 14 GUINEAS

(Stool and Instruction Book Included.)

READ DESCRIPTION GIVEN BELOW.

STYLE "CHIME" No. 8,000.

5 Octaves, 14 Stops, Sub-Bass, 2 Octave Couplers and 2 Knee Swells.

CONTAINS 5 SETS OF REEDS, Viz.:

One Set	Large, Powerful	Sub-Bass of	18	Reeds.
"	Exquisitely Pure Sweet	Melodia "	37	"
"	Rich, Mellow Smooth	Diapason "	24	"
"	Charmingly Brilliant	Celeste "	24	"
"	Pleasing, Soft Melodious	Viola "	13	"

Solid Black Walnut Case, well and substantially made, and elegantly finished and embellished with fancy frets, carved ornaments and gold tracing. Patent Triple Upright Bellows, which are superior to any bellows ever constructed, rollers, handles, lamp stands, music-pocket, sliding fall with lock, and all the latest conveniences and improvements.

HOW TO ORDER.

It is only necessary to send references as to your responsibility from your Banker, Postmaster, Merchant or shop-keeper you deal with and the Organ will be shipped promptly on 10 days' test trial.

WHY pay a dealer in musical instruments in Great Britain or Ireland 100 per cent. profit, when you can buy direct from Factory as cheap as the dealer can?

Church, Lodge and Parlor Organs in great variety.

LARGE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE.

Whether you want to buy now or not, write to us for our Catalogue. It will give you most useful and interesting information about Organ Building, and will only cost you a PENNY POST CARD.

Height, 75in.; Length, 48in.; Width, 24in.; Weight, about 350lb. Be sure and write to us. WE CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.

TESTIMONIALS from Purchasers of above Organ.

W. ELDERKIN, Esq., Spalding, Lincoln, writes:—"I now have one of your pipe top organs, No. 1,500, and have had it tried by most of the Organists in the town, and all pronounce it the best Organ ever played on. I have also the "Chime" No. 8,000, which I consider a perfect marvel both as regards tone, workmanship, and handsome appearance."

G. D. CHRISTIE, Esq., 12, Crown Alley, Dublin, says of the No. 8,000 "Chime" Organ:—"I had one of the best amateur organists in Dublin to play on it. He pronounced it the best he ever played on. I may say that, as a piece of furniture, it is more than value at the price. You may give me as a reference."

THOMAS WALTON, of No. 9, Argyle St., Sunderland, Durham Co., Eng., writes:—"Your Style No. 8,000 Organ is simply perfection both to eye and ear, and I claim to have saved 10 Guineas by buying from you direct."

A. LINDSAY, Esq., of 38, Trinity Square, Southwark, London, S.E., Eng., writes:—"Organ Style 8,000 received this week; both my wife and I are highly delighted with it; accept our thanks for sending such an elegant Organ."

HENRY BLOCKLEY, Esq., of 13, Russell Square, Leicester, England, writes:—"We are all very much pleased with the 8,000 Organ you have sent us over. Its tone is remarkably fine, pure, sweet, and harmonious—while its case is an ornament to any drawing room."

J. FRANCIS, Esq., of 13, Francis St., Hetton Downs, Fence Houses, Durham Co., Eng., writes:—"Style 8,000 has given every satisfaction, and I consider it a marvel of cheapness. I am only too happy that I noticed your advertisement."

R. E. DAVIS, Esq., of Lurganboy, Manorhamilton, Ireland, writes:—"I am very much pleased with 8,000 in every particular, and consider it marvellous how you can supply such an instrument for 14 guineas. It is really elegant in finish and exquisite in tone"

Mr. JOSEPH PEDELTY, of Craghead, Chester-le-Street, England, says:—"Allow me to express my very high appreciation of your organ. I have seen in my time many reed instruments, but this, for purity and sweetness of tone and power, is unsurpassed and unrivalled. I can safely say that its equal could not be bought for £30. I am thoroughly satisfied and highly pleased."

CORNISH & CO., WASHINGTON. NEW JERSEY, U.S. AMERICA.

Now Published in one

HANDSOME SHILLING VOLUME

Post Free.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"

ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE

PERMANENCE of CURE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-First Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

CASE of Mr. GEO. BUNN of ST. LEONARD'S —RIGHT LUNG DISEASED.

This patient, a well-known photographer, applied to me in February last, by the advice of a friend who had seen a notice of my treatment in the Christian. He had had inflammation of the lungs some years before that time. A violent cough was now troubling him, with much phlegm and expectoration of blood.

I advised him through March, April, and May by letter. He also called at Coombe Lodge to see me.

The cough left him in April, and he was making flesh fast—but wisely continued my treatment—till well.

Writing me July 13 he says:—"I think it is only fair to you to write and tell you of the wonderful good your medicine has done me. I had not been well since the Autumn of 1888. I took a violent cold soon after Christmas, and soon began spitting blood; I lost my appetite, and my breathing was very bad. On consulting a doctor he told me that the apex of one lung was in a very bad state. A friend recommended me to try your medicine, and I have been taking it steadily ever since, and am nearly well. The same doctor saw me again about a month ago, and told me he was surprised to find my lung had healed. I quite believe that, under God, you have been the means of saving my life, and I desire to thank you most heartily for the same, and shall be very pleased for you to make any use of this letter.—Yours faithfully, G. BUNN, 32 ALEXANDRA TERRACE, ST. LEONARD'S-ON-SEA, SUSSEX.'

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

Gold Medal Awarded, Health Exhibition, London.

Benger's Food

For INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

EXTRACT FROM PRIVATE LETTER.

"The infant was very delicate; our medical adviser ordered your Food. The result in a short time was wonderful; the little fellow grew strong and fat, and is now in a thriving condition—in fact 'the flower of the flock.'"

BENGER'S FOOD is Sold in Tins at 1/6, 2/6, and 5/-, by Chemists, &c., Everywhere.

The Trade Supplied by all Wholesale Houses.

REAL Witney Blankets

THE

WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY

Are now supplying, direct from the Mills, the well-known

WITNEY BLANKETS.

Prices Per Pair:

Ordinary Size, 7ft. 4in. by 5ft. 8in., 12/6, 16/11, 21/-
Large do. 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 15/9, 21/-, 26/6
Special Hygienic Merino, 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 30/-

These Blankets are strongly recommended for their beautiful Colour, Durability, and Warmth, combined with Lightness in Weight.

All Goods sent Carriage Paid on receipt of Cheque or Postal Orders.

Full Price List and Testimonials sent on Application.

ADDRESS—

WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY,

WITNEY, OXON.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

WINTER PATTERN NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Sol

Carriage Paid on Orde of £1 in value to a Railway Station in t United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

6 MONTHS' HARD LABOUR SAVED!

CASTLE BRAND BLACK LACQUER

GIVES A PERMANENT AND BRILLIANT POLISH TO GRATES AND STOVES.

Retailed Everywhere, 3d., 6d., and 1s., or post free, 6d., 8d., and 1s. 2d.

CASTLE BRAND Co., Newcastle-on-Tyne.

INDIAN MUSLIN

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide) Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES, CURTAINS, BLINDS, DRAPERIES, SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6 Free per post o receipt of Po tal Orde

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Enter tainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelti also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperie Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

HUTTON'S PURE IRISH LINENS.

IRISH LINEN COLLARS. Gent's four-fold all Pure Linen Collars, all sizes and shapes, 4s. 6d. per dozen. SAMPLE WHITE SHIRT, LINEN FITTINGS, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d. each, post free.

Pure Irish Linen Goods direct from the Factory at Manufacturers' Prices.

FISH NAPKINS, 2s. 6d. per dozen. DINNER NAPKINS, 4s. 6d. per dozen.

IRISH DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS 2 yards square, 2s. 9d. each. NURSERY DIAPER, all Pure Flax, 4½d. per yard.

REAL IRISH LINEN SHEETING, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1s. 11d. per yard. SURPLICE LINEN, yard wide, 7d. per yard. HUCKABACK TOWELS, 4s. 6d. per dozen.

IRISH CAMBRIC POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS

guaranteed all pure Flax—Ladies' Size, 2s. 3d. per dozen; Gent's Size, 3s. 6d. per doz.

Samples and Price Lists free to all Parts.

All Parcels sent Carriage Paid to any Station in the Kingdom.

OLD SHIRTS. made as good as new, with very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free, ready to wear.

G. R. HUTTON & CO., LARNE, BELFAST.

WALKING IS NOW A PLEASURE TO ME.

COMFORT FOR THE FEET.

Corns and Bunions may be removed, and Enlarged Toe Joints reduced, by using THOMPSON'S NEW FRENCH CORN PLASTER. Those who are troubled with the discomfort of Corns, &c., will be glad to have attention called to this remedy, as it removes pain very speedily.

"It is a simple Plaster, thin as Silk, and comfortable to the Foot."—LADY MAUDE.

Sole Proprietor, M. F. THOMPSON, Homœopathic and Dispensing Chemist, 17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW, and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH.

Packets 1s. 1½d.; post free for 14 stamps.

☞ Ask for Thompson's Plaster, and Beware of Worthless Imitations.

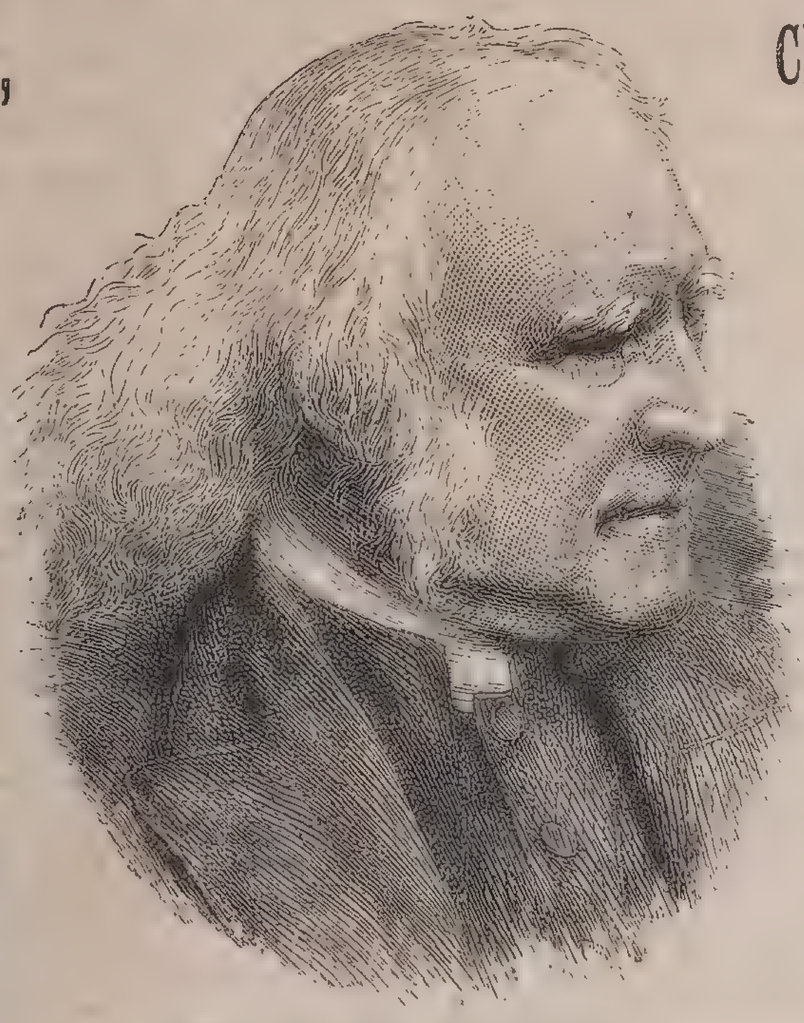
Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ✣ NOURISHING. ✣ STRENGTHENING.



The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

OUR YOUNG MEN.

Page 11.

[The late Dr. Somerville.]

THE CENTRAL SUDAN.

Page 18.

PRINCIPAL

Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 9
The "Backslider." By Rev. W. HASLAM....10
OUR YOUNG MEN 11
Mr. SYLVESTER HORNE at Kensington 12
Dr. PENTECOST in Scotland 12
DUMFRIES CONFERENCE 13
Our Brave Fishermen 16
Miss SHARMAN and her Orphans.....16
Conference at Clifton 17

CONTENTS.

Portrait and Sketch of Dr. SOMERVILLE....20
CONFERENCE CONCERNING ISRAEL:—
Addresses by Dr. Adolph Saphir, Dr. Edmond, Dr. Donald Fraser, Rev. John Wilkinson, Canon Fausset, Mr. G. H. Pember, Rev. H. E. Brooke, and others....22
Dr. GRATTAN GUINNESS in America 31
Valedictory to Seventy Missionaries 31

No. 1028.] FRIDAY, OCT. 11, 1889.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

☞ Our Next Issue will be a Double Number, price 2d., and will contain a copy of "The Christian" Sheet Almanack for 1890.

Suitable as a Gift Book.

THE HERALD of MERCY VOLUME

For 1889.

In attractively Bound Covers. Price 1s.

"A treasure house of Gospel truth, in picture and story. Good for old and young."—Footsteps of Truth.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian" SHEET ALMANACK

For 1890.

Price One Penny. 1s. per dozen, post free.

A large Broadside Sheet (size 20 in. by 30 in.) printed in TWO COLOURS, with NINE ILLUSTRATIONS depicting various scenes in the life of Jacob; also containing a carefully-selected text for each day of the year, postal information, phases of the moon, &c.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"TELL JESUS:"

RECOLLECTIONS OF EMILY GOSSE.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

"In this delightful narrative of Christian experience we have an example of working for Jesus, and being happy; of suffering bodily affliction, and being happy; and of dying, and being happy."—Wesleyan Times.

Cheap Edition: Tinted Covers, 6d.

Special Cheap Edition, for Free Distribution: Tinted covers, One Penny; 7s. per 100 net.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY THE REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

7th Thousand.

THE SHEPHERD PSALM:

MEDITATIONS on the 23rd PSALM.

"The Lord is my Shepherd: I shall not want."

By REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.
(Of Regent's Park Chapel.)

In a Pocket Volume, Cloth boards, 1s.;

Superior Edition:
Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"A piece of choice exposition, in which the teaching of the Psalm is faithfully and clearly exhibited, while the spirit of the Psalm prevades the whole book. It will prove a cordial to the faint, an encouragement to the desponding, a guide to the perplexed, and edifying to all. The writer enters fully and sympathetically into the soul's experiences, and meets their different phases with appropriate and loving counsels."
Footsteps of Truth.

Uniform with "THE SHEPHERD PSALM."

14th Thousand.

CHRISTIAN LIVING.

By REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 1s.;
Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"Mr. Meyer writes with all the warmth of one who tastes, handles, and feels the Word of Life. In this book he stretches out a loving hand to his fellows in the Christian course, eager to help them in the pathway of holiness."—Footsteps of Truth.

13th Thousand.

THE PRESENT TENSES of the BLESSED LIFE.

By REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 1s.;
Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"The Author has learnt the secret of living in the will of God; and he is doing his best to teach this secret to others. It is the very book to put into the hands of a humble Christian seeking a higher, calmer, and steadier life."—Irish Congregational Magazine.

6th Thousand.

ABRAHAM: or, THE OBEDIENCE OF FAITH.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, SPECIALLY ENGRAVED FOR THIS WORK.

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.;
Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This book is beautifully illustrated, and so tastefully bound as to be a most acceptable gift book. . . . Our teachers may learn from it how to draw out the spiritual lessons of the sacred Word."—Gospel Magazine.

"A delightful book; full of experimental religion, and a most suitable present for any true-hearted young man or woman."—The Record.

"It is a charming book."—Baptist Messenger.

10th Thousand.

ELIJAH: and the SECRET OF HIS POWER.

WITH NINE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATIONS.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"The lessons to be learnt from the life of this prophet are well drawn out and emphasised in the pages before us. . . . Mr. Meyer's language is clear, forcible, descriptive, and interesting; his doctrine is always pure and elevating."—The Rock.

10th Thousand.

ISRAEL: A PRINCE WITH GOD.

THE STORY OF JACOB RETOLD.

WITH FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE RIVER JORDAN AND JACOB'S WELL.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Exceedingly good. Not only spiritual, as everything from our brother, Mr. Meyer, would be—but also thoughtful, fresh, suggestive, and thoroughly practical."
Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with many thanks, Clothing, "Anonymous."

The Infant Day Nursery. Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Free Ragged Day Schools. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Toy Classes. Shelter for Boys and Girls. Industrial Classes. Rough Ragged Boys' Classes. Sunday Schools, Meetings, Classes and Institute for Elder Girls and Young Women. Young Men's Christian Society, Meetings, Library, Bible Classes, Prayer Meetings. Temperance Meetings. Men's Bible Class. Lodging House Services. Evangelistic Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Room to room Visitation, and other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest contributions in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer. Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler. Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

For 103 years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 240 Christian men and women.

Funds are urgently needed.

The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE. — CHELTENHAM CONFERENCE, October 22—24.

Addresses will be given, on important subjects, by the following, among others: The Revs. Canon Bell, D.D., Dr. Donald Fraser, Hubert Brooke, Dr. Henry Evans, Henry E. Brooke, Dr. L. B. White, Philip Colborne. J. Hudson Taylor, Talbot Greaves, Dr. Clement Clemance, Dr. John Culross, Dr. E. E. Jenkins, Canon Fausset, George Piercy, Canon Ripley, and Colmer B. Symes, The Right Honble. Lord Polwarth, General Sir Robert Phayre, The Baron De Ferrières, and Donald Matheson, Esq., are also expected to take part in the proceedings. Programme, containing full particulars as to subjects and speakers, will be forwarded on application to the SECRETARIES of the Alliance, 7, Adam-street, Strand.

THE WOMEN'S VILLAGE MISSION,

PALESTINE, has been established one year. During six months thirty visits have been paid in the villages round Jerusalem, and in the city itself; 986 sick relieved; and 31 Gospel meetings for Women have been held. The English Deaconess House, Jaffa-road, Jerusalem, is the central household of the Mission. Ladies are invited to join this Missionary Association. Help is asked to defray expenses. Contributions may be sent to the Treasurer, the Rev. H. PELHAM STOKES, or to the Hon. Sec., Miss M. A. LLOYD, 143, Clapham-road. Ladies are invited to apply personally from 3 to 5 on Tuesdays.

ORPHAN HOME, WALTHAMSTOW.

The Sale of Work and various useful and fancy articles will be held (D.V.) on

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY,

October 9 and 10, at The Home, Eastfield House, Hoe-street, Walthamstow. Open at 3 o'clock each day. Admission free. Gifts of every kind are wanted to furnish the stalls, and will be thankfully received by Mrs. PARSONS, addressed as above.

LONDON CABMEN'S MISSION HALL,

King's Cross, W.C., and Home of Rest, Ventnor, I.W. Superintendent, Mr. JOHN DUPEE, 165, Hemingford-road, Barnsbury, N.; Treasurer, Mr. JAMES WHITE, 45, Gordon-square, W.C. Many have been much benefited by their stay at the Home of Rest, and are very thankful. Funds are urgently needed to carry on the above work; the smallest donation thankfully received by the Superintendent or Treasurer.

LEYSIAN MEDICAL MISSION,

Whitecross-street, needs funds. 150 patients seen weekly, Gospel services held. Subscriptions received by Dr. GRIFFITH, Honorary Physician, 45, Finsbury-square, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

"WHO WILL GO FOR US?"—Earnest

young Men and Women trained free as Evangelists and Mission Nurses. Grants towards support of family in urgent cases while training. Scholarship not primary in all cases. After long faithful service C. A. Readerships generally obtainable.—SECRETARY, Church Army, 130, Edgware-road, London, W. (Funds also urgently needed.)

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

THE LORD'S PORTION.—All who approve of dedicating a fixed proportion of income to charitable purposes are invited to join The Proportionate-Giving Union. Formed in 1887. Nearly 200 members.—Full particulars from Rev. WATKINS, Ubbeston Vicarage, Yoxford.

STAR VILLA ORPHANAGE,

Godwin-road, Hastings.—Help is most urgently needed to prevent the absolute necessity of the committee reducing the present number of Orphans. Mrs. WILLIS is Hon. Superintendent.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58,

St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years, board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies for midwifery and other students.
Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN,

Hackney.—Will any charitable Lady or Gentleman contribute towards the support of a blind Girl whose father is also blind and very poor? Particulars may be had of Miss RYE. Subscriptions will be thankfully received.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian" (PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	6
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

ELIZABETH FRY REFUGE, Mare-

street, Hackney.—Washing required from institutions or families. No chemicals used. Prices moderate. This valuable Institution for the Reception of Female Prisoners on their discharge from prison being mainly self-supporting, the Committee are anxious to increase their orders for Laundry Work.—Address, MATRON.

Educational.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Rosehill Preparatory School.—Principal, Miss BAYNE.—The Rev. W. H. Rednap, Incumbent of St. James', Ryde, strongly recommends this School as an Educational Home for boys (number limited to six). Reference permitted to resident nobility and gentry, parents of former pupils. Terms 40 guineas per annum, inclusive.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

BLENHEIM HOUSE, Glastonbury, Somerset.—High-class Ladies' School.—Miss M. CRUSE receives a limited number of Boarders. Efficient governesses and visiting masters. Home comforts. Individual influence and attention. Pupils received from abroad. Kindergarten class for juniors. Terms moderate.

MANADON VILLA SCHOOL, Tavistock-road, Plymouth.—The Misses LANE receive a limited number of Resident and Daily Pupils, whose education and Christian training are conducted with the utmost care. Preparation for all the Local examinations. References to parents of present and former pupils.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE LOCAL EXAMS.—Two well-bred Girls can be received on special terms to join classes for either of the above in high-class School. Results this year, twenty-four successes, no failures. Thorough education and training.—EXAMINATION, 42, Craven-hill-gardens, Lancaster-gate, W.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced September 17.

TO FILL UNEXPECTED VACANCY, a Gentleman's Son would be received in a well-established Preparatory School at reduced terms.—LADY PRINCIPAL, Gazette Office, Weston-super-Mare.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received. — For terms and references. Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, 93, Kensington-park-road, W.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Apply to PRINCIPAL. School re-opened Sept. 18.

ILFRACOMBE.—Elmcote, Torrs Park.—A happy Home, with thorough education and Christian training, for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Every care taken of delicate Girls, or Children whose parents are abroad.—Terms, &c., apply to Mrs. TROUSDALE, Principal.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Gentleman's Daughter can be received on special terms. High-class School. Fourteen pupils taken. Languages, English, drawing, music. 30 guineas. Music from professor, 35 guineas.—ALPHA, Oval House.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen, Hughenden, Westcombe-park, Blackheath.—The Misses BROWN and GOOD, late of Chatsworth Lodge, Chiswick, finding the air of Chiswick too damp, have removed to the above address, where they have taken a large, detached house. They receive twenty resident pupils only. First-class education, with careful Christian training and home comforts. Children from India received and lovingly cared for. References kindly permitted to Mrs. Pennefather, J. E. Mathieson, Esq. (Mildmay), and parents.

TO PARENTS GOING ABROAD.—A young Lady wishes to meet with a little Girl to train and educate with her own little nephew, whose parents are abroad. Highest references given and required.—A., 89, Cranfield-rd., Brockley, S.E.

ENGAGEMENT WANTED by highly educated, experienced Christian Governess. Abstainer. Advanced French and German (Paris, North Germany), English, music, literature.
FAITH, c/o Miss Gough, 17, Old Cavendish-st., W.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A.; Vice-Principal: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A., T.C.D. School will re-open, (D.V.), Thursday, September 26.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter. —Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the last twelve years pupils have obtained more than two hundred certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Deepdale, Caterham Valley.

FRANCE.—Professor PONGE, M.A., Arras (near Calais and Boulogne), will receive in his family one or two young Boarders. Brothers or Sisters taken on special terms. References exchanged.

FRL. K., Box Villa, Warley, Essex, offers a thoroughly good education, with Christian influence and home comfort, to two children. Terms moderate. Excellent references from England and abroad.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, Harley House, Bow road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

YOUNG FRENCH PROTESTANT GENTLEMAN, B. ès L. (19), Grandson of Mr. J. Keller, of Paris, most highly recommended, wishes to give French lessons in return for Board and lessons in mathematics and chemistry.—E. A., c/o Rev. DU PONTET DE LA HARPE, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W.

REV. G. D. BARTLET, M.A., receives, at his residence in Highgate, ten Pupils (from 9 years) to board and educate for commercial or professional spheres. Able masters, individual attention, and careful Christian training. Highgate is strongly recommended by the medical profession. Fees, from 18 guineas per term.

FRENCH TUTOR seeks appointment in England. Young, but of some experience. Highest recommendations. Reference permitted to M. le Pasteur DAN. COURTOIS, Laon (Aisne, France), who will give further particulars.

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESS wanted, to take entire charge of two children, 7 and 11. Pleasing manner, well educated, good needlewoman, and experienced in teaching. Carte and particulars.—Mrs. DAY, Draper, Ilfracombe.

CAMBRIDGE.—The Vicar of St. Matthew's (population 8,000, poor) wishes to meet with a Deaconess or Bible-woman, to work specially among girls. Moderate salary.
Rev. JOSEPH HARGROVE, Cambridge.

FOREIGN GOVERNESS.—Wanted, after Christmas, a Lady, competent to teach French, German, and elementary music, in a small high-class school in the north of England.
H. L., Polam Hall, Darlington.

EXPERIENCED GOVERNESS desires re-engagement to children under 14. English, French, music, drawing, elementary Latin, calisthenics. Church of England. Highest references. L. C., The Oaks, Huntspill, Bridgwater, Somerset.

GOVERNESS.—Wanted, in Christian family, re-engagement as Governess to young children. English, music, and French. Experienced. Miss KNIGHT, Kingsnympton, Chulmleigh, Devon.

AS GOVERNESS.—Situation required immediately. Nursery or school. Age 18. Music, French, German, English, elementary Latin; algebra. Certificated. References; testimonials. No objection to go abroad.
H., 39, George-street, Maidstone.

EDUCATIONAL.—The notice of Parents seeking a truly godly individual training for their daughters, is invited by a Christian Mother, who esteems it a privilege to bear testimony to the incalculable benefit derived by her daughters whilst completing their education at a well-known high-class Ladies' School. Guardians of orphaned families may transfer their charges, confident of the happiest results. The discipline so essential to the well-being of the young, is associated with the refinements of a superior home, and exceptionally healthful surroundings.—Mrs. H. K. M., c/o Housekeeper, 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

HANOVERIAN LADY of 45, educated in Paris and Germany, desires situation as Governess or Companion.
SISTER MARY, 60, Greek-street, Soho.

GIRLS' SCHOOL, The Gables, Holden-avenue, Woodside-park, N. — Thorough education. Christian influence, and home comforts. Special attention paid to physical culture. Pure bracing air and lovely country. Highest references. The experience of the Principal is specially suited to the requirements of children from India.—For particulars apply to the Principal, Mrs. RAMSAY WILSON.

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES, Companions, and Lady Housekeepers of high principles are frequently supplied to Ladies seeking such, by application to the Governess Registry, Soho Bazaar, Soho-square, London, W. Testimonials never dispensed with. Free of all expense to parents.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

A PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON of eminence in Russia and Germany, now practising in Paris and speaking several languages, would like to accompany a gentleman or family abroad for a few months.
M. D., care of Manager, 205, Rue St. Honoré, Paris.

F. H. LEYBOURNE, evangelist, who has for the past nine years been fully engaged in Mission Work, is now seeking some kind of settled appointment in the Lord's service. Excellent testimonials.
449, Hanover-buildings, Bermondsey, London, S.E.

A CHRISTIAN WORKER, who has been a self-supporting Missionary in Japan for two years, desires to offer his services to a Missionary Society, in order that he may devote his whole time to evangelistic work. This he cannot now do.—JAPAN, c/o Housekeeper, 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

AS OFFICE CLERK, or for any position of Trust.—A Clergyman desires to recommend a young Man, aged 25. Excellent character. Nominal salary required.
Rev. W. MASON, Leverton Rectory, Boston.

BOY, Lame from Hip Disease.—Would anyone kindly employ indoors, bright nice-looking Boy (15), eldest of poor respectable widow's five children. Willing, steady. Abstainer. Member of Advertiser's Bible-class.—Miss SPICER-JAY, Willowdene, King's-road, Clapham.

A CHRISTIAN WIDOWER having, through bereavement, to leave his situation which he has held for 14 years, earnestly seeks a position where intelligence and trust would be appreciated. Highest recommendation and references.
J. FOORD, 14, Sloane-terrace, S.W.

IMPROVING SITUATION, in immediate neighbourhood of address given, with kind Christian care, desired for young Girl. Eighteen months' personal character.—Miss BENNETT, 16, Park-village East, London, N.W.

AS MATRON, or any position of trust.—Re-engagement wanted, by a Christian person who has had eight years' experience in rescue work, with a knowledge of housekeeping, nursing, and laundry. Reliable. Good references. Near London preferred.—S. H., 191, High-street, N.

MRS. ANTOINE BUTLER wishes to find a place in or near London, for a Widow, aged 40, whom she can most highly recommend as Maid to a middle-aged Lady. She is a plain dressmaker, good hairdresser, is tall, nice-looking, good-tempered and obliging. 11 years in last place. Wages £25.
12, St. James's-terrace, Clonskeagh, Dublin.

OFFICE SITUATION wanted, or any place of trust, by young Man (23), accustomed to upholstering and drapery. Christian and abstainer. Slightly disabled. Would begin with small salary, or would give time.—H., 1, Laburnum-villas, Waldingfield-road, Sudbury, Suffolk.

AS HOUSEKEEPER in private or business house. Thoroughly domesticated. Competent to take entire management. Or Assistant-Matron. Age 37. Abstainer. Good references.
M. C., c/o Miss Howe, Bow, North Devon.

AS WORKING HOUSEKEEPER in Christian household. Re-engagement required by superior, trustworthy person. Thoroughly domesticated. Abstainer.—Miss AGOCK, c/o Mrs. Harper, 3, Eltham-green, Eltham, Kent.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER, or Help to a delicate mother. An engagement, as above, or any position of trust, desired.
HOPE, 89, Foulden-road, Stoke Newington, N.

RE-ENGAGEMENT wanted as Housekeeper, Matron, or any position of trust. Practical knowledge of cooking and needlework. Careful manager. Domesticated. Highest references. Would go abroad.
Miss GRIER, Post-office, Shoeburyness.

DRESSMAKER'S ASSISTANT or Wardrobe-Maid.—Situation as above wanted for a young Person, aged 20. Small salary and comfortable home. References required.
MANAGERS, P.M.V. Homes, Addlestone, Surrey.

HOME WANTED for a Christian Woman. Has been a dressmaker; somewhat deaf. Age 48. Can do plain needlework, and make herself generally useful.—Inquiries answered by C. BATTSON, 88, Brighton-road, Stoke Newington, N.

NO SALARY.—Lady-friend, Companion (travelling or otherwise) for the winter. Good linguist, reader, and walker, capable and experienced traveller, kind, cheerful, active and obliging. Could read up with a delicate girl, chaperone a young Lady, or comfort the lonely, sorrowful, or aged.
X. Y. Z., 23, Kimbolton-road, Bedford.

NORTH GERMAN PROTESTANT, aged 20, wants situation as Nurse. Good-tempered, fond of children. One year's character in England. Understands little English.—All particulars from Mrs. PHILIP, Timsbury, Bath.

THE DAUGHTER of a retired officer is seeking a situation in a small family in which she would have one or two little children to take charge of and teach. Is very fond of teaching and needlework, and has had some experience. Is more anxious for a comfortable home than for a large salary. References given and exchanged.
Mrs. PARR, The Vicarage, Yoxford, Suffolk.

SISTER MARY recommends a very suitable young Lady as Companion to Invalid. Good references.—SISTER MARY, 60, Greek-street, Soho.

AS MOTHER'S HELP.—Young Lady seeks situation as such. Fond of children. Good needlewoman. In fellowship with Open Brethren. Total abstainer.—Miss GRUBB, Southland House, King's Highway, Plumstead, Kent.

WILL ANY CHRISTIAN LADY take a young Woman, age 19, into her service, and give her a start in life. Will give three months' services.
X., c/o Mrs. Godfrey, Stationer, Kelvedon, Essex.

A LADY wishes to meet with another desiring Companionship and Assistance. No salary.—Z. E., c/o Mr. James, 186, Burnt Ash-hill, Lee, S.E.

A LADY, EXPERIENCED in evangelistic work, will conduct Missions in any part of the country. For terms and testimonials, THETA, Y.W.C.A., 103, High-road, Kilburn, N.W.

HORNER'S PENNY STORIES

Have you Read them?

Nos. 1 to 43 ready. 5,000,000 issued. Sold by all Booksellers.

AS COMPANION and Attendant to an elderly Lady, an engagement required. Experienced in illness, and thoroughly trustworthy.—M., c/o Mr. Drew, Stationer, 664, Holloway-road, London, N.

LADY NURSE, Mother's Help, or Useful Companion.—Young Lady seeks re-engagement. Domesticated, and fond of children. No teaching. Two years' good reference.
B., 34, Loftus-road, Shepherd's Bush, London, E.

AS HOUSEMAID OR PARLOUR-MAID in quiet family. Lady seeks light situation for country girl (25). Two years and four months' character. Wages £14.
K., Willowdene, King's-road, Clapham.

TWO SISTERS, wishing to live together, desire a situation in the country, Ages 18 and 16.—Apply to the SECRETARY, Y.W.C.A., Hanworth, Middlesex.

AS GENERAL SERVANT.—Will any Lady kindly take a Girl of 17 from a wretched home. Particulars on application.
H., Tweed House, Redhill, Surrey.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

LAY HELPER wanted. Young, single, abstainer, ready speaker, and anxious to win souls. Good opening to student for orders. Board and residence offered.
St. Andrew's Vicarage, Wakefield.

VACANCIES FOR PROBATIONERS (Ladies), age 21 to 28 years. In and out-door uniform, washing, &c., supplied. After three months' trial to remain, if approved, for two years' free training. Must be total abstainers, and members of some Protestant Evangelical Church.—All applications, with photo and stamped envelope for return, to be made to the Sister in charge, Her Majesty's Hospital, 13 to 19, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

ASSISTANT SCHOOLMASTER.—Mr. FEGAN wishes to hear of a Christian young Man, who has had some experience in teaching, to assist in school work at The Boys' Home, Southwark, during winter months.
Mr. FEGAN, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

RESIDENT MASTER AND MATRON for Youths' Christian Institute. Cultured and capable, without children. Total abstainers and non-smoker, and able to conduct educational classes, services, &c. Terms liberal. Apply by letter. Copies of testimonials, and, if possible, photographs, to HON. SECS., Office of Christian Worker, Strangeways, Manchester.

AS HOUSEKEEPERS.—Man and Wife wanted. Christians, abstainers; no family. Ex-policeman or sailor preferred.—Apply by letter, stating full particulars, to SECRETARY, 1A, Adelphi-terrace, Strand, W.C.

COLPORTEURS wanted. Must be earnest Christian men, with love for souls; able-bodied, good walkers, under 40 years of age.—CHRISTIAN COLPORTAGE ASSOCIATION, 37, Farringdon-street, London, E.C.

MAN AND WIFE wanted, as Butler and Cook, and to take entire charge of the house.—Mrs. R. P. Smith, 44, Grosvenor-road, Westminster, S.W.

TORQUAY.—To Ironmongers.—A good Home is offered to an Assistant who, needing to live in the South of England, would be willing to give services from 10 to 7. Must be good salesman.—19 and 20, Fleet-street, Torquay.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—A City Architect and Surveyor has a vacancy for a Pupil. References exchanged. Small premium.—Box E. 33, Messrs. Deacon's, 160, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

Y.W.C.A. ROOMS.—Wanted, resident Superintendent, earnest Christian worker, able to influence girls personally, and take charge of Registry, 11 to 4. Salary £36, with coal and gas.—Apply by letter, name references.
Mrs. BAKER, Hon. Sec., 54, Priory-road, Kilburn.

COOK-HOUSEKEEPER wanted for a large house in Warwickshire; kitchen and scullery-maids kept. Good cooking required. Age 30 to 35. Active, conscientious, Christian woman. Also Maid-Housekeeper. Good dressmaker, to wait on Lady, and overlook house linen.
Mrs. NEWTON, Strontian, Argyllshire, N.B.

COOK-HOUSEKEEPER wanted, for Institution for Girls, near London. Well-recommended last place, total abstainer, economical. Salary £20; all found.—Apply by letter, School, 143, Clapham-road, S.W.

USEFUL MAID, or Nurse for a Christian family, youngest child 10 years. Must be a good needlewoman, and willing to undertake light housework. Age 25. An abstainer.
Mrs. C. BOARDMAN, 41, The Green, Stratford, E.

NURSE WANTED, for two children, ages 6 and 3 years, and baby 2 months. Must be fond of children, and experienced. Write particulars, wages expected, to S., Fornleigh, Sevenoaks, Kent.

NURSE.—A Gentleman requires a Nurse to take sole charge of his little boy, aged 7. Thoroughly trustworthy, experienced, active, fairly educated, well-mannered. Age 30 to 40.—Apply by letter, stating capabilities, salary, and references, to H. G., 17, George-road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

NURSE AND USEFUL ATTENDANT, with experience in nervous diseases essential. Christian Woman, Dissenter preferred. Abstainer, light sleeper, healthy, tall, good needlewoman. About 30.—9, Poole-street, Liverpool.

NURSE.—Can any Lady recommend trustworthy, good-tempered, healthy young person, over 20, well trained under good nurse, as Nurse to two boys, youngest two. Good needlewoman. Willing to winter in Malta. Wages £16 to £18.
Mrs. SHERRARD, Carnbrea, Nilaria-grove, Southsea.

NURSE.—Wanted at once, a trained Nurse, for a suburban parish. Churchwoman. Wages 17s. 6d. per week.—Address, with particulars, Rev. D. F. WILSON, Vicarage, Mitcham.

MOTHER'S HELP wanted. About 25. Thoroughly domesticated, with loving aptitude for the care of young children. Must be healthy and strong. A decided Christian and abstainer. References required. State salary.—Mrs. H. L. DAW, 1, Palmyra-place, Newport, Mon.

COOKS, NURSES, PARLOURMAIDS, House-Parlourmaids, and Good Generals wanted. Good wages. Comfortable homes. All servants requiring good situations should apply at this office, no pains being spared to secure good situations.—Miss MAULDEN, Church-street, Paddington Green. Stamp for reply.

PRSONAL MAID wanted by an elderly Lady in delicate health, residing in London.
Mrs. HEALY, Royal, Milford, Godalming.

WANTED, FOR LAUNDRY, in Institution where Girls are employed, a moral superintendent and book-keeper. Lady preferred. Must be total abstainer, healthy, active, well-recommended. Comfortable home. Salary £20.—Apply by letter, P. M. V., 143, Clapham-road, S.W.

LAUNDRY-MAID.—A strong young Woman wanted, not under 21 years of age, to take entire charge of a Laundry.—Mrs. GARDENER, Harold House, Waltham-cross, Herts.

WANTED IN THE COUNTRY (Berks) in November. Thoroughly trustworthy person, about 30, abstainer, as Parlour and useful Maid in family of two. Must be active, healthy, and understand plain dressmaking and needlework. Quiet, comfortable situation. Good references essential.—Apply, stating wages, &c., to M., Alstone Lodge, Cheltenham.

A YOUNG LADY wanted to act as Nursery Governess and useful Companion. Must be of high principles and a decided Christian.—Mrs. D. L. PITCAIRN, Monkton Combe Vicarage, Bath.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID.—Can any Lady recommend thorough well-trained Servant. Age about 24. Small family. Four servants kept. No beer provided.—Write, stating wages, to Mrs. CALVERT, Broomleigh, Wimbledon.

FOR CAPETOWN.—A Servant wanted to attend to three children, and to take a share of the housework. Age not less than 30. Wages £1 10s. monthly.
Mrs. CAMPBELL, 4, York-road, Acton.

TWO THOROUGHLY RELIABLE SERVANTS wanted, as Cook and House-Parlourmaid. Four in family. Quiet, comfortable home.—Write, Mrs. F. B. MEYER, Gainsborough-gardens, Hampstead Heath.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted. Quiet, comfortable place. Good character required. Wages from £16 to £18, all found but beer. Over 26 preferred.
11, Douro-place, Victoria-road, Kensington.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted at once. Two other servants kept. Washing put out. Church of England and abstainer preferred. Wages £16; all found.
Mrs. HOBSON, Stanstead Vicarage, Ware.

COOK.—Wanted, in quiet family, of four, trustworthy, industrious person, as good Plain Cook, and to assist in housework. Only one other servant kept.
Mrs. W., Marion House, Edgar-road, Margate.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted. Also HOUSE-PARLOURMAID. Wages £20 and £18. Good personal character. No beer.
Mrs. FARMER, Oaklands, Elstree, Herts.

THOROUGHLY GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted, for small family, in suburbs. No boots and knives; no basement; dining-room. Christian valued. Personal character. Age 30 to 40.
Mrs. CAVE, Spring-grove, Isleworth.

COOK AND HOUSEMAID wanted, in a quiet family.—F., 57, Gordon-square, W.C.

COUNTRY WOMAN wanted as plain Cook, able to wash. Comfortable Christian home. Good wages.—Apply, giving particulars of previous experience, and enclosing photo, to Mrs. EDMONDS, Longford, Sevenoaks.

RESPECTABLE WOMAN required for a flat, as General Servant. Good cook indispensable. Boy kept.—Address, stating age, and wages required, &c., C., 71, c/o Brown, Gould & Co., 54, New Oxford-street, London.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted. Nurse and girl kept. Good wages.—Mrs. HUGHES, Trevenna, Hatherley-road, Sidcup, Kent.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted, in Minister's family.—Write, giving particulars, to Mrs. PREECE, Ænon, Maidenhead.

GOOD GENERAL SERVANT wanted, able to do plain cooking, in a clergyman's family, about 10 miles from London (Kent). Modern house, no basement. State wages and references. Required in a fortnight. Assistance given. Also a young person as Mother's Help. Three children older than 6 years. State salary and qualifications.
C. H., 12, King's-road, Brownswood-park, N.

AS GENERAL SERVANT, where another is kept. Will any Lady recommend steady, capable Girl (about 18). Plain cooking, under Lady's supervision. Wages £8 to £10.—MISTRESS, Daylesford, Linden-road, Bedford.

GENERAL SERVANT.—Can any Lady recommend a General Servant who understands cooking, or useful plain Cook. Two other servants kept, washing put out. Kind Christian home. Dissenters preferred. Godly girl valued.
ALPHA, 202, Lewisham-road, S.E.

HOUSEMAID.—Wanted, in a small family, respectable person, age 18 to 25. A Dissenter preferred.—Apply, by letter,
M. C., 4, The Grove, Highgate-road, N.W.

OFFICE FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.—Miss HOOPER introduces Ladies to Medical and Monthly Nurses, Companions, Governesses, and Useful Maids. Also superior Domestic Servants. Hours 10 till 5.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.
First-class Private. Under new management. Large and well furnished rooms, Ladies' drawing-room, bath-room. Largely patronised by the clergy, and highly recommended by J. Bevan Braithwaite and Mrs. Braithwaite, and many others. Terms moderate. Tariff on application to
Mrs. LLOYD HARRIS, Proprietress.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Tariff and testimonials on application. Patronised by ministers of all denominations.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea, from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London.—93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfast or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

DOVER.—Shaftesbury Temperance Hotel, Snargate-street.—Clean, comfortable. Conducted on Christian principles. Bed-rooms from 1s. per night. Bed-room and board from 21s. per week.—MANAGER.

MEDICAL HOME for invalid Lady or Gentleman, possessing every comfort, with care and supervision, is offered on strictly moderate and inclusive terms.—EXPERIENCE, The Limes, Bembridge, Isle of Wight.

BOURNEMOUTH, EVERSLEY, West Cliff. A most comfortable Boarding-house, beautifully situated in its own grounds, near the sea. Every effort is made to secure the comfort of Visitors. Terms from 35s. per week.
Miss SEARL, Eversley, Bournemouth.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment in charming locality, commanding splendid sea views. Close to Marina and public gardens. Liberal table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special arrangements with families.—Mrs. WARSCHAWSKI (wife of Rev. Paul Warschawski), Bella Vista, 45, West Hill.

BRIGHTON.—SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 58, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX.

WORTHING HOME OF REST for Christians. Close to, but not facing sea. Good garden. Every comfort. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

COMFORTABLE APARTMENTS to Let in country (South Coast) for a Lady, Board with family and Bed-room; or Sitting-room and Bed-room with separate board. Terms moderate.
Mrs. TOOGOOD, Westergate Nursery, Arundel.

HARROGATE BEECH WOOD PRIVATE HOTEL.

For Terms apply to Miss C. LORD.

The clear, bracing air of Harrogate strongly recommends it as a Summer and Winter

HEALTH RESORT.

Visitors will find in Beech Wood a warm and well ventilated house, with home comforts and liberal table.

WIESBADEN, Pension Anglaise.—Conducted by English Lady. Large handsome Villa, in grounds between English Church and Curhaus. Pleasant winter residence. English comforts and table. Sanitation perfect. Terms moderate. English references.

BOURNEMOUTH.—A Clergyman's Widow would gladly receive two or three Ladies in her comfortable home. Moderate charges. South aspect.—Mrs. H., Estens, Surrey-road South.

TORQUAY.—The Sharon Convalescent Home. Founded by the Dowager Countess of Castlestuart. Has separate accommodation for a few Christian workers, and Ladies of limited means needing rest. Terms for such from 15s. Others received at 10s.—Application to be made to he HON. SECRETARY, Chelston Manor, Torquay.

RAMSGATE, St. Luke's Workers' Rest.—Vacancies for Ladies needing rest, or such as will help in Mission Work during winter. Terms from 15s.
Mrs. W. HATHAWAY, Finsbury House, Ramsgate.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Warm and comfortable suites of Apartments for winter months. Central, sheltered position. South aspect, near pier, gardens, and principal churches. Terms moderate.
Mrs. MOON, Ootacamund, St. Peter's-road.

BOURNEMOUTH, Priory Mansions Bath-road. — En pension. Beautifully situated. Thoroughly comfortable home. Tariff on application to Mrs. GREENLEAVES.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Furnished Apartments in healthiest part of Bournemouth, near Pier, pleasure gardens, and Pines. Terms very moderate for winter season. Good references.
A. W., Broughton Villa, Boscombe.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortable winter Apartments in the best part of the West Cliff. Large sunny rooms, good sea views; bath-room, hot and cold water.—Address, Holly Hurst.

COFFEE TAVERN PREMISES wanted.—Advertiser, a life abstainer, would be glad to hear of a place at a moderate rent, where a Coffee Tavern would be an assured success.
G. C., 13, High-street, Mitcham.

SANDOWN, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Apartments, very comfortable and well-furnished. Lofty rooms, facing sea and new promenade. Winter terms extremely moderate.—PROPRIETORS. c/o Hants Advertiser, Newport, I.W.

HASTINGS.—BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, Cornwallis House, 28, Cornwallis-gardens. Central position. Thoroughly comfortable. Liberal table. Late dinner. Smoking-room. Well recommended. Terms from 30s.
The Misses WOOD.

BRIGHTON. — Select Private Boarding House. Most pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawn promenade. Good airy rooms. Special terms for permanent Boarders.
Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

ENGEDI HOUSE, Eastern-road, Brighton.—Convalescent Home, House of Rest for Females. Terms (inclusive) from 10s. 6d. per week. Special arrangements made to receive ladies of limited means.—Address LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

HASTINGS. — Board and Residence in a private Christian family. Lovely position; central. South aspect. Three minutes from sea and rail. Highly recommended. Home comforts. Terms from 25s.
Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens.

CHRISTIAN HEALTH RESORT.—In the beautiful and salubrious position overlooking the Bay of Naples. None but Christians received. Especially adapted to those seeking spiritual and bodily strength. Terms 2 guineas a week.
GEORGE BLAKE, Post-office, Naples.

HASTINGS.—BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, Sunnyside, Cornwallis-gardens.—Central position. Thoroughly comfortable. Liberal table. Smoking-room. Halls and staircases heated in the winter. Can be well recommended. Established ten years.
Proprietress, Mrs. BUTTERWORTH.

HASTINGS. — A Convalescent Home will be opened early in October. Situation healthy, views good. Seven minutes' walk from sea and station. Resident trained nurse. Terms from 1os. 6d. A few private rooms.—Miss AGNES YOUNG, 73, Earl's Court-road, Kensington, London

BOURNEMOUTH.—High-class Boarding House, ten minutes' walk from the pier. Charmingly situated, sea front, full south, splendid sea and land views. Large rooms. Bath-room.
Ben Wyvis, West Cliff.

HASTINGS.—Senlac, Cornwallis-gardens.—Board and Residence. Three minutes from sea. Pleasant south aspect. Home comforts. Late dinner. Access to Cornwallis-gardens. Conducted by Mrs. LODGE.

PARIS, Pension de Famille.—Quiet, comfortable, and refined Home, healthy and convenient situation, near Exhibition. Moderate terms. References exchanged.—Miss GALLOWAY, 1, Rue d'Obligado, Avenue du Bois de Boulogne.

THE SOUTH DEVON

BISHOPS TEIGNTON (Teignmouth the nearest Station.) HEALTH RESORT

Sea and Moorland Air.

For Terms and Testimonials, apply to

C. F. CARPENTER, Proprietor.

PARIS.—Miss PRYDE'S Home for Lady Artists and Governesses. Advantages, French taught free, healthiest situation, beautiful site, convenient for trams to all parts.
23, Avenue du Bois de Boulogne.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Gloucester House, Warrior-square. Board and Residence, splendid position, sea view, overlooking gardens. Lawn tennis, liberal table. Terms moderate.—Tariff on application, to Miss BOWER.

WILL SOME CHRISTIAN LADY, able to pay liberally, take Apartments or board, during winter months, in a small Home of Rest for young women, and so help the founder to carry on more freely a work God is owning. Also to start Gospel Temperance work, much needed, in the village.—Miss H. MASON, The Hawthorns, Framfield, Sussex.

HEALTH RESORT, pleasantly situated on the borders of Sussex and Hampshire. Cheerful Christian home. Turkish and other baths.—Mrs. BOYS, Dumpford House, near Petersfield, Hants.

CHRISTIAN HOME for elderly Ladies of limited income. Highly recommended. 13s. to 17s. weekly inclusive. Refined and home-like. Healthy and pleasant situation.—PRINCIPAL, 4, Clapton-square, London, N.E. Circular on application.

EASTBOURNE.—Comfortable winter or permanent Apartments to Let. Two sitting and five bed-rooms. Together or separately. Three minutes' from sea. Very moderate terms.
Miss CARTER, 1, Belgravia-terrace, Langney-road.

BEMBRIDGE, ISLE OF WIGHT (mild climate).—Furnished Houses to Let, for winter months, at nominal rents. 2½, 1½, 1, and ½ guineas per week.—TUFFLEY, House Agent.

CANNES.—Lodgings, nice rooms, and Board in pleasantly situated Villa.
M., Villa Primavera, Cannes, South France.

LITTLEHAMPTON. — Seaside Home of Rest for Christians. Freedom and ease of family life. Climate bracing, not severe. Board and lodging, 12s. 6d. weekly.—Apply, enclosing stamped envelope,
Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Croydon.

BUXTON, Derbyshire.—Brunswick Boarding House, Hardwick-square.—Miss PALMER will receive Visitors during the winter months at very reduced rates. A comfortable home for any requiring dry, bracing air.

HYERES, SOUTH OF FRANCE.—English Pension, 7, Avenue Riondet. South aspect, with garden. Terms moderate. Mr. and Mrs. HOOK, proprietors, are English.

HAMPSTEAD.—Board and Residence. A Lady can be received in the quiet home of a gentlewoman close to the Heath.—Address by letter
Miss G., 7, Christchurch-road, Hampstead, N.W.

PENZANCE.—A Lady wishes to meet with another Lady, or Ladies, to share her home. Mild climate. Apartments or Board. Permanency preferred. References. Terms moderate.
A., Mrs. Bean, Stationer, Market-place.

YOUNG WIDOW LADY offers quiet, comfortable country home to companionable Lady, who would give little daily assistance, with children's lessons, music, &c., and small amount towards board.
W. K. M., Post-office, Kelmington, Bath.

A CHEAP HOME for the winter.—Sandown Bay.—A furnished House, seven good bed, two reception-rooms. £2 per week, or 5s. per room. South aspect; on parade. Good references for cooking, &c.
A. H., Taylor's Library, Sandown, I.W.

NURSE CHILD (not under 12 months).—A Christian couple would undertake charge of above. Small premium. References exchanged.
Mrs. S., St. Peter-street, Wallingford, Berks.

THE ALEXANDRA HOME, Southend-on-Sea (in connection with Y.W.C.A.).—Ladies desiring a Home for the winter months or for a short period, with complete rest and home comforts, on moderate terms (15s. to 20s. a week), are requested to apply to Mrs AMAND ROUTH, 14A, Manchester-square, London, W.; or to the Lady Superintendent, Miss WITHERS, at the Home.

TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS.—To Let, Tavistock Hall for Classes, Mission work. With bed and sitting-room (furnished). Conservatory, use of kitchen. 10s. 6d. weekly.—Letter,
A. B., 18, Tavistock-terrace, Holloway.

CHRISTIAN HOME offered in the house of a Lady. Neighbourhood of South Kensington. Near good Evangelical church, park, and Museums. Terms on application.
R., 15, South-street, Thurloe-square, London.

COMFORTABLY FURNISHED BED-SITTING-ROOM (with or without slight attendance) to Let, to a Lady.
19, Saunders-road, Notting-hill, W.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a home for a young child with a poor, respectable, and trustworthy family and Christian influence, living in Fernhead-road, St. Peter's-park.
Miss F. COOKSON, 4, Kent-terrace, Regent's-park.

A YOUNG LADY wishing for Christian work, can be received for training in a Christian Home (unsectarian) near London. Moderate charges for board and lodging.
C.W., c/o Mr. Dugan, Mile End, Portsmouth.

KIND HOME wanted for a Boy of ten, whose mental powers are undeveloped. Country desirable. Full particulars will be given.
M., 23, Mall-road, Hammersmith.

APARTMENTS, FURNISHED OR UNFURNISHED, in superior house, with bath-room, for one or two Gentlemen. Convenient to West-end and City, near Kennington-park. Christians preferred.—2, Prima-road, Brixton.

BED-SITTING-ROOM, with use of kitchen, offered to Christian Lady, total abstainer, on very moderate terms. Opportunities of Christian work.
Miss E., 101, Fernhead-road, St. Peter's-park, W.

OFFICE ON GROUND FLOOR in Lincoln's-inn-Fields, with partial use of an Office for clerk, suitable for a society, solicitor, surveyor, accountant, &c. Rent £60 per annum.
Messrs. DOWSETT & Co., 3, Lincoln's-inn-Fields.

A LADY AND GENTLEMAN having a larger house than they require, wish to receive into their Home, which is most pleasantly situated in Sevenoaks, a Lady of refined tastes for Board and Residence. First-class references given and required.—X. Y. Z., c/o The Misses Traylen, Music Warehouse, Sevenoaks.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE for a guinea weekly.—Comfortable Home offered earnest Christian Lady (Nonconformist) who would give slight domestic help in the house of a Widower, a medical man, who has practised abroad.
B., 5, Vicarage-villas, Willesden, N.W.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W. Romans v. 8.

NATIONAL BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—Votes are earnestly asked on behalf of Mrs. SIMPSON SMITH, 179, East India-road, Poplar. Well recommended.

INVALID CHAIRS.—Two for sale; Wicker, also wooden-bodied carriage, bicycle wheels, cheap. Reference allowed Mr. Gawin Kirkham, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi.—CHARLES YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, London.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 75s. Organs from 85s. — Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-st., Kingsland, London.

BEST BELLADONNA PLASTER.—Trade mark, "The Leicester." On stout Dowlais, yard tin, 2s. "The Leicester" improved adhesive plaster, half-yard tin, 6d. Of Chemists.
For stamps, FRANCIS & Co., Leicester.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

SPINAL CURVATURE and Paralysis.—A Medical Man, resident in Hastings, receives patients with the above complaints.—For particulars, address MEDICUS, c/o Bourne, Stationer, Plynlimmon-road, Hastings.

MASSAGE AND KINETIC TREATMENT.—A Lady Nurse, acquainted with both the Continental and English forms of the above, receives Ladies suffering from debility, emaciation, obesity, or rheumatic arthrites, into her well-appointed house.—BONA, at Shelley & Co.'s Advertising Offices, 5, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

MISS GARDNER, of the Y.W.C.A. Business Employment Agency, would be glad to hear of Dressmaking and Plain Needlework at Ladies' houses for respectable and competent workers.—316, Regent-street, W.

TEA FROM GARDEN DIRECT.—R. MORTON, planter, Toonbarri Estate, sells his Tea in 10-lb. package for £1 cash. Required, a agents for above, Ladies of social position. Liberal commission.
C/o Colonel MORTON, 2, Priory-parade.

CHRISTIAN AGENTS WANTED for Dr. Carter Moffat's Electrical Body-bands, for Failing Health Indigestion, Torpid Liver, Varicose Veins, &c. Half price to CHRISTIAN readers. Dr. CARTER MOFFAT, Northumberland-park, N.

In Memoriam.

JAMES.—On October 1, 1859, aged 74, the Rev. JOHN ANGELL JAMES, for 54 years Pastor of Carr's-lane, Chapel, Birmingham.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2s. EACH.

IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE-COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to the Rev. J. R. Hewetson, Redhill.

☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

TO STOUT PEOPLE.

"Mr. Russell's aim is to eradicate, to cure the disease, and that his treatment is the true one seems beyond all doubt. The medicine he prescribes does not lower, but builds up and tones the system." Book (128 pages) with recipe and notes how to pleasantly and rapidly cure OBESITY (average reduction in first week is 3 lb.), post free eight stamps.

F. C. RUSSELL, Woburn House, Store St., Bedford Sq., London, W.

NEAVE'S

FOR INFANTS, INVALIDS, AND THE AGED.

FOOD.

Publications.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1889. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign, 1s. per 100; or to E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Christian Workers are invited to send for specimen packet and list. Large variety of Tracts, Leaflets, and Cards, many suitable for advertising special and evangelistic meetings.—PENMAN & Co., Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C.

GOSPEL TRACTS. By CHEYNE BRADY.—"Mr. Brady's style is quite to our heart. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam."—C. H. Spurgeon in Sword and Trowel.—Send for list.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

A WOMAN'S RIGHTS.—A new and popular Temperance Lecture. By Ellen Moorhouse. 1½d. each, or 1s. 4d. per dozen, post free, from Mrs. MOORHOUSE, Highway and Hedgerow Mission, Forest Hill, Newport, Isle of Wight.

Twentieth Edition. Enlarged. 98 pp., post free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most Successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., M.A., M.R.C.S., &c.—London: C. MITCHELL & Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & Co., Stationers' Hall-court.

THE STIRLING PUBLICATIONS.

LEARNING TO FLOAT; or, Saved through Faith. A Narrative of Fact. By REV. JAMES JOHNSTON, F.S.S. 6d. per dozen.

LEARNING TO WALK IN THE PATHS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS. By the Same. 6d. per dozen.

LEARNING TO RUN IN THE WAY OF HOLINESS. By the Same. 6d. per dozen.

LEARNING TO FLY; or, The Assurance of Faith. By the Same. 6d. per dozen.

POPULAR TEMPERANCE STORIES.
Price One Penny Each.
1. LUCY ELLERTON'S FALL.
2. OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling; London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

TO ADVERTISERS

Advertisements must arrive not later than FIRST POST MONDAY to be inserted in the following issue.

For DISTRIBUTION among SEAMEN, FISHERMEN, &c.

MISS WESTON'S "ASHORE & AFLOAT."

ONE PENNY, MONTHLY.

SPECIAL TERMS FOR BACK NUMBERS.

MESSRS. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW.

BAGSTERS'

COMPREHENSIVE

TEACHERS' BIBLE.

The only Teacher's Bible published since the Revised Version.

Seven Editions from 4s. Of all Booksellers. Price List free.

SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.

The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch. 32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 36 Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.

Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

BEING A COMPLETE AND AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE LIVES, SUFFERINGS, AND TRIUMPHANT DEATHS OF CHRISTIAN AND PROTESTANT MARTYRS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

With twelve full-page ILLUSTRATIONS. Complete in One Handsome Volume. 1,083 pages.

Cloth boards, 10s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"We are pleased to see the BOOK OF MARTYRS well to the front. It is a great thing to have such a copy of FOXE in the market at 10s. 6d. We wish Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT an immediate sale of the present issue, which is marvellously cheap."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in The Sword and Trowel.

FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.

With twelve full-page ILLUSTRATIONS. Complete in One Handsome Volume. 1,083 pages.

Cloth boards, 10s. 6d.; bevelled boards, gilt edges, 12s. 6d.

"We welcome this edition, which well deserves to find its place in every household which does not possess a copy of the book; and it should find its way into our libraries, juvenile and other."—Baptist.

LONDON MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

CONTENTS OF PACKET.

The Sheep-track.
He Loveth Me.
The Sympathy of Jesus.
The Starless Night.
The Conflict.
Isaac.
The Rightful King.
Unanswered Prayer.
The Place for Gold.
The Wayside Watcher.
Prayer.
Bread upon the Waters.
Barren Fig-tree.
The Mourning Soul.
Pathways.
Thoughts in Sickness.
Weep Not.
The Angel Messenger.
Parting Words.
Sitting at the Feet of Jesus.
The Sealed Book.
The Shining Footprint.
Returning.
The Gift.
My Infirmity.
The Lark.
"Gone Before."
The Swelling of Jordan.
My Watch-Tower.
The Benediction.
God Knows Best.
The Stronghold.
The Heavenly Friend.
The Loving Cup.
The Dying Thief.
Who is Willing?
Sow Beside all Waters.
Without Money or Price.
The Fourth Watch.
The First Missionary.
A Very Present Help in Trouble
Home, Light, Home!
Wait on the Lord.
The Lost Cherith.

"Exhibit many of the best qualities of really Christian poetry."—Sunday Teacher's Treasury.

Assorted Packet, 6d.; Double Packet, 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG CONVERTS.

Tinted covers, 1s.;
Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

LIFE, WARFARE, AND VICTORY.

Being Notes of Bible Readings Specially Written for Young Converts.

By Major D. W. WHITTLE,

Author of "Memoir of P. P. Bliss," "Soul-Winning," &c.

"Is a nicely got-up volume, of good, Scriptural, and plain teaching as to spiritual life, its impartation, its enemies, and its friends, by Mr. Whittle, an American evangelist, well known in this country. The book was designed originally for those led to Christ by the Author's ministry; and it is refreshing, stimulating, and replete with anecdote."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

"... It is a thoroughly characteristic little book by a man who is evidently on fire with a holy enthusiasm; and it may be helpful to many."—Christian Leader.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

CHURCH CHOIRS DELIGHT IN THE SACRED QUARTETS,

Of which 98 Numbers are now ready, price 1½d. each, or in 4s. Volumes. These are settings of hymns for solo and quartet, devotional and charmi[ng].

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 & 9, WARWICK LANE, E.C.

Witney Blankets

THE WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY

Are now supplying, direct from the Mills, the well-known

WITNEY BLANKETS.

Prices Per Pair:

Ordinary Size, 7ft. 4in. by 5ft. 8in., 12/6, 16/11, 21/-
Large do. 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 15/9, 21/-, 26/6
Special Hygienic Merino, 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 30/-

These Blankets are strongly recommended for their beautiful Colour, Durability, and Warmth, combined with Lightness in Weight.

All Goods sent Carriage Paid on receipt of Cheque or Postal Orders.

Full Price List and Testimonials sent on Application.

ADDRESS—

WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY,

WITNEY, OXON.

By Rev. THEODORE MONOD.

THE GIFT OF GOD.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES.

By REV. THEODORE MONOD.

Presentation Edition: Cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"Sweet, spiritual, and simple. If all holiness addresses had been like these, there would have been more holiness and less boast about it. Their precious savour of Christ must have made these words of Mr. Monod very fragrant to those who have heard them; and they will be refreshing to readers now that they are given to the press."—The Sword and Trowel.

Cheap Edition: Tinted covers, 1s.

LIFE MORE ABUNDANT,

AND OTHER ADDRESSES.

By REV. THEODORE MONOD.

Presentation Edition. Cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

"We feel, in reading this book, that we are being influenced by a sound spiritual teacher, and really breathing in a religious atmosphere. The chapters are full of holy and devout thought. Christians will read and be profited."—Baptist Messenger.

"We heartily commend these loving, practical appeals and counsels to all readers. In them the Gospel is made attractive."—Watchman.

Cheap Edition. Tinted covers, 1s.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

The only Note Paper that has been specially made for Ladies, and will be found peculiarly adapted to the style of their handwriting.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

See Watermark in each sheet.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

CAN BE HAD OF ALL STATIONERS.

9d. per 5-Quire Packet.

LADIES' CLUB NOTE.

Court or Heraldic Envelopes to match, 9d. per 100.

SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS, &C.

MÖLLER'S COD LIVER OIL.

PERFECTED IN ONE OPERATION BY THE PROCESS INVENTED BY MÖLLER IN 1852.

INCOMPARABLE,
PALATABLE,
PERFECT,
PURE.

OR SENT FREE BY PARCEL POST
ONE BOTTLE 2/-
TWO BOTTLES 4/-
BY PETER MÖLLER,
43, SNOWHILL, LONDON, E.C.

CAPSULED BOTTLES ONLY.

BE WARY OF RECENT IMITATIONS! SO EXTENSIVELY PUFFED NOW.

IS SIMPLY A pure OIL! IT CONTAINS NONE OF THE 50—60 PER CENT. OF WATER NECESSARILY IN EMULSIONS—

CHEAP COMMODITIES USUALLY CHARGED AT THE PRICE OF PURE OIL.

OIL.

BE SURE YOU HAVE NEW OIL!

EVERY BOTTLE OF RECENT PRODUCTION HAS THE DATE PERFORATED ON BOTH LABELS.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

"FLIGHTS OF SWALLOWS" (hand-painted), for wall decorations, 2s. (eight birds in flight). Smaller, 1s. Herons, 2s. (four birds in flight). Sold in aid of the

FUND FOR ASSISTING LADIES IN REDUCED CIRCUMSTANCES.

Donations, orders for work, and help of any kind, earnestly solicited. Reports sent upon application.—Miss SMALLWOOD, The Lees, Great Malvern.

Price in cloth, 2s. each; extra gilt, 3s.

NOTES ON THE BOOK OF GENESIS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF EXODUS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF LEVITICUS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF NUMBERS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF DEUT. Vol. I.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF DEUT. Vol. II.

To all who love and relish the simple Gospel of the grace of God I would earnestly recommend the following "Notes." They are characterised by a deep-toned, evangelical spirit. Having had the privilege of reading them in MS., I can speak as one who has found profit therefrom.—See Preface, Notes on Genesis.

ALSO BY THE SAME AUTHOR AND UNIFORM WITH THE ABOVE IN SIZE AND PRICES—

"THE MISCELLANEOUS WRITINGS of C. H. M."

Vols. I. to VI.

London: G. MORRISH, 20, PATERNOSTER SQUARE, E.C.

Recently Published. By A. E. KNIGHT. Price 5s.

A CONCISE HISTORY OF THE CHURCH From the Apostolic Era to the establishment of the Reformation.

"The author has succeeded admirably. Here, in one handy volume, is all that is essential and much that is very interesting and instructive, succinctly and lucidly presented."—The Christian.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

INVALUABLE TO STUDENTS OF SCRIPTURE.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK CONCORDANCE. Price £1. 1s.
For the use of Scholars and those who know a little Greek.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK NEW TESTAMENT. 10s.
Having the English equivalent under each Greek word.

A HANDY CONCORDANCE TO THE SEPTUAGINT. 15s.
"We give 'A Handy Concordance' the hearty welcome which it deserves."—Guardian.

S. BAGSTER & SONS, LIM., 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

THE AMOY MISSION.

NOW READY.

Crown 8vo., with numerous Illustrations, Cloth, 2s.

CHRIST OR CONFUCIUS—WHICH?

The Story of the Amoy Mission of the London Missionary Society. By REV. JOHN MACGOWAN, twenty-six years missionary in Amoy.

This volume forms the Second of the Missionary Manuals in course of issue, illustrating the work accomplished by the London Missionary Society. It abounds in realistic, graphic pictures of Chinese life, and shows how the Mission has grown and spread, and how the Gospel touches and changes Chinese hearts and lives.

The first of the above-named Manuals, issued last year, is still on sale—viz.,

AMONG THE CANNIBALS OF NEW GUINEA.

The Story of the New Guinea Mission of the London Missionary Society. By REV. SAMUEL MACFARLANE, LL.D. Illustrated with original Engravings, Crown 8vo., handsomely bound, price 5s.

LONDON: John Snow & Co., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row.

FATHERLESS.

315 ORPHANS of both sexes are now in the ASYLUM FOR FATHERLESS CHILDREN at Reedham, Purley, Surrey, and the Board of Managers most earnestly appeal for help to maintain and educate them. These children have been admitted to the Asylum at ages varying from 6 months to 11 years, and will all be retained and cared for until they are 15 years of age. This Charity is entirely unsectarian, and has no endowment; it is therefore dependent upon public benevolence for support.

The necessary expenditure averages £8, 0 per annum, but the only reliable income—that from Annual Subscriptions—does not provide one-third of that amount, hence the necessity for this appeal.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS will be most thankfully received.

HENRY SPICER, Treasurer.
J. ROWLAND EDWARDS, Secretary.

Office, 35, Finsbury-circus, E.C.

THE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE.—Advance orders for a proposed new Illustrated, TINTED edition of this lecture by Mr. Hastings are now being received, at £2 10s. per thousand. This is the superior edition, of which Mr. Hastings desires to print 100,000 as a gift to Major Poole for distribution among British soldiers. For each thousand copies subscribed for by others at £2 10s. for Major Poole before December 1, 1889, Mr. Hastings will himself give 500 additional copies to the soldiers.

MARSHALL BROS., 10, Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY'S NEW BOOKS.

A HANDSOME GIFT BOOK. The New Volume of "Pen and Pencil" Series.

RUSSIAN PICTURES,

Drawn with Pen and Pencil. By THOMAS MITCHELL, C.B., Author of "Murray's Handbook to Russia," &c. With upwards of One Hundred Engravings. Imperial 8vo., 8s., cloth boards, gilt edges.

The "Pen and Pencil" volume for 1889. It is written by a gentleman who has spent a great part of his life in Russia, and who is familiar with the language and the people of that great empire. It is, of course, impossible in such limited space to give anything beyond the briefest sketch of many parts of the enormous area covered by Russia in Europe and Russia in Asia. But the effort has been made to compress into the chapters on Siberia, Central Asia, the Caucasus, &c., all that the intelligent general reader is likely to need; while such centres as St. Petersburg and Moscow are much more fully described. The maps and the numerous engravings render it possible for any careful reader to get accurate and fairly complete ideas of the many lands and peoples that are combined under the Czar's sway.

WAYS AND MEANS; or, Voices from the Highways and Hedges. A Series of Sketches on Social Subjects. By ISABELLA FYVIE MAYO, author of "The Occupations of a Retired Life," &c. Imperial 16mo. 5s., bevelled boards, gilt.

THE BROOK AND ITS BANKS. By the Rev. J. G. WOOD, author of "The Handy Natural History," &c., &c. With many Illustrations. Imp. 16mo. 6s., cloth gilt.
No better gift-book for any who have a love for natural history could be desired.

NEW BIBLICAL AND DEVOTIONAL BOOKS.

THE TIMES OF ISAIAH as Illustrated from Contemporary Monuments. By A. H. SAYCE, LL.D., Author of "Fresh Light from the Ancient Monuments," "The Hittites: A Story of a Forgotten Empire," &c. By-Paths of Bible Knowledge. No. XIII. With a Map. Crown 8vo., 2s., cloth boards.

MY STRONGHOLD OF LOVE. By the Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, Author of "My Master and My Friend," &c. 16mo., cloth boards.

YOUR COMFORTER. A Series of Expositions on the Work of the Holy Spirit. For the Young. By Rev. J. P. LILLEY, M.A. Crown 8vo., 1s., cloth boards, red edges.

STORIES FROM GENESIS. By ANNIE R. BUTLER, Author of "Stories of the Children's Medical Mission," &c. In Large Type for Little Children. With Thirty-nine Illustrations. Small Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

NEW MISSIONARY BOOKS.

THE APPEAL TO THE SERPENT; or, Life in an Ancient Buddhist City. A Story of Early Ceylon Life. By the Rev. SAMUEL LANGDON. With Illustrations. Crown 8vo., 6s., cloth boards.

MY LIFE IN BASUTO LAND. A Story of Missionary Enterprise in South Africa. By EUGENE CASALIS, of the Paris Missionary Society. Translated from the French by J. BRIERLEY, B.A. Crown 8vo., 5s., cloth boards.

NEW BIOGRAPHY.

ATHANASIUS: His Life and Life-Work. By HENRY ROBERT REYNOLDS, D.D., Principal of Cheshunt College, Author of "John the Baptist," "The Philosophy of Prayer," &c. Church History Series. No. V. With Portrait, and three Illustrations. Crown 8vo. 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

SHORT BIOGRAPHIES FOR THE PEOPLE. Vol. 6. By Various Writers. Contains: Dr. Guthrie—Athanasius—Jonathan Edwards—Heber—Sir Isaac Newton—Kirke White—Dr. Duff—Basil—Havelock—McIlvaine—Thomas Scott—Sir H. Edwardes. With Portraits. 1s. 6d., cloth.

THE LIFE AND WORK OF CHARLES HENRY VON BOGATZKY. A Chapter from the Religious Life of the Eighteenth Century. By the Rev. JOHN KELLY, Author of "Louisa of Prussia, and other Sketches." With Portrait. Crown 8vo., 5s., cloth boards.

SWEET SINGERS OF WALES. A Story of Welsh Hymns and their Authors. With Original Translations by D. ELVET LEWIS. Crown 8vo. 2s. 6d., cloth boards, gilt tops.

 The Religious Tract Society has just published upwards of 40 Illustrated Story-books for all readers, handsomely bound in cloth, most suitable for presents. See the NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE.

LONDON: 56, PATERNOSTER ROW.

THE GOSPEL FOR EUROPE!

JUBILEE OF THE FOREIGN AID SOCIETY.

President.—THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.

THE Foreign Aid Society was established Fifty years ago, at the initiation of the late Prebendary Burgess. Its object was, and is, to assist Missionary effort on the part of Native Agencies, of a Protestant and Evangelical character, by grants collected by Christians in our highly-favoured land. Thus Prayer, Sympathy, and Help are called forth for the progress of the Gospel in Europe.

Who will send a Jubilee Thank-offering and Gift, which will be gratefully received and acknowledged by the Rev. H. J. Browne, Vicar of Christ Church, Barnet; or, Miss Sophia Burgess, 7, Christ Church-road, Hampstead.

A few Testimonies from important Continental Societies, which receive grants from the Foreign Aid Society:—

M. MOURON, Secretary of the Société Evangélique de France:—"I hear that the Foreign Aid Society has now reached its 50th year. In the time of difficulty it stood near us, helping us, not in words, but in deeds. Its influence for winning France to Christ is read here in living letters. May the Lord give to the Foreign Aid Society another half-century of increasing influence and liberality!"

M. DUCHEMIN, of the Société Centrale Protestante d'Evangélization:—"It is with deep gratitude that we celebrate the Jubilee of the Foreign Aid Society. For half a century the Society has answered to its name by helping with constant generosity and entire disinterestedness the Christian Societies which work on the Continent, and has been the instrument of salvation to many souls. The leading feature of the Foreign Aid Society, and the proof of its wisdom, is that it works through the instrumentality of Societies whose missionaries are natives of the places which they evangelise."

M. KENNEDY ANET, of the Société Evangélique, Belge:—"From 1845 and up to this day, for a period of about forty-five years, the Foreign Aid Society has been to us a faithful friend, always standing at our side with a helpful hand, providing for our constant needs, enabling us to accomplish, year by year, much good in the service of our Divine Master."

M. WHEATCROFT, of Orleans:—"As Secretary of one of the largest sections of the Société Centrale, I am in a position to appreciate personally the great value of the work pursued by the Foreign Aid Society. First, the Practical Method, in which it makes use of indigenous organisations; second, its sympathy—unspeakably precious; third, its catholicity—in remembering the intimate ties which have united in the past the Reformed Church of France to the Church of England."

The QUARTO Edition of "ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,"

SUITABLE FOR THE ORGAN, PIANO, OR HARMONIUM.

JUST READY.

ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS,

With Standard Hymns.

COMPILED AND SUNG BY

IRA D. SANKEY.

CONTAINING 309 PIECES (Nos. 442—750).

QUARTO SIZE (MUSIC AND WORDS)	Cloth Boards	5s. 0d.
	Cloth Back, Paper Sides	4s. 6d.

"The volume of ADDITIONAL SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS includes a very winsome assortment of entirely fresh pieces, gleaned from authors and composers on both sides of the sea, with an excellent selection of old standards. There are no fewer than 309 Hymns and Tunes, not being so very far short of the number in the well-known SACRED SONGS AND SOLOS. The two volumes are quite independent of each other; and nobody who appreciates the first will fail to obtain the second."—Christian Leader.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.; And may be ordered o any Bookseller.

October 11, 1889.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Mr. E. W. Thomas, secretary of the London Female Preventive and Reformatory Institutions.

This week, it will be noticed, we give eight extra pages, without any additional charge; we hope our readers will show their appreciation of this by ordering copies to send to their friends. Our next issue will be a Special Number (price twopence), and will contain a copy of THE CHRISTIAN ILLUSTRATED ALMANAC for 1890; orders for extra copies should be sent early.

The licensing committee of the London County Council appear to have struck terror into the hearts of music-hall proprietors in London, by refusing to recommend the renewal of the licences of two notorious places of so-called entertainment in the West-end, and by a searching criticism of the objectionable features found in these places throughout the Metropolis. We are truly glad to find that our representative local Parliament is realising its responsibilities in caring for the morals of the people, and we trust they will persevere till this Augean stable of unwholesomeness is pretty thoroughly cleansed.

Of course some of the newspapers are raising a great hue and cry over the matter, and performing the dust-throwing operation by trying to make out that the innocent recreations of the masses are to be stopped. This device is too transparent, and we cannot believe that it will weigh with the Council, when they come to give their final decision. Rev. Hugh Price Hughes has warmly espoused the cause of purifying these pestilential centres as far as possible, and has convened a great public demonstration in St. James's Hall for this (Friday) evening. We hope that all well-disposed citizens will use every effort to strengthen the hands and the resolves of those Councillors who would conserve the best interests of this great community.

A letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Chairman of the Congregational Union, which has just held its autumnal meetings at Hull, formed the first business of that assembly. The letter called attention to the Encyclical of the Lambeth Conference in its relation to the corporate re-union of Christian communities, and to steps which could be taken to secure this end. We draw attention to the matter to convey our sense of the courtesy and eminently Christian tone of the speech of Dr. Conder, of Leeds, in moving the adoption of a reply. The proposal is manifestly premature, but the spirit on the part of the bishops, and on that of the ministers in Hull who spoke on the subject, has been as a refreshing voice in these times of often heated ecclesiastical controversy.

Among the papers read at the Church Congress there were two which were specially notable. The one was by Sir G. G. Stokes, M.P., P.R.S., on the "Literature of the Day in its Attitude towards Christianity." Apart from secularist writings, the feature of even those written in a philosophic spirit was the endeavour to dispense with the supernatural. Scientists were sometimes disposed to put forth as established results what were mere conjectures, and theologians no less to add to the faith unauthorised tenets of human origin. Fundamental doctrines and merely human additions were made to stand on the same level, and thus belief in the whole body of Christian truth was shaken, and all Christianity became vague and uncertain. It is hardly possible to overstate the importance of this distinction, as laid down by the President of the oldest and greatest scientific society in the kingdom. The most fruitful source of all that is troubling and endangering the modern Church is the demand for the acceptance of doctrines which are not essential parts of Christianity.

The other paper, on Sunday observance, was presented by Mr. G. F. Chambers, a retired barrister of Eastbourne. He very ably contended that the weekly day of rest went further back than the Book of Exodus, even to the beginning of the Book of Genesis, and that the seventh day rest was indispensable to man morally, socially, and medically. The modern habits of the higher classes to take pleasure on the Sabbath was defiant both towards God and man. Equally were Sunday excursions hostile to public welfare. The early example of the London and North Western Railway and its prosperity were quoted. This is a view of the question that deserves more emphasis than it receives. Whatever is preventible of Sunday labour, even speeches of statesmen on Saturdays, ought to be considered. The Sunday rest is God's beneficent demand for man.

It seems lamentable that such addresses were followed, according to arrangement, by an address from an actor, in advocacy of attendance at the theatre, and that at the beginning and end of his paper he should have received "loud cheers." Let the world encourage the world, if it will, but it is enough to fill good men with despair when the clergy become parties to such counteractions of wholesome Congress teaching.

The Church Congress is declared by The Record to have been "more distinctly High Church" than has been the case for many years. The opening service was held at St. Mary's, which, according to The English Churchman, is "a notorious mass-house." For the first time in its history, the Congress has officially recognised a celebration of the Holy Communion in which the six points of illegal Ritual were observed openly and without protest. The details of the proceedings—what with crosses and birettas, bowings and kissings, with the burning of incense—are disgusting to persons who are neither in Rome nor on the way thither. That the Protestant Bishop of Derry should have preached on the occasion is greatly to be regretted. We read that some clergymen, on realising the character of the procession in which they were taking part, left the church. It is to be hoped that a protest which will have decided effect with the authorities will be drawn up by loyal members of the Church of England.

One lesson to be learned from the strike of the dock labourers has scarcely received the attention it deserves. The "dockers" were "a feeble folk," or supposed to be so. Yet experience shows that they held in their hands the key of the Port of London. When they refused to work, not only were the commercial and trading interests of the Metropolis visited with embarrassment and loss, but the commerce of the world was affected. There was no riot, no open violence; but ships could neither load nor unload, and ocean mails were delayed, while thousands of men tramped in procession through the streets of London, and were allowed, by the goodwill of the public and the police, to take their course amidst the crowded traffic of the greatest city in the world, in the busiest part of the day.

The whole affair was a phenomenon, nor has its effect passed away. It has kindled a fire which is spreading on every hand. There is a general uprising of labour, with a demand for better conditions of life. Men of rank and influence are giving themselves to the movement, and some future Macaulay will find materials for a stirring chapter, or rather for an imposing volume, in the events of which the "dockers' strike" was the precursor and substantially the cause. The lesson to be learned is this—that it is not a safe thing, even as it is not right, for any class in society, however humble and seemingly insignificant, to be left to struggle under circumstances which constitute a burden too heavy to be borne. The toil exacted from the Hebrews led to the destruction of Pharaoh and his host.

The case of the tram and omnibus men is one that surely calls for immediate consideration. In presiding at a midnight meeting of these men last week, Lord Rosebery, the Chairman of the London County Council, cited some startling statistics as to the length of their working hours, and said:—

> If the facts which had been given were true, a greater scandal did not exist in our civilisation. It simply left the men five or six hours at the most for rest, improvement, and to be with their families. They could not see their children, they could not see their homes, and if it were true, the men had only one quarter of their lives to themselves. Suppose they entered the service at the age of twenty and left it at seventy, out of that time they would have had for rest, sleep, and family life, twelve and a half years, leaving thirty-seven and a half to the company.

Such facts indicate a state of things almost worse than American slavery, and we cannot believe that it will be permitted to exist long when the public become fully aware of it. Our national reputation for humanity, to say nothing of Christian righteousness, is at stake.

All this unrest in the world of labour, which seems to point unmistakably to serious difficulties in the future, in the way of combinations and strikes, shows clearly the need there is for the establishment of an official Court of Appeal, to which disputes in regard to wages and hours of labour could be submitted for decision, without the serious losses and inconvenience which now follow in the wake of strikes. If some such tribunal be not created very shortly, it may soon be too late, for international combinations of workpeople will place capitalists in a very trying position.

We have received from Rev. William Urwick a letter on the subject of "John Bunyan's Unsectarianism," which was dealt with in our last issue by Rev. George Wainwright, who argued that though personally in favour of believers' baptism, the author of "The Pilgrim's Progress" was not a denominationalist. Mr. Urwick maintains that there is no evidence that Bunyan practised immersion; quotes from his writings sentences in which baptism is spoken of as not a church ordinance; and contends that Bunyan's own children were baptized as infants; and thereupon claims him as on the side of pædo-baptism. Mr. Wainwright, having already weighed all the evidence, sees no reason to alter his conclusion, but says in his rejoinder:—

> My article was written, not to secure John Bunyan's support for the Baptists; but to show his superiority to the sectarian spirit which prevailed in his day, and prevails now. I would yield the point in dispute rather than lose the value of his witness against the division of the Church of Christ into so many rival and often opposing sections.

This was precisely our reason for inserting the article; being far less concerned to discover what were John Bunyan's views, than to claim his grand example against sectarian feeling and denominational names.

MISSION AT TEDDINGTON.

A special mission at Christ Church, Teddington, of which Rev. E. Theodore Hitchens is minister, has extended over the past fortnight, and comes to a close this week. Rev. Robert Balgarnie was the missioner, and his earnest and forcible appeals have been greatly blessed in the manifest arousing and quickening of professing Christians, as well as in the conversion of many hitherto undecided. Rev. Robert Balgarnie, as missioner, undertook to address twelve meetings during the whole of last week, while he was assisted by the minister, Rev. E. Theodore Hitchens, who has been unremitting in his efforts before and during the mission to secure its success.

The introductory service was held on Wednesday, September 25, when Rev. J. Hiles Hitchens, D.D., of Eccleston-square Church, London, was the preacher; and the concluding service was held on Wednesday, October 9, when Rev. Colmer B. Symes, of Leytonstone, preached. An organised band of visitors distributed thousands of invitations throughout Teddington; large congregations assembled throughout the mission, and some most encouraging answers to prayer were received. It is some years since a mission on so extensive and successful a scale has been held in the district.

OBITUARY.—Miss F. Dennis, well known in the villages of Devonshire and elsewhere as a loving and faithful worker, "fell asleep" on September 29, in London. During her illness she gave full testimony to the faithfulness of God, and, amongst other characteristic remarks, said, "not a prayer has been unanswered, and not a promise unfulfilled."

[902]

Jewish Convention at Mildmay.

The measure of true success which attended the Convention concerning Israel, held last week in the Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, is rightly recognised as an abundant answer to earnest prayer on the part of many who do not forget Jerusalem. Things new and old were brought forth from the treasure-house of Holy Writ by many teachers well-instructed in the things of God's Kingdom, and some very cheering accounts were given of evangelistic work among the dispersed of Judah. On the first day the subject, morning and evening, was Israel's past, so marvellous in character and replete with present lessons for men and nations. On the second day, the present condition of Israel was considered, both in the light of its evidential import, and of its illustration of the judicial ways of God. On the concluding day the future of the nation was indicated in outline, as set forth in the writings of Prophets and Apostles, radiant with glory, and full of hope for the world. The prayer-meetings were seasons of refreshing, where power was gained for the more public engagements. At the afternoon missionary gatherings the reported work of the various organisations formed with the special object of bringing the Jews to see in Jesus the Messiah of ancient promise, was stimulating in a high degree. The extent of the endeavour to evangelise the Hebrew race is certainly far beyond general conception, yet it still falls far short of the duty of the Church in view of the Apostolic injunction to preach the Gospel "to the Jew first."

The subject of the Conference was well defined, and little was said that was not distinctly to the point. Of course, the addresses were to a large extent simply re-statements of old truths. There must be such re-statements, if the rising generation is to be well grounded in the truth. Some of the speakers succeeded in investing oft-told tales with much freshness, and, taken as a whole, the speeches formed an admirable body of teaching on God's purpose with regard to Israel. Necessarily, the place in that purpose of the Church and the world, came within the range of some of the speakers, so that many of the most enchanting pages of Divine revelation were opened up. Disputed details were not enlarged upon, but on broad lines there was an unanimity of utterance, which rendered increasingly effective the great verities that were explained.

The subject could only be considered in the light of the Word of God; therefore it hardly needs to be said that the occasion did conspicuous honour to Holy Writ. This is important at the present time. Several of the speakers showed that they had paid due attention to those parts of the New Testament which definitely open up portions of the Old. The Epistles to the Romans and the Galatians were particularly employed as authoritatively expounding the writings of Moses and the prophets, and the truth as to God's purpose in Israel was thus made to shine forth grandly. Alongside this honouring of God's Word may be placed the fact that the Conference showed Jehovah to be a God acting on a glorious plan, and having a great purpose—knowing the end from the beginning, and ruling and overruling among them to the attainment of a consummation worthy of Himself. Earth's ultimate harmony with heaven is assured, and this is being brought about in a wonderful manner; after Christ shall have taken the Church unto Himself, the people of Israel will play a blessed part in the ministry of reconciliation. "If the casting away of them is the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?...A hardening in part hath befallen Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in; and so all Israel shall be saved: even as it is written; there shall come out of Zion the Deliverer; He shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob" (Rom. xi. 15, 25, 26).

AGRICULTURAL HALL SERVICES.

Evangelistic services were commenced in the Agricultural Hall, Islington, in the autumn of 1868, and have been continued without interruption every Lord's day since. On Sunday afternoon last the twenty-first anniversary of their inauguration was celebrated.

Dr. Thain Davidson, who all along has been the leader of the movement, made an interesting statement respecting the services. During all this time, he said, it was gratifying to reflect that the Gospel of Christ had been proclaimed in simplicity and faithfulness, and often with manifest power, to many thousands of persons, large numbers of whom probably had not been in the habit of frequenting places of worship previous to their attending the services in the Hall. The work is distinctly unsectarian; ministers of different sections of the Christian Church cordially co-operate in the conduct of the services, and render valuable help. As an indication of the catholicity of spirit displayed in connection with the movement, it may be mentioned that during the past year ten Church of England, seven Congregational, fifteen Baptist, eleven Presbyterian, two Wesleyan, and seven ministers of other denominations have delivered the addresses on Sunday afternoons. The evening meetings are usually in charge of evangelists of the Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelistic Association. The one grand object of the preachers is to urge their hearers to respond to the invitation of Christ to come unto Him that they might have life, and, as a result of listening to the preaching of the Gospel from that platform, not a few have had their eyes opened to realise in the Lord Jesus Christ their personal Saviour. For all the blessing that has followed the efforts put forth, thanksgiving and praise were rendered to God, and fervent prayer offered that yet many more may be led to lay down their burden of sin at the foot of the cross, and to turn their steps toward the Celestial City.

Rev. W. H. Barlow, vicar of Islington, delivered an address. Basing his thoughts upon Isa. li. 9, "Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of the Lord; awake, as in the ancient days," &c., he impressively appealed to his hearers to join in earnest prayer to God for a powerful reviving of the Holy Spirit's influence, that individuals, and families, and congregations everywhere may be quickened into true spiritual life.

THE GOSPEL IN BILLINGSGATE.—Mr. T. Vicary's work here is intensely interesting. Time was when the monthly meetings in the Subscription Rooms were only attended by units, now there are quite numerous gatherings, showing that a good many of the men are "not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." On Tuesday last the address was delivered by Pastor Archibald G. Brown, who based some sound and timely counsel on Jer. xii. 9: "Mine heritage is unto me as a speckled bird; the birds round about are against her." The new Mission premises, in course of erection, are greatly needed. Not yet, however, do those who have the work at heart see their way altogether clear. The hon. sec. of the Mission is Mr. A. Walters, 10, Billingsgate-market, E.C.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

IV.—FOR THOSE IN HEAVINESS.

1 Peter i. 6.

Heaviness! "He began to be sorrowful, and very heavy." And if this lot befell Him, who of us can escape it? Yes, we must all have our Gethsemanes, and we must enter them alone. It is only through the darkness of that garden that we can pass upwards to the glory of the Easter morn. And it is impossible to depict the condition of such sufferers more accurately than by the words, "in heaviness." As the leaves of the laurel are pressed to the earth by the weight of a thunder shower, so are souls made heavy "by manifold temptations."

Temptation here is equivalent to trial. In other days the same word was used indiscriminately of the testings, which befall the saints, on the part of God and of the devil. The one, that we may know ourselves as He knows us, and that the first small germs of good which He has implanted may develop by use into strong and beautiful maturity. The other, that the evil within us may be made manifest, and hurried into such action, as will cast down our hopes, and sow the seeds of future indulgence. The motive of God's testings is benevolence, that we may be nobler, sweeter, riper. The motive of Satan's is malignity, that we may be hastened down the sliding-scale of sin. Thus God is said in the Scriptures to tempt men, and yet not to tempt them. He tests and tries them, but never allures them into evil.

In our desire to distinguish between these two methods of testing, we for the most part employ different words, using trial of the divinely ordered discipline of life, and temptation of the attacks of the great enemy of our souls. And, therefore, it is more appropriate to modern usage to speak of being in heaviness "through manifold trials." This is also suggested by the Revised Version. (See also James i. 2.)

"Manifold trials."—In this Epistle, as in a mirror, we can see reflected the dark shadows which were gathering over these scattered saints. Buffeted for doing well; reviled and suffering; exposed to railing and terror; evil spoken of; tried in a fiery trial; partakers of Christ's sufferings; reproached for the name of Christ; judgment beginning at the house of God; experiencing the same afflictions as fell to the lot of brethren throughout the world; such are some of the hints given throughout this Epistle of the sources of their manifold trials. To suffer as a Christian, meant the loss of business, repute, and home; desertion by parents, children, and friends; misrepresentation, hatred, and even death. The new convert became the target for every weapon, hurled from any quarter.

For ourselves, trials come generally from three sources: those brought on us by others; those caused by our own sins, mistakes, and indiscretions; and those sent to us directly from God, our Father. And beneath this various pressure, what wonder that the heart is bowed down? How apt was the summons of Jesus to the heavy laden, and how incessant the great procession of such passing down into the Vale of Tears, at the end of which stands his cross, behind which the light of morning is breaking!

The Apostle does not blame this heaviness.—The Stoic scorns to shed a tear; the Christian is not forbidden to weep; yea, he follows the best example in letting his tears have free course. We must not despise the chastening of the Lord, any more than faint under it. Strong crying and tears befit sons who are learning obedience by suffering. The soul may be dumb with excessive grief, as the shearer's scissors pass over the quivering flesh, or when the heart is on the point of breaking, beneath the meeting surges of trial, and is at liberty to seek relief by crying out with a loud voice.

But there is something even better. They say that springs of sweet fresh water well up amid the brine of salt seas; that the fairest Alpine flowers bloom in the wildest, ruggedest mountain passes; that the noblest psalms were the outcome of the profoundest agony of soul. Be it so. And thus amid manifold trials souls which love God will find reasons for bounding, leaping joy. Though deep call to deep, yet the Lord's song will be heard in silver cadence through the night. And it is possible in the darkest hour that ever swept a human life to bless the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. Have you learnt this lesson yet? Not simply to endure God's will, nor only to choose it, nor only to trust it, but to rejoice in it with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

Of such joy there are two sources: first, the understanding of the nature and meaning of trial; second, the soul's love and faith in its unseen Lord. There is enough in these two for unsullied and transcendent joy; in fact, we may question whether we ever truly drink of Christ's joy, till all other sources of joy are eliminated by earthly sorrow, and we are driven to seek that joyous blessedness which no earthly sun can wither and no winter freeze (Hab. iii. 17, 18, 19).

I. The Nature and Meaning of Trial.—Trial is here compared to fire; that subtle element, which is capable of inflicting such exquisite torture on our seared and agonised flesh; which cannot endure the least taint or remnant of impurity, but wraps its arms around objects committed to it with eager intensity to set them free and make them pure; which is careless of agony, if only its passionate yearning may be satisfied; which lays hold of things more material than itself, loosening their texture, snapping their fetters, and bearing them upwards in its heaven-leaping energy. What better emblem could there be for God, and for those trials which He permits or sends, and in the heart of which He is to be found? Ah, the agony of the suffering is keen to bear—when friends forsake, and enemies reproach, and the work of years is suddenly shattered, and the soul is stung with pain and shame and ingratitude, with disappointment and bereavement: such suffering is to the soul what fire is to the flesh.

(1) But this fire is a refiner's fire.—The reference is evident. And we are taken back to an olden prophecy, from which we learn that when the Lord comes to his temple, He sits as a refiner beside the crucible (Mal. iii. 3). We may well take the shoes from off our feet, when we enter the chamber of some tried Christian, for certainly the Lord is there.

It is He who permits the trial.—The evil thing may originate in the malignity of a Judas, but by the time it reaches us it has become the cup which our Father has given us to drink. The waster may purpose his own lawless and destructive work, but he cannot go an inch beyond the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God. The very devil must ask permission ere he touches a hair of the patriarch's head. The point up to which we may be tested is fixed by consummate wisdom. The weapon may hurt and the fire sting, but they are in the hands which redeemed us. Nothing can befall us without his permission, and his permissions are his appointments. We cannot be the sport of blind fate or chance, for in trial we are still in the hands of the living Saviour.

It is He who superintends the trial.—No earthly friend may be near, but in every furnace there is One like the Son of Man; in every flood of high water He is beside. Staying the heart with promises, instilling words of faith and hope, recalling the blessed past, pointing to the radiant future, hushing fear, as once He stilled the dismay of his disciples on the lake—such is the ministry of Jesus. And as the sufferer looks back on it, he says, "I never felt Him so near before, and if it hadn't been for what He was to me, I could never have lived through it."

It is He who watches the progress of the trial.—No mother bending over her suffering child is more solicitous than He is. Suiting the trial to your strength. Keeping his finger on your pulse so as to stay the flame when the heart begins to flutter. Only too eager to see the scum pass off, and his own face reflected from the face of the molten metal.

Happy would it be for us if, instead of looking at our trials, we would look away to his face, only eager to understand his meaning, and to learn his intended lesson, so that as the outward man perishes, the inward man may be renewed day after day. Whilst the marble wastes beneath the sculptor's hand, the image grows; so should each loss in our estate or circumstance have a corresponding gain in spiritual conformity to Christ.

(2) Trial is only for a season.—"Now for a season, ye are in heaviness." The great Husbandman is not always threshing. The showers soon pass. Weeping may only tarry for the few hours of the short summer night, it must be gone at daybreak. Our light affliction is but for a moment.

There is a subtle distinction here between the most precious and enduring of material substances and the faith of the Christian soul. Gold that perisheth. Gold outlasts wood and the potter's art, and most things else. It may be attenuated and worn by long use, yet will it survive the gentle hand on which it has spoken of unending love for half a century. But there is that in each of us which cannot perish. The mere accident of death cannot affect it, nor the flight of time, nor the descent of all created things into the gulf of oblivion. It is eternal as the God who inspired it. And compared to that boundless existence which is its birthright, how paltry and insignificant do the longest trials appear, though they have lain for many years on the soul and life. Judged by the measureless span of eternity, they are but for a season, and will pass as completely from memory as the clouds of early morning before the meridian glory of a long summer day.

(3) Trial is for a purpose. "It needs be."

There is nothing harder to bear than the apparent aimlessness of sorrow. A new interest comes into the monotony of prison-discipline as soon as the convicts feel that their toils are achieving some positive result. And when no purpose seems secured by our sufferings or toils, hope dies.

With the Christian there is no fear of this. There is a utility in every trial. It is intended to reveal the secrets of our hearts, to humble us and prove us, to winnow us as corn is shaken in a sieve, to detach us from the earthly and visible, to create in us an eager desire for the realities which can alone quench our cravings and endure for ever. We must not look on trial as punishment for the past, because all penalty has been borne for us by our Redeemer. But each trial points to the future, and is intended to make us partakers of his holiness, and to work in us the peaceable fruit of righteousness. The very fact of trial proves that there is something in us very precious to our Lord, else He would not spend so much pains and time on us. We do not prune brambles, or cast stones into the crucible, or plough the sea-sands And Christ would not test us if he did not see the precious ore of faith mingled in the rocky matrix of our nature; and it is to bring this out into purity and beauty that He forces us through the fiery ordeal. Be patient, oh sufferer; He must love you or He would not chasten you; you must be his or He would not take such pains with you; you must be capable of some high service, which can only be secured through pain, or He would not plunge you into the refining fires. You must be able to bear the fire or He would not plunge you into it (Num. xxxi. 23).

The result will more than compensate us.—"Found unto praise, and honour, and glory, at the appearing of Jesus Christ." The gold is well repaid for the fires when it encircles the monarch's brow; the diamond for the lapidary's wheel when it glistens on the neck of beauty. And we shall be more than recompensed for all our trials, when we see how they wrought out the far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. To have one word of God's commendation; to be honoured before the holy angels; to be glorified in Christ, so as to be better able to flash back his glory on Himself—ah! this will more than repay for all. Let us live more constantly in that future, under the powers of the world to come, as soldiers solace themselves in the arduous campaign by talking over their watch-fires of the welcome and rewards which will greet them on their return. "Now they do it for a corruptible crown, we for an incorruptible." All the blessings which accrue through trial are only possible to us, however, when the heart meekly accepts it from the hand of God, and opens to the operation of the Holy Spirit. Trial alone may harden, as the fire which softens wax hardens clay to bricks. But when trial is accompanied with the gracious influences of the Holy Spirit, it is as a precious oil that does not break the head.

See how much God thinks of faith.—It is priceless in his esteem. What gold is to the miser, faith is to God. It is the root of all other grace, the germ of the saintly life, the key to the Divine storehouse, the foot of the heavenly ladder, the earthward pier of the arch that bridges the abyss between the unseen and the seen. To make it strong in one poor heart is a matter of extreme value in his sight. And since it can only grow strong by use, and exercise, and strain, be not surprised if He expose you to discipline, graduated according to your power, but becoming ever severer, until beneath his gracious tuition the faith, which once shivered at sight of the shallows, will plunge fearlessly into the deep, and do business in mighty waters.

A MISSIONARY FAREWELL.—An unusually interesting valedictory meeting in connection with the China Inland Mission is to be held in Exeter Hall next Monday evening, when some thirty outgoing missionaries will be commended to God.

More Leaves from my Notebook.

By Rev. WILLIAM HASLAM, M.A.
Author of "From Death into Life. An Autobiography."

XXIX.—THE BACKSLIDER.

"What is the meaning of that text in the Epistle to the Hebrews?" said a nervous-looking gentleman to me. I knew at once by the tone of the man, without asking him, to what text he referred.

I said, "Do you mean the fourth verse of the sixth chapter: 'For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good Word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance'?"

"Yes," he said, "that is the passage I refer to."

I answered, "A great many people in your frame of mind, I find, gravitate to those words. I think that text is like a candle to a moth; there seems to be some morbid fascination in it."

It is never well to take the edge off Scripture warnings, nor is it my intention to settle finally the meaning of this text.

I asked my inquirer what he thought of the verse in question. I said, "Do you think that it means a backslider can never be restored?"

My friend nodded assent.

I continued, "That is certainly not its meaning; for there are many promises to backsliders, as such, in Scripture."

"That is a comfort," said the gentleman; but he added, "What if they sin wilfully?"

I answered, "What if they are awakened by the Spirit to feel and own their wilful sins? What if they desire to repent and be restored? Such Godly sorrow works repentance not to be repented of."

"Then," said my friend, "I am more perplexed than ever at those awful words."

I replied, "I do not mean for a moment to say that they are not awful words; but I do mean to say that they are not spoken in reference to backsliders."

"But who else can they refer to?" inquired the gentleman eagerly, as if he wished they did.

I said, "I believe that these words refer to such people as Felix, who knew and felt the reality of the Gospel so that he trembled under its power; yet he could not make up his mind to take the worldly consequences. He would rather forego Gospel privileges than be involved in Gospel responsibilities."

"Is that so?" said the gentleman, looking anxiously into my face.

I answered, "If Satan boldly tempted such people openly to reject God's offer, they would refuse; but he panders to their depravity, and leads them into procrastination instead. They do not say, No, I will not yield; but rather, Go thy way this time, at a more convenient season I will send for thee! In this subtle manner multitudes of silly souls are entangled and detained on the wrong side of the threshold of the door of salvation, and they never enter in; they see and know about the blessedness of the other side; but worldly considerations are brought to counter-balance."

"You think, then," said the gentleman, "that there is some hope for a backslider."

"Yes," I replied, "without doubt there is, and particularly for a fearing and sorrowful one. A backslider is one who has slidden back from a positive position."

It seemed to be a comfort to this gentleman to hear this. Still, like the moth at the candle, he could not keep off from the discouragement he was courting. To take him out of himself, I thought I would tell a story of a real backslider and his restoration.

I said I knew a young man who had been very definitely converted to God, and had held on his way with much joy, and even success, for more than two years. One springtime he came across a young lady who took his fancy, but who was living without Christ. Instead of winning her for Him, she had the opposite effect upon her admirer; and drew him, in spite of his better judgment and knowledge, into the world. She laughed at the idea of his conversion, until he at length laughed at it himself! It was even irritating to him to be reminded of the happy days he used to enjoy; and, as if in desperation, he went into excesses of rudeness and ill behaviour. Instead of going to church as before, on Sunday mornings he was seen confronting his old friends, and passing the other way with a cigar in his mouth. With all this bravado, I was sure this young man was not happy. He took care to keep out of my way; but one day, while it was raining very hard, we happened to meet.

I was taking shelter under a tree, and, while standing there, I heard someone else come up on the other side of the tree, for the same purpose. Looking round, I was surprised to see my backslider, Henry. "We are well met," I said, "in one shelter. How are you?"

"Oh, I am perfectly well," was his ready answer; "and very happy, too," he added, in an off-hand way.

"Are you really happy?" I asked. "I am very much mistaken if it is so. I should say you are very miserable, and carrying about a hell in your bosom."

"You go to! Why should I be so?"

"You know why," I said. "Tell me now, is it not true?"

"No such thing," he replied, and went off into the pelting rain rather than remain with me. For all this, I felt sure that the poor fellow was miserable.

About a month from this time, a cousin of his, who had been brought to God by him, called upon me. Among others, he asked after Henry. He had not heard of his fall, neither did I tell him. "Where is Henry now?" he asked. I said, "He is not far off, he is shooting in a turnip field, close by. Come, let us find him."

We soon espied him and his dog in the adjoining field. His cousin went over the hedge to meet him. I could not hear the greeting, or what followed; but soon I saw them kneel down together in the field. After a little while, they rose up and walked towards the Rectory. Seeing that, I ran forward in order to be there in time to receive them.

In they came, Henry crying and blubbering like a child boy. "Will you forgive me?" he sobbed. "Yes," I replied, "with all my heart." He said, "Do you remember asking me one day if I was not carrying a hell about in my bosom?" "Yes," I said, "I do very well, and I am glad to hear you acknowledge it. Now, here is a text for you, 'I will heal their backsliding, and love them freely.'"

This young man was restored. His wife, however, for he was married by this time, remained hard and worldly as she could be—a sore trouble to him, a very thorn in his side.

"Did he become as happy as before?" inquired the gentleman I was talking to.

"No," I answered, "he was hampered with a heavy burden at home—he was not as free; but though chastened, he was restored. So, you see, it is possible for a backslider to return."

I asked the question, "Have you fallen in this way? Are you a backslider?"

The gentleman would not speak, so I continued, "What am I to suppose? Are you falling away, or have you fallen back?"

"I have fallen back," he said, with some effort.

"Then, cheer up, there is hope for you; but you must come back to God in your true character as a backslider, and not as an unsaved sinner. God knows what He has done for you, and what you are. He does not need telling, as if He did not know; but He needs your confession. You may come and plead his free promise to such as you, and beg Him to heal your backsliding, and love you freely again."

After prayer, he went away, and some time later on he called upon me again with a happy countenance. He said, "God has restored my soul, and now it is laid upon my heart to work amongst backsliders. There are many such," he added; "I think they fall back, because they do not trust the Lord to keep them—I tried to keep myself. This is my mission at present."

"The Lord bless you," I said, "and prosper you in your work for Him more and more."

OUR YOUNG MEN.

THE LORD MAYOR AT ALDERSGATE-STREET.

On Wednesday, October 2, Lord Mayor Whitehead presided over the opening meeting of the new session at the old-established Association in Aldersgate-street. The Lady Mayoress, with much grace, presented prizes of value to the successful competitors in the Educational Classes, and in the Athletic Sports, which, with other weightier matters, have occupied the attention of the members during the past year. There was the usual overflowing gathering in the Lecture Hall. A renewed acquaintance with this, coupled with the absence of a gymnasium, seemed to impress his Lordship with the necessity for a new building, if the Association were to keep abreast of the needs of the time.

Before calling upon the Lady Mayoress to perform her function, his Lordship spoke some thoughtful and encouraging words to the young men and their friends. He said it seemed to him that such institutions as the Y.M.C.A. were as important as they had ever been in the history of the Metropolis, and it was of the utmost moment that young men who came from the country should have a place of this kind to resort to in the evening, after the toil of the day. In all establishments the young men had now shorter hours of business, and this gave them extra time, which afforded them an opportunity either for improving their minds or of giving way to the allurements which are so common in the Metropolis. He was glad to think that many of the amusements of the present day were more beneficial and less harmful than those in the past; but still there were far too many inducements for young men to go wrong. Evening occupation was wanted which would be of a healthful character, and such as would improve the minds of young men. Nothing could be better than that which was provided by the Y.M.C.A. He had seen the good work the Association was doing in Australia, New Zealand, and other parts of the Colonial Empire. It was an institution which had been fostered and sustained by upright, conscientious men, who had done much to improve the atmosphere of social life, and had not neglected that which was above all essential, the religious element.

Then the roll of prize winners was read, and much hearty cheering greeted them as they came up to receive their well-earned rewards. Mr. George Williams followed with one of his characteristic speeches. He did not fail to set forth the Gospel, and to press the Saviour on the acceptance of the young men present. Mr. Robert Burn, the much-respected Secretary, gave some interesting statistics, showing the progress of the Association, and the excellent provision in its several departments for the coming season; he dwelt specially on the new departure on Sunday afternoons, when Gospel addresses by picked men are being given.

Rev. Geo. F. Head, of Christ Church, Hampstead, admirably availed himself of the important occasion in a special address to young men. At first he dealt out some excellent advice concerning a young man's reading; for instance, the care required in the selection of authors. It is not enough that the book should be clever and sparkling, for underneath its pleasant, attractive pen might lurk a subtle poison, capable of developing untold mischief. It is not enough to read a good book; painstaking effort must be made to discard the less worthy portions, and to impress on the memory the valuable points; that, having been thoughtfully read, they may be forthcoming in an orderly fashion when required. Education makes a man more valuable. "If a stone is fit for the wall, the builder will not let it lie long in the way." It makes a man happier. Ignorance is darkness. An ignorant man fears where there is no danger and has no fear where there is real danger. Read books which teach you what as yet you do not know. The very effort to reach higher brings out your powers. "Read, think, remember." A Chinese student commits to memory more of the Chinese classics than are represented by our Scriptures from Genesis to Revelation. Ever place first and foremost the culture of the soul—culture it by the Word of God. The man who cultures his mind and neglects his soul is like an engine-driver who polishes the outside of his locomotive and utterly neglects its working parts. By many apt suggestions he brought to memory old home lessons, amongst others a mother's influence and teaching, and pointed out the path by which a young man, abiding in Christ, might be "in the world and not of it."

Mr. J. D. Allcroft, in very heartily proposing a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor, the Lady Mayoress, and Mr. Head, went very profitably beyond the usual formalities, and supported Mr. Head's advice with great cogency. Mr. M. H. Hodder briefly but very happily seconded the proposal. The meeting closed as it began, by prayer, led by Rev. Prebendary Whittington, of St. Peter's, Cornhill. A very successful and auspicious opening to what we trust will prove a very profitable and God-glorifying winter's work.

LIVERPOOL Y.M.C.A.

The inaugural gathering and prize distribution in connection with the Young Men's Christian Association took place on October 3 in the Association building, Mount-pleasant, the large hall being crowded. The Mayor (Mr. E. H. Cookson) presided. The report of the general secretary (Mr. Thomas Jameson) showed that, besides numerous literary, social, and monthly appointments, the executive had arranged fifty-eight popular evenings, including "at homes," music, travels, dissolving views, science, during the ensuing six months. Over seventy evening educational classes had also been commenced. During the past year over five hundred and fifty addresses were given, and over seven hundred meetings held in connection with the religious work of the Association. Two thousand three hundred and twenty-six entries were made to the seventy evening educational classes arranged with the object of enabling the members to better qualify themselves for commercial pursuits. At the close of the season about five hundred of the students sat for examination, securing no fewer than four hundred and seventy passes, some of a high order of merit.

After the partial distribution of the prizes, the Mayor said of one thing he was confident, that any young man in Liverpool, or any young man coming to Liverpool, would have an opportunity of bettering himself second to none offered in the kingdom. He spoke strongly in favour of the cultivation by the young men of the present day of shorthand and gymnastics.

Bishop Ryle said that he thought physical exercise of the highest importance. He strongly urged upon all to be thorough in their religion. There was a great fog creeping over the world in religious matters. Some people seemed to think that it hardly mattered what a man taught or what he held. Scepticism could do little to comfort them when they were going down the valley of the shadow of death. In conclusion, he asked them to try and make their lives useful, and to do some good in the world. Let them try not to go to heaven alone; let them try to take someone with them.

Rev. John Watson spoke of the inestimable benefits conferred by reading. But besides reading, there should be reflection. Turning to social matters, he said that the temperance battle was going to be fought, and the trumpets for the contest were even now sounding. He was not going to touch upon any controversial aspect of the matter. The question for them was this: Was their city to be studded with places that were simply dens of temptation? In his opinion, the people of this country would soon insist that the nation should have control in this matter. The temperance battle would be a big one, and he hoped it would be honourably fought on both sides.

SOCIAL RECEPTION AT EXETER HALL.

The opening of the winter session at Exeter Hall was signalised last week by a social gathering, with Mr. George Williams for the genial host. On these occasions an effort is made to secure the presence of new comers, so that at the outset of their London career, the protecting mantle of the Y.M.C.A. may be thrown around them. A goodly crowd of young fellows responded to the call on Friday evening and spent a pleasant hour in tea and talk. Then came some music of the drawing-room and sentimental order—some of the ditties a little too much so, perhaps.

Mr. E. J. Kennedy's lucid statement of the advantages enjoyed by the Exeter Hall Y.M.C.A. young man, ought to bring in a number of new recruits. First of all, he announced the result of a competition for prizes, offered by a friend, for the three best essays on Protestant Christianity. Mr. J. H. Tritton and Canon Girdlestone had adjudicated, and the three best were discovered to be all Exeter Hall men. The two first were so equal in point of merit, that the two prizes, £20 and £5, were equally divided between the winners, Mr. Ritchie and Mr. Stanley Pite; the third man is Mr. J. F. Dinwoodie. The two last were present, and were loudly cheered as Mr. George Williams handed them the respective cheques. Mr. Kennedy went on to tell of the sixty-seven educational classes, of the splendid gymnasium in Long Acre, of high-class musical performances on Saturday evenings, of the Literary Society, the London Rambling Club, the pictorial addresses on Wednesday evenings, the Sunday afternoon "Straight Talks," and the Gospel work. This last, the Secretary said, they regarded as by far the most important, and they made no concealment about it.

Mr. Williams, as chairman and host, cordially welcomed his young friends, and spoke some weighty words about fleeing from temptation, and about the manliness of true Christianity. Mr. Millard, a young missionary about to proceed to China (who made such a profound impression at Keswick), gave a bright little address, magnifying the grace of God, in enabling him to withstand temptation, and to testify for Christ during his sojourn in China as a business man. He said he hoped to sail for the Flowery Land on October 17, and made an earnest appeal to his young brothers to prepare themselves for missionary work.

An address by the well-nigh ubiquitous Rev. John McNeill was the chief dish of the evening, and it was one that fully sustained the high reputation of the pastor of Regent-square. It might be compared to a Gospel mitrallieuse, brought to bear on those of the audience who had not definitely decided to accept and serve Jesus Christ. He spoke of shouldering the cross, and of manfully carrying it into business circles, into study, and into social engagements. That cross never crushed the man who boldly shouldered it; it sustains and elevates even while it bites into the flesh. Intemperance, betting, gambling, impure literature, and other forms of evil came under Mr. McNeill's lash, and he extolled the marvellous help that God gives to those who, in conscious weakness, put themselves in his hands. We have seldom heard him speak with more fire or effect, and we cannot doubt that his appeal will be long remembered.

Mr. Oscar Owers has given a series of Special Talks for the times, entitled "Christ and Inspiration," to young men only, on the Sunday afternoons in September. These valuable addresses attracted a large attendance of young men Sunday by Sunday, and were evidently greatly appreciated. Mr. Owers also took the evangelistic meeting on Sunday evenings, and the daily prayer-meeting each week day. We believe the month's services have been very helpful to many.

The friends at Exeter Hall are repainting the premises throughout, making two new stairway exits at the back of the large hall, and also installing the electric light. This will involve an outlay of some £6000; we doubt not the friends of this noble institution will be glad to bear a share of the burden.

SOUTHWARK EVENING CLASSES.

The winter educational session of the Southwark branch of the Y.M.C.A. was inaugurated on Wednesday week by Sir Albert Rollit, M.P., who spoke in high terms of the advantages afforded to young men by such institutions. In early life he was connected with an association to all intents and purposes similar to the Y.M.C.A,, and looking back upon his experience he said that if he had to begin life again he would become a member of the Y.M.C.A., not less for its physical than for its intellectual facilities.

Dr. Gilbart Smith (in the absence of Sir Andrew Clarke, M.D., who was announced to speak on "Two lives: our own, and that of another") delivered an excellent lecture on "How to live." He said that unless we had solved this question we should be totally unfit to place our lives at the disposal of another.

The annual meeting of the Association will be held at Rev. Newman Hall's Church, Westminster Bridge-road, on Thursday, October 24. The Right Hon. A. J. Mundella, M.P., Earl Compton, M.P., Rev. Newman Hall, and Rev. Jackson Wray are expected to speak.

MALOGA ABORIGINAL MISSION.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, with Paddy and Jennie Swift, the two Aborigines, have recently addressed a number of meetings in and around London, with the object of interesting Christian friends in the work of the Maloga Aboriginal Mission. On Thursday last week they held a very encouraging meeting in the lower Exeter Hall. Mr. Matthews greatly interested the large audience by his narrative of the origin and progress of the Mission, and much sympathy was evinced in the good work of endeavouring to win to Christ the dark-hearted and dark-skinned natives of our great Southern colonies.

Paddy Swift and his wife were on the platform attired in the dress which is worn by the aborigines in their roving state. Paddy exhibited several of the implements of warfare, including the boomerang, club, and shield, used by the wild black men of the bush, and gave a bright testimony to his faith in the Lord Jesus. "I'm a black fellow," he exclaimed, "but I've got a white heart; I've been washed in Jesus' blood." Mrs. Swift also delivered a lively address, pathetically appealing to her white English friends to stir themselves up to do more to help the work of evangelising the neglected blacks of Australia.

Mrs. Matthews added a few words. She mentioned that she and Paddy and Jennie intend leaving for Australia on October 31, but that Mr. Matthews purposes remaining in England a short time longer to address further meetings on behalf of their Mission.

London Churches.

Allen-street, Kensington.

After a lengthened interregnum, the pulpit of the well-known and historical Congregational Church, Allen-street, Kensington, is occupied by a stated pastor. The circumstances attending the filling of this vacancy are somewhat peculiar. Among those who preached when Rev. Colmer Symes resigned the ministerial charge of the congregation, was a young student of Mansfield College, Mr. Sylvester Horne. Such a favourable impression did he create that a hearty invitation was given to him to assume the pastoral care of the church. His theological studies were not then complete, and the call was accepted on the understanding that he should go on to the end of his curriculum, and then take the regular oversight of the flock. The church must have seen signs of great promise in the man of their choice before they could have hazarded this arrangement. All risk of any serious break-up in the congregation, however, was avoided by Rev. Edward White stepping into the breach, and consenting to act as interim pastor.

The eighteen months have now passed away, and last Lord's Day Mr. Horne entered on his pastoral duties, preaching morning and evening to good congregations. His morning sermon was from the words, "Ourselves your servants, for Jesus' sake," and was appropriate as an exposition of the ideal Christian ministry. In the evening Mr. Horne preached from the words of the Psalmist, "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills, whence cometh my help." His main points were that this help will not come unsought; that when it is sought and found, it will sanctify our common life; and that it is available for all. In the course of his sermon, he spoke strongly in condemnation of present-day worldliness and mammon-worship. The supreme horror, he said, is that we see engrossment in these slavish lusts even where the presence of God is revealed and his life is to some extent manifest. How many of us are living in a religion from which God has been excluded as much as possible! This aspiration of the Psalmist is no mysticism, except in the best sense of the word; it is intensely practical. The so-called mystics wandered on the airy, unsubstantial heights of speculation, till they became neglectful of present duty. Not so the Christian; our close, intimate relationship with God brings protection to our best interests and advances our prosperity. It enables a man to live the highest life in the lowest places. If Christ, the Eternal Son of God, could not do without the presence of his Father, how is it possible that we can live an independent life?

Mr. Horne is a very young pastor—only twenty-four—and his best friends will surround him with an atmosphere of prayer and help that he may fulfil the high trust reposed in him. He stands in a pulpit hallowed and exalted by the memories of able and devoted service to his Church. He will be formally ordained to the ministry of the Gospel on the evening of the 17th inst., and on the following Sunday Dr. Dale will deliver the charge to the congregation.

LONDON CITY MISSION.—On Tuesday, last week, a hall in connection with the London City Mission was opened in Portland-road, South Norwood. For some years Mr. J. J. Browne has done excellent work in the district, and the need for the mission building has been felt for some time. The opening meetings were attended by ministers of various denominations, and addresses of hearty sympathy were delivered by Messrs. F. A. Bevan, E. Compton, E. M. Chubb, F. King, F. Fishwick, and Revs. Burman Cassin and John Chadwick. In the course of the proceedings, a Bible, suitably inscribed, was presented to the hardworking missionary. The cost of the building was under £850, of which the major part has been raised. An additional room, in which to carry on various agencies connected with the Mission, is still required.

DR. PENTECOST IN SCOTLAND.

A united mission is going on in Airdrie, and Dr. Pentecost is the missioner. Prior to the commencement of the mission proper, prayer-meetings were held in the Burgh Hall, and soul-stirring addresses were given by Messrs. Oatts, Andrew, and Stewart, from Glasgow; one meeting was devoted entirely to prayer and praise.

On Sabbath, September 29, Dr. Pentecost preached to large audiences in the Wellwynd United Presbyterian Church, the Free West Church, and the New Public Hall. In the evening hundreds failed to get admission. During the week the meetings have been held every night in Brownknoll Free Church, and afternoon Bible-readings have been given on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. The services have been deeply solemn and searching, the after-meetings especially so. Night after night a long series of requests for prayer is laid before God. If it were needful to prove that judgment must begin at the house of God before the "greater things" of which our Lord speaks can be done, one of these may be mentioned: "Pray for Christian landlords who let their property to publicans for public-houses."

A list of those who have decided for Christ as their Saviour and Keeper is kept by Dr. Pentecost, and each minister is expected to look after his own flock. It is remarkable, though after all just what we might expect, that not a few conversions are known to have taken place in the neighbourhood since the mission began, though the anxious ones had not been to the meetings.

John Paterson, Chairman of Committee.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

The sixth annual Conference of the Young Women's Christian Association in Ireland was held last week in Dublin. Mrs. Fowler presided over a meeting on Thursday afternoon, at which Mrs. Ross, of London, read an interesting paper on emigration work. After ten years of effort, the agency may be declared to be as eminently useful as it is certainly needful. Mrs. King, of Monkstown, is the emigration secretary. An address by Mrs. Noble, the president, was read in her absence by Mrs. Marrable. She regretted that in some places meetings of prayer-union members had not yet been convened, and she called upon secretaries not to rest satisfied till their various branches had such meetings. In the evening a missionary gathering was held, Miss Bradshaw presiding. Helpful addresses were delivered by Miss Ditmas and Miss Gollock (London).

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Fowler gave an account of the aims and workings of the Association. A present need is a Home in which persons looking for employment can have rooms and help. Mrs. Barcroft followed with an address on total abstinence; Mrs. Causton made an appeal on behalf of the Railway Mission; Mrs. Nugent spoke on Bible study, and Mrs. Bannister, of London, on "A Christ-possessed Life." General Butler Stoney presided over a meeting in the evening, at which addresses were delivered by Miss Wingfield Digby, Mr. T. Pakenham Law, Q.C., and Revs. A. L. Elliott and J. S. McDade.

There are seventy branches of the Association in Ireland, with 12,000 members. Dublin has two branches—one at 75, Harcourt-street, and the other at 8, Rutland-square. Holiday Homes were also started in different parts of Ireland, and have proved most successful. It is hoped that by next summer such a Home will be established in the neighbourhood of Dublin.

DUMFRIES CONFERENCE.

This Conference, the first of its kind for the South-West of Scotland, was held last week at Dumfries. The committee included ministers of the Established Church, the Free Church, and the United Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Sir Emilius Lawrie, Bart., of Maxwelton, and late vicar of St. John's, Paddington, as Chairman, and D. J. Maxwell, Esq., younger, of Munches, as secretary. The unity of spirit among those thus differing ecclesiastically has been a marked feature throughout. If anything had been needed to deepen this unity, it would have been felt in the wise words of the President's opening address on the Monday evening. Scottish ecclesiastical differences are sharply defined, but such meetings as these give reason to hope that the day is drawing near when the great common basis of faith, and the common brotherhood in Christ, of all the churches, will find expression in some form of federation, if not in actual union. It cannot but impress the careless and scoffing world, which makes so much of the Church's divisions, to see not only all the Presbyterian, but also the Episcopal and Independent, Churches thus rallying together with one mind and one purpose round the person and work of our blessed Lord.

Preliminary devotional meetings had been held on the three preceding Sabbath evenings in the Established, Free, and United Presbyterian Churches. These were pervaded by the spirit of prayer and expectancy, as were also the eight o'clock prayer-meeting and that preceding the evening evangelistic meetings. The success of this Conference will doubtless encourage its promoters to arrange for its becoming an annual institution; and, if so, this first meeting gives promise of it becoming a centre of much and blessed spiritual influence for the South of Scotland.

The subject of the Conference was "The Spiritual Life: its Hindrances; its Helps." At the opening meeting, after briefly alluding to the different aspects of the subject, referred to the advance of religion during the last fifty or sixty years. Comparing things at present with what they were fifty years ago, he thought there had been a very striking advance of real religion in the country. At no period has the Gospel been more faithfully preached; at no period have there been truer servants of Christ in our midst; and at no period has there been more work done at home and abroad. Yet very much remains to be done. The primary object in such meetings is to deepen spiritual life in the hearts of God's people, and then by united effort much good may be done. True unity consists (1) in the relation which we bear to Christ, and (2) in the affection which we bear to our fellow Christians. The Church of old included within its bounds many who differed on various points; and there has been too often a policy in the Church of exclusion rather than comprehension. The Church of Rome excludes from her boundaries such as do not hold the supremacy of the Pope; the English Church excludes all who do not accept diocesan Episcopacy and worship according to her liturgy; and in Presbyterian churches there has often been a policy of exclusion rather than of comprehension. The Church of Christ acknowledges no artificial boundaries of man's devising. It is, therefore, for us to exercise a spirit of kindness, forbearance, and toleration towards Christians who may differ from us. Much is complained of as division which is not division; much is longed for as unity which is not unity. This union of heart and forces in Dumfries should serve as a centre from which evangelical work may go forth to other parts. The Scotch armies in olden time met to fight, to plunder, and to disperse. We have to fight, but it is the Lord's battle; we meet, not to plunder, but to make known the unsearchable riches of Christ; not to disperse, but to close up the ranks.

REV. SIR EMILIUS LAWRIE, BART.,

It may easily be inferred that such words as these had a marked effect in directing the subsequent thoughts of the Conference, which was one of the most useful and practical gatherings that we have for some time been privileged to attend.

On Tuesday Rev. J. Smith, of Broughton-place, Edinburgh, spoke upon

"THE DISTINCTIVE REALITY

of the Spiritual Life." He was not going to debate whether there was a Christian life or not, because it has become a matter of personal experience. There is a great party which we cannot ignore, the party of unbelief and agnosticism, who have put themselves in a most perilous position by declaring that whether there is a God or not, He cannot be known. With an intolerable presumption they characterise the Christian life as a falsehood and a lie. He appealed with fervency to his hearers to make the Christian life ring in the ears of the unbelieving world; and went on to expound in detail the various stages which marked the progress and development of the spiritual life. Was there, he asked, any life that had proved itself such a grand reality as the Christian life, which vindicates itself by its reasonableness?

The Very Rev. the Dean of Ripon then considered of the Spiritual Life." There was nothing that filled his soul with joy so much as to find grounds on which Christians could unite. He based his remarks on the parable of the vine and the branches, pointing out that the Lord passed from grafting to abiding. The condition of the branch is that of receiving continual life from the vine, and so in the life of every believer there should be the experience of this fulness, of receiving grace for grace. Rev. Dr. Marshall Lang spoke on the "Divine Maintenance of the Spiritual Life," showing how God provides for and supports the life which He has given us—the life of God in the poor soil of the human heart. This life can only be healthy in so far as it is fed from above, guided from above, and is in vital relation to the kingdom of God to which it belongs. It cannot be sustained without daily intercourse with Christ. Christ in the man is the power. We are too apt to give out and not take in; to think of the labour rather than of the power; and yet the power is there for everyone. Another characteristic of the Christian life should be joy. Are not the wheels of our congregational and personal activity

"THE DIVINE ORIGIN

JERKY, RUSTY, AND CREAKY,

because they are not anointed with the oil of gladness? The reason many Christians are so joyless is that they are so self-centred. In conclusion Dr. Lang appealed to his hearers to yield themselves wholly to God's blessed Spirit, that He might lift their hearts, so that warmth and brightness might steal into every part of their souls.

ON SPIRITUAL GROWTH.

In dealing with "The Habitual Growth of the Spiritual Life," Rev. J. M. Sloan, of Edinburgh, pointed out that the first condition of life is to have everything that hinders put out of the way, and that if we are to grow we must abide fully, heartily, in Christ. Then again, we must have a whole-hearted faith, and Christ's words abiding in us. Soul and intellect should be rooted in the soil of the Divine truth. The Chairman, in summing up the remarks of these and other speakers, said it was not new truths that are wanted, but a firmer grip of the old ones. If we allow our spiritual life to lie in the "mummy case" of indolence and inaction, it will bear but little useful fruit.

In the evening the Conference was held in the beautiful and spacious Greyfriars' Church, and was largely attended. The subject for consideration was "Conversion," and Rev. Dr. Marshall Lang, explaining its meaning, earnestly urged its necessity. He enumerated various attitudes which people take up in reference to the new birth (such as disinclination, objection, unbelief), and showed from the Law, the Prophets, the Gospels, and the Epistles that a new heart is essential before the kingdom of God can be entered. Rev. J. M. Sloan followed up Dr. Lang's very impressive address by quoting examples (such as Paul, Cornelius, Lydia, the Philippian jailer, and the Ethiopian eunuch) recorded in the Acts. From each he set forth important points, urging individual trust in the person of Christ.

ON MORAL HINDRANCES.

On Wednesday the subject under consideration was "Hindrances to the Spiritual Life," and this was opened by Rev. George Wilson, Edinburgh, who dwelt on "Moral Hindrances." He founded his address upon three statements from the Word of God:—(1) "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin" (Rom. xiv. 23); (2) 1 Cor. x. 13; (3) "My grace is sufficient for thee" (2 Cor. xii. 9). Mr. Wilson then proceeded to define such moral hindrances as (1) a self-centred will; the remedy for which is the submission of our will to that of God. (2) A divided heart—caused by some of the old indwellers, who are slow to give up their tenancy. The remedy is not the expulsive power of a new effort, but that of a new Indweller. (3) The pampered flesh, which is to be overcome, not by starving the flesh, but by nourishing the spirit. (4) A lax moral judgment, often fostered by circumstances and customs, which militate against spiritual growth. (5) Pious pride, which would make us a prey to the flatterer—flattered for our piety, our devotion, for the good we are doing. If we would please men, let us first see that we please God. If men applaud you, take it to Christ before you take it for yourself, and you will be a humble and a strong man. The praise of men should only come to you from above; the crown should be above the head, where you cannot see it. (6) A perturbed spirit. (7) A partial surrender, and this last includes all the rest. The surrender must be both an act (once performed) and an attitude (constantly maintained). These hindrances are to be removed, "not by might, nor by power," but by the Spirit of God.

ON BUSINESS HINDRANCES.

Next spoke Rev. Dr. Corbett, Glasgow, upon "Commercial Hindrances." It would have been well if this eloquent and powerful address could have been placed on the evening programme, so that business men might have had the opportunity of hearing it; but Dr. Corbett took advantage of the presence of a large number of ladies to press upon them that if business men are to stand firm for Christ and his truth, they must be heartily backed up by their wives, sisters, and daughters. Subsequently, another speaker also urged that the pressure of business was made ten times keener by men having to provide, not only for the necessities of their wives and families, but also for their desire to run the race for outward appearance and to outdistance their neighbours. The first hindrance set forth by Dr. Corbett was the spirit of consuming feverishness which characterises present day trade. Business men live at tremendously high pressure. The ocean and railway races are typical of the whole tone and temper of common commercial life, and of the restless feverishness of the age. Men give themselves "no leisure so much as to eat," and therefore none for spiritual aid.

YOUNG PEOPLE ARE CAUGHT

into the vortex of this restless tide before their feet are fairly planted on the rock of Christian principles and Gospel truth. Men are so busy that they have no time to stoop and drink, and refresh their spirits at the fountain of life. Business habits are killing Christian family life; no time is allowed for the cultivation of religion in the home. They go forth to their labour before the bairns are up, and when they return the bairns have gone to bed. Thus the family altar disappears; the home is barren of spiritual fruits.

(2) There is a tendency to substitute wrong for right conceptions of life's purpose. The one idea of the average business man is to "get on"; to climb another rung in the ladder; to be a little richer to-morrow than he is to-day; and to be much richer at his death than there is any need for:

"Six figures on the ledger page,
Becomes the glory of our age."

It is the sin of the golden calf over again. The lust for gold cannot but kill the spiritual life.

(3) There is a tendency to undermine the sense of sanctity and truth. There are warehouses in which, to all intents and purposes, a premium is placed upon untruthfulness, and an advance in wage often depends upon the successful practice of dishonesty on the part of an employé towards his customers. Then, as regards advertising, Christian men seem to have the terrible idea that if they only tell a lie loudly enough, and paint it up on the wall big enough, it becomes a truth. I shudder, said Dr. Corbett, to see the name of a Christian man attached to a declaration that he is going to make "enormous sacrifices." It is a right thing for him to do, but when he proclaims it, and wants to be paid for it, I am doubtful as to the truthfulness of the statement.

(4) All this stifles the spirit of brotherhood and love. There are advantages taken of men in their necessity and extremity; methods are advocated, by avowedly Christian men, to increase their means, things are practised on the Stock Exchange, and in the markets, which would never be tolerated if men believed that the law of love is

A LAW FOR COMMERCIAL LIFE.

Business men say that if we introduce Christian love into business the whole thing will be turned topsy-turvy, and a man cannot count on making a fortune. But what is our Christianity worth if it does not leaven all our business and trade, and give uniformity all through our life and occupation?

In an earnest concluding appeal, Dr. Corbett said: "Be true out and out to your Christian faith; let Christ and his love shape your life; let Him touch your business, and He will take the fever out of it; let your commerce be consecrated, and then your work, which is a necessity, will become an act of worship. It may involve sacrifice and patience, but it will mean peace with God."

SOME OTHER HINDRANCES.

In the afternoon Rev. J. Smith was the first speaker, having as his subject "Intellectual Hindrances." It must not be supposed, he said, that because we speak of intellectual hindrances to the spiritual life there is anything in the spiritual life which excludes the exercise of the intellect. The first hindrance noted consisted of a defective conception of salvation. In an earnest and practical address Mr. Smith then enumerated and illustrated a number of other hindrances. Following him, Rev. Herbert James, of Livermere, in dealing with "Social Hindrances," divided his subject into three heads—(1) their nature, (2) their effect, (3) their remedy; and in considering the first point he spoke (1) of the claims of society, (2) of the maxims of society, and (3) of the customs of society. "Decision" was the theme of the evangelistic addresses in the evening, delivered in Greyfriars Church. Its necessity was urgently set forth by Revs. Geo. Wilson and John Smith.

ON PRIVATE COMMUNION.

The subject on Thursday was "Helps to the Spiritual Life," and the first paper was read by Rev. Dr. Smith, Corsack, on help from "Communion with God in Private." He began by defining such communion as the original condition and privilege of man—a fellowship without the restoration of which the human soul can never be truly satisfied. It is a communion mutual in character. On our side we delight ourselves in God, and on the other hand, God delights in us as his children. Such communion is rendered possible only through the redeeming efficacy of the Saviour in bringing us near to God, and through the power of the Holy Spirit creating oneness with God, and at the same time communicating unto us the things of Christ. The effects of this communion he gave as: (1) Increasing knowledge of God through personal converse, and, in consequence, clearer knowledge of ourselves. (2) Assimilation of character as we behold the character of God in fellowship, and feel the power of his love. (3) Happiness, which is dependent upon love and its experience. The world even without love would be a desolation. To love and to be loved by a fellow creature is the greatest earthly blessedness of life. And much more does communion with God, in an atmosphere of love, produce this result of happiness. (4) The next point emphasised was that this communion with God, to have such effects, must be private—that of a man alone with God. It is the experience of Christians that God reveals Himself most fully when there has been preparation for it in private, personal fellowship. Communion with God should be

THE SABBATH REST OF THE SOUL

—the home of the soul, so to speak, from which it looks out upon the world, and goes out into the world, realising the experience of the Psalmist: "Nevertheless I am continually with Thee." Such a life will be vastly different from that of him who has his home in this world. Dr. Smith then went on to give Scripture instances of men being taken aside for a season into comparative isolation from the world, and pointed out how profitable these seasons had been through the communion with God enjoyed. The importance of such fellowship is very great in the present day, when the tendencies of the times are so much towards outward activity. We need to be forcibly reminded that the secret, not only of all true happiness, but also of all real success, is such personal communion with God. In closing he spoke of it in its bearings upon the whole of spiritual life. The root from which all possible noble attainment springs is this Divine fellowship.

ON PUBLIC WORSHIP.

The next subject, "Helps from worship of God in public," was introduced by Rev. George Wilson. After referring to Ps. xxvii. 4, xlii. 4, lxiii. 1, 2, lxv. 4; Matt. xviii. 20; John xxiv. 22—24; Heb. xii. 23; and Rev. xxi. 21, the first principle he laid down was that public worship is not a human invention, but a Divine institution—a law and ordinance of God's revealed will. God, who knows the public needs, knows it is a necessity to the spiritual life; else He would never have appointed it. Public worship is based on the organic unity of the spiritual life. Whatever be the race or the language of the men you meet, you will recognise in those who are spiritual an organic unity such as enables you to understand each other in some measure. This is the basis of public worship—increase in faith, fellowship, and hope in God. Public worship means both an inflow and an outflow of the spiritual life. It is a channel for the outflow of spiritual life from God, and, on the other hand, of an overflow of the soul to God. It is both spiritual nourishment and spiritual work. Public worship can be a real spiritual help only to those who have real spiritual aspirations. The world says:

"MAKE YOUR SERVICE HAPPY,

popular, attractive, and I'll be a hearer." Attractive to whom? he asked. He would never try to make public worship attractive to such. He could not do it, for the world has no spiritual life and no spiritual aspirations after the real ends of worship. In this connection he laid down the principle that we dare not bring into our worship anything we cannot give to God. Men want more music, more ritual, more beauty; by all means, let the forms of our worship have all beauty and culture, but we dare not bring in any of these, unless we can present them to God.

A second principle is that we have no right to expect anything in public worship that does not come from God. Ministers are tempted to preach science and poetry and philosophy; but preaching is to be God's message in the first place, whatever other feature or forms it may have. He then went on to state some concrete helps in the light of these principles. Public worship helps as communion with God, also as a united contemplation of Christ. In the 27th Psalm one of the functions of the Temple is to enable men to behold the beauty of the Lord. So all saints are bent on seeing Jesus in the sanctuary. In illustration he told how an old woman described a communion to himself in his youth, on the occasion of his first approach to the table, saying:

"IT'S BEEN A BONNIE DAY,

for we hae a' seen the Maister." It is a help in its affording a common share of the communications of the Spirit. It gives help as a united confession of faith. We are as witnesses for Christ in the exercise, testifying to the reality of the spiritual life, and in the common witness-bearing we ourselves are confirmed and strengthened. It is a help as a united consecration of purpose. We do not live for psalms and hymns and service, but for dedication to the Lord and his purpose; and in this connection he remarked that consecration is often mistakenly spoken of as man's act, whereas it is God's. Consecration is God's work, dedication is ours. It is a help to our realising our united commission to the world. In public worship our relation to the world is recognised, and every Christian is made to feel, as part of the Church, that his parish is the world. It is a help through our having in this worship a rehearsal of the coming heaven, the coming glory. If we do not care to draw near into the fellowship of the Church, we shall get a woful surprise in heaven. It is impossible to see how it could be heaven at all to such. In heaven the whole redeemed will be met in one blessed fellowship, and the new life will be one of worship.

In closing, by way of practical application, he said: What we want in our worship is

MORE OF GOD, LESS OF MAN.

The hearers ought to come as God's children, to be fed from God's hand; and the messenger to realise that his power lies in being filled with the indwelling Spirit of God. God will not bless that scrap science, scrap poetry, and scrap philosophy with which some entertain their audiences apart from Christ. The need of all is to think more of others and less of self, if worship is to be helpful either to ourselves or others.

ON PERSONAL HOLINESS.

In the evening, the first address, on "The Responsibilities of the Spiritually Awakened in Personal Holiness," was delivered by Rev. J. Wells, of Pollokshields. He began by saying the word holiness had to many a chilling sound. It seemed to suggest lack of joy and painful self-sacrifice; but it is the noblest life possible in the world. It is to love like God and like Christ Jesus. Personal holiness has nothing discouraging or depressing about it. The men who have attracted the attention of this generation have been such holy men as Livingstone, General Gordon, President Garfield, Shaftesbury, and the like.

Some, again, think personal holiness is inconsistent with happiness of life, but it is the confession of every thoughtful man that had his life only been holy, half the sorrows that overtook him would not have come.

How, then, he asked, are we to reach this holiness? (1) Personal decision for Christ is indispensable. Holiness is not to be expected till there is a personal, whole-souled, scriptural union to Christ. Therefore, the first thing necessary is yielding to Him. When we have this, we have, in germ, all that is needed to holiness. The man who comes to Christ for pardon, comes to Him also for power. He did not care for any new phrasing on the subject. He preferred the whole truth.

MEN SPEAK OF TWO BAPTISMS.

Why not two hundred, or two thousand? for "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass." We speak of "a higher life," but we must have a higher, and a higher, till we reach the highest above them all. There must be an intelligent, whole-souled consecration and devotion to Christ in all his offices.

(2) Spiritual humility is of great importance. He told the story of Thorwaldsen weeping before his statue, because, he said, he had for the first time felt himself satisfied with his work, and he took that as an indication that his genius was decaying. So we are to represent Christ, and, if we have not this humility. the genius and the true spirit of a saint have forsaken us. The holier a man gets the keener are his susceptibilities and his sense of his imperfections. The holiest man has the deepest sense of not yet having attained.

(3) The second requisite in Christian discipline is self-training. Men are not to suppose they can make themselves holy by one leap once for all.

(4) Next comes gratitude. When a man receives the grace of God, that grace creates gratitude, one of the most powerful of all impulses. The secret of the early martyrs' sacrifices is that they had an unspeakable sense of the love of God, and of what that love had done and was doing for them; and so far as we can find out the secret of their holiness, it was because they said, "God has laid us under infinite obligation, and we feel we are not our own, but bound in grateful love to give ourselves wholly to God." If we are to see that Apostolic Christianity, which made such an impression upon heathendom, we must revive Apostolic Christianity in its love of personal holiness; and that is the Scripture conception of it—a yielding up of ourselves to all the impulses of God's will. The crops ripen under the sunshine unto harvest, and so the atmosphere of holiness is the love of God. When this is realised we feel ashamed of our partial attainments, and seek to rise to those things set before us.

The second subject was "Witnessing for Christ," upon which delivered the address. At the outset he remarked that the office of a witness is peculiar. He must know something personally. He must also have full conviction of the testimony he is to give. Very much depends upon his testimony. Others are affected by it, and therefore he stands before the world as one who is to speak the truth, and that out of his own knowledge and experience.

THE DEAN OF RIPON

Therefore it becomes us to ask whether we have received the truth—whether we are faithful manifestations of the truth before the world. The Christian is a marked man in the home, the church, society, and business. Men may not read the Bible, or go to the house of God, or attend to the truth; but they cannot but attend to and look at the Christian man. (1) The Christian therefore has a testimony to bear. The Church of Christ cannot be hid if she is faithful to the Master.

(2) An important part of this is that it must be not only a public, but also a private testimony. There must be consistency throughout, so that the man of God may be everywhere the same. Whence the power, he asked, so to witness for Christ? When our Lord led the disciples forth to Olivet his last words were: "All power is given unto Me in heaven and on earth; go and preach the Gospel to every creature."

WHAT A COMMAND THIS WAS

for humble fishermen, to go forth and conquer the world—not only Judea or Galilee or Samaria, but the whole world! But his words did not end there—"Power shall come upon you," He said, "when ye receive the Holy Ghost. This baptism was not patronage or gifts, not gifts or personal grace, but God the Holy Ghost coming into their hearts and dwelling there.

(3) This witnessing must be personal. People say the Church witnesses, but the real Church is not the same as the visible Church. The real Church is an invisible Church—therefore while there is a witness in the sections of the Church, the true witness must be in the individual. In the case of the stars it is not a body of light that reaches us, but the rays that fall from each. So is it also with Christian testimony. Each individual life must shed its own light. Each must go forth and testify for Christ. When the call to such witnessing comes, immense responsibility comes with it. If the talent be entrusted we must use it. It is not enough to keep it—even keep it safely. Every man, even to the lowest and the least, must give an account of his stewardship.

(4) A most important way of witnessing is not by doing work or entering societies, but in witnessing to the conscience of men. That which really gives influence is consistency in holiness. People are much influenced by the straightforwardness and sincerity of a Christian man as such. Boldness, courage, and straightforwardness in standing forth for Christ are much needed, too, in the present day. There is a disposition so to dilute the Gospel, as if to without losing its taste. The fear of man, it is to be remembered, is not the reproach of Christ. The antagonism is against the Lord, and not against us. Therefore we should be ready to bear all the reproach for Him, and in his strength.

SEE HOW MUCH WATER IT WILL BEAR

(5) Witnessing for Christ may be carried out in many ways; not only by conversation but by correspondence. Much may be done by letters ,and communicating to others our expressions of the love of Christ to our souls.

After this counsel, the president, Rev. Sir Emilius Lawrie, brought the meeting to a close with an address

ON PATIENT ENDURANCE.

The word rendered patience in the New Testament, he said, is one which conveys the idea of courage or bravery wrapt up in it. The idea ought to be impressed that Christian life is a brave life. It is a common idea among the young that it is for the sick, the aged, the dying; but that for the young and strong and vigorous it is out of place. Is there nothing, he asked, manly in witnessing for Christ—in witnessing for God—in daring to be bold and brave when men are suffering—nothing brave in the martyr spirit? If a man be ready to lay down his life for Christ in the martyr spirit, is there nothing brave? The true bravery of life is to be found in the man who stands forth in faith to prove the reality of religion.

(I.) Patient endurance is most important, underlying the whole deportment of the Christian. It is important, as essential to fructification. The Christian profession is not a mere ecstacy, but quiet, patient endurance, in public and in private, in living the Christian life. He then gave some examples of failure and success—of failure in the two cases spoken of in the parable of the sower, the rocky ground and the thorny. The first represent many at such seasons as the present who are deeply affected, and for a time bear the fruit of an outward profession, but by and by they are tempted and fall away; there is no endurance. The second picture is that of those in whom there is some depth of conviction and reality of purpose, but there has been no clearing of the soil, and when the cares or pleasures of the world come in upon them they fail. The following are some principles of success in patient endurance. (1) A careful counting the cost at the outset. Many beginnings are without lasting results from lack of this. Difficulties, sacrifices unlooked for, meet many in whom life's morning gave much promise, and so by and by they are offended. (2) Depth of personal conviction. This should be the threefold result of the Comforter's mission as a convicter of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. (3) Thoroughness of conversion. The clearing out of the old sins, and breaking off of old habits unconditionally. The roots of the evil must be plucked up, else they will once more grow up and choke the profession. (4) A firm faith in the covenant promises of God in Christ Jesus.

NOT A MERE FLASH IN THE PAN,

In closing the Conference, Sir Emilius said that in the course of a long ministry, he had been present at many meetings of this kind, but at none of them had he heard addresses superior in theological knowledge, or in the combination of intellectual and spiritual power. He hoped there was a good omen for the religious future of Scotland. He could have wished that not only had the large audiences who had attended the Conference heard the words spoken, but that the whole people of Dumfries and its neighbourhood could have done so. He could even have wished that the archbishops and bishops of his own church could have heard them, and he was certain that many of them would have listened to the addresses with great pleasure and profit.

TENT WORK IN PLUMSTEAD.

Through the kind help of the Evangelisation Society, a handsome tent has been in use in Plumstead village, for the last five months, in connection with Cage-lane Hall. Large numbers have heard the Gospel faithfully proclaimed, night after night, and many have found a blessing. Many men who had never been induced to come even to our Mission-Hall, or to any other place of worship, have attended, and are now continually with us. Besides these tokens of cheer, we are often hearing of fruit "after many days."

The work has so extended that we are obliged to provide much larger accommodation. The foundations of a new hall are already being laid. We are in a very poor neighbourhood, and help would be most heartily welcomed from any of the Lord's stewards. (Miss) Kate Russell.

1, Thames View-terrace, Plumstead, Kent.

STAR VILLA ORPHANAGE, HASTINGS.—This institution has for its object the entire care and maintenance, upon the family system, of homeless or destitute orphan girls, from a very tender age, until they are old enough, and sufficiently educated and trained, to be placed out in respectable domestic service, where they are still watched over so long as they need a mother's care. Children of all denominations, and from any part of England, are elegible without voting, and are taught to love and serve God. Unless further help is not speedily forthcoming, the committee and myself will be under the very painful necessity of reducing our present number of little ones, which would be a very sad calamity, with the cold winter so rapidly approaching, and many forlorn little orphans now pleading for admission. The seventh annual report will be sent on application.

(Mrs.) Hester Willis, Hon. Supt.

Godwin-road, Hastings.

Our Brave Fishermen.

WE are thankful to learn that Mr. E. J. Mather's letter, recently published in our columns and elsewhere, has already evoked a substantial response, upwards of £2000 having been contributed towards his collection in aid of the Royal Provident Fund for Sea Fishermen. It must be remembered, however, that £50,000 is the amount which Mr. Mather has pledged himself to raise in the interest of the widow and the fatherless. As he is—although in a very weak state of health—devoting both time and labour gratuitously to the self-imposed task, we trust that many of our readers will not only hasten to give him substantial aid but will assist by circulating copies of his appeal, which has now been re-printed in leaflet form.

We shall be pleased to receive subscriptions towards this truly national and most worthy object, or they may be forwarded direct to Mr. Mather at his offices, Winchester House, Old Broad-street, E.C. The very touching stanzas that follow have just been written on behalf of this noble project; we are sure they will speak eloquently to many hearts and purses:—

"THERE IS SORROW ON THE SEA."

There shall be "No more sea"
In the New Earth's golden years;
But long as this sad old earth shall be,
The sea will be salt with tears.

Though brightly its ripples flow
In the light of the summer sky,
How dark are the weedy depths below
Where the ocean victims lie!

The laurels of earth are won
On the fields of godless strife;
But greater the deeds of prowess done
In the smacksman's daily life.

Ah! who can count the dead
In that dreary nameless grave;
Who fell in reaping their children's bread,
From the greedy, heartless wave!

Sad, sad to the father's ear
Are the wild waves moaning by:
They seem to his boding heart to bear
The sound of his orphans' cry.

And oft, in the fading light,
The thought comes o'er and o'er:
What will become, if I die to-night,
Of my wife and bairns ashore?

. . . . .

But wherefore the old tale tell
Of lives on the waters lost?
The dainty viands we like so well
Are won at a fearful cost.

'Tis peril and labour stern,
The lot of those toilers brave;
And the paltry wage so hard to earn,
Is harder still to save.

"Oh, where is dada gone?"
The toddling orphans wail;
But why must they starve as well as mourn,
When "dada's" earnings fail?

. . . . .

Say, shall we not hold them up,
Those horny hands of toil;
And drop some balm in their bitter cup,
Who win us the ocean's spoil?

There shall be "No more sea"
In the New Earth's golden years;
But long as this sad old Earth shall be,
Let us help to dry the tears!

AMY MANSON.

MR. SANKEY conducted the praise at a recent Y.M.C.A. Convention in the State of New Hampshire, and received the special thanks of the conveners.

Orphans in Southwark.

OF all the good causes that are advocated in these days within the walls of London's Mayoral mansion, surely none is more deserving than that of the mitherless bairns of the great city. Hitherto the retiring disposition of Miss Sharman has not permitted her to hold her annual meeting in any place of great public concourse. This year she has taken a step forward in securing the countenance of our chief magistrate, and we trust the result will be highly beneficial to the blessed enterprise of which she is the mainspring and the inspiration. There was a good attendance at the meeting on Friday afternoon, though the weather was not favourable. The LORD MAYOR presided.

Miss SHARMAN, as the first part of the programme, read, in a bright and interesting way, her new report, which we would advise our readers to secure; they can get a copy on applying to her at the Home, Austral-street, West-square, Southwark. She gave in it a very interesting sketch of the rise, progress, and principles of the work. We may say that in addition to the parent institution in Southwark there are now three country branches at Gravesend, Tunbridge Wells, and Newton Abbot, besides the seaside house where the little convalescents have a good time every summer. The Newton Abbot Home is the latest development; Miss Sharman speaks very gratefully of its worth, and invites visitors to South Devon to go and see it. The girls under her care are mainly trained as domestic servants, and one of the speakers said that the demand for girls in this capacity is always greater than the institution can supply. In our page for the young we give some touching extracts from the report, about the children.

The first address was by Dr. MCEWAN, of Clapham. After a complimentary reference to the philanthropic activity of the Lord Mayor during his year of office, he entered an earnest plea for Miss Sharman's work among the friendless little ones. No story of romance, he said, could be more thrilling in its genuine interest than the story of the West-square Orphanage, as told by Miss Sharman herself in her periodical reports. He referred warmly to the quiet and unobtrusive character of the work, which had only been equalled by the courage and perseverance, the energy and success that had marked it. If any lady was ever raised up of God to do a definite work, it was Miss Sharman. The speaker recalled a visit he paid to the Home several years ago with the late Lord Shaftesbury, and he remembered how the eyes of "the good Earl" glistened with delight at what he saw. Dr. McEwan waxed finely eloquent in his advocacy of the work of caring for the orphan girls, and in expatiating on the home-like character of the Institution. The perils that surround young life in London formed the theme of a powerful appeal, and these Homes, he said, are a specimen of the best kind of rescue and preventive work. The reverend doctor wandered from pathos into humour, and then into illustration, and altogether he found it very hard to draw his graphic speech to a close.

Rev. C. FLEMING WILLIAMS also spoke from personal knowledge of the brightness of the children, and of the scrupulous care displayed in supplying every necessity for insuring a healthy and useful life. Working among the poor of the East-end, he had been often touched and moved by the sad forebodings of parents on their deathbed as to the future of their children. Mr. Williams, too, was deeply pathetic in telling his impressions of the work, and its peculiar characteristics.

Rev. JOHN MCNEILL was, of course, original and amusing in his way of putting things, but he was not a whit behind any of his brethren in pressing the claims of Miss Sharman's good work on the sympathy of his hearers. Canon HUSSEY, as a very old and warm friend of the work, descanted once more on the delightful character of it, especially the strong and simple faith Miss Sharman displays.

Mr. J. A. Smith, as one of the Trustees, voted the thanks of the meeting to his lordship; and, in doing so, he made the remark that there are literally no expenses of management, as Miss Sharman, the architect, and the doctors, are all honorary workers. Mr. De Selincourt supported the vote. The Lord Mayor in reply was very cordial, and so this admirable institution has had the chance of some added publicity, which it certainly merits.

AMONG SOLDIERS IN EDINBURGH.

THE work among cavalry soldiers at the Home, Piershill, Edinburgh, which Miss Lloyd has directed since 1882, continues to be greatly blessed. It is by no means "plain sailing," yet there is much to encourage, more particularly in the fact that quite a number of those who have been converted in the Home have themselves become active witnesses for Christ. No sooner do the soldiers become enlightened in Gospel truth than they incline to the wholesome belief that indulgence in intoxicating drink is incompatible with the Christian profession.

We had, writes Miss Lloyd, a remarkable illustration of this in one regiment. A non-commissioned officer, holding a high position, who was enslaved by intemperance, visited the Home one afternoon, and asked to be allowed to join the total abstinence society. On being questioned as to his reasons, he told us that a companion of his had suddenly met with an awful death, and the thought came to his mind that he was personally unfit to appear before God. He felt that drink was the sin which blocked his way. We asked, "Do you think total abstinence will save you?" "No", said he, "but a man cannot think when under the influence of drink. If I try to be a sober man, I will be able to listen and pray God to bless the truth to me." This man's change was used by God to show the power of his grace, and many in that regiment were led to see that the total abstinence path was the safest and happiest.

Through the kindness of those in authority we have the privilege of visiting the hospital, and there we have many opportunities of speaking a word. One poor fellow, suffering from rheumatism, was nearing his end in a dreadful state of mind. When we went in to see him, he kept on saying in a terrified way, "Ah, they are dragging me; take me out of this; they will pull me down." We told him of Jesus who saves to the uttermost, and he seemed quieter. While in another ward, we were fetched by the hospital sergeant. We found the man quite changed, his face beaming with joy. He said, "Ah, what a change! what a change! You said He could do it, that He could save to the uttermost, and He has done it. I saw Him. He took a grip of me, and I have taken a grip of Him." Kneeling down, with six or eight of the man's comrades, we thanked the Lord for his deliverance—for saying to him, "Thy sins be forgiven thee, go in peace." The man shouted, "That is it; peace, peace; that is it." And on our standing up, he said, "You may go now, I don't want you any more." We saw him next day, and had prayer with him, but he could not speak; and that evening he passed away, his last words being "Up above." His comrades said he seemed to see something wonderful in the corner of the ward, and he never took his eyes away from there. Among others whom we met in hospital is a young man who is now labouring as a missionary.

Clifton Conference.

In exceptionally fine weather, and with a larger company of visitors than has been seen for some time, the twenty-seventh annual Conference has been held in the Victoria Rooms. Although by the decease of Colonel Newbolt, who took delight in arranging the preliminaries, Rev. J. Ormiston has lost no ordinary helper, yet in Colonel Molesworth he has found another capable coadjutor. There was a largely attended prayer-meeting on Monday evening last week, and the earnestness which pervaded it has been characteristic of all the meetings held to seek the Divine blessing on the approaching Conference.

On Tuesday morning the subject was "God, our own God—the Father." In his address from the chair, Mr. Ormiston read letters expressive of regret at being unable to attend from various friends, including Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. The first day's topic was well opened by Rev. J. R. Cotter, of Colchester, who dwelt upon the inability of the natural man to see the Father in God. Men now had the audacity to bring God to the bar of their own judgment, to accept what they pleased of his revelation, and to explain away whatever they did not choose to believe. He proceeded to speak reverentially of "Our own God" as He comes before us in his Word. Rev. W. Frith having spoken, Colonel Saville in an earnest prayer embodied the requests which had been sent in; and afterwards, Rev. H. L. Byrnes dwelt upon "Our Father," and the individual and specific love which He bears to his children.

In the afternoon a very hearty meeting was held on behalf of the Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland; Rev. W. D. Austin, and Henry White the Dublin reader, both of whom attended as a deputation, could hardly have desired a more sympathic audience as they gave details of the Society's operations. There was a Bible-reading conducted by Colonel Molesworth, and the subject of the morning was taken as the text of the reading.

In the evening, when there was a large attendance, addresses were given by Rev. H. Dening on an overflow blessing being that at which every Christian should aim; and by Mr. Stancomb, of Yeovil, on the joy and strength to be derived from faith in a covenant-keeping God.

SECOND DAY.

On Wednesday, Mr. Ormiston read part of Hebrews i., and introduced the second topic of conference, "Our own God—the Son." The Hebrew word "God" primarily meant "an oath," and the Old Testament idea was that of a covenanting, sworn God. So that all the promises of God are so many Divine asseverations which cannot be broken. The New Testament word means "A disposer"—one who has planned all things for his people.

Rev. W. D. Austin said it is erroneous to affirm, as some are doing, that Christ never claimed to be God. His words, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father," effectually disposed of that error.

Rev. J. Hawker (Plymouth) urged that we should use the great privilege presented to us in God the Son. He is the way to victory over every enemy, and in his hand is the key of the storehouse containing every blessing. Rev. W. Elliott (Plymouth) spoke strongly against Romanism and Puseyism, and urged all to avail themselves of their privilege to go boldly to the throne of grace. Rev. W. Ellis, a Moravian brother, was the last speaker, and he urged that the enemies of the faith could only be successfully resisted by waiting more steadily upon God.

In the afternoon, Mr. W. Forbes had an opportunity of giving some details of the work he commenced eleven years ago among theatrical employés. A larger meeting than usual was held of the Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society. Mr. James Inskip gave the Society his hearty support, and the meeting was further addressed by Mr. Hazelton and Mr. W. J. Martin. Rev. J. Ormiston said he had hadmany opportunities of acquainting himself with the Society's work, and offered to receive any contributions which friends might be disposed to give.

In the evening, among other speakers was Mr. Wright, of Ashleydown Orphanages, who spoke upon Titus ii. 13: "The great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ." The passage, he said, clearly taught the blessed truth which to-day they had been considering; it was their privilege to claim God the Son as their own. The passage, he went on to show, clearly teaches his claim on us as forming the sole ground on which we can claim Him. If we would be kept in the conscious enjoyment of our possession of Him we must keep things in the right order, and we must remember that He claims and rejoices in us as his own. "Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you."

Rev. J. C. Martin (Portsmouth) said that "agnostics" were at least rightly called so. "We do not know" was their confession, and they did not know, for God is only to be known through Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit's teaching.

THIRD DAY.

On Thursday, Mr. Ormiston read Ezekiel xlvii. Amidst all the troubles in the visible Church we have this left us, that the Great Head of the Church is still on the throne, and will not leave Himself or his Church without witness until He comes in the plenitude of glory. The subject for the day was "God our own God—the Spirit."

Rev. Lancelot Holland, vicar of All Saints', Hatcham, said he had learnt during his visit that such a gathering as this Clifton Conference was a great source of refreshment by the way, and for one he should return to his field of work greatly invigorated and refreshed. In proceeding, he dwelt upon the personality of the Holy Ghost, showing that He is a real personal friend and comforter. It is as necessary in these days to believe in the Divinity of the Holy Spirit as it is of Christ. And it should never be forgotten that the blessings of the Spirit all come to us through Christ alone. This is especially true in the ordering of men to the ministry; for it is not by laying on of hands, but through Christ alone that the gift of the Holy Ghost comes down. He was grieved to find that so many of the clergy continue to preach the soul-destroying doctrine of baptismal regeneration, for there is nothing of the kind to be found in the Word of God.

Captain West spoke upon John i. 18, and remarked how the Evangelist John unfolds the Father to us in 112 places in Scripture. The Holy Spirit is the Divine Indweller. We want, he said in closing, to abound in hope of the coming of our Lord. He had been looking for it ever since his conversion, now twenty-seven years ago.

Colonel Molesworth impressed the truth that no efforts of our own can overcome the great enemy of souls, or cleanse men from their leprous condition, and that the power of our own God—the Spirit—is needed.

In the evening there was the usual special service and Lord's Supper at the Memorial Church, Rev. J. R. Cotter being the preacher on the occasion.

POOR CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.—Sir,—The Poor Children's Aid Society feeds, clothes, and sends into the country, for a fortnight, children from the worst slums in and near London. We want to re-commence the winter's work of clothing and feeding destitute children. We supplied 104,610 meals gratuitously to semi-starved children attending the elementary schools, and clothed nearly 3,000 during the winter of 1888. We desire to double our work this year, but at present have no means of doing so; £1 supplies meat to 240 children.—Yours truly,

MARY WINKFIELD, Hon. Sec.

34 and 36, Piccadilly Circus, W.

NIGHTFALL.

"Commune with your own heart upon your bed, and be still."—Psa. iv. 4.

Steward of the solemn hours
Passed beyond the sun,
Didst thou yield thy God-like powers
To the Holy One?
Hast thou borne a soldier's part
In the field to-day?
Hast thou kept a sunny heart,
Quick to praise and pray?

Are the watches of the night
Holy to the Lord?
Quickened with the awful light
Shining from his Word?
Let no earthly idol be
In the chamber dim;
Child, He broke his heart for thee,
Give thy heart to Him.

Hast thou kept thy garments white
All the dusty way?
Hast thou worn thy crown of light
Queenly all the day?
Has thy love been strong and sweet,
Watching unto prayer,
Ever, upon willing feet,
Swift to minister?

Hast thou imaged forth thy King
In a heart of grace?
Shown the world in everything
Shadows of his face?
Hast thou kept thy temple fair
For the Spirit's home?
Art thou ready anywhere
If thy Lord should come?

Has the lovely will of God
Tutored every tone?
Has thy skill been sown abroad
For his praise alone?
Free to serve, and strong to bless.
Has thy soul been bowed,
Feeling that his holiness
Folds thee like a cloud?

When the Lord's belovéd sleeps,
Blessed is her rest;
She is safe whom Jesus keeps,
Sheltered on his breast.
Lord, when morning's sunny rays
Pierce the waiting skies,
Wake me to a song of praise,
Fresh for sacrifice!

May Turner.

ROMISH EDUCATIONAL ENDOWMENTS.—Those who desire to know the facts and bearings of the case as to higher education in Ireland, and the tactics of the Romish hierarchy in making it subservient to their designs, should carefully study the current Monthly Letter of the Protestant Alliance prepared by Mr. A. H. Guinness, the secretary. It ought to open the eyes of all true friends of freedom and Christian principle in these realms. The pamphlet is entitled "Mr. Balfour and the Higher Education of Roman Catholics," and copies (2d. each) may be had at the office of the Alliance, 9, Strand, London, W.C.

THE "NUN OF KENMARE" ON CONVENT SCHOOLS.—Speaking recently in Toronto, the Nun of Kenmare said that Protestants were a great deal too credulous. They would not stoop to the dishonesty resorted to in the Roman Catholic Church, and which had induced her to leave it. As an instance, she related how the sisters had been compelled by the bishops to teach Roman Catholicism to Protestant girls in the convents, in spite of their promises to parents not to do so. The policy of the Church was "that the end justifies the means." It was, she said, a most unfortunate thing that Protestants sent their children to these schools. She knew of convents in England where 75 per cent. of the children were Protestants. There was no dishonesty the Roman Catholic authorities would not resort to in order to make converts; Miss Cusack has been a Roman Catholic for more than twenty years, and is well acquainted with the inner workings of the system.—Christian Irishman.

The Central Sudan.

A THIRD letter from Mr. G. Wilmot-Brooke is to hand, dated Onitsha, River Niger, July 1. He says:—"Our long stay in the Delta is now over. It has been caused by our waiting for the next voyage up-river of the C.M.S. steamer Henry Venn, which goes up every few months. When I closed my last letter we were expecting to start off to take charge of the C.M.S. station of Okrika, about 17 miles from the sea, up the Bonny River. Our very brief stay there has been the only interesting episode of the last month (June)."

Then follows an account of Mr. Brooke's visit to Okrika, from which we make some extracts:—

"The morning (June 4) was all spent in cleaning the house and yard, and inspecting the very dilapidated wattle and daub church, built by the Christians and adherents some years ago, soon after public worship was first suggested and introduced by some native Christians from Brass. It was not till the afternoon that the Christians and church adherents arrived, by appointment, to the number of about sixty, of whom about five-sixths were men. I spoke to them on the meaning of drawing to the Lord 'with purpose of heart,' each sentence having to be first given in very broken English before the interpreter could understand it.

"June 5.—Various visits from church adherents during the day, some very odd ones. One worthy man came for medicine, bringing a fellow-slave as his interpreter. He prefaced his statement of symptoms with what seemed to us to be a brief résumé of his religious views and experiences, but so far as we could make sense out of the very wonderful English of the interpreter, he seemed to press upon us that on one occasion he had successfully run away from the devil. His account of his symptoms would have been enough to alarm any doctor. 'He had severe pain all over his body and limbs alike, at all times.' Thus the day passed, each visitor contributing to my knowledge of the state of affairs at the place, the sum of which was this: Four towns, Okrika, Ogulama, Ibaka, and one other, form the "Okrika country," all of them close together, and under the suzerainty of one old chief. Some native Christians from Brass appear to have begun preaching here over fifteen years ago, and soon after they persuaded the heathen chiefs to build a place of worship, where a native carpenter began conducting services. An application was made by them to Bishop Crowther for a teacher to be sent to them. They were accordingly visited, and their little meeting-house was found full, the heathen chiefs acting as church-wardens. This was about fifteen years ago... The occupation of the place by the C.M.S. was deferred for some years, when a Sierra Leone man and his wife were sent there, the same that we relieved. The congregations, which were usually over 500 at first, steadily decreased to about 120, and then came the fearful outburst of cannibalism, when a number of prisoners, over 150, it seems, were eaten at one time. On this occasion the church adherents, who had taken part in the raid, refused to give up the prisoners whom they had captured to be eaten, but concealed 11 of them, and subsequently restored them to their own country. The Sierra Leone agent at the mission station also furnished a written report of the massacre to the British Consul, who came up and inflicted a fine of about £1000 on the town, subsequently increased to £1200. As it had been the active advocacy of the Sierra Leone agent that had originally induced the heathen chiefs to put the town under British power, his report of their crime caused great fury, so that even when he left, and we came, we found a feeling of political antagonism towards the mission adherents prevailing, and a consequent timidity on their part about making themselves conspicuous by starting open-air preaching in the town...

"June 11.—Some three dozen of the mission adherents came together by private arrangement among themselves, and were hard at work at repairing the church. Spent most of the morning at work with them. While so engaged, we saw one or two old chiefs arrive from the other towns, each accompanied by about a dozen slaves, with a tom-tom beating before them. I thought them rather surly, as they did not return my salutation as usual, but took no further notice of them. In the afternoon went off to Ogulama, and reached the house of the man who interpreted on Sunday afternoon. He and his brother, and two or three other members of the household, sat in his bedroom, or in the doorway. Soon a chief arrived and sat down, and, sentence by sentence, at great length, I gave him a full account of how sin came in, and how it will be put out. He listened with close attention, as they usually do, and also with some appearance of emotion, which is not a common experience. My chief theme was the long-suffering and tender love of God, and the folly of men in dreading their best Friend. When I had finished he was silent for a long time, and I noticed with some surprise that he had tears in his eyes; he then said, 'When the words are so good one can say nothing in reply; and we see you indeed wish us well to come through all the water in the heat of the day.' From here we went to a small suburb in the forest, beside a muddy creek. Here a sick chief came out, one who had been to church several times. When he was seated, and some dozens of slaves grouped around, I again gave a long address, the interpreter throwing himself very earnestly into rendering an urgent appeal to them to trust the loving God at once. Paid also four brief visits to four other chiefs, and walked back to Okrika."

On June 14 Mr. Brooke and his companion, Mr. Shaw, returned to Bonny, and four days later they left that place in the Henry Venn, proceeding up the delta of the Niger. "As we penetrate further inland, nearer the main stream from which the many branches of the Delta are fed, the channel we are following slowly widens out from 300 yards (for the first thirty-five miles) to 600 and 700 yards. Nearly all the towns here, having acted as middlemen in past times, were unfavourable to white men entering the country, and were very dangerous people until the firm rule of the Royal Niger Company imposed peace upon them, so that now it would be quite safe for any white man to descend in canoe to Akassa; so those living here told us. The natives, however, though degraded and hostile in character, have nothing of that extreme ferocity of aspect which is so very striking a feature of the tribes of the Upper Congo, the Bangala, Balor, and Balolo.

"June 28.—We reached Abo (pronounced Abbo). Here the C.M.S. has recently planted a mission station. We landed at once, called for a moment at the little trading factory, and then pushed on with Bishop Crowther across the large grassy island that marks the town, following a very muddy foot-path through the high rank grass, and being ferried across the creek behind in a crazy canoe. The native missionary, Mr. Allen, from Sierra Leone, was waiting to receive us, accompanied by his schoolmaster, a young man from Onitsha, who does the interpreting for Mr. Allen. Our visit lasted over a couple of hours, as, after visiting the neat little cottage which forms the mission house, we went with the Bishop to hear him interviewing two heathen chiefs, whom he urged to subscribe to build a church, pointing out what temporal advantages followed the establishment of the Mission, 'the young men learning to read and write, to be clerks and engineers, and all this information, which cost them nothing, had money value, and once given could not be taken away.' Unfortunately, there was no time left at any of the places to allude to the spiritual aspect of our commission. ...These Abo people are very influential traders, and their slaves are drawn from all parts."

[Copies of this letter may be obtained by sending a penny stamp to Mr. T. Arthur Garnett, 33, King-street, Manchester.]

STREAMS of BLESSING in the WEST.

IN a very interesting letter to a friend in this country, Mrs. Davidson, Brandon, Manitoba, Canada, writes as follows:—

For five years I have received varying supplies of literature from Christians who had noticed my appeals in THE CHRISTIAN, and who have never wearied yet in sending them. I have been unable to write to the donors of these parcels, and sometimes it has seemed rather wonderful to me that their faith has not flagged for want of some recognition of their loving service. I have accepted this as one of the tokens of our Father's thoughtfulness for his scattered ones; as, if these copies of The Christian, Life of Faith, British Messenger, Cottager and Artisan, &c., stopped coming, many a lonely heart, dependent on God alone in their distant solitary prairie shanty for sympathy and confirmation, might go unstrengthened and uncheered by the "comfortable words" conveyed in these invaluable papers. I send them in every direction; sometimes I hesitate as to the most necessitous, when I have but one left, and I feel sure that the prayers of the senders often must determine their ultimate destination. It is the only work for Christ that my busy domestic life leaves me opportunity for outside of my household. It is very little, but I know it to be the "cup of cold water" to those thirsty, often famishing, souls, who have no other means of hearing Gospel truth. Thanks to you and others of Christ's followers for giving me the opportunity of extending it to his little ones in the name of a disciple.

You will be glad to hear of the active Y.M.C.A. now existing in Brandon. Some of its members go out to contiguous settlements every Sunday, and hold regular services. They tell me it is astonishing to see people coming many miles from all directions, where no house is visible, and perhaps a score or more will assemble in the log-house or shanty, where the meeting is held, to hear these young men tell "the old, old story." But there are hundreds of settlements where no services have ever yet been established, and one can only trust in God, "Who knoweth them that are his," for the spiritual nourishment of such desolate ones.

In Seattle, on the Pacific coast, a sister-in-law of mine (who lately passed through Brandon en route to her old home for a visit) finds great happiness in distributing such good reading matter as she can get, to the hundreds of working men—miners and operatives of all nations—gathered in that growing city. Some of them she describes as living in shanties together, away from the "roughs," who are very lawless in that new place. She sees them coming home early on Saturday nights to do their washing before Sunday. These men run out to meet her when they see her coming with papers, and sometimes with tears in their eyes thanking her for the help they get from reading them. Brandon is very different in this way from Seattle and Vancouver. Here it is the lonely settler who needs these messages; there it is the weary toiler, worn out with the rush and turmoil of Western competition. If any friend should wish to send my sister-in-law such literature, she would deem it a privilege to distribute it. Her address is Mrs. Duncan Davidson, 706, South Eleventh-street, Seattle, Washington Territory, U.S.

For the Young.

QUARTUS A BROTHER.

AN ADDRESS TO CHILDREN.

By Rev. CHAS. A. SALMOND, Rothesay.

(Reported.)

This name, "Quartus a brother," is the only one you have been able to give me beginning with the letter "Q." As a name it does not tell us much about him to whom it belongs. The word Quartus means the fourth one. We learn from this at least that he who was so called was no doubt a Roman. But there is another part of his name that we can supply for ourselves, and that is the most significant part of it, namely, that he was Quartus the Christian, and this is how he came to be spoken of. Paul here speaks of him as "Quartus a brother." He was a Roman, because Paul was writing here to the Romans. But he does not merely mean that Quartus was a brother in Christ, in whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named. He was a brother as one believing in the Lord Jesus, and seeking to do the will of God.

Now, this is a precious name, the name brother. It is a name that is used of Jesus in the Word of God. He is referred to as the "brother born for adversity." It is the name also used by Jesus of his true followers, He calls them not "servants" but "friends," and before He leaves the world, He calls them not "friends," but "brethren." He says to Mary: "Go tell my brethren that I ascend to my Father and to your Father, to my God and your God."

And it is a precious name to Paul. I believe he would carry with him always a sweet memory of the time when he was able to claim the name of brother, when Ananias, you remember, in those days of darkness in Damascus, drew near to him, and put his hand upon his shoulder (oh, that hand, that touch of sympathy), and said: "Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus hath sent me that thou shouldest receive thy sight, for thou art a chosen vessel unto Me."

Seek a place then, dear boys and girls, among the great Christian brotherhood; those who believe in Jesus, and are seeking to do the will of God, and cultivate the spirit that belongs to such, the spirit of kindness to all, and especially to those who are of the household of faith. This Quartus—see, it is the only thing we learn of what he did—this Quartus sent a friendly message to the Christians away in Rome; he little thought that this would make his name known to you and me this morning, to every Christian that should ever read the New Testament Scriptures. Yet so it was. And every true, generous, and loving thought as well as deed, and every Christ-like desire, remember that, is noted down by God. May it be yours to have a place in God's family, and be more and more like Christ.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Oct. 13, Jer. xxxiii. 1—16; Mon., Oct. 14, Jer. xxxvi. 1—10; Tues., Oct. 15, Jer. xxxvi. 16—28; Wed., Oct. 16, Jer. xxxviii. 1—13; Thurs., Oct. 17, Jer. xxxviii. 14—28; Fri., Oct. 18, Neh. i. 1—11; Sat., Oct. 19, Neh. ii. 1—10.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. Henry Hutchinson, Northampton Temperance Hall (with Mr. James S. Tyler), Oct. 9—18; Liverpool, Oct. 14; Manchester, Oct. 15. Mr. Alfred Armitage, Carlisle, Oct. 3—11; Newcastle, Oct. 12—19. Mr. H. W. Pewtress, Baptist Church, Shooter's Hill-road, Blackheath, Oct. 20—25, 7 p.m. Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Leominster, Oct. 19—25; Hornsey-rise, Oct. 27—Nov. 3. Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, Westbourne-grove, Oct. 14—17, at 8; Leyton Congregational Church, Oct. 21—25; Athenæum, Camden-road, each Sun. in Oct., at 3.15. Rev. E. A. Stuart, Mr. E. Arrowsmith, and other speakers will address two meetings at Gordon Hall, Blackburn-place, Liverpool, Oct. 14, at 4 and 7.30; and at Strangeways Hall, Manchester, Oct. 15, at 3.30 and 7.

A PEEP INTO AN ORPHANAGE.

The following passage from the report of Miss Sharman's Orphan Home in Southwark, read by her on Friday, at the Mansion House, will interest our young friends:—

Would my readers like to take a peep into nurseries, playrooms, and schoolrooms, and see some of the little ones who have come to us in the past year? Let me introduce you first to our babies, and you will acknowledge they are the sweetest in the world. Here is a wee, frail mite, whose mother died when giving her birth, and whose drunken grandmother robbed her of her tiny garments to pawn them for gin. The little shrivelled limbs and the wistful old little face made us think of a certain department of the Zoological Gardens. Now, when we look at her plump condition and round sweet face, we are reminded of Raphael's angels.

Here is another fat, complacent baby, who came to us at five weeks old, viâ the doorstep and the workhouse. She now takes the homage of her devoted subjects quite as a matter of course.

Here is another baby, very weak and very cross, who cuts every tooth with an attack of bronchitis; requires a fire night and day, and exacts unremitting attention, for which she only gets loved the more.

Then come some sprightly, healthy babies, whose every crow and caper is a wonder and delight to their young nurses, and who little know how orphaned they are.

Look at these two little sisters, aged eight and ten. Their mother was accidentally burnt to death; their father never recovered the shock, but died soon after.

Here are two beautiful little girls, three and five years old. Their poor mother died last January of consumption, and their father, unable to bear his grief, put an end to his own life, and left the sweet babes—not, as it proved, to a cold world, for they found a warm welcome at the Home.

This little girl, eight years old, was found by a lady visitor late one night last winter asleep on the pavement of a court where some of her family lived. The poor child's father was dead, and her mother was in the hospital dying of a cancer. The little one came to the Home, and was taken to see her mother, whose last hours were cheered by knowing that her child was cared for.

I must not tire your patience with a description of all the new children, though all are worthy of notice, but will only mention two more. One a little maiden, thirteen years old, who, with twelve young brothers and sisters, was bereaved of both parents, and left in utter destitution, after having been reared in every comfort. The other a sad, thoughtful-looking girl of twelve, who had been her widowed mother's adviser, nurse, and mainstay. We often meet with dear little old women of this kind, and put them into the Home mill to be ground young again.

THE CHURCH ON THE SANDS.

BOURNEMOUTH.

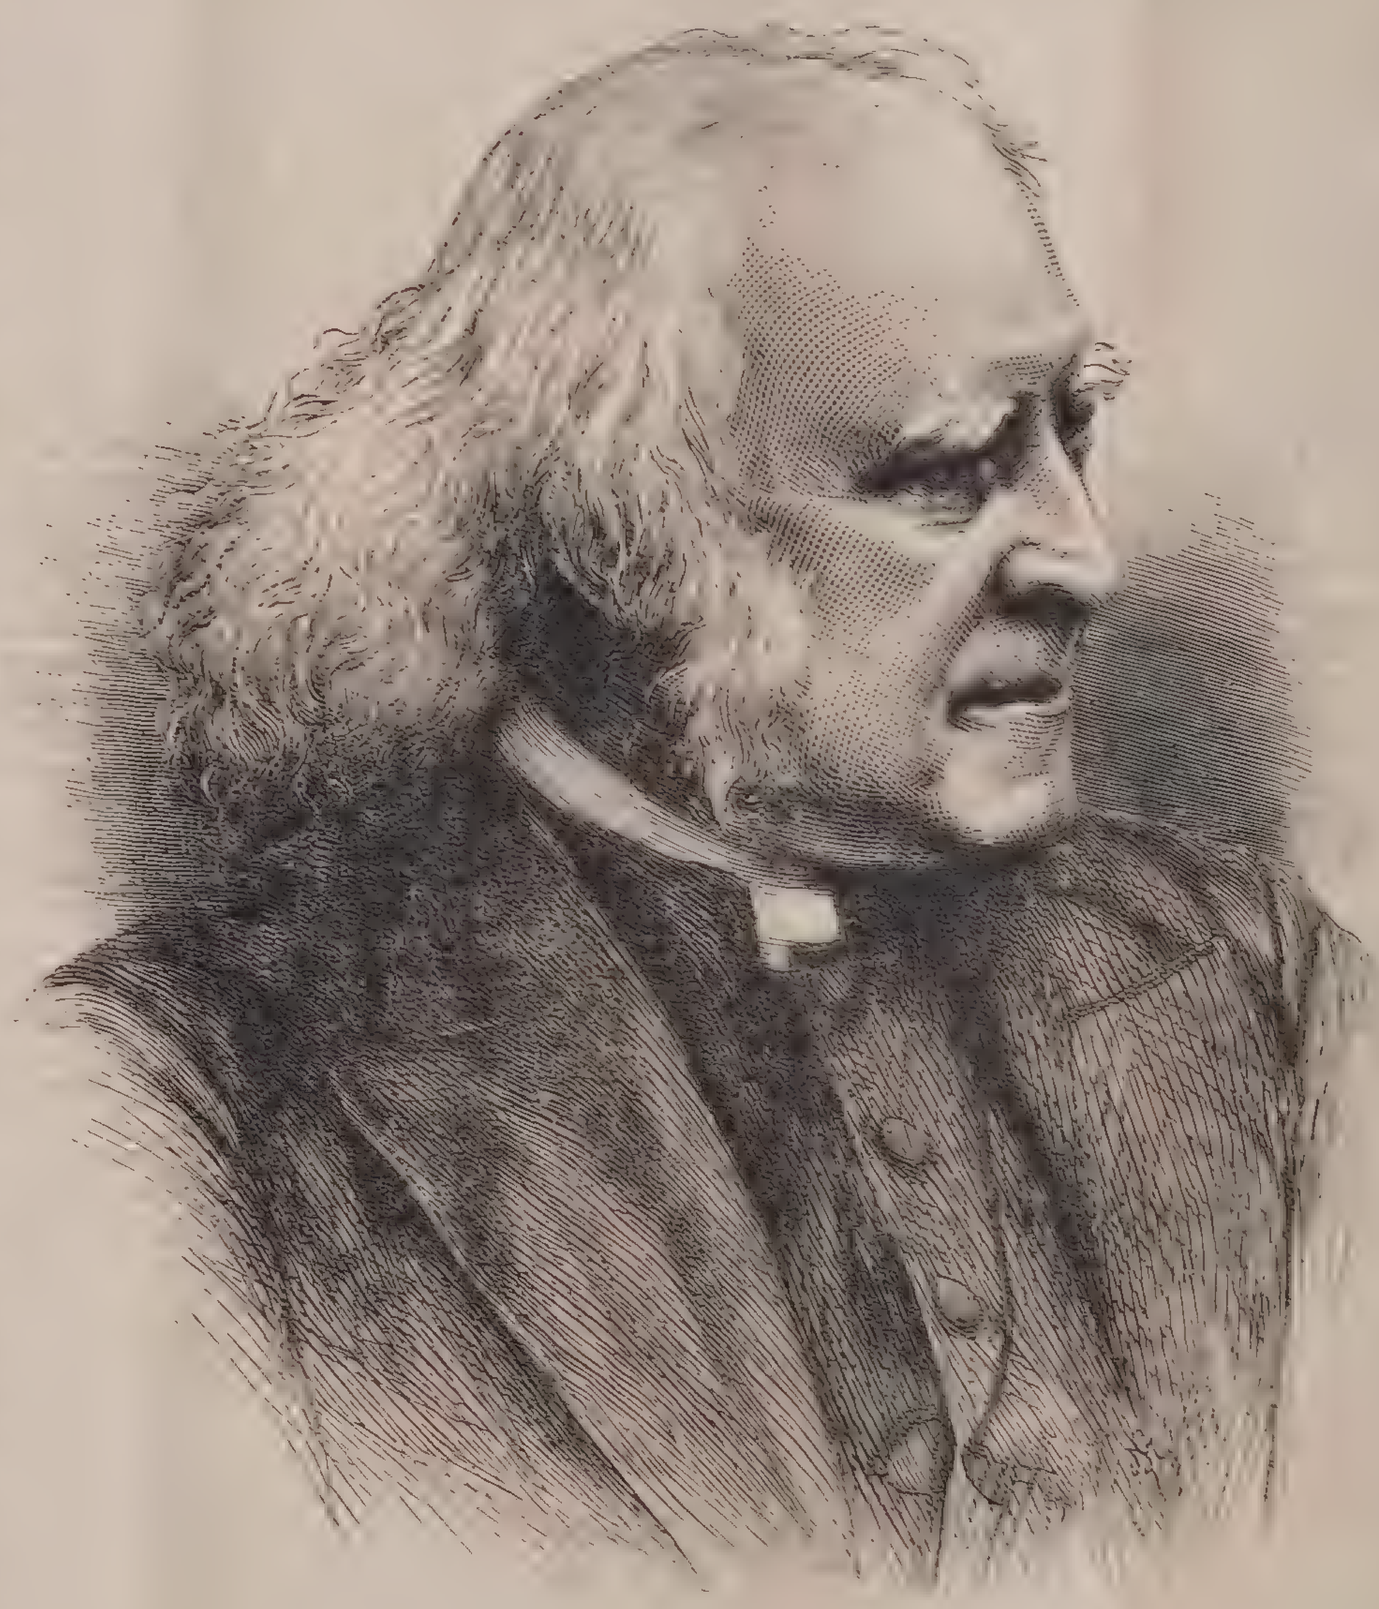
The seaside services of the Children's Special Service Mission have now become such a well-known branch of work, that it will suffice to say as to detail of arrangement here, that the services were conducted much on the same lines as in other places. Rev. Martin J. Hall was in command, assisted by an earnest band of workers. Spiritual work was the foremost thought. To win the children for Christ was the end and aim of all taking part. A spirit of loving union bound all together. Hence, the secret of the very special blessing given; for where the Lord's people "dwell together in unity," there the Lord commands the blessing.

Of definite results, it is difficult to speak. Many interesting accounts could be given of individual cases of blessing. Some who accepted Jesus for the first time as a personal Saviour, others who yielded themselves more fully to Christ as Lord, and have left Bournemouth desiring to live more fully for his glory in all things. In the case of many who received blessing it was encouraging to find a background of Christian influence. Notably, in one case, two in a family were returning to a distant home to Christian parents, who had long been praying for their conversion, and who are now able to rejoice in God's faithfulness. Some weeks after we had left Bournemouth, a little lad at home was broken down with a sense of sin, and when asked what made him first think about his soul, answered, "going to the children's services."

The attendance on the shore was larger than ever before, and the quiet and attentive listening very marked. Special boys' and girls' meetings were held, which were well attended. The latter were conducted by Mrs. E. N. Thwaites, of Salisbury.

Any account of the Bournemouth work would be incomplete without mentioning the blessed time of refreshment at the daily prayer-meeting at 10.30 a.m. At these meetings most helpful addresses were given by God's servants; one especially was most useful, on definiteness in prayer, calling Christians to take "more definite aim," and thus avoid much pointlessness in petitions often offered. Some stirring words were spoken on another occasion on Mark iii. 1.

The mission is now a thing of the past, but its blessed and holy memories remain in the hearts of many. Doubtless the seed sown shall yet spring up, and bear fruit unto God's praise. And for what we have already seen, "Unto Him be all the glory."



PROTESTANT LEPER CHILDREN IN HAWAII.—At the annual conference of the Hawaiian Evangelical Association considerable discussion took place in consequence of the methods adopted by the Roman Catholic priests at Molokai, who have charge of the leper children, and forbid those who are Protestants to read the Bible, or to attend on the religious instruction provided by the two Evangelical Churches in the leper settlement for the Protestant lepers. It was decided to bring the matter before the Hawaiian Board of Health, with a view to sending for the leper children religious training in the faith of their parents.

INOCULATING A CRIMINAL WITH LEPROSY.—It will be remembered that considerable sensation, not to say horror, was produced some time ago by the announcement that a criminal had been inoculated with leprous tissue in the Island of Trinidad. In the Report of the Trinidad Leper Asylum for 1888, Dr. Beaven Rake refers to the man, who is now a pronounced leper, undergoing all the dreadful experiences which a living death can produce. We are now told, however, that the case is not conclusive, and that the experiment must be repeated in a perfectly healthy body, or many healthy bodies, in countries where leprosy is unknown.—Zoophilist.

THE LATE REV. A. N. SOMERVILLE, D.D.

NO man of recent times, be he minister or layman, missionary or traveller, has, we should think, preached the Gospel in so many lands, and to people of so many tongues, as did Rev. Dr. A. N. Somerville during his fruitful career. Hence, not his native land only, but the Christian Church throughout the world, mourns his loss.

On May 27, 1886, we published a brief sketch with an earlier portrait of Dr. Somerville. With a likeness more recently taken, we now extend the record of that devoted service which his life furnishes. He was long spared to fulfil the trust committed to him, having reached his seventy-seventh year; but it might almost be said of him, as of Moses of old, that "his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated." Truly he was "faithful unto death." It was a remarkable coincidence that he should be called into the presence of the King so soon after the honoured friend of his youth, Dr. Horatius Bonar, whose funeral sermon he had preached but a month or so before. Thus has Scotland this year given two of her brightest stars to adorn the Saviour's crown.

In character Dr. Somerville was pre-eminently a man of strong convictions, and never was courage lacking to make them known. The share he took in the Disruption, in 1843, is a matter of history. His mind once made up, nothing could shake it. This characteristic was equally prominent in his foreign work. No contrary counsel from well-meaning friends could change his purpose, and very seldom did his judgment prove at fault. He possessed boundless enthusiasm; whatever he did was done heartily, as to the Lord. Being endowed with remarkable strength of body, he did not spare himself; even his holidays were times of service. Such activity marked his movements that even in his seventieth year he was compared to a youthful assistant (who at that time accompanied him on one of his missions) as "the younger man of the two," notwithstanding that he was nearly fifty years the senior. In 1848, when a bad throat compelled cessation from his regular work, he was found visiting Palestine, Egypt, and Constantinople, storing his mind for future ministry; and thirty years later he could not forbear ascending the Great Pyramid for the second time. But though generally strong, he suffered severely at times, and had dangerous illnesses, both on his Australian and South African campaigns. Throughout all his travels he strictly eschewed alcohol and tobacco in every form, and to this was no doubt largely due the strength of his constitution.

The following fact in connection with his early years is of interest. He, in company with his student-friends, McCheyne and the brothers Bonar, would repair to Arthur's Seat, whence each in turn would preach to his companions, afterwards submitting to the most rigorous criticism from them as to his subject-matter, style, and mode of delivery. Such friendly but candid treatment no doubt did much to develop the special power which characterised their preaching in later years.

Dr. Somerville gladly joined in special revival effort. In 1839, during the Kilsyth awakening, Rev. Wm. C. Burns, afterwards of China, deputed him on one occasion to commence a meeting to which he himself would follow when he had first preached in another chapel. Nine, ten, and even eleven o'clock came before Mr. Burns arrived. Meantime, Mr. Somerville had given three addresses upon Rev. i. 5, 6. He would not leave his post until his friend arrived, and the audience, well content to listen to the enthusiastic young preacher, were loth to disperse. During this revival his church was open every night, but Saturday, for three months; and again for eleven months during the great revival of 1859-60. He also entered warmly into the work of Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Glasgow.

In earlier years he used to hold classes for young men and for young women, which were very greatly blessed, and the memory of which is still fragrant among many who are now labouring in the great harvest field. He also conducted one for divinity students, who would regularly meet at his house as early as eight o'clock for instruction in Hebrew and kindred subjects.

His interest in Christian work was threefold: in that within the area of his own church; in home mission work beyond its pale; and in the foreign field; and he rested not until he had participated in each. In 1860 he founded an agency for female rescue. He was secretary of the old Glasgow Bible Society, and was one of those who drew up the first sketch of the constitution of the present National Bible Society of Scotland, which was an amalgamation of various societies then existing. He also originated a scheme for sending twenty thousand entire Bibles out to China. His interest in Bible work led him to adopt the plan of distributing portions at many of his meetings, on the Continent, and elsewhere.

Next, his aid was lent to a mission at Leghorn; then he warmly espoused the cause of Christ in Spain, and made several visits to that country, becoming a staunch friend of Matamoros. In 1870 he drew up a confession of faith for the use of Spanish Protestants.

That he was honoured by his own denomination is shown by the fact that almost immediately after the Disruption he was selected as a deputy of the Free Church to plead its cause in London and various English cities; two years later he was sent by the General Assembly of that Church to Canada; the following year to Shetland; and, finally, in 1886, he was called to the Moderatorship of the Free Church General Assembly. He twice visited Canada: first at the Disruption, and then at the union of all the Presbyterian churches in the Dominion.

Then, too, he was honoured by other sections of the Church of God, and this was due to his own large-heartedness and love for all those who love the Lord Jesus in sincerity. In fact it was this that led to the giving up of his church, of which he had been pastor nearly forty years; for when, in 1877, the Glasgow United Evangelistic Association (which drew its members from various communities) invited him to undertake systematic evangelistic tours abroad, such was the confidence reposed in him that he was left free to choose his own fields, times, and methods. Another memorable occasion was in May last, when he appeared at the General Assembly of the Established Church of Scotland to speak on behalf of the mission to the Jews which that Church sustains. The hall was crowded, and as Dr. Somerville entered the entire audience rose en masse. There is, we believe, only one other occasion recorded of a Free Church minister speaking in the Established Assembly since the Disruption, and the movement was a spontaneous and generous impulse of respect.

This same large-hearted charity characterised all his missions abroad. Wherever he went he endeavoured to work with ministers of all evangelical churches, and to get them to work with each other. In Melbourne it was in response to a requisition signed by fifty ministers of different denominations, and at Constantinople at the request of thirty-four, that he conducted a special communion service in each of those places. At the former no less than four thousand persons sat down to commemorate the Lord's death.

Dr. Somerville was especially a friend of Israel. In various Continental cities, including Berlin, St. Petersburg, Rome, Vienna, Buda Pesth, Grosswardein (Hungary), Bucharest, and at Kimberly in South Africa, he addressed large audiences of Jews. At Smyrna, Constantinople, and Thessalonica he also had especially interesting gatherings for them, his addresses being interpreted into Judeo-Spanish. The blessing that attended Mr. Somerville's long pastorate followed him in his itinerant work in other lands. His ministry was greatly blessed in the conversion of souls, especially in English-speaking countries; while his faithful messages were owned of God to the quickening of the Lord's people, and they, in turn, spread the good news around. His was a pioneer work, by which he sought to show what a hearty Gospel service could accomplish, and the interest thus awakened among the unconverted stirred up Christians to active service. It is no little satisfaction to hear from time to time of results of these missions still being brought forth.

As a preacher Dr. Somerville was particularly attractive; his language was choice, his delivery animated—at times even dramatic—and his subject-matter especially good. Often was he met by persons who had heard him years before, who remembered text, subject, and even outline of his discourse. In Canada he met one person who could do so after an interval of thirty-one years. His addresses abounded with illustration, and this, together with his descriptive faculty, riveted the attention of his audience to a degree which even the process of interpretation failed to diminish. Short sentences or phrases, translated quickly and with equal brevity, were the distinguishing features of these addresses, and the audience had no time to be weary, so rapidly did words in their own tongue follow those of the foreigner. In France alone Dr. Somerville had twenty interpreters, and during his travels his addresses were interpreted into no less than twenty-five different languages. Indeed, in South Africa three languages were used at one meeting. On this tour he was the means of a revival among the Dutch churches of Natal which spread to the Kaffirs. The following is a list of the countries in which Dr. Somerville conducted mission services :—

India.—Bengal, Madras, Bombay, Punjab, Central and North West Provinces.

Australasia.—Western Australia, Victoria, New South Wales, Qneensland, New Zealand, Tasmania.

Canada and United States.

S. Africa.—Cape Colony, Natal, Orange Free State.

Europe.—France, Spain, Italy, North and South Germany, Bohemia, Hungary, Austria, Servia, Roumania, North and South Russia, Turkey, Macedonia, Bithynia, Smyrna, and Region of the Seven Churches, Greece, Thessaly, Euboea and Morea, Ireland, Channel Isles, Highlands and Islands of Scotland.

A good choir, and plenty of singing, were also strong points, and it was no uncommon thing for a great portion of the audience to tarry long after the meeting had been dismissed, to hear the hymns (translations of Songs and Solos), which were quite new to them. The Doctor carefully eschewed controversy, and, by a judicious avoidance of any terms which might provoke it, declared the truth of the Gospel without stirring up strife. His general experience was that everywhere the people—Jew or Gentile, Greek or Turk, Kaffir or Hindoo—were attracted to the proclamation of the good news of God's love to men.

The meetings were attended by all classes, from princes, counts, barons, ambassadors, and officials (clerical and lay) of high rank, to the most humble station in life. It must not be inferred, however, that opposition was never encountered. The clergy often objected strongly to the use of secular halls, and especially theatres, for religious purposes. But these were often the only buildings capable of accommodating the people; hence the necessity of utilising them. It is gratifying to learn that in some places where the pastors were particularly adverse to this, they are now actually adopting the same methods themselves with most satisfactory results.

But the opposition occasionally assumed a more serious character. At Palermo a man provided himself with potatoes and onions with which to discomfit the preacher; at Elberfeld the Doctor received a letter which contained a threat to shoot him; at Saragossa he was stoned; and at the Pillars of Jupiter (Athens) a turbulent mob created a disturbance, at the instigation of a priest, who harangued the crowd from an adjacent elevation. Stones were thrown amid cries of "Down with him!" with the result that the interpreter received a severe wound on the head. This was the only occasion on which Dr. Somerville found it necessary to abandon a meeting, which he did under an escort of soldiers with fixed bayonets. At Rome he had a curious experience. Posters announcing the meetings were to be seen on every hoarding in the city; the press denounced the work; and among other caricatures was one especially elaborate cartoon. In somar, the Italian for an ass, was noted a resemblance to Dr. Somerville's name, and the artist represented him as that animal, in a swallow-tailed coat, discoursing, with his interpreter at his side similarly dressed, to a company of his fellows, and surrounded by a choir of the same. Here his success in securing the theatre, after it had been refused, was due to the sudden illness of the prima donna, the manager gladly availing himself of a better excuse for postponing the advertised play. In another town an advertisement of a meeting was refused by the editor of a journal (who was a Roman Catholic priest), but he attended the meeting, and was so pleased that he offered to insert the advertisement free of charge daily as long as the Doctor remained in the town. But being obliged to pass on to another the following morning, the kind offer could not be accepted. The priest, however, begged a copy of the tune-book from which the hymns had been sung, which request was readily granted.

In the midst of his abundant labours Dr. Somerville did not forget the children. Seldom were meetings in any foreign town concluded without at least one especial gathering for the little ones, whose attention, by his bright face and happy method of teaching, he never failed to secure and hold.

Dr. Somerville thoroughly realised the importance of Young Men's Christian Associations, and was the means of establishing not a few. One of the most important of these was that at Bombay, which is still in a flourishing condition. Ladies' Associations for the care of young women were also set up in several cities. He was also a wonderfully successful money raiser; while visiting Australia, at Christchurch £890 was raised at one meeting for the local Y.M.C.A., and at Dunedin £1133 for a similar object.

In India the Doctor was favourably impressed with the educational work of the missionaries, but felt that more provision should be made to meet the directly spiritual needs of the people. Hence, he advocated that two additional missionaries should be placed at each station to undertake the exclusive work of Gospel preaching. There is no doubt that the adoption of such a plan would obviate much of the weakness which at present seems to exist in this respect.

Since our previous notice, Dr. Somerville, as Moderator of Assembly, paid a visit to all the Free Church communities in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland. This occupied him from July, 1886, till May of the following year, with occasional brief intervals of rest. Even now intelligence is from time to time received of the lasting fruit accruing from that arduous but successful campaign. In 1887-8 he also visited Austria, Bohemia, and Hungary with much attendant blessing.

At his funeral there were present representatives from China, India, Constantinople, Asia Minor, Russia, New York, Canada, and North Africa, besides seven of the gentlemen who had been his companions on one or other of his evangelistic tours.

And now his work is done. And yet not done, for "he, being dead, yet speaketh," and large numbers are now leading others to Christ who were themselves led by him. But what is to be the practical outcome of such a life? Is it merely to excite admiration? Nay, rather, will not some one take up his mantle, and, in the power of God, follow his lead? Here was one, at advanced age, often suffering, unable to speak any language but his own, who, at the bidding of his Master, went forth in the assurance that "all things are possible to him that believeth." The harvest is plenteous; who will enter the field?

[Note.—The address of Mr. Bassano, from whose photograph of the late Earl of Shaftesbury our last week's portrait was engraved, is 25, Old Bond-street, W., not Regent-street, as stated.]

CONFERENCE CONCERNING ISRAEL,

MILDMAY PARK, October 1—3, 1889.

A THREE DAYS' CONVENTION concerning Israel was held last week in the Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, N. The object was to deliberate upon the purpose and promises of God in regard to his ancient people, and to consider their present spiritual condition. Prayer-meetings were held at seven o'clock each morning, and Bible-readings on the first two afternoons. The Conference had three sessions daily.

TUESDAY, OCT. 1.

God's Purpose in Israel.

Mr. J. E. Mathieson, who presided in the morning, delivered a brief opening address. Having lamented the fact that large numbers of Christian people take little or no interest in the affairs of Israel, he directed attention to statements in the Holy Scriptures, showing that the nation will be preserved until all God's purposes concerning it have been fulfilled. The gods of Assyria and Egypt, of Greece and Rome and Scandinavia, whom our forefathers worshipped, are no more heard of. But of the God of Israel we may to-day say with the Psalmist of old: "O Jehovah, our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth." Not only did God give the Israelitish people a conception of Deity far above the idea of mere local gods, and declare Himself to be the one Ruler of the whole earth, but He further made them to realise the meaning of the Psalmist when he also wrote: "Thou hast set thy glory above the heavens." A great deal of the ancient worship was the worship of nature—the sun, moon, and stars—but God is above them all—"above the heavens."

Speaking of the God of Israel as the unchangeable Maker, Disposer, and Preserver of all things, glorious and wonderful, Mr. Mathieson mentioned two which run through Holy Writ. The first is God's grace, which is shown in the early chapters of Genesis, where we read of Him immediately after the Fall going after Adam in the garden, and asking, "Adam, where art thou?" The other characteristic is God's desire of fellowship with the creatures of his hand. We find Him walking in the garden with Adam, walking with Enoch, talking with Abraham and Moses as a man talks to his friend. Moreover, not wishing to remain away from man, God ultimately brought his desire to pass by the fulfilment of the prophecy: "A virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel"—God with us. When Christ ascended, He sent the Holy Spirit; but not until his feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives, and He is reunited with his people according to the flesh, will He see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied.

SPECIAL CHARACTERISTICS,

Missions to Israel.

By Rev. Dr. ADOLPH SAPHIR.

The object of this Convention, as I understand it, is to deepen our interest in the work of evangelisation among the Jews, and the method which is adopted is that, besides hearing what the Lord is doing among Israel at this present time, we should principally go to the Scriptures, in order to see what God has revealed to us as to his purposes concerning the nation. This method is, no doubt, the true method with regard to all spiritual work of the Church. We are accustomed to hear of missions to the heathen nations, and to find that a great multitude of people are interested in the work, and regard it with respect; but it was only at the commencement of the last century that, with great difficulty, the attention of the Church was roused to this important duty. Even in the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland there were a number of ministers who thought that the state of heathenism was so utterly corrupt, and that there was so much to be done in our own country, that it was altogether an Utopian project to think of converting the idolaters, and that it was not our imperative duty to trouble ourselves with their wretched condition, until one simple minister rose and said to the Moderator, "Rax me the Book" (Pass me the Book), and then he opened it at the 28th chapter of the Gospel of Matthew, and read out the verses which the Duke of Wellington called "Your marching orders," when a young clergyman spoke to him in doubtful terms of missions to the heathen nations. But with regard to the Jewish nation, especially, it is necessary that we should be clear as to the Scripture ground and as to the Scripture teaching concerning God's people, for I am perfectly convinced that our only strength is there.

The Jewish mission is comparatively of recent date. The early Church very soon

LOST THE TRUE UNDERSTANDING of the Old Testament Scriptures, and in the mediæval Church the interest in the Jews was exceedingly limited. Nor was the mediæval Church in a position to evangelise the Jews in an enlightened and in a successful manner, for they themselves resembled too much the Jews, and as the Jews had corrupted the Old Testament religion by their traditions, and, forgetting that righteousness was by faith, went about to establish a righteousness of their own by works, exactly the same thing happened in Christendom. Hence the mediæval Church did not itself possess the Gospel in sufficient clearness and intensity to attack the Jews or to bring near to them the blessings of the Most High. Besides that, there was a paganising of Christianity which was especially obnoxious and hateful to the Jews. The image worship and other things would, from the very outset, impress the Jews with the fact that this was not the true religion of God, and that it was their solemn duty to keep as far removed from it as possible. There were some splendid exceptions. There were some men who had already, more or less, the full light of the Gospel burning in their hearts, and love to Israel animating them. Such a one was Bernard of Clairvaux, who, perhaps, of all Church fathers came nearest to the teaching of the Reformers, and he, in words most touching and most lucid, set before the Church the truth that Israel was still beloved of God, and that the time was coming when she who was now desolate and in spiritual blindness, would be brought back to Jesus, who would receive her with the love of a bridegroom.*

* "Then Jacob into Israel
From earthlier self estranged,
And Leah into Rachel
For ever shall be changed."
Neale's "Mediæval Hymns."

Besides that, the mediæval Church, although not utterly forgetful of her duty to Israel, and although bringing to Israel to some extent the great leading facts of the incarnation and the fulfilment of the Messianic prophecies in Jesus, yet, quite in accordance with the whole spirit of the Papacy, did not fight the spiritual fight with spiritual weapons; but with carnal weapons, and with persecutions, and the outward authority of the State, they sought to frighten and terrify the Jews, and to allure them with all kinds of temporal advancements to forsake their religion. Oh! it reads very beautifully when Portia says, "The quality of mercy is not strained." Shylock, the Jew, is represented as a hard, severe, cruel, and vindictive man; but what quality of mercy did the Jews experience from Christendom during the Middle Ages? Even in this country of England, with what injustice and with what cruelty were they

PERSECUTED AND TORTURED!

When it pleased God to kindle the light of the Reformation, the Church was in one respect in possession of the light to go with it unto the Jews, for the first eight chapters of the Epistle to the Romans and the whole Epistle to the Galatians were not merely illustrated with great clearness, but they were, so to speak, reproduced by the testimony of Luther and of his friends. And it was only natural that Martin Luther turned his attention to Israel—he was such a lover of Scripture, he had such an intense appreciation of the unity of the Old and the New Testaments, and of the fact that Jehovah is the living, loving God, and that He was finally manifested in Jesus. The person of Jesus Christ was, in such a peculiarly deep and intense manner, the centre of his whole theology, and of his whole life, and he himself had passed so much through an analogous experience with that of Saul of Tarsus, in seeking with all earnestness and zeal to approach God by his own worthiness, and to work out a righteousness of his own.

All these things brought the Jews, and the way of presenting the Gospel to the Jews, exceedingly near to the mind and the heart of Martin Luther, and many attempts did he make both to show to the Christian Church the position of Israel, as his famous tract shows, which is entitled "That Jesus was a born Jew"; and also to argue with the Jews, and to convince them that that which they were most earnestly seeking had come already, and was treasured up in the person of Jesus. But after awhile he had sad experiences; his efforts were disappointed, he saw the exceeding great blindness which has happened to Israel, and the obduracy of their prejudices; and also, very likely, he was not able fully to meet that which was true in the objection of the Jews—the tenacity with which they held the promise given to the fathers, and their national position, looking forward to the realisation of that great kingdom which has its centre in the throne of David. Then in impatience he gave up all efforts, and thought that it was of no use, and that they were altogether a rejected people.

Oh, what a difference between him who in so many respects came nearest to the Apostle Paul in the whole course of Christian Church history and the Apostle Paul. The Jews stoned the Apostle, scourged him, tortured him, persecuted him, year after year; but no persecution, no bodily suffering, no reproach, was able to eradicate that intense love which burned in his heart, or to modify that heaviness and sorrow which he bore continually concerning the chosen people of God. Whence this difference? Because Luther did not understand clearly "the mystery" explained in Rom. xi. There is one fact which deserves to be noticed—that, in the Christian Church, since the middle of last century, Christians have taken an interest in the people of Israel, and have made efforts to evangelise them; but it has always been the case that the Christians who took an interest in Israel and evangelised Israel were those Christians who not merely, thoroughly, and cordially, and without any reservation, believed in the Divine authority of the Scripture from Genesis down to the Book of the Apocalypse, but who accepted the Scriptural teaching that and that, although set aside for a time, there were still promises which must surely be fulfilled to them, and that that nation has a future before it when God Himself will interfere, and in a way which, perhaps, we are not able to understand, show forth his power and his goodness, and bring them again unto Himself in their own land. This is a fact which cannot be controverted. And therefore I say this—that, however much people may profess an interest in the Jewish mission, that interest is not strong enough to stand the strain; that interest is not intense enough to stand the test of experience; and it will soon decay and languish, unless it is grounded on the Word of God. A parallel case is this:—Jesus asks Peter, "Lovest thou Me?" Then He says, "Feed my sheep." It is not love to the sheep that will sustain Peter in feeding them. It is the fact that they are Christ's sheep that will sustain. It is not because the sheep are lovable that his interest in them will continue. It is because CHRIST is lovable that his interest in his sheep will continue. Likewise, unless you believe that Israel is GOD'S nation, your efforts to evangelise among Israel will soon languish, and your patience will be exhausted.

ISRAEL IS GOD'S NATION,

HEATHEN AND JEWISH MISSIONS CONTRASTED.

But let us contrast the mission to the heathen and the mission to the Jews. I am anxious to show you why it is specially true with regard to the mission to the Jews that it must be founded upon the prophetic word; and by "prophetic word" I mean the whole Bible, for the history of the Bible is also prophetic, written by the Spirit of God and intimately connected with the future. In the first place, nobody will take an interest in a mission to the Jews except a converted man. There are many people interested in missions to the heathen. Why? Because the sins, the crimes, the degradation, the wretchedness, the misery, of heathenism appeal to our human feelings and to our human consciousness. And idolatry in itself is such an awful and terrible thing that it seems to everyone who has the belief that there is one God a most desirable thing that idolatry should be destroyed. But when we come to the Jews, the Jews do believe that there is one God, the Jews do possess the ten commandments; the Jews, as far as morality is concerned, will compare favourably with any nation. The Jews themselves feel hurt and offended, and say to us, "Why do you send missionaries to us? Do we send more thieves and murderers into the jails than you do, or as many even in proportion to our number? Are we more immoral, are we more irreligious than the rest of the community in which we live? And so it is that unless we know that faith in the divinity of our blessed Saviour is by the Spirit essential, that righteousness is not by morality and by our works, but by faith in a crucified Redeemer, there will be no interest in missions to the Jews.

Secondly, the number of heathen nations compared with the number of Israelites. There are only about seven or eight million Jews. There are many hundred millions of idolaters. And then, again, it is generally imagined, although this imagination is not grounded upon fact, that the amount of result and fruit of labour has been much greater in the mission to the heathen than it has been in the mission to the Jews. If you look upon the mission to the Jews as one mission among missions, it is quite legitimate for a congregation or for a church to say, "We cannot do everything. We like missions to China." Another says, "We like missions to Africa." A third says, "We like missions to India. We take an interest in them. We have done our mission duty as far as we are able." But it is not so.

YOU MUST HAVE A MISSION TO ISRAEL,

if you are in harmony with the teaching of the Word of God, and after that you must also have a mission to the heathen nations; but no mission to any heathen nation can for a single moment be a substitute for the mission to the Jews, because the mission to Israel stands by itself, and is unique, and for the simple reason that Israel is, as we have heard, the people whom God has chosen, and concerning whom God has given promises, which are yea and amen in Christ Jesus, and which still await their fulfilment.

I have dwelt upon this point, perhaps, longer than many may think necessary; but I am perfectly convinced, for it meets me in conversation every day, that these simple and elementary truths are not known by the generality of professing Christians, that many do not understand why it is that there should be missions to the Jewish nation. We must go back to the Word of God, and to what they are pleased to call our prophetical theories. I wish that it were otherwise. I would fain put the Jewish mission upon a foundation so broad that all who believe that Jesus is the only Saviour would give to it their interest and their heart. Why is it not enough? Are not the Jews human beings? Are not the Jews sinners? Is there any other Saviour to deliver us from our sin, is there any Saviour to comfort us in our sorrow, but Jesus? Why should the Jews not excite your interest as much as any other nation? And again, even the most shallow reader of the Scripture must make a difference between the Jews and the other nations. You cannot forget their past history. You cannot forget the wonderful revelation which God gave to their fathers, and the wonderful acts which He did in their behalf. The feeling of gratitude must still be burning within your bosom when you remember that the whole Scripture was written by Jewish hands; when you remember that the Psalms, which are so dear to you both for prayer and for praise, came from the sweet Psalmist of Israel; when you remember that your own Apostle, who brought to you the knowledge of God and of Jesus Christ, was of the tribe of Benjamin; when you remember that Jesus, according to the flesh, was of the seed of David and of the seed of Abraham. And if it is not merely that as human beings and as sinners they need the Gospel, and that there is a special interest attaching to them on account of their past history, and that gratitude should prompt you to go forward and to rescue them, are not your compassions moved when you think of the wonderful sorrows of this nation, of the sufferings through which they have gone, of the persecutions which they have endured, of the misery in which they still are by their homelessness, and many sorrows? And yet all these things will not suffice. And why not? Because it is only when we are brought into harmony with the mind of God, and when we look upon Israel with the eyes with which Jesus looked upon them and with the eyes with which Jesus wept over them, that we will go on in light, and in love, and in perseverance, to the great, although the most difficult, work which is entrusted unto the Church on Israel's behalf.

But I think that the Jewish mission in the present day is especially in harmony with the characteristic feature of the present stage of the Church and the world. There is an old saying of which Bengel was very fond—Deus habet horas et moras." "There are pauses in history;" but during these pauses, which are occasioned by the unbelief, the ignorance, and the disobedience of his own people, and are made subservient to the wisdom of God, the great Musician does not forget the melody, and at the proper time it is continued. The Mediæval Church did not possess sufficient Gospel light; the Reformation Church did not possess sufficient Prophetic light, in order to go to the Jews.

NOW THE TIME HAS COME

when the Church, to a certain extent, has entered into the understanding, not merely of the first eight chapters of the Epistle to the Romans, but also of the ninth, tenth, and eleventh chapters of the same Epistle, and therefore this is the time. God has prepared, and we cannot but feel, in our conscience, that now is the hour that we are to go forward, knowing that God has sent us.

Moreover, the great battlefield at present is the Old Testament. The Church of Christ has been driven to the study and the defence of the Old Testament, whether she likes it or not. It ought always to have been so. It was a great mistake at any time to imagine that if you insulate the four Gospels from the Epistles which follow, and from the Old Testament which precedes, and only hold up the person of Jesus Christ in his beautiful and perfect humanity, that will be a lever for you by which to lift up the great mountain of unbelief and of infidelity. No, it will not, it has not done so. It cannot do so. Ah, if we had only simply believed our Divine Lord Jesus Christ and his Apostles, we would never for a single moment have dreamt that it might be so. Men speak of Judaising. Oh, we might speak of Paganising, and of Gentilising, and of Hellenizing in the Church, which will be, unless God avert it, the very ruin of the Church. Jesus Christ said, "If you believe Moses, ipsò facto you believe Me, for Moses wrote of Me." Jesus Christ founded his whole person, all his words, all his acts, all his miracles, all his methods, all his sufferings, all his death, all his resurrection, upon Moses and upon the prophets. He knew no other method of convincing the disciples on their way to Emmaus, of converting the fools into wise men, and of converting the slow of heart into men of burning hearts, but this—that, beginning with Moses and showing to them all the Scriptures, He showed to them the Divine method concerning Christ.

And seeing now that the Old Testament is the battlefield, never mind the results, never mind the difficulties of the Destructive Criticism. We know that the thing is sure, and for this let us thank God. The Church must look into the Old Testament, and the Church must give up all the phantomising and vague explanations which have been in vogue even among orthodox Christians for such a long time, and must see that Israel, the concrete Israel, the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, form the subject of the Old Testament from beginning to end. Old and New are one. The whole Old Testament, the friend of the mission to the heathen, and the guarantee of the mission to the heathen, says of the idols "they shall be utterly destroyed." The New Testament, the Book of the Church based upon the Old, breathes also the promise of the Old, and says "all Israel shall be saved." I, therefore, say that the mission to the Jews is the mission for the present time, that the Church of Christ is prepared, inwardly and outwardly, to take up this work.

We speak much about realising the person of Jesus, that Jesus is the centre of Christianity, and modern theology boasts of it as its peculiar excellence, that they do not look upon Jesus merely as the manifestation of God, but that they have come nearer to an appreciation of the humanity of Jesus. I do not enter into what truth there may be in this assertion, but this I will say:

WHAT IS THE HUMANITY OF JESUS?

How do we understand the humanity of Jesus? He came not to Rome; He came not to Athens; his goings forth are from of old; He is the son of David; He is the son of Abraham; He came as the minister of the circumcision to confirm the promise made unto the fathers. Jewish was his humanity, and the more we are in harmony with Jesus as He lived in the Word of God, in Moses, in the Psalms, and in the Prophets, the more will we understand the human aspect of Jesus Christ. It is no great understanding of the human aspect of Jesus Christ that I know that He had a body, that He required to eat and to drink and to sleep, and that He was tired; or that I know that He had emotions like all human beings, that He rejoiced, and that He was sad, and that He was moved with compassion, and that He was angry. The spiritual human life of Jesus is his real human life—his faith in God, his communion with the Father, his prayers, his conflicts, his love; and all this was Jewish, in this sense—you will not misunderstand what I mean—that Israel was the divinely prepared soil out of which He came forth, and that He was the realised Ideal prefigured by the patriarchs and prophets.

The Jewish Mission in the present day has also reached another stage on account of the peculiar change which has come over Israel itself. When Israel rejected the key which alone is able to open that wonderfully complicated lock, the Old Testament, their own history, and the promises which God had given to them, it could not be otherwise but that they should invent other keys, and these keys had, as it were, to force the wards of the lock; and so, in course of time, we cannot be astonished how utterly far astray they went from the truth which was revealed to their fathers, and which, to a great extent, was by the fathers.

Rabbinism for a number of centuries kept the Jews in its iron grip, but Rabbinism and Talmudism have become effete. What has been substituted for it? Monotheism, but not Jehovahism; the idea of the unicity of God, but not the knowledge of the living and the loving God, who could not have communion with his people until at last He came down in the person of his own Son. Monotheism is not able to satisfy the conscience or give peace and joy to the heart, and, therefore, there are in Israel multitudes who are poor in spirit, who are hungering and thirsting, who have the consciousness that they are blind and miserable and wretched, and who are longing after the living water that will satisfy the craving of their soul.

The attitude of Israel to the person of Jesus himself has become changed, also to the New Testament, which formerly thousands and thousands would not even touch with their hands, regarding it as an unclean thing. It is most astonishing how many thousands of Jews within the last few years have begun to read that Book, and to read it in an attitude of comparative candour. Rabinovitch is a wonderful sign of the times, and the message which, as a Jew, he brings to the Jews—that Jesus is our Brother, whom we sold into Egypt—has awakened a marvellous echo; and although we may not be able to point to many results as far as baptism is concerned, and the organisation of such things as appear outwardly and can be registered, yet the amount of interest which has been called forth among the Jews throughout all Europe in the testimony which has been raised by him, clearly shows that there is something special in the present day, that the Jews have entered into a new phase, that the field is prepared, that the hour has come, that it is our duty to go in faith and in love, and bring to them the glad tidings of salvation.

Rev. H. Lindsay Young

followed with an address on the "Sure Promises." It has been calculated, he said, that there are many thousand promises scattered throughout the Bible. While the majority of these are of a general import, applying to believers of every age, a very large percentage are special promises directly addressed to Israel, and only capable of fulfilment in that nation. The Israelites, the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, excepting the lines of Ishmael and Esau, must ever be kept distinct from the Church, as they are in the Word of God. The promises made to Israel may be grouped under three heads—the people, the land, and the king. In regard to each God's threatenings have been fulfilled, and, to-day, we see the people scattered and peeled; the land desolate and ruined; the king away from his throne and the kingdom thrown to the ground. Why have all these special threatenings been fulfilled? Because they are inseparably connected with the special objects named. The promises appertain to the same objects, and are equally special, made to the people whom Jehovah calls his own, of all the nations of the earth.

Having pointed to promises, such as Jer. xxxi. 33, guaranteeing the preservation of Israel, the speaker enlarged upon the blessed future which is depicted in the writings of the prophets—the nation to be restored to the land of promise, and saved with an everlasting salvation. The promises made by God unto this people are absolute, without any condition imposed upon them. All along the line of his gracious dealings with the fathers, God said, "I will." The comprehensiveness of the promises is indicated in the fact that their performance involves the conversion of the world, for in the seed of Abraham shall "all nations of the earth be blessed." The dispensations of the world, in their relation to the purposes of God, are three-fold—first, the selective dispensation, in which one nation was taken out of many; second, the elective dispensation, in which the Church is being taken out from all peoples; third, the collective and future dispensation, when Jew and Gentile races alike will be blessed of the Lord. So, unless the promises to Israel be fulfilled, the world can never be converted; for all nations of the earth are included, or comprehended, in the promises to Israel.

As to the security of the promises to Israel, Mr. Young quoted from Jer. xxxii. 41: "I will plant them in this land assuredly with my whole heart and with my whole soul." Where in the entire Bible do we find another instance of God saying He will perform a promise with his whole heart and soul? This is a wonderful guarantee.

TUESDAY EVENING.

In the much-regretted absence of Rev. D. B. Hankin, of St. Jude's, through serious ill-health, the presidential chair this evening was filled by Rev. Francis Rigby, a new Mildmay worker. In a hearty word or two Mr. J. E. Mathieson introduced him to the meeting and to Mildmay work. The first address of the evening was by who said that no more important subject could bring God's believing people together. It is difficult to keep apart the purpose of God to Israel and his promises to Israel. It is God's purpose, not man's; and it was in the heart of God from the beginning. It was God who gave the first gleam of hope, the first promise to Adam, that the Seed of the woman should crush the serpent's head. This promise was narrowed down to the seed of Abraham, the faithful: "I will bless thee, and thou shalt be a blessing"—here is certainty. The purpose has never yet been fulfilled, or the promise realised; but God's covenant with Abraham was unconditional, and therefore no failure of man can prevent its being ratified by the event. The history of Israel throughout has been that of the fire of affliction and the lamp of deliverance, typified by the sacrifice and the lamp of which we read in the passage that tells of God's giving the covenant to Abraham. The troubles of Israel have been many and sore, but the final deliverance is certain. No apostasy on the part of the nation could prevent the birth of the holy seed, the Deliverer, Immanuel—God with us. No wonder that this people should be the object of Satan's enmity. He thought he had slain that Seed among the babes at Bethlehem. He believed that surely he had killed Him on the cross of Calvary. But God had a purpose that could not be foiled. Working through Pharaoh, Satan sought to destroy the chosen people in Egypt, and so he ordered all the firstborn males to be slain; but the result was that Pharaoh's household had to bring up the very one who was to be a deliverer of his people. Another typical chapter of history is that in which Queen Athaliah sought to destroy all the seed royal of the house of Judah. But Joash was preserved for the deliverance of the kingdom, and therein he was a type of Christ the Deliverer. Then there was the plot of Haman, as Satan's emissary, to destroy the whole nation of Israel, told in the Book of Esther. (Here Dr. Bullinger interposed an interesting and curious discovery as to the fourfold recurrence of the name of Jehovah in acrostic form in the Book of Esther. We make reference to this on another page.) Haman's Satanic plot was foiled, and the nation preserved. While all the nations of old have disappeared, and their gods have gone with them, Israel remains till this day as a witness to God's infallible purpose, and they will yet be his witnesses as missionaries to the ends of the earth.

Rev. Dr. Bullinger,

Rev. W. Fuller Gooch

had for his theme God's promises concerning Israel as a nation. These promises, he said, are not those transitory and dispensational ones that have already had their fulfilment. We are sometimes asked why we Gentiles should concern ourselves with the promises to Israel. But these things, we are told, were written for our learning, that we might have patience and comfort and hope. These Old Testament Scriptures were written primarily for the Jew, and yet there is in them much of encouragement to us Gentiles to hope and trust in Him, who is faithful to the Jew and will also be faithful to us. The nature of these promises is twofold, as to the periods of time to which they relate. Do not overlook the fact that God has made promises to the Jew that are to be realised in this dispensation. "Beginning at Jerusalem"—that indicates that the Gospel would be blessed in Jerusalem, and so it was. But mainly the promises were for the coming age. In the initial covenant Abraham was a type of the whole Jewish race. There was to the Patriarch a manifestation of "the God of glory." He shall appear to the race in the person of his returning Son, and their idols shall all be cast away. Again, Abraham was the father of the faithful; the Jewish people are yet in unbelief, but one day, when the tribulation is overpast, they shall trust in the name of God. Abraham's faith was counted to him for righteousness; we read in Hebrews that their iniquities will be remembered no more. Abraham was separated unto God, and so the separated nationality shall one day be a sanctified nationality. Abraham became a blessing to the Gentiles in many ways, and so Israel shall be at the last. What God made Abraham, He will one day make the nation, spiritually.

But these promises have also a temporal aspect. The Jews are one day to have the land in full and final possession; they shall one day be re-united, and the twelve tribes shall again inherit the land. They are to be the head, and not the tail, of the nations. Jerusalem shall be the metropolitan city of the Great King. They are also to have abundant prosperity.

As to the security of these promises, let us remember that they are covenant promises. This covenant God confirmed with an oath. They are also unconditional, and therefore secure. They are mediatorial promises, and they cannot fail, because Christ's work is sure. This is guaranteed farther by the faithfulness of the Divine Word; by the changelessness of the Divine purpose; by the necessities of the Divine plan revealed for the world; and by the freeness and the fulness of Divine grace.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

God's Dealings with Israel.

Rev. Dr. John Edmond, of Highbury, presided, and, in the course of a vigorous opening address, said: To me the great charter of Israelitish hopes appears to lie in the writings of the Apostle Paul. Two chapters in his Epistles stand out like lustrous lamps casting their light over the future of God's ancient people. These are Rom. xi. and 2 Cor. iii. I do not in the least disparage the study of the Old Testament prophecies—how could I, seeing that the Apostle himself quotes them and reasons from them?—but Paul's exposition and forecast are so express and plain that they are quite unattended with difficulties of interpretation. The Apostle gathers up for us the sense of all the prophets, and sets it in a light so vivid that the simplest can read and understand.

Our theme is Israel's condition between the first and second advents of our Lord—from the destruction of the Jewish polity to the restoration and return for which we look. While that restoration will include re-possession of the land of Palestine, with all the things which that central position in the world will give them, this will only be as the shell of the kernel of recovered blessing. A new Joshua of the ancient type could not lead Israel into rest, and there would be need for a second conquest like the first. The true Joshua is Jesus. It is a striking circumstance that in neither of the passages mentioned does the Apostle say a word about the literal return to Palestine; to him the removal of unbelief in Christ was all in all. The blindness of Israel is clearly limited in Rom. xi. by two conditions—it is partial and temporary. There has always been a remnant according to the election of grace, and those who allege that the conversion of a Jew is hard almost to impossibility are unacquainted with the facts. Jews can be, have been, and are being, converted to Jesus; and in proportion to the means used and the efforts made, Jewish missions do not compare unfavourably with missions to the nations of heathendom.

It was pointed out that the note of time, "until," in Rom. xi. 25, finds its counterpart in 2 Cor. iii. 16: "Nevertheless, when it shall turn to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away." Besides having the vail of unbelief on their hearts, Israel is unable to discern the meaning of the outward rites and observances of the old economy. Those things do not obscure our vision, but rather help us, by enabling us better than otherwise to understand what Christ is — a Priest offering Himself as a sacrifice without spot to God. We Christians who love our New Testament have reason, especially in days when the piacular character of our Lord's death is so much denied, to thank God for the Mosaic ritual, which throws a light upon the New Testament, as in its turn the New also does upon the Old. While, however, the vail is upon the heart of Israel when Moses is read, it is a remarkable feature of the present attitude of the Jewish mind towards Christianity that the New Testament Scriptures are being largely accepted and read.

Glancing at predictions as to Israel, the speaker said he expected that, when brought back, the people will become to the world serving as he served, and acting as a national apostle to the wide world. I do not bring down their dignity nor lower their honour when I say that I feel sure they will in that day be Pauline in humility, counting it the grandest privilege to serve even as Paul himself did, who, though chief in the Apostolic college, yet spoke of himself as "not worthy to be called an Apostle," "less than the least of all saints," and "chief" of sinners.

A NATIONAL PAUL,

In conclusion, Dr. Edmond referred to the familiar words of Simeon when he spoke of the Saviour as "A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel." The Gentiles had been sitting in darkness, and needed light; Israel had got the light, but needed that it should be developed into a glory. It seems as though, when the light shall have been borne to the ends of the earth, the Gospel will show itself to be, in a manner hitherto not apparent, the light and glory of the people of Israel.

Dr. Donald Fraser.

The greatest interest of the Jewish people to us lies in the fact that of them Christ came. It should be expected that the coming of the Christ would mark an era for Israel. We find a strong confirmation of the fact that the Lord Jesus is the Christ of Israel in this—that from the time of his appearing and his rejection by the people of Israel, a very marked and solemn epoch in the nation's history is formed. From that time God has been dealing with Israel in a quite marvellous way. Those dealings will, we believe, go on in the same line of purpose until the second advent of the Lord Jesus, as the Deliverer who shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob. It is important to distinguish between Israelites and Israel. We have got into the way of recognising God's dealings with individuals to the disregard of his dealings with nations. But God deals with nations as such, and most emphatically has He dealt with the nation He has chosen as his own upon the earth. God rewards national fidelity to Himself, and punishes national sins. Now when Jesus came to the house of Israel at his first advent, He was rejected. Not that all the Israelites rejected Him. A great many were not in Palestine at the time, and they were not responsible in the same direct way as the others for the rejection of the Christ. The people who dwelt about Jerusalem, the rulers, chief priests, and the Sanhedrim, represented the whole nation, and committed the nation in their act. When, therefore, Jesus was by the Sanhedrim pronounced worthy of death, the fatal national act was committed of rejecting that Messiah who had come to them full of grace and truth. They slew the Heir, and forthwith a blight fell upon them as a nation. The fig tree of Israel withered, and from that day to this no man hath eaten fruit thereof, or obtained spiritual nourishment therefrom. The people of Israel were earnestly pleaded with, not only in Judea and Galilee, but throughout the lands of their dispersion. Some believed in Christ, whom God had raised from the dead, and some believed not. The latter were the heads of the nation, who boasted in the law, and went about seeking to establish a righteousness of their own. Consenting to the act of their rulers, they fulfilled passages in the ancient prophets, and an era of mercy gave place to one of judgment. From that time God's dealings with Israel have been such as may be described as punitive with a disciplinary purpose.

The purpose and plan of God work out results through what seems on the surface, and to the secular mind, to be merely natural developments of political history. The carrying away of the ten tribes to Assyria, and the two to Babylon, would by the ordinary observer, be described as catastrophes, very dreadful, but not at all uncommon at that period. We who read our Bibles and believe in God, trace the Divine hand in these things, and know that God called the enemy into the country, and delivered his unfaithful people into their hands. So also it was after the first advent of our Lord. The overthrow of the Jewish power and the dispersion of the nation may be represented as merely due to the infatuation of the hot-headed, restless, eastern race, determined to throw off the yoke of Rome, and it may be said that what happened was what was expected. But we look behind these things, and see God dealing with his people; we look under the surface and find that through the Roman armies, and subsequently through all the terrible hardships to which the Jews were subjected by the ignorant mediæval Christians, the Lord who loved them was dealing with them in a punitive way, with measured severity.

It is not that God's original purpose in regard to his elect people is changed—not that his calling is withdrawn or annulled, or that his love has turned into hatred. He loved them, but was wroth with them; and the more wroth because He loved them. He made them to feel, and is still making them feel, the power of his anger. Beloved for the fathers' sake, the nation was not thrust away into permanent rejection, but was put under a suspension of holy privilege. All who study the ways of God with men and nations will recognise the principle of repetition—line upon line, stroke upon stroke, with ever-recurring emphasis. Recall the dealings of God with Judah at the time when the kingdom of David nodded to its fall. Then stood up Jeremiah to witness, and Jeremiah wept over Jerusalem. With tears he warned his countrymen of impending judgment, but with little success. Individuals listened to him, but the priests and the representatives of the nation refused to hear. Why? Because they were full of vain confidences. They irritated and provoked the Babylonians, as afterwards they did the Romans, and their house was left to them desolate, and they were carried into captivity. The words and the tears of the great prophet availed not to avert the judgment when the cup of their iniquity was full.

Now, come to the New Testament era. The greatest Prophet that ever spoke for God came; He warned, taught, pleaded, wept over Jerusalem. Just as before, the Jews were infatuated in their vain confidences. The things which belonged to her peace were hid from the eyes of Jerusalem. Jesus returned to his Father; his Apostles and prophets called his people to repentance, but they were unshaken in their self-righteous pride. Paul wrote in plainest terms of their hardening hearts and impending Divine severity, but they would not be wise. James remained in Jerusalem, pleading and warning; but, though they called him the Just, he was stoned to death by command of the High Priest. Then Vespasian came, just as Nebuchadnezzar had come previously, and blow after blow from the Romans reduced the state to ruin, amid scenes of horror which cannot be described. Hundreds of thousands of people were massacred, and the remainder scattered far and wide over the world.

That second punishment has been much heavier and longer than the former, and upon the principle that increasing privilege gives increased responsibility. In the former case they had been unfaithful to the monotheism which had been their special mission to the outward world, and had adopted strange gods. Jehovah let them be carried away into a heathen country, that they might be cured of their heathenism, at the same time helping a return of their hearts to Himself by the wonderful ministry of Ezekiel, and the sublime previsions of Daniel before the return. The result was an effectual cure, for the people have never since relapsed into idolatry, such as we read of in the Old Testament. In the second case, the offence had to do with Messiah and his salvation, which had to be proclaimed to the ends of the earth. Not only did Israel reject Christ, but did what they could to prevent all nations from benefiting by the salvation of God. They trusted in Moses and the law, in circumcision, the Temple, and their traditions. In order to punish, and ultimately cure this, God so ordered it that the city and Temple of the Jews should be thrown down and burned with fire, and that for centuries the people should have neither altar nor throne, but should be driven out of their land more thoroughly than even the Canaanites were driven from Palestine by their forefathers.

During all this time God has ordered that the nationality should not be broken, nor the consciousness of it weakened. Though everything conceivable has been done to break Israel's nationality, it is unbroken, and the consciousness is as strong to-day as ever within every Hebrew breast. They form one nation in strong and clear demarcation from all the nations of mankind.

THE SUFFERINGS AND VICISSITUDES

through which they have passed are inexpressibly sad, and not until about the middle of the last century did they begin to receive equitable treatment in Europe. From that time begins what may be called the renaissance of Israel.

Again and again this nation has been thrown into contact with the leading nations of the Gentiles. This is one of the things which show God's purposes of kindness in the midst of punishment. In this way Israel has gained a wider knowledge of life and of the arts of civilisation than would otherwise have been possible. In Egypt with its wisdom, they were bondmen; in Babylon with its science, they hung up their harps and could not sing; now, in the midst of the busy nations of Christendom, they are everywhere, but have no home. They are money-amassing, yet poor; they dominate the financial centres of Europe, yet come into East London and disorganise the labour market where the most wretched of our people live. They do nothing to break down idols, or spread the knowledge of God in the world. God has set his mark upon them. He has a purpose to serve in them. We may learn much by studying their history and institutions. I do not find a weak theology among people who think much of the ways of God in Israel, and the teaching of God with regard to the election and the atonement for sins. The history of Israel discloses a great purpose, which requires an intelligent Being to form and maintain it. We stand in awe of the God of the Jews, who is the God of the Gentiles also—no mere abstract power or tendency, but a Being who, we learn, loves and chooses, calls and defends, punishes and rewards. Surely He is the Living One, "I am that I am," who for ages has cared for, and watched over, and dealt with the children of Abraham his friend.

Rev. John Wilkinson

dwelt upon "The Duty of the Church to Israel." Having premised that the line of obedience is the line of blessing, he showed that "to the Jew first" is the New Testament order of evangelisation. Illustrations were adduced from the Acts of the Apostles, special attention being directed to the marvellous acceptance which the Gospel met with while this rule was followed. He expressed the belief that every generation of Christians might, if disposed, evangelise the inhabitants of the world. Especially is this within the power of the current generation. There is enough surplus cash, talent, and grace in the Church to-day to execute this mission. When the Lord saw that the early disciples would not act upon his wish, and work in the order—"Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and the uttermost parts of the earth" (Acts i. 8), He sent persecution, and scattered the Church abroad. Believers then "went everywhere, preaching the word," but "to none but to the Jews only." Then the Lord raised up Paul, who had been a ringleader of the persecutors, to take the Gospel to the Gentiles. Paul, however, never entered a town without first seeking out the Jews, and preaching the Gospel first to them. Lest anybody should take up work among the Jews as a hobby, the Holy Spirit led the Apostle to express the order of preaching: "To the Jew first, and also to the Gentile." God's plan, thus expressed, is calculated to reach the Gentiles on the largest possible scale. Wherever Jews reside, and missionaries are sent to those regions, the message of the Gospel ought first to be delivered to the Jews.

Passing on, the speaker directed attention to Rom. xi. 30: "As ye in times past were disobedient to God, but now have obtained mercy through their disobedience, even so have these also now been disobedient, that by the mercy shown to you they also may now obtain mercy" (R.V.). Not by our cruelty or neglect will the Jews obtain mercy, but by the exercise of our Christian compassion in their behalf. Again, Rom. xv. 27: "If the Gentiles have been made partakers of their spiritual things, they owe it to them also to minister unto them in carnal things." The practical lessons arising from these words were powerfully driven home.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

This evening Mr. J. H. Tritton presided over a company that filled about three parts of the area of the hall. In the course of some prefatory words, he said that God had markedly dealt with Israel in judgment and mercy combined. To trace this double thread is an exceedingly interesting study to the believer. Turning to the wonderful visions of Ezekiel, the prophet of the Captivity, Mr. Tritton illustrated this by various apposite quotations, showing the remarkable mixing of mercy and of judgment in God's attitude towards the chosen people. Then, in the pitiful wail of Christ over Jerusalem, as He foresaw its doom, we find that the thought of mercy comes before that of judgment. Since our Lord departed from the earth, after a parting message of mercy to the Jews—"Beginning at Jerusalem"—we have had no open vision, and the witnessing for God has been left to his Church. Is not the fact that the Church has been unfaithful to the Lord's order—"to the Jew first"—some explanation of our comparative lack of success in our work? Knowing the deeper meaning of the Old Testament revelation, as fulfilled in our Lord Jesus Christ, it is our bounden duty to unfold that deeper meaning to the hearts of our Jewish brethren, in all the lands whither they have been dispersed.

Rev. James Smith,

the Free Church minister of Dufftown, N.B., is a new voice on London platforms, but we venture to say a welcome one. He is very clear in his thinking, and impressively emphatic in his utterance. "That they may know my service, and the service of the kingdoms of the countries." These words in 2 Chron. xii. 8 express in a nutshell the experience of the Jews through all the centuries between the two Advents. Briefly note three things as to God's dealings with Israel between those two pivotal points. Unless we keep the two Advents in our view, the Bible will be to us an enigmatical book, and we shall be like a man who walks on one leg and a crutch. First, the spiritual condition of the people must be considered in connection with the punitive or judicial dealings of God towards them. The prophets drew a dark picture of the spiritual apostasy of the nation; so did Christ and his Apostles. Both apostasies were followed by sore judgment—exile, dispersion, disability, and suffering. In all the prolonged hardship and distress of the Jewish people during the Christian era, we can only see the punitive hand of God. While we can make no excuse for the terrible treatment of the Jew by the Christian, that in no way invalidates the claim of Christ upon the Jew, and we may recognise in this treatment the rod of God; just as He made them as a rod to the idolatrous peoples of Palestine. Strange that though seventy years of captivity sufficed to cure the Israelites of idolatry, 1700 years of exile and dispersion have not sufficed to cure them of their rejection of the true Messiah.

Another point to be noted is God's protection and preservation going alongside of this punitive action. They are "beloved for their fathers' sakes." Though they have been banished, and burned, and banned, they have through it all preserved their national solidarity. Are they not being preserved, to be a mighty breakwater against infidelity in the time when the Antichrist shall appear, and the enemy shall come in like a flood? This wonderful protection and preservation was very markedly seen in the old days of exile; here and there God exalted one and another of them to very high places, and that to the benefit of the very nations where they were driven. Surely the hand of God is in all this, and it has in it the germ of future blessing and glory. As we gaze at the present mystery of the continued dispersion, we see the signs of a brighter day that is in store for the people. Further, we must note God's gracious dealings with the Jews now. There are some Jews who think that "God is asleep" in this age, as one of them actually remarked. If this were true, it would be a sad outlook for Jew and Gentile alike. Do we not find a better explanation of this interval, in the fact that God is concluding all under sin, and showing that Gentile and Jew must alike be received back to God's favours only on the ground of atonement wrought out by Jesus Christ? So we bid God-speed to every mission to Jews, as well as to Gentiles. The most wonderful constructive piece of reasoning by Paul was written (Rom. ix.—xi.) to confute the idea, too prevalent now, that all the promises made of old to the Jews are to be fulfilled in the spiritual blessings of this dispensation, when there is in Christ Jesus neither Jew nor Gentile. Nay, there is to be a separate and splendid dealing of God with this people. We cannot understand fully this subject of the future of the Jew unless we examine the last part of the parable of the prodigal son—a part that is very little spoken about. When the prodigal returned, and the household made merry, the elder brother was angry. So with the Jew now—he is angry and surprised at the thought that God should expend so much trouble in saving the Gentile, and he loses all this time of merry-making. But, as the father in the parable went out and entreated the elder brother, so God is now entreating the Jew to come into the household circle again; He will yet take the stubbornness out of the heart of the elder brother, and the words of the poet shall one day be fulfilled:—

Hail to the brightness of Zion's glad morning,
Long by the prophets of Israel foretold;
Hail to the millions from bondage returning,
Gentiles and Jews now their Saviour behold.

Up from the nations, the hills, and the ocean,
Praise to Jehovah ascending on high;
Fallen are the engines of war and commotion;
Shouts of salvation are rending the sky.

A LETTER FROM DR. ANDREW BONAR.

Before entering on his address, Rev. Dr. J. Hood Wilson, of Edinburgh, read part of a letter he had received from the venerated Dr. Andrew A. Bonar, of Glasgow. Dr. Wilson said that he and Dr. Bonar had been sojourning lately in Arran. Dr. Bonar stayed near King Robert Bruce's Cave, the scene of the story of the King and the Spider. The two stors had arranged to visit the Cave, but Dr. lson was unable to go. Dr. Bonar wrote:— 'You ask if I can spare a few minutes to eak of our duty to Israel. Had we been der the roof of Bruce's Cave we might have ked over the subject, and perhaps the recol- tion of the persevering spider might have rnished a lesson with regard to our duty to ael. It is difficult to suggest anything that ll not readily occur to yourself. I think I uld insist on our following wherever the rd leads; we must give Israel the place and ominence given them in Scripture. I find so that 'beloved for the fathers' sakes' fur- shes a theme; as does the words 'of whom ncerning the flesh Christ came.'"

Dr. Bonar stated in his letter that he was out to go to the Perth Conference, of the iginal committee of which he was the only rviving member; and with reference to the cent death of his brother Horatius, he added: And the time of my departure is at hand." the old friends of Israel (Dr. Wilson re- arked) and the old friends, whose faces and ices used to be familiar at Mildmay, are ssing away; are we not to have others rising to take their empty places? The Doctor en addressed himself to the topic of the oment—

The Church's Duty to Israel.

In previous addresses, he said, we have had e doctrine as to the Jews; now as to our esent duty. "Go ye into all the world and each the Gospel to every creature"—except e Jew? Is that the command? Nay, the essage is to "every creature," and, therefore, the Jew. The promise of Holy Ghost power as given in connection with taking the Gospel the Jew as well as to the Gentile. Perhaps r first duty with regard to Israel is to know out Israel. Are not many Gentile Christians norant, not only of God's purposes and pro- ises and predictions about the Jews, but even the very locale of the Jew in our own day? hen we should aim to have the attitude of e "Christian" nations towards the Jew anged from hatred into forbearance and love. e have heard of Jewish persecution, but we do t know about these black spots in our history we ought. These transactions ought to be rned into our hearts. "Anti-Semitic" move- ents are unhappily not all of the past, as itness recent events in Germany and else- here. There may be certain reasons for this a worldly kind. The Jews are a wonderful eople, full of vitality and energy. They have sen to the top in many departments of life. he relation of the Jew to the sweating system our own countries may possibly provoke such "anti-Semitic" feeling; but we must aim as hristians at having it kept down and put away. n one occasion when the late Dr. Edersheim sited a Christian's house, it was said in his earing that he was the first Jew who had ever een there. He quietly replied: "I hope THE ew has visited your house." Surely, if we ave in our homes and our hearts

THE JEW

-our Lord Jesus Christ—it ought not to be so ifficult for us to have our affections going out o his brethren after the flesh. Kindness hown to the Jews touches their hearts in a onderful way; why should we not be always eady to show such kindness? We want also o seek the spiritual revival of the many hurches that bear, though unworthily, the ame of Christ. The coldness, the worldliness, he superstition, even the immoralities of so- alled "Christian churches," have been the reatest obstacle to work among the Jews. Jews aturally ask what they are to be converted to, hen they point to these things. It is said hat in some places the Jews abominate the ross, not because of antipathy to what it re- presents, but because they say it is the Chris- ian's idol. They lay two matches across each ther and say, "There is the Christian's god." Is there not too much that justifies that feeling? Then we must seek more than ever to compass the conversion of the Jew. Is there any hindrance to such conversion now that could not have been urged in the time of the Apostles? Let us pray more than ever that the little one may become a thousand—that the thousands of Jewish converts may be

MULTIPLIED INTO MILLIONS.

How are we to seek this lawful and, as we believe, attainable end? Largely by the Christian education of Jewish children. In Buda Pesth, Turkey, Syria, and other parts of the East, our Presbyterian missions have had the education of thousands of the very flower of Jewish families. These children are receiving a thorough Christian education, and there are there all the conditions of success if the Spirit of God will but apply the living touch. Dr. Wilson said he had seen some of these Jewish schools, and they are a wonderful sight. There has of late been quite an awakening among some of the girls in them. Let us pray and labour that the sowing time may soon become a time of reaping. Again, let us facilitate the bringing of the Jew into contact with the Christian Scriptures. It is a striking fact that many Jews do not know their own Old Testament Scriptures, and would never know them except for the intervention of Christian societies and Christian workers. A well-known Christian Jew once told me that he was converted to the faith of Christ through reading the Gospel in Isaiah.

THE MEDICAL MISSION

is another wonderful agency which will be a key to the Jewish heart. Christ's own command was to preach and heal, and therefore this is a work that He must specially own. At Buda Pesth, a Jewish physician, who had seen and admired the work of the Christian deaconesses among the poor, wished to spend his closing days in the care of these followers of the Messiah. Last of all, let us pray for Israel; not merely in the general, but specifically. The late Dr. Somerville had a great idea of the value of itinerant evangelistic work, and it is desirable that it should be greatly extended. A well-known friend in Scotland, the late "Rabbi Duncan," of Edinburgh, was so Hebrew that he was taken for a Jew. He said the whole salvation of Israel was dependent on the outpouring of the Holy Spirit; let us unite to pray for that. We have the promises: "All Israel shall be saved"; "They shall be grafted in again." Things may look unpromising now, but we must not be despondent. God's purpose will in due time be fulfilled.

THURSDAY MORNING.

Israel's Restoration and Salvation.

MR. H. C. NISBET, who presided, delivered a brief address by way of introducing the day's subject: "God's Plan Realised." He emphasised the importance of keeping to the Word of God in matters relating to God's future purpose. If we would look into the things revealed to us, we must come to the conclusion that there is no nation except one with which God has linked the future destiny of the world. Israel, the everlasting nation, will never cease to exist, though we read that every nation which will not serve Israel shall perish. Whatever hopes may be prompted by our Christian patriotism, we cannot say that our own or any other nation will have the privilege of acting a subordinate part in relation to Israel in the good time that is coming, when the seed of Abraham will enjoy political supremacy on earth. The speaker called attention to the story of Joseph and his brethren, and applied it in illustration of the reconciliation of Christ to his long estranged brethren. As there was weeping, followed by joy, after the reconciliation of Joseph to his brethren, so shall there be when Christ manifests Himself to Israel.

Mr. G. H. Pember on the Return.

It is true that nearly four thousand years have elapsed since God gave to Abraham the glorious pledge which we are considering, and those who do not study the Scriptures fail to see any signs that the promise nears its fulfilment. But the accomplishment of God's purpose always comes unexpectedly, so far as those who are not his own people are concerned. To the latter He seems to say, "Shall I hide from them the thing which I am about to do?" As we search the Scriptures, with prayer for the guidance of the Holy Ghost, the mystery of God's purpose is opened up to us, and we are enabled to interpret the phenomena by which we are surrounded. The purpose of God moves towards its consummation, although we may not discern his working; and not only do his heavenly messengers and the people of his choice perform their part, but every being, men and angels, and Satan also, is perforce an instrument in some sense and degree in bringing about the will of Him who sits enthroned upon the praises of Israel.

After his dealings with the whole world, before the Deluge and afterwards, God chose Israel to be his peculiar people, determining, by a long course of discipline, to make them a holy nation, and then through them to effect his beneficent purpose to all mankind. At the very beginning God appointed the land which they were to occupy for the ultimate carrying out of this purpose—in a central position as regards the nations they are to influence, and to extend from the river of Egypt to the river Euphrates. A subordinate purpose connected with the great plan is to sift Israel. "Not all that are of Israel are Israel." "Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved." All along the life of the nation this separation of the wheat from the chaff has been going on, and not yet is Israel purified. By and by the Lord will arise, and say, "I will ease me of mine adversaries," and then Israel will be rendered fit to receive the blessings promised. The visitation will be short and decisive upon all the twelve tribes, and the is shown in Ezek. xx. 32. The prevalence of an atheistical spirit: "We will be as the nations, as the families of the countries, to serve wood and stone." In other words, appreciating more and more the advantages of Gentile life, and only desirous to settle down for the purpose of money-making, the people of Israel will give up all thought of the gracious promises of God. Do we not see the beginning of this already in the broad-church feeling which is showing itself on all hands among the Jews? This certainly makes it easier for God's people to approach the Jews, but it does not seem to warrant expectation of any considerable number of conversions in Israel. Nevertheless, now is the time for us to carry the Gospel to the Jews, although there is reason to fear that indifference to the barriers which have hitherto kept the people distinct from the nations will tend to their absorption among the peoples of the earth. When, in this respect, Satan thinks he has attained his purpose, and frustrated the performance of the promises made to the fathers, then God will interfere. And this is what He says: "That which cometh into your mind shall not be at all....As I live, saith the Lord God, surely with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you....And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face" (Ezek. xx. 32—35).

CAUSE OF THE LAST INDIGNATION

Just as murmurers and rebels were not allowed to enter the promised land, but were cut off, so in the latter days there will be Israelites who will require to be forcibly ejected from their homes, and brought into before they will consent to listen to the word of the Lord. As to the service of "wood and stone," prevailing among the nations, most of us would be startled if we could have a correct return of the increase in the manufacture of crucifixes, images of the saints, and idol statues of the Virgin Queen of Heaven. Those of the Israelites who actually return will have a terrible time, for Zechariah tells us that only one-third will survive. Only a few of the Jews will of themselves go back to Palestine. A large number of the two tribes and the whole of the ten will remain for a while in the countries in which they are scattered, but God will lead them through the countries of Europe, Asia, and Africa, to their own land, arriving in two large companies, one on the shores of the Red Sea, the other on the banks of the Euphrates (Isa. xi. 15, 16; Zech. x. 10, 12).

"THE WILDERNESS OF THE PEOPLES,"

Having expressed the conviction that the ten tribes are at present in Asia—chiefly among the Nestorians—the speaker enlarged upon the judgments of sword, pestilence, famine, and wild beasts, which will characterise the time of trouble, and alluded to the persecution, plagues, and earthquakes which the prophets have foretold. God will do wonders far exceeding anything of the days of old, before He brings his people home again. At Sinai the earth was shaken; the time is coming when the heaven also shall be shaken. Apocalyptic intimations were introduced to show the fierce workings of evil in days of tribulation yet in the future, to be speedily followed, however, by joy to Israel and glory to God on an unprecedented scale.

Canon Fausset on the Millennial Kingdom.

The keynote of the Millennial reign of Christ is that God will abase the proud and exalt the humble. The kingdom belongs to Christ by right of his Father's word, confirmed by an oath. The words of the angel to the virgin mother, as given in Luke i. 32, are clear; the fact that Christ is seated now on his Father's throne in heaven is no performance of the very explicit undertaking. The throne specified is David's, and that is not in heaven, but on earth, in Jerusalem. In Daniel vii. 27, the kingdom over Israel is defined with exactness as being "under the whole heaven," therefore not in heaven. At the time when Christ shall reign in Jerusalem, the name of the city shall be called "Jehovah-Shammah—the Lord is there" (Ezek. xlviii. 35).

This great kingdom, far from being some after-thought on God's part, is a golden thread running throughout the entire Bible. In Ezek. v. 5, God says of Jerusalem, "I have set it in the midst of the nations." During the Millennial reign, God will be in the midst of Jerusalem, which will be in the midst of the countries of the earth. One of the peculiar glories of Israel was that to her belonged, not only the adoption, but the glory. Yet Ichabod has been written upon the nation. The departure of the glory is described in Ezek. xi. 23.

THE SHEKINAH GLORY,

which, as a bright cloud, rested upon the holiest place in the Temple, step by step departed from Jerusalem, because of the apostasy of the people. First it went to the Mount of Olives, east of Jerusalem, and finally it departed. In Ezek. xliii. 4, we find it stated that when Jerusalem shall be restored to the heavenly King, to sit upon the throne of David, the glory returns by the way of the east. This supplies a key to Rev. xvi. 12, which speaks of the waters of the river Euphrates being dried up, "that the way of the kings of the east may be prepared." The Lord Jesus Christ is the King returning from the east—from the Mount of Olives.

The first act of the Lord on his return from heaven will be to gather the outcasts of Israel and the dispersed of Judah. The many passages in the Old Testament which so glowingly describe this gathering cannot by any fair treatment be regarded as referring to the temporary return from captivity in Babylon. They say that the people shall be gathered "from the four corners of the earth" when the Lord "shall stretch out his hand a second time." Having poured out upon the people the spirit of grace and supplication, the Lord will take away the vail which is now upon Israel's heart as to the meaning of the Old Testament Scriptures. This illumination will be after their calling upon Him, and being converted from their old ways. These and other points having been fortified by quotations from Holy Writ, the speaker proceeded to refer to the greatly extended borders of the Land of Promise during Millennial times. As a kingdom of priests, Israel will be a blessing to all the nations. Then for the first time spirituality will be combined with high ceremonial in worship. The restored sacrifices, of which the prophets speak, will be of a memorial character. The glory of the time will be surpassingly great, and, lest the cross of Calvary and the blood of atonement should be forgotten, there will be a sacrificial ritual to remind the people of the humiliation and suffering which preceded and became the basis of the glory. There is no mention of a day of atonement, because it will have gone by; nor of any high priest additional to the Lord Jesus, who will be the Priest and King.

Israel's coming glory will signalise the beginning of the

REGENERATION OF THE NATIONS,

and "the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." At present the kingdom of God cometh not with observation; then it will be visibly displayed. In the meantime Satan, the prince of the power of the air, is enacting spiritual wickedness in heavenly places. He will in due time be cast down, and bound, together with the demons associated with him. His vanquisher, the Lord Jesus, in company with the transfigured saints, will take the enemy's place and reign over the earth. Those who are with Jesus will have much blessed intercourse with their brethren in the flesh, as the Lord Himself had with his disciples during the forty days between his resurrection and ascension. Israel will be the head of the nations, and a kingdom of priests to the nations. The transfigured saints will minister as priests in the heavenly places to those on the earth. The early millennarians erred in that they confounded the heavenly with the earthly glories. If, however, these things are put in their right places—the glory of the heavenly is one, and the glory of the earthly is another—we have the word of God clearly set forth, and in its true proportions. Not merely will Israel be a minister of love and grace to the nations, but the nations will flow up to Jerusalem, and keep the feast of tabernacles—a season of welcome repose after severe unrest. Many of the blessings of the coming age were, in conclusion, beautifully detailed, the view being expressed that death will be the exception, because, like Elijah and Enoch, those who please God will be translated into the heavenly sphere.

THURSDAY EVENING.

The Future: God's Plan Realised.

Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, who presided, remarked upon the truly practical character of the subject. Referring to 2 Peter iii. 17, he said that, if the things of the future were regarded as of importance in Peter's time, how much more should they not influence us in the present day, living as we are on the very eve of the accomplishment of many of them? Besides, no one can be well taught in prophetic truth, and hold the light views about the justice and holiness of God which constitute one of the dangers of the day.

Rev. H. E. Brooke

spoke of Israel's salvation. He deplored tha the subject has not yet laid hold upon the min of the Church of God, and addressed himself t answer some common objections to Jewis restoration and salvation. Many say: "I fin in the Word of God that Christianity is a advance upon Judaism, which has had its day The Lord Jesus Christ fulfilled the shadows o the Jewish religion, magnified the law an made it honourable. He put away sin by th sacrifice of Himself, and brought in a new dispensation—spiritual and not carnal i character, heavenly and not earthly, bring ing us into contact with realities rathe than external shadows such as belonged t the old dispensation. Will the Lord Jesu again have to do with earthly people, an carry on an earthly work? Is not thi going back to the weak and beggarly ele ments?" The answer is furnished in th Word of God, in Eph. i. 10, where we rea that Christ was manifested, that, "in the dis pensation of the fulness of times," God "migh gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are in earth. Here are two spheres, and both are connecte with Christ. The passage does not present contrast between the past and the present dis pensations, but states what is to take place "i the dispensation of the fulness of times." It i a mistake to suppose that Jewish restoratio involves a bringing back the past dispensation It will be a restoration on the ground of con version, as we read in Jer. xxxi.: "The day come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and th house of Judah." The details include: "I wi put my law in their inward parts, and write i in their hearts: I will forgive their iniquity and I will remember their sin no more."

Having contrasted Israel restored and save with the Jewish nation of whom we read i the Old Testament, the speaker pointed ou that, notwithstanding all the wanderings of th people, God has pledged Himself to bless th nation in a sense and degree never realise hitherto. The past history of Israel is a demon stration of the weakness and failure of man i the most advantageous circumstances. A Christ said: "Did not Moses give you the law and yet none of you keepeth the law." Ha Israel failed altogether? No; our Lord was Jew, born under the law. He fulfilled all th obligations which had been accepted at Sina and put away sin by the sacrifice of Himsel The Lord Jesus, the great centre of Israe brought in a dispensation of salvation to Je and Gentile alike, and in this dispensation a who accept Him form the Church of the firs born. Firstborn implies another child. Whe the Church of the firstborn is complete, th Lord will again turn in mercy to Zion. Afte fierce judgments, there will be a remnan which like a tree will blossom and bud and fi the whole world with fruit. "Israel shall b saved of the Lord, with an everlasting salva tion." The Lord will unite the glorifie Church and glorified Israel—the heavenly an the earthly peoples.

Citing Isa. xliv. 3: "I will pour my Spiri upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine of spring," the speaker expressed the belief tha the children of the people of Israel will all b converted to God. This, indeed, must be true seeing that "the nation shall be all righteous —all brought into Christ. Israel's work i evangelising the world having been enlarge upon, Mr. Brooke showed the contrast betwee the future and past of the nation. With regar to the restoration of sacrifices, he pointed ou that nothing in the Epistle to the Hebrews ca bear on the question, as that Epistle wa written to the heavenly, and not the earthly people of the Lord. Putting the distinct state ment of the latter chapters of Ezekiel's pro phecy alongside Ps. l., he threw out the sug gestion that the ritual may only be used at th beginning of the new age, before Israel has made much progress in spiritual knowledge. In conclusion, he dwelt upon the thought that the Church is but the firstfruits of the great harvest yet to come.

Rev. James Neil,

who delivered the final address, spoke first of all of the eightfold blessing set out in Gen. xii. 2, 3, 7. The possession of Palestine as an everlasting possession is united with the blessing to the Church through Christ. The latter promise cannot consistently be received if the former is denied. The impression of some, that the promises made to the fathers of Israel have already been fulfilled, was shown to be unfounded by the citation of passages from the writings of the prophets, including Isa. xi. 11, 12; Jer. xvi. 14, 15, xxx. 10, 11, xxxi. 10, 11. Other objections were also met.

Mr. Neil pointed out that prophecy is to-day being fulfilled before our eyes. The Jews are going back to their land in considerable numbers, and already, with their 50,000, they are in possession of Palestine, being twenty, if not thirty, to one compared with the other civilised people there. The four millions of Russia only wish they could go, and await the opportunity. In conclusion, the speaker rejoiced that the hope of the second coming of Christ, with which the subject is associated, is a power in so many lives; and made an earnest appeal to those of his hearers who had not yet become disciples of the Lord Jesus.

Afternoon Gatherings.

TUESDAY.

Mr. Robert Paton presided over the meeting held this afternoon in the Large Hall.

Rev. J. C. S. Kroenig, of Hull, was set down to speak of the work of the London Society for the Jews, but he dwelt more on Jewish work in general. Christian missions have distilled Judaism, and shown to the Jew how his Rabbinism and his superstitions have clouded the Word of God. As proofs of this, the speaker mentioned that never before had the Jews a Tract Society; never before did the Jewish Rabbi carry on pastoral visitation; and never before had they a Bible society or Sabbath lectures. All this, he pointed out, has been brought about by missionary effort. There is an anxious, eager spirit of inquiry amongst the Jews as to the Messiah. It was impossible to give statistics regarding the work of the Society which he represented. They did not measure results by the number of individual baptisms, but they could point to north, south, east, and west, and say very many had been gathered into the fold of Christ; and not only were these converts working and believing, but everyone seemed determined and anxious to become a missionary to his brethren. He concluded with an earnest appeal for more prayer and increased interest on behalf of Israel.

Rev. D. Brown Spence gave an account of the work of the Church of Scotland Mission among the Jews in Constantinople, where he has been labouring for the last ten years. The Mission has four other centres — Smyrna, Salonica, Beyrout, and Alexandria. Of the 80,000 Jews in Constantinople 70,000 are Spanish, and to these he and his fellow helpers confine their work. He contrasted the condition of the Jews when he joined the mission twenty-two years ago with their present condition, bearing testimony to the wonderful progress the Gospel had made in Constantinople during that period. Twenty-two years ago the Jews generally avoided the missionary; now they are willing and ready to listen to him, get into conversation with him, and ask questions concerning the Messiah. In Constantinople there are hundreds of Jews who are intellectually persuaded of the truth of Christianity, but who will not publicly avow it, and who do not dispute with the missionary, because, as they themselves say: "We believe with you that Jesus of Nazareth is the Messiah, the only Saviour for Jew and Gentile." If that is the case, people may say, there must be great results. If we have through our schools and services, our tract distribution, our daily intercourse with the people broken down the prejudices of the Jews, made them believe in the Gospel of Jesus, and be instrumental in persuading hundreds of them that there is no other Messiah than blessed Jesus, shall we not say we have had results, that God has given us blessings, and every encouragement to continue the work and redouble our energies. Of the Jews whom he has baptized, Mr. Spence saw that with very few exceptions they led consistent Christian lives, and they were setting an example to the rest of their brethren which was telling upon the whole community. He closed with a touching story of a dying Jew, whose last words to the missionary were: "Tell all my brethren never to be ashamed of Jesus."

Rev. John Wilkinson followed with a necessarily brief narrative of his thirty-five years active work among God's ancient people in the United Kingdom, sketching the origin and development of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews, and of the different branches, of which he gave details. God is wonderfully blessing their female agencies. There is now an attendance at a class in the East-end of 170 Jewesses, and the mothers, who used to be terribly prejudiced against the Mission, are now freely entrusting their children to be trained for Christ in the night school. Through the little ones the name of the Messiah has been carried into many homes. The medical mission has been the means of breaking down much prejudice, and at this branch alone during last year, fifty Jews confessed their faith in Jesus as the Messiah; while of the seventy-nine who had been inmates of the Convalescent Home, thirty-five returned home in the same mind. After speaking of the Home for destitute children (of which his daughter is matron), Mr. Wilkinson referred to the work which he so successfully carried out of distributing 100,000 Hebrew New Testaments throughout Europe.

WEDNESDAY.

Dr. Sinclair Paterson, who was chairman of Wednesday afternoon's gathering in the Large Hall, in his introductory speech, observed that God is arousing his people to give attention to the Jews now, more than ever before. He congratulated all who had taken part in the Convention, as being willing workers with God, and he trusted the issue would be better and more earnest work in gathering the outcasts of Israel into one.

The first speaker was Rev. C. A. Schonberger, from Vienna, who was set down to tell of the work of the British Society for the Jews. He maintained that the time has come when it may be asserted that an actual shaking of the dry bones of Israel far and near has commenced, and when the dawn of those glorious things foretold concerning God's ancient people may be looked forward to. He came there from a distant land to tell those who had an interest in the Jew to return thanks to God for what He is doing for Israel, and to take courage; for there is no reason to be disheartened and despondent about results and prospects. The tone and temper of the Jews towards Christianity have vastly changed during the last twenty-five years, and their prejudice against Christ is giving way and losing power every day. The Christ so long forgotten and hidden to the Jews has, in a large measure, become uppermost in the minds of the Jews of the whole Continent. There is a widespread desire among all classes of Jews to receive Christ, and there are many more than we know of being influenced by the Gospel. It has roused them from their former religious indifference. There are numberless Jews who would have come over to the Church of Christ in all parts of the Continent, if the Church of Christ had but manifested the mind of Christ towards them. Mr. Schonberger stated that in Vienna, where he has been stationed for six years, he has no longer to go out to seek his brethren to preach the Gospel to them; they come of their own accord. He rejoiced to say there is a great desire to receive Christ among the young, and Judaism has lost its hold on the minds of many. Many Jews come to them from Galicia, Roumania, and Russia, for the sole purpose of receiving Christ, and they are in earnest about the Messiah. Many are anxious to confess Christ, but they dare not do so, because they are entirely dependent for their livelihood upon the Jews in their connection. Their mission was never more hopeful than at present, and never was there a time when earnest Christians could do more for the furtherance of God's work in Israel. The solution of the mystery of the wandering Jew has begun.

Dr. D. W. Torrance, medical missionary from Tiberias, had a most interesting story to tell. Tiberias has a population of 5000 Jews. The Doctor asserted that it is impossible to conceive a town where more squalor, poverty, and sickness exist. Though, when he went there, he was regarded, as all missionaries are, as a "deceiver," he was soon besieged with patients, notwithstanding great opposition on the part of the Rabbi. The medical aid afforded to sufferers soon swept away prejudice against him, and in a very short time he could go in and out freely among the people. Now there is not a Jewish house in the whole town where he could not enter and sit down as a brother and talk to the Jews. They have nothing ill to say of Jesus, but they have evil to say of Christians. When a Jew is asked why he does not trust in Christ, he replies generally: "Because the Christians I have seen don't attract me." It is a hard thing for a Jew to be a Christian in Tiberias. Not one Jew there avowedly says he is a Christian except his own Scripture-reader. The Jews are entirely dependent upon the Rabbi for their supply of bread, and the moment they are known to have any liking for the missionary, or the New Testament, their allowance is stopped, which means starvation. They had been trying to invent means whereby the Jews might learn to make a livelihood, but the problem is hard to solve. In their perplexity, however, a generous Scotchman came forward and placed a boat on the lake, so that the poor Jews might be taught fishing and thus maintain themselves. The Doctor is convinced that the moment they can earn their bread hundreds of them will come out boldly for Christ. If the Jews could be got to stand forth for Jesus, and endure the persecution they would have to suffer in consequence, it would be a grand triumph for Christianity in Tiberias. The Doctor delighted the audience with a description of the school for Jewesses under his charge, in which there are sixty little girls. Many homes have been changed since these children came to the school. They sang the songs of Jesus and his love to their parents, and it is a common sight to see them teaching the hymns they are taught, to their playmates in the street.

The other speaker was Dr. Robert Kerr, who narrated his experiences among the Jews of Morocco, where he has been labouring as a medical missionary for some time. The inhabitants of Morocco are chiefly Moslems, but there are as many as 200,000—some say 900,000—Jews in the country. In the city of Morocco alone there are between 50,000 and 60,000 Jews. Touching on the charges of immorality so often brought against the Jews, the Doctor declared that those in Morocco are really a credit to their nation. With the exception of one or two, he had never met an immoral Jew; in fact, in the small villages such a being as an immoral person is not known. Like the previous speaker, he found that many of the Jews would come out for Christ, were it not for the persecution they would suffer. Whenever a Jew is known to be interested in the missionary, or if he has in his possession a New Testament, he is liable to be excommunicated, and boycotted in a way not known in this country. Compared with twenty years ago, the attitude of the Jews in Morocco is altogether changed towards the missionaries. They are no longer hostile. They are beginning to believe that there are Christians who have an interest in their welfare; in fact, the speaker has never met one who doubted the sincerity of his purpose. The work in Morocco is of a very hopeful character, and what has been accomplished is only the beginning of greater things God is yet going to do in that land.

THURSDAY.

The meeting which followed the Communion Service on Thursday afternoon had for its chairman a veteran in the Jewish mission field—Rev. Theo. J. Meyer, of the Presbyterian Church, London. In a short but stirring address, the venerable speaker said that when once the morning comes for Israel there will be no night again, and there are indications of the dawn of that day. This Convention, the holding of which would have been impossible ten years ago, and which the Lord has blessed in every respect, is a proof of the breaking of the glorious morning of which he had spoken. It is the precursor of a blessed time coming. It is matter for thankfulness and rejoicing that the moving of the Spirit within Israel is so clearly seen.

Time did not permit of more than one speaker to follow the chairman and the selection fell upon Rev. C. A. Schonberger, of Vienna, who delivered an eloquent address upon the work among the Jews of Germany, Austria, and Russia, giving special prominence to the heroic labours of Messrs. Rabinowitz and Lichtenstein. Germany, Austria, Hungary, Roumania, and Russia contain more than half of all the Jews in existence. In these countries there are three different classes of Jews. First, there are the orthodox Jews, who stick to the traditions of their fathers, and who are undoubtedly the largest class. They hold the very same position towards Christianity and Christ as the Pharisees of old. They regard Jesus as an imposter, and they look upon the churches where the name of Christ is worshipped as unclean places. The next class is the Reformed Jews. They have investigated why the most powerful, influential, and educated nations are called Christian, and why they worship in the name of Christ. The resolution the reformers arrived at was this: Christ may have been a great, good man, a religious genius; but He was neither the Son of God, nor the Saviour of the world. Further, all that is great and good in Christianity is neither original nor new, but old and Jewish. The third class is the reformed Jews with radical tendencies. They regard Moses as a teacher of righteous law, and the Hebrew prophets as poets, orators, and politicians. These parties imagine they have a great spiritual mission to the world, and they speak with hope of the day when the truths of Judaism will be eminently accepted and established on earth.

A great impetus to the cause of Christ among the Jews, said Mr. Schonberger, was the "coming out" of Rabinowitz. The Jews of Russia esteemed him as a patriot, and when such a man all of a sudden came forth and declared Jesus to be the Messiah, they could not but think there was something real in Christianity, and a spirit of inquiry was aroused. The distribution of the New Testaments sent by Mr. Wilkinson would never have been carried out as it had been, had it not been for Rabinowitz. It was dangerous sometimes in Russia to offer a New Testament to a Jew; but if Rabinowitz was by the distributor there was no need for fear. His influence and popularity are great. These two dauntless witnesses for Christ—Rabinowitz and Lichtenstein—are, by the success of their work, showing that a happier time is drawing near for God's ancient people. The Jews are coming to Christ, and in a way which will soon bring about a revival all over the world. Rabinowitz is still proclaiming with great power and unabated zeal that Jesus is the Christ, the Messiah of Israel, as well as the Saviour of the world. The Jews still flock to hear him, and his influence is still far-reaching. His printed sermons and pamphlets are widely read, and he remains a powerful instrument in the hand of the Lord for the evangelisation of Russia. As illustrating the influence of Rabinowitz and his writings, the speaker read a letter he had received from a Jew in a Russian town, which contained the following:—"About a year ago there came here a man (a converted Jew). A few of us artisans formed his acquaintance; but soon we began to hate him. Why? Because every time we came together there was nothing else in his mouth but Jesus, Jesus; and not only so, but he continually recited to us the sermons of Rabinowitz. We became very angry with him; yet, in spite of myself, I felt drawn to him, because I found such a quiet, nice man was not to be found in the whole place. When anyone insults him, he says 'Thank you,' and the more his fellow workpeople hate him, the more love he shows to them. In a word, we cannot help now loving him greatly. Now we often go to his lodgings and listen to him, while he shows us there is nothing better in the whole world for us to read than the New Testament, and that we ought to throw away all the Rabbinical books. Therefore, we beg of you, and hope you will not refuse, to send us four New Testaments in Gargon Hebrew and some tracts."

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Schonberger said: What we need for our Mission, which is becoming more important every day, is, first, faith in the power of the Gospel, and its efficiency for the Jews. Our second need is labourers. We want God-ordained men—men whom God has raised and filled with his Spirit. If they are not so qualified, they will do more harm than good. We also need a more adequate occupation of the mission field. We want the evangelical churches everywhere to take to heart the winning of Israel to God. There would be no more successful mission than that to the Jews in the world, if the churches throughout the land had the mind of Christ towards them.

EVANGELISTIC MISSION.

A thankful and hopeful spirit animated the workers assembled at Kilburn Hall on Friday night. Hearty praise was given to God for the blessing on summer tent and open-air work; and fervent prayer was made in view of the coming winter's work.

Mr. David Newell's review of his work in the villages round Banbury was encouraging. Meetings in tents, and, by invitation, in chapels and schoolrooms, with regular visiting of the villagers in their homes, have resulted in much good. Mr. Newton Jones spoke of another branch of the mission work, in service among children, at seaside places and elsewhere. There seemed to be abundant blessing among the children at Yarmouth, the converts giving very clear answers to test questions. At Broadstairs, seventy persons attended the last Bible-reading, and 300 came to a farewell meeting. There was much blessing in Mr. Summer's church at Epsom. Mr. Jones asked prayer for an approaching week's mission at Carshalton.

BIBLE PROMISES.—A correspondent writes to say that, having both heard and read that the Bible contains 32,000 promises, she has carefully searched from Genesis to Revelation, with the result that only 7031 have been found, reckoning implied, as well as actual, promises.

JEHOVAH IN THE BOOK OF ESTHER.

It has often been pointed out that though God's providence is so plainly seen in the story of Esther, his name nowhere occurs in the book. As the power of Persia was at the time supreme at Jerusalem, and, indeed, throughout Asia, the success of Haman's wicked plot would not merely have involved the destruction of the Jewish people, but the blotting out of all testimony for the true God upon the earth. The threatened evil was providentially averted, and the witnessing nation preserved in a wonderful manner. That Mordecai's trust in the faithfulness of Israel's God was greater than his fear of the unalterable Persian decree is evident from his words to Esther: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" (Esth. iv. 14).

Doubtless there were good reasons for the omission of the name of God from the book, although none existed for several distinct references to the religious observances of his people. In the course of an address on "God's Purpose in Israel," at Mildmay Conference, last week, Rev. Dr. Bullinger showed that the silences of God's Word are instructive, as well as the statements. The point of Haman's attack on the Jews was: "Their laws are diverse from all people; neither keep they the king's laws" (Esth. iii. 8). The law and honour of Jehovah are, in fact, the centre of the entire history. Having pointed out that some portions of Old Testament Scripture have an acrostic form, remarkable order of structural arrangement being observed, Dr. Bullinger gave details of the discovery of the name of Jehovah (YHVH) four times in acrostic form in the book of Esther. On ancient manuscripts the source of the secret influences at work in the marvellous story is indicated by the acrostic letters being written in larger and more prominent form; and, although the significance of this has been duly noted by the Jews from early times, scholars in general do not seem to have had their attention drawn to the very interesting sequences of the most mysterious letters of the Hebrew alphabet. There are no other acrostics in the book, and these are in remarkable order, twice spelt by initial letters, and twice by finals. In the former case the words are connected with God's own people, and indicate his ruling initiative; in the latter case Gentiles speak things which God effectually overrules. Acrostics based on initial letters are found in chap. v. 5 (the Hebrew words rendered, "Let the king and Haman come this day"), and vii. 7 ("that evil was determined against him"); the cases in which final letters form the acrostic are: chap. i. 20 ("all the wives shall give"), and v. 13 ("this availeth me nothing"). Dr. Bullinger, in his address, showed that the whole history turns upon these points: "In them Jehovah is seen ruling and over-ruling, in the palace of Shushan. His hand is observed in all the events of the history, and his name is emblazoned by the Holy Spirit in the Scriptures of truth." For full details, presented with important teaching beautifully expressed, we refer our readers to Dr. Bullinger's pamphlet, entitled, "The Name of Jehovah in the Book of Esther," to be had from the office of the Trinitarian Bible Society, 7, St. Paul's-churchyard, E.C. (3d., post free).

DR. ANDREW BONAR.—We desire to correct an error which occurred in the report of Dr. Bonar's address at Glasgow Convention, in our last issue. Dr. Bonar was not relating his own experience as having been led into perfect peace through the hymn, "I hear the words of love," &c., but that of a young man who, at the funeral of Dr. Horatius Bonar (who wrote the hymn), gave his testimony that the hymn had been so blessed to him.

Dr. GRATTAN GUINNESS in AMERICA

In the current issue of Regions Beyond, Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness gives a deeply interesting account of the work of her husband in America, since he left England in January last. What was undertaken as a brief visit to Boston on special Congo Mission business, will, it now seems, be a tour through the United States, prolonged to the end of the year. In April, Dr. Guinness visited many of the Southern States, and most of the coloured colleges and training schools, addressing thousands of students and their professors on the great mission fields of Africa. Between thirty and forty missionaries, men and women, were found, as a result, for the Dark Continent. Arrangements were also made for the co-operation of about twelve of these colleges in the training of young men and women for the mission stations in Africa, as evangelists for their people. The month of May was spent in Boston and Philadelphia, and through the meetings in the latter place nine Baptist Churches promised the support of ten missionaries on the Congo.

Mrs. Guinness writes: "For the last four months Dr. Guinness has been labouring in Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Dakota, and Wisconsin, attending Conventions of the State Y.M.C.A.'s, camp meetings, and other gatherings, and having with him all the time the dear Congo youth who spent a year with us at Harley House some time since, now a young man. Intervals between meetings and journeys have been filled with Congo translation work; Acts, Romans, and the First Epistle of John having been prepared thus for the use of the young native Churches on the Congo. But the most important and permanent result of these journeyings—a result in which we are sure our friends will rejoice with us—is that have, in the Providence of God, sprung into existence—Homes destined, we trust, to exceed in usefulness Harley House, Doric Lodge, and Hulme Cliff College. They are to be similar in aim and in character to our own—undenominational, broadly evangelical, practical, spiritual, humble, and unworldly, and consecrated to the benefit of "The Regions Beyond."

THREE NEW MISSIONARY TRAINING HOMES

"Dr. Guinness felt that many an additional young servant of Christ might be secured for the foreign field, and prepared for it by means of such Training Homes, and some wise and experienced friends of missions were led to share his views, and to take practical steps to carry them into effect. The project has become a reality, and the colleges are starting this week."

The first of these institutions is in Boston, and Dr. Gordon will be its director. The second is in Kansas city; and the third, with Dr. Mabie as principal, in Minneapolis.

Dr. Guinness writes: "Kansas is a marvel! Roomy, bright, sunny, Christian, with no drink traffic, no drunkards, no drunkards' wives, no drunkards' children, empty gaols, and no pauperism. They are giving me a warm Christian welcome. We are having wonderfully good times, quite a missionary interest is being excited, and many noble volunteers for Africa are coming forward. I have which is to be:—(1) Pioneer, to prepare the way into the field, and to start churches and Y.M.C.A.'s that are doing nothing, in mission work. (2) Western, for these great States west of the Mississippi, with Kansas city as their centre. (3) A young men's movement especially (though women may join). (4) Undenominational and evangelical. (5) Self-extending and self-supporting; that is, each member promises, first, to pray for the Mission; secondly, to give to its support; and thirdly, to secure another member. It is arranged that a mission band in each town will meet periodically, unite in prayer and conference, co-operate in the selection of officers, in the circulating of intelligence, in the choice of their foreign representatives, as well as their support; and they agree to follow the general guidance of officers representing the Society as a whole. Already we have many branches, which have each their secretary and treasurer. The Mission has a president, and I am honorary director of the foreign department, and shall thus be able to guide its work in Africa." We sincerely trust that Dr. Guinness's future movements in the United States will be blessed in like manner and degree as his past exertions manifestly have been.

FORMED A SOUDAN MISSION,

VALEDICTORY TO MISSIONARIES.

On Thursday week farewell was said to no fewer than seventy-four missionaries, shortly to proceed, some not for the first time, to various spheres of work. After communion service at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, a public meeting was held in St. James's Hall. Sir T. Fowell Buxton presided, and in some timely remarks emphasised the fact that, from his personal knowledge of the mission field, the lot of the worker is neither so safe or so easy as it has become the fashion to suppose.

The general instructions of the committee were read by Rev. C. C. Fenn. The point dwelt upon was the feeling which should be cherished, and the conduct shown towards native converts, who would surround the new missionary, going to old fields, and would be the proper instruments for propagating the Gospel among their fellow-countrymen. Love was to be the basis. At first the new comer would imagine such advice superfluous; but differences between himself and them would speedily appear, whether they arose from racial distinctions, from the remains of heathenism, even in the converts and children of converts, or from their inferior intellectual training. They were cautioned not to assume that differences between themselves and native converts implied superiority on their side. In particular the danger of mistaking Oriental politeness for personal affection, and of disappointment when the truth became manifest, was pointed out; and the untruthfulness and the absence of a moral atmosphere among native converts were insisted on. After showing that each race probably had its strong as well as its weak points, the committee recommended the missionaries to bring the difficulties which would arise out of the differences described to Christ Himself, as well as to keep in close communion with Him for their own personal holiness, and to follow up their prayers by deeds. Firmness where necessary, but tempered with love, was urged upon them, and the spirit not of teachers but of fellow learners in the Scriptures. The importance of example in emphasising their endeavours to check such sins as indolence, self-indulgence, and covetousness was also pointed out. The instructions concluded with words of encouragement, much needed after the searching description of the duties of only one department which had gone before.

Besides the seventy-four missionaries, the party included four ladies engaged to be married to men already in the field. Several of the number delivered brief addresses. Dr. Hodges, Bishop-designate of Travancore and Cochin, was the first to speak, and was followed by Rev. J. Barton, of Cambridge, who is returning for a limited period, after thirteen years at home, to strengthen the failing hands of the aged Bishop Sargent. The countries to be reinforced include Sierra Leone, Yoruba, and East Africa; North India, Punjaub, and Sindh; South and West India, Travancore, and Ceylon; China and Japan. About half the number of workers are ladies. Nearly all brought forward passages of Scripture which they had found encouraging, and desired the prayers of the audience on their behalf. Archdeacon Richardson having commended the missionaries to the God of all grace and wisdom, Rev. A. E. Barnes-Lawrence delivered an impressive address, in which he likened the out-going workers to that other seventy whom the Lord sent "into those cities and villages into which He Himself would come."

GOSPEL TENT AND BIBLE CARRIAGE.

We have concluded our sixteenth summer's Gospel tent campaign, having had seven tents of various sizes in use during the season. In each of them God has given testimony to the word of his grace; in one alone over forty professed to have passed from death unto life.

One of our tents has been doing a good work in several needy parts of South Wales, especially among the iron and steel workers in the neighbourhood of Pontymoile. A large tent was erected at St. Philip's, a very populous part of Bristol. It was well attended every night by the very class of persons so difficult to reach, and many were the trophies of redeeming love. The same may be reported of Long-Ashton, Westbury-on-Trym, Stonehouse, and Weston-super-Mare.

At the latter place, in addition to the blessing manifest at the time, we were greatly cheered by receiving several letters from those who had been visiting this fashionable seaside resort, after their return; some gratefully acknowledging their conversion, and others their restoration to the joy of God's salvation, as the result of attending the tent services. The morning addresses to believers were greatly appreciated, and in this department Mr. Thomas Newberry again rendered most valuable assistance. We closed our twelve weeks of happy fruitful labours on September 23, when 200 friends sat down to a farewell tea under canvass, after which practical and seasonable addresses were delivered to the converts and others by General Rice and Mr. Douglas Russell.

Our "John Bunyan Bible Carriage" has been much owned of God in its journeyings through Somerset and Devon. Since we sent it forth on its errand of love and mercy in May last, the Gospel has been proclaimed from its platform nightly to thousands of attentive listeners by the two evangelists who live and sleep in the van. Precious seed has thus been widely scattered, and during eighteen weeks the sum of £150 has been taken from the sale of Bibles, Testaments, and Gospel books.

Our smaller Bible and Book Van, drawn by a cob, has likewise been doing a much-needed work in the villages within a radius of ten miles of Bristol, and since January £250 worth of Gospel literature has been disposed of, in addition to many thousands of books and tracts given away. Jas. A. Vicary.

Ebenezer House, Dalrymple-road, Bristol.

YOUNG WOMEN AND TEMPERANCE WORK.—A special total abstinence meeting for young women is to be held in Exeter Hall on October 23. Canons Wilberforce and Barker, Mrs. Temple (wife of the Bishop of London), and Sir Philip Cunliffe Owen, are to speak.

SOCIAL PURITY ALLIANCE.—Sir,—Permit me to thank you for your kindly notice of our Society. There is one other way in which you may most usefully help our work—that is, by asking your readers to join in earnest prayer for such young men as have fallen into sin, but are anxious to escape from its bondage. I am frequently in receipt of such letters as the following:—"I see it advertised that anyone wanting to strengthen their resolves on Purity are to apply to you. God knows my resolves are well meant; but—that's the word, 'but'—what am I to do? I am already a Christian, but——" Such a backslider would, doubtless, be able to fight his temptations more successfully if he knew that a few earnest Christians were uniting in prayer for him.—Yours faithfully. C. P. Edwards.

7, Victoria-street, Westminster, S.W.

Personalia.

Richard Weaver, we regret to learn, is suffering severely from bronchitis. He is confined to his room, and it is not expected that he will be able to undertake any evangelistic engagements during the coming winter. His address is Fallibroome, near Macclesfield.

Mr. A. H. Baynes, secretary of the Baptist Missionary Society, sailed from Southampton for India on Friday last, in the Kaisar-i-Hind. He expects to be away about seven months, the purpose of his visit being to make personal inquiry into the state and needs of the mission work in India, and to encourage the workers.

Rev. Thomas Spurgeon is now on his way to England. Mr. William Birch, jun., who for some years preached to large audiences at the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, is on his way to New Zealand. It is hoped that he may be able to undertake the ministry at Auckland for a short time, so as to render an immediate settlement in the pastorate there unnecessary, and that Mr. T. Spurgeon's health may be so restored that he may be able to return to his work.

Rev. Dr. Fulton received a highly enthusiastic welcome from an immense audience in the Music-hall, Boston, U.S., on the occasion of his first lecture after his return from Europe. His lecture powerfully set forth the need that there is among Roman Catholics everywhere for enlightenment in the saving and sanctifying truths of the Gospel. One of Dr. Fulton's lectures was to be on "Romanism in Rome," based on personal observation during his recent visit.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Bishop of Bedford has issued an appeal for a training college for lay workers, where men will be admitted either as residents or to attend evening classes, to be specially instructed in the Bible, and to be fitted for the duties of lay workers.

BAPTIST.

On Tuesday, last week, Hampden Chapel, South Hackney (Rev. J. Hillman, pastor), was re-opened after renovation. Rev. Archibald Brown preached in the afternoon and the evening to large congregations.

Miss Gange, a daughter of Rev. E. G. Gange, has been bidden an affectionate farewell by the congregation of Broadmead Chapel, Bristol, previous to her leaving for India, to engage in work as a zenana missionary.

Eight students left Regent's-park College at the end of last session, and of that number one has been accepted by the Baptist Missionary Society for work in Italy; another has given himself as a missionary for India, and two others have been appointed to the Congo Mission.

At a meeting of the Baptist Forward Movement, at the house of Mr. W. R. Rickett, at Hampstead, on Saturday evening, a few gentlemen subscribed among them £2200 towards the £5000 required to establish the "Forward Movement" at John-street Chapel, Bedford-row, on a firm footing.

The ninth anniversary of Rev. H. E. Stone's settlement at the Tabernacle, Nottingham, was celebrated last week. Among the speakers was Rev. C. Lea Wilson, vicar of Old Radford, who paid a high tribute to Mr. Stone's work. Advance in all departments was reported, the needs of village churches being specially considered.

A new Baptist Chapel, in the quiet and old-fashioned village of Ringland, Norwich, was lately opened. This has been much needed, there having been a great lack of accommodation for the people to attend the means of grace. The Sheriff of Norwich (Mr. George White) has taken an earnest interest in the work, and has often preached in the village in an old Methodist Chapel, and in the open air, before the present chapel was erected.

Rev. C. H. Spurgeon preached in the Church at West Croydon, of which his brother (Rev. J. A. Spurgeon) is pastor, on behalf of the Stockwell Orphanage, a few days ago. On the platform was his aged father (Rev. J. Spurgeon). The subject was "Christ moved with compassion." "Christ," said Mr. Spurgeon, "said 'Feed my lambs,' but when I see people putting the Gospel up so high on a long pole, I think they have understood Christ to say 'Feed my giraffes.'"

Rev. F. C. Spurr, of Cardiff, has made an arrangement with the Church of which he is pastor to devote certain days in each month to evangelistic work, and holding meetings for the development of spiritual life. His services will be freely given, but those who invite him will be expected to pay travelling expenses. Mr. Spurr intends to devote his energies to mission preaching in connection with evangelical churches, as distinct from work in mission halls.

CONGREGATIONAL.

A new mission-hall has been opened at South-park in connection with the Congregational Church at Reigate. An evangelist has been appointed to take charge of the work.

Rev. Dr. Parker resumed his ministry at the City Temple, after nearly two months' holiday, on Sunday week, when he also entered upon the twenty-first year of his pastorate in London.

The Welsh Church formerly worshipping at Fetter-lane has recently purchased the Welsh Tabernacle, King's-cross, of the London Congregational Union, and has thoroughly renovated and greatly improved it, so that it is now considered to be the best Welsh chapel in the Metropolis. Special opening services were held last week, when Revs. Dr. Thomas, of Liverpool, and Dr. Herber Evans, of Carnarvon, preached to the largest Welsh congregations ever seen in London.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

English Friends are thus being stirred up by their American brethren, whose services are richly blessed to the fatherland.

Samuel Morris, and companion, of Philadelphia, who have returned from Denmark, will find an open door for the Master's work.

John T. Dorland, of Canada, is again on this side, and will receive a cordial welcome everywhere, especially among young men.

American Yearly Meetings are now in full swing, and the accounts of their growth, power, and harmony are truly encouraging.

When John Henry Douglas consented to continue in charge of Iowa mission work, extraordinary gratitude ensued—the joy seemed inexpressible.

Samuel A. Purdie is on leave from Mexico. And Ruth Rodgers, a converted Jewess, is preaching the Gospel in Pasadena Quarterly Meeting.

America owes untold blessing to English Quakerism, and her sons and daughters, during recent years, have paid back not a little to their kindred on this side the sea.

Iowa has just endorsed the concern of Addison White to travel in London, Dublin, and Norway Yearly Meetings. While Samuel Lloyd and wife (Kansas) have been rendering splendid services in Ireland.

While India, China, Madagascar, Japan, Turkey, Syria, and other countries, strain the resources of our foreign mission committees, six new missionaries are expected to enter Indian service before the close of the year.

The Home Mission Committee in London is trying to meet the needs of small and weak meetings over the country, and to preach the Gospel to the perishing multitudes. Its representatives are looking forward to an active winter's campaign against sin.

METHODIST.

Arrangements are in progress for holding on a large scale, at City-road Chapel, early in December, a convention for the deepening of spiritual life; it is to be conducted by Revs. Hugh Price Hughes and Mark Guy Pearse, and other agents of the London Wesleyan Mission.

The new centre opened last spring by the West London Wesleyan Mission, Cleveland Hall, formerly the headquarters of West-end Secularism, and subsequently a centre of deadly vice, is in full work. The model coffee bar, the rapidly growing Sunday-school, the evangelistic services, the numerous conversions, and the multiplying society classes, all indicate a vigorous and hopeful life.

The recently issued Minutes of the Annual Conferences show that at the present time the Wesleyan body has 3456 ministers; the Primitive Methodists, 1179; the United Methodist Free Churches, 441; the New Connexion Methodists, 241; and the Bible Christians, 212; or a total of 5629 ministers and 1,092,662 members whose names are enrolled in class-books. The number of adherents of the Methodist body is estimated at four times that of the class-members. The Sunday-schools number 12,819 with 235,444 teachers and 1,678,305 scholars.

The members of the Methodist New Connexion Ministers' Evangelistic Union met in conference at Hanley from Thursday to Saturday, Sept. 26 to 28, for the increase of spiritual life and fuller equipment for their ministerial work. The promotion of earnest Christianity, the more frequent use of evangelistic methods, an experimental acquaintance with Scriptural holiness, and more devoted aggressive work in the churches, are the primary objects of the union. Ninety-three ministers—more than half the entire working force of the New Connexion—have entered into membership, and a large proportion of these took part in the gatherings.

Rev. G. D. Wharam, vicar of the parish, attended the annual meeting of the Wesleyan Band of Hope at Woodhouse Carr, Leeds, on Tuesday, September 25, and delivered an earnest address under the following heads:—"Aim High, Fight Shy, Keep Nigh." He expressed his pleasure at being present at a Methodist meeting, and, after dealing in a trenchant manner with the drinking habits and the gambling evils of our land, exhorted all to keep nigh the blessed Saviour who would be the helper of all in times of need. On the previous Sunday Mr. Wharam united with the Congregational and Primitive Methodist ministers, as well as representatives of the Society of Friends and the Wesleyans, in holding an evangelistic service in the yard of the Board School, when the love of God to lost humanity was proclaimed to a large crowd of people.

PRESBYTERIAN.

A new church has been opened at Black Callerton, Westmoreland. The church was opened under the auspices of the church at Stamfordham, and forms a new departure in home mission work, the idea being to place cheap buildings in needy spheres.

The Evangelisation Committee of the Presbytery of London (North) closed their open-air services for the season on Sunday week by a united service, at the band stand, Regent's-park. Mr. Hugh M. Matheson presided. Addresses were delivered by Rev. D. M. Connan, Kentish-town; Rev. D. Sillars, Haverstock-hill; Rev. John McNeill, Regent-square; and Rev. Z. B. Woffendale, Somers Town.

The "Great Joy" mission, conducted by Rev. Z. B. Woffendale, assisted by Rev. William Holt, of Birmingham, in Somers Town Presbyterian Church, Ossulston-street, N.W., from Sept. 29 to Oct. 6, has been richly blessed of God in the results. "Many souls," writes a correspondent, "professed decision for Christ, and each night believers were quickened and stimulated for work and service. Mr. Holt's simple, but lucid, touching, and powerful preaching of the Gospel has caused many to rejoice with great joy in the salvation of God."

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A branch of the Y.M.C.A. has been established at Banbridge on "the Paris basis" of a converted membership, and promises to be a great blessing to the town and neighbourhood.

The Methodists are about to erect a new chapel at Ballydehob, co. Cork, a locality populated to a very great extent by Romanists. The chapel is to be a memorial of Rev. J. Powell, a much-esteemed minister.

Last Saturday was observed as a day of prayer for the Belfast Methodist Mission. A house-to-house canvass has been made, and every day is revealing more and more clearly the crying necessity that exists for the work of this Mission.

A most encouraging meeting for the deepening of the spiritual life has been held under the auspices of the Society of Friends at Lisburn. Among the speakers were Mrs. Richardson, of Moyallon, and Rev. R. C. Johnson, of the Belfast City Mission.

During the past week a successful series of evangelistic services was conducted in Albert-street Presbyterian Church, Belfast, by Dr. Moxey, of Edinburgh, and a similar series was conducted by Rev. Mr. Rodgers, of England, in Christ's Church, Lisburn.

The annual meetings of the southern branches of the Irish Temperance League are now being held in Waterford, Mallow, Cork, Limerick, Bantry, and other towns in the south and west of Ireland. Mr. Wm. Bingham, of the United Kingdom Alliance, and others, have been addressing the meetings.

A largely attended meeting was held in Grange Corner Baptist Chapel, co. Antrim, on Tuesday, last week, to take leave of Mr. W. F. Wilkinson, who is going to labour on the Congo, in connection with the Baptist Missionary Society. The pastor, Rev. H. Phillips, presided. An earnest missionary spirit pervaded the meeting.

Since its disestablishment the Protestant Episcopal Church in Ireland has sustained a great falling off in the number of its ministers; there are at the present time only 1590, as compared with 2174 in 1869. This is to some extent accounted for by the fact that some districts have proved to be too poor to maintain an unendowed ministry.

A very successful meeting on behalf of the Bible and Colportage Society of Ireland was held last week in the Christian Union Buildings, Dublin, and a similar meeting was held at Bangor, co. Down. At both appropriate addresses were delivered by various speakers as to the aims and operations of this Society, which is carrying on a successful work in different parts of Ireland.

Rev. James Stewart, Methodist evangelist, has just closed an interesting series of Gospel meetings at Newry, and during the past fortnight Mr. George Clarke has been conducting similar services in the first Presbyterian Church, Armagh, which was crowded night after night with an attentive audience. In each case there was much blessing, and several professed to have decided for the Lord.

The interest taken in missions at the present day may be inferred from the fact that in the Ladies' School, Princess-gardens, Belfast, of which Miss Hunter is the principal, a Girls' Missionary Society has been formed, and a sale of work held, which has amounted to £54 10s. This sum has been divided among various missionary societies, and the example thus set is worthy of being copied by other schools and seminaries of learning.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. Prebendary Barnes, late vicar of Heavitree, Exeter.—Mr. James Holloway, a prominent member of the Wesleyan Church at Clapham, London.—Rev. John Vine, late pastor of the Congregational churches of Hoddesdon and Brentford, and formerly a missionary in the West Indies for some years in connection with the London Missionary Society.—Dr. A. H. Webster, medical missionary of the American Board at Benguella, West Africa.

CULTIVATION OF THE DEVOUT LIFE.—The meetings for ministers, noted in our last issue, during the autumn and winter for mutual help in the cultivation of the devout life will be held at the Y.M.C.A., 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C., on Fridays, at 3 p.m. The first meeting will be on Friday, October 18.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 13.—2 Samuel III.

THIS chapter narrates the growth of David's cause. He waxed stronger and stronger (1), sons were born to him (2—5), Abner forsook the house of Saul and revolted to David (6—13), Michal was restored (13—15), and David's sincere grief over Abner's death only increased his hold upon the people (33—38). By the strangest circumstances and the most unlikely persons, God can advance the cause of his anointed.

David's progress meant blessing to the kingdom. When divided against itself (1) there was not only distress, but no strength to resist, much less overcome, their enemies. True picture of a divided heart, in which the rule of Christ is only partially acknowledged. Unbroken peace and constant triumph require that the government be fully upon his shoulder (Isa. ix. 6, 7). The people had evidently felt the distress arising from their divided condition (17), and had recognised the value of David as a leader. And every half-hearted Christian has felt similar distress, and has longed for full surrender. Abner's call to decision is useful to such: "Now, then, do it," and the argument he used is not less applicable (18).

The murder of Abner was clearly contrary to David's mind (22—39). Joab, though a skilful captain, is already beginning to trouble David. For such an act of treachery the death of Asahel was no justification. Asahel had died, not by Abner's wish, but as the result of his own rashness. Jealousy was perhaps Joab's only motive. He was evidently a fierce, cruel, unscrupulous, and treacherous man, and troubled David more than he helped him (39). Yet the death of Abner was better for David's cause than his life would have been. God makes even the crimes of wicked men to work for the advancement of his own purpose.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 14.—2 Samuel IV.

Here is a further record of treachery (1—8). The death of Abner rendered the cause of Ishbosheth hopeless. Two "captains of the band" (2), of whom we have heard nothing before, expose themselves to lasting shame by this dark deed of murder. Their act appears the more despicable and guilty from their position as captains, the weakness of Ishbosheth, the manner in which they performed it, and their hope that David would reward them for their treachery.

David's method of rewarding them was undoubtedly right, and was greatly to his credit (9—12). His trust is in "the living God, who has redeemed him" (9), so that he does not need such deeds of wickedness to assist his cause. Unwavering confidence in God is the best preventive of sin. The man of faith can neither do wrong, nor allow others to do it, for his advantage.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15.—2 Samuel V.

We have here—(1) The kingdom united under David (1—3); not by an aggressive movement on the part of David, but by the willing surrender of the people. Patient waiting has produced its promised blessing (Isa. xl. 31). The reasons for acknowledging him king may be equally urged for our full surrender to Jesus. (1) Kinship; (2) previous display of military skill; (3) God's promise concerning him (1—2). Let us remember the claims of Jesus, and again crown Him King of our lives. Not partially this time, but altogether and only his. This was the beginning of joy and prosperity to the nation so long distressed; and similar surrender will begin for us similar joy and blessing. He can deliver those who are fully his (Matt. i. 21).

(2) The new capital (6—10).—Jerusalem, though destined to such a remarkable history, has not been prominent before now (see Josh. xviii. 28; Jud. i. 8). The Jebusites were in possession of it. Its central position made it a suitable capital for David's kingdom. It was surrounded on three sides by deep ravines, which made it almost impregnable. So confident were the Jebusites that they said, "The blind and the lame would be sufficient to defend their city." It was a bold enterprise; but David's men, led by the intrepid Joab (1 Chron. xi. 6), defeated the Jebusites, and Jerusalem became the "city of David," and "Zion" (7). What a glorious history it has had since then, and how much more glorious the history that awaits it!

(3) The Philistines repulsed (17—25).—The prosperity of David's kingdom, already manifest, excites the fears of their old enemies. Twice, therefore, they gathered their whole force against David in the valley of Rephaim (18, 22). By giving Jesus his rightful position as King, we do not get free from conflict; but every attack of the enemy only gives opportunity for more conspicuous victory. Yet note how the victory is won. David did not trust in the strength of his new fortress, nor to the united condition of his people, but he "inquired of the Lord" (19). It is only as the Lord directs that his people are led in triumph. And after the first victory David was equally dependent upon God for the second (23). His previous experience does not make him confident in himself. He again accepted God's plans, though quite different from those adopted before. Comp. 23, 24 with 19. This is the first lesson that God's kings have to learn. It was in this Saul failed; but David, besides depending upon God for counsel, gave God the praise for his victory (20). Don't lose the lesson of verse 25—"David did so, as the Lord had commanded him, and smote the Philistines." Enemies are sure to be vanquished as we do what the Lord commands.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16.—2 Samuel VI.

Of the ark of God we have heard nothing since the Philistines sent it away to Kirjath-jearim (1 Sam. vii. 1, 2). The nation must have been in a sad state of religious decline to allow the symbol of God's presence to be so long neglected. The Tabernacle appears to have remained at Gibeon for some time after this (1 Chron. xvi. 39, 40). David's object in getting the ark to Jerusalem was to make that city the religious as well as the political centre of the nation. This chapter tells the interesting story of the removal of the ark.

A right thing done in a wrong way (1—10).—There is a mystery about this story, until it is carefully examined. It appears as though God were opposing David's purpose, and preventing its success; while He only opposed the manner in which David acted. The first mistake, and the cause of all the rest, was David's neglecting to inquire of the Lord. He consulted with his chosen men (1), but not with God. It is a mistake to lean to our own understanding in doing God's work. Neither did David consult God's word as to how the ark was to be removed. Did he think that any way of honouring the ark would be approved by God? The method adopted by the Philistines (1 Sam. vi. 7) was imitated by David. He may have judged it a very seemly and decorous way of accomplishing his purpose; but his judgment counts for nothing, when God has given explicit directions (Num. vii. 9). The fateful journey commenced with every sign of religious enthusiasm (5). But the oxen stumbled, the ark seemed to be in dauger, and Uzzah irreverently put forth his hand and took hold of it, and was smitten that he died (6, 7). Comp. 1 Sam. vi. 19, 20 with Num. iv. 15, 20). It was a solemn and needful warning, and, though at first David was only "displeased" (8) and fearful (9), it saved him from repeating his former mistake.

The second attempt was made three months later (11). David in the meantime made due preparation to receive the ark (1 Chron. xv. 1, xvi. 1); and carefully consulted God's word as to how it should be removed (1 Chron. xv. 12—15). There was not less enthusiasm and gladness (14, 15); but this time God's directions were implicitly obeyed, and the enterprise was crowned with success (17).

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17.—2 Samuel VII.

This is a beautiful chapter, full of significant teaching. Note (1) David's desire (1—3).—His kingdom had rest (1); and he now dwelt in a house of cedar (2); but he owed his prosperity to God, and gratitude prompted him to make some return. Could he do better than seek to pay greater honour to the ark of God? Why should that continue to dwell in curtains? How different he was from those whom Haggai reproved (Hag. i. 4). Prosperity tests the sincerity of a man's devotion to God. It is not all men that can carry a full cup with a steady hand. While David maintains this spirit his continued prosperity is sure.

(2) The Lord's reply (4—17).—David's intention was good (1 Kings viii. 8); but he was not the man and that was not the time to build the Temple. The kingdom had not perfect rest; the sword could not yet be laid aside for the trowel. "Better a tent of God's appointing than a temple of his own inventing."—Henry. God lays special emphasis upon the grace with which He had acted towards the Israelites in the wilderness (6, 7), and towards David (8, 9). He had "walked" with them in a tent, asking for no better habitation, sharing their experiences, defeating their enemies, and had now made David great. But if David's desire may not be fulfilled, God is not unmindful of the gratitude he has manifested, "the Lord will make thee an house" (11). It is to the grateful heart that God ever gives more. The promise made to David reaches beyond Solomon (12—16). The fulfilment began in him (1 Kings viii. 15—20), but is only completed in Christ (Luke i. 31—33).

(3) David's communion with God (18—29).—These verses contain thanksgiving (18—21), praise (22—24), and prayer (25—29). His communion was of the most restful and intimate character. "He sat before the Lord" (18). There is perfect unwavering confidence, and complete satisfaction. God's message to him had given such a revelation of Himself that David rested before Him.

His thanksgiving recognised the magnitude of God's goodness in having done so much, and promised so much more; his own littleness; and that his goodness had no parallel (18—21). His words of praise are for the greatness of God as evidenced in the previous history of his people (22—24). The familiarity that sits before God does not mean irreverence. Increased blessing only humbles David the more. His prayer (25—29) is from the heart (27); inspired by the promise of God (28); and the answer is expected because of the faithfulness of God (25, 29). True prayer must always be of that character. He who listens to the word of God will find in his heart to ask such things as would otherwise never enter his mind (1 Cor. ii. 9, 10).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18.—2 Samuel VIII.

In this chapter David appears again as the man of war, actively and successfully using the sword for extending the area of his kingdom. He smote the Philistines (1). "Metheg-ammah"—margin bridle of Ammah—or, mother city. 1 Chron. xviii. 1 probably gives its meaning. The Moabites (2). The Jews suggest, as the reason for this, that the Moabites had proved treacherous, and had slain David's parents. Whatever the cause, Balaam's prophecy is now fulfilled (Numb. xxiv. 17). And the Syrians, first in Zobah, north-east of Damascus (3, 4); then in Damascus (5, 6). The secret of his constant victory was—"the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went" (6); and this is repeated (14). David recognised it by dedicating to God the spoils of the nations he defeated, and the presents sent him by the king of Hamath (9—12).

While extending his dominions abroad, he was not neglectful of the kingdom at home. By executing just judgment (15); and, by appointing competent officers (16—18), he strengthened his government.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19.—2 Samuel IX.

David's kindness to Mephibosheth is a beautiful incident in his history, and strikingly illustrates the grace of our Lord Jesus. (1) It was unsought for.—Down in Lo-debar, Mephibosheth never dreamed of seeking the favour of the king. He felt no claim upon it; for did he not belong to the house of Saul whom God had rejected, and who, during his life, had been so cruel to David? His lameness (3) rendered him unfit for the presence of the king. Do not all these apply to our condition before grace sought us? We had neither desire, nor claim, nor fitness for fellowship with the Lord Jesus. If saved at all, it must be according to grace, not by merit.

Yet (2) it was not without good reason.—Probably Mephibosheth knew nothing of the covenant into which David and Jonathan had entered so long before (1 Sam. xx. 14—16). But to David that covenant was sacred, and even the unloveable Mephibosheth was loved for his father's sake. To show kindness to the son was like repaying the kindness and affection of Jonathan. Just for the same reason does God look upon us. We are loved in Him, in whom we have been chosen. Covenant agreement was entered into concerning all the seed of our Jonathan.

(3) It admitted him to intimate fellowship.—Though so consciously unworthy (8), he was admitted to the king's table (7, 11); the inheritance of his father was restored to him (7); and he was as one of the king's sons (11). What has made the change? Only the unmerited, unsought-for favour of the king bestowed for Jonathan's sake. Not less has the infinite grace of God done for us. "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ" (Eph. i. 3).

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, October 20.

David's Thanksgiving Prayer.—2 Sam. vii. 18—29.

Golden Text: 1 Thess. v. 18.

David's kingdom is now fairly established, and, as he enjoys rest from his enemies (1), and possesses his own house of cedar (2), his thoughts turn to the ark of God, which still dwells within curtains. He is not like the people reproved in Hag. i. 4. His own palace ministers but slight enjoyment to him while the symbol of God's presence has no dwelling but a tent. It was a right and noble desire, and commended itself at once to Nathan (3).

But God's thoughts are not David's. That night Nathan is commissioned to turn David from his purpose. Not because it was wrong; but because the time for building the Temple had not come. He commended David's desire (1 Kings viii. 18), and, while refusing to grant it, gave him something better. God would build David's house, and establish his kingdom for ever. The promises (12-16) began to be fulfilled in Solomon, but are only fully accomplished in Christ (Luke i. 32, 33).

This lesson gives David's prayer of thanksgiving. He "went in" (18) to the tent where David had placed the ark. "Sat before the Lord."—The attitude is not usual for prayer, but it is suitable to David at such a time. The restful attitude of the body was a picture of the perfect rest of the soul. The Word of God had filled David with surprise, and awe, and delight.

Verses 18-21.—Though he ends with prayer, he begins with thanksgiving. Let the two be mingled (Phil. iv. 6). He emphasises his own insignificance —"Who am I?" &c. (18). The more God reveals of his grace, the more are we humbled before Him. David is astonished that God should condescend to him (Ps. viii. 4). He is still further astonished that God should promise to exceed in the future what He had done in the past (19); he could find no parallel for such abundant grace. "Is this the manner of man?" (19)—Words seemed to fail him (20), so that he could only lay his heart open before God. "According to thine own heart" (21). —Only the heart of God could beget such purposes of love and mercy. It is well to see through the gifts into the heart of the blessed Giver.

Verses 22-24.—God's unbounded goodness made David more sensible of his greatness. When a man gets low thoughts of himself (18) he gets exalted thoughts of God (22). "What one nation," &c.? (23, 24). God's goodness to David recalls the evidence of his goodness in his dealings with the nation. Their redemption was God's work, accomplished at great cost, accompanied by great signs and wonders, and had made his name great. They had been redeemed from Egypt, with its degrading bondage; and for God. The slavery of Egypt gave place to the free service of God; and in place of the fleshpots of Egypt they had God Himself. God "confirmed" (24) them as his people by the promise just renewed to David (12-16).

Verses 25-29.—Prayer closes his thanksgiving. "Do as thou hast said" (25). We plead successfully when we plead the word of God. All that God has said to us by way of promise we may say to Him in prayer, and may trust Him to fulfil. "Let thy name be magnified" (26). This is the first result we must seek. Our own comfort and blessing must be secondary to God's glory. Prayer is answered, "that the Father may be glorified in the Son" (John xiv. 13). "Thou hast revealed to the servant" (27)—margin, "uncovered the ear." David had heard God's whisper; had believed his promise; hence he "found in his heart" to pray this prayer. Apart from the Divine promise, he never could have thought of offering such a request. It was God-inspired; therefore could be offered with confidence. "Thy words be true" (28); "Thou hast spoken it" (29). David still maintains his hold on the Divine word. Plead his promises with equal confidence. (See Titus i. 1, 2; Heb. vi. 17, 18.)

The lesson illustrates true prayer. What is it? (1) It includes thanksgiving. An unthankful heart is not likely to pray aright. The prayer of an ungrateful man is a selfish prayer. Be thankful, if you would pray aright. Meditate upon what God has done, until desire is inflamed, and confidence is strengthened.

(2) Communion with God.—Not mere asking, but quiet waiting and delighting before Him. A child entered his father's study door, while the father was in the midst of work. He felt slightly annoyed at the interruption, and said, "Well, what do you want?" "Nothing, father. I only want to sit here with you." Cultivate a similar spirit before God. Be as a child in your Father's presence.

(3) Directed by the promises of God.—These decide what we may pray for. Not what we feel we would like, but what God promises must inspire our prayers. We shall not ask less, but more than would otherwise be possible; for God's promise exceeds our highest thought (Eph. iii. 20-21). A woman who had long worked in one of the Lancashire factories went for the first time to the coast. When she saw the apparently limitless ocean that lay before her, she exclaimed, "At last, here comes something there is enough of!" So large and inexhaustible are God's promises.

(4) Trusts the faithfulness of God.—Prayers are answered just because God has promised, and God cannot lie. Believe that He means what He says, and then trust Him to be true to his word. "Do you not sometimes doubt?" said a minister to a Scotch woman who was near to death. "Not at all," was the reply. "But why not?" he asked. "He might forsake you; what then?" "Why," said the good saint, "I should not lose as much as He would. He cannot afford to be unfaithful to his word."

Evangelistic Notes.

Messrs. Inglis and Weaver are being much blessed in America. Their meetings in New York proved to be times of refreshing both to Christians and the unsaved. Mr. Inglis has gone to the West, and Mr. Weaver is at Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Woolley, the singing evangelists, have during the summer months assisted Aderham Homer, of the Sedgley Home Mission. Large open-air services have been held, and much good is believed to have been done.

Bradford, Yorks.—A series of services have been conducted here by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Evens. The building was crowded on the Sabbath, and during the week evenings there were very large gatherings. God's Spirit was manifested in power.

Pentonville.—The open-air services held here on Sabbath evenings during the summer have now been terminated for the season. At a thanksgiving service in the schoolroom of Vernon Chapel, King's Cross, encouraging testimony was borne as to the blessing that has accompanied the effort.

Mr. J. J. Clow, of the Evangelisation Society, is conducting a mission at Mill End, Rickmansworth. It is an outcome of one he held in the month of June at West Hide in the same neighbourhood. By the simple way in which he unfolds the truths of salvation many are being led to the Saviour, and Christians are being aroused to see the need of consecration.

Alexandria, N.B.—Mr. W. R. Bradlaugh has concluded three weeks' evangelistic services in this place. The Sabbath evening meetings were unusually large, and the work altogether was of a very satisfactory nature. It was a time of refreshing to the Christians. Backsliders have been restored, while a number of very clear conversions are recorded.

Baldon, Oxon.—Mr. John Brock, farmer, in the hope of bringing Gospel influences to bear upon the people of this village, recently cleaned down one of his barns, and invited Mr. J. C. Rainey to preach. The result has been quite beyond expectation, the villagers having attended in large numbers and listened eagerly. Mr. Rainey writes: "To break the bread of life to those with an appetite is not hard work. Last evening the Spirit of God was dealing with many souls, and hands were raised one after the other in the prayer-meeting."

Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes conducted a mission at Ripon Congregational Church (Rev. J. F. Bailey, pastor), from Sept. 22 to 29. A spirit of unity and sympathy was manifested by all the churches. A meeting was held for men only, when a large company listened to a weighty discourse on Social Purity. A committee was formed representing all denominations, to carry on the work of social purity in the city. An extra meeting was held on Sept. 30 when all the Nonconformists united in a missionary meeting, Mr. Hallowes giving an address on "Present Day Aspects of Foreign Missions." The earnest and practical addresses given to children and adults during this mission have been a true means of grace.

Dublin.—A most successful mission has been held in the new mission church of the Irish Church Missions, Townsend-street, Dublin, by Rev. G. C. Grubb. Large numbers, including many Roman Catholics, attended the services, and manifest good followed the word spoken.

Mr. Henry Thorne recently concluded a ten days' mission in the Assembly Rooms, Reading. Large audiences assembled, and the meetings were marked throughout by great earnestness. Anxious ones found their way to the inquiry-room; there were many professed conversions. On the last Sunday morning, between two and three hundred were present at the eight o'clock prayer-meeting. The mission was held under the joint auspices of the Shaftesbury Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A.

Church Parochial Mission Society.—The following missions have been arranged for the month of October. It is hoped they will be made a subject of prayer by our readers:—Rev. W. Hay Aitken: Oct. 12 to 15, Whissendine near Oakham; 26 to Nov. 11, St. John's, Carlisle. Canon Atherton: Oct. 12 to 22, Totnes; 28 to 29, Teignmouth. Rev. J. P. Cushing: to Oct. 16, All Saints', Blackburn. Rev. A. R. D'Arcy: Oct. 12 to 15, Ripley, Derby; 17 to 21, Knottingley, York; 26 to Nov. 11, New Catton, Norwich. Rev. H. E. Fox: to Oct. 14, Winston. Rev. H. Armstrong Hall: Oct. 19 to 29, St. James's, Poole, Dorset. Rev. Dr. Harrison: Oct. 28 to Nov. 4, Mayfield, Ashbourne. Rev. W. Haslam: to Oct. 15, South Creake, Fakenham; 19 to 28, St. Matthias', Upper Tulse Hill, S.W. Rev. J. H. Haslam: to Oct. 15, Brockham, Surrey; 19 to 21, Dormans Land, East Grinstead; 26 to Nov. 5, St. Peter's, Southwark, S.E. Rev. W. Hayton: Oct. 12 to 21, Fingrinhoe, Colchester; 22 to 24, Terling, Witham. Rev. W. Talbot Hindley: Oct. 12 to 22, Christ Church, Dartford. Rev. A. L. Hunt: Oct. 26 to Nov. 5, Raskelfe, Easingwold, Yorks Rev. T. Lancaster: Oct. 26 to Nov. 4, Stanwix, Carlisle. Rev. R. D. Monro: to Oct. 16, Inglescombe, Bath; 19 to 23, Babcary, Somerton. Rev. Dr. Morris: Oct. 13 to 17, St. Helens, Lancashire; 26 to Nov. 11, Holy Trinity, Margate. Canon Pigou: Oct. 12 to 22, Parish Church, Dartford. Rev. F. E. Rogers: Oct. 12 to 21, G. E. Railway Mission Room, Stratford, E. Rev. E. B. Russell: Oct. 12 to 22, St. John's, Outwood, Redhill. Rev. S. A. Selwyn: to Oct. 15, St. Matthew's, Redhill. Rev. W. S. Standen: to Oct. 16, St. Luke's, Liverpool. Rev. G. J. Watts: to Oct. 14: Melmerby, Langwathby. Rev. F. S. Webster: Oct. 12 to 22, Old Hill, Dudley. Huddersfield General Mission, Oct. 26 to Nov. 5:—Rev. H. L. Cook, Lindley; Rev. Rowland Ellis, St. Paul's; Rev. J. H. Honeyburne, Rashcliffe; Rev. George Howell, Kirkheaton; Rev. J. F. Kitto, Holy Trinity; Rev. Dr. Morgan, St. John's; Rev. G. J. Watts, Paddock.

REQUESTS FOR PRAISE AND PRAYER.—Praise: Rev. Dr. Sale, now in Newfoundland, asks thanksgiving for the blessing that has attended his mission.——Prayer: For blessing on a mission by Rev. W. Haslam, at St. Matthew's Church, Brixton-hill, London, commencing Oct. 18.——For blessing on mission work in the neighbourhood of Hastings.

THE STRANGERS' REST.—At the monthly workers' meeting on Friday evening, Rev. W. Fuller Gooch delivered an able and profitable address on "The three-fold aspect of the Christ life," prefacing his remarks by some loving words of sympathy for the toilers in these East-end streets. Mr. Isaac, hon. sec., followed with an interesting account of the work doing and purposed to be done during the coming winter. Eight ladies going forth in connection with the North Africa Mission gave interesting testimonies as to God's leading. Fervent prayer was offered by one and another at the close of each short address. Prayer was also offered for God's ancient people, it being the eve of their great day of atonement. Mr. E. L. Hamilton, lately returned from Morocco, spoke briefly of the great need of the Holy Spirit's power in work in Mohammedan lands.

MANCHESTER POLICE COURT MISSION.—The autumn meetings of the Manchester Women's Christian Temperance Association and Police Court Mission took place a few days ago. Interesting reports of work were presented, over a thousand pledges having been taken from the women who have, during the past nine months, been before the magistrates on charges of drunkenness. The committee of the proposed Inebriates' Home for Women is negotiating for suitable premises, and it is hoped that operations will soon be commenced. Mr. Herbert Philips, a city magistrate, who presided, pointed out how sadly Homes are needed in which persons of the poorer classes may be treated for drunkenness. Among the speakers were Miss Haslam, organising secretary; Mrs. Eckroyd, of Sheffield; Lady Sebright, and Mr. W. H. Newett, chairman of the committee. The whole endeavour deserves the cordial sympathy of Christian people.

A MOST ATTRACTIVE AND ACCEPTABLE GIFT-BOOK FOR THE SEASON.

The Christian Portrait Gallery:

CONSISTING of over One Hundred well-executed Portraits of well-known and highly-esteemed Christian Men and Women of the present day. With One Hundred carefully written and Authentic Biographic Sketches of the same.

Over Four Hundred Pages. Demy Quarto, Attractively Bound, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 10s. 6d,

A LIST OF THE PORTRAITS AND BIOGRAPHIC SKETCHES.

ANTONY ASHLEY-COOPER, K.G., Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury.

Rev. W. Lindsay Alexander, ll.d., Edinburgh.
Rev. W. Arthur, M.A., Ex-President Wesleyan Conference.
Alexander Balfour, Merchant and Philanthropist.
James Barlow, Manufacturer.
Sir Arthur Blackwood, k.c.b., Secretary to Post Office.
Rev. Horatius Bonar, d.d., Edinburgh.
Rev. Andrew Bonar, d.d., Glasgow.
Rev. George Bowen, Editor of "Bombay Guardian."
George Brealey, Blackdown Hills Mission.
Right Hon. John Bright, m.p.
Right Hon. Earl Cairns, Lord Chancellor 1868 & '74-80.
Rev. Principal Cairns, Edinburgh.
Rev. James Calvert, Missionary to Fiji.
Earl of Cavan, The
Rev. James Chalmers, Missionary to New Guinea.
Rev. J. P. Chown, Bloomsbury Chapel, London.
Rev. Canon Christopher, Oxford.
Miss Mary Ann Cole, Mount Hermon Orphan Homes.
Rev. James Culross, m.a., d.d., Bristol.
Mrs. Daniell, Soldiers' Home, Aldershot.
Sir J. William Dawson, ll.d., f.r.s., f.g.s., Montreal.
Rev. Nunda Lal Doss, Bhowanipore College, Calcutta.
Rev. Alexander Duff, d.d., Missionary to India.
George Fuller, Sermon Lane Mission, Islington.
Rev. Chas. Garrett, Ex-President Wesleyan Conference.
Rev. A. J. Gordon, d.d., Boston, U.S.A.
Philip H. Gosse, f.r.s., Naturalist and Author.
John B. Gough, Temperance Orator.
Rev. E. Payson Hammond, m.a., Childrens' Evangelist.
Bishop Hannington, of Eastern Equatorial Africa.
Rev. Canon Harford-Battersby, Keswick.
Rev. William Haslam, m.a., Author of "From Death to Life," &c.
George Hatton, Founder of St. Giles's Christian Mission
Frances Ridley Havergal, Poet and Author.
Rev. Canon Hoare, Tunbridge Wells.
Professor A. A. Hodge, d.d., ll.d., Princeton College, New Jersey, U.S.A.
George Holland, George Yard Ragged Schools.
Hon. Thomas Holt, Philanthropist, Sydney, N.S.W.
Rev. Ebenezer E. Jenkins, m.a., Hon. Secretary Wesleyan Missionary Society.
Rev. Griffith John, d.d., Hankow, China.
Mrs. Griffith John, Hankow, China.
Dr. Robert Reid Kalley, Madeira and Brazil.
Hon. Ion Keith-Falconer, Free Church Mission, Aden.
Admiral Sir William King-Hall, k.c.b.
Gawin Kerkham, Secretary Open Air Mission.
Rev. Abraham Lamb, Leicester and Melton Mowbray.
Rev. Peter Leys, Strathaven.
Rev. Samuel Macfarlane, ll.d., f.r.g.s., Lifu and New Guinea.
Rev. John Mackenzie, South Africa.
Dr. John Kenneth Mackenzie, Hankow and Tien-tsin.
Rev. Alexander Maclaren, d.d., Manchester.
Rev. D. H. MacVicar, d.d., ll.d., Montreal.
Rev. R. W. McAll, d.d., Paris.
Rev. James McCosh, d.d., ll.d., Princeton College.
Mr. and Mrs. James McGranahan.
Rev. J. McNeill, Regent Square Presbyterian Church.
Rev. F. B. Meyer, b.a., Regent's Park Chapel.
Rev. Robert Milligan, Dundee.
Rev. Dr. & Mrs. Mary Moffat, Kuruman, South Africa.
Rev. J. Murray Mitchell, ll.d., Missionary to India.
D. L. Moody.
Mrs. Betsey Moody, Mother of Mr. D. L. Moody.
Samuel Morley, Christian Philanthropist.
Rev. Handley C. G. Moule, Ridley Hall, Cambridge.
Lord Mount-Temple.
George Müller, Founder of the Bristol Orphan Houses.
John Murdoch, ll.d., India.
William Noble, Hoxton Hall.
James Pascoe, Mexican Evangelical Mission.
Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, Preacher and Author.
Rev. William Pennefather, Founder of the Mildmay Conferences.
Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, Philadelphia, U.S.A.
Joshua Poole, Evangelist.
Rev. George E. Post, m.d., Syrian Protestant Mission.
Rev. W. Morley Punshon, ll.d., Ex-President Wesleyan Conference.
William Quarrier, Orphan Homes, Glasgow.
Joseph Rabinowitz, Christian-Jewish Rabbi.
John Grubb Richardson, Bessbrook, Ireland.
Rt. Rev. J. C. Ryle, d.d., Bishop of Liverpool.
Ira D. Sankey.
Rev. Adolph Saphir, d.d., Author and Preacher.
Robert Simpson, Merchant-Minister, Glasgow.
Rev. J. Denham Smith, Formerly of Dublin.
Rev. A. N. Somerville, d.d., Glasgow.
Pastor C. H. and Mrs. Spurgeon.
Rev. W. Fleming Stevenson, d.d., Dublin.
Rev. R. W. Stewart, d.d., Leghorn.
George Stott, Missionary to China.
The Queen of Sweden and Norway.
Bishop William Taylor, Self-Supporting Missions, India and Africa.
Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, China Inland Mission.
Rev. Francis Tucker, Camden Road Chapel.
Henry Varley, Evangelist and Lecturer.
Richard Weaver, Evangelist.
William Wheatley, Discharged Prisoners' Friend.
Miss Frances E. Willard, President of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union.
Rev. Daniel Wilson, m.a., Islington.
Rev. J. A. Wylie, ll.d., Edinburgh.
Rev. Egerton R. Young, Missionary to North American Indians.

THIS Volume contains OVER ONE HUNDRED PORTRAITS and Biographic Sketches of noteworthy Christian men and women. In order to present a hundred personal histories in one book, each narrative is necessarily compressed and brief; but it is hoped and believed that no salient feature of any Life has been overlooked.

It will be here seen how persons of various walks in life and of widely-differing conditions have been called to the service of the same Master, and the realisation of the same hope. Here are Christian men from the House of Peers: others from the ranks of shipowners, merchants, and manufacturers: and yet others from humbler walks of life. Of all these it may be truly said that, having themselves been made the recipients of Divine Grace, they became the channels of that grace to others. The subjects of these Portraits and Biographies have been selected from various branches of the Christian Church.

Over a score of those whose features and histories are here depicted have laboured, or are labouring, as Missionaries in the foreign field—in India; in China; in South Africa; in New Guinea; in Fiji; in Arabia; in Mexico; in Brazil; in Italy; and in France. Place has been found for a few noble Christian women—the devoted wives of Missionaries; and others who are highly esteemed for their work's sake.

The perusal and contemplation of these personal records will, it is hoped, stimulate and encourage the lives of others. If the Book should prove the means of helping in the path of faithful service it will have done worthy work.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller in Great Britain or the Colonies.

Forthcoming Meetings.

The Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

The Irish Evangelisation Society will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

The Church Army will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

The Metropolitan Tabernacle Evangelists' Association will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

The Country Towns Mission supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., Whittington-avenue, E.C. — Fri., Oct. 11, 1.15 to 2 p.m., Mr. and Mrs. Matthews. Sat., Oct. 12, gathering at Normal College for Blind, Norwood.

Conference Hall and Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Oct. 13, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. George M. Chamberlain. Meetings for prayer, Wed., Fri., and Sat., 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45 p.m., men only, Mr. E. J. Kennedy, "The Truth"; 7.30 p.m., public, Mr. T. Richardson. Mon., Tues., Wed., and Fri., Gospel meetings for men, 8 p.m. Sat., 8 p.m., Colonel Puget's Bible-reading. Wed., Oct. 16, 8.30 p.m., lecture, "Uganda," by Mr. Edward Mantle.

Y.M.C.A., 26 and 28, Newington-causeway, Southwark, S.E.—Annual meeting, Thurs., Oct. 24, Christ Church, Westminster Bridge-road. Mr. S. Gurney Sheppard in the chair. Speakers—Mr. A. J. Mundella, Earl Compton, Revs. Newman Hall and J. Jackson Wray.

Y.M.C.A., Finsbury Park Hall, 255, Seven Sisters'-road, N.—Fri., Oct. 11, 8 p.m., inaugural meeting of winter session. Chair taken by Mr. R. C. Morgan. Addresses by Revs. John McNeill, Canon Hurst, and others.

The West London Mission.—St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Princes Hall: Fri., 12 noon. Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes. Cleveland Hall: Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. H. S. Lunn.

Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, N.—Sun., Oct. 13, 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Mr. John McAuliffe.

St. George's Hall, Langham-place, W.—Mr. T. Shuldham Henry during Oct. Suns., at 11 and 7. Wed., Burlington Hall, Savile-row, at 8.

Polytechnic, Regent-street, W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Suns., 7 p.m., during Oct.

House of Rest, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Fri., Oct. 18, social gathering for Bible study. Tea at 6; address by Miss Mason at 7. Open to all.

Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, E.—Sun. next, at 11 and 6.45, Mr. Joseph Clarke.

Ancient Merchants' Lecture, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, E.C.—Tues., in Oct., Rev. A. Rowland; subject —"Ecce Homo." Oct. 15, "Christ's Obedience."

Union Hall, Carlisle-street, Edgware-road, W.—Meeting of Christian workers, Thurs., Oct. 17, 7.30 p.m. Address by Dr. Robert McKilliam.

Dr. Thain Davidson's Monthly Sermon to young men, Presbyterian Church, Colebrooke-row (near "The Angel," Islington), Sun. next, Oct. 13, 6.30 p.m.

Home of Industry, 29, Bethnal Green-road, E.—Monthly meeting for Christian workers, Wed., Oct. 16, 7 p.m. Miss Macpherson will be welcomed home, and will give an account of her recent visit to Canada.

Conference Hall, 143, Clapham-road, S.W.—Bible-reading, by Rev. Dr. Bullinger, every Thurs., 4 p.m.

Edinburgh Castle, Limehouse, E.—Sun., Oct., 13, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., Dr. Barnardo; 3 p.m., Rev. Henry Bright.

China Inland Mission. — Meeting to bid farewell to upwards of thirty missionaries shortly leaving for China, Exeter (Lower) Hall, Mon., Oct. 14, 7 p.m.

Young Women's Total Abstinence Meeting, Exeter Hall, Wed., Oct. 23, 8.30 p.m. Addresses by Canon Wilberforce, Sir Philip Cunliffe Owen, Mrs. Temple (Fulham Palace), Canon Barker, and Lord Kinnaird. Tickets free to all young women; young men and others, 3d. each, to be had of Miss M. S. Coles, Secretary, 6, Pigott-street, Limehouse, E.

Metropolitan Music Hall, Edgware-road, W.—Sun., Oct. 13, 6.30 p.m., Charles Cook and choir.

Hyde Park Hall, Tues., Oct. 15, 8 p.m., Charles Cook and choir.

COMING CONFERENCES.

National Temperance Congress, Birmingham, Oct. 21—25.—Mr. R. Rae, Secretary, 33, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

Evangelical Alliance.—Annual Conference, Cheltenham, Oct. 22—24.—Programmes to be had from the Alliance House, 7, Adam-street, Strand, London, W.C.

Manchester Christian Convention, Oct. 29—31.—Communications respecting apartments, &c., should be addressed to the Secretaries, Conference Hall, Strangeways, Manchester.

[930]

Missionary Convention of Young Men, Metropolitan Tabernacle, Newington, S.E., Tues., Oct. 15. 11 a.m.: Chairman, Mr. H. M. Matheson; speakers—Revs. H. Coley (Almora, North India), Dr. E. E. Jenkins, and Mr. David McConaughy. 3 p.m.: Rev. D. Gracey will preside. Addresses to theological and medical students by Revs. Dr. Maclaren and J. Hudson Taylor. 7.30 p.m.: Mass meeting of young men. Chair taken by Mr. George Williams; speakers—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. John McNeill, Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, and Mr. D. McConaughy. Tickets and information from Mr. W. C. Minifie, Pastors' College, Newington, S.E., on receipt of stamped addressed envelope.

Appeals.

Mrs. Gardener, of Harold House, Waltham Cross, has a class of eighty-one poor women. She is anxious to get some warm clothing for them and their children, and would be thankful for gifts of material in short or long lengths, and also for pieces for patchwork.

Clothing for the Poor.—Will any Christian friends help to supply the poor of Drury-lane and its surrounding districts with warm garments for the coming winter? Any gifts of material, parcels of old clothes, or donations will be gratefully received and acknowledged by the secretary, Miss Weston, Crown-court Church, Russell-street, W.C.

Mrs. M. E. Skipton, of the Railway Mission, is anxious to commence work among railway men in Oxford, and with this object purposes paying a visit to that city on the 15th instant, and to stay a few days. She will be greatly obliged if Christian friends there, willing to co-operate in this work, and especially any who know of a hall or other building suitable for holding meetings in, will kindly communicate with her at once: care of Mrs. Daynes, 26, Paradise-street, Rugby.

Jewish Mothers' Meeting.—Owing to the strict domestic code in Jewish families, this seems the only means of reaching the wives of the men already dealt with by the missionary at the Great Assembly Hall. An appeal is made for funds or materials for clothing, unbleached or other calicos, flannel, linseys, &c., so that a well-furnished and attractive Dorcas room may be started. Mr. F. N. Charrington has generously given the use of a room, and several of his lady workers have undertaken the carrying out of the meetings. Contributions may be addressed Jewish Mothers, care of Mr. F. N. Charrington, Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, London, E.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

J. C. Curwen, the author of the tonic sol-fa system, complains of the drink facilities at several of the London docks.

The arrests in Dublin for drunkenness on Sundays vary considerably from month to month, but unfortunately there is not any falling off the total for the year ended the last day of April, the returns for which have just been published, showing a total of 1391.

Alderman Vincent, Southport, said in the local Town Council lately that the reason why certain notorious drink-places in the town had not been interfered with was "because they had a head constable who was hand in glove with those who kept those houses."

A week of Gospel temperance meetings was concluded at the Gospel Hall, Wood Green, N., on Saturday last. Workers connected with the Hoxton Hall Blue Ribbon Movement, the National Temperance League, and British Women's Temperance Association, besides local friends, took part. A number of total abstinence pledges were taken.

There is some agitation in Dublin in regard to the centenary of Father Mathew, and the Lord Mayor has been requested to convene a public meeting on the subject of a memorial. In Cork, however, the birthplace of the great temperance advocate, Father Mathew's statue is literally surrounded by whisky-shops, and at the recent annual licensing sessions the Bench announced that they would deal with the applications in globo, and grant all except such as the police objected to. The newly appointed inspector stated that he had been too short a time in the city to know anything in regard to the public-houses, and the whole of the licences, therefore, were granted.

FOREIGN.

In Belgium, with increased drinking facilities has come an increase in suicide, and in lunacy, and in crime.

The National Women's Christian Temperance Union Convention is to be held this year, November 8—12, at Chicago.

In Finland severely restrictive drink laws were introduced in 1887, and have resulted in a considerable decline in the quantity of alcohol consumed per head.

Mrs. Leavitt proposes to continue her world's temperance crusade viâ North Africa to Palestine, returning westward to England, then home viâ South America.

Notices.

Communications Received with Thanks.—R.B. L.P. A.J.M. F.T.H. G.F.P. J.L. J.F.P. A.W. W.C.B. S. J.M. R.D.F. R.M. F. H.W. T.R.F. W.S. B.McC.B. T.J. W.U. J.M.L.S. E.P. A.C.T. J.P. E.A. J.B. F.C. W.E.D. A.A.B. G.H. M.S.C. J.R.M. A.W. J.W. J.A.V. F.B. P.B.J. C.G. J.J.B. W.T.H. E.S. H.M. R.C. J.P. E.S. A.D.G. M.H.A. D.M. G.C.L. U.L.R. S.B. A.B. H.D. G.M.T. F.C.S. G.C. J.H.G. C.F. G.T.B. J.A.W. G.G.A. R.M. Anxious Friend. W.D.P. J.G. H.C.

Applicants for Tracts.—S. Pike, 177, Bow-common-lane, E.; W. Snow, 13, Ravensdon-street, Kennington Park-road, S.E.; C. Marr, 78, Kellett-road, Brixton, S.W.; R. Morgan, Sailors' Rest, Amlwch; W. Fairweather, 3, Barrack-street, Dundee; J. Burrows, George-street, High Wycombe, Bucks.; T. Pearce, 6, Newcastle-street, Cubitt Town, E.; F. Lambert, Soldiers' Home, Conyngham-road, Dublin; C. Black, 137, North Hill-street, Toxteth Park, Liverpool; F. Scott, G.E. Railway Gatekeeper, Hale End, Walthamstow, E.; R. Handford, Oakhurst, Ore, Hastings; D. Mort, 33, Princess-street, Barnsley; G. F. Pykett, 78, Eglinton-road, Plumstead; G. B. Taylor, 51, Sandringham-buildings, W.C.; W. Francis, 71, Evelina-road, Peckham, S.E.; G. T. Binstead, 75, High-street, Peckham, S.E.; A. G. Edney, 25, Copenhagen-street, Landport, Portsmouth.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1889.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
Baptist Congo Mission—J.F.C.	1	1	0
North Africa Mission—J.F.C....	0	10	0
Soldiers' & Sailors' Rest, Barbadoes—C.P., Clifton	0	5	0
Miss W. Arnott's Schools, &c., Jaffa—Keturah...	1	1	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—Keturah	1	1	0
Doomed Eurasian Children, Japan—E.A.	0	2	0
Bible Stall, Paris Exhibition—T.S.	0	2	6
McAll Mission—A.W.W.	1	0	0
Signor Capellini's Soldiers' Mission—A.W.W. ...	2	0	0
Salvation Army—C.M. £1 1s; E.R.C. 2s 6d; W.H.P. £1; C.P., Clifton, 5s; M.W. & E.E. 4s; Slum Work—T.O. 10s; Self-Denial—A.S. 2s; F.V. 10s; H.R. 2s; W. & S.W. £3; H.A.T. 5s; Two Friends, 10s; Food for Dockers—C. & E. £1	8	11	6
Mrs. C. Hunter—D.	0	5	0
London City Mission—J.F.C....	1	1	0
Mildmay Msn. Jews—J.F.C. £1 1s; Matt. vi. 1, £5	6	1	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—J.F.C. £1 1s; Bath, 5s; C.P., Clifton, 2s 6d; F.V. 10s; E.C. £2; God is Love, £1; Joel ii. 23, 16s; J.M.K. 5s; W.L. 3s 6d; Lord's Portion, 10s	6	13	0
Home of Industry—J.F.C. 10s; Keturah £1 1s...	1	11	0
Church Missionary Society—El. Ch. Bible-class	0	1	4
Mr. H. Toye's Orphanage—"From Above" ...	0	10	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—W.	0	10	0
Mr. Henry Thorne's Mission Fund—M.S.	2	2	0
Union Hall Mission—C.P., Clifton	0	5	0
Tollington Hall Mission—C.P., Clifton	0	2	6
Hunger in East London (Dock Labourers, &c.)—Bowdon, 5s; C. & E. £1	1	5	0
London Medical Mission—W.A.P...	1	0	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street—W.D....	1	0	0
Friendless & Fallen—W.G. 10s; Lord's Portion, 10s	1	0	0
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work (Dock Labourers, &c.)—C. & E.	1	0	0
Rev. J. W. Atkinson (Dock Labrs., &c.)—C. & E.	2	0	0
Home Aged Blind Christian Men & Women—M.S. £5 5s; M. £2 2s	7	7	0
Theatrical Mission—E.W.	1	0	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C.L.M.T...	1	0	0
Miss Mittendorff's Orphan Homes—J.S.&M.A.K.	0	3	6
National Truss Society—M.S...	0	10	6
Tramcar & 'Bus Text Mission—M.S.	0	10	6
Aged Pilgrims' Society—M.S....	1	1	0
Young Abstainers' Union—M.S.	1	1	0
Irish Church Msns. (11, Buckingham-st.)—A.W.W.	1	0	0
	£55	14	4

[Advertisements.]

Dr. Barnardo's Homes—J.B. 10s.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals for Destitute Poor)—Miss N. 10s; Mr. J.D.G. 5s.

HOMES FOR AGED CHRISTIAN BLIND MEN AND WOMEN,

HANLEY ROAD, CROUCH HILL, LONDON, N.

AN URGENT APPEAL.

£170 NEEDED at once to meet the demand of the MAINTENANCE FUND, and to enable the Committee to fill the 15 remaining vacancies: three are waiting admission, and many distressing applications. Present number of INMATES, 65. Will readers of THE CHRISTIAN kindly help in this emergency, and thus relieve from great anxiety? Contributions thankfully received by the Founders and Hon. Superintendents,

Rev. H. and Mrs. BRIGHT,

at the Homes, or by

The Editors of THE CHRISTIAN,
Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-bldgs., E.C.

THE MISSIONS TO SEAMEN SOCIETY.

PATRON—
ADMIRAL H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

Labours AFLOAT AND ASHORE, at HOME AND ABROAD, among 625.000 SEAMEN of the Mercantile Marine, Passenger, Emigrant, Light, and other Ships, and Fishing Vessels, &c.; and among 60,000 SEAMEN of the Royal Navy. Its work is SPIRITUAL, PHILANTHROPIC, and TEMPERANCE.

Increased FUNDS are URGENTLY REQUIRED.

Contributions and Offertories should be forwarded to Commander W. DAWSON, R.N., 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, London, W.C.

SCRIPTURE TEXTS

For Walls of Mission Rooms, Hospitals, &c.

A List of these Large Type Texts, printed in blue ink, size 31 inches by 20 (70 different Texts, 3d. each), will be sent on application to the Publishers,

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

Established 1822.

FOR the purpose of employing humble Christian men well versed in the Scriptures to visit and read the Bible throughout Ireland. The Scripture Readers are invariably placed under carefully selected Christian Superintendents, and are also employed by the Society in the large towns and cities as City Missionaries, and visit all denominations, where permitted. Irish-speaking Readers are sent to Irish-speaking districts when required, but are now seldom asked for. The work is carried on in a spirit of love, and not of controversy.

The Scripture Readers also visit amongst the Sailors in seaports and hold Bethel Meetings on board Ships, at hours not to interfere with the usual Public Services. The Society is supported by voluntary contributions.

OFFICES—27, LOWER PEMBROKE STREET, DUBLIN; and 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

NOTE.—Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title, "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

Thousands of Fishermen are engaged all the year round in providing OUR TABLES with fish. These men, who FOR US hazard their lives and toil through furious blasts and sleety storm (not only cut off from the comforts of home, but at two days' distance from medical or surgical aid), may rightly claim some small share in the privileges we so richly enjoy. THIS THEY CAN ONLY HAVE THROUGH THE PRESENCE OF THE MISSION VESSELS, carrying to the Fishermen the message of Divine mercy and love, affording relief in sickness, and cheering dull lives by their presence.

HELP WANTED FOR THE TOILERS OF THE DEEP.

TEN Mission Vessels now cruise with the Trawling Fleets, each being at once a CHURCH, DISPENSARY, LIBRARY, and CLUB. Funds are required to provide a Mission Vessel for EVERY FLEET, and for the maintenance of the HOSPITAL MISSION SHIPS Queen Victoria and Albert. The urgent necessity of these floating Hospitals is shown by the fact that during last year over 7,000 cases of accident and sickness were successfully treated on board the Dispensary of the Mission Vessels. WHO WILL HELP? Large or small Offerings will be thankfully acknowledged.

MISSION TO DEEP-SEA FISHERMEN.

PATRON—THE QUEEN.

Treasurer and Chairman of Council—THOMAS B. MILLER, Esq.
Chairman of Finance Committee .....THOMAS GRAY, Esq., C.B.
Chairman of Hospital Committee—FREDK. TREVES, Esq., F.R.C.S.

Bankers—Messrs. LLOYDS, BARNETTS & BOSANQUETS, Limited.
Secretary .....ALEXANDER GORDON, Esq.
Offices—BRIDGE HOUSE, BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE, LONDON, E.C.

FIELD LANE REFUGES AND RAGGED SCHOOLS.

RESULTS

FOR THE YEAR ENDING 31st MARCH, 1889

THE RAW MATERIAL.
(From Life.)

697 Men and Women sheltered in the Refuges.
193 Boys and Girls maintained in Industrial Homes.
37 Friendless Girls trained in the Servants' Home.
1,753 Attendances at the Crêche.
18,090 Attendances at the Ragged Church.
10,556 Attendances at the Sunday Mission Services.
68,288 Attendances at the Bible Ragged Schools and Classes.
11,504 Attendances at the Band of Hope.
12,052 Attendances at the Mothers' Meeting.
52 Bags of Linen lent from Maternal Society.
24,274 Distributions of Broken Food made.
13,428 Loaves of Bread distributed.
368 Persons placed in, or assisted to obtain, employment.
13,369 Hot Dinners given to Children.

The Winter Work has commenced amongst the DESTITUTE AND HOMELESS POOR, but £70 per week is required to continue it. Will the readers of The Christian kindly help? Remittances may be sent to Messrs. Morgan & Scott, at the office of The Christian, and will be thankfully received by The Bankers—Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.

The Treasurer—WILFRID A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard St., E.C.

The Secretary—Mr. PEREGRINE PLATT, Field Lane Institution, Vine Street, Clerkenwell Road, E.C.

Please mention The Christian.

WHAT IS MADE OF IT.
(From Life.)

RATIONAL CORSETS.

Invaluable for growing girls, delicate persons, and ladies of all ages, relieving the hips from the weight of the skirts, and allowing the greatest freedom.

Young Ladies' 4s. 6d., White or Drab.
" " 6s. 6d., Scarlet.
Ladies' 6s. 6d., White or Drab.
" 9s. 6d., Black, Scarlet, or Sanitarie.
" 18s. 6d., Satin, Black, and Colours.

All makes in CORSETS (medium and best) and UNDERCLOTHING (wool, long-cloth, and silk) are supplied.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,
263, Oxford Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

UNEQUALLED for INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

SCOTT'S Midlothian OAT-FLOUR

BISCUITS & OAT CAKES.
EIGHT FIRST-CLASS EXHIBITION AWARDS.
Highly recommended by the Medical Profession.
SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND GROCERS.
A. & R. SCOTT, LTD., GLASGOW, MANCHESTER & LONDON.
By Special Appointment to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

THE

"BURGLARS' HORROR."

TO PREVENT BURGLARIES, one of

CLARKE'S "PYRAMID" NIGHT LIGHTS

should be lighted in a front and back room of every house as soon as it is dark. Burglaries are more frequently perpetrated before bedtime than after. Housebreakers have the greatest dread of a light. The police recommend a

"PYRAMID" NIGHT LIGHT

as the best safeguard. Almost all the burglaries perpetrated might have been prevented, and much valuable property saved, if this simple and inexpensive plan had always been adopted.

The "PYRAMID" NIGHT LIGHTS are much larger and give double the light of the common night lights, and are therefore particularly adapted for this purpose. Manufactured in Patent Fire Proof Plaster Cases.

CLARKE'S "FAIRY-PYRAMID" NIGHT LAMP, with one Pyramid Light in Box for 6d. Insist on having the Lamp, with one Pyramid Light complete in the Box.

Sold Everywhere. If any difficulty in obtaining them, write to CLARKE'S PYRAMID & FAIRY LIGHT COMPANY (Limited) Cricklewood, London, N.W., for nearest Agent's Address.

FITS.

EPILEPSY OR FALLING SICKNESS.

If you want to be permanently and speedily cured of this distressing complaint, discard prejudice, and write to THE SECRETARY, Burwood House, Burwood Place, Hyde Park, London. He will send you 'Gratis' full instructions for cure, and advice on diet.

Bouillon Fleet.

PURE BEEF AND NOTHING BUT BEEF.

For BEEF TEA. A delicious Cup can be made with the addition of Boiling Water only.
SOUPS Made in the shortest possible time without the aid of Butcher's Meat.
GRAVIES ENRICHED.
MADE DISHES GREATLY IMPROVED.

Ask for "A FEW PRACTICAL COOKERY RECIPES."

Bouillon Fleet.

SOLD EVERYWHERE IN BOTTLES.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.

PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of NERVOUS DISEASES, have received Testimonials from three Physicians to Her Majesty the Queen and the leading Physicians of Nine London Hospitals, including Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians of London.

The distressing symptoms of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, Loss of MUSCULAR POWER, RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, PARALYSIS, EPILEPSY, &c., are speedily removed by means of Pulvermacher's World-famed Galvanic Belts, which convey the electric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all the nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of premature waste and decay.

Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the profession and scientific men."

Dr. H. A. ALLBUTT, M.R.C.P., 24, Park Square, Leeds, writes, October, 1888: "I always recommend with confidence Mr. PULVERMACHER'S BELTS. Ladies recovering from illness incidental to their sex will find these BELTS of vast assistance in restoring lost nerve power."

For Full Price List and Particulars, see New Pamphlet, "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY." Post free from

PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC DEPOT,
194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
(ESTABLISHED OVER 40 YEARS.)

Now Published in one

HANDSOME SHILLING VOLUME

Post Free.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"

ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW

APPENDIX

TO THE

WORK on CONSUMPTION,

CONTAINING

226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY

SHOWING THE

PERMANENCE of CURE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-First Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"

Who may be personally or relatively

INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

CONSUMPTION.—"VERY LITTLE HOPE."
J. McNAB, of KELSO.

Recommended to me by REV. E. LAST, of KELSO, N.B., who kindly interested himself on the patient's behalf—and sent me a statement of his case dated July 5, 1888.

The patient is a stonemason (one of the worst of all trades for those who are liable to chest affections). Illness commenced with a cold, which developed into inflammation of the lungs. Cough followed with great expectoration, occasionally mixed with blood. Medical testimony—"Very little hope."

In three weeks there was manifest improvement, the patient felt stronger, and soon after got out a little daily.

In a letter, Aug. 22, Mr. L. writes:—"J. McNab appears to be making wonderful strides towards permanent recovery. He has raised no blood lately, and eats and sleeps well."

Sept. 29:—"He has gained much strength, but expectoration continues—he takes good walks every day."

J. McNab continued my treatment into the present year, receiving ten or twelve letters from me. His progress to health became more rapid after the winter months had passed.

July 1:—I received a letter from the minister who all along had so kindly interested himself in this poor man, and corresponded on his behalf, and he says:—"More than a year ago I wrote you for J. McNab. He was then confined to his bed, and appeared beyond reach of medical aid—in fact, he had been given up. After following your advice and taking your medicine for some weeks, he was able to get out again. He is now working again at his work as stonemason, and looks the picture of health and strength.

"His friends look upon his discovery as almost miraculous."

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

PHENOMENAL SUCCESS.—The "Queen's Royal" Household Carpets and Hearthrugs are extolled by almost all Nations of the Earth.

GIGANTIC SALE OF THE 'QUEEN'S ROYAL' HOUSEHOLD HEARTHRUGS. (REGISTERED).

CARRIAGE FREE. 2/6

In REVERSIBLE RICH TURKEY PATTERNS, measuring 6 ft. long and 3 ft. wide. These HEARTHRUGS have gained a world-wide reputation, for MAGNIFICENCE, CHEAPNESS, and UTILITY, having no equal. Registered designs and considered works of art. Thousands of REPEAT ORDERS and TESTIMONIALS received, including the undermentioned, giving the HIGHEST SATISFACTION.

SPECIAL OFFER—Three for 7/- Six for 13/6. Twelve for 26/- Carriage Free.

The "Queen's Royal" Household Carpets and Hearthrugs are Patronised by Royalty, Nobility, and Clergy from all parts of the Empire.

A New Design in the "Queen's Royal" Reversible Hearthrugs. Leading Designs for this Season are a revival of old Italian Art Colours, Anglo-Persian, and subdued Turkish and Oriental shades. (Copyright, Registered). If this design is wanted kindly quote registered number 130393.

"The Queen" says: "They have an expressive Oriental character, and we have no hesitation in recommending them."

"Elizabeth College, Guernsey, Sept. 14, 1889.

Mrs. Campbell Penny telegraphs further: "Send one dozen of the 'Queen's Royal Hearthrugs, same as before; they wear wonderfully well, are much approved, and give every satisfaction. Cheque sent 26s. by post"

The Prince Louis of Battenberg
The Princess de Croy
The Countess of Haddington
The Baroness de Linden
The Countess of Lichfield
The Dowr. Countess Clancarty
The Countess of Ashburnham
The Right Hon. The Lady The Archbishop of York
The Countess of Winchelsea
The Dowr. Countess of Roden
Lady Wyatt
The Countess of Mar and Kellie
The Countess of Effingham
The Countess of Ferrier
The Countess of Lanesborough
The Marchioness of Hastings
The Countess of Yarborough
The Viscountess Halifax
The Countess Kearney
The Countess Cowley
The Viscountess of Molesworth
The Viscountess of Hereford
The Duchess of Wellington
The Marchioness of Bute
The Viscountess of Trafalgar

"Sunningdale, Berks, July 5, 1889.

Sir Frederick A. Millbank, Bart., writes: "Please supply me with another 'Queen's Royal' Carpet, 12ft. by 21ft., 49s. 3d., for a dining room for my shooting residence at Barningham Park. Similar terra-cotta and gold colours as supplied for my drawing room last year."

A New Design in the "Queen's Royal" Reversible Hearthrugs. Leading Designs for this Season are a revival of old Italian Art Colours, Anglo-Persian, and subdued Turkish and Oriental shades. (Copyright, Registered). If this design is wanted kindly quote registered number 130394.

The "Bazaar" says: "We like them much. They are of good Turkey design, and we have found them satisfactory in use."

The Magnificent New and Original Design of the "Queen's Royal" Household Reversible Carpets can be had by return in all sizes, with Hearthrugs to match. The leading feature for this season is a revival of the old Italian Art Colours, also Anglo-Persian, Terra Cotta, Fawn, Old Gold, and subdued Oriental Shades.

THE "QUEEN'S ROYAL" HOUSEHOLD REVERSIBLE RICH TURKEY PATTERN

(REGISTERED.) CARPETS (REGISTERED.)

ADMITTEDLY THE CHEAPEST IN THE WORLD.

Woven without seam. Superior Quality, with handsome border to correspond. A marvel of excellence and beauty. Thousands of repeat orders and Testimonials received, including the undermentioned, giving highest satisfaction.

6ft. by 9ft., Carriage Free	...	...	...	price	11s. 9d.
6ft. by 12ft.	„	...	...	...	„	15s. 6d.
8ft. by 9ft.	„	...	...	...	„	12s. 6d.
9ft. by 9ft.	„	...	...	...	„	17s. 9d.
9ft. by 10½ft.	„	...	...	...	„	20s. 9d.
9ft. by 12ft., Carriage Free	...	...	...	price	22s. 9d.
9ft. by 13½ft.	„	...	...	...	„	25s. 9d.
10½ft. by 12ft.	„	...	...	...	„	25s. 9d.
9ft. by 15ft.	„	...	...	...	„	27s. 9d.
12ft. by 12ft.	„	...	...	...	„	27s. 9d.
12ft. by 13ft., Carriage Free	...	...	...	price	31s. 3d.
12ft. by 15ft.	„	...	...	...	„	34s. 9d.
12ft. by 18ft.	„	...	...	...	„	42s. 0d.
12ft. by 21ft.	„	...	...	...	„	49s. 3d.

When ordering, please mention if for Bed, Dining, Drawing, or Sitting Room, and any particular colour preferred.

NOTE.—THE "QUEEN'S ROYAL" HOUSEHOLD CARPETS ARE PRODUCED BY THE MOST COSTLY, INTRICATE, AND ELABORATE MACHINERY, AND I GUARANTEE ARE NOT MADE BY ANY OTHER LOOMS.

"Buthkollidar, Duncon, N.B., 18th July, 1889.

"Mrs. Manifold is much pleased with the 'Queen's Royal' Carpet received (terra-cotta and gold for library), and wishes for another Royal Carpet and Rug to match. Cheque 20s. enclosed."

"Brooke House, Sandbach, Cheshire. 6th Aug., 1889.

W. H. Mawdsley, Esq., writes:—"Please send me three more of your 'Queen's Royal' Carpets, as particulars on other side. I enclose cheque £5 9s. 9d. The 'Royal' Carpets were satisfactory, and the selection admirable."

"Letterfowrie, Drybridge, 22nd August.

Sir Robert G. Gordon writes:—"The 'Queen's Royal' Carpets and Rugs please very much; enclosed find orders for three more Carpets and three Hearthrugs. Cheque for £5 11s. 6d. enclosed."

£50 REWARD will be paid to anyone who can prove my Testimonials for the "Queen's Royal" Hearthrugs or Carpets are not genuine or solicited. I hereby declare they are all spontaneous, thus showing the satisfactory character of my manufacture.

Fine Arts at a Great Sacrifice.

Just purchased for cash from a British Artist, 800 Real Oil Paintings, with very massive gilt frames, new style, and same as illustration. Also Naval and charming Marine subjects, which will be sold at 7s. 6d. per pair, carriage free; worth 30s; average size 20 in. by 12 in. Money returned in full if not satisfied. Write early.

Best Quality Gold Myrtle Marone Art Serge Curtains, Arrasene Work Border, size 3½ yards long. 1½ yards wide, 29s. 6d. per pair; worth 3 guineas.

500 Pairs Plain Art Serge Curtains, in all colours, each curtain 3 yards long, 9s. 6d. per pair; 3½ yards long, 12s. 6d. per pair; 4 yards long, 15s. 6d. per pair. All 1½ yards wide.

Rich Tapestry Curtains, each curtain 3½ yards long, 1½ yards wide, 19s. 6d. per pair.

"Burmah" Reversible Striped Curtains, with tinsel gold, and fringed border, each curtain 3 yards long, 7s. 6d. per pair.

Madras Striped Art Curtains, cream ground, various coloured stripes, each curtain 3 yards long 4s. 6d.; 3½ yards long, 5s. 6d.; 4 yards long, 6s. 6d. per pair.

SPECIAL—5,000 pairs All-Wool White Cloth Blankets, size 8 by 4, price 6s. 9d.; size 9 by 4 price 10s. 6d.; size 10 by 4, price 12s. 6d.

CLEARANCE—600 Arctic Down Turkey Quilts, 4 ft. by 5 ft., 10s. 6d.; 5 ft. by 6 ft., 16s. 6d.; 6 ft by 6 ft., 18s. 6d.; 6 ft. by 7 ft., 21s. 9d. each.

ALL ABOVE GOODS CARRIAGE FREE.

10/6 EACH, POST FREE.—Very Handsome Italian Reversible SILK RUGS (New Art Stripes), average size 60 in. by 90 in. My agent has just sent me the above, having gathered them up from the native hand-loom weavers in the mountains of Italy. They are very heavy, most superb in manufacture, and can be used for Railway Rugs, Bed Quilts, Sea Voyages, Sofa Covers, Table Covers, Curtains, &c. Worth Two Guineas. This opportunity should not be missed.

TO READERS of The Christian. All Goods sent Carriage Paid to any part of the United Kingdom, on receipt of amount, and refunded if not as described. Illustrated Catalogues and Testimonials free. Cheques and Post Office Orders payable to—

F. HODGSON, Manufacturer, Importer, & Merchant, WOODSLEY ROAD, LEEDS.

(N.B.—Foreign Orders executed and packed free, and shipped at lowest rates.) [Please mention this paper.

A WARNING.—Owing to numerous complaints reaching me, I beg to state the above goods can only be had direct from me. NO AGENTS appointed. Beware of unscrupulous advertisers copying my advertisements, and thus misleading. £5 Reward will be paid for information leading to the conviction of any person selling the THE "QUEEN'S ROYAL" Carpets or Hearthrugs. (Copyright.) Entered at Stationers' Hall.

Already Cooked—requires neither boiling nor straining—is made in a minute.

ALLEN & HANBURYS' Infants' FOOD

A nutriment peculiarly adapted to the digestive organs of Infants and Young Children, supplying all that is required for the formation of firm flesh and bone.

BIRD'S CUSTARD POWDER

DINNER AND SUPPER DAINTIES
CLEVER RECIPES are GIVEN AWAY!
With Every Packet of Bird's Custard Powder.
This admirable substitute for Eggs is most enjoyable with Tinned and Preserved Fruits, and provides an Endless Variety of Choice Dishes.

A Great Luxury.
Sold Everywhere, in 6d. Boxes, sufficient for 3 Pints; 1s. Boxes, for 7 pints.

"I heartily recommend it. Eggs may disagree; this will not.—GORDON STABLES, C.M., M.D., R.N."

"PASTRY AND SWEETS," GRATIS.
The new and enlarged edition of this valuable little work, containing Practical Hints and Original Recipes for Tasty Dishes for the Dinner and Supper Table, will be sent, post-free, on receipt of Address, by ALFRED BIRD & SONS, Birmingham.
N.B.—Grocers can have copies for distribution among their customers on application.

NEW DRESSES!
For Autumn & Winter, 1889.

HENRY PEASE & CO.'S SUCCESSORS, Spinners and Manufacturers, THE MILLS, DARLINGTON, invite Ladies to write for the New Winter Range of Patterns, comprising upwards of a Thousand Varieties of the Latest Fashionable Novelties in the highest class of Pure Wool Fabrics, for every description of Ladies', Children's, and Gentlemen's Indoor and Outdoor Dress, Costumes, Mantles, Jackets, Travelling Suits, &c., &c. Prices ranging from a few Shillings for a full Dress Length, and proportionately cheap for the higher grades of Sterling Cloth.

First Hand Shopping

Sold Direct to the Public, and all intermediate Profits given to the Purchaser.

Any length of material is cut, and, if not approved, will be exchanged within Seven Days. ALL PARCELS ARE DELIVERED CARRIAGE FREE to any Railway Station in Great Britain, and to Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Waterford, and Limerick.

DRESSMAKING BY A COURT MODISTE.
To meet the requirements of Ladies wishing their own materials made up, a special department has been established under the charge of a Court Modiste of great experience. Perfect fit and the most fashionable styles guaranteed. Systems for self-measurement and all particulars free.

☞ For the convenience of Ladies in London, a Sample Room has been opened at 244, Regent-st. (corner of Little Argyll-st.), where a full range of patterns, as well as goods in the piece and finished Costumes, may be seen. Systems for self-measurement and all particulars free.

HENRY PEASE & CO.'S SUCCESSORS, Spinners and Manufacturers, THE MILLS, DARLINGTON. Est. 1752.

Tonga
The SPECIFIC For NEURALGIA.

"Tonga maintains its reputation in the treatment of Neuralgia." Lancet.

"Invaluable in facial Neuralgia. Has proved effective in all those cases in which we have prescribed it."—Medical Press.

2/9, 4/6, & 11/. Of all Chemists.

USED BY HER MAJESTY'S SERVANTS.
Gold Medals and Diplomas of Merit at all Exhibitions.

Needham's Polishing Paste

Dazzling Mirror Finish.

The reputation of nearly a century as the most reliable preparation for Cleaning and Brilliantly Polishing BRASS, COPPER, TIN, BRITANNIA METAL, PLATINOID, &c. Can be obtained Retail everywhere, in 6d. and 1s. Pots, 2d. and 1d. Tins, and 1d. Cardboard Boxes. Inventors and Sole Manufacturers—

JOSEPH PICKERING & SONS, SHEFFIELD.
LONDON OFFICE: St. George's House, Eastcheap, E.C.

CADBURY'S

REFRESHING COCOA SUSTAINING

CADBURY'S COCOA is closely allied to milk in the large proportion of flesh-forming and strength-sustaining elements that it contains. It is prepared on the principle of excluding the superabundance of fatty indigestible matter with which cocoa abounds—supplying a refined thin infusion of absolutely pure cocoa, exhilarating and refreshing, for Breakfast, Luncheon, Tea, or Supper—giving staying power and imparting new life and vigour to growing children, and those of delicate constitutions.

Pears' Soap

WITH SUPPLEMENT—"THE CHRISTIAN" ALMANAC FOR 1890—PRICE TWOPENCE.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL"

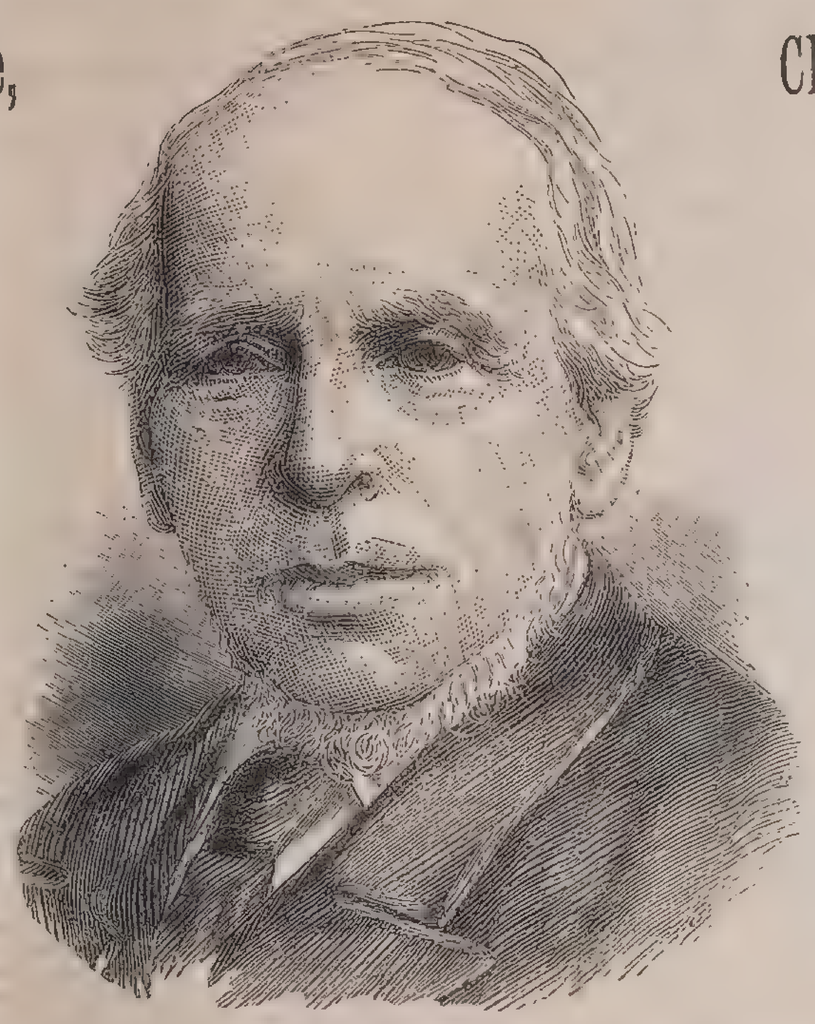
A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort,

Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

SOME SCOTTISH MISSIONS.

Page 16.

AFTER THE CONFERENCES.



Page 9.

PRINCIPAL

"The Christian" Almanac 9
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 10
Rev. W. HASLAM'S Gospel Story 11
Child Life in England. By Rev. B. WAUGH .. 12
Dorking Conference 13
The Baptist Union 13
Christian Policemen in Conference 14
Cape General Mission 14
The Revolution in Hayti 15

CONTENTS.

A Good Work in Manchester 15
Dr. PENTECOST in Scotland 16
Dr. MOXEY in Belfast 16
Portrait and Sketch of Mr. E. W. THOMAS .. 17
American Christians at Work 19
Messrs. MOODY & SANKEY 19
Dr. BARNARDO'S Homes 20
"House to House" in Glasgow 20
More Missionaries for China 21

[Mr. E. W. Thomas.]

No. 1029.] FRIDAY, OCT. 18, 1889.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

TWOPENCE. POST FREE, 2½d.

WORKS BY ANNA SHIPTON.

THE WATCH-TOWER IN THE WILDERNESS.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

"I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will watch to see what He will say unto me."—Hab. ii. 1.

Cheap Editions:
Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

FOOTSTEPS OF THE FLOCK.

A SERIES OF NARRATIVES IN CHRISTIAN LIFE
Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation). 2s. 6d.

"Illustrates Christian life in a way which can hardly fail in being useful."—Literary World.

Cheap Edition, Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

ASKED OF GOD.

EXPERIENCES OF ANSWERED PRAYER.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.
Cheap Editions, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

"A very beautiful exposition, and enforcement of the power of prayer."—The Preacher's Lantern.

May also be had in German, 1s. 4d.

GOD'S MESSENGERS: Or, THE LOST BLESSING.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

Cloth, gilt edges (suitable for presentation), 2s. 6d.

THE LAND OF PROMISE.	HIDDEN RICHES OF SECRET PLACES.
THE FIRST-RIPE GRAPES	THE NET AND THE SNARE.
"JESUS ONLY."	LIMITING THE LORD.
IMPERFECT OBEDIENCE.	THE TREASURES OF DARKNESS.

"The various chapters are mines of richest experience. The author lives at the feet of Jesus, or rather in His bosom; and she receives intimations of guidance which none but such can know."
The Sword and the Trowel.

Cheap Edition: Tinted covers, 1s.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

May also be had in German, 1s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY THE REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

7th Thousand.

THE SHEPHERD PSALM:

MEDITATIONS on the 23rd PSALM.

"The Lord is my Shepherd: I shall not want."

By REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.
(Of Regent's Park Chapel.)

In a Pocket Volume, Cloth boards, 1s.;
Superior Edition:
Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"A piece of choice exposition, in which the teaching of the Psalm is faithfully and clearly exhibited, while the spirit of the Psalm prevades the whole book. It will prove a cordial to the faint, an encouragement to the desponding, a guide to the perplexed, and edifying to all. The writer enters fully and sympathetically into the soul's experiences, and meets their different phases with appropriate and loving counsels."
Footsteps of Truth.

Uniform with "THE SHEPHERD PSALM."

14th Thousand.

CHRISTIAN LIVING.

By REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.
Cloth Boards, 1s.;
Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"Mr. Meyer writes with all the warmth of one who tastes, handles, and feels the Word of Life. In this book he stretches out a loving hand to his fellows in the Christian course, eager to help them in the pathway of holiness."—Footsteps of Truth.

13th Thousand.

THE PRESENT TENSES of the BLESSED LIFE.

BY REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.
Cloth Boards, 1s.;
Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 1s. 6d.

"The Author has learnt the secret of living in the will of God; and he is doing his best to teach this secret to others. It is the very book to put into the hands of a humble Christian seeking a higher, calmer, and steadier life."—Irish Congregational Magazine.

6th Thousand.

ABRAHAM: or, THE OBEDIENCE OF FAITH.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, SPECIALLY ENGRAVED FOR THIS WORK.

Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.;
Bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"This book is beautifully illustrated, and so tastefully bound as to be a most acceptable gift book. . . . Our teachers may learn from it how to draw out the spiritual lessons of the sacred Word."—Gospel Magazine.

"A delightful book; full of experimental religion, and a most suitable present for any true-hearted young man or woman."—The Record.

"It is a charming book."—Baptist Messenger.

10th Thousand.

ELIJAH: and the SECRET OF HIS POWER.

WITH NINE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATIONS.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"The lessons to be learnt from the life of this prophet are well drawn out and emphasised in the pages before us. . . . Mr. Meyer's language is clear, forcible, descriptive, and interesting; his doctrine is always pure and elevating."—The Rock.

10th Thousand.

ISRAEL: A PRINCE WITH GOD.

THE STORY OF JACOB RETOLD.

WITH FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE RIVER JORDAN AND JACOB'S WELL.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition:
Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

"Exceedingly good. Not only spiritual, as everything from our brother, Mr. Meyer, would be—but also thoughtful, fresh, suggestive, and thoroughly practical."
Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with thankfulness, £1 from G.

The Infant Day Nursery. Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Free Ragged Day Schools. Sunday Morning, Afternoon, and Evening Schools. Classes for Rough Boys and Girls. Shelter for Children. Band of Hope. Children's Services. The Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women: Bible Classes, Meetings. Work Classes. Tea-room. Parlour, Library, &c. The Young Men's Christian Society: Bible Classes, Prayer Meetings. Tract Distribution. Open Air Services, &c. For Adults: Mission to Inebriate Women. Mothers' Meetings. Temperance Meetings. Bible Classes. Library. Room to room Visitation. Homes for the Weak and Weary requiring change. Evangelistic Services. Orphanage, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help in aid of the poorer patients and their families. The smallest contributions in money or clothing will be thankfully acknowledged by the Committee.

THE BENEVOLENT OR

STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

For 103 years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 240 Christian men and women.

Funds are urgently needed.

The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

MISSION HOUSE wanted immediately in thickly populated district of Kabylia, North Africa. The Lord's stewards are invited to help in its erection.—LAMB, 2, Cowan-street, Hillhead, Glasgow. 1 Chron. xxix. 3—9.

EAST END DISTRESS.—Distress in East London is very great. Frail Women and little children in absolute want. Every shilling sent provides ten free meals. Every gift, great or small, promptly acknowledged by Rev. J. W. ATKINSON, Claremont, Cawley-road, London, N.E.

MALAGA ABORIGINAL MISSION.

Thursday, 17th inst., Conference Hall, Mildmay-park, 7.30 p.m.; Friday, 18th, City-road Wesleyan Chapel, 7.30 p.m.; Tuesday, 22nd, Y.M.C.A. Hall Whittington-avenue, Leadenhall-street, E.C., 6.30 p.m.; Wednesday, 23rd, Stepney Meeting, London, E., 8 p.m.; Friday, 25th, St. George's School Hall, Tufnell-park, Holloway, 8 p.m.; Sunday, 27th, Stepney Meeting, Stepney-green, 7 p.m.

SAILORS' REST, Naples.—City improvements cause removal to front street, opposite shipping. For purchase of house, funds are urgently needed before December. An English nobleman has given £100. Donations to Messrs. MEURICOFFRE & Co., Naples, or Office of THE CHRISTIAN.

THE LORD'S PORTION.—All who approve of dedicating a fixed proportion of income to charitable purposes are invited to join The Proportionate-Giving Union. Formed in 1887. Nearly 200 members.—Full particulars from Rev. WATKINS, Ubbeston Vicarage, Yoxford.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years, board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies for midwifery and other students.
Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, Hackney.—Will any charitable Lady or Gentleman contribute towards the support of a blind Girl whose father is also blind and very poor? Particulars may be had of Miss RYE. Subscriptions will be thankfully received.

LEYSIAN MEDICAL MISSION, Whitecross-street, needs funds. 150 patients seen weekly, Gospel services held. Subscriptions received by Dr. GRIFFITH, Honorary Physician, 45, Finsbury-square, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

RAMSGATE.—Will any Christian friends help in Mission work carried on during winter, in St. Luke's Workers' Rest. Moderate payment required for board.
Mrs. W. HATHAWAY, Finsbury House, Ramsgate.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

Educational.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Rosehill Preparatory School.—Principal, Miss BAYNE.—The Rev. W. H. Rednap, Incumbent of St. James', Ryde, strongly recommends this School as an Educational Home for boys (number limited to six). Reference permitted to resident nobility and gentry, parents of former pupils. Terms 40 guineas per annum, inclusive.

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS
"The Christian"
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH
SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

PREPARATORY CLASSES, North London Collegiate School, under the superintendence of Miss BUSS.—Students are prepared for the Cambridge Higher Local, Froebel Society's examinations, &c., &c. Afternoon classes open to Ladies in the neighbourhood are held for dressmaking, painting, &c. — Address, the HEAD MISTRESS, Miss Toplis, 202, Camden-road, N.W.

KINDER-HEIM, St. Mary's-terrace, Hastings.—Mrs. BLACKBURN, widow of the Rev. J. Blackburn, can receive two or three little Girls to bring up and educate with her own daughter. Terms moderate.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA. — Home School for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Two elder Girls can be received, on special terms, at once. Earnest Christian training. Finishing masters, &c.
PRINCIPAL, Stuart's Library.

BATH, 33, SION HILL.—Christian Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Lady Principal, Miss POOLEY; who is assisted by resident English, French, and music teachers, and by visiting masters. Miss Pooley receives only a small number of boarders, and her aim is to combine the influences of a true Christian home, with the advantages of a thoroughly good education. Pupils prepared for University and Academy examinations. References kindly permitted to the parents of former and of present pupils.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

MANADON VILLA SCHOOL, Tavistock-road, Plymouth.—The Misses LANE receive a limited number of Resident and Daily Pupils, whose education and Christian training are conducted with the utmost care. Preparation for all the Local examinations. References to parents of present and former pupils.

BATH.—Avonbank House, Grosvenor. Principals: The Misses BUCKPITT. During the past year certificates have been gained from Cambridge University, College of Preceptors, Trinity College, and Christian Evidence Society. No failures in these examinations. Inclusive fees from 30 guineas. Term commenced September 17.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.
DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

A LADY, member of the Society of Friends, would like to meet with one or two little Girls, six years of age or under, to train and educate with her own. A good country home, and fully a mother's care. References exchanged.—FRIEND, c/o Mr. J. G. Armfield, 1, Adelaide-place, London Bridge.

CHERTSEY HOUSE LADIES' SCHOOL, Red-hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS invites reference to Gentleman of high Christian standing and to parents of past and present Pupils. Prospectuses on application.

EDUCATIONAL.—The notice of Parents seeking a truly godly individual training for their daughters, is invited by a Christian Mother, who esteems it a privilege to bear testimony to the incalculable benefit derived by her daughters whilst completing their education at a well-known high-class Ladies' School. Guardians of orphaned families may transfer their charges, confident of the happiest results. The discipline so essential to the well-being of the young, is associated with the refinements of a superior home, and exceptionally healthful surroundings.—Mrs. H. K. M., c/o Housekeeper, 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

SOUTH DEVON.—Home for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Thorough education, combined with every home comfort and Christian training. Resident English and foreign governesses and visiting masters. Preparation for examination. Healthy situation; liberal table; and sanitary arrangements unexceptionable. Terms moderate. To fill vacancies, two young Ladies will be received at the half term at reduced fees (35 guineas per annum inclusive). Prospectuses and references on application.—Miss MORLEY, Mount Vale, Courtenay-park, Newton Abbot.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Gentleman's Daughter can be received on special terms. High-class School. Fourteen pupils taken. Languages, English, drawing, music. 30 guineas. Music from professor, 35 guineas.—ALPHA, Oval House.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received. — For terms and references. Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

A LADY, residing in Farm-house, wishes children to Board and Educate with her own. Experienced governess. References given and exchanged. Terms moderate.
Mrs. P., Salterns, Bideford, North Devon.

AMIENS.—French family (Protestant; English parentage), residing best part, near public gardens, receive one or two boarders. French always spoken. Educational advantages. Inclusive terms.
SERY, Ingénieur Civil, 7, Rue Wulfran Warmé.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Apply to PRINCIPAL. School re-opened Sept. 18.

LADY WISHES to hear of First-class School for her Daughter, where in return for services with juniors she will receive lessons, accomplishments, &c. Terms to
M. KENDRICK, Carlton-terrace, Glasgow.

A LADY WISHES to meet with one or two little children to train and educate with her own at Eastbourne. Comfortable Christian home, and every care. Highest references given and required.—H. H. H., Hendry's Library, Grove-road, Eastbourne.

FRANCE.—Professor PONGE, M.A., Arras (near Calais and Boulogne), will receive in his family one or two young Boarders. Brothers or Sisters taken on special terms. References exchanged.

FRL. K., Box Villa, Warley, Essex, offers a thoroughly good education, with Christian influence and home comfort, to two children. Terms moderate. Excellent references from England and abroad.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

YOUNG FRENCH PROTESTANT GENTLEMAN, B. ès L. (19), Grandson of Mr. J. Keller, of Paris, most highly recommended, wishes to give French lessons in return for Board and lessons in mathematics and chemistry.—E. A., c/o Rev. DU PONTET DE LA HARPE, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W.

REV. G. D. BARTLET, M. receives, at his residence in Highgate, ten Pu (from 9 years) to board and educate for commer or professional spheres. Able masters, individ attention, and careful Christian training. High is strongly recommended by the medical profess Fees, from 18 guineas per term.

FRENCH TUTOR seeks appoi ment in England. Young, but of some experie Highest recommendations. Reference permit to M. le Pasteur DAN. COURTOIS, Laon (Ai France), who will give further particulars.

THE OLD HALL SCHOO
WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlem Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M. Vice-Principal: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M T.C.D. School will re-open, (D.V.), Thursd September 26.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exet —Boys are prepared for business or professio life. Many matriculate at the various universit During the last twelve years pupils have tained more than two hundred certificates (m passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambrid College of Preceptors', and London Univers Examinations. Special attention paid to juni who are taught by a lady. The Word of Go made the sole basis of a careful moral and spirit training, and none but Christian teachers are ployed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires recommend to Christian parents a high-class Sch for Boys, at a very select and temperate South England seaside health resort. A thoroughly g education, with real Christian influence, ho comforts, and close individual attention to boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Deepdale, Caterh Valley.

HOME in a superior and mo comfortable Farmhouse for 10s. a week to a L who would instruct and take interest in a gir six.—MATER, Mrs. Ruffell, Elmstead, Colcheste

CHRISTIAN LADY at Shepherd bush requires Morning Governess for her daugh Subjects of general education. Preference French and German included.
E. C., 28, Connaught-street, W

PROTESTANT FRENCH LADY Resident Teacher in Ladies' School, after Christ Must have had some experience, and understa English grammatically.—Apply by letter only, K., 53, Belsize-park-gardens, N.W

GERMAN LADY, who wishes learn English, would like to find family in coun where she would give French and German less in return, and would pay a small sum per mont B., High Wycombe Post-office, Buck

Y.W.C.A. SECRETARY recommen experienced Governess (26). Three years' refere First Class College Preceptors for English, vanced arithmetic, Scripture, book-keeping, dr ing, conversational French, German, element Latin, Spanish, music.—J., Mrs. Edwin Hoop Governess Institute and Home, Compton-terra Islington, London. Introduction free.

GOVERNESS.—Re-engageme required. Thorough English, French, piano, Ger (grammatically), Latin, algebra. First-c references. Has travelled. With those gathered the Lord's Name.
ALPHA, Glenarm House, Shaw, Lancashire

GOVERNESS.—A Lady wishes recommend a German Lady. Speaks French w —Mrs. C. A. BARCLAY, 43, Augusta-gardens, Fol stone.

NURSERY GOVERNESS.—A La wishes to find a situation for her Nursery Go ness, aged 26, who has lived with her two ye and is leaving as her little girl is going to board school. Able to teach English, music, and draw to young children where nurse or maid is kep Miss MALIN, 67, Cassland-road, South Hackn London.

GOVERNESS wanted, for thr little Girls (eldest 9). Must be good teacher, speak French (fellowship with Open Brethren). A young Swiss Maid (Protestant) to act as Housem and assist with children. Neighbourhood of fast.—Mrs. MOSTYN, Rostrevor, Co. Down.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Want

A PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON eminence in Russia and Germany, now practis in Paris and speaking several languages, would to accompany a gentleman or family abroad fo few months.
M. D., care of Manager, 205, Rue St. Honoré, Pa

AS PRIVATE SECRETARY, Cor spondent, Clerk, or Amanuensis. A Christian, w educated young Man seeks a post of trust. Hig references. Salary moderate.
A. J. B., 1, Heathfield-gardens, Chiswick, W

EXPERIENCED PASTOR, oppos to Down Grade movement and powerful extemp preacher, seeks a charge. Free Church of Engl or Liturgical worship preferred. Being p requires stipend for support. Open to sup pulpits.
EXPECTANS, 38, Meyrick-road, Sheerness-on-Se

F. H. LEYBOURNE, evangeli formerly known as the Derby Boxer, is now seek some kind of settled appointment in the Lo work, or would take short Missions. Excell testimonials of the past nine years' work.
449, Hanover-buildings, Bermondsey, London, S

FRENCH AND SWISS SERVANT —Mrs. BRAMWELL BOOTH wishes to recomm a Nurse, Housemaid, Cook, and Housekeeper.
259, Mare-street, Hackney, N.

October 18, 1889.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Rev. Thomas Waugh, Wesleyan Methodist evangelist.

We learn, with much regret, from a New York telegraphic despatch, that Dr. Talmage's Brooklyn Tabernacle was destroyed by fire on Sabbath evening last.

In our next issue we hope to give the first instalment of an extremely interesting work by Rev. John Macpherson, of Dundee, entitled—Isabella Macpherson: A Devoted Life. While the narrative is mainly descriptive of the life and work of the writer's sister, who died recently, it gives many vivid and graphic glimpses into the religious condition and movements of the time in the north of Scotland. The narrative will be continued from week to week, and will also shortly be published in book form.

We commend some powerful words of Dr. Dale on the last night of the remarkably successful session of the Baptist Union in Birmingham:—

> The members of their churches were active in all kinds of public service. They were members of town councils and county councils; they were members of school boards; they were engaged in all kinds of movements to promote various social reforms; and for the most part their people were keen politicians....But there lay their peril. He sometimes wondered whether they found time and disposition for brooding in solitary hours over the great discoveries of God, and of God's relations to man, and of the transcendent glory of man's destiny in Christ which had come to them, and of which they were the trustees for the world. Only as they knew God and eternal things, not by tradition but at first hand, could Christian people speak with any purpose to others concerning the Christian Gospel. Only when the service they rendered to man, whatever might be its form, was rendered with the power and the life that they received from God, was it possible for that service to achieve its highest ends.

The opening this week of Mansfield College, Oxford, in connection with the Congregational body, forms the text of a very friendly article in The Times of Tuesday last. The event, says the writer, "marks in many respects a new epoch in the history of the University of Oxford." The article thus concludes:—

> No one who has at heart the true welfare of the nation and the Church, of Oxford and of theological study, can hesitate to wish well to such an institution, or fail to see in it an omen of happy augury for the future reconciliation of those social antagonisms which have inflated the pride of the Church and fostered the dissidence of Dissent.

The large and enthusiastic meeting in St. James's Hall on Friday evening constituted a splendid moral protest against the degradation that has too long disgraced our places of recreative resort for the masses. The prelates and other reverend gentlemen who spoke went very far—much further than many of their fellow Christians can go—in advocating popular amusements; but, at any rate, they uttered no uncertain sound as to the crying need for the purification of our music-halls. The opposers at the meeting were a very noisy but an extremely small minority, and the great audience was practically unanimous in its resolve to uphold the hands of the London County Council in any determination it may come to for the strict moral censorship of these performances.

One point in connection with this subject, about which difference of opinion exists, is the extent to which "disorderly" women may be allowed to frequent places of public entertainment. We should think it would not be very difficult to distinguish those cases where such persons are present simply to be entertained, and those in which they are there with an obviously evil intent. But, as The Times well observes, there is a still more pressing question that ought to be dealt with in the interests of public morality and decency; we allude to the glaring and growing temptations of many leading London thoroughfares. Our daily contemporary says:—

> The streets present greater and less avoidable temptations to young men who would not sin if they were not tempted, than those places of dubious character and disreputable company which no young man need enter unless he chooses. It is greatly to be desired that the streets should be cleansed. Something might surely be done without falling into the extremes of Puritanism and persecution. But if nothing is to be done simply because a respectable girl was once wrongfully accused by an over-zealous constable, and if the condition of the streets is to be rendered a thousand times worse by the suppression of places of entertainment like the Westminster Aquarium, not even the labours of Hercules will avail to cleanse them in the end.

The authorities in Edinburgh and Glasgow appear to be able to reduce this patent evil to its lowest possible dimensions; why should not London exercise its power of coping with it? Now that we are to some considerable extent self-governed, is it too much to hope that the forces of "law and order" will be wielded so as to secure a much-to-be-desired result.

A meeting for united prayer will be held at Eccleston-street Conference Hall, near Victoria Station, on Tuesday, 29th inst., at four o'clock, for the purpose of commending to the Lord's guidance and blessing Lord Radstock and Rev. Canon Wilberforce, during their approaching visit to India. Canon Wilberforce intends, as far as may be compatible with the principal object of his journey—the restoration of his health—to investigate personally the opium and drink questions in India. The proposed meeting, at which both these brethren expect to be present, will have special reference to these subjects.

Several correspondents request us to call attention to the fact that lottery tickets for a prize drawing in aid of the funds of an Irish Roman Catholic cathedral are being freely circulated in this country. This device for raising money is an old one, and we have frequently warned the public against giving it any countenance. As the authorities do not take any steps to prohibit it, we must assume that the plan adopted is outside the scope of the statutes against lotteries, though we confess our inability to distinguish between it and other forms of gambling that are confessedly unlawful.

There is the intensity and graphic force of one of John Gough's orations in Mr. Runciman's paper in the October Contemporary Review on "The Ethics of the Drink Question." Every temperance reformer may usefully ponder his words:—

> It is only by asserting power over hearts, souls, imaginations, that you can make any sort of definite resistance to the awe-striking plague that envenoms the world.

The article, however, cannot be summarised. Written, as it is, by a man who has surveyed these depths, who describes the awfulness of the wasting he has witnessed among youths, the scholars who have come to starving and rags, and the omnipotence of the habit on its victims, the paper is one that ought to be read in all its harrowing details. It ought to rebuke the false sentiment among us in relation to the plutocrats whose trade has gone so far to create this unmeasured crime and misery.

Dr. Ernst Engel has recently issued a computation showing that during the last thirty-four years no fewer than 2,253,000 lives have been lost in the various wars, exclusive of the deaths from sickness; the Franco-Prussian war alone having its battle roll of 215,000. Yet there are people who look calmly upon the prospect of another European war.

A contemporary states that a West-end jeweller is constantly making both gold and silver collars and gold bangles for dogs. Some of the collars, it is said, are set with precious stones, one dog carrying £250 worth of diamonds round his neck. The dogs' tailor is equally busy making coats of silk, velvet, and cloth.

In the other end of London troops of pallid half-starved women are toiling for a penny an hour, and that by no means to be depended on. A large organisation, with the Bishop of Bedford, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, Mr. Charrington, Miss Black, and others at its head, is moving to endeavour to obtain for them the higher remuneration of fourpence. How shall we reconcile these opposite conditions, or convince the toilers, in the face of these things, that it is their duty to be content with their lot?

While Rev. S. A. Barnett (in The New Review) looks to the landlords, to new laws, and the better administration of existing laws for the removal or amelioration of many causes of evil in the district, he states plainly his opinion that "it is only the service of those in whom is the spirit of Christ that can effect any good." Urging its claim upon the leisure of other people, and admitting that the claim has to some extent been recognised, he says that the demand is far beyond the supply, and he appeals for others to work and live in the district. Those in whom there is the desire for missionary work, and who are not suited to the foreign field, would find in the East-end of London ample scope for self-sacrificing labour in the service of God and man.

Those who are working to ensure the better observance of Sunday in France have an uphill task before them. The powerful influence of the Press is in the scale against them, as was shown by its ungracious reception of the address lately sent to the various Editors by the Committee of the French Society for Sunday Observance. It is earnestly hoped, however, that the recent Congress held in Paris will have sown the seed of a better feeling, both individual and national, on this subject, and will have helped to awaken the French conscience to the fact that the evil is a great one, and requires a remedy. As yet the outlook is not very bright, and long-standing custom presents a formidable barrier, the removal of which must be a work of some time.

It was intimated by speakers at the Congress that in some industries the Sunday closing of workshops was almost impossible; but the passing of a resolution recommending that workmen should have at least fifty-two days' rest in the year was a practical endorsement of the contention that continuous work every day of the year is morally, physically, and socially injurious. The time is scarcely ripe in France for legislation on the subject, and the efforts of reformers must in the meantime be directed towards educating and transforming public opinion.

As regards the increase of Sunday desecration in our own country, the following extract from the speech of Earl Beauchamp at the Church Congress (which, however, also contained sentiments that we cannot endorse) indicates the true position of the matter:—

> The working classes are so sensible of the benefits, temporal as well as religious, derived by the enforced cessation of labour on one day of the week, that they, for the most part, do not seek a change in the law. The agitation, to a great extent, proceeds from those who, many of them actuated by benevolent motives, are anxious to assume the attitude of friends of the working classes, and utter in their name and in their behalf sentiments alien to the real opinion of the classes they amiably patronise. Much of the demand for opening museums and picture galleries on Sundays, proceeds from persons well-to-do and highly cultured, who have ample leisure on the six working days of the week to enjoy the contemplation of works of art, of natural history, or antiquities.

A correspondent calls attention "to the style of advertisements now being exhibited in the windows of tobacconists. Many of them are vulgar and indecent pictures, and can only serve an evil purpose. It is very noticeable in Jersey, where tobacconists abound." This is not an evil of only recent date. It is indicative of the low moral tone which from some cause or other often attaches to smoking, that a complaint of this kind can truthfully be made. The disgusting rudeness of breathing smoke into other people's faces, is another evidence of the degrading tendency of smoking.

In the prominence given to present-day questions in ecclesiastical assemblies there is danger of passing over such as make no loud cry, but may prove far more fruitful in their effects on our times. At the end of last month a meeting of Methodist New Connexion ministers was held at Hanley, in Staffordshire, the report of which we have read with much interest. Two years ago eight younger ministers of the Connexion formed themselves into a union to obtain an enduement of power, and to stimulate each other to fidelity in the service of Christ. That little body of eight has grown into ninety-five, principally younger ministers. They met at Hanley, in what is regarded as the cathedral of the body. Two hallowed days were spent in addresses and prayers that rose far above politics and controversies, and that had specially in view how they could better live, and dare greater things for the Lord.

The past few weeks have been full of Church Conferences. A feature of them deserves a notice which they have not received. We read of denunciations of "Nonconformists" by a few highly ritualistic clergy, and strong words of some Nonconformists against State Churchmen. It is manifest that the "laity" who occupy official places in civic life do not share these feelings. The Mayors of Birmingham and Hull gave welcome to the Baptist and Congregational Unions, and in the former place persons of all creeds offered hospitality to the Baptists. Deans Vaughan and Perowne spoke strongly at Cardiff against the use of "arrogant and insolent" language in references to their "Nonconformist brethren," and against the bigotry that refused to acknowledge theirs as Christian churches. Let us remember these things as a set-off against a too bitter sectarianism, and recall how pleasing they must be to Him who is "the Author of peace, and Lover of concord."

During a discussion respecting "Pleasant Sunday afternoons" for the people, on the last day of the Congregational Union meetings, some valuable evidence was presented in relation to such services. In the Midland towns many thousands of men and women, hitherto neglecters of public worship, have been thus brought under the sound of the Gospel. But it came out that they were neither infidels nor cared to be amused. A service that aimed more to entertain than to instruct disappointed them. They liked afternoon gatherings where there was briskness and brevity, but not those where there was any compromise; neither did they object to faithful dealing. There was no book they wanted in the place of the Bible, and they found no fault with hard hits at their vices.

In commenting in our last issue upon the opening service at St. Mary's, Cardiff, in connection with the Church Congress, we expressed regret that the Protestant Bishop of Derry should have preached on the occasion. A Londonderry correspondent writes to the papers, "on the highest authority," that the "extremely ritualistic service" caused intense pain and surprise to Bishop Alexander, who feels deeply that he was placed in a false position by those who had charge of the arrangements. The Bishop declares emphatically that

> It was not a Church of England service; that it was only the desire to avoid creating a scene that prevented him from leaving the church, and that had he had the least notice of what was going to take place he would have sat outside the sanctuary and withdrawn after preaching.

It is stated that the Bishop will publicly refer to the matter at an early date. The Bishop of Llandaff too has stated that he could not have supposed it possible that the service would have assumed such a character, otherwise he would not have requested Dr. Alexander to preach.

Some of our Romanist contemporaries make merry over this imitation of the Mass at Cardiff; but the Osservatore Romano has an article in which much satisfaction is expressed at the evidence afforded by the service in question, the movement for establishing Brotherhoods, &c., of the decadence of the English Church. We trust, however, there will now be a healthy reaction, and that the Cardiff service will have the effect of awakening from slumber those who have thoughtlessly been slipping Romeward.

A thoughtful paper, under the heading of "London Empty," in The Hospital, deserves to be circulated broadcast, so full is it of stern warning to those who are neglecting their opportunities and disregarding their responsibilities. The writer says:—

> The rich who are feeble-minded and vain, or who are sordid and brutal, often bring greater injury upon their country than the debauched and the criminal. Everyone looks upon the great and the powerful as lights to guide; but the debauched and criminal are regarded as beacons to warn.

Yet, while this is perfectly true, there is a danger of shifting our own responsibilities upon the shoulders of the rich. Each man's responsibility in regard to his fellows is a lesson which is eminently needed in the present day.

There are signs that Australia is beginning to awaken to a sense of the danger attending her policy of excluding all religious instruction from the State schools. In some cases (e.g., in Victoria) this has gone to the extent of removing even the remotest reference to the Christian faith from the school books. The party desirous of re-establishing religious teaching in the schools is growing in numbers. At the recent Brisbane Diocesan Synod a resolution in favour of providing Bible teaching in all State schools, and of taking the necessary measures in conjunction with the other religious bodies towards amending the Education Act, was supported by both clergy and laity. But, as a first step towards this end, there must be some agreement among the different churches as to the principles of religion which are to be taught. This aspect of the question, it is to be feared, will cause heart-burnings; but it is to be hoped that the rising agitation will result in securing for the youth of the colony instruction in the great facts and foundation doctrines of the Gospel without denominational watchwords.

HOP-PICKERS IN KENT.—I thank those who responded to my appeal in The Christian concerning the hop-pickers. We had most happy service among them; we distributed some thousands of books and tracts, had two free teas, were able to minister in small ways to their bodies, and had many Gospel meetings at their various encampments. Three or four meetings every night, and several on the Lord's Day were held, and often they parted with us very reluctantly.

Plaxtol, Kent. George Gillingham.

GOSPEL MISSION, LEICESTER.—This Mission is in a very prosperous state at the present time. It is some five weeks since the new pastor, Mr. W. E. Lewis, settled here, and no small blessing has been experienced. A correspondent states: On Sunday, Oct. 6, nineteen were given the right hand of fellowship, some twelve or fourteen remaining on probation. The congregations are large, and all the services are of a very cheerful character. Services are held almost every night in the week. Mr. J. Burnham is conducting a mission from Oct. 13 to 20.

After the Conferences.

The many Conferences of the year, designed to promote the spiritual life of God's people and forward his work, are now past. Mildmay, Keswick, Glasgow, Manchester (City Mission), Dublin—what hallowed memories these names stir in the hearts of thousands. What abundant blessing has been ministered through them. Even many of us in far-away lands have drunk in new inspiration as we have perused the reports these pages have brought to us. Evidently these yearly gatherings, having reference to no party ends, and designed only to foster spirituality and promote the best Christian growth, are now an established and growing institution, and are intended, in the gracious purpose of our Lord, to contribute in no small degree to the blessed end of permanently raising the life of his people.

But as we see these conventions one by one disperse, the same question repeats itself: Will these thousands of souls retain that to which they have attained? How many will go on treading the spiritual elevations to which the addresses, the prayers, and the sympathetic presence of so many like-minded ones have lifted them? They return to the commonplaces of ordinary life. Will they therein abide in fulness of blessing? Will any be found, in the months to come, sitting in sadness and desolation of spirit, and wondering why their fondly-embraced experience has somehow eluded them?

It is as a corrective of this I would point out a word of the Apostle Paul to the Philippians, which seems exactly calculated to meet the need. In the second chapter he had been dwelling upon the obedience unto death of the Lord Jesus, and his consequent exaltation. He then adds: "Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling: for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." They had obeyed IN HIS PRESENCE. What strength and inspiration it was to have the great Apostle to the Gentiles with them, and to obey and rejoice as helped thereto by him! How great the change when he was gone, and the little company of believers at Philippi stood without his strong, courageous words, and stimulating example! It was easy to obey then, with him among them.

How applicable all this is to us! We have not had the help of the presence of apostle or prophet. But how often have we rejoiced in a Mildmay, or a Keswick, or in a circle of choice friends, or in a warm church home, or in a Spirit-led pastor, or in some stalwart soul on whom we leaned. We "obeyed" then, as did the Philippians in Paul's "presence." "It is good to be here," we said; and further, "not knowing what we said," or what was good for us, we would have remained in the loved and helpful presence. Yes, it was good to be there. But it was good and needful, too, that we go down from the mount of transfiguration; that we be deprived of that which we felt so uplifting. So the Conference is past; or the pastor or friend removed; or the book finished that brought with it in its perusal such a glow of soul; or, in the case of not a few, they are themselves taken far away to serve the Lord in other lands, amid strange scenes, and in a benumbing moral atmosphere; or some may be laid aside by sickness.

Beloved child of God, be helped by Paul's words. Observe what he puts before them as a stimulus to "much more" obedience in his absence. He tells them of ANOTHER PRESENCE, the Holy Presence within them; of the One who has come to make their body his temple: "For it is GOD who worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." In effect he says:—Do not "fear and tremble" because I am no longer with you to aid your deeply felt weakness; rather let a holy awe possess you, a "fear and trembling," a solemn yet gladdening consciousness, before the stupendous fact that God is in you. He is within, to will and to do; He abides, deeply hidden but really present, in your inmost spirit, which He Himself created for his shrine. Believe it; continue believing it, though to sense nought appears. Notwithstanding the badger skins without, the glory is within, hidden there in the inner sanctuary, where nature's light is all excluded; for where the ark of the blood-sprinkled, law-holding heart of the believer is, there also is the Holy Presence. The Lord is in his holy temple, let all the earth—let all nature, its fear, its unbelief—keep silence before Him. You stand on holy ground; draw near and behold this great sight—the bush of thy humanity burning with fire and not consumed. The Triune God is here; it is God the Spirit who works within you according to the will of God the Son, and according to the Father's good pleasure. As you obey, the Father comes, and the Son, by the Spirit, to make their abode with you. Will you then feel weakened at the loss of the presence of mortal man, when you are in this Divine Presence? Will you miss the arm of flesh, when Omnipotence wraps you round and fills you?

Let this suggest to us the secret of perennial power and blessing. When the believing soul, in deep self-abnegation and humility, has, by that faith that goes out of self, to stand in God's realised presence, received deep down into its spirit and life the awful yet blessed fact that God has taken up his abode within it; has made it his temple—when the soul has received this, and in lowly faith holds on to it from day to day, distrusting the least motion of the hateful flesh, knowing it is the mortal enemy of the spirit, and keeping it in the place of death—then gradually will dawn into the soul the consciousness, never again to be lost, of that PRESENCE. Then its sun will no more go down; it will go from strength to strength; it will "obey" "with fear and trembling," knowing its very obedience is the outcome of the Christ-life the Spirit momentarily communicates to it; and, as it obeys, it is strengthened to obey the more. Thus it is rendered independent of any outward surroundings or circumstances of any other "presence," whether apostle, pastor, friends, or conference; and the Indwelling Christ becomes at length as real to it as the Atoning Christ or the Enthroned Christ.

"All scenes alike engaging prove
To souls impressed with sacred love:
Where'er they dwell, they dwell in Thee,
In heaven, in earth, or on the sea.

"To me remains nor place nor time;
My country is in every clime;
I can be calm and free from care
On any shore, since God is there.

"While place we seek, or place we shun
The soul finds happiness in none;
But with a God to guide our way,
'Tis equal joy to go or stay."

Mogador, Morocco. E. F. BALDWIN.

"The Christian" Almanac.

With this week's issue is published, as a Special Supplement, "The Christian" Almanac, which we have endeavoured to render worthy of its predecessors in the several features that have in the past proved interesting and useful. In addition to information such as is commonly found on almanacs, "The Christian" Almanac gives from the pages of Holy Writ a message for every day in the year. Selected with great care, these sentences have each and all a distinct spiritual significance and bearing, and we trust that, as they may be read throughout the coming year in many thousands of homes, they will have a powerful influence for good. The words of warning and encouragement are all pure and wholesome, because from the undefiled source of God's Word. The year opens with "Still upward" (Ezek. xli. 7), and ends with "Thou art the same, and thy years shall have no end" (Ps. cii. 27). We sincerely trust that herein are expressed beforehand the hearts' experience and ascription of many believers who may next year be cheered and helped by this familiar wall-sheet.

The illustrations, this year, are in green tints, and set forth the ever-interesting and instructive life of Jacob.

THE MASTER.*

Let us speak of the Master whenever we meet,
No theme is so precious, so stirring and sweet,
So kindly and quickening to faith and to love,
As Jesus, our Jesus, in glory above.

Let us speak for the Master wherever we go,
Displaying our colours to friend and to foe;
Exalting his person, his work, and his ways,
His cross, and his coming; and all to his praise.

Let us speak to the Master, whatever we need,
In Him we are owners of riches indeed;
Since He is our Portion, our Treasure, and Store,
E'en God who bestowed Him can give nothing more.

Let us speak with the Master by night and by day,
In constant communion beguiling the way;
Till, reaching his presence, we rest at his feet,
And know from that moment our joy is complete.

* From WITH HIM FOR EVER and other Poems. By E. R. V., author of "Watered Lilies." J. Nisbet & Co. A beautiful little volume, containing many precious truths in lyric settings. "Watered Lilies" ("The Master stood in His Garden") is a gem which has enjoyed a wide circulation through inclusion in "The Christian Choir."

THE McALL MISSION.—The Directors of the McAll Mission in France have asked all their helpers to set apart next Lord's Day (October 20) for special prayer and praise. The wonderful blessing vouchsafed in all their work calls for earnest thankfulness, and the many supporters of the Mission in this country will no doubt gladly join those in the field in words of true gratitude. The frequenters of the 130 halls now open will meet for prayer on Sunday next, and we ask all to join them in spirit at the throne of grace. Information concerning the work may be obtained from Rev. Robert McAll, Representative in Great Britain, 17, Tressillian-crescent, St. John's, London, S.E.

FINSBURY PARK Y.M.C.A.—This North London Association had a good opening meeting for the winter session on Friday last. A large number of young men responded to the President's invitation to a social reception, and at the public meeting following the hall was quite filled with friends. The retiring hon. sec., Mr. R. Howard Henson, was able to make the gratifying announcement that the debt upon the building, which has greatly hampered the work, had been paid off through the kindness of a friend. The new general secretary, Mr. F. M. Black, who was very cordially received, presented an attractive programme for the coming season. Spirited addresses were delivered by Rev. John McNeill and Canon Hurst. K. R. S.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

V.—CHRIST UNSEEN, BUT LOVED.

1 Peter i. 8, 9.

The sixth verse begins, and the eighth ends, with a Greek word expressive of leaping, bounding joy. It is strange that such a word should be used of the feelings experienced by handfuls of scattered saints over whom the dark thunder-clouds of persecution were beginning to gather heavily. And yet it is not strange when we study the sources of that joy, which are included within these golden brackets, and the first of which we considered in our last. Is there not joy in the thought that trial is the refiner's fire, sharp but salutary, the necessary preparation for results of immeasurable blessedness? And is there not yet deeper cause for joy, triumphant and exulting, in the relation into which we have been brought with Jesus Christ our Lord?

Yes, the iron may hiss, and the fire sting; friends may desert, and foes may threaten; the cold waters may creep up around our person, and the shadows of the dark valley fling themselves between us and the sunshine; nevertheless, whatever be the nature or severity of our manifold trials, it shall be enough for us to know that they are working out the results of untold glory, and that nothing can break that holy and blessed personal relationship into which we have entered with Him whom Bernard never tired of addressing as Jesus Master.

Jesus, then, is the Heart and Centre of these burning words, words which recall the thrice-question of the Lake of Galilee, Lovest thou Me? and the never-to-be-forgotten beatitude of the upper chamber, Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed. And is not this verse an epitome of Christianity? What makes us Christians except that we believe in and love Him whose receding form was veiled by the chariot-cloud that swept beneath Him as He passed home to heaven? We may accept and appreciate the words of Buddha, or Confucius, or Epictetus, whilst we concern ourselves but little with the speakers; but we may not do this with the words of Christ, and still be Christians. We cannot take his words, and ignore Him. Christianity is the personal relationship of the soul to Christ. Begin, not with his words, but with Himself; and when you possess Him, you cannot fail of having all He said, and did, and is, and will be, world without end.

I. An unseen Christ—a possible hindrance to exulting joy.—"Not having seen;" "Now ye see Him not." To a superficial thinker this privation of a personal vision of Jesus might be deemed sufficient to put all after ages on a lower platform than that glad first one which looked upon his face,—the face which reflected the moods of his tranquil and holy nature, which lit up homes of sorrow and lives of despair with the radiance of hope, which attracted little children to his embrace, and often shone with the gleam of celestial communications, glancing between Him and God. Surely not to have seen it might count as an irreparable loss!

The old divine said that he wished he could have seen three things—Rome in her glory, Paul preaching at Athens, and Christ in the body. And it was because of their desire to satisfy themselves, and to meet this great longing, that the great painters of Christendom have covered the walls of picture galleries with conceptions of the face of Jesus. Crowds have stood transfixed and touched before these masterpieces of art, but who has not turned from the very noblest of them with a sigh of dissatisfaction, and a secret conviction that even if the sublimest feature were to be taken out of each separate picture and all combined into one, the face so composed must still fall infinitely short of that on which Deity and humanity met, and shone, and wept, and loved. We shall never see anything worthy of that face till we see Him as He is. "They shall see his face," and "the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

But is there not hardship and irreparable loss in this? Not so. He can be nearer, dearer, better to us to-day, than if those old blessed days in which He walked with his disciples over the hills of Galilee, or fell asleep in the stern of Peter's boat, had been drawn out like a golden thread throughout the centuries. We could not have always had Him then. Domestic duties, the needs of the world, the requirements of food, or business, or sleep must have taken us from his side. Or, at the best, we could only have known Him as part of a great multitude, all of whom would have been equally eager to possess Him for themselves. In the press of saints and apostles we must have necessarily occupied the outer rim of the vast crowd, and been satisfied with a transient glimpse, or with such beams as those which travel from our sun to Uranus, on the extreme limits of our sphere. And amid it all, there might have been a strong temptation to such earthly, sensuous love as made the woman of the crowd exclaim, "Blessed is she that bare thee, and the breasts which thou hast sucked;" expressions which He corrected by immediately recalling the thoughts of the crowd to the greater blessedness of those who hear the word of God and keep it (Luke xi. 28).

If we had seen Him once, or might see Him still, our joy would never have sustained the pain of losing Him, of intermittent fellowship, or of the necessity of sharing Him with others. It would have been too deeply rooted in the outward and physical. It would have languished when manifold trials intercepted its vision. It could never have possessed that vigour, that independence of circumstances, that power to defy imprisonment, solitude, and desertion, that buoyant and heavenward ardour which indicates that its temper is celestial, its nature Spirit-given. Therefore the invisibility of Jesus, which might have seemed inimical to our joy, so far from being so, is rather a condition of its existence in the soul; and for this reason, that as a spiritual presence our dear Lord can be more to us and more with us, than if He had lingered ever on our earth. Did He not therefore say Himself, "It is expedient for you that I go away"? Christ dwelling in our heart by the Spirit, with us, around us, in us, is infinitely more than He could have been to us, though, like Peter, James, and John, we had been the chosen companions of his earthly life.

II. Two Links unite us to the Unseen Lord.—"Ye love." "Believing." It is hard to say which is first or chief. We cannot love without believing, nor can we believe without loving. Faith is light, and love is heat. Where one enters, the other follows. Woven in the texture of each of heaven's sunbeams, we cannot have one without the other; and our joy will be in direct proportion to the presence of these twin celestial sisters in our souls.

(1) As to Love.—No man is a Christian who does not love the Lord Jesus. "If any man love not the Lord Jesus, let him be accursed." This is the touchstone of trial for each one of us; not what we profess or say, but whether we love, and how much. But let us remember that love reveals itself differently according to that aspect of Christ's person or work on which the Spirit has fixed the beholder's eye. In some, conscious of a great deliverance, it takes the form of gratitude. In others, smitten with the beauty of his character, of complacency. In others, again, pre-occupied with his claims, of reverential devotion to his service. The symptoms of its presence are manifold. Sometimes adoring silence, at others irrepressible tears, or the sudden burning of the cheek, or unostentatious acts of mercy, or steadfastness in confessing Him at all costs. Love betrays itself, whether it fetches water from the well of Bethlehem at peril of life, or comes with precious spikenard to anoint the dear body of the dead.

Those that love Christ most, often accuse themselves of not loving Him. Their love so conceives of Him that He seems deserving of something infinitely better than they can give. They love Him so much that they would be almost prepared to make way for any who could love Him better, and yet to stand aside would be agony. Let such take heart, He who knows all things, knows how much they love. And, after all, love is measured, not by feelings or sighs, or tears, but by acts. You love Christ as much as you are prepared to do, or suffer, or give up for Him.

How may we love Christ more?—Spend much time alone in contemplating what He has done for you; and what He is, as the fairest among ten thousand and the altogether lovely. Stir the inner fire by means of memory, and let hope pile on it the fuel of promise till it begin to blaze. Cultivate the habit of speaking aloud to Him, in an empty chamber, or a lonely walk, until He be interlaced in the tiniest episode of existence. Open your heart to the entrance of the Holy Spirit, shedding abroad the love of God in the heart, and gathering the rays of that love into a burning focus, so that you may love God back with love which has come from his heart into yours. And, very specially, accustom yourself to do many things which cost you self-sacrifice and effort for the sake of his dear love. As we show love to others we understand his love to ourselves. "He that loveth knoweth God, for God is love."

The key to the knowledge of the love of Jesus is not in singing rapturous hymns, nor in seeking to arouse intense emotion, but in quietly doing daily deeds of self-denial for his sake who bids us sow ourselves as corns of wheat in the ground, and who measures the least act of love, not by the greatness of the deed itself, but by the strength of the love which prompts it. It is astonishing how quickly we graduate in the school of love when we begin to put in practice all we know.

(2) As to Faith.—Who is there of us that does not often cry with the disciples: "Lord increase our faith"? Certain it is that in creased faith would mean increased joy. But are we all prepared to use the means within our reach for obtaining this increased faith? The germ of faith is the creative gift of God; but its nurture and culture lie with us, by the grace of the Holy Spirit.

The conditions of its growth are these.—There must be, first, the putting away from the heart and life of all known evil and inconsistency. The reason for much of the weak faith around is to be found in the permission of forbidden and questionable things, which clog and oppress the soul. These are the birdlime on the soul's wings, the hood on the inner vision. Next, there must be time given for quiet musing over the statements and promises of the Word of God, till they assume a definite shape as eternal facts. Lastly, there must be habitual obedience to every known duty; so that, as the will of God is revealed, it shall be instantly embodied in action; and this, notwithstanding any difficulty that may line the path. Where these rules are observed, faith will grow exceedingly, and will make the unseen Saviour a living bright reality to the soul yearning for a hand that can never fail, a heart that can never cease to throb.

III. The Resulting Joy.—Is there not joy in love when a barrier is broken down which for years had estranged; when confession is made and forgiveness is granted; when heart flows to heart; when the golden key of love unlocks the choicest and most sacred treasures? To know that since we love Christ, we must have been loved; that we are loved with a love which will never let us go, but which will cling to us through life and death and eternal ages, not for anything good or worthy in us, but because of its own sweet will and choice; to be persuaded that nothing, not even our failures and inconsistencies, can separate us from the love of Christ—this surely must thrill us with joy, however great and manifold may be the trials through which we are called to pass.

Is there not joy in faith?—"Think with what joy the long-imprisoned debtor, drowned in debt, receives a full discharge and his liberty, or a condemned malefactor the news of his pardon, and this will somewhat resemble it, and yet fall far short of the joy which faith brings, by bringing Christ into the soul and forgiveness of sins in Him. Nor is this all, for the believing soul is not only a debtor acquitted, but enriched besides with a new and great estate, having a right to the unsearchable riches of Christ, to the favour of God, and to the dignity of his child."

Such joy is unspeakable.—There are times of high tide in the believer's soul, when he dare not speak. Words seem superfluous and empty. The tides overflow their banks, and pour their volume in unspoken adoration into the heart of God.

And full of glory.—It is of the same substance, if not of the same bulk and weight, as the glory which awaits us on the other side. There are moments of heaven upon earth, prelibations of the river of life; stray notes of the angel choruses; Eshcol grapes from the vineyards of the land of promise; flowers from the parterres of Paradise. Oh, for more of heaven on the way to heaven! A prayer which we may almost answer for ourselves by seeking more of Him who is Himself the heaven of heaven, and so adopting Bengel's motto: "Christ in the heart; heaven in the heart; the heart in heaven."

Through inadvertence, noticed too late for alteration, quotation marks were omitted from two sentences in the Introduction, and at the end of the first division of the second of these papers. The mistake will be remedied when issued in a permanent form. In most cases the quotations are from Leighton in loco.

F. B. M.

SPAIN.—At Criptana there has been a rising against the Protestants, some of whom have been very badly used. Pastor Fliedner has boldly championed the cause of the persecuted, and placed their grievances before the Government. The Under Secretary of State for the Interior, being interviewed by Mr. Fliedner, admitted the need for protecting liberty of worship, but the Government lacks energy to enforce a reasonable policy.

More Leaves from my Notebook.

By Rev. WILLIAM HASLAM, M.A.

Author of "From Death into Life. An Autobiography."

XXX.—THE ORGANIST.

Truly the wind bloweth where it listeth, and we cannot tell whence it comes or whither it goes. So is every one that is born of the Spirit. People who to all appearance are seeking God, do not find Him, and others who are not seeking Him, are found of Him.

At one of my missions there was an organist, a very good musician, but he was not in sympathy with the work in which we were engaged. Sometimes he pretended that he could not play this tune or that; sometimes he put us out by playing faster than we could sing; and sometimes he played so slowly, that it was necessary to take breath between each word or note.

Upon inquiry, it came out that he had originally set up as a Baptist preacher, and failing in this, he became the editor of an atheistic serial. As the organist of the church in which I was preaching, he behaved very badly during the service, and more particularly during the sermon. He would not listen to it himself, nor let others do so, if he could possibly help it.

One evening he came to the vestry to ask for the hymns. As I had not yet selected them, I asked him to suggest some. "This is a good one," he said, "'Go, bury thy sorrow.'"

"No," I replied, "that will not do; we have too much of burying sorrow—I should like to dig some of it up." He immediately dropped the book, and turning round went out of the vestry, afterwards sending a little girl for the hymns.

He was evidently sensitive, and it was plain to see that there was something working in his mind. Whenever people go out of their way either to be rude or troublesome, you may be sure there is some reason for it; whereas, when they are assenting and compliable, it is often because they are indifferent.

Our restless man was not content with his little opposition in the church, but he wrote articles and sent them to the local newspaper, ridiculing the mission. These articles, however, only attracted more people to the services. It is easier to write up a thing than to write it down.

As the mission proceeded, and souls one by one surrendered to God and found peace (and the number was daily increasing), our friend began to be more uneasy. The poor man had been very triumphant in the early part of the mission, when the word was apparently powerless to awaken souls, or even move them.

It was certainly a very difficult place, for the congregation had been hardened with over much evangelical teaching of a general kind. Seed had been abundantly sown without any due preparation of the ground. It was amazing to witness the hardness of the people, and their unwillingness to yield.

At length a night came when one young man, who could contain himself no longer, burst out with loud ejaculation, saying, "O Lord, save me!" The same power which constrained him to speak out thus bowed down some thirty others, and compelled them to yield themselves.

Then came a scene which it is not easy to describe; it was exciting as it was sudden. Even workers were dismayed, and among others our friend the organist. However, he kept his feelings to himself, and as he was not wanted to play any more hymns for that service, he went away.

The following evening he was observed to be serious, and most attentive all through the service, and sermon also. When it was over, coming down from the gallery, he said to a lady, "Will you thank Mr. Haslam for me, and tell him I am all right?"

"No," replied the lady, "you had much better go and tell him yourself—there he is."

Soon the organist was standing before me, marvellously subdued and grateful, though feeling not a little ashamed of the past.

"Come," I said, "let us praise God for his goodness to you."

"Yes, indeed," he replied, "such goodness, and that in spite of all my badness. To think what I have been, and then to think of his saving me like this."

It was too much for the poor man, he burst into tears and went away. At the close of the mission he came again, and this time gave hearty thanks to God amongst many other rejoicing ones. The lion or bear was unmistakably changed into a lamb.

Nothing could exceed his kindness and willingness, after this, to help forward Christian work in the parish. Without further remuneration, he gave up his time in order to play at the various special services which were held not only on Sundays, but during the week. Besides this, he helped in various other ways, for he could speak in prayer, and was intelligent enough and well able to work with anxious souls: this work is better learned in practice than in theory.

As a matter of course, he gave up his editorial engagement and employed his time with more profitable occupation, and also in working amongst his former acquaintances. He felt that he had a great opening before him among the many atheists whom he knew.

He said, "It is of no use to dispute with these people. I know now that the man is by no means clever who denies the existence of God; he might as well deny the existence of the world. They are ignorant, sir, not clever. I tell them what fools they are, and some pretty well believe this already. I did not know what a fool I was until my eyes were opened—ah, worse than a fool. These men will have to come to that, or perish."

The organist had a mission also to many good people of the congregation, who formerly used to reprove him for his atheism. Now he was saved, he found that not a few of these were still outside the door of salvation. "Which is worst," he asked, "a theoretical and ignorant atheist, or a practical one? The man who says there is no God, or the man who professes to believe that there is a God, but does not bow down before Him?"

It is dreadful to think of persons who are so good, and so much respected, refusing the Lord who died to save them! They know He bought them, yet do not yield themselves to Him. They profess and call themselves Christians, yet there is no Christ in their hearts.

"I cannot but suppose," said the man, "that such people grieve God a great deal more than poor ignorant men who know nothing about Him."

"Yes," I said. "God has compassion upon the ignorant, and those who are out of the way; but He is justly angry with those who profess to know Him, and yet do not. 'The wrath of God,' says the Apostle, 'is revealed from heaven upon all such, who hold the truth in unrighteousness.'"

I can well understand the amazement of persons just brought into the light at those who profess to be there, and are not. It is indeed more amazing than the effect of the light itself upon souls who have been living in darkness. I am sure I felt this myself, when I was first brought to God.

HOME OF REST AT LAUSANNE.—Mdlle. Guye, a Christian of excellent repute, has opened a Home of Rest at Lausanne for workers for the Lord. The house is prettily situated a short distance from the town. Weary missionaries, evangelists, ministers, and deaconesses will receive a kindly welcome, and several healthful advantages, at strictly moderate charges. Madame Robert, for several years resident at Pons, Charente-Inférieure, France, is with Mdlle. Guye, whose address is Grillon, Avenue des Alpes, Lausanne, Switzerland.

Child Life in England.

A paper on this subject was read by Rev. Benjamin Waugh at the meeting of the Baptist Union last week at Birmingham. "No one who reflects (he said) can fail to see the fact that in this country to-day many conditions contribute to make ill-living people; and to make them regard children as nuisances." He alluded to a "growing anti-population theory of which we have not heard much," and to "an increasing tendency to regard human beings as protoplasm." "This is all full of danger to child life. Child life and happiness are bound up with the Kingship of God. There is but one Supreme to whom they are 'the greatest'; but one Hand which has a millstone for the necks of those who offend them, and the depths of the sea."

After a fearful recital of cruelties to young children, Mr. Waugh continued: "Is it not strange that in not one of all these cases did anybody, who was troubled about them, ever think of going to tell a minister of the Gospel—you people who claim to be the successors of the Man of Nazareth? Nor did they go to a city missionary! Of the 1400 cases sent into the office of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in London during its five years' existence, not one has come from a city missionary. When speaking of the starvation of children to one of them, he said to me, 'Yes, I knew two cases last winter, one after another; they were just starved to death. It was a shocking affair.' To which I replied, in surprised indignation, 'Why did you not tell us?' 'Oh,' he replied, with a perfectly satisfied air, 'if I were to meddle in things like that, I could not do my more spiritual work.' 'I know several children marked for death,' said a London vicar's daughter, and his district visitor, the other day, 'but I cannot give their parents' names. We should be subject to such persecution if we were to interfere.' I have repeated these two sayings, because they speak volumes on the 'religious' surroundings of tortured child life in England. Both of them referred to children

DELIBERATELY STARVED TO DEATH.

"It is little children who are made most to suffer. The age of the victims of the most atrocious cases is almost always low. Cruelty is wholly independent of surroundings and wages. It is the work of haters of children; of sullen, pitiless, intolerant dispositions; of men whom there is no pleasing; who resent tiny baby's little blunderings, or even pretty ways, with all the physical power of a grown man, in manners which, if shown by an officer of justice to a convict, would excite the indignation of the whole country.

"As regards our 'baby farms,' many of them would be a scandal to a savage land; they are mere baby shambles. And as to infantile insurance, that is worse. While in the baby farm, where a child is killed for profit, it is a stranger who kills; where it is killed for insurance money, it is the parent who kills. I regret that I cannot inform you that all these wronged children are black, and their wrong-doers heathen inhabitants of heathen lands; that we have founded a missionary society to send missionaries to these demons of wickedness, in Africa or New Guinea. I regret it chiefly because it is such a shame to us all that these things exist in our own beloved land; but I regret it still more because you will, I fear, care the less to remedy it.

"The remedy lies in numerous directions. Many laws and customs and doctrines have been (many of them are still) on the side of the torture of a child. In the past, courts of law, by their rules of procedure, have not been on the side of the child. Happily, this is now changed. One practice of courts—an almost universal one—I must mention, as most unjust to a child—the custom of accepting testimony against it without any confirmation; and that, too, from the person who has ill-treated it. In consideration of lies, the sentence is often admittedly reduced. After 400 wronged children have spent two, three, four, and six months in our Society's Shelter, whilst their maligners were in prison, speaking generally, I may say that charges pleaded in excuse, and accepted in extenuation of outrages, have proved to be mere inventions of cowardly malice. When the grave, frightened little looks with which they came had passed away, they were full of the ways of sunny childhood. More pleasant, docile children, or children more ready to twine their arms around your neck, you seldom find, than have been some little people who had been called liars, thieves, vixens (even infants in arms have been called vixens), and the like—by savages before magistrates as pleas for their mercy. And from every quarter to which children have been sent, the same testimony comes as to the untruthfulness of the charges their parents made in court, against the children and for themselves.

"There are many other things yet to be changed, both in the laws and in the customs of this country, before child life in it will be what it ought to be. The shops of England abound with food poisons specially prepared for children. After a disclosure as to conduct to a child which would have made true men indignant, too many magistrates mildly say, 'We have taken a merciful view, and shall let you off this time.' Mercy! to whom? To the man's suffering child? To the suffering child of other like-minded men in the locality? Parliament has passed, and the Queen has sanctioned, a new law, which has well been called

THE CHILDREN'S CHARTER.

Yet a canting woman, with the corner of her white apron and a tear, can wipe it all out. But 'mercy' is impossible to a magistrate to whom an appeal is made on behalf of a suffering child, save as he is the indignant champion of the child. Medical men, too, have made child slaughter safe. Dispensaries give death certificates, knowing nothing of the case save from the criminal's mouth. And before coroners, they certify the final not the real cause of the child's not being alive.

"Even the Gospel has been pleaded as a reason for letting the savage treater of his child alone. 'Get men converted; you cannot change hearts by laws,' it is said. This is wholly true. But what is needed is to change conduct; to make men keep blows and boots off babies' limbs, and to put bread into sadly empty little stomachs. And a free use of the treadmill, though it cannot do more, can do that, and does it gloriously. And, where it fails, I would use the cat. God has put a cuticle under the skin as a final resource of argument. Where every other part of the man is 'past feeling,' it is a divine duty to get at that. The first object of a Christian nation is to protect a baby's skin, not a man's. People speak of flogging as degrading. Degrade, can you, a man who will batter a baby face with his fist? It will be impossible even to mention the hosts of those especial degradations and injuries done to girl children. They are vast in number and incredible in kind, and include large numbers of own fathers as the fearful criminals. Degrade these men, can you?

"Besides these changes, there needs to be a great change in the national sentiment on the subject. All these wrongs of a child are the result of the low estimate which prevails as to the rights of a child. What is wanted in the interests of every form of unhappy English child life in this country to-day is righteousness, the robust righteousness of God, and his indignations at neglect of the hunger, or the sickness of a child. The shameful sufferings of English children to-day are jointly the work of the English bench and the English brute: of mawkishness on the bench, of cruelty in the brute.

"On this subject of children hurt and killed the Church has acted in grievously strange ways. It has taught what happened in the worship of the Syrian Moloch: it has not even known what is done in the worship of

THE ENGLISH BACCHUS.

Much horror has it felt at the destruction of baby-life on the Ganges; and little at the destruction of it on the bosoms of English women whom men have made mothers, and to whom they have given no bread. As an argument for Christianity, it has pointed to the children abandoned in Pagan Rome, oblivious of the 20,000 a year abandoned in our own cities and villages to death or the parish. Of the five-and-twenty or thirty little boys once massacred at Bethlehem, it holds annual mournful commemorations. Of the hundred times that number of little boys and girls annually smothered within sound of our church bells, it says nothing. When I think of the Church and of child-suffering and slaughter in England, I cannot help remembering the Biblical saying as to whose eyes it is that 'are in the ends of the earth.'

"A grand opportunity is now afforded to stamp cruelty to children out of the land. The law has come to be grandly right. Will the men who wear the name of that greatest Friend of children the world ever contained, meet the opportunity—find the money to discover the crimes and to enforce the law against them? I hear you murmur, 'It is the work of the police to do that.' That is not true. It is not the work of the police to discover anything, nor to initiate proceedings for anybody. They are a brave, good body of men; but they have their set work to do, and their strict rules for doing it. But, were it so, when you stand before the judgment throne of Him whose will, Jesus says, is that not one little one should either suffer from hunger or nakedness, or be sick and perish, will you dare to tell Him that you knew that that was his will, but that you left it to the police? The new law has been created by Christian labour. It is the expression of Christian sentiment. It must be enforced by Christian money."

MEDICAL MISSION IN DEPTFORD.

Dear Sir,—It has been my privilege to work for some years in the home medical mission field, but never have I seen anything so deplorable as the spiritual condition of Deptford. Here we have a reign of sin; vice and intemperance triumphant, and blasphemy, with the vilest oaths, from the lips of children. One of the worst features in this condition of heathendom is the child-life.

Earnest work is being done, but ministers of the Gospel confess sorrowfully that the masses of Deptford are quite unreached. The Deptford Medical Mission has the sympathy and help of ministers of various denominations. We have already had an entrance into some of the worst of the homes, the people are coming to us in increasing numbers, and we are beginning to get in touch with the unreached. Will Christian friends give us their help and prayerful sympathy? We much need both.—Faithfully yours, F. A. Pring, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.

188, High-street, Deptford, S.E.

EMIGRATION TO CANADA.—Miss Rye is now ready to receive into her Home for Training only poor destitute little girls between the ages of nine and fourteen, whose friends are willing for them to emigrate to Canada. They will not leave England till the spring of next year, but during the winter they will be fed, clothed, and taught, so that they may be prepared for their new Canadian home. Miss Rye will be glad to hear through clergymen, city missionaries, district visitors, or others interested in the poor, of suitable cases. Her address is Avenue House, High-street, Peckham, London.

Dorking Conference.

[From a Correspondent.]

The first united Christian Conference was held last week. Many and fervent are the desires that it may become an annual institution. The meetings grew in intensity of spiritual power, and the praise-meeting was a time of great soul-refreshment.

After numerous testimonies had been given to definite blessings received at the Conference, Rev. E. N. Thwaites, of Salisbury, was led to speak of the privilege of consecrating one's possessions to the Lord's service. He stated that a Christian brother, who had recently been made a widower, grasped his hand at the door of his hall at the close of his Conference, trembling and tearful with emotion, and drew from his finger a ring, saying: "Once I had the joy of placing that ring on the finger of my betrothed bride, and six months ago, as I knelt in the bitterness of my grief by her corpse, I drew it from her cold hand, and placed it on my finger. Now I joyfully give it, the dearest thing I have on earth, to my best beloved Lord." At the end of his remarks a young lady who had previously stood up with several more to express her readiness to go anywhere and do anything for Jesus, came to the chairman and handed him her ring as an offering to the Lord. On opening the collecting-box another ring was found in it, and a pair of gold ear-rings were given; two young ladies sent a pound each as a thankoffering, this being a tenth of their dress money for the quarter.

The most touching of all was the gift of a lady who brought a valuable diamond ring and a large gold coin brooch, saying: "My beloved father, who is now in heaven, said to me when I was but a girl, 'You play the piano so beautifully that I think a diamond ring would look well on your finger.'" He took her to one of the best jewellers in London, and let her make her choice of this ring. The vicar begged her to think again and consult her husband, and not make the gift under the impulse of emotion. But she said, "It has been a hindrance to me. When visiting the poor I have sometimes turned the diamonds inside, as I could not help feeling that it was out of place for me to wear it when so many are needing food and the Lord's work requiring funds." Then, turning to her husband, she said, "You do not mind my giving my jewels, do you, dear?" "Not at all," he replied, with cheerfulness and joy.

I mention these facts to show how practical has been the meeting together to consider how we can increase in faith, hope, and love. The addresses by Rev. S. L. Dixon, of Park Chapel, Chelsea; and those of Rev. D. F. Wilson, of Mitcham; Rev. G. Tanner, of Maida Vale; Rev. W. Frith, of Harringay; Rev. E. N. Thwaites, of Salisbury; and of Rev. J. J. Luce, of Gloucester, were most helpful. The Bible-readings, by Rev. S. A. Selwyn, of Hatcham, and Rev. H. Brass, of Redhill, were full of instruction. We were much interested in the account of the Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen by Dr. Grenfell and Skipper Cullington, and in that of the Theatrical Mission by Mr. Courthope Todd.

The missionary afternoon on Friday was perhaps the best of all. Archdeacon Phair, of the Church Missionary Society, who has worked for twenty-five years in N.W. America, and is just returning thither, won all our hearts. Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, too, and his son, Dr. Taylor, have already a warm place in our affections. It was a special joy to us to hear of Rev. E. O. Williams' safe arrival with his family in the interior of China, as his mother is a resident in Dorking, and her son preached his last sermon from the pulpit of St. Paul's, Dorking.

The social luncheons and teas were times of refreshment of soul as well as of body. Miss Alexander, of Epsom, told how the Lord led her into her work at the races. Mr. G. Wheelhouse, of Oxford, spoke of his work at fairs and races. Rev. S. Bluett told of God's work in Savoy, and the need of lady helpers there. The early prayer-meetings were well attended, and the room generally quite full. Rev. W. Hamilton, of Woking, struck the right note in his opening sermon on Ps. xl. 8.

More jewellery is coming in. A silver watch, with a note "from one who has received blessing at the Conference" (Exod. xxxv. 21, 22). A clergyman's wife has just brought all her jewellery, saying, "The last time I wore them I felt so ashamed of them that I covered them over; and there is my last marble" (in allusion to a story by Mr. Luce), giving her diamond engagement ring. The Lord accept the offerings! The Lord bless the givers!

The Baptist Union.

Undoubtedly the best meetings of the Union at Birmingham were those held on Tuesday in connection with the Baptist Missionary Society. In the morning a valedictory service was held in Graham-street Chapel, to bid God-speed to twelve brethren going out to the mission field. Of these twelve, seven are going out for the first time—one to Italy, three to the Congo, and three to India, to work with the Rev. W. R. James upon new lines, involving less expense to the Society, and requiring greater self-denial in the missionaries themselves. This new departure was ably and intelligently defended in an earnest speech by Mr. T. W. Norledge. He claimed that though Apostolic methods might not always be possible in their details, yet as far as practicable Apostolic lines should be adopted. His two companions, Messrs. G. W. Bevan and W. Davies, are evidently men of like spirit. Not less earnestly, but more humorously, the new departure was defended by Mr. James. "New departures," he said, "were not only signs of life, but were necessary to life. If you want no new departures, go to the cemetery." Send out more men, he pleaded—on the old lines, if possible; but, if not, then on the new lines, from which he expected more effective work, at less cost. We call the reader's attention to the names of these brethren, that they may be followed by the prayerful interest of all. The touching word of farewell was spoken by the Rev. John Aldis; and then Dr. Culross commended them all to God in prayer.

Dr. Fairbairn's sermon, in the afternoon, in Carr's-lane Chapel, was not less inspiring than the morning meeting. It was an eloquent plea for a life of faithful service for Christ as the best proof of our salvation. Justification by faith was shown to be the beginning of a life in which works were a necessity. Every saved man was described as a builder, whether he wishes it or not. We have heard of nothing finer than the description of the man who, having built wood, hay, and stubble, at last sees his work destroyed, and escapes himself, "yet so as by fire."

At the public meeting at night in the Town Hall there were more speakers than there was time to hear. Sir Wm. Hunter proved to be a suitable chairman; and if his speech was long, it yet contained so much information concerning missionary work that it would have been unwise to cut it short. Of the five missionaries appointed to speak, Mr. Phillips was crowded out; and Mr. J. J. Fuller, a coloured brother from West Africa, had but a short time allowed him. The other speakers were Revs. R. Spurgeon, from India; James Wall, from Rome; and D. J. East, from Jamaica.

The address of the President, Rev. J. T. Wigner, on Wednesday morning, dealt earnestly and practically with the privileges and responsibilities of our Christian citizenship. One of the most important items of the morning's session was the reading and adoption of the reply sent by the Baptist Union to the letter of the Archbishop of Canterbury, on the subject of union. The wording of the reply, and the speeches of Dr. Clifford and Rev. T. V. Tymms, by whom its adoption was moved and seconded, were all expressive of the desire for a more manifest union of evangelical churches, while respectfully protesting against some of the bases upon which the Conference is proposed. It is hard to refuse union when there seems the faintest prospect of it; but it is still harder to sacrifice any truth, or be compromised with any error, in order to secure union. We earnestly hope that the subject will not be allowed to drop, and that the Archbishop may be induced to seek other and sounder bases for the Conference.

The Home Mission meeting was held in the Central Hall at seven o'clock; and a meeting for men only in the Town Hall at eight. At this men's meeting, Rev. Richard Glover spoke on Purity; Rev. Dr. Clifford on Gambling; and Rev. G. W. McCree on Drink. This was an earnest attempt to leave behind in Birmingham some helpful lessons in return for the kindness with which the Union was received and entertained.

Among the important events of Thursday may be mentioned the appointment of Thursday, January 2, as a day of prayer. This was suggested by the Prayer Union, of which Rev. F. B. Meyer is president, and was heartily and unanimously adopted by the ministers and delegates. Another important feature was Rev. B. Waugh's painfully interesting paper on "Child Life in England: Its Perils, and our Duties." Some extracts from this will be found elsewhere in our columns. The facts that Mr. Waugh revealed are a humiliation to us as a nation.

At the public meeting in the evening, the speech of Professor Rooke, of Rawdon College, was another most important item. Its subject was "The Supernatural, an Essential Element in the Christian Religion." It was a clear statement and an earnest defence of evangelical doctrine of the most pronounced type. If every member of the Baptist Union can approve of the speech as heartily as the large audience applauded it on Thursday night, there will be no further trouble about the "Down Grade." The speech of Rev. J. G. Greenhough, of Leicester, which followed, was certainly not lacking in ability or interest. He dealt with "The Assumptions of Sacerdotalism," suggesting that probably that subject had been committed to him because it was thought to be safe—a sentiment which the audience seemed to approve. His speech bristled with telling points and sarcasms, which were entertaining to listen to, but the effect of which can hardly be good. The Birmingham Gazette that morning had complained that the Baptist Union on Wednesday had made an attack upon the Church. Mr. Greenhough, with much sarcastic humour, made reply to this, and, of course, provoked a further reply on the following morning. Clever and interesting as the speech was, we regret it. While there are indications of an approach on the part of the Church of England towards union with Nonconformist churches, it would be wise to avoid such utterances as might make that union more difficult.

Looking back upon the week, all the delegates will feel thankful to God for meetings so inspiring and helpful.

LONG LANE MISSION, SOUTHWARK.—The ladies who conduct the mothers' meeting have succeeded in establishing a Home of Rest for its members. It is situated in the heart of the country, in the village of Puckeridge, near Standon, Herts. Several little companies of poor women, needing fresh air and change of scene, have already enjoyed a brief stay. The work is connected with the London City Mission, and the treasurer is Miss Carpenter, 17, Kirkstall-road, Streatham-hill, S.W.

Christian Policemen in Conference.

The Christian Police Association held its fourth Autumnal Conference in Liverpool on September 26, 27, and 28. A number of members were able to make their "annual leave" coincide with this Conference, which is one of the chief yearly events of the Association. Representatives met together from many forces in England, Scotland, and Ireland. A large number of secretaries and workers, chiefly ladies, were also present, and the evening meetings were well attended by the Liverpool police.

The arrangements were admirably made and carried out by Mrs. Nicholson, who has lately quite devoted herself to the police of Liverpool. Her work was well seconded by Mr. Thomas Jameson, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at Mount Pleasant, where the Conference was held. The proceedings were, from first to last, attended by much blessing. The keynote, struck by Mr. A. B. Stoney on the first night, "I will watch to see what He will say unto me" (Hab. ii. 1), was well sustained, the uppermost thought throughout being His service, not our service; his work through us, not our work for Him; his glory the object and end of all.

At the public meetings, Revs. G. C. Grubb and J. Gelson Gregson spoke with great power, both to the converted and unconverted; while Mrs. J. K. Barney, the introducer of "Police Matrons" in America, told of the secret of power in the God-given burden of a soul, and the mission which lies in the touch of a woman's hand. Mrs. Brodie, of Honduras, also had a message for all longing hearts.

The morning meetings were left open for discussion on such subjects as "The best means for extending the work at home and abroad," "Police Orphanages, Institutes, and Convalescent Homes," "Prayer-meetings and Prayer-unions." The discussion was eminently practical and spiritual in tone.

The praise-meeting, on Saturday morning, was a time of great joy, and was, by unanimous consent, prolonged from one to nearly three hours. "Never mind the sight-seeing" was the delegates' verdict; "we like this much better." The closing meeting, on the Sunday evening, will never be forgotten by many who then yielded to the Lord. Mr. Drysdale, of Liverpool, urged the question, "What shall I do with Jesus?" and was followed by Mrs. Brodie, who appealed to the Christians and the unsaved from Rev. iii. 20.

This Conference was all the more interesting on account of its being held on the tenth anniversary of the first establishment of the Liverpool Police Mission, now the Liverpool Christian Police Association. On September 29, 1879, six members of the Liverpool police force, "whose hearts God had touched," met in a cellar in close contiguity to a blacksmith's forge in full work, to study the Word of God and pray for the souls of their comrades. Later on, the noisy cellar was exchanged for an upper room, and this again was, some time later, necessarily forsaken for an underground room, which "was worse than the cellar, because it was under a meeting-room, and we could not sing." Meanwhile, the prayer went up to God to give them "a room of their own," and at last the opportunity offered, and ground was obtained, and a hall built on the south side of the city; it speedily spread to the north side, where a second band of Christian policemen took up the work, and hired their own "upper room." A better hall for this side is now much needed, and will, it is hoped, soon be erected.

These two mission bands have since enrolled themselves as branches of the Christian Police Association, which, by the blessing of God, has been, during the last six years, spreading throughout our land. Our policemen are a class which, till lately, has been little cared for spiritually. It is a common saying among them, "No man cares for my soul." And yet surely no body of men ever responded more warmly and gratefully to genuine sympathy and Christian love shown on their behalf. This the friends of the C.P.A. endeavour to give. Voluntary workers are much needed in many parts for this happy service. The hon. secretary of the Association is Miss C. Gurney, Police Institute, 1a, Adelphi-terrace, Strand, London.

Cape General Mission.

As our ocean steamers are very much like floating hotels, it will be easily understood how difficult it is to do any very aggressive work on board. However, the seven missionaries, who sailed last August in the Roslin Castle for Cape Town, were by no means idle; and, although the door was closed for many services, still the few held were seasons of great power. Individual conversations on the things of eternity were not neglected, and ere the workers landed tokens of manifest blessing were seen. Many hours were spent in communion and united prayer, and these were seasons of undoubted preparation for future operations. Unfortunately the voyage was more or less rough all through, and the band was not free of sufferers.

The lovely morning of September 4 found the good steamer safely harboured in Table Bay, with the happy party of missionaries who at last had reached their long-wished-for destination. The trip having been accomplished in many hours shorter time than was expected, the public reception of the missionaries could not be arranged for till the day following (Thursday); but friends innumerable extended their hands in hearty welcome to those who had come to live and fight amongst them for the good of their fellow men; and many were the expressions of hope and expectation that the first ray of the dawn of a day of better and brighter things for South Africa had come at last. Thursday evening found the hall of the Y.M.C.A. filled with kind friends who had gathered to accord a public reception to the missionaries, and a right hearty one it was. The worthy president of the Mission, Rev. Andrew Murray, was with us, and, after a few words of introduction, each member of the Mission gave a short address.

Two meetings for the deepening of spiritual life were arranged for Friday, and one for Saturday evening. The morning of the latter day was spent by the missionaries and some friends at Kalk Bay, a very pretty spot. The pulpits of the Baptist, Presbyterian, and Congregational churches were occupied by different members of the Mission band on Sunday, and a late service (8.15 o'clock) was held in the Metropolitan (Wesleyan) Church, which resulted in many souls being blessed. Monday was spent in conferences, and a crowded meeting in the Soldiers' Home in the evening. Tuesday found the missionaries and some friends on their way to Wellington, to be the guests of Rev. Andrew Murray for a week, to confer about the plans of the Mission, and to hold meetings. W. Spencer Walton.

A South African "Keswick."

By later mail we learn that a Conference, designated "Keswick," was held at Wellington by way of inaugurating the work of the Mission. The opening session was held in Bain's Kloof, a pass through the Dreiksenstein Mountains, and the proceedings brought blessing to many souls.

A valued correspondent writes:—"Wellington is an educational centre where many young people are gathered, and on their account the Conference was in part evangelistic. Goodnow Hall, the hall of the Huguenot Seminary, was the place of assembly. It was filled evening after evening with a company mostly of young people, who listened with intense interest to the earnest appeals urging them to lay all at Jesus' feet. Large numbers remained for the after-meetings, and it is believed that scores were brought to know Jesus as their personal Saviour.

"Very helpful meetings for believers were held in the morning and afternoon. It was good to hear Mr. Walton, Mr. Kidd, Mr. Jackson and occasionally our own Mr. Murray, set forth the possibilities of the Christian life; and our souls were thrilled with the desire that 'None of self and all of Christ' might be a reality in our lives. There was one meeting which none of us who were present will ever forget. It had been called especially to pray for the work of the Cape General Mission. Mr. Kidd was in the chair. After a number of requests and prayers, it became manifest that what was wanted first was a deep work of the Spirit in our own souls. One good brother broke down with confession of shortcomings, and a complete surrender of himself to God. Others followed in quick succession, and then there came from one and another glad notes of praise. After this followed burdens of prayer that had lain upon some of our hearts for years, which were presented, as with one mind, before the Lord. The members of the Mission were especially earnest in thanksgiving, and in prayer that the Lord would so take possession of each one, and so fill each one with his Holy Spirit that the work should be all of God and not of man."

JEWS IN PALESTINE.

Russia continues to expel the Jews wholesale. This is a deplorable state of things, though not in the least surprising. Mrs. Finn, secretary of the Society for the Relief of Persecuted Jews, writes to us:—"The Shaftesbury Memorial Fund has been applied, each year since Lord Shaftesbury's death, to the employment of Jews at Abraham's Vineyard, Jerusalem, where a few are trained in cultivating the ground and other industries. But there are tens of thousands destitute in Palestine. We are ready to give them the work without which they perish of starvation. We last year aided about three hundred cases of urgent need in London, and this year as many in proportion, many of them in finding homes in America and elsewhere."

It is very sad that the Land of Promise should prove to so many Jews a country in which to die from starvation. We sincerely trust that the excellent agency in whose operations Mrs. Finn is so deeply interested, will receive the support it deserves, that Christian affection may be practically commended to the people who are still "loved for the fathers' sakes."

Manchester Convention. — This year's gathering has been fixed for October 29, 30, and 31. The subject is "The Life of Faith." The first day will be devoted to heart-searching, humiliation, and confession before God, as a preparation for the life of faith; on the second day the aspect will be "The Life of Faith and its Conditions"; and on the third day, "How this Life may be entered upon, and its Growth and Progress maintained." It is hoped to convene one or more large missionary gatherings, whereat the toils and triumphs of this life of faith, both at home and abroad, will be recounted by some who have occupied the high places of the field. Friends from various parts are expected to attend and deliver addresses. Communications respecting arrangements, programmes, &c., may be addressed to Mr. Leonard K. Shaw, at the Conference Hall, Strangeways, Manchester.

For the Young.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICES.

The two meetings held on Tuesday, last week, in Princes Hall, to receive reports on the summer's work of the Mission, were full of encouragement.

In the afternoon Mr. T. B. Bishop said he had visited nine seaside places, and from every one he could bring joyful news of abundant blessing. Great progress had been made during the last twenty years; now the children listened attentively, and could be reached easily. They had urgent need for more workers, especially ladies. In many lands workers are now labouring who have been converted at these services by the sea, nobly seeking to pass on the blessing they had received.

Rev. E. A. Stuart, Chairman, said he had been helping Mr. Hutchinson at Bridlington this autumn, and rejoiced to note the unity amongst the ministers there in helping on the Mission. As a result, they had splendid meetings and rich blessing. The speakers pointed out how much time and energy our Lord devoted to the children, and as the end of his earthly ministry drew near, He seemed to delight in such work as recorded in Matt. xvii., xviii., xix. So ought we to strive to reach the young.

Mr. Arrowsmith said the services at Llandudno had been fruitful and joyous. An earnest band of devoted workers, full of zeal and self-sacrifice, as well as common sense, had gathered around them. The meetings had been splendidly attended, and their hearts were filled with deep thankfulness to God. Messrs. E. N. Sharpe, F. C. Laurence, and W. R. Moore also bore witness to great encouragement and much blessing in their various spheres of work at the seaside.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Waller gave an account of the work at Southend, and the tokens of good which had been granted.

The Chairman (Rev. W. Talbot Hindley) said he had long been closely associated with the Mission, and was able to witness to the great value and importance of the work being done amongst adults as well as the young. Nurses and governesses are receiving the word into their own hearts, and so are blessed with their charges. At Cromer their hearts had been cheered by the testimonies to the lasting good resulting from the services on the sands.

Mr. Aldous was able to report glorious meetings at Saltburn and blessed fruit. He found these services a grand opportunity for training new workers, as well as sowing the seed far and wide. Permanent results should be sought, and those impressed should be commended to the care of local secretaries in their own districts.

Dr. Whitney (Japan) said he was commissioned to bring a special message of love from the native members of the Scripture Union in Japan. That Union was started five years ago by a young lady who went out from England. Very soon the adults wanted to join also. Now they had a membership of 13,000, spread over 300 different places, with a central office in Tokio, and several secretaries. Many places have a branch of the Union where no Christian church has yet been established. The leaflets supplied from the London office have been most useful.

Mr. W. H. Roberts described the work at St. Leonards; while Mr. E. T. M. Dennes told how the story of the cross on Whitby Sands had been blessed to many young hearts. He alluded to the great loss sustained by the Society through the death of Miss Davy, an earnest and devoted worker at St. Leonards. Rev. M. J. Hall, and Messrs. A. Battersby and H. Hutchinson, spoke of encouragement and victory at various seaside resorts, showing by letter and incident how real and abiding is the result of the Mission's operations.

The Secretary, 13A, Warwick-lane, E.C., will gladly give information to any desirous to help in such a good and blessed work.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Oct. 20, Neh. ii. 11—20; Mon., Oct. 21, Neh. iv. 1—13; Tues., Oct. 22, Neh. iv. 14—23; Wed., Oct. 23, Neh. v. 1—13; Thurs., Oct. 24, Neh. vi. 1—16; Fri., Oct. 25, Neh. viii. 1—8; Sat., Oct. 26, Neh. viii. 9—18.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. W. Pewtress, Baptist Church, Shooter's Hill-road, Blackheath, Oct. 20—25, 7 p.m. Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Leominster, Oct. 19—25; Hornsey-rise, Oct. 27—Nov. 3. Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, Leyton Congregational Church, Oct. 21—25; Athenæum, Camden-road, each Sun. in Oct., at 3.15.

THE REVOLUTION IN HAYTI.

Dear Sir,—I have, for over a year, been sadly deprived of the news and other helps furnished by your invaluable paper, through the events that have been transpiring here. The Revolution, thank God, is now terminated, and it is hoped that a few years of peace will be granted to us.

God has mercifully preserved and sustained us through all the dangers that beset our paths during the revolutionary period. Of the four mission stations to which my labours extend, only one may be said to have had its work hindered, viz., the village of Trou, which was in a state of siege. Here the little chapel was pierced from end to end by a cannon ball; the roof was torn up and shattered by rifle shot, and the premises ravaged. At the Cape and at Fort Liberté the preaching of the Gospel was carried on without let or hindrance, during all the fermentation of civil war. At the former town a large number of troops had their quarters for a long time. Many of these availed themselves of the privilege of attending the meetings. The presence in the army of many who are either members, catechumens, or "croyants" of Protestant churches, and who, with pack, cartouche, and rifle, carried their Bibles or New Testaments and Cantiques Populaires, must have exerted an influence for good among the soldiers.

At the Cape station a hall for evangelistic work has been opened, and the meetings have been fairly well attended. Our hearts have been gladdened here, and also at Fort Liberté and Trou in the ingathering of a few "sheaves."

In June last we were cheered by a visit from Rev. W. M. Webb, deputation of the Jamaica Baptist Missionary Society to Hayti. The promise of increasing the staff of their agents was made, but until now its fulfilment is rendered impossible. In all the eighty-six years of Haytian independence, the people were never more ripe for the Gospel than now. Confidence in the priests, if not lost, has been greatly shaken.—Yours in the Lord's service,

D. M. Kitchen, Baptist Missionary.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Sept. 9.

P.S.—In haste I add that, two days after writing this letter, there came from the Post-office quite a bundle of The Christian and other papers, letters, &c.; all of these were in custody at Port-au-Prince during the sad events through which the country has passed.

D. M. K.

Dear Sir,—Since my letter appeared in your pages, I have received several communications from friends quite unknown to me, who rejoice to know the seed is not being sown in vain in this very trying and difficult part of the mission field. To us who are engaged in the work, such expressions of sympathy are particularly refreshing.

We are thankful to say the sad civil war, which has so troubled the country for the past twelve months, is now at an end. The northern party has gained the day, and we hope to hear in a few days that the President has been constitutionally elected. We earnestly request all your readers to join with us in prayer for a blessing to be poured out upon the authorities of this land, that they may see their country can only be exalted by acting on the principles of righteousness, and that Hayti may enjoy a long season of peace and prosperity.

We have had trying times during the war, and have passed through strange experiences. Our town was blockaded, rendering provisions extremely dear, and once we had to fly for refuge to an Italian barque in the bay from the shells of a bombarding man-of-war. But all through we have been kept in perfect peace.

Since coming to the Cape in 1886, we have been enabled to build a new mission house, and as I sit in my comfortable and cool study and consider what has been accomplished, my heart says, "It is the Lord's doing and it is marvellous in our eyes." We wish now to start a good girls' school, for we see that to win Hayti for Christ we must get hold of the future mothers. But our old school-room wants another roof, we shall also need school materials, furniture, French books, and a devoted French teacher. By the help of the Lord, all these necessities will be met, and before long we hope to write again and tell our many friends that the school is opened.—Yours very sincerely,

Westmore S. Smith, Pastor.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Sept. 12.

A GOOD WORK IN MANCHESTER.

Sir,—It has been my happy privilege to drop in on a work for Jesus quite new to me, and see how the Lord is using his servants. Heywood-street Mission Hall is in charge of Mr. Wm. O'Hanlon, who has given twenty-five years, indeed the best years of his life, to its development. When the work was beginning in the district it was one of the most abandoned of this great city; now the whole neighbourhood has been renovated, by the power of Jesus, through this godly man in their midst. This only shows what can be done when men to whom God has given the means consecrate it to his service, and find their pleasure in the advancement of his kingdom.

This brother has been working on quietly and earnestly, until now the Lord is giving him showers of blessing in the salvation of scores of the people in the district. In connection with the hall are: a men's club, a women's club, a mothers' meeting (led by Mrs. O'Hanlon), reading-room, penny bank, gymnasium, &c. Thus, physical needs are attended to as well as spiritual.

All these things are but means to the ultimate end—the redemption of the soul. The place is like a beehive: several meetings every night, and everybody at work. I must not forget the Bible-class, every Sunday afternoon, led by Mr. Longson, Mr. O'Hanlon's worthy co-labourer. I want this work to get on the hearts of your readers, that they may pray for the labourers, and that the scores of babes in Christ whom the Lord has given them may be nourished for his glory.—Yours in the Gospel,

Geo. Robert Cairns.

MALOGA ABORIGINAL MISSION.—Mrs. Matthews will (D.V.) leave for Australia, with Paddy and Jenny Swift, on the 31st inst., in the P. & O. steamer Valetta. Mr. Matthews intends remaining in England for a few months to fulfil engagements, and to make the work of the Mission more widely known. Several farewell meetings have been arranged—list on page 4. The prayers of God's people are solicited on behalf of the missionaries, that they may be strengthened for their work, and greatly blessed therein.

Some Scottish Missions.—1.

Under this heading it is proposed to record a few impressions gathered from a hasty glimpse at some of the mission agencies at work in and around Glasgow and Edinburgh. I do not profess in these notes to name all the centres of evangelistic effort, within the churches and without, which exist in these cities; but merely to describe those which the limits of time enabled me to visit.

As early as seven o'clock on a Sabbath morning, motley groups of men and women, notable rather for the sparsity than for the quality of their clothing, may be seen eagerly wending their way to the Drill Hall, Edinburgh, to partake of the plain, but solid fare, provided by the FREE BREAKFAST COMMITTEE.

This movement has been carried on continuously all the year round for the past sixteen years, it being one of the many remaining memorials of the visit of Messrs. Moody and Sankey to Edinburgh in 1873.

By eight o'clock some seven hundred persons are assembled, and ere long are lost in substantial sandwiches and mugs of tea. Seen from the platform, what a picture it is! Many a face bears silent witness that "the way of transgressors is hard," and that the devil has proved a severe taskmaster. But upon this raw and very rough material, the Gospel of Christ is brought to bear, both in words from the platform, and in subsequent kindness; and some very good results have accrued.

The question may be asked: "Is this continuous provision of free meals wise? Does it not encourage improvidence?" If this effort to reclaim the poverty-stricken outcast ended here, perhaps such a suggestion might with reason be advanced; but it does not. No doubt, in a few cases (out of many thousands dealt with) the prospect of a free breakfast in the morning means 3d. more ill-spent over night; but such cases are isolated, and the habitual drunkard is not often found abroad at this hour. As one man—a Londoner, by the way—said to me confidentially, as we walked up the street, "Look 'ere, guv'nor, it's all very well preachin' to us, but a fellow can't start a new life without a bit o' looking after. He wants takin' in 'and a bit, and to get new friends; because, if he gives up his old pals, he can't be always walkin' about by himself with no one to speak to." It is just here that the continuity of the movement justifies itself; it enables the workers to acquaint themselves both with deserving and undeserving cases; and to follow up those who are really desirous of leading a better life. Much more result might be seen from all work among this class, if those engaged in it would take the trouble to give their guests instead of contenting themselves with merely "preachin'" to them.

"A BIT O' LOOKIN' AFTER,"

In an adjoining room are gathered two or three hundred children, rough as to behaviour, and ready as to food, with scarcely half a dozen boots among them. These too are told of the love of Jesus, and, while there is a possibility of a few graduating, in course of time, for the other hall, there is, on the other hand, the knowledge that the seed corn cast upon the waters has borne fruit, even after many days. In fact, in a similar agency, to which I shall allude in a later notice, some of the children who a few years ago partook of these free meals are now workers in the cause by which they were themselves gathered in.

One thing is certain: the workers, mostly young men and women, get a splendid training in this rough element, which goes far to qualify them for almost any kind of evangelistic effort in which they may subsequently engage.

[940]

Pretty well all sorts and conditions of men are represented at these gatherings; but, however varied their former circumstances, they have nearly all been brought to the same position by the same cause—drink, which truly is no respecter of persons. As an example: a man, whose refined manner of speech ill accorded with the tattered garments in which he was clad, related the following curious incident. While on one occasion partaking of a free breakfast, his appetite—which, presumably, was not a particularly sensitive one—was taken away, not by the welcome fare set before him, but by the appearance upon the platform of a gentleman (to address the gathering) with whom in bygone years he had been

EDUCATED AT THE SAME SCHOOL,

To add to his discomfort, the recognition was mutual. Thus widely had the paths of the two men diverged, in the service of the masters of their choice; an apt illustration of 2 Chron. xii. 8; Deut. xxviii. 48; Matt. xi. 30.

But then, on the other hand, many of the honest poor are found at these gatherings, whose circumstances are due to no fault of their own. They have fought the battle of life; but, being among the "weakest," have gone "to the wall." To them such assistance is offered as will most suitably meet their needs.

This good work is sustained entirely by the liberality of the Lord's people, and naturally involves large expenditure annually. But results have amply justified the outlay. The approaching winter will, of course, greatly add to the number of weekly recipients of this bounty. A similar work is carried on in Glasgow, and certainly any visitors, desirous of seeing what the Lord's people are doing in Scottish cities, would do themselves an injustice to omit these efforts from their list.

G. E. M.

DR. PENTECOST IN SCOTLAND.

Since our last notice, this well-known evangelist has been doing excellent work in Airdrie, and his mission bids fair to be one of the most powerful ever held in the place. During the past week, both in the afternoon and in the evening, the subject has been "Redemption." There has been fruit gathered every night, and the deepest solemnity has prevailed.

One or two striking incidents may be mentioned. A young miner, a married man, became deeply exercised about his soul through the influence, doubtless, of a godly young man who works in the same pit. One day last week the Spirit of God moved so mightily on his heart that he threw down his pick, and on his knees there, in the bowels of the earth, yielded himself to the risen Saviour, and was born from above. Next night he sent in a request for his wife's conversion, and on Wednesday night she was converted in the meeting.

One evening when the hymn "Rejoice in the Lord" was being sung, one of the workers was sitting in front of a young man who sang the chorus most cheerfully. Turning round, the worker said, "I am glad you can sing so merrily; when did you decide for Christ?" "Oh," said he, "I never have decided." "Well," said our friend, "you could not choose a finer night than this to settle the matter; it is such a lovely night, and He is such a Saviour." By and by this strong young fellow was kneeling with three other young men to find what a manly thing it is to be a Christian.

NICE.—The services at the Scotch Church are now resumed for the winter season by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Murray Mitchell. For the past six winters Dr. Mitchell has conducted these services, which have been highly appreciated by the numerous visitors. There is reason to believe that the coming season will be a full one in the Riviera.

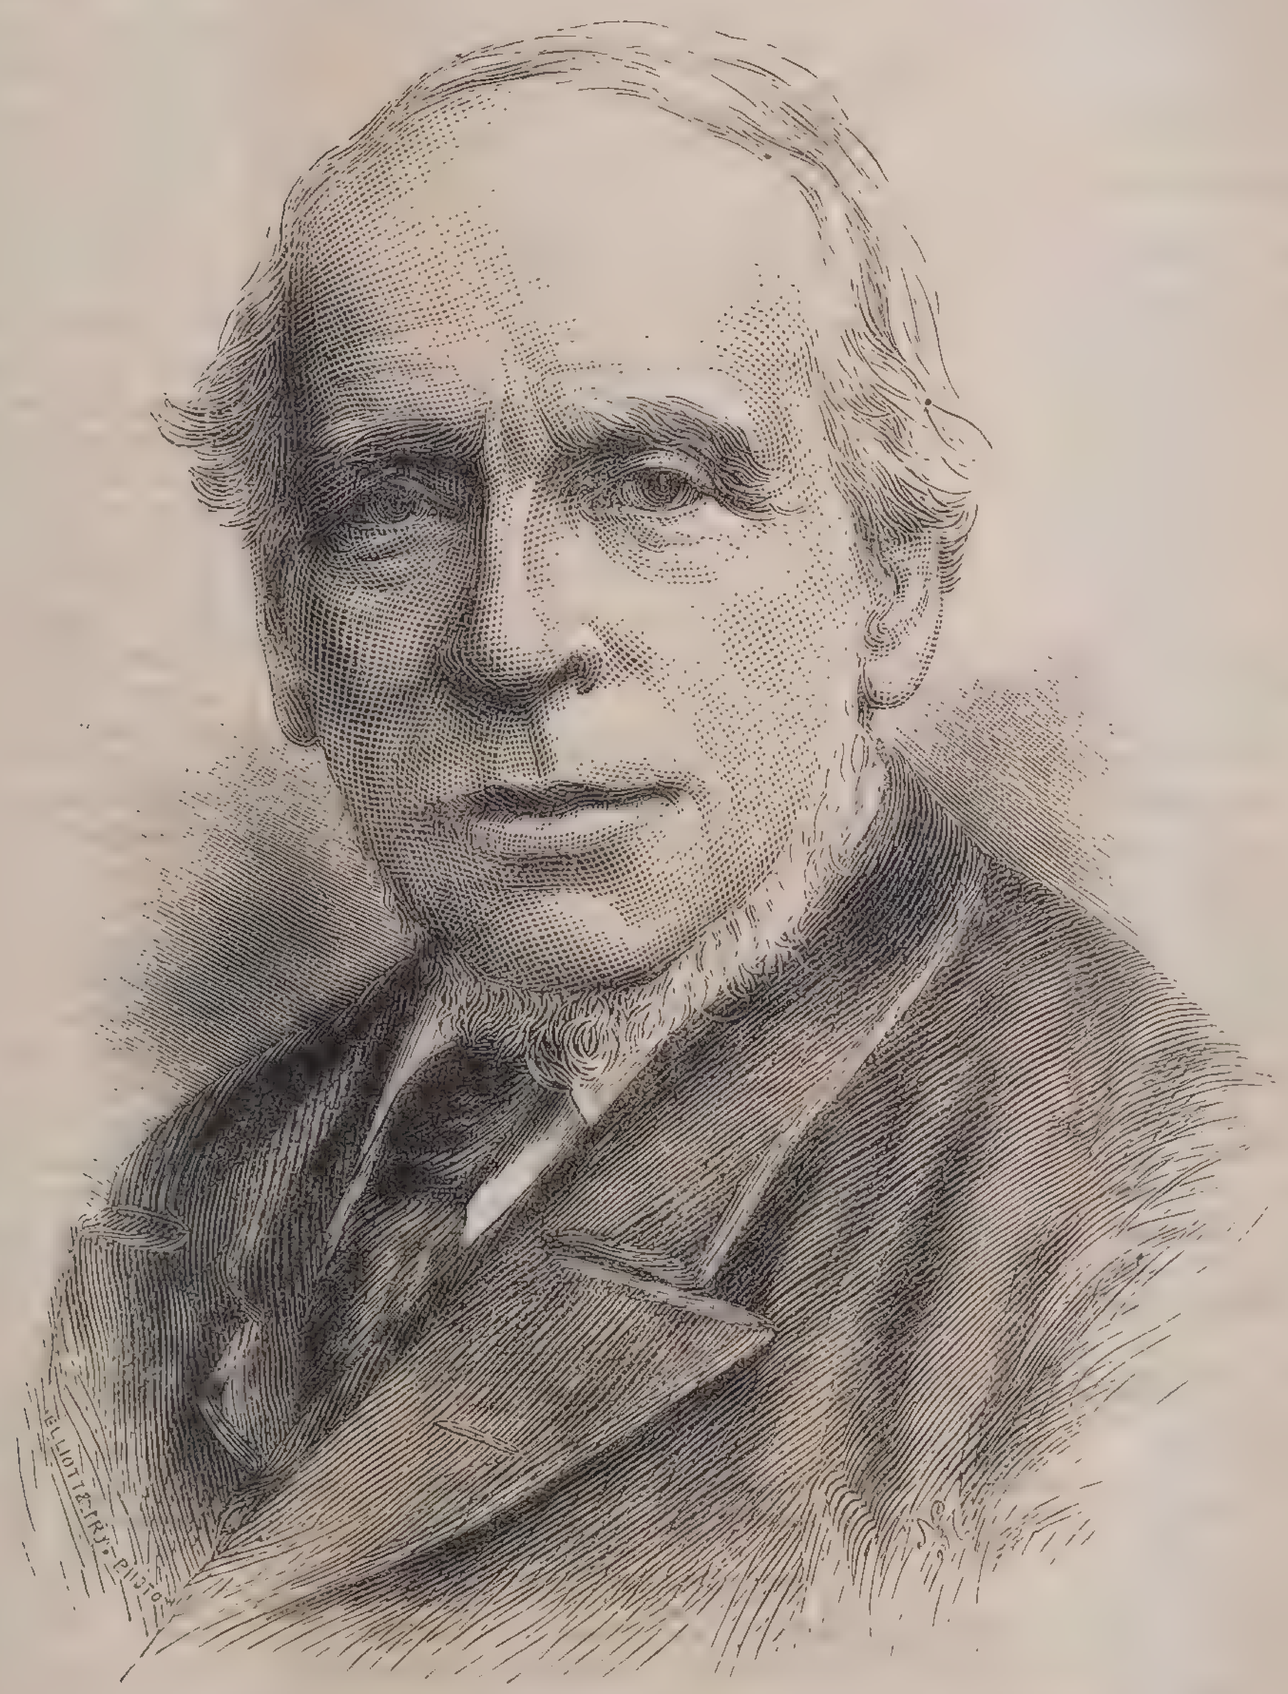
MR. J. M. SCROGGIE IN PERTH.

Following up the annual Conference, the Evangelistic Association of Perth has endeavoured for several years to secure the services of an evangelist who would help the spiritual life of any who had been impressed at these gatherings. This year the Association arranged with Mr. John M. Scroggie, who has completed a mission of fully a fortnight; his addresses have left a deep impression upon many in Perth. Mr. Scroggie spoke with great power and earnestness, and there is good reason to believe that many have had the new life begun, and many have had their spiritual life quickened.

The congregations were very large, and, as the mission went on, interest in the work deepened. Amid much regret the evangelist had to leave Perth for his present engagement in Blackheath. Nearly all denominations united in the services, and most of the ministers in Perth co-operated with him. A special feature of his work was the prayer-meeting previous to his ordinary addresses. This has been specially blessed to many, and has proved the value of deep, earnest prayer at such times.

DR. MOXEY IN BELFAST.

For the past two weeks Dr. Moxey has been conducting a very successful mission in Belfast. The centre of his operations has been Albert-street Presbyterian Church, of which Rev. Henry Montgomery is pastor. From the beginning the work has been greatly blessed and every night God has, so far as man can judge, set his seal to his servant's ministry.



All the power which Dr. Moxey, in other days, had over an audience as a distinguished public reader is now thrown into his Gospel addresses with real and beneficial effect. In all his utterances he has dealt very faithfully with the subject of sin, and on this topic his denunciations have been scathing and searching. Sin's bitter wages have been described with all the dramatic and spiritual power with which God has endowed this speaker. His descriptive and pathetic gifts are also of real value, and illustrations involving the utterances of widely different persons find in Dr. Moxey a faithful exponent as well as a clever imitator, the sanctified genius of the man is used for the very highest ends.

During the first week of the mission Dr. Moxey addressed large audiences in the church. The second week he declared open a suite of fine congregational buildings which have just been finished for the Albert-street Church, and in whose spacious hall he conducted the mission the second week. From eight to nine o'clock the evangelist addressed a general meeting; at nine o'clock he conducted a special meeting for men in a separate smaller hall, where afterwards he and the workers dealt with the inquirers. This second meeting went on generally for an hour. Groups of men might be seen scattered over the building engaged in earnest conversation or prayer, and all bearing upon the question of the soul's salvation. These halls have been battle grounds upon which the forces of light and darkness have been contending for the victory. A women's conversational and prayer meeting was held in the main hall where a band of Christian ladies sought to guide their seeking sisters into the way of peace. The mission has been greatly blessed. Backsliders have been restored, Christians have been quickened and refreshed and a goodly number are rejoicing in Jesus and seeking to lead others to Him, the mission closed on Sunday evening, October 13.

SHAFTESBURY INSTITUTE.—In a communication for which we cannot find space this week, Miss Meredith Brown appeals for eight or ten lady helpers to teach classes for children and young people, one or two evenings a week, at the Shaftesbury Institute, Harrow-street, Lisson-grove, W.

MR. EDWARD W. THOMAS.

FEW men more powerfully illustrate the overruling providence of God, or the Divine prerogative of raising up and qualifying human instruments for bringing about God's great purposes, than Edward W. Thomas, the subject of the present sketch. Placed at an early age to be reared by those whose sympathies were the very reverse of godly or discreet, and surrounded during the impressible period of youth by the insidious attractions of worldly gaiety and recklessness, it is not surprising that his first impressions and tendencies were of a sceptical and even of an infidel nature. It was only after some very severe trials, brought about by the indulgence of worldly enjoyments, chiefly in the form of field sports, horse-racing, &c for which his great strength and daring character peculiarly fitted him, that he began to see the error of spending the best energies which God had bestowed upon him in such unworthy and ignoble pursuits, and to seek for a more worthy and God-fearing course. This result, instrumentally, was brought about chiefly by two providential circumstances which have ever remained riveted in his mind; and, having regard to the future career he was called to pursue in devoting his life to the work of ameliorating the condition of poor fallen womanhood in great cities, these were not without peculiar significance—demonstrating the truth of his own oft-repeated words: "That, under God, all he is, or has been able to accomplish for good, is entirely attributable to the instrumentality of woman's influence."

(From Photograph by Messrs. Elliott & Fry, 55, Baker-street, W.)

Very late one night, when quite a youth, he was passing through a low neighbourhood of the City, and was spoken to by a young woman, to whom in return he addressed a very discreet, though not unsympathetic, reply. This led her to relate to him a most distressing story of cruelty and deception which she had been the subject of, as well as the way in which she had descended step by step to a life of sorrow and shame, adding in words of deep earnestness and anxiety her fervent wish to escape the life she was then leading. Her appearance of great suffering, added to unmistaken signs of poverty and hardship, made a deep impression on his mind, and, after relieving her temporarily, he literally "went his way sorrowing" over the evil he was powerless to prevent. Following closely on the same period he met promiscuously in his social surroundings a godly woman attached to the Primitive Methodists, who expressed in simple language her anxiety for the welfare of his immortal soul. She persuaded him to enter into a place of worship, and there, after the service, requested not only to be allowed to pray for him, but to "pray over him," which she proceeded literally to do—there and then going down on her knees with him and imploring that the pardoning grace of the Lord Jesus Christ might enter his heart.

The prayer was indeed one of faith, and, though it was some few years before the answer was seen, in due course it was vouchsafed, and the young man began to feel the kindlings of Divine love within him, and to ask what the Lord would have him to do. In this manner was the instrument of future usefulness being prepared for a sphere of labour hitherto comparatively untouched.

But where was the harvest field?

Slowly but surely Divine Providence was opening up that also. In the year 1842 the unhappy class of women to whose especial rescue the future life of Mr. Thomas was to be devoted, formed, alas! not an unknown, but an unreckoned, quantity in the body social. Society severely let them alone, or still more severely attempted to "reform" them on penal lines, when for the moment it did take cognisance of their unmistakable and disastrous presence. Up to this time no missionary effort whatever had been made to reach them as a class. The Gospel of repentance and healing was never carried down to their haunts, though their numbers were alarmingly great and daily increasing. Unhappily, a certain toleration was accorded to them, especially in naval and military centres, as the records of those times abundantly prove, not to mention their recognised resorts and rendezvous in many of the lower districts of London and other garrison towns.

About the year 1838 some efforts at evangelising certain localities were being attempted. The London City Mission was in its infancy, accomplishing much, and holding out good promise of doing more. Still, comparatively little specific work for this unhappy class was apparent.

In the year 1844, Mr. Thomas's mind was still impressed with the importance of further missionary labour in the direction indicated; and being associated in these Christian efforts, among others, with a young lady whose acts of self-denial in the work were conspicuous, he became attached to her; and during the period of his approaching marriage he openly professed his faith in the Lord Jesus at St. John's-Chapel, Bedford-row, then under the pastoral care of the Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel.

Both of one heart and mind, their work was carried on with increased earnestness. In the year 1851, Mr. Thomas passed from the Christian Instruction Society to the City Mission, there to give undivided attention to the cause which had become his absorbing pursuit.

At this time he was appointed to mission a low neighbourhood bordering on Euston-road, near the market known as the "Brill," which has long since disappeared to give place to two of the largest London railway termini.

The year 1848 was an eventful period in the history of this country. Political and social disturbances were rife; following on came the visitation of the cholera epidemic, and Mr. Thomas was one of the first of many Christian men who then opened the door of his own house that believers might assemble together to entreat the merciful interposition of Almighty God to avert further coming calamities. Many stirring personal incidents took place at this time, some of which are related in detail in Mr. Thomas's work, entitled, "Twenty-five Years' Labour among the Friendless and Fallen."

Subsequently, while labouring in this ocality, Mr. Thomas, whose efforts were nobly seconded by his wife, held weekly meetings in his own home for the fallen young women and girls unhappily so numerous at the time. These meetings were always well attended, and it may truly be said that at that time they formed the germ of the Gospel missionary efforts designed to reclaim the fallen which latter years have so greatly developed.

Growing out of these combined circumstances came the resolution of Mr. Thomas to devote the whole of the energies of his future life to the amelioration of the condition of friendless and fallen young women and girls. His missionary efforts in the streets of London had been shared by Lieutenant Blackmore, Mr. Haig Miller, Mr. Philip Jones, and other well-known philanthropists of that day.

These efforts were made after earnest united prayer on the part of many devoted Christian men and women (many of whom have entered into their rest), and who were led to impress upon Mr. Thomas at once to organise a permanent mission by which future help and guidance would be given to any young woman willing to forsake a life of sin. Soon, as a result of united effort, the first Home was opened for sixteen rescued girls, under the personal superintendence and guidance of the late Mrs. Maria Thomas, who laboured to the end of her useful life in this mission of mercy. The work, under the Divine blessing, grew and extended. Home after Home was opened, until eight distinct asylums for the friendless and fallen were founded in various parts of the Metropolis, all upon the voluntary Christian Home principle, and all alike supported by the contributions of the Christian public; unendowed, and without subsidy or support from Government; regulated by a very practical committee; and carried on in their varied detail by matrons and Christian voluntary workers, who conduct religious services, Bible-classes, secular teaching, &c., and where the inmates are trained for lives of future domestic usefulness.

So practically identified was Mr. Thomas with the daily working and management of these Homes, and the hopes and prospects of their numerous inmates, that to note the record of their daily doings would be to write the history of their secretary. The work is carried on in firm faith in the sustaining power of the Lord Jesus Christ. The total number of inmates now reaches 235, while no less than 20,000 poor girls have passed through the Homes and Refuges; and daily nearly one thousand meals have to be provided for inmates alone. That this responsibility presses heavily at times is not to be wondered at, nor is it surprising that increasing years find Mr. Thomas weaker in health and energy than formerly, and less able to carry on the night street missionary labour which he has been engaged in for so many years. His secretarial and office duties are increasingly heavy, being consulted continually by comers from all parts of the United Kingdom as well as from foreign lands, as to the most efficacious manner of dealing with what society euphemistically terms "the great social evil." He has written very extensively on this painful subject, and answered from time to time, in correspondence and conference papers, numerous questions which are identified with and spring out of this destructive form of sin and suffering.

It may be said of Mr. Thomas, as of many men, that "he has the defects of his virtues." By some he is thought to be too sanguine and lenient in his treatment of the fallen and depraved, but his work is essentially one of mercy. In dealing with the wayward and the wicked, as well as the penitent, he never seems to lose his faith in God's pardoning and converting grace, as proclaimed in the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, nor, in a sense, to lose his faith in poor fallen human nature. Many a woman, who has been admitted to the Homes and who has turned out badly and brought disgrace and discredit on those who have helped her, has applied to him the second or even the third time when sin and sorrow have once more overtaken her, to receive again from his kindly hand further aid, in order to obtain another chance of regaining her character; and happily, too, it should be added, that many a poor wayward and apparently hopeless waif has, through God's grace, profited by this "one more" opportunity to find a place of repentance and a way to return, even at the eleventh hour, to the "narrow path which leads to everlasting life."

BULGARIAN FAITH MISSION, PHILIPPOPOLIS.—This autumn there is an increase of half-pay pupils in Mrs. Mumford's school. Although the full price is only £20 per annum, there are as yet very few who pay so much.

THE CHILDREN OF CRIMINALS.—Miss C. G. Cavendish, manager of the Princess Mary Village Homes, Addlestone, writes:—"This is the only school that deals with the child of the prisoner as such, and it has now been in operation for over eighteen years. Its owes its legal position to an Act of Parliament, which cost Mrs. Meredith much trouble and thought twenty years ago. This Act is about to be 'amended,' and there is reason to fear lest, in the proposed alteration, the position of the 'prisoner's child' should be ignored. Will your readers pray that when this Act is brought forward for consideration at the next Session of Parliament its protecting arm may still be extended over the children of parents undergoing penal servitude or imprisonment? Without such legal protection our labours for these children would be almost fruitless, as the little ones might be withdrawn from our care by criminal relatives."

SLEEPING.

Not dead, but only sleeping
Within their narrow bed;
Safe in the Saviour's keeping:
Thus are we comforted.

Why call it death's dark portal?
Why say that they have died,
Who pass to life immortal,
And with their Lord abide?

Say, rather, they have risen,
Have laid their bonds aside,
Have left their earthly prison;
They live, they have not died.

—Rev. R. M. Offord, in New York Observer.

TWENTY-FOUR YEARS' WORK.

(From a Correspondent.)

Rev. R. Allen Davies, pastor of the Congregational Church, Ventnor, I.W., on Sunday week commenced the twenty-fifth year of his ministry in that town. When he first came to Ventnor he was an invalid, never expecting to preach again; but through the Lord's goodness the genial climate proved effectual in restoring health, and after seven months' rest he was able once more to work for the Master, making the place where he had recruited his strength the sphere of his labour.

Under his ministry about four hundred have been added to the church fellowship, but those figures give little idea of the widespread blessing that that ministry has been. Large-hearted Christians of various denominations have found while staying in Ventnor a congenial spiritual atmosphere in this church, and a welcome such as breaks down the barriers of sectarianism. Numbers of those who have come to Ventnor in search of health have found Christ, either through the public services or through the pastoral visitation, for which Mr. Davies is singularly gifted. While some of these have passed away to the better land, others—indeed many—have returned to their homes to tell and to show what Jesus has done for them. Among these have been Roman Catholics, members of the Greek Church, Unitarians, and sceptics.

Especially during the last three or four years has the power of the Spirit, accompanying the word, been manifested. During that time hardly a Sunday has passed without some special token of blessing; and particularly during the past twelve months has the hand of the Lord been seen working in all the various efforts put forth. These include evangelistic meetings held every Sunday night, when the ordinary services of the day are over, a large and increasing Sunday-school, and Bible classes, &c., for young men and young women.

Nevertheless, it is felt by both pastor and people that God is able and willing to do yet greater things in the year now commenced. The opening services have breathed a spirit of earnest longing for revival to spread throughout the town. A week of prayer is about to be held, to be followed by a week's special services in which Mr. C. Russell Hurditch is expected to be the preacher. Will every Christian reader join in asking that God will send a rich and bountiful shower of blessing on Ventnor?

NATIONAL BIBLE SOCIETY OF SCOTLAND.—At the monthly meeting of directors in Glasgow on Monday week, a warm tribute was paid to the memory and services of the late Rev. Dr. A. N. Somerville, who did more than most men to further the interests of the Society. The Board agreed to accept the copyright of Dr. Griffith John's Wenli and Mandarin versions of the New Testament which are having a large circulation in China. Mr. James Murray was reported to be doing splendid work as an unpaid agent in Sz Chuen, Western China. In two recent journeys he sold 223 New Testaments and 11,414 portions.

American Christians at Work.

Where shall I begin if not at the Young Men's Christian Association? In connection with its headquarters there are now about twelve branch buildings in New York City. Then there are five Associations in Brooklyn on the one side, and one Association in Jersey City on the other side of the river.

Let us meet at the Twenty-third-street Y.M.C.A. headquarters on Sunday afternoon at 3.30. Here will be found about 250 young men in attendance at a Gospel meeting, addressed by some special speaker from at home or abroad. At five o'clock a most successful Bible-class is conducted by General Secretary James McConaughy, which has been sustained during the summer months with an average attendance of about 250 young men. Being a skilful Bible leader and questioner, the lessons on the life of Christ have awakened great interest. After this meeting strangers and others are invited to a six o'clock tea upstairs, and about eighty young men sit down to a plain meal. Strangers are introduced, and England and Scotland are found always to be represented. At the close a Gospel meeting is held, with a topic selected from the afternoon's Bible study. Then the young men separate to their churches and to engage in aggressive mission work.

One particularly interesting feature of the Y.M.C.A. work in New York city is the growth of the railway work, but of this I must speak again.

Among the more prominent missions of the city, outside of the regular New York City Mission work (which would require a letter of itself to describe), there are two I will speak of at this time. First, the Florence Mission, which has an attractive building in the heart of the city on a great thoroughfare. It is splendidly lighted, and the singing is specially hearty and lively. The meeting is held from 8 to 11.30 every night specially to reach young men and women, to save them from the temptations of street life and the way that leadeth unto death. The founder and prominent supporter of the Mission, Mr. Crittenden, has been in England for some months, but the work of rescuing the perishing goes on with unabated zeal. Provision is made in the building for receiving and caring for such young women as desire to leave the life of sin and shame. An after-meeting is held for inquirers, and there is testimony of frequent conversions from sin unto the new life in Christ Jesus. A band of earnest men visit the degraded houses of the neighbourhood to sing and tell of "Jesus the mighty to save."

Second, there are Jerry McAuley's Water-street and Cremorne Missions, which are situated about forty or fifty blocks apart. The Water-street Mission, just aside the Brooklyn Bridge, is the original mission. Both are kept open every night. Behind the speaker are the last words of this earnest man: "It's all right!" These words are blessedly true. God is carrying on the work so well begun by this reformed drunkard.

The thirty-second anniversary of the famous Fulton-street prayer-meeting, New York, was observed this week. Among others, addresses were given by Revs. Dr. Cuyler and Dr. Thomas Vermilye, the only survivors of the ten divines who were present at the organisation. Situated close to Wall-street, this place for spiritual rest and refreshment by prayer has been blessed to thousands of pilgrims. The Lord has answered prayer in numberless instances in a remarkable manner.

Another item of important evangelistic news is that Rev. David Allan Reed, of Springfield, Mass., has resigned the pastorate of Hope Congregational Church, to give himself wholly to the work of the presidency of the School of Christian Workers at Springfield, and the establishment of a trades school in that city on a religious basis. This School for Christian Workers has become very successful, and is conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association International Committee for the Training of Secretaries. Over sixty young men are in training this year, and a special feature of the work is the instruction in the physical department. Young men are trained here to become gymnasium superintendents, and there is a great demand for this class of men now throughout America. Another department is that of the training of men for pastors' helpers and Sunday-school superintendents, and there are calls for men for the paid superintendency of Sunday-schools, as well as for pastors' lay assistants.

Duncan MacGregor.

238, Sixth-avenue, New York.

Messrs. Moody and Sankey.

These brethren are again the central pivots of a movement among the churches and Christians of Chicago. To pave the way for instituting his School for Workers, a Conference was held. We take the following particulars of the opening proceedings from the Chicago Inter Ocean of September 27:—

Mr. Sankey sang a solo, entitled, "Thy Cruse of Comfort Failing." It was a poem handed to him the evening that the lamented P. P. Bliss lost his life in the Ashtabula disaster, and had recently been set to music. The verses were very appropriate.

"There may be some," said Mr. Moody, "who will ask what this Conference is for. It is not to train men for the ministry. It is to train a class of people who are scared away from the ministry, but who have a passion to save souls. I believe there are a great many of those people who, with a little polish, can be made very useful. They would be good workers in a Sabbath-school—make good superintendents. They would be good helpers for ministers, and would find a large field in which to do work for the Master. I am not attacking the colleges or the theological seminaries. The rush into these cities is so enormous that we want a class of men who, with the help of God, can do the impossible things. We want men who can go into the saloons and gambling houses and preach the Gospel of Christ. Do not be afraid we are going to tear down; we are going to build up.

"At the age of twenty-one years I found myself without an education. I began to look around for a school, but I did not know where to go. I had a great desire to do something for God, and I believe there are men who feel just as I did. I believe there is such a thing as a man being educated away from a certain class of people. It strikes me that what we want is men to study in the forenoon, visit in the afternoon, and hold cottage prayer-meetings in the evening."

Mr. Sankey sang, "Throw out the life-line"; the last verse pleased Mr. Moody so much that he enthusiastically said, "Sing that again." Mr. Sankey complied, and the congregation joined in the chorus.

Miss Frances E. Willard began her address by making reference to the hymn which had just been sung. "Why was it," she said, "that the hymn so strained your hearts and mine? Did you notice the deep-toned voices of the men, and the gentle chorus of the women? Do you believe it would have been what it was, had it not been for the blending of the souls of humanity? I am fifty years old on Saturday, and I have seen many scenes, but I never have seen Mr. Moody's church so near like what Christ would have it as to-night. What days are these when men and women are coming up in the regeneration and resurrection life of Christ. The question has been asked, 'How shall we meet the masses?' The way to reach them is to go where they are. Thank God for a Gospel that goes to the heathen. We are going out after the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

"I consider it a joy to be with you the first night of your Conference. 'The Master is calling for thee'—each one of us. He calls first by joy, and I believe He would never bring anything but joy if we would bend to his will. If we do not respond to the call He then sends the call of sorrow, and it has visited both your heart and mine. He calls by gifts. He calls by the needs of humanity. Stand on the street corner and you will see faces that will tell you whether humanity needs assistance or not. The individualism of Christ's Gospel is strongly emphasised in this new movement. In the army of Christ you cannot hire a substitute, and you would not if you could. We are here as those with one weapon—the Sword of the Spirit. Some yoke is on every neck that is here. With some it is the god of money—mostly the men. In other cases it is the goddess of fashion—mostly the women. The Master is here. I bid you be of good cheer, for God hath spoken blessed words. To this blessed Bible let us direct our lives." Miss Willard devoted a considerable part of her address to pointing out a field for female energy.

Mr. Francis Murphy spoke very briefly. In the course of his talk he said: "I thank you for the privilege of seeing this fisherman mend his nets and build a boat. It is a great thing to be a fisherman. Christ said, 'Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men.' If you want to catch fish you must have bait. Then you want to keep very quiet, and must not fret. This is a new venture in fishing. In a measure we have been getting away from the simplicity of catching men."

MESSRS. FULLERTON AND SMITH.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

During the last eight days, Messrs. Fullerton and Smith have been labouring in our beautiful town. They were invited by the Ministers' Fraternal Association, and they have been earnestly supported by many of the Christian churches as well as by about a dozen of the ministers.

The meetings have been large from the first, and most of them have been crowded. They have been blessed to the stirring of Christian hearts and to the conversion of some who will bless God for ever for their visit. I am sure I may speak for my ministerial brethren, and say that we are heartily glad we invited them, and that they were able to come to us. It is to be regretted that the mission has been so short, and that the meetings have not been concentrated in one or two churches, instead of moving about daily from church to church.

J. Mountain.

Emmanuel Parsonage, Tunbridge Wells.

Y.M.C.A. (112, Brompton-road).—The autumn social gathering of the Brompton-road Branch of the Y.M.C.A. recently took place, when a large number of the members and friends were present. The chairman (Mr. W. D. Hodges) opened a very interesting discussion on "The Work of the Association, and how best to fulfil it." Mr. H. Warren, Dr. Dewar (members of the Committee), Mr. W. Coudrey (secretary of the Kingston and Surbiton Branch), and others took part. Rev. James Paterson closed the discussion with an eloquent address full of encouragement to all.

THE KING'S CROSS Y.M.C.A. EVANGELISTIC ASSOCIATION was started last November by six young men, who, having realised personal salvation, desired to make known the Gospel to their fellow-creatures. So they undertook to conduct meetings, or send young men to conduct meetings or missions, in any part of London. Invitations in several directions have since been supplemented by tent work, especially in front of the Y.M.C.A. buildings, 91, Euston-road, N.W. Many interesting cases of conversion have come under notice. Communications with regard to engagements may be sent to Mr. Charles J. Pitman, hon. sec., at the Association buildings.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED RESCUES IN TEN MONTHS.

Dear Sir,—The annual report for our last financial year is now nearly completed, and will, I hope, be posted to all donors whose names and addresses I can procure about the 31st inst. As many donors give anonymously, I shall be glad to send a copy to any reader of The Christian on receipt of stamped (2½d.) and addressed postal wrapper. The book, which extends to 250 pp., and is well illustrated, is entitled, "Something Attempted, Something Done;" and will, I think, prove to be in some respects one of the most interesting documents ever issued from these Institutions. I trust it will serve, more than any of its predecessors, to inform its readers as to the widespread and comprehensive network of rescue agencies which are now in operation throughout the East of London and elsewhere in connection with the Homes under my care.

I purpose, by God's blessing, and with the help of his stewards everywhere, to make the present winter one of very special rescue effort among the outcast boys and girls whose condition so pitifully pleads for relief. I have already begun night-searches in the common lodging-houses and in the streets, and by day throughout the worst slums and haunts of east, south, north, and central London. Almost daily I am laying hold of miserable, unshielded children, veritable "Waifs and Strays" ready to perish. This very day on which I am writing, ten destitute children who had sought refuge last night in our open-all-night shelters were entered for the permanent benefits of the Institutions. These were quite homeless and friendless when our arms were stretched forth to save them in their hour of need.

During my recent brief absence abroad (of three, and not of six, weeks, as your issue of last week stated), and since my return, it has been a hard struggle to keep the whole work going, with a treasury quite empty, and our income still practically at its lowest summer ebb, owing to the continued absence of many of our friends and helpers from their homes. Meanwhile, £100 per day is actually required for food alone, and I feel sure I am justified in at once informing my colleagues and fellow-helpers everywhere of the opportunity which our extreme poverty now affords them for renewed and loving service.

During the present year, from January 1 up to and including October 11, 1503 children (babies, boys and girls, and lads on the verge of manhood) have been admitted through the open doors of the Homes; while during the holiday months of August and September alone 259 fresh cases of miserable and destitute boys and girls also found safety and succour within the shelter of our walls. Some of these were little cripples, some deaf mutes, some quite blind; some had other grievous maladies, some were so far advanced in disease that they were admitted only to die. They were of varying ages, from the infant of two months old to the girl of thirteen, or to the great destitute lad of seventeen years, found in the lodging-houses, or on the streets of the Metropolis, homeless, friendless, and starving, utterly and hopelessly destitute. Thank God, they were all admitted!

Our daily financial responsibilities, not for food only, but for all outgoings, is exceedingly heavy, as must be apparent to everyone when it is remembered that my family now numbers over 3000 poor children, although I have placed out in life, in the colonies and throughout the United Kingdom, this year already, 1189 trained boy and girl inmates.—Your faithful fellow-worker, Thos. J. Barnardo.

18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

M. L. DUMONT, formerly Roman Catholic vicar of St. Julien, Doubs, has been nominated to labour at Longueville, in the immediate vicinity of his old Romish sphere.

AMONG HOP-PICKERS.

We gratefully record the kindness of our Heavenly Father in bringing us home safely the eighth time from the Worcester and Hereford hop-yards. There may be an apparent sameness year by year in traversing the same roads, but the happy growth of Christian fellowship, and the ever-new tale of redemption, with apparently ever-increasing fruit, give almost the freshness of early days.

Last year, in going down one Lord's Day evening, we proclaimed the good tidings in the darkness in two small villages. This year, one Saturday morning, we were gladdened in gathering much fruit in the same villages. Two years ago we gave a little book that was a simple narrative of blessing in our work some years ago. This year the recipient gave testimony as to her own conversion and of others also through its perusal, aided by a kindly word spoken when presented.

In another case a young man gave testimony to having received the Lord into his heart after a hop-yard meeting two years ago. Two friends who walked through a district say: "We visited sixty-nine yards, and held meetings in most of them. On one occasion we left after holding a meeting, but they came after us to hold another, so we returned and spoke again. One said, 'You have done us five pounds worth of good.' We cannot speak too highly of the kind reception afforded us everywhere. They leave us under the impression that a great change for the better has been produced since we visited them. We were reminded of passing yards last year without a visit."

We hail with pleasure the fact that with the farmers now it is often "walk in." It used sometimes to be "walk off." It also gave us pleasure to hear that the Leominster Y.M.C.A. had preceded us in the work about Tenbury. One evening, about eight, we found a large company gathered round about twenty fires in a back yard at supper. At first they listened where they were, but gradually they gathered round. We fondly hope that the Master entered some hearts that night.

On our return journey we happened twice in large villages about twilight. Dwellers in towns can hardly form an idea of the impression made. One would stand in the chaise and speak, while the pony walked on slowly; or stop at a favourable point, and jump out and speak to a company of working men; the others visiting the houses, or all suddenly collecting for a larger meeting. Since our return most of us have met for a gladsome hour together. The active service in that field at present is finished; but the retrospect is one of great joy as we review what God has wrought.

Wing, Leighton Buzzard. T. S. Heley.

OPEN-AIR PREACHING AT BOSTON, MASS.—Mr. W. F. Davis, who last year suffered imprisonment for reading the Scriptures on Boston Common, is at his much-loved open-air work again. He writes:—"Not less than half a dozen Gospel meetings each Lord's Day have been held on Boston Common throughout the summer. Thousands have attended them, but scores of thousands have swarmed the beaches, where drunkenness and all sensuality have rioted with little or no show of restraint. Some meetings have, however, been held in the midst of these pandemonium resorts."

A BOOK FOR BUSINESS MEN.—"I do not know a better book for business men than the Book of Proverbs. If you will keep a copy of this book in your desk, and read a little of it every day, you will not go far wrong. Of course, by 'reading' I mean obedience; for a man may read the whole Book of Proverbs every day, and be none the better for it. The Book of Proverbs contains everything that a business man ought to be and ought to do from a moral point of view. By all means make it the man of your counsel, and the guide of your life, and the issue will be full of satisfaction and joy."—Joseph Parker, D.D.

"HOUSE TO HOUSE" IN GLASGOW

At the largely attended annual Home Mission meeting, on Wednesday evening last week, in connection with Pollokshields (Glasgow) Free Church (Rev. James Wells, pastor), eleven speakers delivered brief and pointed addresses. Dr. James MacPhail, student missionary, who during the past four years has conducted the mission at Kinning-park, and who leaves for India on the 21st inst. as medical missionary to the Santals, received through the hands of Mr. Wells a cheque for eighty guineas and a handsome copy of the Bible. The following practical observations were made by Mr. J. Taylor, one of the elders of the church:—

"'From house to house,' I need not tell you is a quotation from Paul's farewell speech to the elders at Ephesus. He is reminding them of how he did such Christian work in that city where so much, so very much, of his public life was spent. Paul had no cast-iron method adaped to all circumstances; but, like the sensible business man he was, he adapted method to circumstance. He knew of a cure for human misery, and, somehow, somewhere he would tell his fellow men about it. He taught the Jew publicly in his synagogue; he told the Gentile privately in his house. That is how Paul tells us he worked publicly and 'from house to house.'

"When in the Island of Arran about a month ago I had a walk with a white-haired city missionary, an old man: he told me that at a public meeting a certain minister of the Gospel was 'holding forth.' He spoke very kindly and approvingly about the work among the poor, and wound up by saying: 'But, of course, it would not do for us to engage in work of that sort.' The next speaker, a missionary, said he begged to differ from the gentleman who had just sat down; 'his Master did it, Paul did it, and he didn't see how it wouldn't do for the Rev. Dr. ——!' Within a very few minutes there was a vacant chair on that platform.

"We have 150,000 people in Glasgow who forsake the assembling of themselves together. We cannot tell them about the cure publicly in your synagogues. Your churches' clanging bell, the stained window, the swelling organ—none of these move them. You have lapsed masses outside Westminster Abbey, as well as outside our plain Presbyterian Kirk. What is to be done with them? Surely the resources of Christianity are not yet exhausted. If the people will not go to the church, then the church must go to the people. Political power is now in the hand of the masses. Is it creditable to the Church, is it safe for the State that they should remain 'lapsed masses'? Love of country and the love of Christ ought to unite in calling us to the rescue. The Free Church of Scotland received a mighty impulse as the result of her self-sacrifice at the time of the Disruption. She would receive a mightier impulse still if she threw herself heart and soul into the work which lies at her door. God has given her great privileges and grave responsibilities.

"Let me close with a practical proposal. Suppose that once a month, instead of meeting on the Sabbath afternoon, every man and woman who goes to church should go down to our mission district, and each call on a single family, I believe that so blessed would be the result to the congregation, to the district, to the country, that it would really work one of the greatest miracles of modern times."

A new feature of this Home Mission evening was a thoughtful and earnest appeal by a mother to mothers on "Mothers' Meetings."

SICK VISITING IN PARIS.—Under the auspices of the Society for Visiting Protestant Patients in the Hospitals of Paris, some 1500 sick people are visited yearly. The Society has a Convalescent Home in the Rue de Longchamp. More workers are sadly needed. Offers of assistance should be addressed to Madame Philippe Hottinguer, 14, Rue Laffitte.

Missionaries for China.

ETER HALL was the scene, on Monday even-, of one of those intensely interesting mis-nary farewells to which the China Inland ssion has of late years made us happily ac-stomed. There were on the platform twenty-ne friends on the eve of setting out for the East, to swell the ranks of the workers that vast mission field—seventeen ladies d twelve gentlemen. Of these only three—rs. Stott, and Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll—are turning; all the others are fresh recruits.

Mr. T. A. DENNY, the warm friend of all od causes, presided over the meeting; in me very hearty and heart-felt words, he ferred to the importance and grandeur of the ork to which so many young lives were to be voted. Most of the outgoing brethren and sters (a list of whose names was read by Mr. roomhall) presented themselves in turn fore the audience, and briefly detailed the rcumstances that had led them to this ser-ce, and the feelings that lay uppermost in eir minds. All were very earnest in throwing emselves on the prayerful smypathy and re-embrance of the friends at home. Such tle bits of spiritual autobiography, told out most cases with great simplicity and umility, lend a very welcome personal charm these occasions, and are extremely helpful wakening the first stirrings of missionary solve in the plastic hearts of other young lievers who may hear their narratives. Mrs. icoll expressed an earnest wish that some ung brethren and sisters should be moved to rry the Gospel message to some of the wild ibes in different parts of China, for whose lvation no one has yet cared, and who are fficult to get hold of.

One interesting circumstance was the de-rture of a brother and a sister from Aberdeen-ire — Mr. and Miss Anderson — a greatly noured family, as the young man admitted. he frequent recurrence of the broad, rich Doric oke well for the northern part of the country. me of the ladies have been serving a valuable prenticeship for foreign work, by doing work home in connection with Harley House, the ome of Industry, Dr. Barnardo's Homes, ordon House, Liverpool, and other spheres of bour. One young lady, going from a remote llage in Cambridgeshire, said her life had en one of especially unmixed happiness in e past, but she looked forward to a still ighter and more blessed future. This, in-ed, was the refrain of all those really elo-ent, if sometimes faltering, utterances of dent young hearts. Yet there were some ecks on the sunny picture, as when one ung lady with emotion asked prayer that her rviving parent might be consciously led to a ving knowledge of the Saviour. Another had very impressive word for Christian mothers, at they should not hinder the risings of the issionary spirit in their believing daughters.

In some words of exhortation Rev. J. HUD-N TAYLOR observed that surely God had been eaking to many hearts through the testi-onies that had been delivered. He said that was only within the last few weeks that the ords of the Saviour, "Preach the Gospel to very creature," had been borne in upon his soul ith anything like adequate force. We are in e sixtieth generation since the command was ttered, and yet the Lord is waiting for full edience. Mr. Taylor said he had never met y Christian in any parish in England who ad really set himself to the literal obedience the command to take the knowledge of God's lvation to every creature there. In further sking himself if obedience to the command is ssible, humanly speaking, he made the calcu-tion that it could be done throughout China in ree short years, on the basis of a thousand orkers reaching fifty families each per day. o it is not a mad supposition that the Lord's mmand may be actually complied with by each generation of believers. He would not reform out of existence a single agency at work, but he contended that these ought to be so largely supplemented that the thing might be done.

The last to speak was Mrs. STOTT, who goes back to China next month for the third time, and exactly twenty years since her first departure. She toned down the roseate hue of the addresses of her younger friends by striking a "minor note" as to the difficulties and discouragements met with in the work in China. She illustrated this by a narrative of one who for some time gave singular promise, but became reprobate because he could not brook the sneers of his relatives. On the other hand, said Mrs. Stott, there is very much to encourage and cheer; and some specially striking facts in this line were given in her own bright and interesting manner. She asked special prayer for the native Christians that they might prove faithful amid the many trials that surround their path.

There seemed a deeper pathos and meaning than usual in the closing prayer-hymn, "God be with you till we meet again." These partings are robbed of their sting by the blessed hope, so sure and certain, of a grand reunion of the great army of the Lord at the final review, when the dust of the battle has cleared away, and the heroes in many a well-contested fight shall ground their arms at Jesus' feet, and enter into his eternal joy.

"HIGHWAYS and HEDGES MISSION."

IN a communication to The Friend of Missions, one of Miss Reade's helpers in India gives some vivid details of the work of this Mission. The writer says:—

A man came from a distant village, begging Miss Reade to visit three cases of cholera at once. Medicines were put into a basket, cups, gruel stuffs, a great bottle of pure water, &c., were got together, and in less than an hour we were off....The nursing of cholera patients as they lie on the ground is accompanied by details so revolting that only the Christ-love could carry her through. The family is generally too panic-stricken to be of much service. But Miss Reade has been able in this way to carry the Gospel into so many otherwise closed houses that she is strengthened to go through every detail. On arriving at the village, Miss Reade found the young woman already dead. The wailing of the relatives in frantic grief could be heard afar, as they threw themselves on the poor body, which the night before had seemed perfectly well, and was now to be buried at once. The man had every symptom of acute cholera, so Miss Reade had a bad time with him, but her remedies were too late. He evidently collapsed with terror when the wailing broke out.

Open-air preaching is Miss Reade's especial mission, and it is truly a most interesting work. One day we stationed ourselves just beyond Punrooty, under the deep shadow cast by an idol car. A company of men soon gathered, with a number of school children well to the front. Hymns were sung, and a young Christian gave an animated address. We then went a little further, where a temple gave us shade, and a still more interesting set of people gathered from the neighbouring fair. But it must not be supposed that village preaching is always pleasant. One or two determined men will sometimes nullify all efforts to gain a hearing.

Yesterday we started unusually early to reach a distant village. It was beautifully situated among the plantain groves, cocoanut palms, banyans, &c. We visited the school, which was just a long shed, crowded with pupils. The schoolmaster was very bright, but we could not interrupt school for long. Outside, the people seemed unwilling to hear, but at last we had found a place where women and children were glad to listen, when a man came and ordered them off. He afterwards listened quietly himself, but another unpleasant-looking man was very contemptuous, and said he was quite willing that his soul should pass into ants. Enormous ones were flying about, which probably suggested the idea. The people getting excited, it seemed best to leave. We had a long walk back to our carriage, and felt so discouraged as to be unwilling to stop at the next village where the people were coming back from their work in the fields and would soon be ready for their evening meal. But the Lord would not have us indulge in such a mood. A small group gathering round the carriage, we got out and went into a beautiful grove of trees, and soon Miss Reade was addressing a large number of men, women, and children.

We returned through a dark, moonless night, sad to think how little these poor, dear people realise the cruel bondage of their heathenism, and what glad tidings they are rejecting. I believe it is the general impression that a crisis is approaching, and that many will soon turn to the Lord. Many natives themselves say they are ready, but their family relations and responsibilities are so complex, that, humanly speaking, it is almost impossible for individuals to become Christians. If anything like a national movement should take place, the timid ones would be greatly helped.

Two fine young men who had heard Miss Reade preach in a distant village, lately came to ask for Bibles and inquire the way of salvation more fully; but they did not think it possible to become professed Christians unless we could in some way provide for them.

THE GOSPEL FOR TRAVELLERS.—From small beginnings, the work of the London Tramcar and Omnibus Scripture Text Mission has grown, until one hundred texts have been placed in the tramcars of the North Metropolitan line, and a similar number in those running on the south side of the Thames. The sixth annual report states that Mrs. E. S. Wood, the originator of the Mission, has had letters of thanks from those who have received blessing on finding, where least expected, messages of comfort and help from the Word of God. Mrs. Wood longs to place an appropriate text in every tramcar. All communications should be addressed to her at Waterlooville, near Cosham, Hants.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.—The South London Auxiliary of the Open-Air Mission commenced its monthly conferences on Tuesday week. Owing to the death that morning of Mr. Gray, of the Carter Home for Boys, Clapham, the meeting was held in the Union Tabernacle, Wandsworth-road. Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston, of Clapham, addressed the meeting on "Practical Preaching." The conclusions arrived at were seven-fold. (1) Preaching which seeks results. (2) Preaching to those present, and not to those absent. (3) Intensely definite and exact. (4) Aiming at conversion. (5) Meant to affect the whole life. (6) Looks for and expects success. (7) Greatly aided by the preacher's own life. Practical preaching is not theology as a science, but love to a Person; not to amuse, but to instruct; not a set of rules, but a change of life.

THE CONSTANTINOPLE REST bore a good testimony last year. Several of the agencies were greatly blessed, to the joy of Miss Green-Armytage, who superintends the work. Endeavour among the Greeks is very encouraging, and the Armenian Blue-ribbon work has made considerable progress. One outcome of the operations of the Rest is the establishment of a night-school, which Greeks are glad to attend, in order to secure instruction in languages—an important part of commercial equipment in such a polyglot city as Constantinople. Each evening the school is closed by the reading of Scripture and prayer, and it is gratifying to know that at least one who attends has received blessing through loving Christian contact. The temperance work has also led to spiritual good in many quarters. The Scriptures are distributed in various languages, and bags of books are left on board ships. The fifth report states that 823 ships were visited last year; while 2206 sailors visited the Rest. Communications for Miss Green-Armytage may be sent to Mr. S. S. Bagster, Conference Hall, Mildmay Park, London, N.

The Book World.

Our Dumb Companions. By Thomas Jackson. 2s. S. W. Partridge & Co. A new edition of a book which children will delight to read. The admirably illustrated pages are devoted to vivacious and wholesome conversations about dogs, horses, donkeys, and cats. An excellent present to juveniles.

John-Joseph. By G. M. S. Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. A tale for children, inculcating kindness to animals. The author is a warm advocate of the claims of dumb creatures, and we trust she will continue to use her able pen in so good a cause. The book is dedicated to the wonderful dog whose name supplies the title.

The Rule of Life and Conduct. Six addresses. 1s. 6d. Liverpool: Young Men's Christian Association, Mount Pleasant. The excellent addresses presented in this volume were delivered before the members of the Liverpool Y.M.C.A. by Bishop Ryle, and Revs. John Watson, S. T. House, Dr. W. Moore White, S. R. Macphail, and Dean Lefroy, and the book is embellished with portraits of each. Biblical characters form the groundwork of most of the addresses, which are full of good points and eminently practical.

The God of the Children. By Bedford Pollard. E. Stock. As expressed by the author, the aim of this book is "to supply to the thoughtful Christian mothers of our country a means of interesting and instructing their young people during their Sunday afternoon or evening readings." The book is made up of suggestive chapters on God's works in nature as they proclaim his wisdom, power, and love; and may profitably be read by all classes at all times. Illustrations add to the attractiveness of the book.

Jonah: The Truant Prophet. By F. B. Meyer, B.A. Baptist Tract and Book Society, 22A, Furnival-street, Holborn. The story of Jonah will bear much telling, and here it is rehearsed with many practical lessons well pointed. As Mr. Meyer truly says, the life of Jonah bristles with points of interest for us all, and especially for the young, to whom these pages are dedicated. We trust this little volume will be read and studied far and wide, and that God's message by Jonah, as here presented, may cause many to turn to righteousness of life.

The Times of Isaiah, as Illustrated by Contemporary Monuments. By A. H. Sayce, LL.D. 2s. Religious Tract Society. Another volume of the "By-Paths of Bible Knowledge" series, and truly a valuable one. Important light is thrown upon the sacred record by the monuments of Assyria, and we trust Professor Sayce will put within easy reach of thoughtful Bible-readers similar contributions to the study of other books of the Old Testament. The words of Tiglath-Pileser, Sargon, and Sennacherib, are "sermons in stones," greatly helping us to a more thorough understanding of Holy Writ.

Bethany. By Bishop Ryle. 1s. 6d. W. Hunt & Co. Expository thoughts, with notes on the eleventh chapter of John's Gospel. The chapter occupies such a peculiarly isolated position that the esteemed author found no difficulty in adapting to this manual form a part of his large and valuable work on the fourth Gospel. Around the name of Lazarus of Bethany cluster thoughts of sorrow, sickness, death, the grave, and the sympathy and power of Christ—always interesting and infinite in importance to all Christian people. Dr. Ryle's treatment is beautiful throughout, and likely to prove a spiritual blessing to many affected and mourning saints of God. Some appropriate hymns are given at the end of the book.

Athanasius: his Life and Life Work. By Henry Robert Reynolds, D.D. 2s. 6d. Religious Tract Society. This is vol. v. of the "Church History" series, and in every way a meritorious production. Considering that, as the preface well remarks, during half a century the biography of Athanasius became the history of Christianity and of the Church, when both were alike face to face with a pagan reaction, the value of a life sketch, at once simple in style and comprehensive in view, is beyond question. Dr. Reynolds sets himself to tell the story from the standpoint of the religious consciousness rather than that of political, ecclesiastic, or national reconstruction. This makes his book specially useful to theological students. From the confusion and controversy of the times of Athanasius, the truth as to our Lord's Divinity shines forth gloriously.

Frank Thornley, and other Tales. By Agnes Park. Marshall Bros. Five short stories, in the course of which many a word is spoken calculated to yield solace and pleasure to the weary and sad. The author's purpose seems to have been to cheer the careworn and tired, and her tales do not fall short of their truly worthy object.

Tea-Meeting Talks with my Bible-Class. By Alfred Dice. 1s. Simpkin, Marshall & Co. This little book contains a brief sketch of the origin and history of the New Testament; a chapter on the gifts, offices, ordinances, and composition of the Apostolic churches; some notes on the book of Romans, and a doctrinal dialogue. The author is a pronounced Calvinist. Simple in character, his "talks" are worth reading.

A Catechism on the Church Catechism, &c. By Rev. J. Thornton, vicar of Ewell. Elliot Stock. In order to assist teachers, the order of morning and evening prayer is printed side by side with those numerous Scriptures so skilfully woven into the Liturgy. The comments on the Catechism are less satisfactory. Repentance and faith are incorrectly defined, and the texts quoted have often little connection with the catechismal answers.

Jacqueline: A Tale of the French Revolution. By L. E. Weeks. 3s. Jarrold & Sons. With few exceptions, as a brief introduction informs us, the characters and incidents of this story are true. Political and religious life of France a hundred years ago is faithfully depicted in many of its troublous features; and, being embellished with several illustrations, the volume has a special interest in this centenary year of the great Revolution.

Practical Hints on the Public Reading of the Liturgy. By Rev. J. H. Whitehead. Elliot Stock. A book which clergymen will certainly find very useful. The hints well cover the ground, and are succinctly given. The many awkwardnesses which arise from a careless reading of the liturgy, and also the Holy Scriptures, are plainly pointed out; while in some notes interesting sidelights are thrown upon the creeds and prayers of the Church of England.

Rev. J. B. Wakeley's two volumes—Anecdotes of the Wesleys and Anecdotes of Whitefield—deserve the great popularity they are enjoying. 1s. 6d. each. Hodder & Stoughton. They have already gone through many editions, and, as they undoubtedly have a real living interest, they are likely long to continue in demand. Prefaced by lucid biographical introductions, the anecdotes very effectively illustrate the character and personal history of the men. Public teachers will find in these volumes many stories and incidents enforcing great truths and principles.

Elijah and Ahab. By Rev. Alex. Ewing. With memoir. Hodder & Stoughton. Another book on Elijah by no means unworthy of the subject. In fifteen well-distinguished yet well-connected discourses the writer sets before us Jehovah and Baal, the fearless servant of the living God and the baffled slaves of sin and superstition, the downfall of the king and the exaltation of the prophet. Not the least interesting part of this book is the memoir of Alex. Ewing by his widow. His early history, character, and spiritual struggles, are related in a way that cannot fail to teach and edify.

Moses and his Recent Critics. Twelve Essays, edited by Talbot W. Chambers. 6s. Funk & Wagnalls, 44, Fleet-street. This is a specially valuable contribution to the great Pentateuchal discussion, the work of scholars representing various sections of the Church of Christ, but each and all alive to the disastrous results of negative criticism. The subject is admirably stated by Dr. Chambers in the first essay. The other writers contribute many and strong arguments for the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch. It is powerfully shown that the Hebrew religion is not a natural development; and testimony as to the Law and its author is brought together from various sources. The hollowness of much that passes under the name of "higher criticism" is mercilessly exposed, not the least important indictment being that it discredits Christ and the writers of the New Testament in their estimate of the Old Testament and its history. Moreover, while rendering useless any theology founded upon Scripture interpretation, it impeaches the doctrine of inspiration, and gives us a spent Bible. This is a volume of solid arguments on the right side, and we trust it will, through many editions, vindicate the ancient books which He who is the Truth did not scruple to quote as having Moses for their author.

Atlantis, and other Poems. By Horace Groser. Hutchinson & Co., Paternoster-squ Readers of verse will find here much to ex thought and evoke admiration. Some of ballads, idylls, and sonnets are as chaste in exp sion as the more pretentious compositions are t attractive.

God in the Bible. Boston Monday Lectur 1888. By Rev. Joseph Cook. R. D. Dickin 89, Farringdon-street. Eight vigorous and inst tive lectures on a subject of deep importance. teaching of Christ is presented as the supr proof of the reality of inspiration, in definitio which a useful symposium, by twelve well-kn American scholars, is given in an appendix. old subject is here exhibited with a suggestive fr ness quite in keeping with Mr. Cook's instruct preludes on questions of social reform. original Boston hymns, sung on the occasion of lectures, are an interesting feature of the volu Manliness, and other Sermons. By H Stowell Brown. Oliphant, Anderson & Ferr Rev. Dr. Maclaren supplies a preface to this vol of twenty-two sermons by his deceased fri Though largely expository, the discourses uniformly pointed and practical. In saying t they show a wide acquaintance with human nat and a high appreciation of evangelical truth, would not be understood to endorse every i dental position assumed. In its present devel ments, Rationalism is certainly not deserving of high compliments which Mr. Brown paid to it one of these sermons. The book will amply re thoughtful perusal.

Victims to Custom. 3s. 6d. Brook & Chrys The title of this temperance tale well indicates contents. In the garb of a vigorously writ narrative the author sets forth in no exaggera fashion some of the evil progeny that is born the drinking customs of the day. It is a b that ought to appeal specially to Christians a Christian churches. We demur to the opinion pressed at the close of the book by one of characters that temperance ought to be joined t the Gospel. It is because the Church of Ch has not made temperance principles and pract an integral part of the Gospel that its testimony been so feeble and ineffective.

Sunday: Its Origin, History, and Present O gation. By James Augustus Hessey, D.C Cassell & Co. The lectures in this volume w delivered in 1860, and are re-issued with a prefa and an excursus on Babylonian documents of c siderable interest and value. The book appears a most opportune time. Never more than now the people need to know the value of one da rest in seven, and the grounds upon which present Sunday is observed. The reader will f the whole theme thoughtfully considered h The idea that Sunday is in any sense a perpetuat of the Jewish Sabbath is shown to be wrong; it is defended as a Divine institution, "because Apostolic practice and of Scriptural indicatio Scriptures bearing upon the Sabbath and upon Lord's Day are carefully considered; and history of Lord's Day observance from the first the present century is given concisely, yet clear while the last lecture deals with the practical vi of the question. We rejoice in such a timely p lication of this book, and trust it may be wid circulated, and extensively read, so that the effo of those who would rob us of the Lord's Day n be defeated.

It is purposed to lower the price of The Christ Treasury to threepence, from January, 1890, in belief that it will thus be able to reach a much wi constituency.

Mr. Wm. Jones, City View, Bangor, has published penny edition in Welsh of "Conscience and System the Stewardship of Money," the excellent booklet "A Business Man."

Suffer Little Children to Come unto Me. O. 2d. Sol-fa 1d. Curwen & Sons. An easy anthem, suita for Sunday-school anniversaries; it contains solos boys' voices and chorus.

The Church of England Almanac for 1890 (Shaw & 1d.) is published under the auspices of the Chu Association; besides the daily "lessons" prescribed contains much information that may be of value adherents of the Episcopal Church.

Our Place in History. A Lecture by H. G. E. De Dalmas. R. Banks & Son. This is a lecture on Bi chronology delivered at Poona, in India, before the lo Y.M.C.A. The writer adopts the longer chronology the Septuagint, instead of the shorter of our Hebr text, and argues ably as to its superior claims on acceptance. Those who desire to see the reasons preferring the older Hebrew chronology as attested the LXX., or in other words, the reasons for preferr Hales's system of chronology to that of Ussher will f this small pamphlet both interesting and useful.

Letter to the Editor.

JOHN BUNYAN'S UNSECTARIANISM."

Sir,—Is not our friend Mr. Wainwright ather hard upon Baptists? Bunyan thought aptism an individual Christian duty; not a hurch ordinance, as Dr. Carson thought, and any more...Others think that it is the New estament mode of avowing discipleship, and hat all Church members should be avowed isciples. In this last view there is nothing ncommon or necessarily narrow. It is the reed of the Roman Catholic Church; of the reek Church; and of the Church of England. ven in the creeds of Presbyterian and Inde- endent churches infant baptism is made part f the law of Christ; and, as a rule, no one enying that rite can be a minister of any of hose churches or even a consistent member. urely there are other explanations of this igidness than narrowness or bigotry.

I am not discussing the wisdom or the Scrip- uralness of these restrictions. I am only sking that if they do not imply narrowness in he great historic Churches, why should they mply narrowness when adopted by Baptists?

Nor is baptism the only question that creates ifficulty. The Church of England insists on hree orders in the Ministry; Independency on ongregationalism; Presbyterianism on the ower of Synods and General Assemblies. ach causes denominational separation, and ll are unhappily (as Bunyan thought) called y names that mark rather the accident than he essentials of Christian life. Cannot we use or convenience, the adjective, the distinctive ame (Episcopal, Baptist, Independent), and emember that the essential nature of what we mean is in the appended noun, hurch—an association of redeemed and enewed men? And may we not after all take lesson from God's works? Unity in diversity s the great law of all He has made. And if onscience is to be free, and men know only in art, what is then natural and beautiful be- omes a necessity—a means of discipline and f growth. We want the spirit, and the re- ognition, and the name of Christians, all round. But an added name is not necessarily arrowness. It is only a protest for some neglected truth. Christian first and Baptist fterwards is the order; and when the Church loes her duty and becomes Baptist, the pithet will be used or needed no more.

J. A.

[In inserting Mr. Wainwright's article we did not regard it as a charge of narrowness or of bigotry against Baptists; nor did he, in intention, or in fact, make such a charge. The questions raised in the first two paragraphs of the above letter do not, therefore, call for consideration in this connection. But in the last paragraph the real point of Mr. Wainwright's article is touched; and the subject is of such importance as to be well worthy of discussion. As suggested by "J. A.'s" letter, the questions might take the following form:—

Is it wise, or necessary, or convenient, to use the adjective describing the denomination, leaving the noun "Church" to represent the essential nature of what we mean?

Granting that the law of nature is "unity in diversity," does that law find Scriptural expression in the Church of Christ by its separation into denominations?

Can the denominations, as now existing, be truthfully described as "protests for some neglected truth"?

If they are, would our correspondent apply his last remark to the other denominations? Would he say that when the Church does her duty and becomes Episcopal, Congregational, Presbyterian, and Methodist, these epithets will be used or needed no more?—Ed.]

DR. JAMES MORISON.—The ministerial jubilee of the founder of the Evangelical Union Church was celebrated in Glasgow a few days ago.

Obituary.

REV. OWEN JONES, LLANDUDNO.

One of the oldest Welsh Calvinistic Methodist ministers, Mr. Jones, departed this life on Thursday last, aged 83. He had been in the ministry 64 years, and pastor successively at Llangoed, Mold, Manchester, and Llandudno. He was widely known as a historian and antiquarian, and was either editor, author, or translator of over forty books. For many years he was Welsh editor to Messrs. Blackie & Sons, publishers.

PASTEUR ELIE-JOSEPH BERTHE, BREST.

This well-known pastor of the Reformed Church of France died suddenly a few days ago, while on a visit to Mr. Jenkins, at Morlaix. Aged 72, he had long been a notable personality in the French Protestant community. M. Eug. Réveillaud, in Le Signal, mourns his loss in terms of warm affection, saying that M. Berthe was his father in the faith, and the man to whom, under God, he owes his standing and assurance in Christ.

REV. JOHN KILNER, D.D.

Wesleyan Methodists throughout Great Britain and throughout the foreign mission field will hear with regret of the somewhat unexpected death of Rev. John Kilner, D.D., the eminent missionary, which occurred on Saturday, after a short illness, at his residence, 11, Ella-road, Crouch-hill, London. He entered the ministry in 1847. The news of his death was made known from the principal Wesleyan pulpits in the Metropolis last Lord's Day. The funeral was to take place at the Islington Cemetery yesterday (Thursday), a preparatory service being held in Holly Park Wesleyan Church.

MR. J. B. GRAY.

On Tuesday morning, October 8, an esteemed brother, James B. Gray, for years manager of the "Carter" Home, Clapham, was called into the eternal rest. "He was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith." We cannot speak, in a brief notice of this devoted brother, all that ought to be said. He was eminently adapted, both by natural and spiritual gifts, for the responsible post he held. He lived to do good. The boys' temporal and eternal interest were his constant study. Mr. Gray literally lived for others. At the early age of thirty-six, and after a brief illness, he has departed to be with Christ. He leaves a wife and young child.

MR. ROWLAND ERNST ASHTON.

This Christian worker died of heart disease at his residence in High Holborn, on Thursday morning, October 11, aged forty-six, after a week's illness. Mr. Ashton was the honorary superintendent and treasurer of the South London Mission (Victoria Hall). He had to commence life's battle from the lowest rung of the ladder, and it says much for his indomitable perseverance, as well as the talents he possessed, that he worked himself into a position which admitted of his devoting his time to the work of the South London Mission. That institution is indebted to Mr. Ashton in the sum of about £400, and it is hoped the subscribers to the work will see that the two surviving children will not be the losers. For the last ten years he has carried on the South London Mission, until failing health caused him to seek aid, but he even then found time to engage in evangelistic work. The mission work will be carried on for the present.

ANDREW AND THOMAS R. SCOTT, VICTORIA.

The Presbyterian Church of Victoria has sustained a great loss by the death of these two members of a well-known family. Arriving in Australia in 1839, they showed from the first much concern for the spiritual condition of those among whom they moved. They imported large quantities of books and tracts on temperance, the Sabbath, and other important subjects; and, later on, did much to promote the production of healthy literature in the colony. Both brothers were true friends of foreign missions. They had looked forward with pleasure to taking part in the jubilee rejoicings of the Presbyterian Church of Victoria. Andrew was called away during the celebration, and Thomas immediately afterwards. The Southern Cross (Melbourne) says: "Their fair name will live through generations; their example will have its unconscious influence, both to known and unknown friends and relatives."

THE LATE MR. ROBERT BAXTER.

Another prominent and familiar figure is removed from our midst. Mr. Robert Baxter, after a long and useful life, fell asleep in Jesus on Tuesday, the 8th inst., at the ripe age of 87, and was interred in Finchley Cemetery on the 12th. Rev. Michael Baxter, his son, and Rev. T. Disney, a son-in-law, took the funeral service, the latter giving an address in the chapel, and the former at the grave. Rev. Michael Baxter gave a concise account of his father's life and work. The funeral was largely attended by relatives, personal friends, and representatives of many religious and philanthropic societies. In an early issue we hope to give a portrait of Mr. Baxter, and a sketch of his life.

Evangelistic Notes.

Nottingham.—In connection with the local Y.M.C.A. special efforts were made this year to reach the frequenters of the races and of the Goose Fair. Tracts were distributed in abundance, while several evangelists were at work.

Sandgate.—Mr. James Dykes has concluded a blessed mission at the Soldiers' Institute among the soldiers in Shorncliffe. A number have professed to trust in the Saviour. Captain Baring will pay a visit to the Institute at the end of this month.

Theatre Services.—On Sunday evening the Committee of the Theatre Services, in connection with the London City Mission, opened the Queen's Palace of Varieties, High-street, Poplar. Rev. W. H. Broad gave the opening address. The audience numbered about 1200.

Motherwell, N.B.—A remarkably successful mission for boys and girls has been concluded here, the meetings having been conducted by Miss Bessie Tyson, of Brooklyn, U.S.A. She has a very special gift of reaching the hearts of young and old, by means of Scripture lessons on the black board. A large number of boys and girls, from seven to sixteen years of age, seemed intelligently to give themselves to the Lord.

Mr. J. S. Harrison, of Australia, has completed a five weeks' Gospel mission in Mr. Charrington's Great Assembly Hall, Mile End. The meetings have been attended by large numbers; on Sundays hundreds have been turned away, unable to get in. Mrs. Harrison has sung sweet Gospel solos with great effect. The result of the mission has been very encouraging, many having professed to find Christ as their Saviour.

Rev. W. A. Meaton concluded on Sunday a most successful mission in Burdett-road Congregational Church. The attendance at every service was large. At the closing service the building was filled with a most attentive congregation, and at least two-thirds of the people remained to the after-meeting, when a harvest of souls was gathered in. The attention of the children at these services was something to be remembered, and of those who attended the services for young men very few remained undecided.

SOUTHWARK AND LAMBETH MISSION.—At the annual meeting, Mr. Benson, the evangelist, reported having held during the summer 134 open-air meetings, held every night in the yard-front of Christ Church; and on Sunday mornings at the foot of Westminster Bridge. A goodly number of temperance pledges have been taken; several have been led to attend a place of worship, and there have been some cases of professed decision for Christ. A very encouraging letter was read by Rev. Newman Hall, congratulating Mr. Benson on completing fourteen years of labour in the Mission.

A FORWARD MOVEMENT IN BELFAST.—The Methodists of Belfast have commenced a Central City Mission, under encouraging circumstances. The inaugural meetings, held on Wednesday week in Donegal-square Church, were most hearty and enthusiastic, and were largely attended. Rev. S. F. Collier (Manchester) gave a most interesting account of the Manchester Central Mission. When they began that Mission, three or four years ago, they had a congregation of forty-five; now, in six centres in the city, they have from five to eight thousand listening to the Word of Life every Lord's Day. Rev. J. G. Mantle, of the Birmingham Mission, related numerous instances of conversions that had come under his notice. The population of Belfast has risen from 87,000, in 1851, to about 250,000 at the present time.

Personalia.

Professor W. G. Blaikie, of Edinburgh, has returned home from his visit to America.

Bishop Crowther has arrived in England to confer with the committee of the C.M.S. respecting the Niger Mission.

Canon Wilberforce has decided to leave England for a prolonged tour in India for the benefit of his health. He will travel with Lord Radstock.

Mrs. Lewis (née Miss Ada Leigh) is now in Canada with her husband, the Bishop of Ontario. She has received a very cordial welcome from Christian friends there.

Mr. Wallace J. Gladwin, of India, is now in Iowa, U.S., partly for rest and partly seeking to stir up Christian friends on behalf of missions to the land of his adoption. He is meeting with much encouragement.

Canon Hoare, of Tunbridge Wells, is making fair progress towards recovery from a serious relapse, with which he was lately seized. The venerable Canon's health has been in a precarious condition for some time past.

Mr. F. Woodhouse, secretary of the "Society for Distributing Scripture Truth," Eastbourne, owing to failing eyesight, has been compelled to resign his office. The committee have secured the services of Mr. P. B. Maxwell as his successor.

Mrs. Amanda Smith.—Mrs. Davis, of Foxrock, co. Dublin, writes that, as Mrs. Smith has missed the time for returning to England whilst the warm weather lasted, she appears inclined to wait at Freetown, where there is plenty to do, until next year.

Lady Aberdeen has, during the past week, been suffering from illness, of the nature of a nervous fever, severe enough to cause considerable anxiety; but the latest medical report shows a steady, though gradual, progress towards recovery. Perfect rest, to be maintained for a considerable time, has been strictly ordered.

Dr. A. T. Pierson is expected to arrive in Liverpool on Saturday, November 16, and to take part in meetings there on the following day. The committee in charge of the arrangements for his meetings have asked him to come immediately thereafter to Scotland, and address meetings in Edinburgh and other large centres of population. They have also expressed to him their earnest hope that, if it be in his power, he will give at least three months to the work of pleading the claims of missions in different parts of Scotland.

Dr. Murray Mitchell.—A very neatly got-up and interesting souvenir has been prepared (for private circulation) of the proceedings connected with Dr. Murray Mitchell's recent ministerial jubilee. The addresses and speeches of congratulation at the Free Church Assembly are given. These include communications from the Free Presbyteries of Bombay and Calcutta, the Bombay Missionary Conference, an address from native Christians of Western India, representing different sections of the Church, from the Free Presbyteries of Dundee and of Italy. All these speak in terms of high esteem for the long and devoted service rendered by Dr. Mitchell to the cause of Christ, at home and abroad.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on a twelve days' mission by Messrs. Hogben and Middleton, at the hall of the St. Giles's Christian Mission, Little Wild-street, Drury-lane.——For blessing on a special mission at Rainham, Kent, being conducted by Mr. F. Holmes, of the Evangelisation Society.——For blessing on a mission, to be conducted by Rev. W. A. Meaton, of the Christian Instruction Society, in Bedford Chapel, Oct. 20 to 27.——For blessing on missions by Mr. Henry Lakin, at Gloucester, Oct. 19 to Nov. 1; and at Melchet Court, Nov. 2 to 15.——For blessing on missions by Mr. Herbert R. Francis, at Torquay, Oct. 19 to 27; Croydon, Nov. 2 to 10; Chelsea, Nov. 15 to 24.——For blessing on Gospel services, Oct. 13 to 20, held at the "Gospel Mission," Leicester, by Mr. J. Burnham.——For blessing on Gospel meetings at Union Tabernacle, Wandsworth-road, S.W., Oct. 20 to Nov. 4.——That the Lord would send "good-speed" to a proposal for the cessation of the running of cars in Glasgow on the Lord's Day.——For blessing on the Sunday afternoon evangelistic services at Shaftesbury Hall, Bournemouth, conducted by Captain Dawson.

[948]

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Bishop of Southwell has opened a mission-room in connection with St. Barnabas' Church, Derby, the same having been erected by some seventy working men volunteers in their leisure hours.

A new parish-room at Heeley, Sheffield (Rev. W. Odom, vicar), was opened last week by Archdeacon Blakeney. The room, which will be used for evangelistic purposes, will hold about 380 persons.

A college for the training of lay Church workers has been established in Commercial-road, E., formed by funds provided by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, as a means towards the evangelisation of the masses.

Rev. G. D. Wyatt, vicar of St. John's, Highbury, has been appointed rector of Bermondsey, in succession to Rev. C. D. Lawrence. During Mr. Wyatt's ministry at Highbury, he has taken a deep interest in evangelical work generally. He has the reputation of being a powerful preacher, and draws large congregations.

BAPTIST.

In connection with the Baptist Zenana Mission, a meeting was held at the Mission House, Furnival-street, Holborn, last week, to take farewell of Mrs. Jones, Misses Angus, Fletcher, and Dawson, returning to India, and Misses F. Blackwell, Annie C. Gange, Way, and Theobald, entering on mission work there.

The seventeenth anniversary of Mr. Joseph Benson's honorary pastorate of Belle Isle Mission Chapel, N., was recently held. The secretary spoke of gratifying progress in all departments of church life. The members added showed a net gain of fifty-three on the year. During the seventeen years 588 have joined the church. The two Sunday-schools have 1230 scholars and seventy-five teachers, and thirty scholars became members of the church last year. The number of persons now in fellowship is 357.

METHODIST.

The Forward Movement has taken hold of the seven Sheffield Primitive Methodist circuits. Two special evangelists are now to be fully employed in the district. A great effort is to be made during this winter to secure an extensive revival of the aggressive spirit of Christian work.

The executive of the Wesleyan Foreign Missionary Society estimate that there will be during the next twelve months an expenditure of £124,000. There is a regular income of some £16,000, leaving £108,000 to be raised by the circuits. Last year the home districts raised £102,000, but the Christmas Day family offerings, which are to be taken again this year, brought up the aggregate to the sum mentioned.

A service for the ordination of missionaries was held at St. George's Chapel, Cable-street, E., a few days ago. The candidates were Mr. Henry Hudson, L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., who proceeds to South India; Mr. James Lewis, who proceeds to the same country; and Mr. Edwin Middleton Weaver, who is designated to Jaffna, Ceylon. Rev. Thomas McCullagh presided, and the three missionaries-elect gave an account of their conversion, and their call to the work in the foreign field.

SALVATION ARMY.

The work of the Army in Attercliffe is progressing rapidly. Good open-air and indoor meetings are constantly held, resulting in much success.

Major Condy recently visited Bideford to celebrate the sixth anniversary of the opening of the Corps in the place, successful meetings were held.

Some very interesting accounts of the work in Scotland are recorded in The War Cry for October 12. At Clyde, one of the favourite watering-places, the officiating minister of the Baptist Chapel, being interested in the work, offered to lend his chapel one Sunday for services; the offer was accepted, and successful meetings were held.

Major Clibborn has had a long interview with M. Ruchonnet, head of the Department of Justice and Police, Geneva, concerning the precarious position of the Salvation Army in Switzerland. He especially complained of the severe measures taken by the Geneva Government, which, he said, were incompatible with religious freedom.

Over a thousand members of the Salvation Army went from London on Monday to Whitchurch, for the purpose of holding a demonstration to protest against the recent imprisonments for holding open-air meetings. Over 5000 Salvationists assembled, they held a meeting in the square, and subsequently paraded the streets with torchlights.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. R. Tutin Thomas has been obliged through ill-health to relinquish his pastorate at Cheshill, Essex, where he has been successfully labouring for the last five and a half years.

There is a strong desire on the part of some ministers and laymen in Bristol that more aggressive work should be done by the Congregational Churches. It is hoped that plans will be adopted for a "Forward Movement," to embrace the country around as well as the city.

Rev. J. F. B. Tinling, on Sunday week, in resigning the pastorate at East Finchley, observed that during his three years' ministry nearly 150 members, or half of the present membership of the church had been gathered, and that a large proportion of the young people of the congregation were decided for Christ.

Rev. A. Averill Ramsey has celebrated the first anniversary of his settlement at Barry-road, East Dulwich. The congregation was at the verge of extinction a year ago. To-day there are 100 members, a flourishing Sunday-school, and a considerable sum has been raised towards the erection of a permanent church.

PRESBYTERIAN.

A special appeal was made last Sabbath in all the Presbyterian Churches throughout Ireland on behalf of the foreign mission, which is at present encumbered with a debt of £4000, and which is also said to be undermanned.

The Presbyterian College, Bloomsbury, London, was opened for the Winter Session on Friday week. Out of thirty students applying for admission, twenty-six were admitted, ten of whom passed with honours, eight being graduates.

The Central Presbyterian Association, Belfast, has had a successful year. A hundred new names were added to the roll of membership; the Bible-class had an attendance of 150, and the educational classes were attended by about 400 students.

The negotiations with the United Presbyterian Church in reference to the transfer of their missions at Jerez and San Fernando in Spain to the care of the Continental Mission of the Irish Presbyterian Church, are now complete, and the new arrangement will come into operation on November 1.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A series of nearly two hundred meetings and services has been held throughout the country in aid of Methodist Home Missions; in nearly every case the attendance and interest shown on behalf of the object were most encouraging.

Successful evangelistic services were conducted every evening last week in Percy-street Hall, Belfast, by Dr. Moxey, of Edinburgh, and similar meetings were held in Dungannon Methodist Church by Rev. Alex. Fullerton and others.

A Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life was held last Thursday and Friday in Charleston-road Methodist Church, Dublin, and was attended by much blessing. The Convention is to be followed by a ten days' evangelistic mission.

Mr. George Clarke's three weeks' mission in Armagh has closed. The meetings were largely attended. Many inquirers remained for the after-meetings. As a practical result of the mission it has been decided to make an effort to erect a hall in Armagh for the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.

Meetings attended by Rev. Edward Matthews, of London, on behalf of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, are being held in the North of Ireland. Rev. J. Llewelyn, of South Africa, has been addressing meetings in Armagh and elsewhere, on behalf of the Church Missionary Society.

Rev. Robert Henderson, M.A., of Castledawson, co. Derry, whose collegiate course was a very brilliant one, having volunteered for the purpose, was appointed last week by the Assembly's Board of Missions to take the place of Rev. Thomas McAnlis, who recently died of fever at Anand, in India.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. Daniel Evans, D.D., canon of Bangor, North Wales.—Rev. Owen Jones, one of the oldest ministers of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Connexion.—Rev. Donald MacInnes, minister of Glenmoriston Free Church, N.B.—Mr. Thomas Shillington, J.P., one of the most prominent Wesleyan Methodist laymen in Ireland.—Rev. James Macfarlane, of Ruthwell Established Church.—Rev. W. J. Boyd, Presbyterian minister, Ramaon, co. Antrim.—Dr. J. T. Davies, of Caerwys, a Wesleyan local preacher for forty-five years.—Dr. McCaw, J.P., an active member of the Presbyterian Church, Bushmills, Coleraine.—Rev. W. Griggs, pastor of Zion Congregational Church, Landport, Portsmouth.

Appeals.

Rev. F. Papprill, C.M.S. missionary at Dera Ismail Khan, is commencing a reading-room for the use of the natives, many of whom read and understand English. He is desirous of getting a good supply of healthy literature. Mr. N. Legg, care of The Mackenzie Nurses' Home, 39, Eden-grove, Holloway, N., has undertaken to forward to India any weekly or monthly periodicals or illustrated papers that friends may send for this purpose.

Newfoundland.—Rev. William Goodchild writes from Clark's Beach, Newfoundland:—"Will some kind friends supply me with some tracts and Sunday-school papers for my poor parish? If anyone has any cast-off clothing we shall be glad to receive it by parcel post, which is now very cheap. Many children cannot attend school for want of clothes. The Labrador fishery, the chief means of support, has failed, so we are apprehending a hard winter in this severe climate."

Dover Soldiers' Home.—This institution is greatly in need of funds. The increase in the number of soldiers attending the meetings and Bible-classes during the year and the manifest blessing which is at present attending the work give cause for deep thankfulness. It is trusted that those who are interested in the welfare of soldiers may be willing to contribute to the work, which would be greatly hindered should debt rest upon it when the year closes. Donations will be thankfully received by Miss Wright, Lady Superintendent, Soldiers' Home, Dover.

Professor George P. Fisher, of Yale University, will contribute to The Century during the coming year a series of papers on The Nature and Method of Revelation, in which he will touch upon a number of questions of living interest at the present time, in connection with Christianity and the Bible.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible d Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas chardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of nom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, epared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our aders will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," d take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20.—2 Samuel X.

HE incidents of this chapter have not only a storical but an illustrative interest. We have— (1) Hanun's insult to David (1—5).—Nahash, anun's father, had shown kindness to David. A ewish tradition says that he sheltered one of avid's brothers when the king of Moab killed is parents. Civility is a part of true piety; hence avid's message of consolation (2). Hanun has herited his father's throne, but not his father's pirit towards David. Foolish counsellors (3) mis-ad him, as Rehoboam was afterwards misled Kings xii. 10, 11). The treatment of David's mbassadors (4) was the grossest insult that could e offered to an Oriental. The beard was and is ill regarded as the badge of the dignity of man-ood. Through the ambassadors, Hanun insulted avid, not only as an individual, but as a king.

(2) The judgment which followed (6—19).—Two ars are described. In the first the Ammonites, earing the result of their folly, hire the Syrians to d them (6). The two armies are so arranged hat a successful attack upon either would leave he rear of Israel's army exposed (8, 9). With qual skill and valour, Joab determines to attack oth (11, 12). Significantly he mentions two pos-bilities in connection with the war; but never eems to hint that both he and Abishai may be de-eated. We should never expect anything but vic-ory when we are fighting God's battles. The econd war was undertaken by the Syrians (15—19), nd was probably included in the summary of avid's wars in chap. viii. The illustrative lesson f these wars is that for those who persistently in-ult God through his ambassadors, there is no scape. Submission or judgment is before all.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 21.—2 Samuel XI.

This is the beginning of a sad and shameful hapter in David's history, the results of which ontinued to trouble him as long as he lived. In iew of such a story, who can help praying, "Hold 'hou me up, and I shall be safe." Note (1) David's errible fall (1—5).—It was not only a sin; but, iewed in the light of David's former life and haracter, it was a fall; and he felt it so (Ps. li.). The time when it took place is significant (1). oab had not taken Rabbah when he returned to erusalem (x. 14); and the siege is renewed at the eginning of the year (1). But David tarried at ome, and left the fighting to Joab. His prosperity as made him slothful. Idleness is Satan's oppor-unity. "The devil tempts all men, but idle men empt the devil." A look began the sin (2). The ye is often the avenue through which sin enters he heart. (Remember Eve, Gen. iii. 6; and chan, Josh vii. 21.) Then the lust of the heart rings forth its terrible result in the life (James 15). Scripture narrates it faithfully for our dmonition (1 Cor. x. 11, 12).

Note (2) David's still deeper crimes (6—27).—One in never abides alone. If immediately confessed, need not lead to more; but sin hardens the eart, and makes true repentance difficult. The eception practised upon Uriah signally fails 6—11). The soldier's self-restraint only serves to ake David's self-indulgence appear the more uilty. This ought to have aroused David's con-cience; perhaps it did slightly; hence his further ttempt at deception. Uriah's drunkenness (12, 13) s more David's sin than Uriah's; and also fails. Sober David is worse than drunken Uriah."—Bishop Hall. The last method is worst of all 14—27), and is successful. Saul had attempted by he same method to get rid of David (1 Sam. viii. 21). Not only one life, but many lives re sacrificed, and David puts himself into Joab's ower. To all this his slothfulness led. Beware f the little beginnings of sin. Who dare presume when "the man after God's own heart" so sadly alls?

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22.—2 Samuel XII.

This chapter describes: (1) David's repentance 1—14).—About a year has elapsed since David ell. In Ps. xxxii. 3, 4 his condition during that ime is described. Conscience did not let him lone. Yet he never returned to God until God ent Nathan to him (1). The sheep can wander rom the fold, but does not return until the Good hepherd goes to seek it. "He restoreth" (Ps. xxiii.). Nathan's parable puts David off his guard (2—6). It supposes the same sin committed by someone else. How quickly we can discover, and how severely we can denounce in others sins which we see not in ourselves. "Thou art the man" (7). The application was as bold as the parable was skilful. And over against David's sin the prophet places the mercies of God towards him, the abuse of which so aggravates his guilt (8). Chastise-ment is foretold (9—12)

Then followed the confession (13)—very brief, but very sincere; and met, as true confession always is, with immediate pardon. What a relief it is to read this! It is David's coming to himself. His deep contrition and his joy in forgiveness are fully described in Ps. li. and xxxii. We quote the words of Bishop Hall: "How many thousands had sinned in a vain presumption of their own strength, if David had not thus offended; how many thousands had despaired, in the consciousness of their weaknesses, if these horrible sins had not received forgiveness. It is happy for all times that we have s holy a sinner, so sinful a penitent."

(2) The beginning of David's chastisement (15—23). —The death of the child had been foretold (14); but, with fasting and tears, David besought the Lord, until the death of the child made prayer for its recovery useless. The grief was an expression of further contrition; the cessation from grief was an expression of the spirit of resignation. The birth of Solomon (24, 25) was God's way of answer-ing David's prayer. He could not give what was asked, but He gave comfort in another way.

The capture of Rabbah (26—31) probably took place before David's repentance. The cruelties practised upon the Ammonites were very severe; and were more likely to be inflicted while David's conscience was accusing him of guilt.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23.—2 Samuel XIII.

The grace of God has pardoned David's sin; but the righteousness of God appears in the severe chastisements which immediately follow. David's own sins appear in his own household. "Whatso-ever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Ps. lxxxix. 30—34). Amnon's lustful desire might have passed away, but for his "friend" Jonadab (1—5). Such friends have been the ruin of many young men. James i. 15 receives another terrible fulfilment—lust, sin, death.

David was "very wroth" (21); but his own hands were not clean, so that Amnon remained un-punished. Absalom, Tamar's brother, brooded over the wrong, and plotted revenge (22). Two years afterwards he effected his terrible purpose (23—29), and then fled (38), to the distress of David (39).

The word of God by the prophet Nathan was true. God fulfils his threatenings as surely as his promises. He does not so forgive sin as to make the sin itself appear trifling. Every additional stroke from the rod of correction makes David more sensible of his own guilt. Already he suffers because Tamar, his fair daughter, is ruined; Am-non, his firstborn, is murdered; and Absalom, his goodly son, is branded as a murderer, and is in banishment. It is a serious thing for a saint of God to fall into sin.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24.—2 Samuel XIV.

Joab was shrewd enough to see that the king longed for Absalom (1), and he planned to secure his return. Tekoah was a few miles south of Beth-lehem, and was the native place of one of David's worthies (xxiii. 26). Amos, too, was "among the herdmen of Tekoa." Joab employed a wise woman from that city "to personate a mourner, and to say, by way of parable, that which in plain terms would have sounded too harshly; and now, while she lamentably lays forth the loss and danger of her sons, she shows David his own; and while she moves compassion to her pretended issue, she wins David to a pity of himself, and a favour-able sentence for Absalom."—Bishop Hall. This parable succeeds (21—24), as Nathan's had done.

David's refusal to see Absalom was unwise (28). A half forgiveness could only irritate such a spirit as his. His temper may be judged by his setting fire to Joab's barley field (29—32), and by his mes-sage to the king (32).

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25.—2 Samuel XV.

Behind the incidents of this chapter God still appears, expressing his displeasure against David's sin.

(1) Absalom's treachery (1—6).—He has just received his father's kiss of reconciliation (xiv. 33). And this is the first use he makes of favour so justly forfeited, and now restored! By slandering his father and by insinuating speeches he ingratiated himself (2—6) with the people. Under the pre-tence of serving God (7—9) he sought opportunity to raise an insurrection against his father. His heart is as foul as his person is fair.

(2) David's flight (13—17).—Was it that his courage forsook him? Or, did he so love even his treacherous son that he refused to take arms against him? Or was he so conscious of his ill desert that he would not even attempt to lessen the severity of his chastisement? Whatever the cause, it is cer-tain that the character of David never appeared to better advantage than during this terrible trial. "Tribulation worketh patience"; and to this may be added his unselfishness (19, 20); and his devout submission (24, 25). The pruning was sharp and painful, but resulted in greater fruitfulness. The Psalms in which David refers to this period are the Church's heritage to-day. Among these are Ps. iii., iv., xxvi., xxvii., xxviii., and probably lxii. The procession (30) reminds us of another still more sorrowful procession led by David's Son and Lord (Matt. xxvi.).

(3) David's men are tested by this experience. Adversity separates between the true and the false. The trusted counsellor—Ahithophel—turns traitor (12), and becomes a type, both in his con-duct and his death (xvii. 23) of Judas. But against this must be placed the fidelity of David's followers from Gath (18); the unswerving devotion of Ittai the Gittite (19—22); and the readiness to serve of Zadok and Abiathar (29), and of Hushai, his friend (32—37). Ahithophel was Bathsheba's grandfather. This explains why Absalom sent for him; why he was so bitter against David; why he was so mortified that his counsel was not followed that he hanged himself.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26.—2 Samuel XVI.

Note here: (1) Ziba's deception (1—4).—It was skilfully done. To show kindness to David at such a time, and to do it when his master, Mephibosheth, was represented as being traitorous, proved too successful with David. What a base purpose may be concealed beneath fair words and deeds! Nothing is so despicable as to slander another in order that we may rise by his fall.

(2) Shimei's curse (5—14).—As a Benjamite, Shimei has never been true at heart to David; but David's dejection becomes his opportunity. Separated from David and his party by a deep ravine, he went along on the hill opposite, casting stones and cursing. He had no advantage to gain by such conduct, and was not careful to utter what was true. David recognised that God was behind Shimei (10). The sin was Shimei's, but David received the smart as from God. Even Absalom's rebellion, painful as it is, helps David to submit patiently to Shimei's curse (11). He therefore commits the matter to God, and refuses to take judgment into his own hands (12).

(3) Absalom in Jerusalem (15—23).—By Hushai's pretended devotion to his cause, Absalom seems to be nearing success. What chance has David if both his counsellor and his friend forsake him? It should be noticed that Scripture simply narrates, without approving, Hushai's conduct (17—19). Deception as a means is not justified by a righteous end. Ahithophel's counsel (21—23) was calculated to destroy all hope of reconciliation between Absa-lom and David. How accurately the prophecy was fulfilled! (xii. 11, 12).

PARIS EXHIBITION.—Another grant of French tracts, &c., has been forwarded by Drum-mond's Tract Depôt, Stirling, making in all over one million. The Secretary of the Paris City Mission states that "all the workers available in Paris" will be engaged in the distribution, to make a grand final effort before the Exhibition closes.

INCAPABLE BLIND CHILDREN.—It is just a year since, in connection with the East London Home for Blind Children, a branch was opened for the reception of blind children who, by reason of other afflictions, are not eligible for ordi-nary blind schools. Alexandra House, Palace Gates-road, Wood Green, N., is the first Home of the kind; and, though at present small, it promises to become a very useful Institution. During the year twelve inmates were admitted, and there are now ten in the Home. Some were born incapable; others have become so through neglect on the part of those who should have been their best friends. Applications for admission should be sent to Miss Rye, superintendent of the Home for Blind Children, College Avenue, Hackney, N.E., who, in a letter to us, says:—"The helpless condition of these children strongly appeals for Christian sympathy in the carrying on of this work."

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, October 27.

Sin, Forgiveness, Peace.—Ps. xxxii. 1—11.

Golden Text: Rom. v. 1.

This Psalm, in the order of time, should properly follow Ps. li. Both were written in connection with the great sin of David's life, recorded in 2 Sam. xi. and xii. The fifty-first is an extended cry of confession; the thirty-second expresses the joy of pardon, and the manner in which it was obtained.

Concerning the sin itself, note: (1) It commenced with sloth (2 Sam. xi. 1). "An idle man tempts the devil." (2) A look led to it (2), as Eve, and Achan. Through the eye sin enters the heart. There is need for the prayer of Ps. cxix. 37. (3) It did not remain alone. Deception and murder followed adultery. With how little a sin it commenced! A little leak may sink a vessel. He who is not careful to avoid little sins will soon find more grievous sins possible.

It is recorded faithfully for the warning of those who are in danger of presuming; and for the encouragement of those who are tempted to despair. Bishop Hall says: "It is happy for all times that we have so holy a sinner, so sinful a penitent." The severity of the chastisements which followed shows how God hated the sin. In mercy He forgave; but in righteousness He corrected. The correction, though painful, was as great a blessing to David as the forgiveness. No part of his history was so fruitful of blessing.

David's repentance was the result of Nathan's beautiful parable (2 Sam. xii.). God was thus calling his wanderer home. In this Psalm note:—

(1) The joy of forgiveness (1, 2).—David does not make light of his sin. Four words are used to describe it in these two verses: transgression, or doing what God has prohibited; sin, or missing the mark; iniquity, that is, out of equity, not straight; and guile, meaning deception. True repentance does not minimise sin. Note also that David exults in a present forgiveness:—"is forgiven," "is covered." Do our Sunday scholars know that knowledge of pardon is possible now? And the pardon is of the fullest character. Sin is not only forgiven, but covered, and not imputed; and an inward change accompanies these. Such a pardon truly makes a man "blessed." On Thanksgiving Day in America, a few years ago, the prisoners of one of the gaols were sharing in the festivities, and the governor produced a letter from the President containing a free pardon for one of their number. How eagerly they all waited to know which. When the young man's name was called, his joy was unbounded, so that he leapt from his place among the prisoners with most frantic signs of exultation.

(2) How David obtained it (4—6).—These two verses (4, 5) are valuable as giving us the only account we have of David's inner experience between his sin and his repentance. Silent, yet roaring! A conscience ever accusing, yet no confession. What a weight must "God's hand" have been when "heavy upon him"! No wonder he became like a sapless tree (5). Such was David while he refused to confess his sin. But after Nathan's visit there was a change (6). For months he had been attempting to hide his sin and had failed; but now he acknowledged, uncovered, revealed it to God. It is hard to get a man to do this. Bishop Hall remarks: "How easily sin gets into the heart, but how slowly it comes out of the mouth." Pardon followed the confession immediately. I said: "I will confess...and Thou forgavest" (see 2 Sam. xii. 13). There is no better illustration of the folly of attempting to cover sin (Prov. xxviii. 13), and the advantage of confession (1 John i. 8, 9).

(3) The blessings which follow forgiveness (6—11).—When we have accepted the Lord as our sin-bearer, He becomes our sorrow-bearer as well. Not only from, but "in the floods of great waters" the godly are secure (6, 7). God speaks and promises safe guidance (8, 9). There are two ways in which He directs his people, either with his eye or by bit and bridle. Be near enough to Him, and sufficiently in sympathy with Him to see and understand the movement of his eye. Force is used where intelligence fails. By correction as the bit and bridle, He turns his people as He will. Then the wicked and the righteous are contrasted. "Many sorrows" to the one (10); mercy, and therefore exultation, to the other (10, 11).

Deliverance in trouble is exemplified by the three Hebrew children in the furnace, and by Paul's constant joy in sorrow.

Guidance with the eye is illustrated by the boy who used to be on our steamboats watching every movement of the captain, and calling down to the engine-room the word of direction. If you would be guided aright, do not look ahead to choose your own course, but look up to Him who is the Captain of your life.

EMIGRANTS' HOME, BLACKWALL.

Few people really know what this Emigrants' Home is, and what work it is doing. Many, no doubt, think it is simply a house to come to, previous to sailing for abroad. So it is, but it is far more; it is a Home where the soul, as well as the body, finds nourishment. I have been detained at the Emigrants' Home nearly three weeks, and can bear testimony to the good work it is doing for the Master. Early in the morning, before breakfast, the bell rings to call to early prayer, singing, and reading the Word. Throughout the whole day, those connected with the management of the Home never lose an opportunity of speaking a word in season on behalf of Jesus the Saviour. It is strictly a Home of temperance and good Christian example.

After tea, once more all are invited to assemble in the great room of the Home, and join in the worship of God. Many kind and loving friends of the emigrants speak to them, bear witness for Jesus, and exhort all to love the Saviour, and receive Him as the free gift of God. I have seen God's blessing on the means thus used. Many anxious, inquiring souls have boldly stood up for Christ, and been led to receive Him as their Saviour. It has ofttimes rejoiced my heart to see young men and women leave the room of prayer to go into some more private room, to be more fully instructed in the good and right way by the Christian friends connected with the Home; and it makes one's heart glad to see their bright, happy faces, when they have found the Pearl of great price.

Many, I feel sure, will have reason to bless God for having been detained at the Home. I, for one, rejoice; for I feel it was good for me to be here. Four hundred or more of us are departing from old England to seek our livelihood in Australia. Before leaving our native shores, perhaps for ever, a heartfelt cry will rise up from our hundreds of voices, "God bless the Emigrants' Home."

An Emigrant.

TRINITY CHURCH, QUEBEC, is evangelical, and persistently opposed to sacerdotalism; it is also thoroughly evangelistic, and is honoured much of God in the conversion of souls. By the passage of the Jesuits' Estates Act, our position is rendered difficult, and indeed dangerous, especially as we are endeavouring, as well as our crippled financial condition will allow, to evangelise the French Canadians, as well as doing English work. The power of Rome has succeeded in quietly entrenching itself as supreme in the gateway Province of Canada, and the city of Quebec is its headquarters. May God send help to us in our need.

Alfred Bareham,
Rector Trinity Church, Quebec.
2, Dawlish Villas, Birkbeck-road, Tottenham.

THE LATE MR. WILLIAM GOODERHAM, of Toronto, made munificent bequests to Canadian religious and charitable institutions. Eleven institutions benefit to the extent of 10,000 dols. each, and seven 2000 dols. each. Upon condition that it is removed from Cobourg to Toronto, he leaves 125,000 dols. to the Victoria College, with an additional sum of 75,000 dols. for the purposes of endowment, payable on the decease of his surviving wife. He also leaves 30,000 dols. to the Foreign Mission Fund of the Methodist Church of Canada; 10,000 dols. to Mr. Fegan's Southwark Homes, to buy property for the erection of a Home in Toronto; and 15,000 dols. to the Salvation Army, to discharge the debt on the Albert-street building, Toronto. Among the beneficiaries to the extent of 10,000 dols. each, are the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. Other liberal bequests are provided for, and the executors are directed to dispose of the residue of the estate for religious or benevolent purposes as they may judge the testator would approve.

INQUIRERS' COLUMN.

SABBATH-BREAKING.

Sir,—With reference to "J. B.'s" letter on "Sabbath-breaking," in your issue of Oct. 4, it has always been a matter of astonishment to me how Christians can attempt to justify travelling by public conveyance of any kind on Sabbath days. There are in this town a band of Christian workers who regularly every Sabbath take train to a village some miles away, in which they carry on a mission. To my mind this is utterly unjustifiable; and even though the greatest possible blessing followed their labours, I would still hold that they did wrong. The end can never justify the means, and we are not entitled to do the very smallest amount of evil, even though our doing so should to all appearance be likely to lead to the greatest amount of good. It is unwarranted presumption and great lack of faith on our part to imagine that God needs us to do work which cannot be done without first breaking one of his commandments. Our first and great duty is to do right and to avoid evil, and we are only called to do such work for God as can be done while thus walking in the way of his commandments. This, it appears to me, is a great and important principle, which should help the Christian clearly to see his duty in many a situation such as that indicated by your correspondent. If it were more kept in view and acted upon, there would be fewer questionable agencies employed in doing Christian work, and no true Christian would ever see it to be his duty to do work which could only be reached by trampling under foot one of God's commandments.

Yours, &c., J. Forbes Moncrieff.
15, Hill-street, Edinburgh.

Dear Sir,—Permit me to encourage your correspondent "J. B." and his companions to persist in their walking to their missions on Lord's Day. He will probably not obtain any absolute solution of his difficulty from the Word of God, and I should be very unwilling to say that all use of railway or other public means of locomotion on the Day of Rest is sin. I cannot, however, see that any use of such facilities on the Lord's Day for the purpose of doing regular work for God can be permissible. He who avails himself of this, accepts his portion of responsibility for a condition of things which imposes labour on his fellow men, when, according to the Divine provision, they should be resting. He accepts the responsibility for the Lord's Day toil of hundreds of thousands in this so-called Christian Britain; and, while using the railway to accomplish the work of God, is very effectually pulling that work back, by helping to shut out from the means of grace many of those who also need the tidings of salvation and the worship of the sanctuary.

"J. B." has liberty under the Gospel. He is not bound by any Jewish limitations. He may walk the flesh off his own feet if he will, but he will be more happy and immeasurably more useful if his Christian liberty never becomes a tyranny and compulsion to his fellow men. May he never accept any of the terrible responsibility for that cry of the dying cabman, "I have had no Sundays! I have had no Sundays!"

I am quite sure that the fourth commandment, read in the light of our relation to the blessed Law fulfilled, and in subordination to the Apostolic statement, "Love worketh no ill to his neighbour; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law," will keep your correspondent on his own feet when he goes on Sabbath to work his Master's will.—I am, yours, &c.,

John Gritton, D.D.
Lord's Day Observance Society,
20, Bedford-street, Strand, London, W.C.

P.S.—If "J. B." would write to me, I would gladly send him some papers dealing with the question.

Y.W.C.A. IN SCOTLAND.—A Conference in connection with this Association was lately held at Arbroath, with the view of stimulating the branches in Forfar and Kincardine to greater activity. The attendance was good, and some very helpful discussion took place on the various departments of Y.W.C.A. work. The Hon. Emily Kinnaird, who was mainly instrumental in convening the Conference, will visit other centres and conduct meetings.

NATURAL SANITARY UNDERCLOTHING.

For Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children.

Full particulars and Price List on application.

Combinations, 6/11, 7/6, 7/11, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6
" 11/6, 12/6, 13/6, 14/6, 15/6
Vests 3/3, 3/9, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 8/6
Knickers 3/11, 4/3, 5/-, 5/11, 6/11, 8/11
Bodices 2/9, 3/3, 3/9, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6
Skirts, Nightdresses, Sleeping Suits, &c.

FLANNEL UNDERCLOTHING in White or Scarlet.

LONGCLOTH or SILK UNDERWEAR in all Garments.
CORSETS.—The "Rational" and all best makes.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,
263, OXFORD ST., REGENT CIRCUS, LONDON, W.

SELLING JEWELLERY,
SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,
For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

REAL Witney Blankets

THE
WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY
Are now supplying, direct from the Mills, the well-known
WITNEY BLANKETS.
Prices Per Pair:
Ordinary Size, 7ft. 4in. by 5ft. 8in., 12/6, 16/11, 21/-
Large do. 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 15/9, 21/-, 26/6
Special Hygienic Merino, 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 30/-

These Blankets are strongly recommended for their beautiful Colour, Durability, and Warmth, combined with Lightness in Weight.

All Goods sent Carriage Paid on receipt of Cheque or Postal Orders.

Full Price List and Testimonials sent on Application.

ADDRESS—
WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY,
WITNEY, OXON.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham; also London and Hull.

WORKS BY MAJOR WHITTLE.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG CONVERTS.

Tinted covers, 1s.;
Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

LIFE, WARFARE, AND VICTORY.

Being Notes of Bible Readings Specially Written for Young Converts.

By Major D. W. WHITTLE,
Author of "Memoir of P. P. Bliss," "Soul-Winning," &c.

"Is a nicely got-up volume, of good, Scriptural, and plain teaching as to spiritual life, its impartation, its enemies, and its friends, by Mr. Whittle, an American evangelist, well known in this country. The book was designed originally for those led to Christ by the Author's ministry; and it is refreshing, stimulating, and replete with anecdote."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

". . . It is a thoroughly characteristic little book by a man who is evidently on fire with a holy enthusiasm; and it may be helpful to many."—Christian Leader.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth extra, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.;
SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION: Tinted Covers, 6d.

P. P. BLISS: HIS LIFE & LIFE-WORK.

By Major WHITTLE & Rev. W. GUEST.

Containing an Introduction by D. L. MOODY; and Memorial Notice by IRA D. SANKEY. With Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss and their two young children.

"Cannot be too highly prized or too widely circulated; in fact, for the good it is calculated to do, it ought to be in the hands of every English reader."—Midland Gazette.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Gold Medal Awarded, Health Exhibition, London.

Benger's Food

For INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

EXTRACT FROM PRIVATE LETTER.

"The infant was very delicate; our medical adviser ordered your Food. The result in a short time was wonderful: the little fellow grew strong and fat, and is now in a thriving condition—in fact 'the flower of the flock.'"

BENGER'S FOOD is Sold in Tins at 1/6, 2/6, and 5/-, by Chemists, &c., Everywhere.

The Trade Supplied by all Wholesale Houses.

ONLY THREE HALF-CROWNS

Cheapest and Best Dress ever offered, as Patterns will prove.

7/6 WILL BRING, CARRIAGE PAID to any address, Jaques' Full Dress Length of Double Width Fine Habit Cloth, in BLACK, and the new lovely Autumn and Winter Colourings.

Every lady is invited to send a postcard for Full Range of Patterns POST FREE. Kindly name this Paper, stating that the Free Patterns are required, to JAQUES & JAQUES, French Dress House, Darlington. N.B.—Please see these Patterns; they only require to be written for, and need not be returned.

SEND FOR A BOX OF PATTERNS
REPRESENTING A STOCK OF £75000 0 0

Post Free to any part of the United Kingdom.

Messrs. BAINBRIDGE & Co. (The largest Wholesale and Retail Drapery Warehouseman in the English Provinces).

will send a Box containing 1000 Patterns of Black & Coloured Silks

Dress Materials
Diapers
Household Linens
Calicoes, Shirtings
Flannels
Mantle Cloths
Laces & Embroideries
Handkerchiefs, &c.

Send a Post Card. All Parcels carriage paid.

"The Parcels Post obliterates distance, and brings those living in the most remote country districts into direct contact with the best sources of supply."

29, 31, 33, 35 & 37, Market St., Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Now Published in one
HANDSOME SHILLING VOLUME
Post Free.

"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on
CONSUMPTION
AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on
ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"
ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW APPENDIX
TO THE
WORK on CONSUMPTION,
CONTAINING
226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES

That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with

NOTES APPENDED TO MANY
SHOWING THE
PERMANENCE of CURE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-First Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"
Who may be personally or relatively
INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

"A NEW LIFE."—CASE of a YOUNG PERSON at SKELMERSDALE, LANC.

On March 23 of last year I received a letter from the above place. "I have had the advice of [illegible] men—the sort, whose opinions differed [illegible] complaint pleurisy, others giving it other names."

Her case lasted five years. Before this there symptoms were slight at first. There was, now, a troublesome cough, and dark, heavy expectoration; severe pains in the left lung, shooting across her chest, causing fainting to occur frequently; the breath was difficult; secretions all wrong; flushings and night sweats. For a month her strength had been rapidly failing. The feet and legs had commenced swelling.

The reader will see by this account she gave of herself that she was in a pitiable state.

But in the course of between two to three months she had recovered. And writing me about a relative, she says:—"I must say yours is the best medicine in the world. It has given me a new life."

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days, Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

Suitable as a Gift Book.
THE HERALD of MERCY VOLUME
For 1889.

In attractively Bound Covers. Price 1s.

"A treasure house of Gospel truth, in picture and story. Good for old and young."—Footsteps of Truth.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Wm. Polson's CORN FLOUR.

The Original and First Manufactured in Great Britain.

UNRIVALLED FOOD OF HEALTH, for Children and Invalids. THE BEST KNOWN MATERIAL for PUDDINGS, CUSTARDS, CAKES, BLANCMANGE, and a variety of delicious Preparations for the Table.

Every Packet is Warranted Pure, and its genuine qualities are certified by the highest medical authorities in the kingdom.

USED IN THE QUEEN'S HOUSEHOLD FOR MANY YEARS PAST.

Wm. Polson & Co., Paisley and London.

SEND SIXPENCE

Can you read this?

Please NOTE that the Registered Word "COCOON" is on the Band:

For a Sample Box, containing 1 oz. Ball of

COCOON KNITTING WOOL,

And patterns of about 100 Shades, with Full Directions for knitting a number of useful articles with COCOON KNITTING WOOL.

The FASTEST POSSIBLE DYES used throughout. Apply to

COX & COMPANY,
99, New Oxford Street, London, W., or the Spinners,

WOOD & BURTT,
Holmfirth, Yorks.

TRY ALSO SUNFLOWER KNITTING WOOL for Hard Wear, a rather Stouter Yarn than Cocoon.

WHITE HEATHER, a Thick Soft Yarn for Knickerbocker Stockings, Petticoats, and Tam o' Shanters, both in 2 oz. packets 1 lb. and boxes.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

WINTER PATTERNS NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

INDIAN MUSLIN.

Pure Cream-coloured Muslin (25 inches wide), Washes well. Useful for

DRESSES, CURTAINS, BLINDS, DRAPERIES, SHADING, &c.

45 Yards for 6s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

90 Yards for 12s. 6d. Free per post on receipt of Postal Order.

And in Colours. Much used for Decoration, Bazaars, Entertainments, &c. Beautiful Effects at a Small Cost. Novelties also in Useful and Fancy Fabrics for Dresses and Draperies.

Patterns and Prices Post Free.

JOHN KAY AND SONS, BURNLEY WOOD MILLS, BURNLEY.

HUTTON'S PURE IRISH LINENS.

IRISH LINEN COLLARS. Gent's four-fold all Pure Linen Collars, all sizes and shapes, 4s. 6d. per dozen. SAMPLE WHITE SHIRT, LINEN FITTINGS, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d. each, post free.

Pure Irish Linen Goods direct from the Factory at Manufacturers' Prices.

FISH NAPKINS, 2s. 6d. per dozen. DINNER NAPKINS, 4s. 6d. per dozen.

IRISH DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS 2 yards square, 2s. 9d. each. NURSERY DIAPER, all Pure Flax, 4½d. per yard.

REAL IRISH LINEN SHEETING, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1s. 11d. per yard. SURPLICE LINEN, yard wide, 7d. per yard. HUCKABACK TOWELS, 4s. 6d. per dozen.

IRISH CAMBRIC POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS guaranteed all pure Flax—Ladies' Size, 2s. 3d. per dozen; Gent's Size, 3s. 6d. per doz.

Samples and Price Lists free to all Parts.

All Parcels sent Carriage Paid to any Station in the Kingdom.

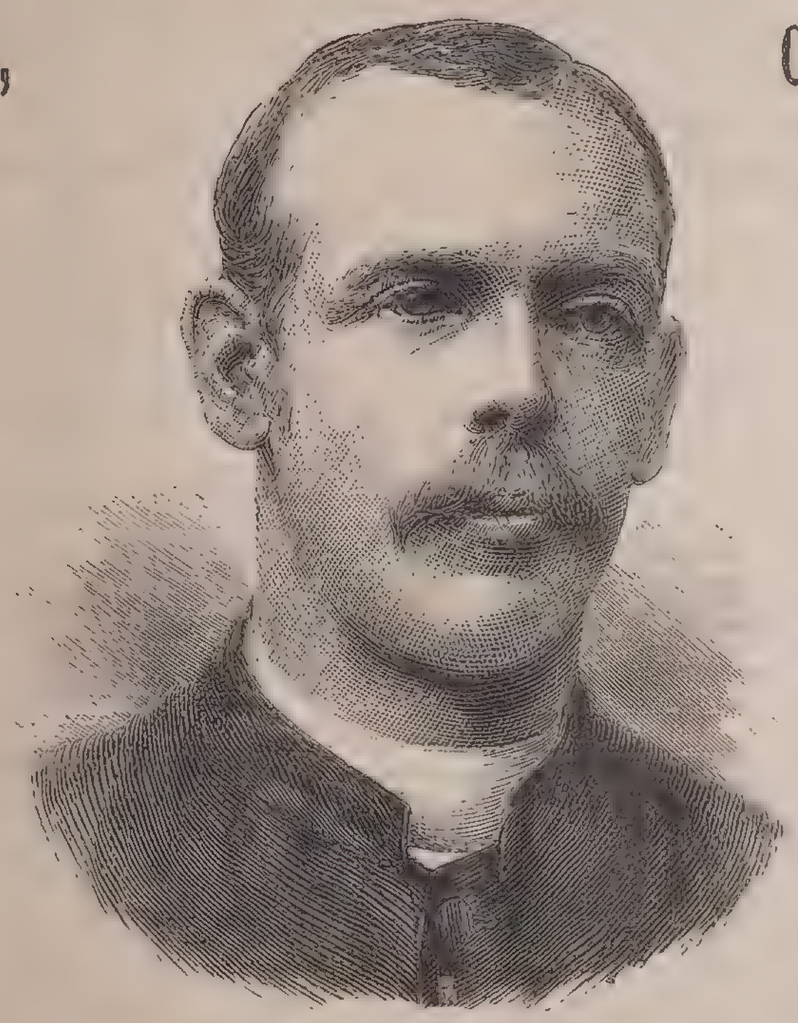
OLD SHIRTS, made as good as new, with very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free, ready to wear.

G. R. HUTTON & CO., LARNE, BELFAST.

Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ✣ NOURISHING. ✣ STRENGTHENING.



The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

A DEVOTED LIFE.
Page 18.

YOUNG MEN and MISSIONS.
Page 12.

[Rev. Thomas Waugh.]

PRINCIPAL

Opening of Mansfield College, Oxford 9
Rev. W. PIERCE at New Court Chapel 9
Major WHITTLE in Glasgow 9
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 10
Some Scotch Missions—2. 11
Workers for Central India 14
Address to Young Men. By Dr. MACLAREN .. 15
A Revival in Natal 16
An Appeal for Africa. By Mrs. GUINNESS .. 17

CONTENTS.

Portrait and Sketch of Rev. T. WAUGH 19
Mr. GEORGE CLARKE in Armagh 20
Another Missionary Valedictory 20
Miss MACPHERSON at Home 21
Dr. PENTECOST in Scotland 21
A Missionary in Peril 22
The Christian Buildings 22
A Sacred Authology 23
Notes on Daily Bible Readings 23

No. 1030.] FRIDAY, OCT. 25, 1889.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

"One of the most important Essays of modern times."—LORD SHAFTESBURY.

THE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE.

I will give 50,000 COPIES of "THE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE" to Major POOLE, AS A CHRISTMAS PRESENT TO BRITISH SOLDIERS, provided others will subscribe for 100,000 COPIES for him at £2 10s. per 1,000, before January 1, 1890.

I will give as a NEW YEAR'S PRESENT to Miss WESTON, FOR THE SAILORS, the SIX TONS of our special literature she has been earnestly asking for for twelve months, if others will pay the bare cost of the printer's bill, £70 per TON, before Christmas, 1889. No charge will be made for my own labour, or the services of my entire force of helpers, in its production. TWO TONS, additional, have already been given. H. L. HASTINGS, care of Marshall Brothers, 10, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

MR. H. L. HASTINGS desires help before January 1, 1890, in preparing a Million Copies of his Lecture on the "Inspiration of the Bible," FOR FREE DISTRIBUTION. Prices, 1d.; 100 copies, 6s.; 500, £1 7s. 6d.; 1,000, £2 10s. Below is a COMPLETE ALPHABETICAL LIST OF MR. HASTINGS' SPECIAL BOOKS, by the sale of which his extensive public work is supported. PLEASE PRESERVE FOR REFERENCE. Every Penny of the Profits from London sales for Three Years, and much more, has been returned by the Author in Free Grants of his literature to British Christian Workers. Will you not order Liberally?

Anti-Infidel Library, The. Edited by H. L. Hastings. A serial issue of five pamphlets on Christian Evidences. Over 30 numbers issued. Prices from 1d. to 1s. per number. Cr. 8vo., in strong, neat Manilla covers. From 32 to 200 pages each. All Titles below marked with a star (*) belong to The Anti-Infidel Library.

Atheism and Arithmetic.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., Manilla covers, 6d.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

Babe of Bethlehem, The. H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 62, Boards, 6d; Cloth. 1s.

Bible Rhymes and Bible Lessons. Anna Bell and H. L. H. Pp. 80, Manilla. 6d.

Bible Triumphant, The.* Mrs. H. V. Reed. Cr. 8vo., pp. 160, Manilla, 1s.; Cloth, pp. 224. 2s. 6d.

Christian Safeguard, The. A Monthly 16-p. paper. Edited by H. L. Hastings. Single copies not sold. Annual Subscription in advance, 4s.

Consecration. H. L. H. Cloth, 1s.

Corruptions of New Testament, The.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 96, Manilla, 6d.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

Credibility of the Christian Religion; or, Thoughts on Modern Rationalism, The. By Samuel Smith, M.P. Pp. 96, Paper, 6d.; Cloth, 1s. 6d.

Darwinism. The Origin of Species.* Robert Patterson, D.D. Cr. 8vo., pp. 70, Manilla, 6d.

Depths of Satan: a Solution of Spirit Mysteries, The.* By Wm. Ramsey and H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Ebenezers, or Records of Prevailing Prayer. H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., Cloth, 3s. 6d.

Egypt in History and Prophecy.* Robert Patterson, D.D. Cr. 8vo., pp. 57, Manilla, 6d.

Errors of Evolution, The.* Robert Patterson, D.D. Cr. 8vo., pp. 280, Cloth, 3s. 6d.

Familiar Spirits.* By Wm. Ramsey and H. L. Hastings. Manilla, 3d.

Family Circle, The. H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 318, Cloth, 3s. 6d.

Fireside Readings for Happy Homes. H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 382, Cloth, 3s. 6d.

Fourteen Nuts for Sceptics to Crack.* H. L. H. Paper, 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Friendly Hints to Candid Sceptics.* H. L. H. Paper, 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Geological Evolution.* Robert Patterson, D.D. Cr. 8vo., pp. 89, Manilla, 6d.

Guiding Hand, The. H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 382, Cloth, 3s. 6d.

"Grape Shot." Leaflets on Christian Evidences. By H. L. H. Sold, ASSORTED ONLY, in packets, at 6d., 1s., and 2s. 6d.

Hastings' Birthday Book, The. H. L. H. Pp. 400, Cloth, 2s. 6d.

Heathenism and Spiritualism.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Home, Marriage and Family Relations. By James Inglis. with preface and poems by H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 96, 2s.

How the Baby was Saved. By J. K. Hastings. Small 8vo., pp. 43, Boards, 6d.

Hudson's Critical Greek and English Concordance of the New Testament. By C. H. Hudson, Ezra Abbot, and H. L. Hastings. Cr. 8vo., pp. 532, Cloth, 7s. 6d.

Infidel Testimony Concerning the Truth of the Bible.* By H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., Paper, abridged, 1d.; Manilla, 6d.

Inspiration of the Bible, The.* By H. L. Hastings. SECOND MILLION. Several different Editions, viz.: Coarse type ("long primer"), Manilla, 3d.; Paper, 1d.; per 100 copies, 6s.; 500, £1 7s. 6d.; 1,000, £2 2s. Illustrated ("brevier" type), same terms, except for 1,000 which is £2 10s. Court Envelope size (abridged for enclosure in letters), on Tinted paper, 1d.

Is the Bible Inspired of God?* is simply the coarse type penny Ed. of INSPIRATION.

Is the Bible a True Book?* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Israel's Greatest Prophet.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Paper, 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Israel's Messiah.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Paper, 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Mystery Solved, The: Spiritual Manifestations Explained.* By Wm. Ramsey and H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Number in Nature.* Edward White. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Origin of Life, The.* Robert Patterson, D.D. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 6d.

Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim. Mrs. H. L. Hastings. Cr. 8vo., clo., 3s. 6d.

Reaching the Masses.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Readings for Leisure Moments. H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., Cloth, 3s. 6d.

Reign of Christ on Earth, The. By D. T. Taylor, with preface by H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 600, Cloth, 5s.

Remarks on the Mistakes of Moses.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., Pa. 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Scientific Star Building, The Nebular Theory Examined.* Robert Patterson, D.D. Cr. 8vo., pp. 76, Manilla, 6d.

Separated Nation, The.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 9d.

Songs of Pilgrimage. A Hymnal for the Churches of Christ. By H. L. Hastings. Large 8vo., 1,553 Hymns with music, pp. 544. Standard Ed., Half Leather, 5s.; Cl., 4s.

Spirit Workings in Various Lands and Ages.* By Wm. Ramsey and H. L. H. Cr. 8vo. pp. 32, Manilla 3d.

Spiritual Manifestations, Their Nature and Significance.* By Wm. Ramsey and H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Testimony of Christ to the Truth of the Old Testament, The.* Robert Patterson, D.D. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Manilla, 3d.

Trying the Spirits.* By W. Ramsey and H.L.H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Pa. 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Two Hundred Gathered Gems of Song and Story. H. L. H. Cloth, pp. 222, 2s. 6d.

Ugly Giant, The. By J. K. Hastings. Boards, pp. 47, 6d.

Warning Word on the Spread of Infidelity, A.* H. L. H. Pa. 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Who Made the New Testament.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 32, Paper, 1d.; Manilla, 3d.

Will the Old Book Stand?* is simply the Illus. 1d. Ed. of INSPIRATION. Per 1000, 50s.

Witness of Sceptics, The.* Abridged from INFIDEL TESTIMONY. Paper, pp. 32. 1d.

Wonderful Law, The.* H. L. H. Cr. 8vo., pp. 111, Manilla 9d.; Cloth. 1s. 6d.

"The undersigned, being personally acquainted with the Anti-Infidel Lectures and Publications of Mr. H. L. Hastings, of Boston, U.S.A., and believing that their wide circulation is demanded by the increase of Sceptical Literature, and will tend to greatly benefit not only Sceptics, but also all Christians and Churches which hold the common faith of Christ, do hereby most heartily commend his work to the confidence, encouragement, and support of all Christians and Philanthropists."

RADSTOCK.
BASIL WILBERFORCE.
GEORGE WILLIAMS.
S. ARTHUR BLACKWOOD.
EDWARD WHITE.
ADOLPH SAPHIR, D.D.
T. A. DENNY.
JOHN MORLEY, J.P.
E. W. BULLINGER, D.D.
DONALD FRASER, D.D.
DON. MATHESON.
A. J. GORDON, D.D.
KINNAIRD.
IRA D. SANKEY.
JOSEPH COOK.
DANIEL DORCHESTER, D.D.
JOSEPH PARKER, D.D.
SAMUEL SMITH, M.P.
H. W. WEBB PEPLOE.
T. J. BARNARDO, F.R.C.S.
JOHN WILKINSON.
S. GURNEY SHEPPARD.
ARTHUR T. PIERSON, D.D.
JOSEPH CUMMINGS, D.D., LL.D.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with much thankfulness from M. W. B., Useful Clothing, so much wanted.

The Infant Day Nursery. Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Free Ragged Day Schools. Industrial Classes. Bible Classes for Street Boys. Special Work amongst Little Girls. Toy Classes. Band of Hope, &c. Work amongst Young Women: Meetings. Bible Classes, Library, Parlour, Tea-room, &c. Work amongst Young Men: Bible Classes, Meetings, Library, &c. For Adults: Bible Classes. Evangelistic Services. Temperance Meetings. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Clubs. Lodging House Services. Room to room Visitation, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

For 103 years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 240 Christian men and women.

Funds are urgently needed.

The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

AGED PILGRIMS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Instituted 1807.—Treasurers: F. A. Bevan, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; W. J. Parks, Esq., 10, The Chase, Clapham Common, S.W. Secretary: Mr. J. E. Hazelton, Office, 83, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Secretary of Asylums: Mr. W. Jackson, 29, Marlborough-road, Upper Holloway, N. Twelve hundred and thirty-one of the Lord's aged poor, of both sexes, and members of various branches of the Church of Christ, are now on the books; and upwards of £7,700 per annum are distributed amongst them, in pensions of five, seven, and ten guineas. To meet this amount the ordinary income is inadequate. The pensioners live in all parts of the country, and most of them are upwards of seventy years of age. In the four Asylums or Homes—Camberwell, Hornsey Rise, Brighton, and Stamford-hill—180 of the pensioners have peaceful and happy abodes. A visit to these buildings is invited. Fresh contributions to the Society and Asylums are earnestly solicited. Annual Reports, and any further information, will be gladly supplied from the Office.

FREE DINNERS FOR CHILDREN,—

Little children cannot plead for themselves, and it is heart-rending to see their hungry little faces Please do send small donation that free dinners may be started in poor part of South London.

Miss YOUNG, 32, Westbourne-park, N.

SAILORS' REST, Naples.—City

improvements cause removal to front street, opposite shipping. For purchase of house, funds are urgently needed before December. An English nobleman has given £100. Donations to Messrs. MEURICOFFRE & Co., Naples, or Office of THE CHRISTIAN.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN,

Hackney.—Will any charitable Lady or Gentleman contribute towards the support of a blind Girl whose father is also blind and very poor? Particulars may be had of Miss RYE. Subscriptions will be thankfully received.

LEYSIAN MEDICAL MISSION,

Whitecross-street, needs funds. 150 patients seen weekly. Gospel services held. Subscriptions received by Dr. GRIFFITH, Honorary Physician, 45, Finsbury-square, or Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

Educational.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

PREPARATORY CLASSES, North

London Collegiate School, under the superintendence of Miss BUSS.—Students are prepared for the Cambridge Higher Local, Froebel Society's examinations, &c., &c. Afternoon classes open to Ladies in the neighbourhood are held for dressmaking, painting, &c.—Address, the HEAD MISTRESS, Miss Toplis, 202, Camden-road, N.W.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and references, Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Rosehill

Preparatory School.—Principal, Miss BAYNE.—The Rev. W. H. Rednap, Incumbent of St. James', Ryde, strongly recommends this School as an Educational Home for boys (number limited to six). Reference permitted to resident nobility and gentry, parents of former pupils. Terms 40 guineas per annum, inclusive.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Home

School for Gentlemen's Daughters.—Two elder Girls can be received, on special terms, at once. Earnest Christian training. Finishing masters, &c.

PRINCIPAL, Stuart's Library.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good

School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy and beautiful situation; large rooms, garden, tennis. Careful Christian training, and thorough teaching. Cambridge Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 50 to 60 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL,

Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Apply to PRINCIPAL. School re-opened Sept. 18.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian"

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Scale for larger advertisements sent on application.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor. Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

EDUCATIONAL HOME for the Daughters of Gentlemen, Hughenden, Westcombe-park, Blackheath.—The Misses BROWN and GOOD, late of Chatsworth Lodge, Chiswick, finding the air of Chiswick too damp, have removed to the above address, where they have taken a large, detached house. They receive twenty resident pupils only. First-class education, with careful Christian training and home comforts. Children from India received and lovingly cared for. References kindly permitted to Mrs. Pennefather, J. E. Mathieson, Esq. (Mildmay), and parents.

SOUTH DEVON.—Home for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Thorough education, combined with every home comfort and Christian training. Resident English and foreign governesses and visiting masters. Preparation for examination. Healthy situation; liberal table; and sanitary arrangements unexceptionable. Terms moderate. To fill vacancies, two young Ladies will be received at the half term at reduced fees (35 guineas per annum inclusive). Prospectuses and references on application.—Miss MORLEY, Mount Vale, Courtenay-park, Newton Abbot.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Gentleman's

Daughter can be received on special terms. High-class School. Fourteen pupils taken. Languages, English, drawing, music. 30 guineas. Music from professor, 35 guineas.—ALPHA, Oval House.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls,

combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

MANADON VILLA SCHOOL, Tavi-

stock-road, Plymouth.—The Misses LANE receive a limited number of Resident and Daily Pupils, whose education and Christian training are conducted with the utmost care. Preparation for all the Local examinations. References to parents of present and former pupils.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.

DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

TWO DAUGHTERS OF GENTLEMEN

would be received at half usual fees, to fill vacancies in superior old-established School, near London. Fine house and grounds. Liberal table, home care and comfort. Lectures and lessons from best professors and masters.—A. P., Relfe Bros., School Stationer, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate, E.C.

HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Riverside, Cardiff.—A Minister's Wife and Daughter (the latter competent to prepare pupils for the Cambridge Local Exams.) wish to receive into their own home six girls as Boarders. Terms for board and tuition in English, mathematics, and French, forty guineas per annum. Reference kindly permitted to Mrs. Boardman, 3, Highbury-place, London; also to Ministers if required.

A. M. B., 105, Tudor-road, Riverside, Cardiff.

LADIES' BOARDING SCHOOL, 16,

Pyrland-road, Highbury New-park.—Mrs. H. MATTHEWS is prepared to receive a limited number of Young Ladies as Resident Pupils. Fees, sixty guineas per annum, each term to be paid in advance. The course of instruction includes Scripture, music, English, French, composition, history, geography, mapping, class singing, plain and fancy needlework. References kindly permitted to Rev. E. A. Stuart, 116, Grosvenor-road, Highbury New-park; Rev. D. B. Hankin, St. Jude's Vicarage, Mildmay-park; Rev. J. H. Shaw, 133, Highbury New-park; Rev. Frederick Whitfield, Cornwallis-gardens, Hastings; Dr. Hamilton, Melrose House, Green Lanes; B. Broomhall, Esq., China Inland Mission, 2, Pyrland-road. A term's notice is required previous to the removal of a pupil.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL,

WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A.; Vice-Principal: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A., T.C.D. School re-opened September 26.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.

—Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the last twelve years pupils have obtained more than two hundred certificates (many passing in Honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.

Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Boys, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Deepdale, Caterham Valley.

MANY CHRISTIAN PARENTS, who

at the present time are seeking a School at which to place their Sons, are invited to write to the undermentioned, who is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMAN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, where the constant aim of the Principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class Education.

The Premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for out-door recreation.

Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several of the Vice-Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School. Terms moderate.

Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

FRENCH TUTOR seeks appointment in England. Young, but of some experience. Highest recommendations. Reference permitted to M. le Pasteur DAN. COURTOIS, Laon (Aisne, France), who will give further particulars.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—Mr.

ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care, Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—References: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. H. Grattan Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

FRANCE.—Professor PONGE, M.A.,

Arras (near Calais and Boulogne), will receive in his family one or two young Boarders. Brothers or Sisters taken on special terms. References exchanged.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

EXPERIENCED PASTOR, opposed to Down Grade movement and powerful extempore preacher, seeks a charge. Free Church of England or Liturgical worship preferred. Being poor, requires stipend for support. Open to supply pulpits.

EXPECTANS, 38, Mayrick-road, Sheerness-on-Sea.

AN EX-PASTOR would be glad to meet with employment in some position of trust. Good scholar and penman. Certificated shorthand writer. Highest references.

X. Y. Z., c/o 4, James-street, Barking.

F. H. LEYBOURNE, evangelist, formerly known as the Derby Boxer, is now seeking some kind of settled appointment in the Lord's work, or would take short Missions. Excellent testimonials of the past nine years' work.

449, Hanover-buildings, Bermondsey, London, S.E.

AS MANAGER OR UNDER-

STEWARD.—Appointment required by a practical Farmer (Gentleman), who understands farming in all its branches; also the breeding and showing of cattle. 11 years' experience, well recommended. Total abstainer. Age 30.

K. M., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

A GENTLEMAN, late student at a

Theological College, desires Scripture Readership in a town, parish, or British seaport, being accustomed to work among seamen. Good testimonials.

M. F., Brixham Vicarage, South Devon.

AUSTRALIA. — Gentleman's

Attendant wishing to return, would, for passage, take charge of invalid or children. Good nurse. Highly recommended by Doctor.—D. C. M., c/o Mr. Robinson, 38, Great Cumberland-place, W.

GENERAL HAIG wishes to hear of employment for a Christian Man, abstainer, who has been out of work a long time, and is suffering greatly from poverty. Only able for light work. Has wife and children.

The Limes, Ladbroke-road, Redhill.

ADVERTISER (37), with a thorough knowledge of the Drapery trade, seeks a situation as Storekeeper, or other responsible post. References to leading London house.—J. N., c/o Mr. Youngman, 111, Stoke Newington-road.

BUTLER requires situation, with or without footman; or any place of trust would suit Advertiser. Total abstainer. Married, no family. Age 31. Good references.

H. J., c/o Nixon, Grocer, Long-street, Atherstone.

COACHMAN RECOMMENDED.—A

Lady recommends a thoroughly experienced, trustworthy Coachman. Christian. Age 36. Married. Excellent character from last situation. Would like Christian family.

Miss HOBKIRK, South Burn, Lockerbie, Scotland.

MR. J. H. BUXTON can recommend a respectable Lad of 18, wishing to learn housework, and make himself useful.

Upton House, Cromer.

GARDENER, Head, or good all round singlehanded. Ten years' experience; five years' excellent reference from present employer. Christian. Age 25.—F. RIX, 2, Reynolds-cottage, Grove-road, Stamford-hill.

AS CARETAKERS, Managers of Offices, Coffee Bar, or any place of trust.—Wanted, situation by Married Couple. Christians, abstainers; good testimonials. Wife good plain cook.

S., 70, St. Andrew's, Uxbridge.

AS UNDER-MATRON in Orphanage or Rescue Home. A Lady can strongly recommend a young Woman, aged 30. Has never been altogether in Mission work, but has helped in Bible-classes and Rescue work. Can superintend cooking and housework, but cannot undertake arduous work. Teetotaler; Evangelical. Would be invaluable.

Miss HEAD, 13, Craven Hill-gardens, W.

AS ASSISTANT MATRON. Re-

engagement required. Boys' or girls' home, Assistant Housekeeper, or other useful work. Thoroughly domesticated. Good plain cook; trustworthy; abstainer; Dissenter.

BETA, 88, Rendelsham-road, Clapton, N.E.

CHRISTIAN LADY of quiet tastes seeks post of usefulness. Would be found suitable where strict integrity, thorough carefulness, and industry are essential. Nice plain cook. Total abstainer. Many years' experience. No objection to ground children well in English and music two hours daily. Interview in London. Very good references.—Miss HAYES, c/o Mr. Eaton Stationer, Broomhall-street, Sheffield.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER, of decided

Christian principles, abstainer, experienced with children of all ages, having just left widower's family, is desirous of re-engagement; or as Lady-Nurse, in good family. Excellent references.

E. C., 2, Albert-road, Bexhill-on-Sea.

LADY HOUSEKEEPER or Companion. Ten years' reference.

H. C., Cairn Craig, Trinity, Edinburgh.

AS HOUSEKEEPER to elderly Lady or Gentleman, or as an Attendant on the same. Total abstainer. Eight years' personal character.

M. A. O., 65, London-road, Clapton.

AS COOK-HOUSEKEEPER where a servant is kept. A Lady recommends a respectable, trustworthy person. Suitable for widower's or small family.—Apply by letter,

Mrs. B., 8, Colville-terrace, W.

LADY (TRAINED NURSE) going to the Riviera, would be glad to take charge of an Invalid en route. References if required.

NITZA, 24, Devonshire-road, Birkenhead.

HOSPITAL-TRAINED NURSE

desires engagement, either Monthly or Medical cases. Masseuse. Good recommendations from Doctors and patients. Understands children.—J., Office for Home Help, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.

AS COMPANION to an elderly

Lady, Housekeeper to a Gentleman, or in a Boarding-house. Re-engagement wanted. Can be highly recommended as kind, cheerful, and conscientious.—BETA, Mr. Trowell, Lansdowne-road, Bournemouth.

WANTED, TO APPRENTICE a Lad o some trade where he will have a chance of a ood start in life. Carriage building preferred. 'remium if necessary.—T. J., c/o Housekeeper, 13, Cose-street, Newgate-st., London, E.C.

AS COMPANION, or any other osition of trust. Lady, aged 36, wishes engage- nent. Good reader; knowledge of nursing. Accus- omed to children. Domesticated, and good needle- voman.—BETA, Y.W.C.A., Lockyer-st., Plymouth.

RE-ENGAGEMENT wanted as iseful Companion to invalid or others, Child's Maid, or any position of trust. No objection to ravel. Highest references.
E. R., 154, Upper Kennington-lane, London.

NOMINAL SALARY.—For a quiet, efined Home with elderly Lady or Gentleman, a Lady would be pleased to devote her services, and o all in her power to repay the hospitality. Con- cientious. Good appearance.
FRANCIS, Rose Cottage, Harpenden, Herts.

WANTED BY TWO SISTERS, the are of Invalid or Child. Experienced nursing. References to doctors and others.
A. M. H., 377, Seaside-road, Eastbourne.

A LADY by birth will take Super- ntendence of Boys' Home, or help in Work for Young Men. Has had some years' experience in hat sort of work. Highest references.—Miss MADELINE ELISTON, 21, Ordnance-road, South- mpton.

A LADY WISHES to recommend her Nursery-Maid for a situation under a good Nurse. Bright, willing, and carefully brought up. Age 17.
Mrs. ARNOLD PELLY, Forest-lane, Stratford.

SEWING-MAID.—A Lady wishes o recommend a young Woman as Sewing-Maid. She also understands dressmaking. Is thoroughly respectable. Disengaged now.
Mrs. MILLER, Horwoods, Basingstoke.

GIRL.—A Lady recommends a Girl, age 14. Abstainer. Eighteen months' per- onal character. Guarded and improving situation, n London, specially desired.—Miss BENNETT, 16, Park-village East, London, N.W.

WILL ANY LADY offer a home during the winter months, to a young Girl (17) who is ordered to the South Coast, in return for her ervices in light housework, or as Maid. Very willing and trustworthy.—Miss B. DANIELS, 77, South Hill-park, Hampstead, N.W.

ENGAGEMENT desired by respect- able Farmer's Daughter (26) as Assistant House- keeper, Useful Companion, or any similar position, n Christian family. Thoroughly domesticated.
Miss WAKELY, Kingstone, Ilminster, Somerset.

AS GOOD PLAIN COOK in a Chris- tian family, with assistance. Wages £25, all found. Or Attendant and Housekeeper to elderly Lady. Five years' good character.
KATE, Rampton Manor, Lincoln.

OFFICE FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.—Miss HOOPER intro- duces Ladies to medical and monthly Nurses, Com- panions, Governesses, and useful Maids. Also superior domestic servants. Hours 10 till 5.

AS USEFUL HELP.—Would assist a mother with a family and home duties, or help n business. Thoroughly domesticated. Aged 23. Comfortable home desired.
B. C., 67, High-street, Putney.

AS SCULLERY OR KITCHEN-MAID. —Mrs. HOBSON can well recommend a young Girl of about 14, who does her work thoroughly. Very respectable and steady.
The Vicarage, Stanstead Abbotts, Ware.

GENERAL SERVANT.—Will any Lady take, as General Servant, a Widow of 42, active and willing, who went to service for the first time 8 months ago, did well, until by getting drunk once, she lost her place and her character. She was previously steady, and paid regularly for her boy boarded out in the country. Wages £14.
R. C., 67, York-road, S.E.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

CHRISTIAN DOCTOR.—Advertiser is desirous of meeting with a Christian Doctor to act as a first-class Visiting Assistant in a London Suburban practice, and to unite with him in mis- sion-work.
J. N. R., 63, Highbury-quadrant, London, N.

ACCOUNTANT wanted for East Africa. Must understand book-keeping by double entry. Strong constitution. Unmarried. Member of Church of England. In sympathy with Mission work.—Apply by letter only (with refer nces as to business qualifications and Christian c aracter), to Church Missionary Society, Salisbury-square, Lon- don, E.C.

A COMPETENT SECRETARY wanted, for the Bury Y.M.C.A.—State age, salary required, &c., by letter only before 3. th instant.
J. TURTAN, 32, Stanley-street, Bury.

CAN ANY LADY recommend good Monthly Nurse, Christian and abstainer. Terms moderate. For end December. Also trustworthy Children's Nurse, about 30. £18 to £20.
3, Craven-terrace, Ealing.

HELPER WANTED in Mission Work, through illness of General Superintendent, only to assist in Sunday School and conduct weekly prayer-meeting, 16s. per month.—WILLIAM CAT-

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.— A City Architect and Surveyor has a vacancy for a Pupil. References exchanged. Small premium.—Box E. 33, Messrs. Deacon's, 150, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

MOTHER'S HELP, or trustworthy Nurse wanted. Two children, ages two years and five weeks. Also thorough General Servant. Good plain Cook. Help given. Send photo.
Mrs. ROBINSON, Scalby Vicarage, Scarborough.

AS COMPANION. — A Christian Lady required of good social position, as Companion to young Lady, aged 21. Able to teach music and painting. Comfortable home. Must be well recom- mended.—Apply, stating age, with full particulars and salary required, also enclosing photo, which shall be returned, to COMPANION, care of Messrs. Macniven & Cameron, Blair-street, Edinburgh.

YOUNG CHRISTIAN LADY wanted in country, as Companion-Governess to girl of 16. Requirements: thorough English, good music (performer), drawing, flower painting, Scripture, plain needlework. Must be healthy, cheerful, firm, domesticated, and methodical. Only those with reliable personal references, within 30 miles of London, as to prove capability for imparting knowledge, need apply. No agents. State salary, and forward photo, to be returned.
X. Y. Z., Railway Station, Sunningdale.

RESPECTABLE PERSON wanted, over 20, fond of children, willing to help a mother in any domestic work. £9. Schoolmaster's house. Nurse-girl kept.
Mrs. DAVIES, Cove, Farnborough, Hants.

A LADY wanted to help with two young children. Good needlewoman. To give ser- vices in return for home, laundress, and first travelling expenses. No salary.
Mrs. H., News Office, Redcar.

YOUNG CHRISTIAN LADY required as Help and Companion in farm-house. Children go to school. Must be able to help with lessons and music.
Mrs. BURCH, Jeanses, Bradford, near Taunton.

MENTAL.—Wanted, middle-aged Nurse-Companion to elderly Lady. Have entire charge, and live in Lodgings. Only person used to such case, and of good character, need apply, with terms per month, to CECIL, Hendry's Library, Grove-road, Eastbourne.

CARETAKER wanted to look after Mission building in South London, where free breakfasts and children's dinners are distributed. Must be strong and active, and not afraid of work. Apply by letter only, stating age and previous ex- perience, and whether wife able to assist, to Mr. W. MEDWIN, 24, Stockwell-road, Clapham, S.W

NURSERY GOVERNESS wanted to take entire charge of, and teach two children, 8 and 5. Bright, true Christian. About 28.
Mrs. NEWTON, Barrells Park, Henley-in-Arden.

NURSERY GOVERNESS required, officer's family, children aged 5 and 6, entire charge. Good English, music. Church of England. Com- fortable home. Moderate salary.—MATER, Rut- land Lodge, Freemantle, Southampton.

AS HELP. — Can any Lady re- commend a kind, capable Christian Woman as Help? Able to cook, and thoroughly domesti- cated. No servant kept; assistance given. Fare arranged.—16, County-road, Walton, Liverpool.

SUPERIOR NURSE OR MOTHER'S HELP wanted at once. Thoroughly competent to take charge of three children. Good needle- woman. Also wanted, plain Cook. Strong, early riser. Church of England. Abstainers.
St. Stephen's Vicarage, North Bow, E.

NURSE WANTED, end November. Can any Lady recommend trustworthy, good- tempered, healthy, experienced Nurse. Good needlewoman. Young baby. She must be a con- scientious, Christian woman.
Mrs. PIKE, St. Clair, Reading.

TWO RELIABLE SERVANTS wanted for November 2, as Cook-General or work- ing Housekeeper, and House-Parlourmaid. Ab- stainers.—Mrs. W., 1, Clissold Park-road, Stoke Newington, N.

A LADY wanted to help in the care of the Invalids of a small Home for Incurable Ladies. Churchwoman.—Address, stating real age, Miss VINCENT, Helena Nursing Home, Brownlow- road, Reading.

COOKS, NURSES, PARLOURMAIDS, House-Parlourmaids, and Good Generals wanted. Good wages. Comfortable homes. All servants req iring good situations should apply at this office, no pains being spared to secure good situa- tions.—Miss MAULDEN, Church-street, Paddington Green. Stamp for reply.

A WIDOW wanted, without chil- dren, to take charge of a Lodge, near London.—G. E., care of Steel & Jones, Advertising Agents, Spring-gardens, S.W.

NURSE.—Wanted, a Nurse, who will not object to housework. Age about 19.—Mrs. MOUAT JONES, 1, Killieser-avenue, Telford-park, Streatham-hill, S.W.

REQUIRED, for Boarding Estab- lishment in Yorkshire, about three months from November, a capable Painter and Paper Hanger. To live in.—D., Herald Office, Harrogate.

A CHRISTIAN GIRL wanted. — Age 16 or 17. As Nurse to two children. Good home. Wages £10.
Mrs. B., Maisonette, Kidderminster-road, Croydon.

A RESPECTABLE WOMAN WANTED, who can cook and help with sewing, &c. Another servant kept.—C/o E.R., Stamp Office, Abergavenny.

Y.W.C.A.—Lady wanted, under 40, for charge of Institute in Essex. Must be accus- tomed to take classes.
SECRETARY, 68, West-hill, Sydenham, S.E.

GOOD PLAIN COOK wanted in a Clergyman's family, where housemaid and nurse are kept.—Apply, stating wages, references, &c., to Mrs. EDMUNDS, All Saints' Parsonage, Leyton, Essex.

GENERAL SERVANT wanted for one Lady, middle of November. A respectable Woman, not under 25. Wages £12.—Apply by letter to A. B., 139, Stockwell-road, Brixton, S.W.

GENERAL SERVANT.—One Lady requires a thoroughly trustworthy, active General Servant. A good cleaner and plain cook, early riser. Two other servants kept. Should have excellent character from Lady. Wages £18, and 8s. per week for board.—Apply by letter, to M., c/o Neal, 5, Edgware-road, W.

CHRISTIAN GENERAL SERVANT wanted.—Abstainer. Plain cooking. Part washing at home. Three in family. Comfortable home.—Mrs. OLDHAM, Cranley House, Venner-road, Sydenham.

GOOD COOK wanted. Kitchen- maid kept. Must understand dairy. Good char- acter indispensable. State wages required, and all particulars, by letter to
B. R. S., May's Advertising Offices, 162, Piccadilly.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

PERCY'S HOTEL, LONDON.
40, Bedford-place, Bloomsbury-sq., W.C.
First-class Private. Under new management. Large and well furnished rooms, Ladies' drawing- room, bath-room. Largely patronised by the clergy, and highly recommended by J. Bevan Braithwaite and Mrs. Braithwaite, and many others. Terms moderate. Tariff on application to
Mrs. LLOYD HARRIS, Proprietress.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Rail- ways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Tariff and testimonials on application. Patronised by ministers of all denominations.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first- class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea, from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London. — 93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfast or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

DOVER.—Shaftesbury Temperance Hotel, Snargate-street.—Clean, comfortable. Con- ducted on Christian principles. Bed-rooms from 1s. per night. Bed-room and board from 21s. per week.—MANAGER.

BOURNEMOUTH, EVERSLEY, West Cliff. A most comfortable Boarding-house, beautifully situated in its own grounds, near the sea. Every effort is made to secure the comfort of Visitors. Terms from 35s. per week.
Miss SEARL, Eversley, Bournemouth.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Board- ing Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Board- ing Establishment in charming locality, commanding splendid sea views. Close to Marina and public gardens. Liberal table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special arrangements with families.—Mrs. WARSCHAWSKI (wife of Rev. Paul War- schawski), Bella Vista, 45, West Hill.

BRIGHTON. — SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 58, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX.

BOURNEMOUTH.—A Clergyman's Widow would gladly receive two or three Ladies in her comfortable home. Moderate charges. South aspect.—Mrs. H., Estens, Surrey-road South.

MENTONE. — To Let, for the season, a very good, well-furnished Apartment. South-west aspect, away from the sea, and high above the town. Good drawing-room, dining-room, five bed-rooms, bath-room and kitchen.
Miss KEITH MURRAY, Les Grottes, Mentone.

HARROGATE BEECH WOOD PRIVATE HOTEL.
For Terms apply to Miss C. LORD.
The clear, bracing air of Harrogate strongly recommends it as a Summer and Winter
HEALTH RESORT.
Visitors will find in Beech Wood a warm and well ventilated house, with home comforts and liberal table.

WORTHING HOME OF REST for Christians. Close to, but not facing sea. Good gar- den. Every comfort. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

HASTINGS. — Board and Resi- dence in a private Christian family. Lovely posi- tion; central. South aspect. Three minutes from sea and rail. Highly recommended. Home com- forts. Terms from 25s.
Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens.

HASTINGS.—Superior Apartments for Winter. South aspect. Baths hot and cold. Sanitary arrangements perfect. Excellent cooking. Special attention to invalids. Three minutes from sea. Terms moderate.
St. Ronan's, Cornwallis-gardens.

HASTINGS.—Craven Lodge Con- valescent and Invalid Home, Linton-road, just opened. Situation healthy, views good. Seven minutes' walk from sea and station. Resident trained nurse. Terms from 10s. 6d. A few private rooms from 15s.
Hon. Superintendent, Miss AGNES YOUNG.

HASTINGS BOARDING ESTABLISH- MENT, Cornwallis House, 28, Cornwallis-gardens. Central position. Thoroughly comfortable. Liberal table, late dinner. Smoking-room. Good winter home. Well recommended. Terms from 30s.
The Misses WOOD.

HASTINGS.—Senlac, Cornwallis- gardens.—Board and Residence. Three minutes from sea. Pleasant south aspect. Home comforts. Late dinner. Access to Cornwallis-gardens. Con- ducted by Mrs. LODGE.

PARIS, Pension de Famille.— Quiet, comfortable, and refined Home, healthy and convenient situation, near Exhibition. Mode- rate terms. References exchanged.—Miss GALLO- WAY, 1, Rue d'Obligado, Avenue du Bois de Boulogne.

BEMBRIDGE, ISLE OF WIGHT (mild climate).—Furnished Houses to Let, for win- ter months, at nominal rents. 2½, 1½, 1, and ½ guineas per week.—TUFFLEY, House Agent.

FELIXSTOWE.—To Let for winter months, a substantial-built House, 14 rooms, heated from top to bottom with hot air, facing the sea. Low rent to a small family.
ARCHER, Estate Agent, Felixstowe.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Board and Residence offered by a Lady, in a detached villa. Sunny aspect, near to West Cliff, sea, church, and West station. Moderate terms.
R., Leigh Wood.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Warm and comfortable suites of Apartments for winter months. Central, sheltered position. South aspect, near pier, gardens, and principal churches. Terms moderate.
Mrs. MOON, Ootacamund, St. Peter's-road.

BRIGHTON. — Select Private Boarding House. Most pleasant and healthy situa- tion. Near West Pier and lawn promenade. Good airy rooms. Special terms for permanent Boarders.
Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

PENZANCE.—A Lady wishes to meet with another Lady, or Ladies, to share her home. Mild climate. Apartments or Board. Per- manency preferred. References. Terms moderate.
A., Mrs. Beare, Stationer, Market-place, Penzance.

MARGATE. — Fine sunshiny weather. Shaftesbury House, the seaside Home of the Y.M.C.A. Ladies are received from October 1.

SWANAGE.— Trained Nurse de- sires care of Lady or Child in this mild winter place. Nurse or mission worker received for rest. c/o Miss Roberts, Virginia House, Swanage, Dorset

ENGEDI HOUSE, Eastern-road, Brighton.—Convalescent Home, House of Rest for Females. Terms (inclusive) from 10s. 6d. per week. Special arrangements made to receive ladies of limited means.—Address LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

CAMDEN ROAD, N., 315, near Athenæum. — Large, well-furnished Bed-room (front). Partial use of sitting-room if desired. Suit Lady or Gentleman engaged during day. Quiet family; no children.

BRIXTON ROAD (few doors from). —Furnished Bed-room or Bed-Sitting offered to one or two Ladies or Gentlemen (Christians pre- ferred). 1½d. tram to Westminster or Blackfriars. Terms moderate.—22, Loughborough-road.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE offered in a comfortable, well-furnished Christian Home, to one or two Ladies. South aspect, and near the sea.—S. G., South View, 17, Lushington-road, East- bourne.

FURNISHED OFFICE ON GROUND FLOOR in Lincoln's-inn-Fields, with partial use of an Office for clerks, suitable for a society, solicitor, surveyor, accountant, &c. Rent £70 per annum.
Messrs. DOWSETT & CO., 3, Lincoln's-inn-Fields.

APARTMENTS FOR THE WINTER, comfortable and well-furnished. Central position, close to church and gardens. Terms moderate. Good cooking and attendance.
Nérac House, Bournemouth.

PRETTY FOUR-ROOMED COTTAGE attached to small Mission Hall in Essex to Let. Very low rent in consideration of cleaning the Hall.
Mrs. P., 58, West-hill, Sydenham, S.E.

FURNISHED DRAWING-ROOM FLOOR or single Bed-room. Bath, hot and cold water. Quiet private family. Terms moderate. Near three stations, also omnibus. References ex- changed.
40, Gascony-avenue, West Hampstead, N.W

BOURNEMOUTH.—Vacancies for a few private Boarders, in warm, cosy house. Pier and gardens three minutes. S. and W. aspect. From 31s. 6d.
DOMUS, Craighne, Upper Terrace-road.

THE ALEXANDRA HOME, Southend-on-Sea (in connection with Y.W.C.A.).—Ladies desiring a Home for the winter months or short period, with complete rest and home comforts on moderate terms (15s. to 21s. a week), are requested to apply to Mrs AMAND ROUTH, 7A, Manchester-square, London, W.; or to the Lady Superintendent, Miss WITHERS, at the Home.

LITTLEHAMPTON. — Seaside Home of Rest for Christians. Freedom and family life. Climate bracing. [illegible] and lodging, 12s. 6d. weekly.—Apply, enclosing stamped envelope.
Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Croydon.

CLERGYMAN WISHES TO RECOMMEND a nice Cottage, furnished (4 bed-rooms), [illegible] Rent £18. Rates, Land-tax [illegible]. Lovely locality. Rural [illegible].
CLERGY, [illegible], Southampton.

PLEASANT HOME in a Clergyman's family by small number of Pupils. Healthy, [illegible] and educational advantages offered to Lady or child.
CHAPLAIN, 31, Rue Ste. Adresse, Hâvre, France.

COMFORTABLE SOCIAL HOME in healthy village, Gloucestershire, offered to one or two [illegible] by two Sisters. Terms 18s. [illegible].
[illegible] N. Cerney, Cirencester.

HOME FROM HOME.—Evangelical Christian family [illegible] to London for business or study.
[illegible] Belgrave-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

COUNTRY (NEAR LONDON) or Suburbs.—Lady desires refined, comfortable Home, without society, in gentleman's family. [illegible] Position Non-interference. Terms [illegible].
S. Paris-avenue, Wood-green.

BOARD WANTED, by elderly Lady, in [illegible] family. Highgate or Finsbury-park. [illegible].

RECTOR'S SISTER desires weekly Board and Residence in farmhouse, country or sea-side. [illegible].

CHRISTIAN PARENTS requiring a [illegible] —A [illegible] Lady [illegible] Mrs. [illegible].

PARTIAL BOARD desired by young [illegible].

BOARD AND RESIDENCE required [illegible]. With any Lady [illegible].

A WIDOW LADY, wishing to board [illegible].

HOME OF REST for Lady Workers. Governesses, and Ladies [illegible]. —Westerslow House, Weymouth. [illegible]. —Terms for permanent Boarders for the winter from 25s.
Mrs. PURSER, Lady Superintendent.

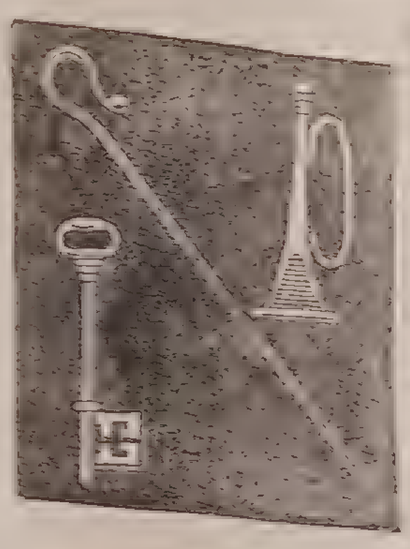
Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest [illegible] after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, [illegible] Romans v. 8.

NATIONAL BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—Votes are earnestly asked on behalf of Mrs. SIMPSON SMITH, 173, East India-road, Poplar. Well recommended.

BEST BELLADONNA PLASTER.—Trade mark, "The Leicester." On stout Dowlais yard tin, 2s. "The Leicester" improved adhesive Plaster, half-yard tin, 6d. Of Chemists [illegible].
For stamps, FRANCIS & Co., Leicester.

A FEW CUSTOMERS wanted for Fresh Butter, by Parcel Post: 2-lb. [illegible] 1s. 6d. per lb.; 4-lb. ditto, 1s. 5½d.: 8-lb. [illegible] —Orders to M. H., Ballintubber Dairy, [illegible] hill, Co. Cork, will be attended to.



NEAVE'S
FOR INFANTS,
INVALIDS,
AND THE AGED.
FOOD.

THE SOUTH DEVON
BISHOPS TEIGNTON (Teignmouth the nearest station.) HEALTH RESORT
Sea and Moorland Air.
Turkish and other baths. Beautiful private grounds. Strongly recommended for those who need rest, and pleasant, healthful change. "Has all the comfort and charm of a gentleman's country home."
For Terms and Testimonials, apply to C. F. CARPENTER, Proprietor.

MADE WITH BOILING WATER.
EPPS'S GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
COCOA
MADE WITH BOILING MILK.

TO STOUT PEOPLE.
"Mr. Russell's aim is to eradicate, to cure the disease, and that his treatment is the true one seems beyond all doubt. The medicine he prescribes does not lower, but builds up and tones the system." Book (128 pages) with recipe and notes how to pleasantly and rapidly cure OBESITY (average reduction in first week is 3 lb.), post free eight stamps.
F. C. RUSSELL, Woburn House, Store St., Bedford Sq., London, W.

IMPORTANT WORK for TEACHERS of the YOUNG.
220 pages, Crown 8vo. Tinted Covers, 2s.; Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
CHILDREN'S MEETINGS:
AND HOW TO CONDUCT THEM.
By LUCY J. RIDER AND NELLIE M. CARMAN.
CONTAINS
FOURTH THOUSAND.
Sixty Outline Lessons for the Class,
Forty-three Diagrams for the Black-board,
Twenty-five attractive Children's Hymns.

"A thoroughly practical book, by teachers who have learned by experience the best methods. Teachers will find it most helpful, especially in blackboard word-work. The Addresses are teachings—which very many Children's Addresses are not."—The Teacher at Work.

"We do not remember meeting with any better book than this for help in Children's Meetings. It is first-rate. There are objects to be drawn on the blackboard; but there are also capital lessons to go with them. Blackboards get very, very black; and the children are very bored, when it is all chalk and no sound sense. Many of these Addresses would make sermons of the first water—and what more can we say of Addresses?"
Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in The Sword and Trowel.

"We have no hesitation in advising all who are engaged in the good work of teaching children and young people in Gospel principles, and the way of salvation, to possess themselves of a copy of this work. It will be found to be a very valuable [illegible] book, and helpful to the teacher of the Infant—as well as to the teacher of the Bible-class."—Baptist Messenger.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 3, Pater[illegible]-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Tinted covers, 1s.: Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.: Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.
THE CHRISTIAN CHOIR.
An Attractive Quarto Volume of Music and Words.
By IRA D. SANKEY and JAMES McGRANAHAN.
May be had either in OLD NOTATION or in TONIC SOL-FA.

"It is as fine a collection of Sacred [illegible] anywhere be found. All the Hymns and [illegible] are beautiful, impressive, gracious: and the [illegible] of them, and the hearing them sung in [illegible] have led many to change their [illegible]. —Christian Chronicle.

"[illegible] this Sacred Song Book it is scarcely needful [illegible] to say a word. Thousands have listened and thousands have sung them, and will retain their good impressions when all the mists have rolled away."—Baptist Messenger.

WORDS ONLY—LARGE TYPE.
Price Sixpence, in Tinted Covers.
Price Ninepence, in Limp Cloth.
Price One Shilling, in Cloth Bds., gilt edges.

WORDS ONLY.
Price One Penny, Tinted Covers.
Price Twopence, in Cloth.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; and may be ordered of any Bookseller.

BAGSTERS'
COMPREHENSIVE TEACHERS' BIBLE.
The only Teacher's Bible published since the Revised Version.
Seven Editions from 4s. Of all Booksellers. Price List free.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 36 Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

CHRISTIAN AGENTS WANTED for Dr. Carter Moffat's Electrical Body-bands, for Failing Health, Indigestion, Torpid Liver, Varicose Veins, &c. Half price to CHRISTIAN readers. Dr. CARTER MOFFAT, Northumberland-park, N.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 7½s. Organs from 85s.—Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-st., Kingsland, London.

SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN. Eleven stops, two knee-swells, &c. Company's warranty. Great bargain, twelve guineas.
CHARLES YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland.

ASTHMA.—Persons suffering from Asthma, difficulty of breathing, &c., are invited to try (free of charge) a Remedy for affording immediate relief.—C., Mr. G. A. Keyworth, Hastings.

WANTED, the address of trustworthy Homes or Registries for Foreign Servants in London.—H., Clevelands, Dawlish.

WASHING WANTED by an experienced Laundress, with every convenience. Terms moderate. Highest references. Good drying grounds, and plentiful supply of water.—Mrs. HUNT, 1, Charles-place, East Aston, Middlesex.

TEA FROM GARDEN DIRECT.—R. MORTON, planter, Toonbarri Estate, sells his Tea in 10-lb. package for 21 cash. Required, as agents for above, Ladies of social position. Liberal commission.—C/o Colonel MORTON, 2, Priory-parade, Cheltenham.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2S. EACH.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RECOVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, [illegible], Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good [illegible] silk, ladies', 3s.; gents', 3s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s.; gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to the Rev. J. R. Hewetson, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

Publications.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1889. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign, 1s. per 100; or to E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Christian Workers are invited to send for specimen packet and list. Large variety of Tracts, Leaflets, and Cards, many suitable for advertising special and evangelistic meetings.—PENMAN & CO., Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C.

GOSPEL TRACTS. By CHEYNE BRADY.—"Mr. Brady's style is quite to our heart. He is direct as a dart, clear as a sunbeam."—C. H. Spurgeon in Sword and Trowel.—Send for list.
DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.

Twentieth Edition. Enlarged. 93 pp., post free, 1s.
DR. WATTS ON ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most Successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., M.A., M.R.C.S., &c.—London: C. MITCHELL & CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & CO., Stationers' Hall-court.

THE STIRLING PUBLICATIONS.

RUPERT HARCOURT'S RUIN. No. 3. Popular Temperance Stories. By AN OLD SALT. Illustrated. Price One Penny.

SOME QUEER MAPS FOR OUR LITTLE ONES. By Sir JAMES COLQUHOUN, Bart. Price Fourpence.

SEA STORIES. By AN OLD SALT. 16 pp. Booklets. Illustrated. Sixpence per dozen, or, in assorted packets, 6d. each.

Packet I. contains 12 copies, assorted, of Nos. 1. Nailed to the Mast. 2. The Captain's Inspection. 3. "That's All a Farce." 4. "Only a Shore."

Packet II. contains 12 copies, assorted, of Nos. 5. "Ready Aloft." 6. "Two Ends to a Rope." 7. "That's the Flag for Me." 8. "Cut it Away, Man!"

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling;
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

TO ADVERTISERS
Advertisements must arrive not later than FIRST POST MONDAY to be inserted in the following issue.

cloth, 2s. each; extra gilt, 3s.

NOTES ON THE BOOK OF GENESIS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF EXODUS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF LEVITICUS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF NUMBERS.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF DEUT. Vol. I.
NOTES ON THE BOOK OF DEUT. Vol. II.

"To all who love and relish the simple Gospel of the grace of God I could earnestly recommend the following "Notes." They are characterised by a deep-toned, evangelical spirit. Having had the privilege of reading them in MS., I can speak as one who has found profit therefrom.—See Preface, Notes on Genesis.

ALSO BY THE SAME AUTHOR AND UNIFORM WITH THE ABOVE IN SIZE AND PRICES—

"THE MISCELLANEOUS WRITINGS of C. H. M."
Vols. I. to VI.

London: G. MORRISH, 20, PATERNOSTER SQUARE, E.C.

Recently Published. By A. E. KNIGHT. Price 5s.

A CONCISE HISTORY OF THE CHURCH from the Apostolic Era to the establishment of the Reformation.

"The author has succeeded admirably. Here, in one handy volume, is all that is essential and much that is very interesting and instructive, succinctly and lucidly presented."—The Christian.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

INVALUABLE TO STUDENTS OF SCRIPTURE.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK CONCORDANCE. Price £1. 1s.
For the use of Scholars and those who know a little Greek.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S GREEK NEW TESTAMENT. 10s.
Having the English equivalent under each Greek word.

A HANDY CONCORDANCE TO THE SEPTUAGINT. 15s.
"We give 'A Handy Concordance' the hearty welcome which it deserves."—Guardian.

S. BAGSTER & SONS, LIM., 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

FIELD LANE REFUGES AND RAGGED SCHOOLS,
VINE STREET, CLERKENWELL ROAD, E.C.

£70 per week required to carry on the Winter's work. For results of work see advertisement in next week's CHRISTIAN.

PEREGRINE PLATT, Secretary.

FATHERLESS.

315 ORPHANS of both sexes are now in the ASYLUM FOR FATHERLESS CHILDREN at Reedham, Purley, Surrey, and the Board of Managers most earnestly appeal for help to maintain and educate them. These children have been admitted to the Asylum at ages varying from 6 months to 11 years, and will all be retained and cared for until they are 15 years of age. This Charity is entirely unsectarian, and has no endowment; it is therefore dependent upon public benevolence for support.

The necessary expenditure averages £8,000 per annum, but the only reliable income—that from Annual Subscriptions—does not provide one-third of that amount, hence the necessity for this appeal.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS will be most thankfully received.

HENRY SPICER, Treasurer.
J. ROWLAND EDWARDS, Secretary.

Office, 35, Finsbury-circus, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.
Established 1822.

FOR the purpose of employing humble Christian men well versed in the Scriptures to visit and read the Bible throughout Ireland. The Scripture Readers are invariably placed under carefully selected Christian Superintendents, and are also employed by the Society in the large towns and cities as City Missionaries, and visit all denominations, where permitted. Irish-speaking Readers are sent to Irish-speaking districts when required, but are now seldom asked for. The work is carried on in a spirit of love, and not of controversy.

The Scripture Readers also visit amongst the Sailors in seaports and hold Bethel Meetings on board Ships, at hours not to interfere with the usual Public Services. The Society is supported by voluntary contributions.

OFFICES—27, LOWER PEMBROKE STREET, DUBLIN; and 9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON.

Full particulars, reports, &c., can be obtained post free on application to the Secretary, Capt. JAMES KEARNEY WHITE.

NOTE.—Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of "THE CHRISTIAN."

Friends will please notice the exact title, "Scripture Readers' Society for Ireland," and not "Irish Scripture Readers' Society."

Thousands of Fishermen are engaged all the year round in providing OUR TABLES with fish. These men, who FOR US hazard their lives and toil through furious blasts and sleety storm (not only cut off from the comforts of home, but at two days' distance from medical or surgical aid), may rightly claim some small share in the privileges we so richly enjoy. THIS THEY CAN ONLY HAVE THROUGH THE PRESENCE OF THE MISSION VESSELS, carrying to the Fishermen the message of Divine mercy and love, affording relief in sickness, and cheering dull lives by their presence.

HELP WANTED FOR THE TOILERS OF THE DEEP.

TEN Mission Vessels now cruise with the Trawling Fleets, each being at once a CHURCH, DISPENSARY, LIBRARY, and CLUB. Funds are required to provide a Mission Vessel for EVERY FLEET, and for the maintenance of the HOSPITAL MISSION SHIPS Queen Victoria and Albert. The urgent necessity of these floating Hospitals is shown by the fact that during last year over 7,000 cases of accident and sickness were successfully treated on board the Dispensary of the Mission Vessels. WHO WILL HELP? Large or small Offerings will be thankfully acknowledged.

MISSION TO DEEP-SEA FISHERMEN.
PATRON—THE QUEEN.

Treasurer and Chairman of Council—THOMAS B. MILLER, Esq.
Chairman of Finance Committee .....THOMAS GRAY, Esq., C.B.
Chairman of Hospital Committee—FREDK. TREVES, Esq., F.R.C.S.

Bankers—Messrs. LLOYDS, BARNETTS & BOSANQUETS, Limited.
Secretary .....ALEXANDER GORDON, Esq.
Offices—BRIDGE HOUSE, BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE, LONDON, E.C.

THE MISSIONS TO SEAMEN SOCIETY.

PATRON—
ADMIRAL H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

Labours AFLOAT AND ASHORE, at HOME AND ABROAD, among 625,000 SEAMEN of the Mercantile Marine, Passenger, Emigrant, Light, and other Ships, and Fishing Vessels, &c.; and among 60,000 SEAMEN of the Royal Navy. Its work is SPIRITUAL, PHILANTHROPIC, and TEMPERANCE.

Increased FUNDS are URGENTLY REQUIRED.

Contributions and Offertories should be forwarded to Commander W. DAWSON, R.N., 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, London, W.C.

Christian Community.

THE 117th ANNUAL REPORT of this Society is now ready, and a copy will be sent to anyone interested in the work, on application to the Secretary, as under.

The All-Night Rescue Work has again been commenced for the winter months. On the first night no less than 70 poor destitute men were sheltered and fed.

To sustain this important work, help is greatly needed. Donations will be gratefully received by the Secretary; or the Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., at the Bank, 54, Lombard-street, London, E.C.; or by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, at the office of this paper.

JAS. ATKINSON, Secretary.

28, Enfield-road, Kingsland, London, N.

State Endowment of Romish Education.

A CONFERENCE
OF THE Protestant Alliance,
TO BE FOLLOWED BY A GENERAL MEETING OF PROTESTANTS,
WILL BE HELD IN EXETER HALL,
ON THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1889.

The following propositions will be discussed:—

I.—Romish Claims to Supremacy.
II.—State Support of Romish Education.
III.—Encouragement of Sacerdotalism.
IV.—Revival of Monasticism.

The Speakers will include Colonel Sandys, M.P.; Wm. Johnston, Esq., M.P.; Gen. Sir Robert Phayre, K.C.B.; Sir S. Arthur Blackwood, K.C.B.; Hon. P. Carteret-Hill, D.C.L.; Rev. Jas. Ormiston, M.A.; Rev. J. Hiles Hitchens, D.D.; Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston, M.A.; Rev. W. Lancelot Holland, M.A.; Revs. J. Wylie, D.D.; and J. Stevenson, M.A. (Deputation from Edinburgh). Revs. W. Barras, M.A., and J. Kerr, D.D. (Deputation from Glasgow), Rev. Richard Roberts (Ex-President Wesleyan Conference), Mark Knowles, Esq., W. C. Maughan, Esq., J.P., T. A. Denny, Esq., A. H. Guinness, Esq., and others.

TICKETS OF ADMISSION and all particulars may be obtained on application at the Offices of the Protestant Alliance, 9, Strand, and at Exeter Hall, London, W.C.

Holiness Convention in Manchester.

THE ANNUAL CHRISTIAN CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN THE CONFERENCE HALL, STRANGEWAYS, MANCHESTER,
On TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, and THURSDAY, OCTOBER 29, 30, and 31.

SUBJECT:—THE LIFE OF FAITH.

The following Brethren (among others) will take part:—

Rev. EVAN H. HOPKINS; Rev. J. ELDER CUMMING, D.D.; Rev. W. HASLAM, M.A.; Rev. J. B. FIGGIS; Rev. C. GELSON GREGSON; Rev. J. HUDSON TAYLOR; Rev. JOHN RIDDELL; Mr. EUGENE STOCK; Mr. JAMES E. MATHIESON; Rev. Dr. PIERSON, U.S.A. (expected).

UNITED PRELIMINARY PRAYER MEETING, at which it is hoped all friends will gather, on MONDAY EVENING at 7.30.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY'S LIST.

JUST PUBLISHED. FIFTH REVISED EDITION.
Large Quarto. 36s. Cloth Boards.

ANALYTICAL CONCORDANCE TO THE BIBLE.

Containing every word in alphabetical order, arranged under its Hebrew or Greek original, with the literal meaning of each, and its pronunciation, exhibiting about 311,000 references, marking 30,000 various readings in the New Testament, with the latest information on Biblical Geography and Antiquities, &c. Designed for the simplest Reader of the English Bible. By ROBERT YOUNG, LL.D., author of "A New Literal Translation of the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures," "A Grammatical Analysis of the Minor Prophets in Hebrew," "Biblical Notes and Queries," &c. Fifth Revised Edition. Large Quarto. 36s., cloth boards.

The present work is in no sense an edition of CRUDEN, either in its plan or its execution. Its great object is to enable every English reader, learned or unlearned, at a glance to find out THREE DISTINCT POINTS—First, What is the original Hebrew or Greek of any ordinary word in his English Bible; Second, What is the literal and primitive meaning of every such original word; and Third, What are thoroughly true and reliable parallel passages. In carrying out these three important Points, the following plan has been adopted: 1. One Hundred and Eighteen references have been given which are not found in Cruden. 2. The Proper Name of every Person and Place has been given, with the literal meaning. 3. The location of every place in its tribe, with the modern name (if identified) so as to form a Complete Scripture Geography and Gazetteer. 4. But the predominating feature of this work is the Analytical Arrangement of each English word under its own proper original in Hebrew or Greek, with the literal meaning of the same. By this means the reader is enabled to distinguish things that differ, which are frequently confounded in the English Bible, and which have hitherto been the exclusive property of scholars. For the Authorised Version often renders one Greek word by ten or twenty English ones; and, on the other hand, it sometimes employs one English word to translate ten or twenty Greek ones.

"By far the most complete and serviceable concordance."—Expositor.
"Most admirable."—Literary Churchman.
"The concordance of concordances."—Presbyterian Monthly.

BIBLICAL BOOKS.

Crown 8vo., 2s., cloth boards.

THE TIMES OF ISAIAH as Illustrated from Contemporary Monuments. By A. H. SAYCE, LL.D., Author of "Fresh Light from the Ancient Monuments," "The Hittites: A Story of a Forgotten Empire," &c. With a Map.

Small Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

STORIES FROM GENESIS. By ANNIE R. BUTLER, Author of "Stories of the Children's Medical Mission," &c. With 39 Illustrations. This is the first volume of a series of books for children, entitled "Stepping Stones to Bible History."

BIOGRAPHY.

Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

ATHANASIUS: His Life and Life-Work. By HENRY ROBERT REYNOLDS, D.D., Author of "John the Baptist," "The Philosophy of Prayer," &c. Church History Series. No. V. With Portrait, and three Illustrations.

Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards, gilt tops.

SWEET SINGERS OF WALES. A Story of Welsh Hymns and their Authors. With Original Translations by H. ELVET LEWIS.

Crown 8vo., 5s., cloth boards.

YON BOGATZKY, HIS LIFE AND WORK. A Chapter from the Religious Life of the Eighteenth Century. By the Rev. JOHN KELLY. With Portrait.

With Portraits. 1s. 6d., cloth.

SHORT BIOGRAPHIES FOR THE PEOPLE. Vol. VI. By Various Writers. Contains: Dr. Guthrie—Athanasius—Jonathan Edwards—Heber—Sir Isaac Newton—Kirke White—Dr. Duff—Basil—Havelock—McIlvaine—Thomas Scott—Sir H. Edwardes.

MISSIONARY BOOKS.

Crown 8vo., 5s., cloth boards.

MY LIFE IN BASUTO LAND. A Story of Missionary Enterprise in South Africa. By EUGENE CASALIS, of the Paris Missionary Society. Translated from the French by J. BRIERLEY, B.A.

Crown 8vo., 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

NATIVE LIFE IN SOUTH INDIA. Being Sketches of the Social and Religious Characteristics of the Hindus. By the Rev. HENRY RICE, Church of Scotland Mission, Madras. With many Illustrations.

Crown 8vo., 6s., cloth boards.

THE APPEAL TO THE SERPENT; or, Life in an Ancient Buddhist City. A Story of Early Ceylon Life. By the Rev. SAMUEL LANGDON. With Illustrations.

ILLUSTRATED GIFT BOOKS.

8s., handsome cloth, gilt.
The New Volume of "The Pen and Pencil" Series.

RUSSIAN PICTURES. Drawn with Pen and Pencil. By THOMAS MICHELL, C.B., Author of "Murray's Handbook to Russia," &c. With upwards of 100 Engravings. Imperial 8vo., 8s., cloth boards, gilt edges. It is written by a gentleman who has spent a great part of his life in Russia, and who is familiar with the language and the people of that great Empire.

Imperial 16mo., 5s., bevelled boards, gilt.

WAYS AND MEANS; or, Voices from the Highways and Hedges. A Series of Sketches on Social Subjects. By ISABELLA FYVIE MAYO, Author of "The Occupations of a Retired Life," &c. The book is prettily illustrated, forms a capital gift book.

New Edition, 8s., handsome cloth; or 25s. in morocco.

ENGLISH PICTURES. Drawn with Pen and Pencil. By SAMUEL MANNING, LL.D., and S. G. GREEN, D.D. With Coloured Frontispiece and numerous Wood Engravings.
"It is illustrated by a large number of the very best wood engravings."—Art Journal.

Imperial 16mo., 6s., cloth gilt.

THE BROOK AND ITS BANKS. By the Rev. J. G. WOOD, Author of "The Handy Natural History," &c., &c. With many Illustrations.
"The lads and lasses who stroll along country streams with this volume and its excellent illustrations will need no clearer introduction to bird and fish, reptile and insect."—The Graphic.

THE

SUNDAY AT HOME
For NOVEMBER,

READY OCTOBER 25,
COMMENCES A NEW VOLUME, and contains
The First of a Series of Papers

"ON FAITH-HEALING."
By Dr. ALFRED SCHOFIELD.
With an Examination of some Cases which have recently attracted attention.

A Beautifully Coloured Frontispiece Plate, entitled—

"THE DEDICATION of SAMUEL."
From the Painting in this year's Royal Academy Exhibition by FRANK W. W. TOPHAM, R.I.

THE OPENING CHAPTERS OF A NEW STORY
By Isabella Fyvie Mayo,
Author of "Ways and Means," "The Occupations of a Retired Life," &c., &c., Entitled,

"NOT BY BREAD ALONE."

King Solomon. By the DEAN OF WESTMINSTER.
A Home in the Riviera. BORDIGHERA AND THE ASILO EVANGELICO. Illustrated.
Bell Mottoes. I. By W. J. GORDON.
Incidents of Spiritual Work. Vashti—"Now!" By the author of "Tommy Atkins at Home," &c.
The Last Combat in the Coliseum. From the Painting by JOSEPH STALLART. With Poem by EMILY H. HICKEY.
Sunset. By MARY ROWLES JARVIS.
November.
The Master's Counsel. By RICHARD WILTON, M.A.
Voices by the Way. Food and Raiment. By the Rev. PREBENDARY HARRY JONES, M.A.
Christ before Herod. By GEORGE TINWORTH.
Pundita Ramabai. By CHARLES MERK, PH.D. With Portrait
Workhouse Life in Town and Country. St. Leonard's, Shoreditch. By Mrs. BREWER.
Mrs. Anderson's Troubles.
Bible Notes and Queries.
Things New and Old. Scripture Exercises.
Monthly Religious Record.

The Sunday at Home.
6d. MONTHLY. 1d. WEEKLY.

"As a Sunday magazine for rich and poor, old and young, THE SUNDAY AT HOME is yet without a successful rival."—English Churchman.

☞ NOW IS THE TIME FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS TO BEGIN TO TAKE THE MAGAZINE.

THE

Sunday at Home Annual
JAN. TO OCT. 1889.

Contains a great variety of Interesting and Instructive Sabbath Reading for every member of the family. It consists of 688 pages, with 8 coloured plates and nearly 200 other engravings.

Price 6s. in cloth boards;
7s. 6d. extra boards, gilt edges;
9s. 6d. half-bound in calf

Amongst a variety of other Interesting Sabbath Reading, the volume contains:—

The Dalrymples. A Story by AGNES GIBERNE.
Of all Degrees. A Story by LESLIE KEITH.
Thoughts and By-thoughts—Bird Musings— Gleanings—Harvest in Storm. By J. R. VERNON, M.A., Author of "The Harvest of a Quiet Eye," &c., &c.
The Glorious Return. A Story of the Vaudois Commemoration. By CRONA TEMPLE.
Tommy Atkins at Home.
Workhouse Life in Town and Country. By Mrs. BREWER.
Biography. Bishop Steere—Henry Richard—Melanchthon—Bishop Ken—John Rylands—Hannah More—Dr. J. K. Mackenzie—J. Witherspoon, D.D.—Andrew Ferguson—St. Hilaire—Mary L. Whately—Wonderful Walker—Princess Eugenie of Sweden, and others.
Missions and Missionaries. By Rev. C. MERK.
China, Past and Present. By Rev. JOHN ROSS.
Irish Sacred Literature and Art. By Rev. RICHARD LOVETT, M.A.
Samoa, Past and Present. By Rev. GEORGE COUSINS.
Scotch Preachers in Reformation Days. By Professor W. BLAIKIE, D.D.
Recent Discourses and the Christian Faith. By Rev. G. T. STOKES, D.D.
The Battahs of Sumatra. By J. T. BEIGHTON.
American Devotional Poetry. By LILY WATSON.
Family Sermons. By Revs. F. Bourdillon, M.A., J. Monro Gibson, D.D., R. Demaus, R. H. Horton, M.A., Alfred Norris.
Singing Joe. By Mrs. COOPER.
Incidents of Russian Evangelisation.
Things New and Old.
Bible Notes and Queries. Talks about Texts.
A Monthly Religious Record.

STORIES FOR THE YOUNG.

The Royal Law. By CHARLOTTE MASON.
Her Grandfather's Eyes. By SYDNEY GREY.
Nellie's Little Light. By RUTH LAMB.
Dena's Disobedience. By LOUISA DOBRÉE.
The Sunday School Friends. By GRACE STEBBING.
Raynham Farm. By MARY ROWLES JARVIS.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY'S
ILLUSTRATED LIST OF BOOKS FOR PRESENTS AND PRIZES,

Contains Illustrated Table-books, Handsome Gift-books, Popular Natural History, Biblical Books, Biography, Missionary Books, Illustrated Annuals, Useful Sets, Illustrated Tales, &c., &c.

Please send a post-card with name and address to the TRADE MANAGER, 56, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, and a copy will be forwarded to you.

October 25, 1889.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of the late Mr. Robert Baxter.

The sixth of the present month was the 353rd anniversary of the martyrdom of William Tyndale, the translator of the New Testament. The newly-appointed Archdeacon of London, Dr. Sinclair, preaching at St. Paul's on that day, said that :—

> Whatever side we might take in modern controversy, we must all honour William Tyndale for his courage and persistence, since to those qualities we owed the English Version of the Word of God, which was the inspiration of the Church, and the glory of our family life.

The Roman Catholic papers continue to rail at Dr. Barnardo, and to decry his work. Ever since his exposure of their machinations in the Tye case, The Star has in a very spiteful fashion endeavoured to excite ill-feeling against him. Dr. Barnardo has made no sort of reply, and apparently taken no notice of The Star's attack. In this we think he is pursuing the most sensible course, for no one who knows of the good he has done in East London for twenty-three years imagines that any reply to such abuse is necessary.

A correspondent calls our attention to one or two of the items in the prospectus of the Madagascar Mercantile and Development Syndicate, Limited. Among the objects for which the company is established, as set forth in the Memorandum of Association, are the following :—

> To carry on the business of cultivators or growers of sugar, coffee, cocoa, spices, tobacco, tea, cinchona, fruits, wines, cereals, opium, and any other produce.
>
> To promote, establish, and carry on the business of distillers and rectifiers in all branches.

Surely we have already done enough evil in the world by means of the opium trade in India and China, and by the importation of intoxicating drinks into so many of the countries of the world, Madagascar among the number, without opening out a new development of these accursed trades. And when in addition to this we remember that it is contrary to the Malagasy law for opium to be grown in the Island, as is also the sale and manufacture of rum and all other intoxicants, it is difficult to find language strong enough in deprecation of the above proposals.

The Literary World, in an able notice of Dominico Berti's "Life of Giordano Bruno," lately published at Rome and Florence, takes occasion to say, in regard to the Papal authorities in Rome to-day :—

> They might have disowned the cruel persecutions of a former day as all other Governments do, and say it was the barbarous spirit of the age that prompted them. But the Papal Court alone refuses to make any progress. When they still defend the rack and the stake as suitable instruments of conversion to Christianity, the public have a natural fear that if they again found themselves in a position to do so, they would resort to the same methods, and it strengthens the national determination that the Pope shall never again

We have more than once remarked upon the improved demeanour of the Roman Catholics of Ireland in relation to the Gospel. Doubtless this is in no small degree a natural response to the specially kindly spirit in which they are approached to-day by those who would lead them into the liberty of Christ. An esteemed correspondent, "An ex-Romanist," writes to point out another fact, which goes far to explain the salutary change. He says :—

> Irish Roman Catholics have been taught, by Irish or Ultramontane priests, that the Church of Rome is the sincere, loving, paternal, and unselfish friend of Ireland, while England is quite the reverse—in fact, but for the watchfulness of the Pope, Ireland would be ground down with taxation by England! This teaching is at last losing its effect, Irish Roman Catholics having become more than suspicious of Papal love for Ireland. Hence the anxiety to know more about the Word of God.

The interference of the Pope in Irish politics has caused general distrust of his intentions. The correspondent, from whose letter we have already quoted, says :—

> Since the circulation of Adrian's bull among Irish Roman Catholics, about five years ago, this change has been working. It was brought out at the time of the appointment of a successor to Cardinal McCabe, the Nationalists threatening schism, if their nominee, Dr. Walsh, were not selected. The publication had such an effect on the bishops that one of them published a pastoral, denouncing the author, and warning the Pope that a spirit that it would be dangerous to oppose was rising among the people.

The name of Adrian being associated with treacherous designs against the people of Ireland, there has arisen a feeling of suspicion against the occupant of the Papal chair. Consequently, many Romanists do not hesitate to read the Scriptures when kindly requested to do so by Protestants. At the present time Ireland is certainly a field promising and yielding blessed results of earnest evangelistic endeavour.

The Catholic Truth Society had a Conference last week at Manchester, and made it very evident that they are a society for the propagation and dissemination of Roman Catholic error. Strange to say, however, at one of the meetings a priest urged very strongly the importance of bringing out "a good popular commentary upon the various parts of the Bible, especially of the New Testament." The work, he considered, would be of great value "to show Protestant Bible Christians the Catholic interpretation of the Holy Scripture, as well as for the edification and instruction of the Catholics themselves." Ultimately, upon a suggestion from the Roman Catholic Bishop of Salford, all present at the meeting agreed to pay twenty shillings each towards a commentary to be published in about five years. We would suggest to the Society that in the meantime they should busily occupy themselves in circulating the Scriptures. They might, of course, find that people could do without the commentary; but an association professing to be interested in the dissemination of the truth ought to scatter the eternal declarations of God and Christ first, and to talk about commentaries afterwards.

We commend to the earnest attention of our readers the painful situation of Rev. Dr. Kerr Cross, at the northern end of Lake Nyassa, Livingstonia, as described on page 22. In company with a handful of white men, he has for months been keeping a force of Arab marauders at bay, and defending the natives from these murderous slave-dealers. The situation is a fearful one, and, unless some assistance be speedily organised, it is to be feared that this band of heroic white men will be massacred, and the work of Christianising and civilising in these parts be seriously impeded, if not extinguished. If any of our readers are able to move in the matter, we shall be glad to put them in communication with those with whom they may co-operate. The Times, on Tuesday last, contained a harrowing account, from Dr. Cross, of some further raids made by Arabs upon native villages.

In a recent letter to The Manchester Courier a correspondent makes an earnest and touching plea on behalf of the poor children who offer matches and various articles for sale in the streets, whose number is continually increasing :—

> Where are the tenderness and pity due to these mites of the earth? Where is that charity so beautifully expressed in the Book of books as being the greatest of all to be found amongst this great mass of hurrying, bustling crowds of human beings. The echo returns from afar—where?

Every child rescued from street-life is one more possible recruit saved from the ranks of vice or crime, and such work as that of Dr. Barnardo, Rev. Dr. Stephenson, and others, has a value reaching far beyond the present day. Town councils have now power to some extent to regulate this child-life in the streets, but by-laws and regulations only touch the surface of the sore.

Seeing that many of these little ones are at the mercy of drunken or vicious parents, to give them money or even purchase their wares is too often merely perpetuating the evil which is deplored. The general public has not the time nor the disposition for the discriminating inquiry and personal trouble requisite for effectually dealing with this question. But if the willing heart be present, it is not difficult to find in any city individuals or agencies willing and competent to see that any gifts of money or clothing are wisely laid out and carefully distributed. The winter months are upon us: let those who have homes of comfort and luxury remember those in the slums and alleys.

Our columns last week contained a communication relating to a union of Nonconformists in Tunbridge Wells in connection with a visit of the evangelists, Messrs. Fullerton and Smith. We learn that on the following week Christian union in this place took a wider range. For two days those interested in the Y.W.C.A. met for prayer and deliberation, and an important conference to promote a missionary spirit gathered together Churchmen and Dissenters. Gen. Sir Robert Phayre presided, and the speakers at the two meetings included Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, and Messrs. Eugene Stock, and Reginald Radcliffe. There was no collection; not a sectarian note was heard; the platform was filled with representatives of the different churches, and, at the close of the second crowded meeting in the largest hall, upwards of twenty young men and women offered themselves for the heathen, to do whatever the Lord should show them. Such a lifting up of religion into ascendency in a community, and such manifestations of union, must have a useful influence on those who look on.

The Bishop of Rochester's words are almost always valuable. In his quadrennial visitation charge last week he spoke of mimicking Rome as a poor and miserable thing to do. Sound Churchmen cannot be blamed for their righteous anger about it, Romanists regard it with unspeakable scorn, and the feeble imitation of another communion filled honest men with a sort of bitter disdain. In the matter of the union of Churchmen and Dissenters, the Bishop said:—

In many respects we are much nearer to each other than we used to be, and we are steadily drawing nearer, in the best kind of way. They study our greatest divines. My respected friend, the pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, has a personal knowledge of the works of Bishop Andrewes which many of us might envy. We, too, are glad to read theirs. Dr. Dale's work on "The Atonement" is a familiar friend on many of our bookshelves. Let opportunities of social intercourse be multiplied. Let us be careful not to seek occasions of strife, nor to make men offenders for a word, while we must not water down statements of truth to please men and offend God. Perhaps we shall also do well to remember that not all kinds of separation from the outward polity of the Church involve the guilt of what the New Testament understands by schism, and that not all members of an Apostolical communion are imbued with the Spirit of Christ.

The following extracts from a criticism in The Manchester Courier, upon a play recently produced in Manchester, in which the principal part is performed by a lady formerly a prominent figure in "society," may serve as a commentary upon the actor's paper which was received with such marks of approval at the Church Congress:—

There is an unsavoury odour about it, a pervading grossness, which the high sentimentality of the last act utterly fails to redeem. The chief features of the play are illicit love, mercenary marriage, revenge, remorse, and murder....An odour of wickedness pervades it, imparted by the two leading characters.

One of the principal characters is "a young gentleman whose views of morality and propriety are of the loosest." In the face of such facts as these it is idle to talk of the elevating and refining effect of the stage; there is something poisonous in the atmosphere, and "he that goes to sea must smell of the ship." It is a fallacy to suppose that attendance of Christians at the theatre would give it a higher tone. Lot did not elevate the morals of Sodom, or save it from destruction.

It is reassuring to learn from the recent Report of the Directors of Convict Prisons that the number of persons under sentence for serious crimes in England and Wales continues steadily to decrease. The yearly average of penal servitude prisoners has declined from 1633 ten years ago to only 952 for the last four years, although the population has increased by four millions. A still more pleasing feature is the great diminution in the number of female convicts, which is less than one-third of what it was ten years ago; and the number of females sentenced to penal servitude in 1888 was only fifty-seven, as compared with one hundred and eighty-six in 1883. The report also chronicles a new and praiseworthy feature in the directors' work, they having since last November sent ten female convicts to spend the nine months prior to their discharge in the Elizabeth Fry Refuge, and the London Preventive and Reformatory Institution. This method is worthy of attention, and may prove a valuable help towards the solution of the difficult problem of preventing the lapse of female prisoners into crime.

The above statistics also furnish a very practical testimony to the value of the work done by such men and women as Mr. Hatton, Mr. Wheatley, and Mrs. Meredith, by Prison Gate Missions, and by other Christian agencies. They also show that the only true and effectual lines of work are Christian, and not socialistic, for it is only by the regeneration and reclamation of the individual that the masses of men are to be permanently improved. Experiments on society will not transform or reform the individual; mere earthly methods and forces are foredoomed to failure.

The Commissioners appointed by the American Government some time ago to inquire into the working and results of strikes and lock-outs in the United States, have reported that during five years up to 1886 the combined loss to employers and workmen from strikes in the American States must have reached twenty millions sterling. In one State a Government Department of Arbitration has been established for the settlement of all such disputes. It is to be hoped that a similar course may be taken in England with the view of dealing promptly and satisfactorily with questions affecting the relations between capital and labour.

East Africa has of late engrossed so much attention that readers may be in danger of forgetting the claims of missions and the progress of the Gospel in other parts of that vast continent. The venerable Bishop Crowther, who has recently arrived in England, speaks highly of the immense strides which Christianity is making among the West African natives; a very encouraging feature being the self-denying enthusiasm which converts themselves display in helping on the good work. For instance, on the river Bonny they have themselves built an iron church to accommodate fifteen hundred, but which has frequently a congregation of two thousand, and they have built three churches in the interior for their use when attending the oil markets. European Christians may learn a lesson of self-help from their brethren of the Dark Continent. And in connection with this topic it may be noted that a similar eagerness to spread the light characterises Japanese converts, so much so that, as has been said by Miss M'Lean in her "Echoes from Japan," "Ere many years shall have passed, the Japanese will be dispensing with the services of their western brethren."

The announcement that the joint committee appointed by the Methodist New Connexion Conference, and the United Methodist Free Church Assembly, have unanimously affirmed the desirability of the organic union of the two denominations, "on terms honourable to each," is calculated to give pleasure to all those who desire to see the walls of partition removed from between the various denominations, who already are one in their adherence to the vital truth of the Christian faith. We trust, therefore, that by mutual concessions the existing difficulties in the way of the union may be got rid of, and that two bodies occupied earnestly in the Lord's work may find that even in the domain of spiritual things union is strength.

Perhaps one of the most notable testimonies to the success of missionary labour in India and other countries was made during the recent Baptist Union Conference at Birmingham, when Sir W. Hunter, before a gathering of 4000 people, gave his experience of missionary work. He simply dealt with the matter as, to use his own term, "a secular man and a layman," and in doing so pointed out that during the ten years from 1871 to 1881 the Christian population of India had increased 64 per cent. as compared with the 11 per cent. increase of the general population, and that the Indian native Protestant Christians had now grown up into a native Protestant Church, with their own pastors numbering 576, and their own native lay preachers, 2756 in number. "Missionary work," he added, "is one of the greatest and best works at present going on in India; it has been rich in results in the past, and is fraught with incalculable blessing for the future."

In connection with this it is gratifying to note that the Irish Auxiliary to the Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society this year has contributed a few hundred pounds more than usual, and that the contributions to the Church Missionary Society for the last year are £20,000 in excess of those of former years. The last-named Society has quite recently sent out seventy-eight missionaries, including eighteen unmarried ladies.

BRITISH WOMEN'S TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION.—The autumnal meetings were held last week in Liverpool and Bootle. A hearty reception was given to the visiting members, and quite a number of meetings were held in different parts of the district, and addressed by ladies and gentlemen well able to advocate the cause of the Association. Occasions were taken to press the temperance question upon politicians as well as church members. At Gordon Hall (Y.M.C.A.) Mrs. Menzies presided over a large meeting, consisting principally of members of her Bible-class. Mrs. Mary Clement Leavitt (of the W.W.C.T.U.) delivered a practical address. School children and workhouse inmates were also spoken to, as well as the soldiers in Seaforth Barracks. Pledges were taken at many of the gatherings, and it is confidently hoped that much good will follow the efforts put forth.

REQUESTS FOR PRAISE AND PRAYER.—Praise: For blessing on believers, through the labours of Messrs. H. A. Squire and H. M. Barnett, at Tunbridge-Wells, Brenchley, Brighton, and Lewes, during September and part of October.——Prayer: For blessing on united evangelistic meetings in Motherwell, from Oct. 27 to Nov. 11, conducted by Mr. J. M. Scroggie.——For evangelistic services, to be conducted by Mr. John Elliott, at Brixham (South Devon), in November.——For blessing on a fourteen days' mission at Sandpits, Ludlow, by Mrs. Horton and Miss Parker, commencing Oct. 27.——For blessing on a mission by Mr. George Robert Cairns, at Manchester.——For blessing on a mission by Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes, at Lewisham High-road Congregational Church, Oct. 27 to Nov. 4.——For special services to be conducted in Stapleton-road Congregational Chapel, Bristol, from Oct. 28 to Nov. 4, by Rev. A. T. Jones, of Newport.——For blessing on evangelistic services in Bristol Presbyterian Church, by Rev. G. M. Smith, of Gloucester, for a week, commencing Oct. 28.——For a ten days' mission to be held in Camden-road Presbyterian Church, by Mr. George Clarke, from Oct. 27 to Nov. 6.

Mansfield College, Oxford.

HE opening of this College was briefly men-oned in our last issue. It is the transfer-nce of a Congregational Theological Semi-ary, with its endowments, from Birming-am to Oxford. It is intended to educate en in theology who have received a liberal ducation. Its classes will be free to theo-gical students from all orthodox churches, lthough its special aim will be to train men r the ministry of such as are Congrega-onal. The tutors also, and the students ho hold scholarships on the foundation, ust be Congregationalists. The edifice as cost £35,000, and was opened free of ebt. The occasion drew together, not only ell-known Nonconformists, but distin-uished men from Oxford University.

Manifestly the opening of this College rms a new epoch in the history of that niversity, and is also a movement in the rection of unsectarianism. In this latter ght, it is very pleasant to read, the event as hailed by the eight heads of colleges in e city who were present. During the ndays of the present term the list of eachers in the new chapel includes inisters of different communions. Among em are Dr. Milligan, Principal Dykes, Rev. ugh Price Hughes, and Drs. Clifford and lon.

It is gratifying to quote the following from r. R. W. Dale's inaugural sermon from de 3: "The responsibility of the faith livered to the saints is committed to the st of all who have been actually redeemed d restored to God in Christ."..."The eologian must first of all be a saint."... No man is an adequate expositor of the eat Christian doctrines unless he has tually experienced their truth in his own e."

Theology studied under these as indis-nsable preliminary conditions may go far produce preachers equal to the need of e times. Good men, however, will desire at these two considerations shall not be erlooked. Intellect is always prone to confident in itself, and to lack the docile nd which the Spirit loves to instruct. hile higher scholarship may be provided a preparation for teaching Christ's truth, would be an evil day for the Free Churches en they sought scholars, and passed over ng men whom God might call from ong the people to serve Him in the nistry of the Word.

WITNESSING IN CHEFOO.

. J. A. Stooke, of the China Inland Mis-n Sanitorium, Chefoo, writes:—"This place tinues to be the most healthy spot in China our sick and worn-out workers. It is a joy neet them, and to be in a small way helpful, der God, in sending them back to their in-d stations refreshed and blessed.

The Hospital work still continues to pro-r, and I believe many go away earnestly ing after truth. It is my privilege to speak quently to the patients about Jesus and his . Mrs. Stooke has a class of Chinese boys Sunday afternoons; as many as twenty nd, and not a few are really giving great mise. Three men and four women have ly been received into our native church e. The examination, conducted by Dr. thwaite, was extremely interesting.

M.C.A.—The Committee of the Islington Highbury branch at the Priory, Upper-street, e appointed Mr. Henry T. Lodge secretary, ace of Mr. J. J. Atkinson, resigned.

London Churches.

New Court, Tollington Park, N.

Since Rev. J. Ossian Davies left for Bournemouth, about eighteen months ago, this congregation has been without a settled pastor. Recently they sent a unanimous call to Rev. William Pierce, of Soho Hill, Birmingham, and he accepted the pastorate.

On Sunday last, Mr. Pierce commenced his ministry at New Court Chapel. In the morning his discourse was based upon Acts xvi. Having spoken of the incidents of the chapter, he considered the responsibilities of preacher and hearers with regard to the Divine message. As Peter's visit to Cornelius was divinely arranged, so must the preacher at all times be sent of God to his audience, otherwise he cannot have power with men. The hearers, too, must be prepared for the message if they are to receive the fulness of blessing: if they spend Saturday night in revelry, hearers will be sure to disagree with the preacher's doctrine on Sunday morning; but if, instead, they are at the Saturday evening prayer meeting, they will be prepared to extract from the sermon that which will be to profit and edification.

Passing to a consideration of the Gospel to be preached, he said it must be a broad Gospel, capable of embracing all sorts and conditions of men. Some preachers are broad in their theology, but they do not preach the Gospel. Preaching must have Christ, and Him crucified, in the heart of it, and this kind of Gospel he intends to proclaim. There must not be the putting forth of anything new, but the reiteration of the old truths, which alone will win men to Christ. There must also be a personal element in the preaching; the preacher himself must of necessity have felt the power of the truths which he desires his congregation to accept. And as it was in the case of Peter's preaching, so may it be said of them, that "the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word."

In the evening Mr. Pierce delivered an earnest evangelistic address from Zeph. iii. 17, showing that not only is Christ mighty to save to the uttermost all who come unto Him, but that He takes indescribable delight in the work of salvation, as it was written of Him that "He will joy over thee with singing."

At both services the spacious sanctuary was well filled, and a very favourable impression was made by the new pastor.

BISHOP TAYLOR IN ENGLAND.

I have just arrived from the Congo. My principal business, on a hasty trip, to return to West Africa in a few weeks, is to complete arrangements with the builder of our steamer, to send a master builder from his yard to put her together and see her afloat as quickly as possible. Happily, delays are not always failures, but often essential conditions to ultimate success. I believe it will be so in regard to our unexpected delays with the steamer.

The teaching force of all the facts in the case bring us clearly to the conclusion that the planting of missions extensively in the great and populous countries of the upper Kassai and Sankura, requires that we have a chain of missions, and a transport agency and facilities, extending from the sea to the centre of the Continent, giving us, by the way, a neglected, densely populated region, belonging to the Congo State, on the north side of Lower Congo, 100 by 250 miles in extent. The older missions are working on the south side of the Congo, so that we shall in no way encroach on them. So, as a part of these foundation arrangements on the Lower Congo, essential success on the Upper Congo waterways, we find that our steamer is needed, by twenty to one, more on the Lower Congo than upon the Upper. We shall build her at Vivi, to carry missionaries and mission goods from ship's side at Banana one hundred miles up the river to Vivi.

In connection with this we will build a steel launch, to be propelled by oars and sails, to carry up river cargoes through the middle passage of Congo, eighty-eight miles, from Isangila to Manyanga. When this is developed, then we shall require a small steamer for the Kassai and the Sankura. We needed such a boat in 1886, when we had a force waiting at Stanley Pool, who would have met Dr. Summers, who entered by the Angola route, at Luluaburg, but we could not, on any of the five little steamers on the Upper Congo, about the time of his arrival, get a passage for one missionary. Now there are a dozen little steamers on those waters, and we can get passage to take up a successor to dear Dr. Summers and others also, to keep our promise to the Bashalange people and other nations beyond, till we can complete arrangements below, as aforesaid, for planting of missions in those far interior countries on a broad scale. Wm. Taylor.

c/o J. Terry, Esq., 7, Gt. Winchester-st., E.C.

MAJOR WHITTLE IN SCOTLAND.

Two weeks more, and this beloved evangelist will have concluded his work in Scotland. Last week brought the mission in Well Park Free Church, Glasgow, to a close, and all through there were the blessed "signs following." On the last night but one, the word preached was with extraordinary power, and two solemn and fruitful after meetings followed. Dr. Moxey, who had just returned from his mission in Belfast, conducted that for men, in the hall behind the church, and Major Whittle remained with the women.

The address by the Major had been on "Jesus of Nazareth passeth by," and special stress had been laid on the point that it was not what the sinner had done for Christ or for himself, but what Christ had done for him. He will know Bartimæus when he pleads, "Lord, Thou didst give me my sight;" and Mary Magdalene when she falls at his blessed feet, crying, "Dear Master, Thou didst cast seven devils out of me." But to those here who "trust in themselves," and plead what they are, and what they have done, like the Pharisee in the Temple; and to the man yonder, who will say to Him in that day, "Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?" as Judas could say with them—to both sorts his answer is the same: "I never knew you: depart from Me, ye that work iniquity." "Friends," said the preacher, "has the Lord done anything for you? 'My sheep hear my voice, and I know them...and I give unto them eternal life.' Has He given it to you? Without this ye are none of his. Oh! give no sleep to your eyes, nor slumber to your eyelids, till you can say: 'Yes! praise his name! He has given to me eternal life.' Then, He knows you now, and will know you yonder, and for evermore, amen."

The men crowded into the after-meeting, and Dr. Moxey sought to bring them to immediate decision for Christ. Having spoken a few helpful words, and prayed, he paused for a few moments, to give each seeking soul an opportunity to call on the name of the Lord for salvation. Afterwards he spoke on assurance. "You go home," he remarked, "saying this: 'I have called on the name of the Lord, and God says I am saved. I rest on his character, believing He tells no lies, and breaks no promises. And now I humbly thank Him for saving my soul.'" Those who had accepted Christ that night, and had peace in believing God's assurance of their salvation, were then asked to raise their hands. Over a dozen at once responded, and subsequent conversation led to the hope that they were clearly in the light of life. Similar soul-saving work was going on among the women in the church.

The Major commenced in Bethany Hall last Sabbath. Prayer is asked for a great blessing.

The First Epistle of Peter.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

VI.—THE SUFFERINGS OF CHRIST.

1 Peter i. 11.

Thirty years, full of varied and absorbing interest, had well nigh passed away since Peter, amid the gloom of Gethsemane, or as one of the little crowd of servants in the high priest's hall, or as a heart-broken spectator on the outer rim of the crowd, had been an eye-witness of the sufferings of Christ—sufferings which he had done his utmost to dissuade his Master from. But they were as fresh as though they had happened but yesterday, like the blood-red of the sandstone rocks, which remains as vivid as on the morning of creation, though thousands of autumns have strewn them with the fading colours of nature's many-coloured dress. Throughout the Epistle there is repeated reference to the sufferings which culminated at Calvary. But how different is the tone in which the Apostle alludes to them. A vast change has passed over him since, on the eve of the Transfiguration, he said: "This shall not be to Thee." That which had aroused his bitterest resentment is now better understood, and has become the theme of his tenderest love (Matt. xvi. 22; 1 Pet. i. 11, ii. 21, 23, iii. 18, iv. 1, 13, v. 1).

By those sufferings, our salvation has been achieved.—Salvation is a great word. And some glimpses of the width of its contents are discovered in the Apostle's thrice use of it here. It is so great and glorious that the saintliest souls cannot fully realise all its blessedness in this world. It will only be revealed in the last time (5), because it includes the deliverance of our bodies from the bondage of corruption, and their transfiguration into the likeness of the body of Christ's glory; a result which cannot be attained till the second coming of the Lord. Moreover, it includes something more than deliverance from the penalty due to sin, to which its meaning is so often limited. It is salvation for souls (9)—that is, it not only makes them safe, but sound, healthy, wholesome, and whole, breathing into them the very nature of God, and replacing corruption with the life of the eternal world. Well may the Apostle find an equivalent for such a salvation, covering as it does our entire nature, in the sweet old word grace. Who shall estimate the grace that has come to us in the coming of such a salvation as this? (See verse 10.)

On this salvation we must not linger longer now, fascinating though the theme must be to those who owe all to it, in this life and the next. But, as we pass from it, we ask our readers to inquire whether they have experienced it, not only as a past act, breaking the entail of a deserved penalty; or as a future act, uniting spotless soul and stainless body in the presence of the King; but as a living present enjoyment securing for them daily, hourly victory over known sin, whether suggested from within or by the malevolence of our great spiritual foe.

The sufferings of Christ, then, must engage our thought, and under a peculiar aspect.—In a picture of the crucifixion, by a great modern painter, we stand behind the cross, not seeing the sufferer, but only the shadows of three crosses falling down the hill-slope, the central one being the deepest and broadest of the three. But the faces of those passing by, or standing near, are toward us, and are filled with looks which tell the story of the tragedy in a way which the minutest delineation of horrors could never have done. So we are studying the sufferings of Christ in their effect on the witness of the Spirit, the testimony of the prophets, the preaching of the Apostles, and the rapt gaze of the angels.

I. The Witness of the Spirit.—"It testified beforehand of the sufferings of Christ." The name here given to the Holy Spirit is very significant. He is called the Spirit of Christ. One as He is with the Father and the Son in the mystery of the Holy Trinity, and proceeding as a stream of holy influence from their common throne, yet He bends all his influence to reveal and glorify our blessed Lord. In Himself He is ineffably holy, loving, mighty, to know whom is everlasting blessedness. And yet, with marvellous and Divine unobtrusiveness, He withdraws Himself from our notice, only anxious to focus all attention and interest on the Christ. As the Son effaced Himself that He might reveal the Father, so does the Spirit efface Himself that He may reveal the Son, and so should we efface ourselves that we may, in some less measure, reveal the Spirit (John xvi. 13, 14, 15).

Until Jesus was glorified, the Spirit was not fully given—not poured out freely upon all, but reserved as the perquisite of the few. But, even before the Incarnation, He broke out in witness to the coming Saviour, and with irrepressible love gave testimony of Jesus, as when the voice of the Father refused to be longer bound by the restraints of a self-imposed silence, and broke out in benediction after his baptism in the waters of Jordan.

Nor is it wonderful that the Spirit's testimony pointed in the direction of Christ's sufferings. The death of Christ is said to have been through the "Eternal Spirit" (Heb. ix. 14). It was an act, in which the Trinity as a whole participated. It was the crystallisation in the concrete of an eternal thought in the counsel and purpose of God (Rev. xiii. 8). It is probably the most stupendous event in the existence of the Blessed God. How, then, can we wonder at the Holy Spirit anticipating the discoveries of time, and giving premonitory hints and signs, and anticipations of the sufferings of the cross? What a mistake, then, it is for us to make so little, in meditation and in ministry, of that which is the supreme point of interest to the Spirit of Christ in the work of the Saviour upon our world. The emphasis that He lays on the sufferings of Christ, like the word search on a cairn, might indicate what inestimable treasures lie beneath.

II. The Burden of the goodly Fellowship of Prophets.—From the age of Samuel these men appear. Very zealous for the Lord of Hosts, and full of the loftiest patriotism, they fulfilled a great ministry to their times, serving the same purpose as the Tribunes of the People in ancient Rome, and the public press to-day. They stood up before kings for the rights of the people, as they stood up before the people for the rights of God. Elijah before Ahab, Isaiah before Ahaz, Jeremiah before Zedekiah, John before Herod.

With us, the word "Prophet" looks out on the future, penetrating its veil; but in the original it means "bubbling up," as when the Psalmist said that his heart was bubbling up with good matter, like springs forcing their way out into the desert waste, making it smile and bloom. Nevertheless, in their public utterances, which were primarily addressed to men of their time, there were depths of meaning, references, and anticipations which demanded a fuller realisation than could be found in a series of national events, however momentous.

It was the distinguishing mark of the Jews that, unlike other nations, their golden age lay before them as a radiant goal, and that their greatest Hero was not their Founder, but his remote descendant. Expectation stooped forward, intent on catching the first foot-fall of the coming King, who should gather up and satisfy their loftiest hopes. Of these expectations and hopes the prophets were the chief exponents. But this would not have sufficed to explain the fulness and minuteness of detail which characterise their words. There was an element present which can be accounted for by no earthly or human prescience. These holy men spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost (2 Peter i. 21).

The Spirit of Christ was in them.—First, He was in them as the Spirit of Revelation, communicating truths which they could not have foreseen or discovered, and which even baffled their understanding after they had received them. Next, He was in them as the Spirit of Inspiration, affording spiritual aid in promulgating truth; so that the Bible contains God's truth stated in human words, which nevertheless give an adequate and sufficient statement of the Divine intention and purpose.

And it is easy, therefore, to understand that the burden of their words would be the same as that which engrossed the blessed Spirit. Through them He testified of the suffering and the glory. The crimson cord of Calvary surrounds every window in the sacred book. In each voice there is the wail of Calvary and the hallelujah of resurrection. Moses and Elias speak of the decease to be accomplished. And thus, as the Master talked with the two disciples on the road to Emmaus, He was able to expound to them in all the Scriptures that Christ ought to suffer and to enter into his glory (Luke xxiv. 26, 27, 46). Well, too, might Paul reason at Thessalonica for three whole Sabbath days, opening and alleging that Christ must needs have suffered, and risen again from the dead (Acts xvii. 3).

But though the prophets spake of these things, they imperfectly understood them. They searched into the very matters of which they were made the organs and channels. Like Daniel, they heard, but understood not. They could not interpret the hieroglyphs of their dates, nor foresee the mystery and glory of the coming days. And often were the saintly Jews puzzled at the marvellous conjunction of death with life, of travail with triumph, of darkness with light, on the pages of their prophetic books.

They had to content themselves with ministering to us; and they have performed a very efficient service, because the simplest believer has now an irrefragable testimony to the divine truthfulness of Scripture, in being able to compare the predictions of the Old Testament with their fulfilment in the New, fitting each on as the two sides of a tally, or as a key and lock. There is no proof of the Divine authority of the Bible to be compared with this.

III. The Preaching of the Apostles

ll of the same theme. The Gospel which ey announced was the tidings of the death d resurrection of their Lord. They preached rist, and Him crucified. They gloried above l things in the Cross. It was a matter of rfect indifference that to the Jews it was a umbling-block, and to the Greeks foolishness; ey persisted in declaring that God had made at same Jesus, who was crucified, both Lord d Christ.

And with such preaching the Holy Ghost was le to co-operate.—They preached in the power the Spirit. It was a theme which attracted l his tenderest, mightiest interest. He who ake in the prophets, spake with the Apostles, orking powerfully in human hearts by their inistry. And so their preaching, if not with ticing words of man's wisdom, was in demonration of the Spirit and of power. Yes, and only men will still dare to preach the docines of the Cross, they will find again, other ings being equal, that results will accrue hich bear the Divine hall-mark.

IV. The Theme of the Angels is the same essed topic. They desire to look into these ings. They bend aside, as did the cherubin ver the mercy seat, where these truths were t forth in the sprinkled blood. They have eld high debate about the full import of the aviour's death, and though they cannot penete all its mysterious depths, yet they set to usic all they know, crying, Worthy the Lamb at was slain. The Cross attracts the keenest terest of bright celestial spirits.

It may be that those sufferings have brought ngels nearer God; but in any case, they have ven such marvellous glimpses into his heart, ch as else could never have come to them, at they are lost in admiration and praise.

If the angels, with their opportunities of owledge, find ever fresh fields of interest and vestigation in the sufferings of Christ, how ttle do the wisest of us know of them! We re but ankle-deep at the furthest in this thomless ocean. We are still at the alphabet -the primer of knowledge.

But surely enough has been said to invest he Saviour's sufferings with new interest, as e turn to them again to find heights, depths, ngths, and breadths of meaning which have ngaged and baffled prophets and kings, angels nd saints.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—un., Oct. 27, Neh. ix. 1—12; Mon., Oct. 28, Neh. ix. 13—25; Tues., Oct. 29, Neh. ix. 26—38; Wed., Oct. 30, Neh. xiii. 1—14; Thurs., Oct. 31, Neh. xiii. 15—22; Fri., Nov. 1, 2 Cor. i. 1—12; Sat., Nov. 2, 2 Cor. i. 13—24.

SOLDIERS' HOME, DUBLIN. — With much regret we learn that Mrs. Packhard, the Lady Superintendent of this Home, is obliged to resign her work on account of ill-health. For nine years she has laboured among the soldiers, and members of the Royal Irish Constabulary, with manifest attendant blessing. Great appreciation has been shown by those among whom her lot has been cast, in token of which presentations of useful and valuable gifts have been made to her by the men, accompanied by expressions of warm love and goodwill. We earnestly hope that Mrs. Packhard will in due time be sufficiently restored to health to resume her work.

SICK AND SUFFERING POOR have for some years found welcome and comfort in the little Convalescent Home at Old Windsor, of which Mrs. Layton is the respected and diligent matron. It was started by a lady who is no longer able to maintain it. There are twelve beds, the Home being designed for cases requiring country air and loving care, whether men, women, or children. Those who could afford have paid on a sliding scale, but many inmates have been too poor to pay anything. During the past year fifty-three invalids, old and young, were admitted. From the first, health of soul as well as of body has been found by many in the peaceful little Home. There is accommodation well suited to the needs of tired Christian workers and governesses. Lady Sebright, in a letter to us, warmly commends the Home to the practical sympathy of the Lord's stewards. Visitors will receive a hearty welcome, and be delighted with evidence of good work.

Some Scottish Missions.—II.

FREE BREAKFAST, EDINBURGH.

(Continued.)

It is not possible, in these brief sketches, to give an exhaustive account of the varied branches of each of the Missions under consideration; but some of them have so many ramifications as to render a second notice necessary.

Having, therefore, last week devoted attention to the Sabbath Free Breakfast itself, let us now look at the work of the Mission

DURING THE WEEK.

To begin with, we must note that in January last permanent Mission premises were secured, in which to follow up the work of the Sabbath. This building, situated in the Cowgate, consists of a hall on the upper floor (capable of holding 350 people), class-rooms, reading-room, library, caretaker's house, &c. The impetus which this accommodation has given to the work has amply justified its acquirement. The building site, &c., cost about £4000, all of which had been subscribed at the time of the opening, with the exception of £785. This deficit has since been reduced, but there is still scope left for the generosity of friends. The average weekly expenditure of the Mission is rather over £13, its average weekly income being about £12. The Sabbath morning attendance averages 313 men, 222 women, and 374 children. Taken en masse they cost (for provisions only) 2⅛d. per head. During last year the total number thus supplied with food was 47,251. Statistics of this sort are not generally very interesting, but I venture to think that a work which can present such figures as these shows itself worthy of the support which the Christian public has accorded to it.

AMONG THE CHILDREN.

The Sabbath-school has 330 children on the roll, with an average attendance of 260. The results accruing from this sphere of labour have been most encouraging; many of the earlier scholars are now married and doing well. This is especially gratifying when the surroundings in which the raw material is found is taken into consideration; for example, at one meeting two boys, each about seven years old,

PUT ON BOOTS FOR THE FIRST TIME!

Then there is "The Poor Children's Health and Happiness Fund," which is supported by the young ladies of a boarding school, who have, for a number of years, taken a great interest in the work. This they have shown in a practical way, by making garments for old and young; and by turning their musical talents to such good account as to raise last year, by means of a private concert, the sum of £15 10s., to cover the expense of sending thirty or forty little ones for a fortnight to the seaside.

The Boys' Brigade is another useful institution, with a membership of about 100—newsboys and other lads, between twelve and sixteen years of age. They are drilled once a week, and the more advanced and intelligent of them attend ambulance and signalling classes. Sabbath evenings are devoted to Bible-classes, the attendance varying from about forty to seventy. The chief hindrance to this work is found in the difficulty of securing steady employment for the lads. It saddens a teacher's heart to see one of his former protegés standing idle at the street corner, which is such a prolific source of temptation of various kinds. If any of my Scottish readers have it in their power, they would do well to take these lads fresh from the school into their employ, ere enforced idleness leave its marks upon their characters.

The Girls' Classes are attended chiefly by workers in ranging in age from fourteen to twenty, and over. Varied means are adopted to secure their interest and win their love. Efforts are made to reach them by five gates:—The Ear, with hymns and Bible truth; the Eye, by means of the blackboard; the Taste, by refreshments; Scent, by flowers, &c.; and Touch, by a hearty shake of the hand. This branch has now been in operation for four years, and one of its most encouraging features is that a friendly connection is still maintained with some of its earliest members.

RAG STORES AND TOBACCO FACTORIES,

Temperance work is also actively carried on, which is a most important adjunct to any effort for the reclamation of those whom the "free breakfast" attracts, inasmuch as most of the recipients have suffered by the drink curse. Many have been induced to give it up entirely; some few have relapsed, but considering the temptations to which they are exposed, it is little wonder that some who take the pledge fail to keep it, as the following case illustrates:—A man had been an abstainer for a year, and by his sobriety had been able to rent a small workshop. One evening, while preparing to close, he was accosted by an old companion whom he had not seen for many years. He steadily refused an invitation to a near public-house to "have a glass," but yielded when told that it would be

"ONLY LEMONADE."

Beer followed lemonade, then spirits; the result was a fortnight of hard drinking. When he came to himself he was very penitent, and is again doing well. He told a friend that, many a time when tempted to drink, he walked for hours in the Queen's Park to be out of the way of public-houses.

This last fact further illustrates the need there is that Christian workers should take in hand such men, and follow them up, so that they may not depend on their old "pals" for company and friendship, but may be led into new associations, even before they have actually made profession of faith in Christ. It is to be feared that many a serious impression which the preaching of the word has made is allowed to wear off, and desires to live a new life quenched, because, too often, Christian workers will not "take a man up" until he actually professes conversion; whereas a little friendship and practical Christianity shown in the meantime might have prevented a return to the old life from which he had so nearly escaped. And even if discouragements sometimes result, the words of our Lord in Matt. xviii. 21, 22 are still valid.

But I must bring this notice to a close. The principles which actuate the workers are those contained in James ii. 15, 16; and, though there are many hindrances, the patient sowing of years has borne fruit which has gladdened their hearts, and proved an incalculable boon to many and many a home.

Any visitors to Edinburgh who wish to acquaint themselves with this interesting phase of practical Christian effort, should communicate with the honorary treasurer and superintendent, Mr. Robert Wilson, 2, Queen-street, Edinburgh.

G. E. M.

BROUSSA ORPHANAGE.—The 25th annual meeting of the Bithynia Mission was held this year in Broussa, and lasted a whole week. Prayer-meetings were held every evening in the church, and these were largely attended. On September 20, the inmates of the Orphanage were present at the reading of the report for the last twenty-five years. A Committee of the Union report that "the Orphanage exhibits all the qualities of a Christian Institution, and all the means used clearly show that the chief aim is to make a healthy, Christian, and religious impression in the hearts of the pupils."

A Missionary Convention.

ON Tuesday, last week, a Missionary Convention for young men was held at the Metropolitan Tabernacle. Three meetings were convened, that in the afternoon being specially for theological and medical students. A "mass meeting" in the evening, including a large number of young men, filled the building. From first to last the proceedings were stimulating, and it is hoped resulted in many young people volunteering for the foreign field.

The Morning Meeting was presided over by Mr. HUGH M. MATHESON, who, in some opening remarks, spoke of missions as the proper work of the Church. There is no presumption in prosecuting missions; those who engage in the work are, in fact, keeping step with the Master, who said: "As Thou hast sent Me into the world, so have I also sent them into the world." At once the duty and the privilege of Christ's people, missionary work is not only a blessing to the heathen, but also to ourselves. Moreover, this work exhibits the Church in a light whereby we see that the points of agreement are of far greater importance than those things on which there is difference.

One of the most hopeful signs of our time is the increased attention that is being given to Christian missions. The triumphs of the Gospel in many lands are very marked. More than forty years ago, said the speaker, I visited China and made special inquiry as to the Protestant missions. I found that there were only six native Christians in the entire country. What do we see to-day? We see forty thousand people in full communion with the various churches, while very many have gone to their rest. We may be well assured that these triumphs are but the harbingers of much greater things. It must be confessed that the greater number of our churches are miserably behind in this matter. The means used so far have been altogether inadequate to the vastness of the work to be done. We need to see every Church and every Christian consecrated to the work, until they feel the burden of missions pressing upon their hearts, and until they claim to share the blessing of giving the Gospel to the world.

REV. DR. EBENEZER E. JENKINS,

hon. sec. of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, followed with a vigorous address, devoted to some extent to a defence of mission work. He insisted upon the fact being realised that Christianity has come direct from heaven, and is the heritage of the entire human family. As there is but one God and Father, so there is but one faith in Christ—one religion, and that the birthright of every person under heaven. The missionary command of Christ was not wrapped in symbolism, or draped in figurative language, yet the interpretation of it has had to be driven into the Church by religious persecution and political revolution.

If, in the place of her Master the Church is the light of the world, why has she allowed the shadow of ignorance to rest for ages upon coasts to which she had easy access? Whatever reply may be offered in extenuation of the missionary inactivity of the Church in the past, there is not a shred of apology left to the present generation, for our way is as open as our duty is clear. Indeed, it seems as if this great command were reserved for the aspirations and opportunities of the present day. To-day the Master speaks to us, with a heart straitened by the delay of centuries, and with a sympathy bending over millions of men and women who have never heard of the salvation He has accomplished, and He says: "Brothers, go and tell them that the year of my redeemed has come—the year of my redeemed in Africa, India, China, and other lands."

The civil appointments of the Indian Government are the coveted prizes of the youth of England. But what is such service to taking a part, however humble, in closing for that great people a long chapter of darkness, oppression, and despair, and opening another chapter of hope, intelligence, and freedom? Better to be a Carey than a Wellesley; better to be a Duff than a Max Müller. The teachers of the higher wisdom "shall shine as the firmament; and they who turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." Dr. Jenkins proceeded to answer the insinuation that foreign missions are a failure, asking what the hostile critics had themselves done for the masses at home, or dark nations abroad. In conclusion, he dwelt upon the utter futility of all the endeavours of Satan and his agents to arrest the onward flow of the river of the water of life.

REV. HENRY COLEY, of Almora Mission, North India, representing the London Missionary Society, made an earnest appeal for more men to go abroad with the Gospel. Speaking especially to Christian young men, he pointed out that the young men of the world have a claim upon them. England has conquered India; her Christian sons have to reconquer the country, and that by love. By means of English education, we are trying to do something for the elevation of the people; but education alone is not enough. We knock down the old religion, and give them a new science, which, however, leaves an aching void which only Christ can fill. A revived Hinduism is to-day appealing to the young men of the country, and atheistical teachers are doing their best to disseminate gross and shameful misrepresentations of Christianity. We must place before them the Christ, the Bible, and the Cross, and, if this is to be done at all, it must be done by the young men.

Having enlarged upon the fascinating character of mission work, touching by the way upon the romance of missions as it clusters around some well-known names, the speaker maintained that as we keep near to Christ the work will be a simple thing. The Lord Jesus wants hands, and is waiting until we start forth to take the light which is the life of the world to all peoples. It is no use to sit in our easy chairs waiting for miracles to happen on the other side of the world; if the miracles are to happen, we must go and do them.

MR. DAVID McCONAUGHY, JUN.,

late secretary Y.M.C.A., Philadelphia, who is going to India to organise mission work among native young men, dwelt first upon the magnitude of Y.M.C.A. organisation in America, the membership being a hundred thousand strong. Present opportunities are unparalleled, so that the responsibility upon English-speaking young men is such as it has never been in the past. The responsibility of young men is great, because they are young men; they are not trees firmly rooted in the earth, but saplings that can easily be transplanted to other fields. Secondly, the responsibility of Christian young men in England and America is great, because of the foremost position which, in God's providence, the English-speaking peoples occupy.

The Y.M.C.A. is a great spiritual force reserved for the present century of invention and opportunity, offering facilities for the four-fold equipment of its members, helping the development of the muscle of the athlete, the mind of the scholar, the manners of the gentleman, and the heart of the Christian. In conclusion, the speaker expressed the belief that the Y.M.C.A. is preparing a host like unto the host of God, with Jesus in the first place. Walking in the footsteps of the Young Man of Nazareth, the young men of America are joining hands with the young men of Great Britain, in order to move on for the conquest of the young men of the world in the name of Christ.

Afternoon Meeting.

In presiding over a goodly gathering in th afternoon, Principal GRACEY, of the Pastor College, said that there were three primar considerations bearing on this subject of mi sions that must be remembered. First, the is the great need of the heathen world; a competent witnesses agree in testifying tha Paul's description in the first three chapte of Romans represents the condition of heathe dom. Second, there is God's provision for thi need. This provision embraces that "unspeak able gift," the Son of his love; the gift o the Holy Spirit; the gift of men who ar endued with that Spirit; the gift of his Wor of truth, which contains his mind; the gif of the Church, from whose bosom the activ agencies are to go forth; and the promise o his co-operation in Providence. As to the need no human words can tell, no human hear can fully understand it. God alone can fathom the depths of its intensity.

What ought the relation of the Christian Church to be to this great work of missions Not that of contentment and individual enjoy ment of privilege, but that of surrendering it most precious gifts, in order that the hearts o the heathen nations may be touched and won for the glory of their Redeemer. We are told that this age is so materialistic that it is diffi cult to get spiritual ideas and spiritual aspira tions instilled into the young life and talent o our time. As against that view, we have noble examples of men of the highest mental endow ments, and the richest gifts of culture conse crating themselves to the humblest work for Christ. We only want to put this matter well before the young Christian life of our times in the home, the school, the college, in busi ness circles—wherever there are talent and energy that can be used for Christ; then there will be a response according to our faith. There is the possibility of enormously increasing the number of Christian labourers in hea thendom to-day, if the Church will go rightly about it, and seek to get the possessors of the necessary gifts to recognise it for them selves. Surely there are those around us who believe that it is possible to consecrate the very highest gifts to Christ, and to ennoble them in so doing; that foreign mission work is some thing that an angel might envy us. If we want to share anything of the joy that will come from the fulfilment of God's purposes towards the world, let us enter into this work with ardour and impetuousness. The mediæval Church had a beautiful legend that set forth the reward of those who laboured for Christ and pointed men to Him. The legend was that when John the Baptist was buried his body perished in every part except one finger—that finger by which he pointed to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. That act, according to the legend, conferred immortality on this finger. What was merely legendary may be realised by every servant of Jesus Christ. What we lose we find, if we lose it for Him.

It had been announced that one of the speakers at this meeting would be Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. A telegraphic despatch reached the Chairman, however, stating that he was so unwell as to be unable to be present. His son, Dr. TAYLOR, being in the meeting, kindly stepped into the breach, though he could not presume, as he remarked, to fill his father's shoes. Nevertheless, he gave a telling and interesting address. First of all he emphasised the fact told by his father at Exeter Hall the previous evening that it was only within recent weeks he had felt something of the overwhelming force of Christ's command to preach the Gospel to every creature; and how this might be done in the case of China, by three years' evangelism of a thousand Gospel messengers. Dr. Taylor went on to make the calculation that if every one of the million and a half of truly converted servants of God were to be the instrument of one conversion yearly, and if this rate of progression went on for ten years, every living soul would have been brought to the saving knowledge of Christ. Proceeding to address himself to his fellow-students, Dr. Taylor described the deep impression that had been made on him by what he had heard and seen of the missionary revival among students in America, and of his anxious desire to see some similar movement take root in this country. He said he had gathered much encouragement from the fact that the hearts of some studying with himself in London hospitals had been moved in the same direction. It was proposed that a "Students' Missionary Union" should be formed, and Dr. Taylor requested that those students who filled in and returned a paper that had been circulated should make suggestions as to how the proposed organisation could be made most helpful. He urged them to consider the matter as in the sight of God, and to see whether they could not place themselves in God's hands for foreign service. There were many, of course, who could not go abroad, and the least they could do was to uphold by prayer and sympathy those who went. Dr. Taylor's proposal for a Students' Missionary Union is a most important one, and if it is heartily taken up by Christian students throughout the country, it will mark a new and significant departure in the history of foreign missions.

The great event of the afternoon, if not indeed of the whole day, was the weighty and well-considered address by the venerable Dr. Maclaren, of Manchester. We have deemed it of sufficient importance to report it fully on a separate page, and we hope friends throughout the country will draw to it the attention of Christian young men. After the wiry, hard-headed, large-hearted Scot had resumed his seat, the Pastor of the Tabernacle came forward, amid a tempest of applause, and in a few telling sentences drove home the appeal of his brother from the north. He entreated the great body of Christians before him really to resolve on doing something for God and to stick to their resolves. An American evangelist, he said, had once remarked that many professed Christians, who are paid for their Christian work at the rate of ten dollars an hour, have never yet earned enough to buy a gingerbread cake. Could we not all do something for Christ, if not before the sun went down, at any rate before the sun rose again? Some of us need to begin our work on our own doorstep. Those who have lived for fortune or fame will have a poor recompense by and by, but those who live for Christ and the salvation of their fellows will not fear to meet the Master.

The Evening Meeting.

A party of missionaries about to leave for China, under the auspices of the China Inland Mission, attended the evening meeting, and were committed in prayer to the keeping of the Lord. Mr. SPURGEON very heartily shook hands with each, and spoke words of cheer and encouragement to all. Addressing the audience, he said: These friends are going to preach the word amidst many discouragements. Are there any others who will do the same? Precept is admirable, but example is forcible. Remember, what one Christian man does is what another should do under like circumstances. Unless you think that these friends are doing more than they ought, and are fanatically going beyond their duty, it follows that something like they are doing is incumbent upon many here. Let their example have its due weight with you. You see our friends now without their sheaves. You will not see them when they are weeping at work among the Chinese. We shall, however, by and by, see them bringing in their sheaves, with the King Himself, the great master Reaper, who was also a sower, and sowed in bloody sweat the harvest of eternal life; we shall see them when, in the midst of the acclamations of saints and angels, He shall make his people partakers of his joy.

MR. DAVID McCONAUGHY,

in a brief address, spoke of the need of work by young men in the foreign field, and of the mighty force behind the young men's evangelistic movement. In view of the immense numbers of young men in unevangelised lands, it is clear that the need of those young men is greater than any similar need at home. Their condition is substantially as described in the first chapter of Romans, and summed up in Ps. lxxviii. 63: "The fire consumed their young men." The temptations of the youth of heathen lands are likewise greater than we know. The time has certainly come for the young men of the West to reach out a hand to the young men of the East, and to lead them to Jesus.

The story of recent Christian progress in Japan having been related, by way of illustration, the speaker remarked upon the wide field and many open doors at present affording spheres of activity for young men. In some concluding words, he urged his hearers without delay to take up the King's business of evangelisation, having for their motto: "The young men of the world for Christ, and Christ for the young men of the world."

MR. GEORGE WILLIAMS

made a hearty speech from the chair. We are, he said, indeed living in a most interesting period of the world's history. The old walls of superstition and prejudice in the vast empires of the East are tumbling down. Doors once closed against the Church of Christ are now wide open, and hundreds of millions are saying to us: "Have compassion upon us; come over and help us; bring us the Gospel." Remarking upon the inadequacy of the funds at the disposal of the various missionary societies, Mr. Williams said: I understand that the savings of the people of this country amount to £300,000,000 a year. I am ashamed to say it. The sum is a vast deal too much, when you consider that only £2,000,000 a year is given to missionary work. We must wipe out that disgrace, so that the work of taking the Gospel to far-off lands may proceed with vigour, and God be glorified.

Mr. C. H. Spurgeon, who was received with much cordiality, defined the object of the Convention as the quickening of missionary zeal with a view to leading young men and women—not exempting persons of maturer years—to consecrate themselves to carrying the Gospel to other lands. No one must attempt to do Christian work by proxy; yet, if we cannot personally go to foreign countries, we must do what we can to help to send others.

Reminding his hearers of the great commission: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature" (Mark xvi. 15), Mr. Spurgeon said: It is no use our saying it is a wise, right, and philanthropic thing to preach the Gospel to every creature; the word only comes with power to Christian hearts when we say: "Our Lord commands it. We have his word for it." It is implied in this, that our Lord expected the continuity of his Church, for He says to-day as He said then. He expected to have a Church always in the world, and how I thank God that He has one! "Where is that Church?" somebody asks. Ah, you have never seen it. When you say it is here or there, or in another place, you are mistaken. The visible Church is not the Church of Christ. It contains a great part, perhaps, of Christ's mystical body. But there is a large part of that body that is not in the visible Church, and yet it is really in Christ. Men and women who are one with Christ, quickened by spiritual life, make up the real Church of God. I delight myself much more in being a member of the invisible Church than of the one that meets in this place. I feel an infinitely greater liberty in belonging to all Christians than in belonging to any one denomination. And I believe this word, "Go and preach the Gospel," will come with greater power to those who are in the Church of Christ than to any who advance sectarianism beyond loyalty to their Lord.

Also our Lord evidently expected the permanence of his word and his Gospel. "Go and preach the Gospel." Which Gospel? The Gospel of the nineteenth century? If so, is it to be the Gospel of the first part of the century—of John Newton, and Romaine, and Wilberforce; or the Gospel of the latter part of it, made up of Huxley, Tyndall, and all manner of things? Our Saviour only believed in one Gospel, and that has never changed. If there be any other Gospel save that into which we were at first delivered, and which was at first delivered unto us, no benediction can rest upon such as promote it, for he spake by the Spirit who said: "Let him be accursed." If we belong to Christ's Church, there will burn in our hearts a loyal willingness to do anything He commands. Though willing enough to obey, the command strikes us as a difficult one. "Go ye into all the world." We ask: "Can it ever be done? Will it ever be done?" Brethren, it will have to be done! I have heard that during the American War an officer bade his men drag a gun up a very steep hill. After pulling hard, they turned round and said: "It cannot be done." He said: "I have the orders here, and it has got to be done. We cannot have orders, and not do the thing." So it was done. We have our orders too, and

THE THING MUST BE DONE.

And certainly it is as needful that this command should be carried out to-day as when Christ first pronounced it. There are more men, more "creatures," to be evangelised than then; as men have multiplied, so have the arguments why the Gospel should be sent far and wide. At the same time, while men have increased, our race has done more and more mischief. If we do not give the Gospel to these millions, our fellow Englishmen, Scotchmen, and Irishmen will give them rum and all manner of diabolical drinks to slaughter them. We cannot stop this, but we must be as much on the alert as those are who seek wealth, and will ruin men body and soul in order to get it. Certainly our country has a history to be proud of, but there is a dark side to it, written in tears and blood. There is scarcely a nation that we have not cursed as well as blessed, and if we are not earnest in our endeavours to communicate the blessing, then will the curse return upon England's head, and the most favoured of all lands will be the most cursed. I believe there never was more need for the Church to wake up to carry the Gospel everywhere than now, when the last times draw nearer to us. I am not a prophet, nor the son of a prophet. I cannot explain Ezekiel, for I get broken among his wheels. Moreover, I would rather go into the lions' den than expound Daniel. But I say there are abounding tokens that Christ is coming. Surely He is on the road, and if the Church would not have her Master come and find her sleeping, and his work undone, let her gird up her loins and set to work at once to take the Gospel to every creature.

Proceeding to ask, What does the command mean? Mr. Spurgeon replied, "It means what it says." First, the Saviour contemplated that his Church would always be an aggressive Church. We are to be always on the go, and, having gone through street and lane, we are to go into the suburbs, and then beyond "into all the world." Secondly, Christ expected a personally working Church, otherwise He would have said, "send into all the world." Christ's idea was that all should go; without any attempting to buy other people's mouths, and tongues, and brains. He says to every member of his Church, "Go into all the world." An old lady says: "I cannot go further than my neighbour's; I am full of rheumatics." Well, go to your neighbour, and preach the Gospel to her. Another says: "I have to be in bed, and everybody that sees me must come to my house." Then your "world" must be round your bedside, and if you there preach as much as you can, the Master will not blame you.

Thirdly, it is evident that Christ expected to have a largely moving Church. His idea was not simply that the ministry should be itinerant, but the Church also. Before this is realised, we shall have to get rid of the notion that no one can go and preach to the heathen unless he is a man of genius, or a man of marked character. Missionaries have been ordinary people who have become extraordinary from their extraordinary faith in God and their daring for his name's sake. It is not absolutely necessary that men should be men of genius to preach the Gospel; Peter and James and John, simple fishing folk, will do for that. God has greatly blessed many thousands who have never been to college, and would never have been the better if they had. Moreover, if the Church is to be in a holy tremor for souls, we must have men going among the heathen who will support themselves. All those persons who have enough to live upon, and are doing nothing here, will, I am afraid, be if they do not go abroad at their own charges, and engage in work for Christ. I do not believe that missionaries have at any time been overpaid; but, nevertheless, we must have a class who will find out how to live on but a little, and be paid much less than has hitherto been required. I have it on the authority of missionaries, that by adopting the habits of the natives in some respects, a man may live on £50 a year in China. Many Christian friends in India are also living on very little, and preaching the Gospel. It is not for us to send out a man to starve, or a man underpaid; but it is for the man to go, even though he may be paid nothing, and should trust in God for his daily bread. If the Church gets really alive to its duty, it will draft, not one or two per cent., but fifty per cent. of its members to other lands to tell out the Gospel of the blessed God everywhere.

GUILTY OF THE BLOOD OF SOULS,

Also our Lord expected a Church that would keep to its work, which was to "preach the Gospel." Some other things are lawful, but this one is necessary. Finally, He expected his Church to preach to everybody—to high and low, rich and poor. If there be any people on the face of the earth that worship the devil and are like him, the Gospel should be preached to them. Dukes and earls should hear the glad tidings as well as peasants and crossing sweepers. In conclusion, Mr. Spurgeon urged his hearers, with the utmost of their going power, to preach the Gospel, and nothing but the Gospel, to every creature.

Mr. W. C. Miniffe, secretary of the Convention, expressed the hope that there would be at least a hundred volunteers for the foreign field as a result of the day's proceedings. Mr. Spurgeon thereupon, with evident pleasure, informed the meeting that Mr. Miniffe, who is a young man undergoing training in the Pastors' College, had organised the entire Convention himself.

REV. JOHN McNEILL

received the most cordial of welcomes, and was very soon on the best of terms with his audience. Mr. McNeill addressed himself first to those who had been deliberating on the personal call to missionary service, and who were now ripe for decision. The example of Peter and John in promptly responding to the call of Christ to leave all and follow Him was described and commended. Those who felt baffled and discouraged in their secular occupation were invited to consider whether these circumstances were not a call from God to take up spiritual service. Then those who, like Jonah of old, were fleeing from the call and the command of God, were counselled to stop and turn, and accept the summons to go and preach repentance to the people of some Nineveh. Any who feel that obedience to this call of God would be the shouldering of a cross, were reminded of the example of Simon the Cyrenian, who bore the cross when Christ was on the way to Calvary, though the bearing of it must have upset all his plans in visiting Jerusalem. On the question of training for future work, Mr. McNeill lodged a strong protest against the long curriculum of study imposed by many of the churches. In his own case, he had dictionaries piled on the top of him for years, and it is a wonder that a fellow is ever able to get out from below these weighty books. He pleaded for a shorter, saner, and more Scriptural method of training. He told of a devoted fellow-student, who, at the end of his long course, was solemnly ordained, and sent out to India to teach mathematics. From the fact that his friend had not come back, he concluded that he was also making for himself some opportunities of preaching the Gospel of salvation to the people among whom he dwelt. After all, this work is God's, not ours. If we go forth in his name, we may leave the success to Him. Oh that to-night his call might ring through all our hearts with a dynamic power that shall send us out to tell of the Risen, Ascended, and Coming One.

MR. REGINALD RADCLIFFE,

in a few words well to the purpose, sought to bring some of the young people present to decision for this work. Not mere enthusiasm, but the power of the Holy Ghost, must move to labour in foreign lands—to an entire surrender to the service of the Lord. Appealing to grandfathers, such as himself, he urged them, and fathers also, not to hinder the young people from answering the call of Christ to take the Gospel to the heathen. He expressed the hope that many who would read reports of the proceedings would join others who had been in attendance, and that the outcome would be a grand company of volunteers for the foreign field. In conclusion, he expressed himself convinced that the near future will see a large accession to the roll of labourers in the world's great harvest.

UNION HALL MISSION.

On Thursday last week a large gathering of Christian workers and friends assembled at Union Hall, Carlisle-street, Edgware-road, to render praise to God for the blessing vouchsafed to the work of the Mission during the past summer, in the tents and open air. In the afternoon much prayer was offered for guidance in connection with the forthcoming winter work, especially for blessing upon proposed Gospel services in the halls of the Mission.

In the evening Dr. Robert McKilliam gave an address on "Cleansing by the Blood," "Cleansing by Water," and "Cleansing by Fire." He was enabled to speak searching words to the hearts and consciences of every Christian. The hearts of many were again led out in prayer and supplication for a larger measure of power for future service, and for more devotedness of heart and life. We, too, earnestly desire the prayerful sympathy of Christians on behalf of the work of the Mission during the coming winter. Robert Bilee.

Abergeldie, Greenhill Park, Harlesden, N. W.

BOMBAY.—Dear Sir,—Allow me to correct the extract from The Hospital which appeared in your issue of August 30, regarding a Women's Medical Missionary Training School "about to be opened in Bombay" by the American Methodists, under the charge of Miss Saleni Armstrong, M.D. More than two and a half years ago Miss Armstrong opened an institute of the kind referred to, on an entirely independent basis, though sympathised with and encouraged by Methodist missionaries, among them the late revered George Bowen. The undertaking did not succeed, and it was recently abandoned by its founder, through pressure of financial embarrassment.

Bombay, September 26. A. B. C.

WORKERS FOR CENTRAL INDIA.

The Hill Tribes of Central India are an interesting people; but, sad to say, they are for the most part quite unevangelised. Mohammedans and Hindus have made efforts to secure a foothold for their respective religions among them, but with insignificant results. Millions in number, these tribes remain, for the most part, in the darkness which has for ages enveloped them, and, beyond the propitiation of evil spirits, they exhibit little religious sense. We rejoice to say that at last the Gospel is to be taken to them. The outgoing ambassadors of the Cross are Messrs. A. B. Wilkinson and Arthur Long, who have enjoyed training for their work at Dr. Grattan Guinness's well-known institution, Harley House, Bow, E.

The field to which these brethren are going has been but little touched by the large missionary agencies. Having had the Konds and other tribes laid upon their hearts, they made up their minds, although no society could send them, to go forth, trusting God to raise up friends and send supplies. They communicated their intention to Rev. John McNeill, who invited them to lay their case before his church and congregation. This was done at a meeting on Wednesday evening, last week; and not only was practical sympathy shown with the missionaries, but an acquaintance was formed which will, doubtless, result in cheering, helpful intercommunication in the future between the workers abroad and friends at home. Relating the circumstances under which he leaves, Mr. Wilkinson stated that he read with great pain that millions of people living on the hills had not been reached, although for a long time efforts have been in progress among the inhabitants of the plains. He heard of one district in which there were a thousand towns and villages, with populations of from 100 to 500 aborigines, with no resident Christian, besides a native policeman, employed by the Government. What above all things had weighed to decide him to go to the Konds was the fact that, while the Hindus had sent men among them to convert them to Hinduism, no one has gone to win them for Christ. Mr. Long, in his statement, said that his interest in the heathen began with his conversion, five years ago. He read missionary literature in a Young Men's Christian Institute; and, as he grew in grace, so he saw it to be his duty and privilege to undertake work for Christ among the heathen.

Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, in a few words, urged Christians to show their love to the Lord by feeding his sheep. Our Protestantism has, he maintained, been sadly behind in the proclamation of the Gospel abroad. Dr. Maxwell followed with a short address, in which he expressed joy that God is finding labourers for all parts of the field, and gratitude for having opportunity to share in some small degree, by prayers and sympathy, in the mission which the outgoing workers intend to undertake. Messrs. Wilkinson and Long hope to find that about £50 per annum will supply their personal needs.

YOUNG WOMEN OF WEST BRIGHTON. — A work of increasing interest is in progress at the Young Women's Christian Institute, Holland-road, West Brighton. The Bible-classes and Bible-readings, conducted by the president, Mr. G. T. Congreve, are largely attended. The Home for young women needing rest, superintended by Miss Middleton, continues to be a very useful agency. From time to time the workers of the Institute are cheered by seeing definite fruit of their endeavours. In the last report touching reference is made to the conversion of a member from intense Ritualism to the simple Gospel of Christ; breaking her crucifix, this young person said: "The graven image is broken from my heart, and the Lord is nearer." Her subsequent death was happy. The president, whose address is Third Avenue, West Brighton, will be glad to hear of more annual subscribers to the funds of this good work.

Young Men and Missions.

ADDRESS AT THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE

By Dr. A. MACLAREN, Manchester.

FEEL it is a great honour and a still greater sponsibility to stand here and address theogical and medical students. If it were of my vn seeking, I should say the presumption was eater than the honour or the responsibility. ut, seeing that I am here in obedience to the mmands of the governor [Mr. Spurgeon], I am xceedingly easy on the latter score. I have, I ppose, the melancholy privilege of old age; nd indeed our friend Mr. Spurgeon felt himlf at liberty a little while ago to tell me that me thought I was not only old, but an old gey. Be that as it may, I think my heart pretty nearly as young as ever it was; my mpathies with a student's life are as intense they were forty years ago.

As I understand the object of our meetg this afternoon, it is to try to lay the aims of the missionary cause on the hearts of ur younger brethren. I am the more glad to ave a humble share in this matter, because, as construe the object of the meeting, it is neier in support nor in rivalry of any existing issionary society, but for the strengthening of l. The missionary spirit is nothing more an the Christian spirit turned in a definite rection. And therefore to attempt to excite e missionary spirit without the deepening of e Christian disposition is all lost labour. I ave the profoundest distrust of all attempts to ork up Christian emotion or Christian conct in any single direction apart from the eepening and increase of that which is the undation of all—a deeper and a closer comunion with Jesus Christ. And so, if I may tempt for a moment the rôle of a senior, I ould urge my brethren to make a definite and ntinual effort after nearer, deeper, more timate, prayerful, ennobling, and constant mmunion with the source of all strength and all righteousness. It is at Christ's feet that e learn to read our duty. It is there that nd it is there that obedience becomes possible. he Christian life is only Christ's life in me; nd is only to be mine if I get very near the untain and source of it all. And if we thus, ay by day, and moment by moment, honestly, rnestly, prayerfully, seek to knit ourselves ore closely to that dear Lord who is nearer to than our own hearts, then the life that mes from Him will be kindled within us, as e seed brings forth in the likeness of the lant from which it fell. By the might of ving sympathy with Him, and the derivation his own Spirit into us, we shall have no asmodic, or galvanised, or partial missionary irit, but we shall see the world with Christ's yes, looking beyond all the surface accident wn to the deep central realities of the case; nd like Him weeping over that which to the mmon eye was but a source of gratulation, nd seeing men, whatever else they may be, as eep that had no shepherd, for they have andered away from Him.

DUTY BECOMES DELIGHT,

Oh, dear young friends, be sure of this, that here is nothing that will keep a man's heart mpathetically in touch with the necessities the world that lies in evil except that mmunion with Jesus Christ. All attempts make the missionary spirit predominant or werful in the Church, which does not begin ith an individual drawing nearer to Jesus hrist, are as vain and foolish as it is to move the hands of a clock with your finger inead of increasing the tension of the spring. ou will only spoil the works, and as soon as e outward pressure is removed there will be a cessation of the motion. But when we get into for ourselves, and can say: "The life I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God," then, and only then, we have gone down to the deep central sources; and the sympathy and the power for missionary and all other Christian purposes rise inexhaustibly, like water from an artesian well, from our deepest hearts.

CLOSE GRIPS WITH OUR MASTER

May I go on in the tone of appeal and exhortation? I take it that is my business here this afternoon, so I make no apology for it. As to all elders and others present, I beg them to consider themselves for the moment as non-existent. I am speaking to students. I do not know where they are exactly, diffused throughout this congregation; but I go on the principle that "a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump," and so you all belong to the category of those I have come to address.

There is a second thing: I would urge a firm grasp of, and a continual reflection upon, the fundamental Christian truths which underlie Christian missions. I put them all into the triumphant words of the Apostle John: "We know." Not, "It appears to us on the balance of the evidence pretty probable"; nor, "We give our assent to it as a mere piece of dry theological dogma"; nor, "We would like to say, if we were not afraid of the cultivated people that laugh at us"; but, "We know that we are of God, and that the whole world lieth in the wicked one. And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we know Him that is true, and we are in Him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ." Translate that into other language, and it comes to this—the Christian man should have

AN INTIMATE AND IRREFRAGABLE CONSCIOUSNESS

of the gravity and reality and universality of the fact of sin. He should have a certitude deep as the foundations of his own being of the fact that the incarnate Son of God has come. He should have a certainty, of which all the inmost and most blessed experiences of his life are the attestations and the seals, that the gifts of the Son who has given to us the grasp of the Divine Father and the assurance that we are in Him, are to us the knowledge of Him that is true, and are to us the indwelling in Jesus Christ. These are the things we have got to preach; the things which missionary institutions exist to proclaim; the things which if a man knows, the word will be like a fire in his bones, and he will be weary of forbearing and cannot stay. There are many temptations to doubt them to-day. There are many who tell us that we are following our own hallucinations; that the world lies in no wicked one, that no Son of God has come, and that these inward consciousnesses are not reliable. All I have got to say is this: As Martin Luther said in regard to the region of dogmatic theology, the test of a standing or declining Church was the doctrine of justification; so I would venture to say in the region of the practical manifestation of the Christian life, that the test of a standing or a falling Church is

ITS MISSIONARY ARDOUR.

For that ardour will accurately correspond to the firmness of its grasp of these great central truths of which I have ventured now to speak. Wheresoever they are held slackly, the missionary enterprise is of necessity stricken with paralysis; for there is nothing to say to the world, and no man will ever be impelled to go forth, as the messengers of the Cross have gone forth, with a Gospel of hesitation; or with anything short of the full-toned proclamation that Christ has died, the world's Redeemer.

Then there is one thing more. A familiarity with and reflection on the facts of the missionary cause are as needful as a grasp of the truths that underlie it. Have you studied that diagram on the back of the invitation to this meeting? It shows in picturesque form the extension, numerically, of Christianity and of other faiths. I have no head for statistics, and get bewildered when people try to make calculations; but, like other babies, I can see a thing when it is put down in a picture before me. And I want you, my dear young friends, to look at prayerfully and earnestly. It reminds me of a pathetic statement in one of the Old Testament books, where the camp of Israel is described as being like two little flocks of kids, whilst the Assyrians filled the country. There is that tiny piece of white up at the top, and to make that white, all sorts of nominal Christians and real worldlings, have had to be included. Down below it darkens into the blackness of desolation and utter ignorance. Do you believe that was what Jesus Christ meant should be the world's condition 1900 years after He died? Surely not; surely not. And if we should take one of these little squares, each of which represents a million souls, and think away all the 999,999, you have one left; if we could get inside of him, and could see the dreariness that is there, the darkness, the terror, the torpor, the unrest, the black pall that wraps the future, shot only occasionally by lightnings that come from beyond—ah! we should not need much more to make us feel that heathenism is indeed the shadow, and to a large extent the substance, of death. Oh, dear friends, if on the one hand we listen to the commission which Dr. Taylor has been quoting, "Go ye...and preach the Gospel to every creature," and on the other hand put emphasis upon the ye that is there, what a stringent obligation, in view of such darkness, comes upon all of us. But there is ANOTHER SET OF FACTS.

THAT GHASTLY PARALLELOGRAM

It is just as much a fact that every Christian Church has had its missionary successes, and that in every corner of the world these successes have been realised; that Jesus Christ has proved Himself to be adapted and intended for the salvation of men of all sorts, orders, ages, conditions, degrees of latitude, and generations; that this Saviour has never been and never will be preached in vain. When I was coming up from the benighted region in which I dwell, this morning, I passed one or two abandoned coal pits. There are no abandoned mines in this missionary enterprise—nowhere where they struck shafts and said, "It is no use; there is nothing there." There has always been gold, and it has always been possible, by the Divine alchemy of the blessed Gospel, to turn the vilest into the most precious, and the sand into the gold of Sheba. These are facts, and I beseech you, young men looking for a career in which success is certain; looking for a career in which there can be no remorse and no regrets and no failures, choose this great work to which the Master has called us all. And remember that the possession of the Gospel, the world's condition being what it is, is to the proclamation of the Gospel. Why, even those poor lepers at the gate of the city, after they had got all they wanted for themselves, said: "This is a day of good tidings, and we do not well that we hold our peace. If we tarry till the morning light some evil will befall us." They felt the obligation to impart the good news. In the words of the hymn:—

THE SOLEMNEST OBLIGATION

Shall we whose souls are lighted
With wisdom from on high—
Shall we, to men benighted,
The lamp of life deny?

Let me ask you to take all these truisms and platitudes of my address this afternoon, and to reflect upon them, in their immediate bearing upon your conduct and your life. They tell us that at our missionary meetings there is nothing said but the one old story over and over again. Perfectly true; but you know there is an infallible way of making threadbare platitudes start into tremendous importance and freshness, and that is by laying them upon our own consciences, and seeing what they have got to say to us individually about our special duty. I suppose the Ten Commandments boast a pretty respectable antiquity, and have been repeated a considerable number of times, without much variation; but if a man tries to keep them, he will find out that and are still alive. So I ask you to take these things and lay them on your hearts. You have got the supreme privilege that, within certain defined limits, you may become almost anything you like. My friend Mr. Spurgeon and I and the rest of the "old fogeys" are settled and done for. Our fates are determined. You cannot teach old dogs new tricks. But you, my young friends, have got almost infinite possibilities before you. Surely you mean to be something better than the fashionable young man of this day, gripping a big thick stick by the middle, with his two arms in the shape of two marks of parenthesis, which may be supposed to signify that what is between them does not matter much! Surely that Divine Master who loves us, and whom we humbly try to love—surely He, not we upon this platform, has a word for some young man in this audience this afternoon. There may be someone here who needs but the final touch to impel him to this great work. There may be men here whom, in God's providence, He has determined and appointed to be apostles to nations that are sitting in darkness. How we should all rejoice and be thankful that we had been permitted to take part in this meeting, if, as the issue of it, some such should be led to consecrate themselves to-day unto the Lord for this great service. Don't you make Samuel's mistake, and fancy that God's voice is Eli's. Be sure that it is He that speaks, and do you answer: "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth."

THEY HAVE TEETH,

There is an old story of my country, of a fight between clansmen. The chief on one side was surrounded by a band of his foster brethren, headed by the father. As the claymores swung and swooped in the strong arms that wielded them, one after another of these brethren stepped in front of their chief, and one after another they fell. And ever as they fell, the foster father's voice rang out: "Another for Hector; another for Hector." And they died on the field. Many of our missionary societies have of late years been called to lament over sad and sore losses. The society with which I have the honour to be connected (Baptist) in its great enterprise on the Congo has in that matter been sorely tried, and precious lives have been freely shed. Wherever there has been one vacancy, there have been two to fill it. The call has not been sounded in vain. I believe the Master is calling to you young men who ought to feel that danger is an incentive, and difficulty an inducement; He is calling to you to choose the heroic part which is his service in the regions beyond. Another for Christ, another for Christ, and yet another, is the demand; and, if there be faith and enthusiasm in the young Christianity of our churches, the call will not ring forth in vain. I pray that it may reach some hearts here, and then our highest purposes will be accomplished.

THE SOUTH-WEST LONDON PROTESTANT INSTITUTE has removed from 180, Brompton-road, to 154, Sloane-street, S.W., at which suitable and convenient rooms have been acquired for the use of the lending library, and the classes and committee meetings in connection with the Institute. Free classes for young men will open at the offices of the Institute, and be continued weekly, as follow:—History of the Reformation, Monday evening, November 4. Shorthand, Pitman's System, Wednesday evening, November 6 (with short subsequent address).

[962]

A REVIVAL IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Dear Sir,—I have the pleasure to inform you for the encouragement of your readers who are being quickened to special activity in missionary work, of a revival of great power among the school inmates and villagers in the Edendale Station, about six miles distant from Maritzburg, now being worked for the Board of Wesleyan Missions. It was my privilege to be permitted to accompany Rev. D. Russell, a useful evangelist, to that station on August 30, and to witness the Divine power to save the practically heathen as well as to restore backsliders.

We found the church, a good sized one, filled for the evening service with an eager and expectant congregation. After prayers, singing, and short addresses, seekers were invited to come forward for special prayer, &c. More than one hundred men, women, and young people arose. There were so many that it was impossible to minister to them severally; but this did not seem necessary or advisable, for all engaged in prayer alone, and independently. Each seemed lost in desire to obtain salvation, and the united cries could be compared to nothing more aptly than the loud roaring of the sea. Some of the students, more particularly, were calm, but evidently deeply distressed, and many women cried and sobbed convulsively. After a little the agony of the seekers increased, so that those who would be helpers could only look to God to visit with his salvation and peace.

In about an hour, manifestations, similar to those recorded in the Irish revival of 1859, were seen. Several became convulsed involuntarily, in different parts of the church, with all the indications of a mighty struggle which suggested a fearful conflict with the powers of darkness. Indeed the people generally, and those who were thus seized, say that it was the casting out of an evil spirit. All who were so affected—some being seekers for the first time and others backsliders—were utterly prostrated before peace and joy which was manifest were given them, as was invariably the case.

I may say that the revival seems to have originated among the students in the training school, some of whom were moved to special prayer; and that the outpouring of the Spirit followed on Sunday, August 25, and still continues. Times of refreshing following the visit of some faithful evangelists from Capetown have also come to Maritzburg; and the coloured people especially seem to be getting saved.—Yours very truly, Pietermaritzburg. J. Robinson.

MARTYRS' MEMORIAL HALL, DARTFORD.—The Hall will be used as the headquarters of the Dartford Young Men's Bible Class, and as a centre for maintaining and disseminating the Scriptural principles of the Reformation. The new building will also comprise a coffee tavern, pure literature depôt, reading and music rooms, and a library now in course of formation. At least £1600 will be required for purchase of freehold land, erection of building, architect's fees, &c. Towards this nearly £850 has been received or promised. Fuller information can be had from Mr. J. Lawrence Mitchell, Gartly House, Dartford, Kent.

SOLDIERS IN PARIS.—We have visited the spacious reading-room and adjoining apartments which M. Arthur de Rougemont has opened between the Military College and Barracks of Latour Maubourg, for the benefit of sub-officers and sergeants desiring to pass their evenings and to receive instruction there. Our readers can greatly aid this useful enterprise by sending M. de Rougemont games, and books of instruction and recreation as a nucleus for a good library. Lectures and conferences, writing paper, scientific games, and even a cup of coffee or tea at cheap prices, will make this building at 17, Rue Chevert, Paris, an attractive locality for our soldiers.—The Signal.

THE "CHRISTIAN LIFEBOAT CREW."

Tune—"Beulah Land."—No. 277, Songs and Solos.

We left the wreck, the sinking wreck,
Where wrathful waves swept o'er the deck;
We left it all at Jesus' call,
In his strong arms by faith to fall.

Chorus—Amid the waves our lifeboat saves,
And speeds along with joyful song.
Blow high! blow low! we onward row
Till, danger past, we land at last;
Come, friend and foe, to glory go,
For Jesus rules the storm, we know.

"For you I died," the Saviour cried;
"For you I crossed death's midnight tide."
We heard his voice when hope was dim;
We saw Him not, but trusted Him.

And now again we cross the main,
To seek the wrecked, nor seek in vain;
Through storms and fears the Saviour steers
Salvation here for all appears.

At Jesus' side we safely ride;
He in the boat will still abide,
And bravely teach, until we reach,
Beyond the storms, the heavenly beach.

William Luff.

THE SHAFTESBURY INSTITUTE.

Miss Meredith Brown, Harrow-street, Lissongrove, writes:—Will any ladies kindly help us by taking a class on one or two evenings in the week? Eight or ten additional teachers are required. It is proposed to devote two class-rooms—set free by the removal of the dormitories to another house—to children from eight to fourteen years of age. These little ones—neglected by degraded mothers—are allowed to wander about the streets to a late hour. They have often pleaded, "Is there no room for us in the Institute?" Alas! ere they reach the age of eleven or twelve, they have already learned much that is evil.

"I was only ten years old," said one of our girls, "when my ole gal (mother) she 'ad me in the public-'ouse. One night I 'ad a lot to drink, and I didn't know no more till I found myself at 'ome next mornin'." "It was our life," she added. "You was brought up gentle; we was dragged up by a rope; rows, and fights, and swearin'! We never see'd nothink else, and we was never learned nothin' as I knows of. 'If yer stop late of a night,' she'd say, 'I don't care w'er you've bin.'" "Nobody minds me when I'm ill," said one tiny little boy, as he put his icy little hand in mine. "I lies in a corner on some straw. My mother don't take no notice. Do 'ave us in."

It is to save the children from such scenes, and to influence their young lives for Christ, that we propose to open junior classes, but it will be impossible to do so unless we have sufficient teachers. Who can tell the power they might exercise in the homes! To snatch these little ones from the devil's grasp, to love and to care for them, is surely the work the Lord would smile upon!

Workers' cards, containing the class rules, may be had of the Hon. Superintendent, who will be glad to give full information to ladies willing to help.

Friends are invited (after November 11) to come and see the work.

LONDON CITY MISSION.—A new hall in connection with this Mission has been erected at Latimer-road Station, Notting-hill. The opening meetings recently held were well attended, and there is every prospect that the missionary, Mr. Ireson, will have much encouragement in his extended sphere of work.

HONOURS AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION have been conferred upon a number of well-known religious and philanthropic institutions and workers. Gold medals have been awarded to the Y.M.C.A. of Paris, as representing the association of the world; the International Federation for Sunday Observance; the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union of the United States; the Bible Society of Paris; Dr. Barnardo, in respect of his colossal work among children; Dr. Gilbert, for dispensary work at Havre. Silver prizes have been given to Mrs. Lewis's work in Paris, and to the Blue Cross Temperance Society of France.

The Hand of God in Africa.

By Mrs. H. GRATTAN GUINNESS.

Each passing year—not to say month—shows more and more plainly how He who loved the world, and gave his Son to redeem it, is working in our days on behalf of Tropical Africa. In his providence, its millions seem destined at last to be brought under the influence of the civilised Christian nations of Europe. Its climate altogether forbids that it should ever become a sphere for European emigration on any large scale, and its social and political divisions will be a permanent hindrance to its ever being governed as one whole, as India is, nor will its varied races die out before the advent of the white man, as did the aborigines of North America. How then are its populations to be brought under the restraints and under the blessings of Christian civilisation? The conflict with slavery and cannibalism is so terrible a one that in many parts missionary operations have little chance, unless backed up by some Government that can repress rapine and massacre.

It is, therefore, with deep satisfaction that we see the Powers of Europe entering Africa on every side, not bent on conquest or extermination, not anxious to rob the natives of their lands; but in the form of commercial companies, under Royal Charters, entrusted with the exercise of reasonable administrative authority in their different spheres, bent on teaching the African populations that the only road to peace and plenty lies through patient industry and self-restraint, and through honesty, courage, and hard work. It would be difficult for Governments pure and simple to do this; but commercial Companies must needs accomplish it in their own interests. Unless they can teach the natives to be industrious, they will never see any dividends on the large capital they sink in the country. Unless they can render life and property secure, how can they hope for profits? The success of a commercial Company means the pacification and protection of its sphere of action. It means peace and justice and progress in all the arts of life; and hence it means, also, possibilities which would not otherwise exist for the spread of the Gospel of Christ through missionary labour.

Private commerce in a savage country, where no Government exists, leads invariably to injustice and oppression of the natives. But it is otherwise where governmental powers are united with commercial speculations on a large scale.

Hence we see cause for only thankfulness in the existence of the great East-African Company, already making substantial progress in its immense and growing sphere in East Equatorial Africa; and, similarly, we rejoice exceedingly, from a missionary point of view, in the fact that a similar Association for South Central Africa is about to receive its charter also. We must enrol now a new name in the long list of British possessions and protectorates, the euphonious one of ZAMBESIA.

A new realm of enormous extent in South Central Africa will in future be known under this title. At the head of the British South African Company, to whom a Royal Charter is about to be granted for the government and development of this country, are the Duke of Abercorn, the Duke of Fife, and Mr. Cecil Rhodes, the South African millionaire. The region which will be governed and developed, protected and improved, by this Association, in the name and in the interests of England, is three times the size of the United Kingdom itself, and one-third larger than all Germany! It lies between the present possessions of England in South Africa, and the Zambesi, extending from the north of British Bechuanaland right up to the Zambesi, and the Matabele and Banyai country, 1500 miles north of the Cape of Good Hope. The general breadth varies from 600 to 800 miles, as the charter includes all that lies between the Portuguese possessions on the East and the German Protectorate on the West. The total area cannot be less than between 300,000 and 400,000 square miles. It includes the scenes of Livingstone's early travels and labours, Khama's country and Sechele's and Lobenguela's—i.e., Matabele and Mashona lands, Shoshong, Linyanti, and the Victoria Falls. The native chiefs sought and desired British protection, and resigned their supremacy for the sake of safety. The whole country is rich and productive in one way or other; and much of it seems to be gold-bearing. A railway is at once to be carried to Shoshong and the Zambesi. Nor will it stop there. The Company is pledged to an anti-slavery and anti-drink policy. Its capital is a million sterling, and its shareholders consent to receive no interest for two years.

Now this chartered association of Englishmen and Scotchmen bent on doing good to themselves and their neighbours of the human family, is only one out of four which have come into existence quite recently, the others being the North Borneo Company, the Niger, and the East African. Why are not Christian Englishmen and Scotchmen as enterprising and as active on behalf of the extension of Christ's kingdom in these new realms? Is the Christian Church incapable of forming schemes equally grand in conception and wise in plan? Has she no men of rank and of wealth, of talent and of travel, of disinterested and enthusiastic spirit, who are willing to give themselves and their best to such work as this for King Jesus? Britain's empire has been founded and extended for the most part by such private action on the part of her sons, not by direct Governmental conquests. And it is thus we know that the kingdom of God on earth is extended, and thus only, by the labours of his sons and servants.

Every new sphere in the world brought thus indirectly under British Government becomes a sphere wherein especially British Christians should plant and sustain missions. They should go in as earnestly for evangelising it as the world goes in for developing it. True the world looks for gain as a reward of their trouble, gain personal, and gain national. But may not we do the same? Is it not the greatest gain to win the Lord's "well done," and to seek first the spread of the kingdom of God and his righteousness?

What are we going to do for Zambesia? What fresh efforts can we put forth for the new India that has come into our hands in East Africa, and for the great Soudan watered by the lordly Niger, and for North Borneo, and Upper Burmah, and other such fresh spheres of British influence?

OH FOR MISSIONARY STATESMEN, who can grasp alike great wholes and small details, and be ambitious and enterprising for Christ their King! May the God who in mercy to Africa's millions raised up Livingstone, and Stanley, and Leopold, and Mackinnon, and Mackenzie, and Rhodes, and all the host of practical, and liberal, and devoted philanthropists who are sparing neither skill nor money nor life in the task of Africa's elevation, raise up similar men in the Church, to do and to give, to conceive and to carry out schemes for their adequate evangelisation! Amen and amen!

We have heard of the arrival of our Congo Balolo party at the Equator in July, and trust they are now establishing themselves in Bolololand as the lonely pioneers of the missionary army at the furthest outpost yet occupied. The Henry Reed steamer is doing them invaluable service, but they have the loan of it only for a year. The Lord has graciously enabled us to build a similar steamer for the Mission to be its own, and to help, we trust, in the founding of many a station on the six southern tributaries of the Congo which intersect and water Bolololand. She is called and has been built at Wivenhoe, in Essex, by the same firm which built the Henry Reed—on which she is in some respects an improvement. We had hoped that she would run her trial trip from Westminster to Richmond, but it is too late in the season to bring her round. She is to be launched this week, and on Monday next, Oct. 28, she will be on view at Wivenhoe, and run her trial trips on the river from that place to Brightlingsea.

"THE PIONEER."

We shall be glad to welcome on board the Mission ship any Christian friends who would like to join us in dedicating her in earnest prayer to God, and to the service for which she is designed. A train leaves Liverpool-street for Wivenhoe at 10.30 a.m., arriving at noon. Lunch will be provided for visitors on board the Pioneer, and there is a return train at 3.30 reaching town at 5 p.m. Friends intending to be present should apply for tickets to the secretary, Harley House, Bow.

At the close of next week the vessel will be taken to pieces again, and packed for shipment to Banana, or if possible Mataddi, when the hundreds of loads which she will make will have to be carried on men's heads to Kintamo for reconstruction and launch on Stanley Pool. The expense of carriage in the Cataract region is greater than it was when we sent up the Henry Reed in 1883, and it cost us over £1000 for transport. The steamer itself will come to about £1450, and this sum is, thanks be to God, all in hand. But we have still to wait on Him to provide for the transport of the vessel He has given, and there is room for his wealthy stewards to have fellowship in this part of the enterprise.

We hope the loads will get to the Congo in time to be carried up during the short dry season in January, so that the boat may be rebuilt and ready for use by the time we have to return the Henry Reed to the A.B.M.U., who have so kindly lent her to the Bololo Mission. They require her as soon as possible, as they are themselves hoping to open two stations on the Kasai next year.

May God inspire us all more and more with Paul's noble ambition, that we may strive to preach the Gospel, not where Christ is named, but where He has never been spoken of!

THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

Dear Sir,—Some English friends, foreseeing the dangers to which our English sisters would be exposed during their engagements at the Exhibition, opened a Home for them close to one of the entrances. A good work goes on here, and the Home is greatly appreciated. Various friends have been giving away Bibles, Testaments, Gospels, and tracts in different languages, and speaking to the different races represented at this great show. On September 28, a most interesting gathering of Russians, Jews, and Arabs, was convened at the Avenue Rapp Hall. About seventy had breakfast together, after which a Russian address was given by Colonel Paschkoff; another, to the Jews, by Mr. Feingold, which was interpreted to the Arabs. The McAll Mission have two additional halls open daily, one at each of the principal entrances to the Exhibition. At the doors, Gospels and tracts are given, and the people invited inside. The bright singing, and plain, earnest preaching of the Gospel, attract attentive audiences. While it is chiefly a sowing time, some reaping has also been done. Pray for Paris and the work of God there.

Jas. Goodchild.

14, Sloane-terrace, S.W.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON:

The Story of a Devoted Life.

By her Brother, Rev. JOHN MACPHERSON, Dundee.

CHAPTER I.—LINKS.

ONE day, early in this century, an old man was standing at his cottage door in Smithtown of Culloden—better known at that time by its name in Gaelic, Balnagowan—a picturesque hamlet, situated not far from the famous battlefield where the career of the Stuarts came to a close.

The village patriarch, John Macpherson, was watching a band of sportsmen, who, with a pack of hounds, were in full pursuit of a hare. Suddenly doubling, the hapless victim of the sport sprang over the fence into Macpherson's garden; and thence, in sheer desperation, bounded through an open casement into a room, where, trembling and bleeding, it cowered in a corner. The old man shut the window, and awaited the arrival of the sportsmen.

"The hare is in the garden," said the lordly master of the hunt.

"No; she is in the house," replied Macpherson, pointing to the window.

"Out with her!" shouted half a dozen voices.

"Never!" was the old Highlander's reply, as he drew himself up proudly. "The hare has sought hospitality under my roof, and in God's name, hospitality she shall have! Your Maker and my Maker is her Maker also; and never shall I turn one of God's helpless creatures in the hour of trouble to the door." Knowing the character of the man, the leader of the party ordered a retreat. When men and dogs had disappeared, the kind-hearted host took the timid guest in his hands, and, gently carrying her to the neighbouring forest, set her free.

After him his son John, a man of fervent piety and gentle character, "held the fort" in the Balnagowan cottage, over the portal of which was written, as every man, woman, and child in Smithtown knew, "Jehovah-shammah," the Lord is there. His wife Jean, in person tall, portly, and dignified—an eminently wise and gracious woman—swayed the sceptre of a benign and heavenly influence over the Culloden hamlet. Gathering the villagers into her house, she was wont to read and expound to them the Word of Life.

The Bible in Gaelic was not as yet within reach of the people, and few of them knew the English language; but Mrs. Jean Macpherson was equal to the situation. Knowing both languages, her method was to open her English Bible, and, translating into Gaelic as she read, give to her fellow-villagers in their mother-tongue the glad tidings of great joy. She was the friend and counsellor of her neighbours in all their times of trouble. By her wise and kindly arbitration many a quarrel was composed, many an angry voice was hushed. The house was still open to the hunted hare. Pursued by doubt and fear, hounded by the devil and remorse, the earnest inquirer made for the Balnagowan cottage, where the Temple lamp shone with a clear ray; and when the godly wife was busy with a case of conscience, her husband would be on his knees in the adjoining closet.

Far removed from the world's noisy ambitions and maddening strife, finding in their Heaven-blest home a repose that flies the halls of the great, and knowing a secret more full of destiny than the mysteries of Royal Cabinets—John Macpherson and his wife Jean served their generation well, and handed down the best of heirlooms, the heritage of them that fear the Lord.

Donald, their fourth son, married Christina, daughter of Alexander Fraser, a farmer at Kirkhill, a parish in the country of the Frasers. This Alexander Fraser was famous among his people for his Samson-like strength; a gift which he seldom employed in its extraordinary range except in self-defence or some chivalrous service. His landlord and chief, Lord Lovat, had a favourite dog, of monstrous size and ferocity, the terror of the community. Men and women had been bitten and maimed; children had been worried and torn; but nobody dared complain for fear of offending the great man. One night Alexander Fraser, after an interview with Lovat on some matter of business, was returning home, when he was suddenly assailed by the savage brute. A fierce struggle followed, all the more terrible from the darkness of the night. The conflict must have been desperate; for the strong man, thrusting his hand into the dog's mouth, wrenched out his tongue from the root, and the animal fell dead at his feet. Lovat was in great wrath, and vowed vengeance. But who was the offender? Everybody guessed, but no one ventured to speak. The wrathful Baron himself must have had his suspicions, but he said nothing; while the people rejoiced at their deliverance from a standing horror.

Alexander was as kind-hearted and genial as he was brave and strong. One of his virtues was to "think kindly of all men, and speak evil of none." He detested the evil tongue; and when censorious words were spoken in his hearing, he was wont to break in by saying, "Now tell us something good about that man; I never knew anybody of whom a kind word could not be spoken."

Christina Fraser was no less noted for her beauty than her father was for strength. Like him, she was the enemy of the evil tongue and of all mean and dastardly ways. In her long life she was never known to have lost a friend or to have quarrelled with a neighbour.

Donald Macpherson and his wife spent seven years of their wedded life in Inverness, where four of their children were born. Here three little graves in the parish kirkyard tell the story of their first family sorrows:—

> Only a baby's grave—
> A foot or two at the most
> Of star-daisied sod:
> Yet methinks that God
> Knows what that little grave cost.

Chastened in spirit, the bereaved parents, with their little daughter Hannah, removed to the Lowlands of Banffshire, and settled at Cullen, a royal burgh, situated on the shore of the German Ocean, where the great North Sea breaks with arctic force ere it narrows into the calmer waters of the Moray Firth.

From the head of a beautiful bay Cullen looks full in the face the great ocean stretching away northwards in unmeasured expanse—glorious in storm and in calm; with its ever-changing moods and many voices; its moanings; its thunderings; and its peaceful murmurs along the shore. Across the Moray Firth to the north-west, some fifty miles away, the lofty mountains of Sutherland and Caithness rise as from the deep in outlines of majestic grandeur, adding a charm of their own to sea and sky. Along the shore are beetling cliffs; rugged headlands thrusting themselves defiantly far out into the deep; rocks of fantastic shapes; dark caverns resounding with the bellowing noise of the waves; sandy creeks and fairylike coves, with beds of broken shells shining beneath the blue-green water with the whiteness of alabaster. Here are myriads of outs and ins among the crags and braes, nature's most secluded haunts—where the plaintive music of the tide chimes well with the wild bird's cry; where azure skies smile on land and sea; and every sight and sound both near and far unite their testimony to tell the Creator's glory, and entice weary men to come aside and rest awhile.

Hard by, the fair domains of Cullen House, with forest and glen; here a meandering stream, and there a bosky dell; the lofty Bin with its richly wooded slopes, its heath-clad summit and towering form of perfect symmetry; the quaint old pre-Reformation church nestling among the trees, with the countless dead sleeping peacefully around; the field where Norseman and Celt grappled in deadly strife, the ancient cairn in the wood telling where a hero fell; the hoary Castle of Findlater on its rock by the sea, with many a fair scene wedded to many an old legend—serve to give the little Northern burgh an interest and a charm which have passed away for ever from the modern city with its clamour and dust, its artificial life and unnatural strain.

Here Donald Macpherson pursued his calling of roadmaking, having learned the art with Telford, the celebrated engineer, whose system he followed. In Banffshire and the neighbouring county of Aberdeen, many a road and bridge and other work of public utility remain to attest his skill and thoroughness. The love of perfecting his work brought less to his pocket than to his good name; but, cost what it might, he would never lower the standard either of his conscience or his taste; and many a time, as day after day he would be showing where a curve needed a more graceful rounding, or a slope a gentler sweep, or an incline an easier gradient, his men were wont to say, "His eye is a hard master to him." Himself a hard worker, he had little mercy on the eye servant; while he was generous towards his faithful workmen, some of whom were in his service well-nigh thirty years. He was too ready, out of sheer compassion, to give employment to navvies on the tramp, although these Bohemians frequently caused him no little trouble by raising strife among his men. Referring to those quarrelsome and ungrateful mischief-makers, he used to say, "I know what Paul means when he speaks of fighting with beasts at Ephesus: the beasts were unreasonable and wicked men, more treacherous and cruel than lions or tigers." And yet the wandering navvy who turned up hungry and forlorn always got "another chance." Whatever may have been his deficiencies, Macpherson was not wanting in the kindness of heart that characterised his fathers.

In Cullen were born a son and four daughters, the youngest of whom, ISABELLA, the subject of this memoir, first saw the light on May 7, 1842.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.

A VERY interesting gathering of the members was convened at the Y.M.C.A. Rooms, Aldersgate-street, on Friday evening, to receive reports of "Summer work at home and abroad."

Mr. Joseph Weatherley and Mr. Charles Young referred to Gospel efforts in Paris, where no open-air preaching is allowed. Rev. W. J. Holder and Mr. James Jones reported the racecourse work, and were agreed in the opinion that betting men are much more accessible than formerly. Mr. James Petter told of work in the Kentish hop-gardens, while Mr. Jesse Croxford spoke of village evangelisation. Mr. Frank Cockrem expounded a new banner, "Divine Symbols," which had been found extremely useful in collecting a street crowd, and also in preaching the Gospel to them. Mr. Walter Jervis emphasised the importance of utilising young men, he having found this plan very effective in Camden Town. Others related instances of obstinate opposition, though in many cases the opponents were eventually converted.

The most cheering portion of the proceedings was that which related to the conversion of sinners, including Jews as well as Gentiles. Mr. Kirkham, the secretary, intimated his intention to visit Egypt and Palestine early next year.

LEPROUS INOCULATION.—DEAR SIR,—An erroneous statement is copied into THE CHRISTIAN from The Zoophilist. The criminal alluded to in my son's last report of the Trinidad Leper Asylum was inoculated in Honolulu, not in Trinidad; and I have no reason to think that the criminal in question was sent nearer to the West Indies than Honolulu.—Faithfully yours, BEAVEN RAKE.

Fordingbridge, Salisbury.

Rev. THOMAS WAUGH,

Wesleyan Methodist Evangelist.

WE have pleasure in giving this week a portrait of Rev. Thomas Waugh, one of the most successful evangelists of the Wesleyan Connexion. Mr. Waugh is himself a living witness of the mighty transforming power of the Holy Spirit, by whose influence he was arrested in a career of sin, and was changed from a sceptic, gambler, and rum-drinker, into a soul-winner. The story of his conversion is especially interesting as showing that great results may often proceed from what appear to be insignificant causes.

Mr. Waugh was born in 1853 at Brampton, near Carlisle. His father, who is still alive, was then a large farmer and miller. From his earliest years the lad had to take his share with the rest of the large family in the work of the farm. It is to this outdoor work in the bracing, invigorating sea and moorland air, combined with the plain and healthy farmhouse fare, that Mr. Waugh owes his fine physique and his "cast iron" constitution. The picturesque and grand scenery amidst which these early years were spent had a very distinct influence in developing his mind and in moulding his character. Often his most telling illustrations are taken from the homely farm life, the scenes of which he can portray with a vividness that arrests the attention of his hearers, and drives the truth home with an irresistible force.

But whilst the physical surroundings of his early life were so beneficial and helpful, matters were just the reverse spiritually. True, he attended church till he was in his teens, but the whole district was in spiritual darkness. It is hardly surprising that he grew up to regard all religion as a sham and a pretence, and became a confirmed sceptic. He never entered a place of worship for nine years, but spent his Sundays in fishing, shooting, hunting, &c. To these he afterwards added horse-racing and greyhound coursing, and with such success that he was nicknamed by his village associates, "Bell's Life," from the accuracy and completeness of his sporting information. Such pursuits led him to the public-house, and he would have become a confirmed rum-drinker but for a resolution made to his grandfather, when a lad, that, whatever else he might be, he would never become a drunkard. "If so, Tommy," the old man replied, "you will be the first Thomas Waugh in the family for generations who has not been so." It was about this time that the late George Moore, the London philanthropist, also a Cumberland man, being distressed at the spiritual darkness of his native county, paid thirty Scripture-readers to visit the homes of the people to try to lead them to Christ. One of these, William Black, living at Gilcrux, also held meetings in his house, which were so blessed by God that the place was "too strait" for those who attended, and a chapel was built. The work went on until some of Thomas Waugh's friends and companions were converted. This made him very angry and uncomfortable. One night, when driving home in a waggon, he overtook one of these new converts, a young girl; and, out of politeness, offered her a lift, which she gladly accepted. Then and there she made the most of her opportunity by urging him to give up his sins, and to come to Christ. He tried to laugh it off, and was thoroughly glad when it was time to set her down; but an impression had been made of which he could not rid himself.

(From Photograph by Mr. A. Sachs, Bradford.)

A little while after this, a friend who was staying at their house proposed to go to the chapel at Gilcrux, and, not to appear rude, Thomas went with him, accompanied by his brother and sister. The novelty of the situation banished all serious thoughts from his mind, but his brother Walter was deeply impressed. A week or two after, when coming home alone one night, he was tempted to take some of his father's money which he had been collecting, so as to bring his bets on the approaching Waterloo Cup right. He paused, reflected, and shrank back horrified that such a thought should be possible to him. Then he thought of his increasing love for drink, and made up his mind that he had gone far enough on the downward path, and resolved to seek a power higher than his own to help him. The next Sunday he went to the Methodist chapel at Gilcrux again, and heard a powerful sermon from a local preacher, on "How long halt ye between two opinions?" For the first time, he stayed to the prayer-meeting, and would have yielded then to the strivings of the Spirit, but for a trifling accident which upset his gravity and made him leave the service. All the following week he was as wretched as he could be; he would often leave off work, and fall on his knees, crying aloud to God for mercy and pardon.

One day he went to a dancing party, but whilst at the card-table he felt so miserable that he had to leave early, and return home. When he reached his room he found his brother asleep; and the peaceful look on his face still further increased his agony of soul, and he yearned for Sunday to come. January 30, 1876, dawned, and he again went to chapel, and again heard William Black preach; the text was, "The Lord put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel." The word came to his heart with great power. He stayed to the prayer-meeting, during which the preacher came to him, and said, "Tom, are you happy?" "No," he said, "but I desire to be." "Well, will you trust Christ, and take Him always as your Saviour?" "I will always," said he. "But will you take Him now?" "Yes." "That will do," said the preacher, and, falling on his knees, he began to pray. Tom followed, and had only been kneeling a moment or two when a flood of light burst into his mind and heart. Springing to his feet, he laughed for very joy. Those present could scarce believe their eyes and ears, but there was no doubt; the change was true enough.

The news that "Bell's Life" had got converted quickly spread through the village, but many would not believe it. "Not whilst there is a greyhound alive," said one; others gave him a week, and some a month; even the most charitable said he could never last till the Waterloo Cup was run. But there is no limit to God's power; He who had saved was able to keep.

Mr. Waugh at once joined the Wesleyan Society in connection with the chapel, and lost no time in getting to work. Fifteen weeks after his conversion he preached his first sermon in the same place of worship; and under his third, preached shortly afterwards, he first experienced the joy of seeing fruit of his labours. In the August following he was "put on the plan" as a local preacher, which for him meant preaching eleven or twelve Sundays a quarter. Two years after his conversion he was appointed to the responsible position of class leader, where, too, his labours were owned of God in a marked manner. The class soon grew so large that it had to be divided into sections, in order to secure due oversight of the members comprising it.

From the time when he began to preach, the idea was impressed on his mind that he should enter the regular ministry. At once he began to prepare himself by diligent hard study, either at night after a hard day's work on the farm, or often when out with the waggons on the roads. In this he was greatly assisted by Rev. J. Duff, now of Kirkoswald. In 1879 he offered as a candidate for the ministry, and was accepted. Being placed on the Reserve List, he continued to work at the farm till the beginning of March, 1880, when he was called out to supply for six months in the Airdrie Circuit, in Scotland; whilst there he was greatly blessed by God in his work. In September he entered Headingley College, near Leeds, where he spent three happy years. During his second year there he realised that he was living a long way below his privileges, and that he was not "filled with the Holy Ghost." This troubled him much, but after six weeks of tears and agony he was able to surrender himself fully to God, and, without doubt, he received a fulness of power he had never known before. Until then he had not seen people converted under his ministry in any large numbers; but since, he has seldom preached without seeing men and women converted to God on the spot.

In 1883 he left college, and at the Conference held at Hull in that year he was appointed "Connexional Evangelist," in which sphere he has spent six years of gladsome toil for God and mankind, and in which he means to labour on as long as God shall lend him strength. His method of work varies according to the season of the year. In the winter months, from September to March, the time is spent in holding special missions, each lasting from ten to fifteen days, in various towns and cities up and down the land. Twelve or thirteen of these are visited during the winter season, and in almost every case the converts have been numbered by hundreds. His most successful mission was in Belfast in 1887, where in sixteen days 1200 adults entered the inquiry rooms; but in many short missions, six, seven, eight, and even nine hundred men and women, have sought and professed to find Christ.

The summer months are spent in short revisits (after the Apostolic fashion) to the scenes of previous missions. This plan has been found most beneficial in strengthening the feeble ones, and in inciting all to fresh zeal and devotion in the Master's service. Large numbers of these converts have become preachers of the Gospel. Many are entering the Wesleyan ministry, and hundreds are local preachers. In 1886 he was ordained into the full ministry at the Conference held in London.

About four years ago he published a small penny book, entitled, "Words of Counsel for Young Christians"; but, though intended primarily for the converts at his own missions, it has already reached a circulation of nearly 100,000, and its perusal has been blessed by God to many a tried and tempted soul.

MR. GEORGE CLARKE IN ARMAGH.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

During the past fortnight Mr. George Clarke has been actively engaged in a mission in Armagh, and has succeeded in arousing a very deep interest in Christian work amongst all classes of the community. The services were attended by immense congregations, and the largest edifice in the city was taxed to its utmost capacity. The Spirit seemed to be more amongst the people, as the truth of the Gospel was pressed home on their minds and consciences. Many inquirers remained for the after-meetings to get more instruction as to decision for Christ. The expectations raised in prospect of this work have been largely realised; all who have been privileged to attend the meetings are convinced that God has largely blessed the movement, and owned the labours of his servant in a marked manner.

There has been more than ordinary interest shown in this mission; there has been strong practical proof of liberality in doing something for the good of others. The local Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. had been contemplating the erection of a suitable institute to facilitate their operations, and it was deemed advisable to take advantage of Mr. Clarke's visit, to make an effort on behalf of the building. At a public meeting Mr. Clarke made a stirring appeal to all present to help. In a few hours of the same day, and during the forenoon of the following Monday, the sum of £1000 was raised, and since that time the amount has risen to £1200. In addition to this, there were thanksgiving offerings presented at the close of the mission services, to help evangelistic work all over Ireland, and these amounted to more than £100.

Another Missionary Farewell.

(From a Correspondent.)

"Lord, if it be Thou, bid me come unto Thee on the waters. And He said, Come." Across the water, from Ceylon, from India, from Palestine and China, the voice of our Lord Jesus had sounded to those whom we gathered to speed, as they went forth on the water at his bidding to go unto Him. We met at the request of Rev. C. A. Fox in the church room, adjoining his church, in Eaton-terrace, London, on Wednesday, the 16th instant. We cannot but tell your readers of this gathering, for it was through some heart-moving words on behalf of Ceylon in The Christian for Sept. 14, 1888, that several of those present heard the Master's "Come!" to them individually from Ceylon. Through those same words others had been stirred to give the means by which two of them have been enabled to obey his call. The third goes at her own charges. The service of these three—Miss Denyer, Miss Bellerby, and Miss Ethel James—will be evangelistic work, and the opening of a most important school in Kandy for training the daughters of the upper classes of the old Kandian families.

But we had also gathered to speed others—viz., Rev. G. Grubb, Mr. Walter Campbell, Mr. Millard, and Mr. Richardson, who, as the representatives of the Keswick Convention, begin their mission tour by two months' work in Ceylon, from whence they have received warm invitations. Yet others were present who were going forth because they had heard his "Come"—Miss Cotton, as a medical missionary to Hyderabad; Miss Townsend, to the Galilee Village Mission; Miss Johnson and Miss Apperson, to China; and also a well-tried worker, Miss Lee, of Nazareth, and one going forth to Palestine later on, Miss Poe.

Rev. C. A. Fox, to whom many present owed much definite blessing, presided. "Looking unto Jesus, never need we yield," was our opening hymn; and then Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe led us in earnest prayer. Rev. J. Ireland Jones followed with words of strength and counsel based chiefly on 1 Cor. i. 23—31. They came with special force from one who, with his wife, has laboured most devotedly for many years in their beloved Ceylon. Although ardently longing to return, they are yet unable to do so. By their pleading prayer and effort, they have been the means of the three ladies we have mentioned going forth. Then came a time of prayer, and Mr. Robert Wilson, so well known in connection with Keswick, and Rev. Evan Hopkins, followed with further words of help, which will not be quickly forgotten. Again we prayed, and then Mr. Grubb, Mr. Campbell, and Mr. Millard, with brief, earnest words, pleaded that we would follow them with prayer on the voyage, and in the work to which they are called.

Several of our missionary sisters urged the same plea, in broken words, which stirred our hearts. Then in the hush of his presence, as we knelt, Rev. C. A. Fox commended them severally by name in prayer to our Lord Jesus. We believe no one present can ever forget this meeting, and that only "the Lord of the harvest" will ever be able to measure the fruit from it. And so we closed, singing together, as we committed them to Him—

God be with you till we meet again,
By his counsels guide, uphold you,
With his sheep securely fold you;
God be with you till we meet again.

KING'S CROSS Y.M.C.A.—The opening social meeting of our winter session was held on Thursday, October 17. Tea and coffee were provided through the kindness of Lord Kinnaird, though he was himself unable to be present. A meeting was afterwards held, Mr. R. W. Charrett presiding. Mr. R. A. Elvey delivered an earnest Gospel address to the young men.

Miss Macpherson at Home.

Our experience of meetings at the Home of Industry has not been small; but we can truthfully say that very seldom indeed has the interest that invariably attaches to them been so varied, so deep, and so fully sustained as at the gathering of last week. Of course, Miss Macpherson's return is always a notable event. She comes back like a fresh breeze from the far West, laden with all manner of good and pleasant things. Her talk last week was the special feature of the evening. "Lest she should ramble," she had the outline of her remarks committed to paper, and the best thing we can do with the space at our disposal is to reproduce her prepared statement. But nobody would ever accuse our good sister of sticking too closely to a manuscript, and the reader will have to imagine many sudden flights from it at a tangent, when choice bits of Canadian child history, or some reminiscence connected with the work, came in to lighten the picture and to charm the beholders. Here is the statement, as written:—

"Once more, in the loving providence of God, it is our happy privilege to record his never failing faithfulness to us as a family, and as a band of 'workers together with Him,' in being permitted to go forth with another three hundred orphan and destitute—mostly young—children from the East of London. Praise his holy name, another six safe and happy voyages have again been given by sea and land. We have spent three months in watching the distribution of many young emigrants, beholding such transitions in the actual circumstances of life that they require to be seen in order to be believed. We have also journeyed the additional 3000 miles to our distant Farm Home, on the Manitoba Prairies, arranging for the future of our many young men who are saving their money and learning farming in Ontario.

"Thus we have seen several hundred now self-supporting, healthy and hearty, if not wealthy, intelligent and industrious. Whenever we went we heard our children spoken well of, and this was a reward for our toil. We found that they loved us all, and were deeply grateful for every lesson any of us had ever given them. The seed of the ever-blessed Gospel message has taken root. The Canadians are each year learning to grasp our principles more, and to understand that we labour neither for the praise of man or for money, but that 'the love of Christ constraineth us.'

"During the year which closed in June last, we can look back with adoring praise and deep thanksgiving for every sweet remembrance of God's saints. The smallest sum—two cents—from one of our little orphan girlies (it was her all), touched the tenderest chord, and awakened overflowing gratitude; as did the large sum from one who had departed this life, but who had left a brief memorandum that these little ones were to be cared for. All comes to us, even the shoe-latchets, as answer to prayer from the loving Father. We live a daily life of praise.

"There are many gifts which his children have bestowed on us that are never recorded in the lists of money, as hundreds of acres of land now producing harvests of wheat, also hundreds of boxes of clothes, to start these dear orphaned children in life, yet his own eye seeth that we would exalt his name together.

"From the Home of Industry have been placed out 5000 in twenty-two years; as far as we know there have been fifty-five deaths in that period. One dear girl of fourteen was carefully cared for many months during the past summer, whilst suffering from consumption, and passed home, to be with Jesus, very peacefully.

"The Canadian Home in Stratford, Ontario, deepens in interest. There is a constant coming and going until the summer's work is over, and the hundreds settle quietly in their new homes. Our Home of Industry iron safe is filled with the large folios of annual records of our visitors. These tell of the wondrous contrasts from poverty to plenty. A mother, sister, father, or brother calls, and though a letter has never reached them, our visitor's record tells of the absent little one's progress, surroundings, education, health, &c. We listened with intense interest to one of our visitors on his return from a month's tour. First he told us of those boys who had specially interested him. One, though quite a youth, had developed a genius for carpentering, having made the farmer's wife a churn on a plan of his own. Then all the other farmers' wives in that district wanted him to make one for them. Another had a genius for painting. From practising on his farm friends, he had painted several, valued at £10 each, and sent them off to the Toronto Exhibition. Another had a good memory, and had repeated 1900 verses from the Bible at his school (the whole Gospel of John, besides other portions), and received a prize. Only two had he occasion to remove back to the Home, finding they were not in suitable homes.

"It is a good land to assist in developing gifts, and the Canadians are noble in most instances in helping the willing and obedient forward. Those that would take advantage of the orphan we endeavour to discover, and tell them the law as regards wages, &c., if fair dealing is not understood. Our labour does not cease when they are first placed out."

There was a great deal besides to interest the assembled friends, and to make the hours speed all too quickly by. Mr. Edward Merry gave a very lively picture of the Home life at Hackney, detailing, with many attractive embellishments, the engagements of the play evening, which is Thursday, the prayer-meeting night, and other branches of that curriculum of training, which works such wonders in transforming the little East-end waifs into most promising potential citizens of the great Dominion. One of the male workers gave a very pathetic account of a prayer-meeting evening at Hackney last spring, when a wave of spiritual influence seemed to pass over the place, and many young hearts were made receptive of the love of the Saviour.

We are really sorry that we have not room for Miss Stock's charming recital of the placing out of the children, and of her visits to those settled in Canadian homes. What may be called the romance of the work is plentifully to be found at these touching interviews between the would-be foster parents and those whom they select as the objects of their affection and care. On her return last year, Miss Stock told of one lady who had then adopted three children from the Stratford Home. So capacious is this American lady's heart, that last winter she took three more. Miss Stock went to pay a visit to the six, and all we can say is, we wish we had been there to make the acquaintance of such a remarkable household. We could well believe that this couple and their foster family are the talk of the neighbourhood. What a pity they cannot inoculate many other well-to-do and lonely households with some portion of the same spirit of practical Christianity.

For years past the Home of Industry has not only been a nursery for the training of the destitute orphan, but for the training of Christian workers, many of whom are now laying out their lives for God and their fellows in different parts of the world. Among those present at the meeting last week were missionaries about to leave for China, for India, for Palestine, and for North Africa. Several of these friends had been working for a time in Bethnal Green, and, as one expressed it, they could never forget the lessons they had learned there and the experience they had gained. These departing friends, as well as others in the foreign field, were earnestly committed to God's keeping in view of the important service they are doing or about to do.

DR. PENTECOST IN SCOTLAND.

(By a Correspondent.)

The united mission in Airdrie, which is now drawing to a close, is broadening and deepening every day. If we can measure the power of a movement by the amount of opposition it meets and vanquishes, this must be pronounce a decided success. Never perhaps in the history of evangelistic work here was such an interest stirred up, or despisers so busy, violent, and absurd in their denunciations. It was well that the committee were armed with much prayer before the mission was entered on, and went forward reckoning on Christ. Its enemies are being clothed with shame. Night after night the penitent form is crowded with the anxious, from all classes of the community, not a few being intelligent, well-read young men of good social standing, who have hitherto opposed soul-winning work. As manifest answers to prayer are given one after another with unmistakable definiteness, we cannot choose but exclaim: This work is wrought of our God.

It is beautiful to see how eager the young converts are in their endeavours to bring their friends and companions to Jesus. One young man brought an acquaintance to the meeting, but the service was about over without any sign of his being impressed. One of the workers, who was advised of the state of matters, went to his seat, and in conversation succeeded, by the Spirit's blessing on the word, in clearing the way. To the exceeding joy of the few still remaining, the young fellow went forward, and, with a full heart, confessed his newly-found Master.

A very striking example of how the "Lord saveth Jacob from afar" may be mentioned. A lady, whose zeal is inspiring as her compassion for souls is touching, asked one of the clergymen to speak to a man in the gallery, at the same time pointing to where he was. The request was fulfilled at once, and the visit was not in vain.

It turned out, however, that there had been a mistake as to identity, for the person the lady had in view was downstairs, and later on, along with his wife, gave his heart to the Lord, and openly confessed Him. On Friday night, at the close of a most impressive appeal, the man from the gallery decided for Christ and, with many others, avouched Him to be his Lord and his God. "My wife was here last night," he said, "and my daughter is saved also."

Miss Tyson began her work among the young on Sabbath week in the Congregational Church, which has been crowded every night since with deeply interested boys and girls over nine years of age. A joint meeting of all the Sabbath-schools in the town was to be held on Sabbath afternoon in the Public Hall.

A NEW MAGAZINE.

Dear Sir,—A large majority of the members of our churches are now with us in the battle against unbelief. That they will be so ten years hence, if left a prey to present influences, is more than anyone will venture to say.

I purpose issuing a monthly undenominational magazine, one of the main features of which will be the presentation in popular form of the testimony borne to the historical character of the Old Testament by the Babylonian and Egyptian monuments. For this effort funds are urgently needed. Will any of your readers who may be inclined to aid, communicate at once with me?—

Yours sincerely, John Urquhart.
Weston-super-Mare. (Baptist Minister.)

BRIGHTON.—The united prayer-meeting in the hall connected with Clifton-road Congregational Church continues to be largely attended by Christians of all denominations, and much blessing is experienced. Visitors to Brighton may like to know of it. The hour is from three to four every Tuesday afternoon; and the meeting is entirely open.

A Missionary in Peril.

The following extracts from the diary of Rev. Dr. Kerr Cross, the agent of the Free Church of Scotland in Livingstonia, are of painful interest. The settlement of the African Lakes Company having been attacked by Arab slave-dealers, Dr. Cross, whose life was in danger at his own mission station, joined his fellow-countrymen on Lake Nyassa. Describing an engagement with these Arab murderers, he says:—

"This is awful work; but, as far as I can see, it is necessary, and the only means by which these men can be driven from this unhappy country, and peace be again established, and the work of the Gospel proceed. I regret very much being mixed up in it; but realise that someone must take the share I do. I am not here as a combatant, but as surgeon to the expedition. And what a strange action it would be for me, the only medical man in the whole country, to go to any outpost while fighting is going on here. I never know the moment when I may be called upon to save the life of a white or black man.

"Moreover, these Arabs are entire strangers to this country. They have come here with the avowed intention of not only taking the country, but of murdering and stealing its people. They have done vast wrongs to the Wankonde tribe, and they have also tried their utmost to murder every white man in the country. I sometimes seem to hear the voice of David Livingstone raised to heaven in prayer for blessing on any who, in any way, attempt to stem the tide of slavery, and aid in healing the world's open sore. Is the spirit which animated those who sent this dauntless warrior of the Cross upon his errand of saving humanity in Africa extinct in Great Britain now?

"At my suggestion Captain Lugard sent the following letter by special messenger to the Arabs. It suggested itself to me as humane and wise, and might emphasise the fact to those at home that I am not here as a combatant, but as a missionary and a surgeon. Every man, black or white, with a wound, Arab or Christian, has a claim upon my aid and sympathy. Here is the letter:—

Captain Lugard to Neloye and Kopakopa.

This is to tell you that if any men of yours are wounded we will take care of them, and try and heal their wounds, and they shall be free to return to you whenever they wish. The doctor has many medicines and instruments, as you know, and may, perhaps, save their lives if they trust themselves to us. We are anxious to save life, and do not fight against wounded men. Bring them with a white flag as far as Mangonga's village, and leave them there under the tree, and send the boy, who came before, to tell us. If you trust us it will be well. To save life and help the wounded is good in the sight of God.

(Signed) F. D. Lugard.

"This evening (April 8) we had one of the most terrific storms I have seen for a long time. I was sitting admiring each flash of lightning, more wonderful than its predecessor, when two of my comrades came rushing along, over the ankles in water, to see me. As we three sat in my hut, with the light of a little flickering candle, we could not but muse on our sad state. Here were we six lone men, hundreds of miles off from our companions, surrounded by enemies and traitors, with little to eat and less to defend ourselves. Our flour is long since done, no tea, no sugar, no soap, and no cloth to buy anything. Some of us have not washed with soap for weeks. Soon, too, we will be sitting in darkness. I tell you our prospects are anything but bright. As far as I can see, there is nothing to hinder the Arabs from cutting all our throats by treachery any night. And, indeed, I am strongly of opinion that if relief does not come soon there will be a massacre here.

"Sabbath.—At the English service, this morning, I spoke on John xiii. 5. Immediately after I went off to the village near, to see my outdoor patient a poor old woman, who was shot by the Arabs last Tuesday. Her wounds are doing well; but she has very high fever. I have great fears for her recovery. Imagine three tunnels, made by bullets, right through her body. At four this afternoon I conducted native service under one of the large trees which adorn this part. There were over 600 present. I intimated that, as soon as the steamer left, a school would be opened, to which I invited all the young people. I am anxious to let all see that I am here with a Divine healing art, and not as a warrior."

Later advices, dated July 31, show the situation to be unchanged. Our beleaguered countrymen are perplexed that help does not come and their fear for the loss of the country and the fruit of many years' labour, as well of the loss of many lives, has much increased. The Arab forces are very aggressive, and life in the camp at Karonga is precarious in the extreme.

Moreover, small-pox has broken out among the native followers of our countrymen, and with fighting this terrible disease, attending to the wounded, enduring the hardship of fighting, and looking after the spiritual interest of the few white and the hundreds of blacks, Dr. Cross's burdens seem likely to crush him completely. To wearily await the arrival of news of assistance by every mail, and the fear of misrepresentation at home, add much to the trial of his position.

Dr. Cross concludes his last letter with the following plaintive cry:—"Surely the Church of Christ at home does not know our terrible plight, and the deeds of these—more fiends than men—our enemies. Oh, God! that Thou wouldst raise up friends for bruised, bleeding Africa!"

When representations were made to the Government last May, Lord Salisbury declined to interfere. A private fund was then raised in Scotland to send out a small expedition. This fell through, and nothing has been done, so far as we know, for three months at least. It is of great importance that this matter should not be allowed to drop, and we trust that the hearts of Christian men will be stirred to take the matter up.

THE CHRISTIAN BUILDINGS.

Dear Sir,—"Hawthorn Model Dwellings," in Devon's-road, has long been known in this locality as a very nest of misery and vice. Having had its rooms visited for years, I am prepared to say it would be difficult to overstate the filthy condition of affairs. Last July it came into the market, and Mr. T. A. Denny purchased the lease, and has generously handed the block over to me for Christian work. There are twenty-four sets of rooms, three rooms and a wash-house to each set. It is a large triangular building with three galleries inside. It is now put in trust, and will be opened on Thursday, November 7, at 3.30 p.m., as "The Christian Buildings." Henceforth it will be inhabited by poor Christians—preference being always given to widows and aged couples—who will pay a small rental, just sufficient to clear the ground rent, taxes, &c. For 2s. per week we shall be able to let them have a set of rooms. At present many of them are paying more than this for one wretched room.

The whole place was in a deplorable condition, but is now being cleaned, repaired, and beautified, from top to bottom. This will cost between £200 and £300.

I am quite sure that this practical effort to help the widow and the aged, by providing them with decent homes at a nominal rental, will enlist your sympathy. The buildings are about ten minutes' walk from Bow Station on the N.L. Railway. On leaving the station, cross the road, and go straight down Campbell-road, and at bottom of road turn to right. The buildings are at the junction of Devon's-road and Whitethorn-street.

After the opening, tea will be provided at the East London Tabernacle, Burdett-road, and in the evening a public meeting will be held. Will those who purpose coming kindly apply to me for tickets, that we may know how many to provide for. Praying that the Lord's blessing may rest on this enterprise, and that for years to come, what has been a very devil's nest, may be a happy Christian colony.—Believe me, yours very faithfully, 22, Bow-road, E. Archibald G. Brown.

Evangelistic Notes.

Dr. L. W. Munhall has been evangelising at Norristown, Pa. His efforts to reach young men have been specially successful.

Mr. J. W. Moodie commenced a Gospel mission at Bo'ness on Sabbath, September 29. The meetings throughout the fortnight were well attended, and some have professed conversion.

Flounden, Bucks.—Mr. G. Copping, evangelist, has been conducting services in the Baptist Union Chapel, Flounden, near Chesham. The house-to-house visitation was blessed to many, and the meetings were occasions of God's power being manifested in a marked degree.

Park-road Hall, Plashet.—A mission has been conducted by Mr. Thomas Payne, of Dalston. The message was with much power, and was blessed, not only to the building up and strengthening of God's own people, but to the unconverted, of whom a goodly number professed to find peace in believing.

Mr. J. J. Clow, of the Evangelisation Society, has concluded a three weeks' mission at Rickmansworth, with happy results. The simple way in which the Gospel was proclaimed by this evangelist had great power in awakening the careless, and, in several cases, of causing them to rejoice in the renewed life. It has also been a time of blessing to many Christians, whose increased zeal augurs well for the future of the village.

Mr. R. Nixon, secretary of the Railway Mission, has conducted a twelve days' mission in Aberdeen, in connection with that branch of the work, with very good results. Much outside interest was excited in the mission, and Mrs. Dr. Gibbon, 2, Queen's-terrace, has consented to become president of a ladies' auxiliary for visiting the men. She will also endeavour to organise branches of the Mission throughout Aberdeenshire.

Brockham, Surrey.—A mission was held here by Rev. John H. Haslam, from October 5 to 15. It is believed a large blessing has been received. The congregations increased daily, until the capacity of the little church was almost exceeded. Addresses were given on the spiritual life at the afternoon services. After the children's services, upwards of sixty children received prize books for well written accounts of addresses to them.

Rev. Thomas Cook, one of the three Wesleyan Connexional evangelists, has been holding a mission Croydon. His services have been very largely attended, and great blessing has followed the preaching of the Word. On one day of the mission, a Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life was held, helpful addresses being delivered by Mr. Cook, Revs. W. Darlow Sarjeant, Walford Green, J. Surnam Cooke, J. H. Hopkins, and Mrs. Hannah Whittall Smith.

Mr. W. R. Lane has just concluded an eight days' mission in Brockley Presbyterian Church, Kent. He was assisted by Rev. Hugh McIntosh, minister of the church, and an enthusiastic band of workers. The daily Bible-readings were well attended, and universal testimony was borne to the preciousness of the teaching. Each evening the meetings grew in numbers, and several nights a large part of the audience remained to the second meeting, at which seeking souls were led to the Saviour's feet.

Mr. William Thomson, evangelist, on Friday last concluded a singularly successful three weeks' mission to adults and children in London-road Free Church, Glasgow. Nearly three hundred persons, including several adults, have professed to decide for Christ. The unusual interest manifested during the second and third weeks was doubtless due in part to the lime light presentation of Gospel truth, as set forth in the "Pilgrim's Progress." In the hands of a man so very consecrated as Mr. Thomson, this mode of teaching is no apparent hindrance to the work of the quickening Spirit.

South Central Africa.—Dear Sir,—Souls are being saved at this station. A young man whom M. Chatelain taught to read while here has taught a cousin of his to read. He, his brother, and cousin are all converted, and they are singing and teaching in their village. God is making these black faces to shine with his glory. Bishop Taylor made us a visit full of the blessing of the Gospel, a few weeks since.—Your brother, Malange, Angola, West Africa. W. H. Mead.

BIRMINGHAM Y.M.C.A.

n influentially attended social reception, to ark the opening of the winter session, was ecently given by Alderman Barrow, the Mayor f Birmingham. It has had the effect of ringing the Association into public notice; his, with the fact that the Association rooms aving been thoroughly renovated, have caused goodly accession of young men to its ranks. leading article has also appeared in the Daily azette, speaking highly of the advantages to oung men of the Institution, so that Mr. Whitwell and his work may be said to be at pre-ent on the crest of the wave.

The winter programme of the Association is very full and varied one, and the friends of oung men in the city cannot do them a better ervice than by inducing them to enrol them-elves in the register at Needless Alley, where ney can not only benefit themselves, but help o secure benefit for their fellows.

Personalia.

Rev. Dr. Lansdell, the Asiatic traveller, is present visiting Corea and Japan, having lately ft Peking for that purpose.

Mr. W. J. Orsman, of the Golden-lane ission, Hoxton, has been elected to the London ounty Council in room of the late Mr. Firth, M.P.

The late Rev. Dr. Kilner, whose death we corded last week, was one of the most successful esleyan missionaries in India before he became missionary secretary at home. He was a man of traordinary administrative vigour, and before s health gave way under endless toil he was one f the most powerful of missionary advocates.

Mrs. Sheldon Amos has offered to the esleyan body an estate at Ramleau, on the lexandrian sea-coast, acquired by her husband hen he was an Egyptian judge. The house and ounds are to be used as a sanatorium for invalid avellers, and any profit over a small percentage the capital will be devoted to evangelistic work nong the natives of Egypt and the East.

Dr. Fergus Ferguson.—We are requested to ate that Dr. Fergus Ferguson, of Glasgow, of hose sermons in the City Temple, London, we ve a brief sketch in our issue of September 20, not the Presbyterian minister of the same name, t a minister of the Evangelical Union of Scot-nd. Strange though it may seem, it is true that o ministers of the Gospel in Glasgow wear the me peculiar name; both Doctors of Divinity, t relatives, and the one ten years older than the her.

Dr. Fairbairn.—The correspondent of The ecord, speaking of Mansfield College, says: "The ening of so fine a pile of buildings within four ars of first coming to Oxford is a great testimony Dr. Fairbairn's ability. He has certainly suc-eded in gaining an influence in Oxford, and in thering around him the ablest Dissenters in the niversity; and, while on the one hand there is no ubt that Congregationalists will gain much by ch a College, the University, on the other, will se nothing by having other spheres of thought an those now dominant ably represented and tively at work."

LIVERPOOL Y.M.C.A.—At a social gathering st week no fewer than 500 new members were ceived. The register of membership of the ssociation now contains 2367 names.

BRADFORD.—A Convention for the Deepen-g of Spiritual Life is to be held in the Mechanics' stitute, Bradford, Yorkshire, on Wednesday, hursday, and Friday, November 13, 14, and 15. arious well-known speakers are announced to ke part. All communications respecting the nvention, should be addressed to Mr. David rdiner, Y.M.C.A., 33, Sunbridge road, Brad-rd.

HOUSE OF REST, 7 and 8, Cambridge rdens, Kilburn, N.W. The resumption of the etings on the 1st and 3rd Fridays of the month, ought large audiences on each occasion. A very easant and profitable evening was spent on the th inst. at the social gathering for Bible study. ss Mason gave an address on, "God's World, d the place of the Christian in it." The Rev. C. sher and others took part.

A SACRED ANTHOLOGY.

Professor Palgrave's Treasury of Sacred Song* is a compilation of conspicuous merit, admirably printed at the Clarendon Press, Oxford. The first edition is limited to 585 large paper copies, signed by the author, in sumptuous half-vellum binding. The prime aim and leading principle of the Editor has been to offer poetry for poetry's sake. This accounts for the presence in the volume of hymns which will have but limited interest, and also for the exclusion of some compositions which have long been popular favourites. There are many selections from Keble and Newman; but not one from Drs. E. H. Bickersteth and W. Walsham How. Yet the Treasury is full, and the selections of such a high order that, in view of the standard laid down, the judgment of the Editor will rarely, if ever, be called in question.

In the preface we read: "If the limitations of its sphere be considered, the triteness of some inevitable motives, the insuperable loftiness of others, it seems to the Editor that English lyrical religious poetry fairly—perhaps fully—holds its own. And should this opinion appear partial to my readers, let me plead that I have turned over many thousand pages in my search, as an excuse—if not a justification—for partiality." Translations have no place in the book, but paraphrases have been regarded as entitled to a measure of admission, when executed with such freedom and spirit as to take rank with original inventions. The book being planned for popular use, the meaning of obsolete words is intimated, while longer explanatory and critical remarks are given at the end.

We make two extracts, the first by John Byrom (1691—1763), and the second (in the Dorsetshire dialect) by William Barnes (1801—1886).

DESIDERIUM.

My spirit longeth for Thee,
  Within my troubled breast,
Altho' I be unworthy
  Of so divine a Guest.

Of so divine a Guest,
  Unworthy tho' I be,
Yet has my heart no rest,
  Unless it come from Thee.

Unless it come from Thee,
  In vain I look around;
In all that I can see,
  No rest is to be found.

No rest is to be found,
  But in thy blesséd love;
O let my wish be crown'd,
  And send it from above!

J. Byrom.

VO'K A-COMÈN INTO CHURCH.

The church do zeem a touchèn zight,
  When vo'k, a-comèn in at door,
  Do softly tread the long-aïled vloor
Below the pillar'd arches' height,
    Wi' bells a-pealèn,
    Vo'k a-kneelèn,
Hearts a-healèn, wi' the love
An' peäce a-zent† em vrom above.

An' there, wi' mild an' thoughtvul feäce,
  Wi' downcast eyes, an' vaïces dum',
  The wold an' young do slowly come,
An' teäke in stillness each his pleäce,
    A-zinkèn slowly,
    Kneelèn lowly,
Seekèn holy thoughts alwone‡,
In pray'r avore their Meäker's throne.

An' there be sons in youthvul pride,
  An' fathers weak, wi' years an' païn,
  An' daughters in their mother's traïn,
The tall wi' smaller at their zide;
    Heads in murnèn §
    Never turnèn,
Cheäks a-burnèn, wi' the het
O' youth, an' eyes noo tears do wet.

There friends do settle, zide by zide,
  The knower speechless to the known;
  Their vaïce is there vor God alwone,
To flesh an' blood their tongues be tied.
    Grief a-wringèn,
    Jay a-zingen,
Pray'r a-bringèn welcome rest,
So softly to the troubled breast.

W. Barnes.

The volume will be valued by many, and doubtless will, to a certain degree, serve devotional purposes, as well as prove instructive in more ways than one. Certainly it is a work of unique literary merit.

* The Treasury of Sacred Song, selected from the English lyrical poetry of four centuries, with notes explanatory and biographical. By Francis T. Palgrave, Professor of Poetry in the University of Oxford. Henry Frowde, Oxford University Press Warehouse, Amen Corner, London, E.C.

† a-zent, sent. ‡ alwone, alone. § murnen, mourning.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

HOME.

At Newport (Mon.) all the churches have united in a week of temperance missioning of the town.

The Manchester Women's Christian Temperance Association Police-court Mission has had a year of most valuable work.

A canvass of Wrexham and eight other towns in North Wales gave for the whole 97·7 per cent. in favour of the direct veto, and 65·8 per cent. in favour of prohibition.

At a recent temperance meeting in the residence of Mr. John Hilton, of the United Kingdom Alliance, a resolution was passed urging the London County Council not to grant music and dancing licences to any places where intoxicants are sold.

FOREIGN.

Of the 160 members of the new Parliament of Victoria, 69 are pledged to local option.

The French Academy of Medicine are alarmed at the increasing ravages wrought by absinthe-drinking.

Dr. Norman Kerr's work on "Inebriety" has been translated into the Russian, and published in Moscow.

Miss Frances E. Willard's fiftieth birthday, September 28, was celebrated at her home in Evanston, Ill., by unusual "doings." From morning until night congratulatory telegrams and letters, flowers and presents, poured in upon her.

The Native Races and the Liquor Traffic United Committee have forwarded a resolution to Khama, Chief of the Bamangwato. Bechuanaland, expressing sympathy with his noble efforts, successfully carried on for many years, to prevent the introduction of strong drink into his country.

A CONFERENCE of the Protestant Alliance, to be followed by a general meeting of Protestants, will be held in Exeter Hall, on Thursday, October 31, when the following propositions will be discussed:—(1) Romish Claims to Supremacy. (2) State Support of Romish Education. (3) Encouragement of Sacerdotalism. (4) Revival of Monasticism.

REV. DR. TALMAGE appeals to the readers of his sermons all the world over to come to his assistance in his hour of distress, and help him with their money to build a new tabernacle, even larger than the one destroyed by fire last week. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an overheated flue. The building was very large, and the damage is immense, being estimated at 150,000 dollars.

LONDON MISSIONARY SOCIETY YOUNG MEN'S BAND.—The third annual meeting was held at the Mission House, Moorfields, on Friday evening, Mr. Alfred J. Shepheard presiding over an enthusiastic muster of members. The tone of the report was cheerful, the membership having increased from 194 to 307, and new bands having been formed in several provincial centres. The president pointed out that, though gratifying, this is not a condition of things with which to be content. Addresses were delivered by Rev. G. Cousins, Mr. E. H. M. Gunn, and Rev. Colmer B. Symes, the last-named remarking upon the very hopeful future of the London Missionary Society, seeing that the young men are making the cause their own. He pointed out that the usefulness of the Band will largely depend upon the clearness with which the members perceive the unique supremacy of the Gospel, and the firmness with which they grasp its essential truths. Mr. C. Holliday, secretary of the Young Men's Association in Aid of the Baptist Missionary Society, having wished the Band God-speed, Rev. J. Gilmour gave some account of his interesting work in Mongolia. He asked that prayer should at all times be offered for God's grace upon missionaries and natives alike, that they may stand fast in patience. The speaker also touched upon the opium iniquity, and showed how urgently desirable it is that Christian work should be done in China now that the door is wide open.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, November 3.

David's Rebellious Son.—2 Sam. xv. 1—12.

Golden Text: Eph. vi. 2, 3.

The last lesson revealed the grace of God in pardoning David's great sin; but the incidents which followed his sin indicate God's displeasure, and are the fulfilment of Nathan's terrible prophecy (xii. 10). David needed the chastisement as much as the forgiveness. First, Amnon committed a dastardly crime towards Absalom's sister, Tamar. David, though angry, did not punish Amnon—probably because he felt that his own crimes had weakened his hand for dealing with similar crimes in others. For two years Absalom meditated revenge (xiii. 23—29), and at last succeeded in accomplishing the murder of Amnon. For three more years Absalom remained in banishment (xiii. 38); until, by Joab's stratagem, he was restored (xiv. 23, 24), though he remained for two years in Jerusalem without meeting the king (xiv. 28).

These years of banishment from home, and of practical imprisonment at home, irritated Absalom, and gave him abundant opportunity for plotting revenge. And for David to be reconciled to him (xiv. 33) before he manifested any repentance was calculated to make him think lightly of his crime.

Secret plotting (1—6).—"After this" (1).—Note the first cruel use he made of his restoration to his father's favour. To receive the kiss of reconciliation, and then to scheme for his father's overthrow, was treachery worthy of Judas. He began by assuming an appearance of royalty, as Adonijah did after him (1 Kings i. 5). By this means he hoped to impress the people favourably, that they might be disposed to support his claim. His next object was to prejudice the people against his father. Standing by the way that led up to the palace gate (2), he stayed those who were going with their cause to the king, gave a favourable judgment in each case (3), insinuated that there was no sufficient provision for giving to each one a fair and just hearing (3, 4), and affected a deep and sympathetic interest in all the cases himself (4, 5). By flattery, by an assumed humility, he stole (6) the hearts of the people. This is very despicable conduct. While his aims were purely selfish, he pretended to be concerned for the welfare of the people. To gratify his own ambition he was willing even to slander his father. There are some men who cannot rise by their own excellence, and whose only plan is to depreciate others that they may be exalted. Beware of uttering a slanderous word about a fellow scholar, in order to get others to think better of yourself.

Open rebellion (7—12).—In place of "forty years" (7), Josephus reads "four years," and, probably, this was the length of time during which Absalom was maturing his plot. His excuse for leaving Jerusalem (7—9) greatly adds to his guilt. To pretend concern about a religious vow, and under cover of that to head a rebellion, was a cruel and wicked piece or deception. There have been hypocrites since Absalom's day, to whom religion has been only a cloak to cover their sins. At a given signal, Absalom's spies were to proclaim him king in Hebron (10):—not to invite the people to make him king, but to announce it as a fact already accomplished. This was a subtle way of deceiving the people. "Two hundred men" (11), by Absalom's invitation, found themselves at Hebron, involved in the conspiracy without any choice of their own. Ahithophel, called the Gilonite (12), because he belonged to Giloh, a city to the south-west of Hebron, supported Absalom. This man had been David's trusted counsellor (xvi. 23); and by his treachery became a kind of type of Judas (Ps. xli. 9; John xiii. 18). He was the grandfather of Bathsheba, and, perhaps, cherished no kindly feeling towards David since his great crime was committed. David could not help seeing in his disaffection a further result of his own sin.

Absalom is remembered chiefly for his beauty (xiv. 25, 26), and for his wicked rebellion. His evil character was probably formed at home. His mother was the daughter of a heathen king (iii. 2, 3), and David's example had been bad during Absalom's youth. It is a terrible thing for parents to see, in the wickedness of their sons, the reproduction of their own sins. Yet these things do not excuse Absalom's guilt. There were opposite influences, and he had to make his choice, as every youth has. Unhappily, and to his lasting shame, he chose the evil, and his career is a solemn warning against the repetition of his foolish choice.

[970]

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

An interesting gathering took place on Wednesday evening, last week, at St. Benet's Church, Stepney, of the workers and members of the various societies connected with the parish, to wish God-speed to Rev. Ilsley W. Charlton, who has been curate at St. Benet's for the last three years, and his wife, second daughter of the vicar, Rev. T. Richardson, who are appointed by the C.M.S. to the Bengal Mission; also to Rev. A. A. Parry, of the C.M.S. College, Islington, who was a worker in St. Benet's parish as a layman, now appointed to India.

Bishop Crowther, whose arrival in England we announced in our last issue, was welcomed by the C.M.S. committee on Monday week. The Bishop, who has now attained a great age, speaks with pride of the rapid strides which Christianity is making amongst the West African natives. The state of the river Bonny district is an example of this. There, by their own exertions, the natives have built the iron church of St. Stephen's, to accommodate 1500 people, but so great is the anxiety to attend the church that frequently 2000 are crammed into the building. The Bishop is now making an effort to raise £350 in England for replacing the old wooden church of St. Clement's at Bonny by an iron structure.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The new iron room which has been erected for the use of the Congregational Church, Chingford, pending the erection of the Church Hall, &c., has been opened by special services, conducted by Rev. J. W. Ellis, of Walthamstow, and by Rev. G. Cousins.

METHODIST.

Rev. Egerton R. Young, of Canada, addressed three services in Jesmond Wesleyan Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Sunday week.

A great Sunday-school Convention, extending over several days, has been held by the Primitive Methodist Connexion in Manchester. Delegates were present from all parts of the country, and the convention is expected to give a great impetus to the Sunday-school work of the Connexion.

A "Forward Movement" has been commenced at Hopetown, Wakefield. The Wesleyans, Primitives, and Free Methodists have united for the purpose of promoting popular meetings for taking hold of the people. Already many largely-attended meetings have been held, and much is hoped for during the winter.

The Liverpool Wesleyan circuits are beginning to move in the direction of aggressive evangelistic work. Three of the town circuits have agreed to confer together with a view to the adoption of concerted methods, while on October 29 and 30 a large convention is to be held, to be followed by mission services in the Liverpool chapels.

The Primitive Methodists are reported to be making unusual preparations throughout the districts in England for enlarged evangelistic labours during this winter. A larger number of young men are entering the Evangelists' Home, and calls for special labourers are coming from all sides. It seems, says The Methodist Times, as if the President's motto for the year, "A passion for winning souls," had seized hold of thousands of minds.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

News from Japan tells of open-air preaching of the Gospel, and of the acceptance of the truth. A young native Friend is the devoted preacher and hopeful worker in three places, many miles from Tokio, the capital.

On Monday, October 14, John H. Williams, central Indian missionary, gave a very able address in the Friends' meeting-house, Cardiff. No one could hear him without a deepened interest in missionary work and those who nobly sustain it.

Frederick Sessions, Gloucester, is to sail on Nov. 7 for a six months' visit to India. He will accompany the returning and new missionaries to Central India. His deep interest in foreign work prompts this journey, and his presence will cheer lonely workers among the heathen.

The Christian Million, of October 10, gives a neat sketch and illustration of Jordan's Meeting-house, the Westminster Abbey of the Quakers, and tells us that an American clergyman is having sign posts erected to a spot dear to Pennsylvanians, as the resting-place of William Penn, the "Friend of the Indians."

Friends of Weston-super-Mare had the annual meeting of their men's Bible-class, mission meeting, women's classes, and children's school on the 10th instant. A very favoured time was experienced. Wm. Hobson, Cardiff, Charles Burchom, and Charles Brown, Weston, were the principal speakers.

Indiana Yearly Meeting, which is the largest in the world, has had before it, and has remitted to a committee, the opening of a new yearly meeting, whose headquarters would be Wilmington, Ohio. This year the figures show an increase of about 800, while at Western Yearly Meeting, just over, there were Pentecostal times of blessing.

The Christian Worker, of October 3, describes the conversion and work of Ruth Brryman Ridges, a converted Jewess, and now a devoted and able preacher among Friends. The open door for service, irrespective of sex, attracted her to where she could exercise her heaven-bestowed gifts. She is young and cultured, and remarkably conversant with Holy Scripture.

BAPTIST.

A four days' united Christian conference for the deepening of spiritual life was held at Hampton Court recently. Introductory sermons were preached by the pastor, Rev. A. Hall, and the series comprised meetings for prayer, meditation, testimony, and discussion upon "The Work of the Holy Spirit," "Consecration," and "Further Services for Christ," there being special gatherings for young men, young women, and a week-day service for children.

The inaugural meeting of the London Baptist Social Union took place on Friday week, at the Holborn Restaurant, under the presidency of Colonel Griffin. There was a large attendance. Mr. R. Foulkes Griffith read a paper on "The Functions of Laymen in Denominational Life." Addresses were afterwards delivered by Colonel Williams, of New York, Rev. J. T. Wigner, Rev. F. B. Meyer, and Dr. Underhill, who, in the course of his remarks, suggested that the members of the Union might be called "Brothers of the Common Life," and so be the means of carrying into daily life the principle of right and truth.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Sunday last was "Children's Day" in the congregations of the Presbyterian Church of England, which has now under its care upwards of 77,000 scholars, of whom more than 26,000 are in mission schools.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Hammersmith, on Sunday week, Dr. Leon Checkemian, formerly a bishop of the Romish Armenian Church, now a student of the New College, Edinburgh, gave a graphic account of his experiences as a Catholic priest. He told how, after struggling with doubt for many years, he had learned the truth from the late Dr. Somerville, of Glasgow, and from Mr. Cunningham, of St. Luke's Church, Edinburgh. He is now preparing to return to his native country as an ordained minister of the Free Church of Scotland.

An interesting service was held at Highbury Church on Friday evening, for the purpose of ordaining to the eldership of the English Presbyterian Church two missionaries—Dr. B. Lewis Paton (son of Mr. Robert Paton, who is shortly leaving for China to join Dr. David Gran in medical missionary work at Chin-Chew, and Dr. Robert Kerr, who has just returned to his work among the Jews at Rabat, Morocco. Rev. C. Moinet presided, and those who took part in the service included Revs. Dr. Edmond, P. Carmichael, J. T. McGaw, T. J. Meyer, W. Ballantyne, and Mr. Hugh M. Matheson.

The London Presbytery's annual Conference on Evangelisation was held on Tuesday evening, last week. Rev. William Ross, of Cowcaddens Free Church, Glasgow, introduced the subject, "Aggressive work in large cities." A calculation had just been made, he said, that there were 300,000 persons in Glasgow who were outside church organisation of any kind. To reach such, men needed to be filled with the Holy Ghost; their purposes should be fixed, but their plans free. Impressions should always be followed up, and in the work for the elevation of the masses, Gospel Temperance must take a prominent place. The subsequent speakers included Principal Dykes and Dr. Donald Fraser.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A Y.M.C.A. has been organised in Mullingar.

Miss Williamson, of Mallow, is building, at a cost of about £1000, a Soldiers' Home at Fermoy, co. Cork.

A Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life was held last week in Eastwall Methodist Church, Londonderry.

A fourth edition of Rev. T. Connellan's pamphlet "Hear the Other Side," considerably enlarged, and containing much new matter, has been published.

A most encouraging work of grace has been going on for the past three or four weeks in one of the Methodist mission tents in the Sandy Row district of Belfast.

A conference on missions was held last week in Great James-street Presbyterian Church, Londonderry. There was a large attendance, and much interest attached to the proceedings.

A very successful four weeks' series of Gospel services has been held in one of the Irish Evangelisation Society's tents at Katesbridge, co. Down, and many professed to have received blessing.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, of the Irish Evangelisation Society, assisted by the local Presbyterian and Methodist ministers, has closed a three weeks' series of successful tent services at Ballyclare, co. Antrim.

A Gospel mission has been held by Rev. Jas. Kirkwood on the Trim Circuit, and during the past fortnight a similar mission conducted by Rev. W. H. Quarry, of Belfast, has been in progress in the Methodist Church, Banbridge.

The Methodist Temperance Committee has decided to adopt Dr. Richardson's Temperance Hand-Book, as the text-book for its Band of Hope examinations this year, and to give £12 in prizes for superior answering on this subject.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. Arthur Pearman, senior curate of Christ Church, Southport.—Rev. John Papillon, rector of Lexden, Colchester, Essex.—Rev. Thomas Akroyd, a well-known minister of the Wesleyan Connexion.—Miss Bateson, an active Christian worker for many years in the village of Nether Kellet, Carnforth, Lancashire.—Rev. Thomas Martin, Presbyterian minister, Shercock, co. Cavan.—Rev. W. M. Patterson, D.D., agent of the American Bible Society at Caracas, Venezuela.—Rev. G. F. Ingram, one of the oldest Congregational ministers in London, who recently resigned his pastorate at Richmond.—Rev. Thomas Reeves, pastor of the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Church, Bassaleg.—Rev. Richard Stanion, of Gorton, for forty-eight years in the Baptist ministry.—Rev. Robert Kingsborough, Methodist minister, Blackwatertown, co. Armagh.—Rev. Percy Keeley, Wesleyan minister, Wroxall, Isle of Wight.

Letters to the Editor.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY.

Dear Sir,—I apprehend that I am but one of a multitude who are deeply grateful to you for your recent notice of this Society; and I trust that you will allow me to add my testimony to the great work which it is accomplishing. I am convinced that evangelists like those sent out by this Society (among others) are by far the most efficient lieutenants of the clergy, and are often able to effect that which lies beyond the power of ministers. Adults of both sexes will frequent services conducted by these men, when no consideration would induce them to frequent any held in church or in chapel.

One of the younger evangelists of this Society recently conducted tent services, as he had in the summer of last year, in the parish in which I reside. Few men could speak more fearlessly or more unequivocally, more pointedly or more lovingly, more beseechingly or more convincingly, than this "son of toil," to whose faults of language or of style, the haughty man of culture only would have taken great exception. The preacher sent to this parish is neither more faithful nor more able than other evangelists of this Society. I happen to know, directly or indirectly, several of them, and I have been much impressed by their uniform force, ability, and spirituality. I have often wondered that any one Society should be able to command the services of such a remarkable body of working men of such rare gifts. It is impossible to estimate the evangelistic work accomplished by the preachers of such societies as the one in question. "The day" alone will declare it.—Yours very faithfully,

Alpheus Wilkes, Vicar of West Barsham.

Bale, East Dereham, Norfolk.

"THE ATONEMENT AND THE SCAPEGOAT."

Sir,—There is one point in the letters on the above subject which I think has been overlooked—that is to say, was the "scapegoat" a type of our Lord, or of any other being? If the latter, then our Lord was not the only sin-bearer. But such an idea is inconsistent with the plain testimony of God's Word, that on Jesus "was laid the iniquity of us all." But, if the scapegoat is a type of Christ, then let us inquire how or in what measure is it to be traced.

With God's assistance, let us briefly consider the subject as revealed to us in his own Word.

In Lev. xvi. 21, it is written, "Aaron...shall confess over him (the goat) all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins, putting them upon the head of the goat." This is, I believe, the only place in the Bible, in which confession of the sins of God's people is made by laying them on the head of an animal, whether it has been selected either for life or for death, and as a type can therefore be only applied to Him who taketh away the sin of the world.

Under the Law, all animals slain in sacrifice received the complete fulfilment of their type in Christ on Calvary. But, observe, it was after the death of all the animals slain on the Day of Atonement, including the goat on which the lot fell for a sin offering, that Aaron confessed the sins of God's people. It was, therefore, after the death of the sin offering that the scapegoat was led away "three days' journey into the wilderness" (mar. "into a land of separation." R. V. "into a solitary land").

As the goat on which the lot fell for a "sin offering" was slain, and thereby suffered the penalty of sin, so Christ was slain for us: "He died for our sins." And in his death (1 Peter ii. 24), "His own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree." But the scapegoat takes our sins beyond this; and it is to this, I believe, that John the Baptist refers when preaching in the wilderness. It is not improbable that he then saw the scapegoat bearing away the sins of the children of Israel, when he pointed to Jesus, with the exclamation, "Behold the Lamb of God which beareth away" not simply the sins of Israel, as confessed by the priest, but) "the sin of the world." Israel's sins were taken away from the nation to a solitary place. The sin of the world must not be left on Calvary, but taken from the world. To that solitary land of which the Psalmist wrote, "as far as the east is from the west, so far hath He removed our transgressions from us."

The scapegoat was taken a three days' journey from the camp, by a fit person. So Christ was taken from the land of the living, but who can follow Him on that solitary journey of three days, when He came forth from the grave having cast "all our sins behind his back," even "into the depths of the sea."

As the man who led away the scapegoat was thereby rendered unclean, so Joseph of Arimathæa and his companions were rendered ceremonially unclean by coming in contact with the dead body of Jesus. Then, after three days the goat was set free, so our Lord came forth from the solitary place, having made an end of sin and brought in everlasting righteousness. "For, in that He died, He died unto sin once; but in that He liveth, He liveth unto God."

Therefore, with grateful hearts, we can look to the Lamb of God and say:—

I lay my sins on Jesus,
The spotless Lamb of God;
He bears them all, and frees us
From the accursed load.

And then—

I long to be with Jesus
Amid the heavenly throng,
To sing with saints his praises,
To learn the angels' song.

Bournemouth. C. B.

SABBATH BREAKING.

Dear Sir,—This question is one that so largely involves Christian conduct and testimony that a very full and fair consideration is needed to enable us to arrive at just conclusions. The letters in The Christian of October 18 from Mr. J. Forbes Moncreiff and Rev. Dr. Gritton express a spirit and motive that all godly people must approve; at the same time, they appear to take a slight view of the case, and do not really meet the difficulties that surround it.

There seems a vague idea in the minds of many who take a strict non-travelling view that it would only mean "a little more walking," or, in some cases, "going on Saturday evening." Others approve of driving, if the horse has its rest at another time, and not a few imagine that most congregations have regular ministers, and that travelling is more for the sake of needless change-overs, or an occasional poor cause that cannot maintain a pastor.

The following facts must be borne in mind by those who wish to speak on the question:—

(1) The supply and maintenance of thousands of places of worship, missions, and schools, is dependent on Sunday travelling.

(2) Walking (already done to the limit of human vigour) could not possibly meet the need.

(3) As to going from Saturday till Monday. In many cases there is no one able to entertain the preacher; in many cases he could not get away on Saturday, and must be at work early on Monday; often he could not afford to go to an inn; and, again, both friend's house and inn mean Sunday work for somebody.

(4) The special preparation for a minister is a different thing from the week-by-week reception of lay preachers. The former may have a carriage from station, and stay over the Sunday with a well-to-do resident. The latter may walk in all weathers, and get a humble meal with the poor folks who love the cause. The latter, and their poor friends, only know what no riding means.

(5) Many side issues are opened, e.g., the use of tricycles, horses, boats (a ferry sometimes saves miles of walking). The amount of walking preachers can or ought to do in justice to the physical and mental structure given them by God.

I can speak from knowledge of toil endured by many humble workers, at times beyond their strength, and to their suffering, and, averse as I am to use conveyance in order to hear favourite preachers or attend favourite places, I dare not say to my weary friend, who, after miles of walking and several services, had the alternative of going home by train, or perhaps ten miles on foot through dark lanes and rain: "By using the train you are offending God, and doing more harm than all the good you have tried to do to-day."—Yours sincerely,

T. R. Hooper.

TRACT DISTRIBUTION AND ITS RESULTS.

Dear Sir,—Mr. White writes in your columns from America asking for information as to the results which have followed tract distribution. May I recommend to his and your readers' notice a booklet recently advertised in your columns? It is entitled, "I Don't like Tracts: a Plea and a Defence" (Stirling Tract Depôt. 1s. per dozen), and in some thirty-two pages the mission of the tract and some wonderful results which have followed in the wake of tracts are concisely stated. All who are interested in tract distribution and all who are prejudiced against tracts should read this little manual.—Yours most truly,

A Christian Worker.

Obituary.

REV. JOHN PRITCHARD.

This servant of Christ expired suddenly last week, while attending the monthly meeting at Llangored, near Beaumaris, of the North Wales Calvinistic Methodist Association, of which he was Moderator. Mr. Pritchard was one of the leading ministers in North Wales, and succumbed to paralysis at the age of 68.

MR. STAFFORD ALLEN.

This well-known member of the Society of Friends died at his residence, Upper Clapton, on Monday week, aged 83, after a short illness. Mr. Allen worked with Clarkson, Brougham, Wilberforce, Buxton, Joseph Sturge, and others; for the abolition of slavery in the British dominions. His sympathy for the coloured races was so strong that some years ago he crossed the Atlantic, in order to see for himself the condition of the enfranchised negroes in the United States.

BISHOP SARGENT.

We regret to announce the death, on Saturday week, of Edward Sargent, D.D., coadjutor-Bishop of Madras, who, for more than fifty years, has been identified with the Church Missionary Society in Tinnevelly. Born in 1815, Bishop Sargent went to India, when he was about twenty years of age, and continued his work for God with scarcely an interruption, until the time of his decease. In 1885 his jubilee was celebrated with great rejoicing by the native Christians in Tinnevelly, and the event was made the occasion of a striking demonstration of affection and esteem. The Bishop was in England for five months last year, and only returned to India in October.

MR. W. WINTON.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. William Winton, one of the ablest missionaries on the staff of the London City Mission. For ten years he was an active worker in the Irish Church Missions Society, and in 1861 joined the London City Mission, in which he has ever since been a shining light. As a visitor amongst the poor, a debater with infidels, a preacher to the masses in theatres and music-halls, a temperance lecturer, or a deputation for the Society he served, he was equalled by few. In almost every district and town in England he addressed temperance meetings, and crowded assemblies were thrilled by his earnest impassioned addresses. His work as a public-house missionary in Paddington, Kensington, Fulham, and Hammersmith, was eminently successful, and the City Mission has sustained a serious loss by his sudden and unexpected death on Sunday evening, October 13, after a mission service at Aldershot.

GARSCUBE HALL, GLASGOW, continues to be the centre of much earnest work for Christ. In a report recently issued, Mr. D. J. Findlay, says that last winter's campaign was marked by much of the Master's presence and blessing. The hall is so small that there is no room for the congregations to grow. Among the associated agencies, the young People's Meeting, under the pastoral care of Mr. D. J. Knox, is specially hopeful. During the summer months, services were held in the St. George's-cross Tent, and, so far as could be seen, the season was not behind any of the fourteen which preceded it, either in attendance, interest, power, or results. Mr. Findlay's address is 42, Grant-street, Glasgow.

LIVERPOOL SHELTERING HOME.—The formal opening of the commodious new building will shortly take place. In the meantime there is a good deal to be done in the way of furnishing and settling in. Mrs. Louisa Birt, the esteemed superintendent, writes:—"Great is our gratitude to those who have so generously given the wherewithal to build such a healthy, warm, bright-looking Sheltering Home for the destitute little ones of this great seaport. Those who wish to share in the joy of furnishing now have the opportunity of sending in their gifts to buy all kinds of necessaries, such as beds, blankets, pillows, tables, chairs, and crockery, and for the school desks, books, and shelves, maps, clocks, and a good school harmonium; also boots and stockings to cover the bare little feet we intend to warm and cover up this winter." Mrs. Birt's address is—The Sheltering Home, Myrtle-street, Liverpool.

The Book World.

A Volume of Sermons.

The Bright and Morning Star, and other Sermons. By Rev. Henry Wilkes, D.D. L.L.D., of Montreal; with a prefatory note by Dr. John Monro Gibson. Those who knew Dr. Wilkes will welcome this volume of sermons as a memorial of one whom to know was to love. Nothing could be more stimulating than his preaching and his teaching. Many of his friends wished that some of his sermons should be given them in a permanent form; and, in compliance with their wish, this volume has been published. None of these sermons were written with a view to publication. None show signs of great elaboration. They are all thrown off for immediate use, and were preached in the ordinary course of Sunday ministration. They are wise, edifying, practical—such as a busy man would be likely to produce when he sat down amidst pressing engagements, to prepare for the pulpit. He was naturally fluent and eloquent in speech, warm and impassioned in delivery, and shone in extemporaneous utterances more than in written compositions. Yet to those who knew him these discourses show the man, for such are able mentally to add the effect derived from his telling voice and manner. (E. D. Dickinson.)

Mr. Stepaway's Two Feet, and other sketches. By Rev. P. B. Power, M.A. 1s. Religious Tract Society. Short, pithy, moral tales, written in Mr. Power's best style. Working men will enjoy them.

Sunbeams for the Sick and Sorrowful. By Mrs. Evered Poole. 1s. Nisbet & Co. Pages of comfort, written in the author's dramatic style. The truths they contain are not presented in any new form, but they are precious, and will speak peace to many a heart.

A Tandem Tour in Norway, by S. Golder (1s. Iliffe & Son), has a special interest for devotees of the wheel, but the writer's realistic if unpretentious account will charm every reader who cares to know more about Norway and the sturdy race that peoples it. Mr. Moore's illustrations light up the narrative wonderfully.

Walks in and Around London. By Uncle Jonathan. 2s. 6d. Wesleyan Methodist Book Room. This is a new and enlarged edition of a book which has become deservedly popular. Amply illustrated and vivaciously written, it will prove a capital present to boys and girls. The information, moreover, is so full that the volume will be very useful in Sunday-school libraries.

Twice Born: An Autobiography. By A. E. Knight. George Cauldwell. 60, Old Bailey, E.C. This cleverly written story, which purports to describe the early years of the writer, bears the stamp of reality. It is most valuable in its setting forth of God's dealings with human souls, and how through sharp chastisement as well as by the woo-ings of his love He draws men to Himself. We heartily commend it alike to young and old.

Wisdom Grave and Gay. By Sir Wilfred Lawson. How far the cause of true temperance has benefited from the witty speeches of its advocates it may be difficult to determine; Mr. Runciman thinks that in dealing with such a vital and serious question humour is like a fly in the ointment. The greatest living platform jester is Sir Wilfrid Lawson, and this collection of extracts from his numerous speeches in and out of Parliament certainly makes an extremely readable and entertaining book. It is a storehouse of weighty fact, as well as of "gay wisdom"; it will no doubt be in great demand among the admirers of the witty baronet, of whom an excellent portrait is given. (2s. S. W. Partridge & Co.)

A Teacher's Commentary on the Gospel of St. Matthew. By Richard Glover, minister of Tyndale Chapel, Bristol. 4s. 6d. Sunday School Union. A work of high merit. We know no book that so well meets the requirements of Sunday-school teachers. The text is displayed throughout, and the comments are ample and clear. The spirit of Gospel teaching shines through the opening up of the letter, and from first to last the practical and expositorial are admirably combined. Like its companion volume on Mark, this commentary, so fresh and original, will prove instructive to all grades of Christian people, while for Sunday-school teachers it leaves nothing to be desired, if only they will use it with godly diligence in the preparation of their Scripture lessons.

Broken, by "Einan" (1s. T. Woolmer), reads like a true story. It is beautifully written, and shows how God's will must break man's will before there can be perfect salvation.

An excellent addition to Messrs. Cassell & Co.'s shilling series of sketches of "The World's Workers" is a well-written outline of the life of Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, by Rose E. Selfe. We see him as boy, man, master, and Christian, and the picture is a very pleasant one.

Dorothy Bell. By Mrs. G. S. Reaney. 1s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. This tale of life in two homes reads a very weighty lesson on the subtle dangers of the drink, as prescribed by the family doctor. There is here and there a suspicion of artificiality in the dialogue, but the interest is well sustained.

Life of Mary Dyer. By her husband, Rev. George Dyer. Wesleyan Book Room. A deeply interesting and stimulating record, from a loving pen, of a fully consecrated life. Mrs. Dyer's husband, being a Wesleyan minister, her labours were divided among different communities, but all felt the inspiration of her example.

In the Evening. By Rev. George Everard, M.A. 1s. Nisbet & Co. A Scripture promise and meditation for each evening in the month, and a welcome companion to a helpful book of morning meditations from the same pen published a short time ago. Mr. Everard writes on spiritual things in a manner calculated to minister great profit to God's people. Our hope is that this, his latest effort, will be blessed to many.

A fourth and cheap edition of Mr. W. M. Thayer's very readable life of the late General Grant, From Tanyard to White House, will be widely welcomed. The illustrious soldier-president had many admirable qualities, and the story of his successful career forms a memorable chapter in the history of the great American Republic. A fine steel-engraved portrait is given as a frontispiece, and the book is most attractively got up. (1s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton.)

God in Business. By H. J. Latham. 3s. Nisbet & Co. This book would more correctly have been entitled "Answers to Prayer," as it purports to prove from known facts that God interposes in temporal matters in response to the believing petitions of those who trust in Him. The testimonies are mainly from American sources, and are thrown together somewhat roughly. We should think there are few Christians who could not add some stones to the cairn of witnesses presented here.

A Handbook for the Nursing of Sick Children. By Catherine Jane Wood. 2s. 6d. Cassell & Co. Enthusiastic in emphasising the importance of intelligent nursing of the sick, the talented author has performed a really good work, in making clear in these pages the needs of the young in the matter of management and care during illness. In proportion as this very useful book is circulated and its instructions carried out, ignorance and indolence will be robbed of their infant victims in the home circle.

We have received new editions of three of Miss Annie Swan's stories: The Better Part; Mark Desborough's Vow; and The Strait Gate. The tales by this justly popular writer, are of the best order of religious fiction. While the romantic element has full play, as it ought to have in all ideal writing, the bounds of probability are seldom overstepped. There is shadow enough, as well as sunshine, while the teaching is uniformly ennobling. The three books before us are given a place in Messrs. Partridge & Co.'s "Home Library" (2s. each).

Treasure House of Consolation. Compiled by Benjamin Orme. Second Edition. 3s. 6d. T. Fisher Unwin. This goodly storehouse of comfortable words somewhat sadly suggests the universality of the fact of human sorrow and suffering, since they have formed the theme of so much practical meditation. The contents of the book are drawn from very varied sources, and are well arranged for easy reference. The most frequent drafts appear to have been made on the writings of Dr. Adolph Saphir and the poems of Charlotte Elliott. Such a body of consoling testimony and helpful exhortation is seldom brought together.

Hid Treasure; or, The Unrecognised Quotations of the New Testament, from the Septuagint Version of the Old. By Richard Harris Hill. 1s. Cassell & Co. A pamphlet which will have a cordial welcome from such as study the sacred Scriptures in the original languages, and by the light of the early versions. Many of the "quotations" here set out are, in reality, only references; while others, we think, can hardly come under either of these heads. The similarity of language, pointed out in some passages, will by most students be pronounced inevitable coincidences, in view of the identity of thought and subject. Nevertheless, Mr. Hill deserves the thanks of scholars, for pointing out a goodly number of quotations, some of them intensely interesting, which have been overlooked by the writers of text books on the subject.

The Gospel according to St. John, with Introduction and Notes. By Rev. George Reith, M.A. In two parts, 2s. each. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Two more volumes of the series of "Handbooks for Bible-classes and Private Students." The general excellence of the series is more than maintained. Indeed, for persons who require much in little, we can recommend nothing better than this unpretentious little work, in which the "Golden Gospel" is opened up with admirable conciseness and clearness. The text of the Gospel is given in full, and the comments are alike exegetically useful and spiritually helpful.

Wesleyan Methodist Book-Room.

For the King and the Cross. By Jessie Armstrong. 2s. 6d. A true and tender story for girls of the troublous times of the French Revolution.—More than Kin. By Emma E. Hornibrook. 2s. 6d. Christian teaching is not so well defined as in some of this writer's other works, and the story, though in some respects entertaining, is disfigured by vulgar ejaculations and expressions.—Raymond Theed: A Story of Five Years. By Elsie Kendall. 2s. A very beautiful temperance story of the grace of God, and how it is able to overcome even hereditary besetments.—Under the Juniper Tree. A Story for Boys. By William J. Forster. 1s. Another temperance story, very bright and bracing, and full of useful lessons for all.—Tell Me a Story: Yes, I will. By Helen Briston. 1s. A collection of short stories from The Temperance Record.

G. Cauldwell, 60, Old Bailey.

In Fellowship. By the author of "Brotherhood." 5s. It is some time since we have read so careful, thoughtful, and truthful a study as this book presents in its principal characters. Young people will do well to read this excellent story, one of the best of the season.—Eveline's Keynote. By Edith C. Kenyon. 2s. 6d. Another very good story. The tone is high, and the Christianity of a fine, strong, manly type.—Crumbs from the Children's Table. By Jessie M. E. Saxby. 2s. 6d. A strong book, in the author's best style: it is full of the rich experience of one who understands home-life.—Edgar Berwick's Inheritance. By Wm. J. Lacy. 1s. A book for the older ones, who will be interested in the trials and temptations of the hero.—The Dunce of the School. By Harriet Boultwood. 1s. A book for boys, who will be glad to learn that the "dunce," by perseverance, becomes an inventor.—Rosie Dale. By Annie Gray. And Louie Thornton. By Miss Parkinson. 6d. Two short stories for children.

Messrs. Partridge & Co.

Left with a Trust. By Nellie Harris. 1s. A tender and beautiful story of a family of boys and girls, to whom the father left a trust—the care of their mother—until his return.—Mattie's Home; or, The Little Match Girl and Her Friends. By the author of "Miss Milly's Secret." 9d. Children will love to follow the fortunes of Mattie and Dot, and to learn how "Our Father," in whom they trusted, honoured their faith.—Three sixpenny books, Ronald's Reason, by Mrs. S. C. Hall; the Church Mouse, by Mrs. Burge Smith, with a story by the author of "Dick and his Donkey"; and Aunt Kelley's Christmas Box, by Jennie Chappell, form an interesting addition to juvenile literature. The last-named is especially helpful. —Yvonne St. Clair. By Eliza F. Polland. 1s. 6d. This is a well written story, but there is too much of the "novel" about it. Adventure, love, and waiting are its chief points; it contains no definite Christianity.—Bolingbroke's Folly. By Emma Leslie. 1s. Another love tale, but one of such a numerous family, that the reader wearies of these improbable, "all-come-right-at-last" stories, with their impossible heroines.—More Echoes from a Village Church. By Frederick Harper, M.A. Very helpful little addresses; strong, with reality; and full, with the fulness of God's dear Son. Mr. Harper writes as one who is in the great secret.—Amaranth's Garden. By Margaret Scott Haycraft. 1s. 6d. A deeply interesting story of a lost treasure, a lost reputation, and a lost peace, which are all recovered.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

The volume of YOUNG ENGLAND, as usual, contains a good variety of matter of an entertaining character, such as young people delight in; much of it, too, is calculated to be distinctly instructive to the youthful mind. Those who read this monthly cannot but be profited by it. (5s. Sunday School Union.)

ST. NICHOLAS. Vol. xvi., Part 2—May to October, 1889. 8s. T. Fisher Unwin. This illustrated magazine for young folks occupies a place almost entirely its own. In volume form it is quite an encyclopædia of entertainment and instruction. Somehow or other, many of the items cleverly combine the two qualities, so that information is pleasantly conveyed, and moral lessons are presented in truly striking settings. The illustrations are always excellent, and have an attraction for old and young alike. The articles on Laura Bridgman and Helen Keller, illustrated with photographs, may be mentioned as having a special interest and value.

THE CENTURY. Vol. xxxviii.—May to October, 1889. 10s. 6d. T. Fisher Unwin. The articles on various phases of convict life in Siberia, by George Kennan, are worth the entire volume, which is, however, as full and varied as ever in its contents. Illustrations are still a feature such as cannot but secure and retain a high place for this serial in the estimation of the reading public. Among articles of more than ephemeral interest are "Round about Jerusalem," by E. L. Wilson; "The Bible in Tennyson," by Henry Van Dyke; "The Pharaoh of the Exodus, and his Son," by John A. Paine, and "Certain Forms of Woman's Work for Woman," by Helen Campbell. With contents so varied, and always admirably presented, it is not surprising that this periodical, which in volume form is a beautiful book, has made itself a worthy name, alike in Europe and America.

TALKS UPON LITTLE THINGS. Sunday School Union. 1s. These are very helpful "talks" upon some of the little things of the Bible. The lessons drawn are good.

Miss Agnes Weston has prepared a series of booklets called "Sailors' Rest Series." As Blue Backs they have been welcomed by thousands; they are now issued in an attractive form for wide distribution. They are published by Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co. at 9d. per dozen, 7s. per 100.

SACRED DUETS. A collection for church use. Composed by W. F. Sudds. Part 1. 1s. 6d. Both notations in one volume. J. Curwen & Sons. A selection of nine pieces, the words taken from Scripture or well-known hymns. The pieces are effective and within the range of ordinary church choirs.

AN EXPOSITION OF THE SHORTER CATECHISM. By Rev. Professor Salmond, D.D. Part II. 6d. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. The editor of the very useful series of "Bible-class Primers" in this handbook concludes a remarkably lucid and instructive exposition. Questions 82 to 107, containing the summary of Christian duty, are dealt with in this part.

MEMORIALS OF THE BAPTIST CHURCH, COLCHESTER. The bi-centenary of the church worshipping in Eld-lane Chapel, Colchester, has been celebrated this year. Occasion was thus afforded for this historical sketch, drawn up by Pastor Edward Spurrier. The ups and downs of the church are full of instructive lessons, which, it is hoped, will be learned by many readers. Rev. J. A. Spurgeon was in early life a member of this church.

L'ARMÉE DU SALUT À PARIS. Par E. Peyre-Courant. Paris: Librairie Fischbacher, 33, Rue de Seine. This is a vigorous plea for the Salvation Army, based on what the author, an advocate of the Court of Paris, has seen of its operations. Asking in conclusion, whether the Reformed Church of France, of which he is a member, shall fraternise with the Army, the writer says: "How should we hesitate? If they are not sons of the Reform, it is because they are brothers."

FRED ARCHER; OR, HOW TO WIN. This booklet of twelve pages, which has reached its fiftieth thousand, is the very thing to give to gamblers and betting men. It is written by one of the members of the Open-air Mission, and tells of his interviews with Fred Archer, the jockey whose death shocked the racing world nearly three years ago. Copies may be had at 2s. 6d. per 100, post free, of Mr. Gawin Kirkham. Secretary, Open-air Mission, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

Messrs. S. W. Partridge & Co. have published four more booklets by Rev. F. B. Meyer:—YOUNG MEN, DON'T DRIFT! is full of sound counsel admirably expressed; WHERE AM I WRONG? contains helpful words for Christians who are asking the secret of a sweeter, nobler, more victorious life; WITH CHRIST IN SEPARATION sets forth the life of holiness, and stimulates the reader thereto; THE CHAMBERS OF THE KING affords a glimpse of the blessings and treasures of grace and glory in Christ. (6d. per dozen.)

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Messrs. Oliphant, Anderson & Ferrier:—Life's Stages, by Rev. James Stark (2s. 6d.).

Mr. J. B. Fairgrieve, 7, Cockburn-street, Edinburgh:—Light on the Path, by Rev. John Kirk.

Messrs. John F. Shaw & Co.:—More Echoes from a Village Church, by Rev. Fredk. Harper, M.A.

Messrs. Funk & Wagnalls, 44, Fleet-street, E.C.:—Moses and his recent Critics. Edited by Talbot W. Chambers. 6s.

Messrs. John Snow & Co.:—Christ or Confucius, which? the Story of the L.M.S. Amoy Mission, by Rev. John Macgowan. 2s.

Messrs. Hazell, Watson & Viney, Limited, 1, Creed-lane, Ludgate-hill:—The People's Family Prayer Book, by Rev. Joseph Parker, D.D. 10s. 6d.

Mr. Elliot Stock:—Practical Hints on the Public Reading of the Liturgy, by Rev. J. H. Whitehead, M.A.—Sixty Folk-Tales from Slavonic Sources, translated, with notes, by A. H. Wratislaw, M.A.

National Temperance Publication Depôt, 33, Paternoster-row:—Temperance History, by Rev. Dawson Burns, D.D. Part 1, 2s.—The Truth about Intoxicating Drinks: a Prize Essay, by E. R. Barrett, B.A. 2s. 6d.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin:—Early Britain (Story of the Nations), by Professor A. J. Church. 5s.—The Century, vol. xxxviii., May to October, 1889. 10s. 6d.—St. Nicholas, vol. xvi., May to October, 1889. 8s.—The Life and Times of William Lloyd Garrison. By his Children. Vols. iii. and iv.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—Alone with the Word, by Rev. G. Stringer Rowe. 6s. 6d.—Romance of Psalter and Hymnal, by Rev. R. E. Welsh and F. G. Edwards. 6s.—The Atheist Shoemaker, by Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. 1s. 6d.—The Thrales of Redlynch, by Rev. Nehemiah Curnock. 2s. 6d.—Roger Willoughby, by W. H. G. Kingston. 3s. 6d.—John Winter, by Edward Garrett. 3s. 6d.

Messrs. Nisbet & Co.:—Sunbeams for the Sick and Sorrowful, by Eva Travers Evered Poole. 1s.—Alexander Balfour: A Memoir, by Rev. R. H. Lundie, M.A. Fourth edition. 2s. 6d.—The Witness of the World to Christ, by Rev. W. A. Matthews, M.A. 3s. 6d.—Cottage Lectures on Health, and How to keep it, by Agnes C. Maitland. 1s. 6d. Vox Dei—the Doctrine of the Spirit, by R. A. Redford, M.A., LL.B. 6s.

Religious Tract Society:—Russian Pictures, drawn with pen and pencil, by Thomas Michell, C.B. 8s.—The Brook and its Banks, by Rev. J. G. Wood. 6s.—Ralph Ellison's Opportunity, and East and West, by Leslie Keith. 3s. 6d.—Rights and Wrongs, by S. S. Pugh. 3s.—Afterward, by the author of "Winning Her Way." 2s. 6d.—Mr. Wentworth's Daughter, by M. A. Dibdin. 2s.—Mr. Stepaway's Two Feet, and other Sketches, by Rev. P. B. Power. 1s.—Handsome is as handsome does, and other Readings. 2s.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 121, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON-AVENUE, E.C.—Daily prayer-meeting, 1.30 to 2 p.m. Thurs., 6 p.m., missionary meeting. Fri., Oct. 25, 6.45 p.m., valedictory to missionaries leaving for China. Addresses by Rev. C. G. Moore and others.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Special Gospel mission to Nov. 3. Suns., 3 and 7 p.m.; week night services at 7.30. Bible-reading, Tues., Weds., and Thurs. in each week, 3 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand, W.C.—Sun., 3.45 p.m., men only. Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30 p.m., public, Mr. T. Richardson. Wed., Oct. 30, pictorial address on "New Guinea," 8.30 p.m. Week nights at 8, meetings for men. French Bible-class, Thurs., 8 p.m. Daily prayer-meeting (Sat. ex.), from 1 till 2.

Y.M.C.A., FINSBURY PARK HALL, 255, Seven Sisters-road, N.—Sun., Oct. 27, China Inland Mission, valedictory meeting of missionaries. Afternoon, for young men only, at 3.15; evening, service at 7.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Sat., Oct. 26, 3 p.m., Bible-reading, by Rev. F. B. Meyer; subject—"God's Scheme for Men." Sun., 3.30 p.m., address by Mr. W. T. Paton. Tues., 8 p.m., "An Evening with Famous Authors."

Y.M.C.A., 26 and 28, NEWINGTON-CAUSEWAY, Southwark, S.E.—Annual meeting, Thurs., Oct. 24, Christ Church, Westminster Bridge-road. Mr. S. Gurney Sheppard in the chair. Speakers—Mr. A. J. Mundella, Earl Compton, Revs. Newman Hall and J. Jackson Wray.

WEST LONDON MISSION.—Fri., Oct. 25, anniversary meetings. 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse will preach in Princes Hall; 7 p.m., public meeting, St. James's Hall, the Lord Mayor presiding. St. James's Hall: Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. Mark Guy Pearse; 3.30 and 7 p.m., Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Cleveland Hall: Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. Dr. Lunn.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay-park, N.—Sun., Oct. 27, 3.30 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Mr. J. McAuliffe.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-hig way, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Fri., Nov. 1. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Address by Dr. Neatby, "Itta the Gittite."

METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE, Newington-butts, S.E.—Wed., Nov. 6, 7 p.m., lecture on "The Prisons of the World," by Mr. Charles Cook. Mr. C. H. Spurgeon will take the chair. Admission free.

TALBOT TABERNACLE, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.—Sun., Oct. 27, 11 a.m., Mr. J. S. Harrison; 7 p.m., Mr. C. M. Leite Rozas.

CHRISTIAN LIFEBOAT CREW.—Monthly meeting, Sailors Welcome Home, 173, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E., Tues., Nov. 5, 7 p.m. Tea at 6.

MEDICAL PRAYER UNION.—Annual meeting, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C., Fri., Nov. 1, 7.30 p.m., Professor Macalister, M.D., to preside. All medical men and medical students cordially invited.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. T. Shuldham Henry, Sun., at 11 and 7. Wed., Burlington Hall, Savile-row, at 8.

POLYTECHNIC, Regent-street, W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sun., 7 p.m.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun. next, at 11 and 6.45, Mr. Joseph Clarke.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, N.—Evangelistic services every Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.

LONDON WESLEYAN METHODIST MISSION.—Laying of foundation stones of New Leysian Hall, Errol-street, Whitecross-street, E.C., Tues., Oct. 29, 3 p.m. Public service, City-road Chapel, 4 p.m., when Rev. John McNeill will preach. 7 p.m., public meeting, City-road Chapel, Mr. W. Willis in the chair.

PROTESTANT ALLIANCE.—Conference and meeting of Protestants, Exeter Hall, Thurs., Oct. 31. 1.30 p.m., conference; 7 p.m., general meeting.

ANCIENT MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Finsbury Chapel, Moorfields, E.C.—Tues., in Oct., Rev. A. Rowland; subject—"Ecce Homo." Oct. 29, "Christ's Changelessness.'

CONFERENCE HALL, 143, Clapham-road, S.W.—Bible-reading, by Rev. Dr. Bullinger, every Thurs., 4 p.m.

OPEN-AIR MISSION (West London Auxiliary).—Quarterly meeting, Y.M.C.A., Stafford Rooms, Tichborne-street, W., Mon., Oct. 28, 8 p.m. Chair taken by Mr. C. de Selincourt. Addresses by Rev. James Paterson and Mr. Gawin Kirkham.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun., next, 11 a.m., Dr. Barnardo; 3 p.m., Rev. Henry Bright; 7 p.m., Mr. J. B. Wookey.

HOUSE OF REST, 8, Cambridge-gardens, Kilburn, N.W.—Fri., Nov. 1, all-day meetings. 11 a.m., prayer and conference on Christian work; 3 p.m., Mr. A. J. Arnold, of the Evangelical Alliance, on "A Recent Visit to Spain." Rev. H. Sharpe, Trinity Church, South Hampstead, will preside.

MANCHESTER CHRISTIAN CONVENTION, Oct. 29—31.—Communications respecting apartments, &c., should be addressed to the Secretaries, Conference Hall, Strangeways, Manchester.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street (near Victoria Station), S.W.—Meeting for prayer in connection with the approaching visit to India of Lord Radstock and Canon Wilberforce, Tues., Oct. 29, 4 p.m.

BRADFORD HOLINESS CONVENTION, Nov. 13—15.—Mr. D. Gardiner, Secretary, Y.M.C.A., 33, Sunbridge-road, Bradford.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Hornsey-rise, Oct. 27 to Nov. 3. Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, Athenæum, Camden-road, Sun., at 3.15.

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

EIGHTY JAPANESE GIRLS at Nagasaki, Japan, are banded together in a Y.W.C.T.U. that is said to be the strongest organisation of the kind in the empire. They give special attention to social purity work, and are preparing a petition to the Government against legal concubinage.

TEMPERANCE IN DENMARK.—In Zeeland the temperance cause has made great progress of late. During the summer many festivals are held in the island, and not only have the dealers in strong drink tried to turn them to their own account, but they have also organised fêtes in their personal interest. By way of counteracting the evil, the friends of temperance have organised teetotal fêtes, and made their good influence widely felt. Much that is beneficial is, moreover, expected from a measure brought forward by the Government, in compliance with the popular demand, forbidding the sale of intoxicants by dealers at public fairs and festivities.

RUSSIA.—In the province of Tobolsk, in Siberia, there is a colony of 2000 nominal Lutherans—convicts with their families. The entire region is desolation, especially in winter, when the cold is so intense that the river is frozen to its bed, and fishing impossible. The unfortunate people live in earth cabins, and epidemics among them are common. The only Christian worker among these people is a school-master, who instructs the young during the week, and on Sundays holds religious services in three different languages. He is alone among hardened criminals, but he works bravely, and by a slight medical knowledge is enabled to do something to keep down disease among the people. For eleven years this good man, with his wife and family, has laboured in scenes of misery and vice. Now the Lutheran churches of Russia are moved to do something for the colony. It is hoped their intentions will soon be translated into action.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope all our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 27.—2 Samuel XVII.

IN this chapter there are many evidences that God upholds David, even while He visits him with chastisement, according to the prediction of Nathan (xii).

(1) The counsel of Ahithophel defeated.—Had this counsel been followed, it would almost certainly have destroyed David's cause. He was as weak and weary (xvi. 14) as Ahithophel supposed (1). An attack promptly made would surprise him, take him captive, and secure the people for Absalom (1—3). The advice of Hushai (7—13) was intended to secure delay, and was therefore calculated to help David. "Crimes gain by hasty action, better counsels by delay." With great subtelty Hushai appealed to Absalom's vanity, and hence his advice was preferred. This was according to God's appointment (14), and was in answer to David's prayer (xv. 31). See Prov. xxi. 30; 1 Cor. i. 19, 20.

(2) The message sent to David (15—22).—The two messengers, Jonathan and Ahimaaz, were watched (18), and, but for the deception practised upon Absalom's servants by a woman at Bahurim (18—20), they would never have reached David. Her conduct was very much like that of Rahab (Josh. ii.). God used it for effecting his purpose, but did not therefore justify it. We may admire and imitate her zeal; but, with the increased light we possess, we may not adopt her methods.

(3) The death of Ahithophel (23).—As he had foreshadowed Judas in his treachery (Ps. xli. 9), so did he in his doom (Matt. xxvii. 5). He was prompted to it, not only by the mortification of defeat, but because he anticipated the failure of Absalom's rebellion, and feared the punishment that would await him when David was restored.

(4) David at Mahanaim (24—29).—God raised up friends to minister to him. Shobi was probably the brother of Nahum (x. 1); Machir had entertained Mephibosheth (ix. 4); Barzillai was a Gileadite, of whose kindness to David we shall yet hear more.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 28.—2 Samuel XVIII.

(1) The battle (1—8).—Absalom's army has already crossed the Jordan (xvii. 25, 26). His captain is Amasa, another nephew of David, and a cousin of Joab. The affection of the people appears in their refusal to allow David to accompany them (3). For him it was a trying experience to see his forces going out to battle against his son. Though, as a rebel, Absalom deserves to die, yet David thinks of him with a father's love. It is impossible to be tender to such a traitor without being unfaithful to his kingdom. God fought against Absalom; so that the wood destroyed more than the sword (6—8). God can use any instrument for the punishment of his enemies.

(2) The death of Absalom (9—18).—What a tragic end his was! Caught by his head, or his hair, in the thick boughs of a tree (9); suspended there until Joab, contrary to the king's command, struck him through the body with darts—or rods (14); and afterwards put to death by Joab's young men (15). Instead of the monument which, in his vanity, he had reared (18); a heap of stones under which he was buried (17) became his monument of shame. He received the wages of his sin.

(3) David's lament (19—33).—David is the father more than the king (29). Should not he rejoice? Is not his own life delivered? Is not the kingdom restored? Has not the greatest enemy of the kingdom fallen? Yet behold his grief (33)! It was not only a father's grief over the death of a son, but there was an added bitterness: first, in the thought of the sin in which his son had died; and, second, in the thought that his own sin had deserved this chastisement. Let us thank God that, even though He pardons, He makes sin so bitter to our taste.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29.—2 Samuel XIX.

David's excessive sorrow seemed likely to cover his victorious army with the shame of defeat (1, 2). Joab's sharp reproof (5—7) was needed. It was well for David, at such a time, that he had as captain a man so hard and unsympathetic, and withal so faithful. It would have been a cruel thing for David to allow his grief to rob the kingdom of the fruits of the victory his people had won for him.

Roused from the stupor into which his grief had thrown him, David begins to act with his usual tact and energy. Among the tribes of Israel the desire for his return begins (9, 10); but David moves the priests to secure the action of Judah (11, 12). This tribe had powerfully supported Absalom (xv. 10); but are appealed to for support as David's kinsmen (12). And by promising to make Amasa captain, he seeks to secure the allegiance of the army he had commanded for Absalom. Shimei, who had cursed David when the rebellion began, acts a different part now (16—23). There is no reason to believe that his repentance is sincere; yet to appear repentant is his only hope, and proves successful. His words (19, 20), however deceitfully used by him, may be appropriately adopted by every repentant sinner. The best fitness for coming to Christ is the knowledge of sin: the best time is "first of all this day."

Mephibosheth had been maligned by Ziba (26, 27). But the true devotion and gratitude of Mephibosheth appear when he welcomes David back to his kingdom. His appearance (24) shows the grief he had suffered because of David's departure from Jerusalem; and his words (30) indicate his joy in the king's return. His affection was for David's person, not for his property.

Barzillai, who has befriended the king in his distress (31, 32), has now the offer of reward, which seems to him too great for such service as he has rendered (36). Even more wonderful are the rewards promised by the Son of David to those who suffer with Him (Rom. viii. 17).

But amid the joy of his return, David is not allowed to forget that a life-long chastisement had been threatened. Contention begins between Israel and Judah (41—43). It is the first low rumble that tells of the coming storm.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30.—2 Samuel XX.

(1) Sheba's rebellion (1, 2).—Like Shimei, Sheba belonged to the tribe of Benjamin. The dissatisfaction of Israel gave him his opportunity. No sooner is one rebellion quelled, and David restored to the kingdom, than another demands his attention. The word of Nathan, that the sword should never depart from his house, is being literally fulfilled. A backslider, even when restored, is made to taste the bitter fruit of his wandering from God.

(2) The death of Amasa (4—13).—The appointment of Amasa as captain, though it served its purpose at the time, was evidently a mistake. He was an untried man; and his delay in the first commission David gave him (5, 6) threatened to prove disastrous to David, and did prove disastrous to himself. David gave his commands to Abishai, as though Joab was set aside (6). The cruel, unscrupulous character of Joab again appears in his murder of Amasa (10), in order that he might regain his position as commander.

(3) The pursuit and death of Sheba (13—22).—Abel-beth-Maachah was situated in the extreme north of Palestine, above Lake Merom. Joab made preparations for besieging the city (15). The intervention of "a wise woman" prevented the siege (16—19); and by securing for Joab the head of Sheba (22), saved the city from destruction. Bishop Hall says: "Spiritually, the case is ours; every man's breast is as a city enclosed; every sin is a traitor that lurks within those walls. God calls to us for our sin. If we love the head of our traitor above the life of our soul, we shall justly perish in the vengeance. We cannot be more willing to part with our sin than our merciful God is to withdraw his judgments."

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31.—2 Samuel XXI.

(1) The famine (1—9).—The time when this famine took place cannot be fixed with certainty. "In all probability it was before Absalom's rebellion, in the account of which we may trace one, if not two allusions, to the execution of Saul's sons" (xvi. 7, 8, xix. 28).—Cambridge Bible. For three years (1) the famine continued, before "David inquired of the Lord." This delay indicates that David was not in the healthiest condition of soul, and needed some such chastisement to bring him to his right position before God. If God is contending with you, do not prolong your grief by delaying to inquire the cause (Job x. 2). The reason for the famine (1, 2) is a strange one. The Gibeonites had obtained the oath from Joshua by fraud (Josh. ix.), yet God regarded it as binding. Saul's violation of this oath is nowhere referred to except here. The public sins of the king involve the whole nation, and all suffer until expiation is made. The demand of the Gibeonites (3—9) was not for silver and gold, but for the death of Saul's sons. The nation lay under the guilt of perjury for their treatment of this people; they were therefore allowed to fix the conditions by which that guilt was to be removed. The method would certainly impress upon the Israelites the serious nature of their sin.

(2) God's favour restored (10—14).—Among the seven sons of Saul thus put to death, were five whom "Michal brought up for Adriel" (8). Merab, not Michal, had been wife to Adriel (1 Sam. xviii. 19). The other two were sons of Rizpah (8); who, under the shelter of a rough sackcloth tent, continued to guard the seven bodies from birds and beasts, until water was "poured upon them from heaven" (10, R.V.). She kept her watch until the falling rain gave assurance that the famine was ended. Then the seven bodies, with the bones of Saul and Jonathan were buried in the sepulchre of Kish (12—14).

The wars with the Philistines (15—22) do not seem to be placed in chronological order. The incident of ver. 18—22 is repeated in 1 Chron. xx. 4—8, as immediately following the capture of Rabbah.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1.—2 Samuel XXII.

This psalm of thanksgiving is repeated with very slight variation in Ps. xviii. The time when it was written (1) was probably, as the Cambridge Bible suggests, "the period of peace described in vii. 1." In Heb. ii. 13, and Rom. xv. 9, the Apostle applies ver. 3 and 50 to the Lord Jesus.

The psalm may be thus divided:—(1) David's resolution to bless God (2—4).—Note the many metaphors by which God is described; and how personally David appropriates Him in each one. Learn to do so; and to connect a life of praise with a life of deliverance, "So shall I be saved."

(2) The narration of God's delivering grace (5—20).—There could hardly be deeper sorrow (5, 6). Death not only threatened him, but compassed him about. Yet he could cry (7). The way upward was not closed; nor did he lose his confidence in God. The deliverance is grandly described. All nature is moved as Jehovah hastes to the help of his servant (8—16). It would be worth while to taste the bitterness of David's anguish, in order to see God coming in such majesty in answer to prayer. Let our confidence be strengthened as we behold how many servants God can command.

(3) David's protestation of innocence (21—29).—It was not a boast of self-righteousness before God; but of integrity in his dealings with those who persecuted him. Evidently the psalm was written before his great fall. Those who suffer wrongfully may commit their cause to Him that judgeth righteously (1 Pet. ii. 19—23).

(4) His further reasons for praise (30—46).—God is extolled for his faithfulness (30, 31); for his exaltation of David (32—37); for the destruction of his enemies (38—43); and for the extension and establishing of his kingdom.

(5) A further resolve to praise (47—51).—The whole of the deliverance described before is recalled, and recognised as from God alone. And with the eye of a prophet he foresees "mercy to his seed for evermore" (51). A greater than David is here; and mercy is celebrated in which we too have a portion.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2.—2 Samuel XXIII.

(1) David's last words (1—7).—These words appropriately follow the psalm of the previous chapter. Their theme is suggested by the last verse of that thanksgiving song. A righteous ruler is described (3, 4) as an unspeakable blessing to a people. "David had been familiar with the yearly transformation of the dry and dusty downs of Bethlehem into a lovely garden of brilliant flowers; an apt emblem of the gracious influences of the perfect rule of an ideal king upon a hard and desert world."—Cambridge Bible. The meaning of ver. 5 is thus described: "Is not my house in such a relation to God, because He has made an eternal covenant with me, that I may look for the righteous ruler to arise out of it, bringing with Him all these attendant blessings?"—Cambridge Bible. With this as the meaning of his "last words," note how they resemble Psalm lxxii., in which "the prayers of David are ended."

(2) David's mighty men (8—39).—Note how the great victories achieved by Eleazar and Shammah are both attributed to the Lord (10, 12). Even the mighty men are powerless without Him. The first three of the thirty showed their devotion to David by fighting their way through the Philistine host, to secure water from the well of Bethlehem. And David proved himself worthy of such devotion, in pouring out as an offering to the Lord that which had been won at such peril (13—16). Abishai and Benaiah seem to have been among these three (18—21); the name of the third is unknown.

HELP WANTED FOR THE ANNUAL SALE

ON BEHALF OF

"Dr. Barnardo's Homes for Destitute Children,"

Now Sheltering, Educating, and Training over 3,000 Poor Waifs and Strays.

Will all who are preparing gifts for the ANNUAL SALE on behalf of these Homes

KINDLY SEND THEM IN AT ONCE?

Will those whose busy fingers are at work for the Sale remember that crochet shawls, really fine underclothing for ladies and children, shirts for boys and men, suits for little boys, aprons and pinafores for girls, and sets of baby clothing, are particularly valuable additions, being much asked for and readily sold? Well-made woollen shawls are frequently asked for, and, indeed, women's garments of all kinds would be especially useful. Of course, besides these, jewellery, old coins, old china, curios, musical instruments, and fancy work, trinkets, articles of vertu, books, drawings, bric-a-brac, and other examples of the thousand-and-one tasteful ornaments which are sought for by purchasers, will be very gratefully received and acknowledged. Valuable help would be afforded if donors of gifts of old china, foreign goods, articles of vertu, &c., would kindly mark on them their value, or indicate the price which is likely to be obtained.

The SALE will this year be of the SAME CHARACTER as for the LAST FEW YEARS; that is to say, instead of holding a Public Bazaar at the West End of London during the month of December, as formerly, all the goods received will be made up into

£5 and £10 Boxes. These Boxes will each contain a very excellent selection, of at least the value of £6 and £12 respectively, and will be sent to any part of the country on receipt of P.O. Order or Cheque made payable to Mr. J. T. Page.

Ladies willing to order these Boxes confer a great benefit on the "Homes"; for by this easy method all the articles received may be disposed of without any loss in the way of such expenses as are usually incurred by holding a Bazaar at the West End.

Many kind-hearted sympathisers have repeatedly expressed warm approval of this plan, and have promised to purchase Boxes, with the contents of which they propose to hold in their own houses, to which their personal friends can be invited during the winter season.

SPECIAL LOCAL BAZAARS

If there be many articles left over unsold, they can be disposed of in the last week of January (D.V.), in the Large Gymnasium of the Boys' Home in Stepney, E.

Dr. Barnardo earnestly invites all who love poor children to co-operate with him in this effective plan to increase the funds of the "Homes," by which, too, all the wearying, disappointing, and expensive drawbacks of a public Bazaar may be avoided.

The Boxes, carefully lined and packed ready for transmission, can be despatched on receipt of remittance to any railway station in the Kingdom. Applications (Prepaid), with full instructions as to conveyance, &c., should be sent in as soon as possible, addressed to

THE SECRETARY,
18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

To all who have already in any degree helped by Contributions of Useful or Fancy Articles, Dr. Barnardo desires to offer the expression of his very grateful acknowledgments and hearty thanks.

18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

JOHN ODLING,

Appeals.

Hope Mission (Banner-street, E.C.).—The workers appeal for help. There are three hundred members on the list of mothers' meetings, and not a penny in the Sick Relief Fund. New or old clothing would be most acceptable. A sale of work will be held in the mission-hall on October 30, the proceeds to go to the Sick Relief Fund. Donations gratefully received by Mrs. Harkness, 1, St. Mary's-road, Canonbury, N.

Home for Female Orphans (35 and 37, Ossington-street, Bayswater).—This institution occupies two houses in Ossington-street, and is capable of accommodating thirty orphans, but lately, from lack of funds, the number has been reduced to fifteen. The institution draws its inmates from all parts of England, and the Committee appeal to the public for the help absolutely necessary for carrying on the work. Mr. Henry R. Foster is hon. secretary.

Hackney Juvenile Mission.—The good work carried on by this agency is somewhat retarded by the weight of debt for the reduction of which a special effort is now being made. The attendance at the Sunday evening services averages nearly four hundred; there is also a flourishing Band of Hope. In the winter the needy are cared for, and in the summer kindness extended to the young takes a practical form. The centre of the work is Bruce Hall, Lyme-grove, Hackney. Assistance either in money or in parcels of clothes will be gladly received by the chairman, Mr. F. E. Tozer, 220, Evering-road, Upper Clapton, N.E.

P ckham Park Mission.—For nearly twelve years unsectarian but thoroughly evangelical mission work has been carried on in this neighbourhood. The room at present used for services, 104, Lower Park-road, S.E., was formerly a shop. The Mission Committee has secured a freehold site for more suitable and commodious premises, and proposes an outlay of about £1500. The locality is very thickly populated by the poorer classes, a large number of whom do not attend any place of worship. The evangelist, Mr. Lewis Wood, has given himself to the work for many years. Help will be thankfully received by the treasurer, Mr. G. J. Allen, Beech House, Ossory-road, S.E.

Notices.

An Anxious Friend.—We see no good end to be gained by putting incoherent delusions into print. The victim of them needs to be convinced of his sinfulness and helplessness. He would then thankfully accept the Saviour for himself. A wise counsellor is perhaps more needed than printed arguments.

Communications Received with Thanks.—T.R.H. D.O. R.B. G.H. T.W.B. T.N. J.W.G. T.R.W. J.G.M. K.M. J.D. L.S. W.H.P. F.F. S.L.B. E.W. R.C. J.E. B.L.P. J.P.F. R.B. B.M.A. F.T.H. S.E.W. C.S.H. H.S. W.B.D. J.G.G. W.E. M.B.G. L.E.R. F.B.B. D.L. J.P. C.W. M.S. J.B.F. G.K. K.C. W.H. S.M. E.S.W. A.W. G.T.K. J.B. A.D.H. J.C.A. R.A. B.C. W.T. H.C.S. J.K.P. S.E.W. H.E.C. C.H. H.M.B. T.W. A.M.H. E.L.S. S.J.W. A.B. G.C. W.T. N.C.C.S. H.B.

Applicants for Tracts.—W. T. Farley, 587, Commercial-road, Stepney, E.; J. R. Martin, 19, Marden-road, Bermondsey, S.E.; Miss Richards, 85, Peddie-street, Dundee; Mrs. Powell, 5, Winchester-place, Queen Anne-road, Maidstone; Miss Sutton, Bocking Church-street, Braintree, Essex; Mrs. Vynne, Swaffham, Norfolk; G. F. Pykett, 78, Eglington-road, Plumstead, Kent; E. J. Davis, 2, Salcott-ro d, Wandsworth-common, S.W.; A. E. Honnor, Messrs. Kingham & Sons, Pinner, Middlesex; J. Champness, 33, Butcher-row, Ratcliff, E.; J. T. Stevenson, 448, Edgware-road, W.; H. Jones, 72, Titchfield-street, Liverpool; W. Padmore, 53, Clifton-street, Liverpool; W. Thurkettle, Stowmarket, Suffolk; J. Reid, 3, West Bell-street, Dundee; Miss Barrett, 54, Clapton-common, N.; H. Lambert, 31, Jamaica-street, Commercial-road, E.; Miss Barnard, Brandon House, Brandon-terrace, Ilford; Rev. P. A. Hudgell, Ashgrove, Wrexham.

HAWTHORN DWELLINGS,

DEVONS ROAD, BOW COMMON.

The above block of dwellings, long notorious for the misery, filth, and vice to be found within them, will be opened as

THE CHRISTIAN BUILDINGS,

On Thursday, November 7,

BY

T. A. DENNY, Esq., at 3.30 p.m.

MR. ARCHIBALD G. BROWN will be happy to meet friends from 2.30 to show them over the Buildings, and give any information required.

A PUBLIC TEA will be provided in the School Room of the East London Tabernacle, Burdett Road, at 5.30.

A PUBLIC MEETING

WILL BE HELD IN

THE TABERNACLE, at 7 p.m.

Chair to be taken by T. A. DENNY, Esq.

The following Ministers and Friends will take part during the day: Revs. Donald Fraser, D.D., James Stephens (Highgate Road), J. T. Knaggs (Stratford), W. Michael Smith (Bow), Mr. F. N. Charrington (Great Assembly Hall), and Mr. R. C. Morgan.

The above Buildings have been purchased by MR. DENNY and given to MR. ARCHIBALD BROWN, who has had them put in trust. Henceforth they will be inhabited by Christian Widows and Aged Couples at a nominal rental, just sufficient to clear ground rent and taxes.

Application for Tickets to be made to ARCHIBALD G. BROWN,

22, Bow Road, E.

[976]

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT
TO MONDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1889.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank;" this will effectually prevent loss of same.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O. Orders, not by stamps.

	£	s.	d.
Mr. F. S. Arnot's Mission in Africa—Mrs. P. ...	5	0	0
China Inland Mission—G.T.G.	0	2	6
Miss Whately's Schools, Cairo—G.T.G.	0	2	6
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—G.T.G.	0	2	6
Church Missionary Society—J.N.	25	0	0
Wanderers' Home, London Jews' Society—P.W...	25	0	0
Mather Royal Provident Fund for Sea Fishermen—M., Colchester, £1; Mrs. S.G. £3 ...	4	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—Mrs. S.G. £1; Mrs. C. £2 2s; A. £1	4	2	0
Jewish Mothers (Mr. F. N. Charrington)—Mrs. S.G. 10s; J.C.M. 5s	0	15	0
Mrs. Wilke's Rescue Work, Poplar—Bournemouth	0	10	0
Army Scripture Readers' Society—E.M.	1	5	0
Rev. D. M. Cameron's Church, Battersea—M.S...	2	2	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—E.M. 5s; A.C.H. 5s; "The Hope Mothers," S. Wimbledon, 12s 6d; O'C. £3; G.T.G. 2s 6d	4	5	0
Salvation Army—A.E.H. £2; E.R.M. 5s; Argentine Republic—W.B. £5 5s; Rescue Work—A. £1	8	10	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—Long-standing Debt, 5s; O'C. £3; T.B.W. 5s; Misses K. £1... ...	4	10	0
Miss Sharman's Orphans' Homes—A.E.H. £2; G.T.G. 2s 6d	2	2	6
Mrs. Birt's Sheltering Home—A.E.H.	2	0	0
Mildmay Missions—A.E.H.	2	0	0
Rev. Ossian Davies New Chapel, Bournemouth—A Friend, £10 10s; G.E. £5 5s	15	15	0
Camberwell Mission & Ragged Schools—M.S. ...	2	0	0
Proposed New Tabernacle, Peckham Rye—M.S...	2	0	0
Whitecross-street Medical Mission, &c. (Mrs. C. Griffith)—M.S....	1	1	0
Folkestone-road Hall, Walthamstow—M.S... ...	1	0	0
Hunger in East London (Dock Lbrs., &c.)—O'C.	2	0	0
Friendless & Fallen—O'C.	2	0	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—E.W. £1; Misses K. £1; P.W. £15	17	0	0
London City Mission—C.A.M...	1	10	0
Moravian Missions (London Associn.)—G.T.G....	0	2	6
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—G.T.G. 2s 6d; J.N. £15	15	2	6
Home of Industry—G.T.G.	0	2	6
Rescue Society—Misses K.	3	0	0
St. Giles' Christian Mission—Misses K.	1	0	0
Dock Labrs. Msn.—Misses K. £1; Luke iii. 14, £5	6	0	0
Destitute Children's Mission—Misses K.	1	0	0
Ladies' Samaritan Society (Paralysed & Epileptic)—J.C.M.	0	5	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—P.W.	10	0	0
George-yard Mission—J.N.	10	0	0
Religious Tract Society—P.W...	25	0	0
Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth—W.C....	1	0	0
	£208	7	6

[Advertisements.]

Mrs. Parsons' Orphan Home—Sunderland, 10s.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals for Destitute Poor)—Mrs. B. 10s; Miss E.C. 5s.

The Spanish work carried on for so many years, under much difficulty, at Jurançon and in Pau is still continued by the evangelist Señor de la Crux and his wife, under the direction of Mr. Gulick, Avenida de la Libertad 40, St. Sebastian, Spain, to whom all letters concerning it and all subscriptions should be addressed.

Y.W.C.A., Ireland.—Dear Sir,—May I correct a numerical error in the account recently given of the Young Women's Christian Association Conference held in Dublin? It is stated that "there are 70 branches of the Association in Ireland," whereas there are 270. Also it is misleading to say that "there are two branches in Dublin—one at 75, Harcourt-street, and one at 8, Rutland-square." These are boarding-houses and institutes for shop assistants. There are besides 20 branches in the city of Dublin.

S. E. Wallace, Hon. Sec., Y.W.C.A., Dublin.

To Travellers in Italy.—Dear Sir,—Having a mission hall at Ventimiglia, on the French frontier, frequenting the railway station for distribution of tracts, &c., Mr. E. C. Newbery and myself would be pleased to assist any friends coming to Italy by the Marseilles route with the passing of their baggage at the Italian Custom House. There is a good deal of trouble experienced at the frontier by strangers not speaking Italian, which we would, as an act of courtesy, be happy to obviate for them; and any such informing us of the day and hour of their arrival at Ventimiglia would find one of us at the station to render them any good offices in our power. Address Messrs. Newbery and Colquhoun, evangelists, Bordighera, Italy.—Yours faithfully,

A. S. D. Colquhoun.

"This is the way we wash our hands, wash our hands, wash our hands.

A MOST ATTRACTIVE AND ACCEPTABLE GIFT-BOOK FOR THE SEASON.

The Christian Portrait Gallery.

CONSISTING of over One Hundred well-executed Portraits of well-known and highly-esteemed Christian Men and Women of the present day. With One Hundred carefully written and Authentic Biographic Sketches of the same.

Over Four Hundred Pages. Demy Quarto, Attractively Bound, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 10s. 6d.

A LIST OF THE PORTRAITS AND BIOGRAPHIC SKETCHES.

ANTONY ASHLEY-COOPER, K.G., Seventh Earl of Shaftesbury.

Rev. W. Lindsay Alexander, LL.D., Edinburgh.
Rev. W. Arthur, M.A., Ex-President Wesleyan Conference.
Alexander Balfour, Merchant and Philanthropist.
James Barlow, Manufacturer.
Sir Arthur Blackwood, K.C.B., Secretary to Post Office
Rev. Horatius Bonar, D.D., Edinburgh.
Rev. Andrew Bonar, D.D., Glasgow.
Rev. George Bowen, Editor of "Bombay Guardian."
George Brealey, Blackdown Hills Mission.
Right Hon. John Bright, M.P.
Right Hon. Earl Cairns, Lord Chancellor 1868 & '74-80.
Rev. Principal Cairns, Edinburgh.
Rev. James Calvert, Missionary to Fiji.
Earl of Cavan, The
Rev. James Chalmers, Missionary to New Guinea.
Rev. J. P. Chown, Bloomsbury Chapel, London.
Rev. Canon Christopher, Oxford.
Miss Mary Ann Cole, Mount Hermon Orphan Homes.
Rev. James Culross, M.A., D.D., Bristol.
Mrs. Daniell, Soldiers' Home, Aldershot.
Sir J. William Dawson, LL.D., F.R.S., F.G.S., Montreal.
Rev. Nunda Lal Doss, Bhowanipore College, Calcutta.
Rev. Alexander Duff, D.D., Missionary to India.
George Fuller, Sermon Lane Mission, Islington.
Rev. Chas. Garrett, Ex-President Wesleyan Conference.
Rev. A. J. Gordon, D.D., Boston, U.S.A.
Philip H. Gosse, F.R.S., Naturalist and Author.
John B. Gough, Temperance Orator.
Rev. E. Payson Hammond, M.A., Childrens' Evangelist.
Bishop Hannington, of Eastern Equatorial Africa.
Rev. Canon Harford-Battersby, Keswick.
Rev. William Haslam, M.A., Author of "From Death to Life," &c.
George Hatton, Founder of St. Giles's Christian Mission
Frances Ridley Havergal, Poet and Author.
Rev. Canon Hoare, Tunbridge Wells.
Professor A. A. Hodge, D.D., LL.D., Princeton College, New Jersey, U.S.A.
George Holland, George Yard Ragged Schools.
Hon. Thomas Holt, Philanthropist, Sydney, N.S.W.
Rev. Ebenezer E. Jenkins, M.A., Hon. Secretary Wesleyan Missionary Society.
Rev. Griffith John, D.D., Hankow, China.
Mrs. Griffith John, Hankow, China.
Dr. Robert Reid Kalley, Madeira and Brazil.
Hon. Ion Keith-Falconer, Free Church Mission, Aden.
Admiral Sir William King-Hall, K.C.B.
Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open Air Mission.
Rev. Abraham Lamb, Leicester and Melton Mowbray.
Rev. Peter Leys, Strathaven.
Rev. Samuel Macfarlane, LL.D., F.R.G.S., Lifu and New Guinea.
Rev. John Mackenzie, South Africa.
Dr. John Kenneth Mackenzie, Hankow and Tien-tsin.
Rev. Alexander Maclaren, D.D., Manchester.
Rev. D. H. MacVicar, D.D., LL.D., Montreal.
Rev. R. W. McAll, D.D., Paris.
Rev. James McCosh, D.D., LL.D., Princeton College.
Mr. and Mrs. James McGranahan.
Rev. J. McNeill, Regent Square Presbyterian Church.
Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.
Rev. Robert Milligan, Dundee.
Rev. Dr. & Mrs. Mary Moffat, Kuruman, South Africa.
Rev. J. Murray Mitchell, LL.D., Missionary to India.
D. L. Moody.
Mrs. Betsey Moody, Mother of Mr. D. L. Moody.
Samuel Morley, Christian Philanthropist.
Rev. Handley C. G. Moule, Ridley Hall, Cambridge.
Lord Mount-Temple.
George Müller, Founder of the Bristol Orphan Houses.
John Murdoch, LL.D., India.
William Noble, Hoxton Hall.
James Pascoe, Mexican Evangelical Mission.
Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, Preacher and Author.
Rev. William Pennefather, Founder of the Mildmay Conferences.
Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, Philadelphia, U.S.A.
Joshua Poole, Evangelist.
Rev. George E. Post, M.D., Syrian Protestant Mission.
Rev. W. Morley Punshon, LL.D., Ex-President Wesleyan Conference.
William Quarrier, Orphan Homes, Glasgow.
Joseph Rabinowitz, Christian-Jewish Rabbi.
John Grubb Richardson, Bessbrook, Ireland.
Rt. Rev. J. C. Ryle, D.D., Bishop of Liverpool.
Ira D. Sankey.
Rev. Adolph Saphir, D.D., Author and Preacher.
Robert Simpson, Merchant-Minister, Glasgow.
Rev. J. Denham Smith, Formerly of Dublin.
Rev. A. N. Somerville, D.D., Glasgow.
Pastor C. H. and Mrs. Spurgeon.
Rev. W. Fleming Stevenson, D.D., Dublin.
Rev. R. W. Stewart, D.D., Leghorn.
George Stott, Missionary to China.
The Queen of Sweden and Norway.
Bishop William Taylor, Self-Supporting Missions, India and Africa.
Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, China Inland Mission.
Rev. Francis Tucker, Camden Road Chapel.
Henry Varley, Evangelist and Lecturer.
Richard Weaver, Evangelist.
William Wheatley, Discharged Prisoners' Friend.
Miss Frances E. Willard, President of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union.
Rev. Daniel Wilson, M.A., Islington.
Rev. J. A. Wylie, LL.D., Edinburgh.
Rev. Egerton R. Young, Missionary to North American Indians.

THIS Volume contains OVER ONE HUNDRED PORTRAITS and Biographic Sketches of noteworthy Christian men and women. In order to present a hundred personal histories in one book, each narrative is necessarily compressed and brief; but it is hoped and believed that no salient feature of any Life has been overlooked.

It will be here seen how persons of various walks in life and of widely-differing conditions have been called to the service of the same Master, and the realisation of the same hope. Here are Christian men from the House of Peers: others from the ranks of shipowners, merchants, and manufacturers: and yet others from hnmbler walks of life. Of all these it may be truly said that, having themselves been made the recipients of Divine Grace, they became the channels of that grace to others. The subjects of these Portraits and Biographies have been selected from various branches of the Christian Church.

Over a score of those whose features and histories are here depicted have laboured, or are labouring, as Missionaries in the foreign field—in India; in China; in South Africa; in New Guinea; in Fiji; in Arabia; in Mexico; in Brazil; in Italy; and in France. Place has been found for a few noble Christian women—the devoted wives of Missionaries; and others who are highly esteemed for their work's sake.

The perusal and contemplation of these personal records will, it is hoped, stimulate and encourage the lives of others. If the Book should prove the means of helping in the path of faithful service it will have done worthy work.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller in Great Britain or the Colonies.

ANTI-INFIDEL TRACT ENTERPRISE.

ESTABLISHED 1880.

OBJECT.—The gratuitous distribution of Anti-Infidel Literature among the masses at Home and Abroad.

PATRONS.—Rev. A. R. FAUSSET, M.A., D.D., Canon and Prebendary of York, Rector of St. Cuthbert's, Heworth, York; Rev. T. FRANCIS FERGIE, B.D., Honorary Canon of Liverpool, Vicar of Ince; Rev. GEORGE LITTING, M.A., LL.B., Head Master, Grammar School, Stevenage; R. CORY, Esq., J.P., Cardiff; J. GARNETT, Esq., J.P., Bromley Cross.

URGENT APPEAL. £200 NEEDED.

TO CLOSE THE YEAR FREE OF DEBT.

We have given to missionaries at home and abroad, and to working men and others employed in ironworks, collieries, dockyards, and on the railway, over TWELVE HUNDRED FREE grants of our ANTI-INFIDEL LITERATURE, varying from Five Shillings to £15 in value, but for want of means we are quite unable to continue these distributions, notwithstanding the fact that we are receiving daily applications for free grants. Therefore, unless the necessary aid is forthcoming, the Free Grants will have to be ENTIRELY SUSPENDED.

All subscribers of five shillings and upwards receive a half-price grant of assorted anti-infidel publications, in return for their subscriptions, or, if preferred, packets will be forwarded to any person in the United Kingdom, on receipt of order and remittance. A good plan is to have these tracts distributed where INFIDEL MEETINGS are being held. Donors who can see their way to a promise of an annual subscription will be aiding a work more necessary in this age than any that has preceded it, and those who can only afford a single donation may yet help in proportion to their means.

Any contributions in aid of the ANTI-INFIDEL TRACT ENTERPRISE, will be most gratefully received and acknowledged by the Rev. T. A. Clarke, Treasurer, The Vicarage, Rumworth, Bolton, or by W. R. BRADLAUGH, 70, King's Cross-road, London, W.C.

"FLIGHTS OF SWALLOWS" (hand-painted), for wall decorations, 2s. (eight birds in flight). Smaller, 1s. Herons, 2s. (four birds in flight). Sold in aid of the

FUND FOR ASSISTING LADIES IN REDUCED CIRCUMSTANCES.

Donations, orders for work, and help of any kind, earnestly solicited. Reports sent upon application.—Miss SMALLWOOD, The Lees, Great Malvern.

"TELL JESUS:"

Recollections of Emily Gosse.

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Cloth neat, 1s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, gilt edges, 2s.

"In this delightful narrative of Christian experience we have an example of working for Jesus, and being happy; of suffering bodily affliction, and being happy; and of dying, and being happy."—Wesleyan Times.

Cheap Edition: Tinted Covers, 6d.

Special Cheap Edition, for Free Distribution: Tinted covers, One Penny; 7s. per 100 net.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

WORKS BY MAJOR WHITTLE.

A BOOK FOR YOUNG CONVERTS.

Tinted covers, 1s.;
Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

LIFE, WARFARE, AND VICTORY.

Being Notes of Bible Readings Specially Written for Young Converts.

By Major D. W. WHITTLE,

Author of "Memoir of P. P. Bliss," "Soul-Winning," &c.

"Is a nicely got-up volume, of good, Scriptural, and plain teaching as to spiritual life, its impartation, its enemies, and its friends, by Mr. Whittle, an American evangelist, well known in this country. The book was designed originally for those led to Christ by the Author's ministry; and it is refreshing, stimulating, and replete with anecdote."—Irish Baptist Magazine.

". . . It is a thoroughly characteristic little book by a man who is evidently on fire with a holy enthusiasm; and it may be helpful to many."—Christian Leader.

Cloth limp, 1s. 6d.;
Cloth extra, bevelled boards, 2s. 6d.;
SPECIAL CHEAP EDITION: Tinted Covers, 6d.

P. P. BLISS: HIS LIFE & LIFE-WORK.

By Major WHITTLE & Rev. W. GUEST.

Containing an Introduction by D. L. Moody; and Memorial Notice by Ira D. Sankey. With Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss and their two young children.

"Cannot be too highly prized or too widely circulated; in fact, for the good it is calculated to do, it ought to be in the hands of every English reader."—Midland Gazette.

ADAPTED FOR WIDE CIRCULATION.

Price ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

SOUL-WINNING: Qualifications for it.

An Address by Major D. W. WHITTLE.

"It seems to me that there is no more important topic that can be brought before us to-day than the Winning of Souls—its obligations, its hindrances, its joy, and the qualifications for it."—Page 5.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

West London Mission.

THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY

WILL BE CELEBRATED ON FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25.

REV. MARK GUY PEARSE

WILL PREACH IN

PRINCES HALL, PICCADILLY, at Noon.

LUNCHEON IN CLEVELAND HALL,

At Half-past One. Tickets Half-a-Crown each.

FREDERICK HOWARD, ESQ. (of Bedford),

WILL PRESIDE AT THE

AFTERNOON MEETING,

IN

CLEVELAND HALL, CLEVELAND ST., W.,

AT THREE O'CLOCK.

Short Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Rigg, the Sisters and other Members of the Mission; and some of the converts will give their testimony.

Tea at Five o'clock. Tickets 9d. each.

THE RIGHT HON. THE LORD MAYOR

WILL PRESIDE AT THE

ANNUAL MEETING, IN ST. JAMES'S HALL,

AT SEVEN O'CLOCK.

Rev. Dr. Jenkins, Rev. J. E. Clapham, Rev. Walford Green, Rev. W. D. Walters, Rev. Peter Thompson, Rev. J. H. Hopkins, Rev. H. Price Hughes, Rev. Mark Guy Pearse. Rev. Dr. Lunn, Mr. Morgan Harvey, Mr. R. W. Perks, Mr. Josiah Nix, and others will take part in the Meeting.

THE ORCHESTRAL AND MILITARY BANDS of the Mission, under the direction of Mr. HEATH MILLS, will play from 6.30 to 7, and will lead the singing during the Meeting.

Collections will be taken on behalf of the Anniversary Fund. Tickets for the Luncheon and Tea, and all information, can be obtained of Mr. Jackson, at Lincoln House, 60, Greek-street, Soho.

Suitable as a Gift Book.

THE HERALD of MERCY VOLUME

For 1889.

In attractively Bound Covers. Price 1s.

"A treasure house of Gospel truth, in picture and story. Good for old and young."—Footsteps of Truth.

London: Morgan & Scott, 12, Paternoster Buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

IT COSTS NOTHING

But a postcard to send for a sample of the lovely Broken Leaf Tea at 1/5½ per lb. (In the cup like 3/- Tea.) WILLIAMSON & SON, Tea Blenders to the Trade, Grantham.

"A.1."

EVERY WEDNESDAY.

Of all Booksellers and Newsagents.

16 Large pages of attractive reading by leading writers.

Fully Illustrated. ONE PENNY.

New Serial Story, "NOLENS VOLENS; or, The Adventures of Don Lavington," by GEORGE MANVILLE FENN, will commence November 2.

"'A.1.' is worthy of the splendid reputation it has created for itself."—Liverpool Daily Post.

Specimen Number, post free, Three Half-pence.

"A.1."

NOW READY. PRICE 6d.

Monthly Part, NOVEMBER, contains—

WHAT SHALL I BE?

By Thain Davidson, D.D.

Trapped by Fire: A Vesuvian Adventure. By Osbert Howarth.
Round about Osborne. By E. E. Cuthell.
Transparent Canvas Painting. By Fred Miller.
The Printing and Publishing Industries of Edinburgh
Textiles, Embroideries, and Lace at South Kensington. By Frank Rede Fowke.
ORCHIDS. By W. Watson.
The White Lady of Hazlewood. Serial Story. By Emily S. Holt.
Roger's Revenge. Serial Story by Evelyn E. Green.
For Her Dear Sake. Serial Story. By Mrs. John Brett.
Frontispiece: "Trapped by Fire"; and Forty-two other Illustrations.

London:
S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

THE FIRESIDE NEWS.

A NEWSPAPER FOR EVERY HOME

1d. | EVERY FRIDAY. | 1d.

Conducted by the Rev. C. BULLOCK, B.D., Editor of Home Words.

The Current Number (Oct. 25) contains the Opening Chapter of a New Story, Entitled

PRUDENCE PEARL'S WILL

A TALE OF MONEY'S WORTH,

By EDWARD GARRETT,

Author of "Occupations of a Retired Life."

A LIFELIKE PORTRAIT OF

The REV. H. C. G. MOULE,

With a Biographical Sketch.

HOW OTHER PEOPLE LIVE:

I.—THE GERMAN. By H. N. COOPER.

THE PULPIT OF TO-DAY:

Brief Reports of Current Sermons.

☞ EPITOME OF THE WEEK'S NEWS. ☜

TEMPERANCE TOPICS. WOMEN and THEIR WORK. OUR YOUNG MEN. ON THE OUTLOOK, &c., &c.

SPECIAL. A Copy of this week's issue will be sent FREE OF CHARGE to any reader of The Christian on receipt of name and address, and ½d. stamp for postage.

HOME WORDS OFFICE, 7, Paternoster Square, E.C.

THE

Systematic Bible-Teaching Mission,

67, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

ANY MINISTER, or SUPERINTENDENT of a SUNDAY SCHOOL, can obtain a Grant of Books (for starting the System) at HALF PRICE. Also, a Visit arranged for, on application to the Secretary, 67,

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.]

RATIONAL CORSETS.

Invaluable for growing girls, delicate persons, and ladies of all ages, relieving the hips from the weight of the skirts, and allowing the greatest freedom.

Young Ladies' 4s. 6d., White or Drab.
" " 6s. 6d., Scarlet.
Ladies' 6s. 6d., White or Drab.
" 9s. 6d., Black, Scarlet, or Sanitarie.
" 18s. 6d., Satin, Black, and Colours.

All makes in CORSETS (medium and best) and UNDERCLOTHING (wool, long-cloth, and silk) are supplied.

GENERAL SUPPLY AGENCY,
263, Oxford Street, Regent Circus, London, W.

REAL Witney Blankets

THE
WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY

Are now supplying, direct from the Mills, the well-known

WITNEY BLANKETS.

Prices Per Pair:

Ordinary Size, 7ft. 4in. by 5ft. 8in., 12/6, 16/11, 21/-
Large do. 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in., 15/9, 21/-, 26/6
Special Hygienic Merino, 8ft. 1in. by 6ft. 5in.. 30/-

These Blankets are strongly recommended for their beautiful Colour, Durability, and Warmth, combined with Lightness in Weight.

All Goods sent Carriage Paid on receipt of Cheque or Postal Orders.

Full Price List and Testimonials sent on Application.

ADDRESS—
WITNEY BLANKET COMPANY,
WITNEY, OXON.

SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS, &C.

MÖLLER'S COD LIVER OIL.

PERFECTED IN ONE OPERATION BY THE PROCESS INVENTED BY MÖLLER IN 1852.

INCOMPARABLE,
PALATABLE,
PERFECT,
PURE.

OR SENT FREE BY PARCEL POST
ONE BOTTLE 2/-
TWO BOTTLES 4/-
BY PETER MÖLLER,
43, SNOWHILL, LONDON, E.C.

REGIST'D
MÖLLER'S COD LIVER OIL
TRADE MK.

CARBUILD BOTTLES ONLY.

BE WARY OF RECENT IMITATIONS! SO EXTENSIVELY PUFFED NOW.

IS SIMPLY A pure OIL! IT CONTAINS NONE OF THE 50—60 PER CENT. OF WATER NECESSARILY IN EMULSIONS—

CHEAP COMMODITIES USUALLY CHARGED AT THE PRICE OF PURE OIL.

BE SURE YOU HAVE NEW OIL!

EVERY BOTTLE OF RECENT PRODUCTION HAS THE DATE PERFORATED ON BOTH LABELS.

PRICE ONE PENNY. 1s. per dozen, post free.

"The Christian" SHEET ALMANACK

1890. A LARGE BROADSIDE SHEET (Size 20 in. by 30 in.) 1890.

Printed in TWO COLOURS, with NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, depicting various Scenes in the Life of Jacob. Also containing a carefully selected Text for each Day of the Year; Postal Information; Phases of the Moon, &c.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

THE DEPARTURE FOR HARAN.
THE STONE AT BETHEL.
JACOB MEETING RACHEL.
RECONCILIATION OF JACOB AND ESAU.
DINAH LEAVING THE TENT.
THE COAT OF MANY COLOURS.
JOSEPH MEETING JACOB IN THE LAND OF GOSHEN.
JACOB BEFORE PHARAOH.
JACOB BLESSING JOSEPH'S SONS.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.;
And may be ordered of any Newsagent or Bookseller in the Kingdom.

CLARKE'S "PYRAMID" NURSERY LAMP FOOD WARMERS.

With New Registered Pannikin.

BY their peculiar construction—the glass chimney conducting and concentrating heat to the bottom of the water vessel—they give a larger amount of light and heat than can be obtained in any other lamp of the same class. Without smoke or smell.

Clarke's New Registered Pannikin.

By this invention any liquid food can be poured out or drunk without scum or grease passing through the spout, and prevents spilling when poured into a feeding bottle, so unavoidable with all other Pannikins. The Pannikins will fit all the old "Pyramid" Nursery Lamps, and can be purchased separately.

Clarke's "Pyramid" Night Lights and "Fairy Pyramid" Night Lights

Are the best in the world, and the only suitable ones for burning in the above, and for lighting passages, lobbies, &c. Sold everywhere.

Price of Lamps, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 5s., and 6s. each. If any difficulty in obtaining them, write to CLARKE'S "PYRAMID" AND "FAIRY" LIGHT COMPANY, LIMITED, Cricklewood, London, N.W., for nearest Agent's address.

DIRECTOIRE. BRIGHTON.

DIRECTOIRE SKIRT. Prevailing fashion, for economical wear, with Jersey or any Bodice. Special bargain for hard country wear, Navy "Dreadnought" Serge. Dark Melton, &c., 15s.; Black or Navy (fast dye) Serge, from 15s. 6d. Bodice length if required. Patterns; or, if urgent, send measures (waist, hips, and front length), with P. Order.

BRIGHTON SKIRT, of Serge, &c., from 12s. 6d.

C. H. GIRAUD ET CIE,
30, GREAT PORTLAND STREET, LONDON, W.
Cheapest French Dressmaking in England.

IMPROVE YOUR PSALMODY

By studying and acting upon

MINSHALL'S ORGANS AND CHOIRS. 1s. 6d.
EDWARD'S UNITED PRAISE. 3s. 6d.
CURWEN'S STUDIES IN WORSHIP MUSIC. 7s. 6d.
CURWEN'S STUDIES IN WORSHIP MUSIC. Second Series. 3s.

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 & 9, Warwick-lane, London, E.C.

SODEN MINERAL PASTILLES

SPECIALLY RECOMMENDED BY Sir Morell Mackenzie
WHOSE TESTIMONIAL IS WITH EACH BOX.

FOR
THROAT IRRITATION, COUGHS, COLDS, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, AND CATARRHAL AFFECTIONS.

5/- 10,000 CARPETS. 5/-

EXTRAORDINARY OFFER!
FIVE SHILLINGS EACH.

EACH. EACH.

THE BRITISH CARPET WEAVING COMPANY, will forward DIRECT FROM THEIR LOOMS to any address, on receipt of P.O. for 5s., or 62 Stamps, one of their GENUINE WOVEN REVERSIBLE TRIUMPH CARPETS, bordered and woven in colours, to suit dining-room, drawing-room, bedroom, &c., and LARGE ENOUGH TO COVER ANY ORDINARY SIZED ROOM, as an advertisement for the introduction of their goods.

Send for Sample, and if not satisfied, money will be returned in full.

GUARANTEED GENUINE BARGAINS.

These Carpets are made of a material almost equal to wool, and, being a speciality of our own, they can only be obtained DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS, thus saving the purchaser ANY MIDDLE PROFITS.

All Orders Dispatched Same Day as Received.

A RUG sent with Carpet for 1s. 6d. extra; or TWO CARPETS and TWO RUGS, 10s. 6d.

Thousands of Testimonials have been received, showing what the public think of these Carpets. This Extraordinary Offer may Not be Repeated.

200,000 SOLD WITHIN THE LAST 12 MONTHS.

The words UNION BANK should be written across all Postal Orders, and made payable to J. HARGREAVES at G.P.O.

Address:

THE BRITISH CARPET WEAVING CO., 31, Old St., Aldersgate, London, E.C.

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA

PURE SOLUBLE

BEST & GOES FARTHEST.

EASILY DIGESTED—MADE INSTANTLY.

"Once used, always used"—"Its purity is beyond question."—HEALTH.
"It is admirable"—"and so pure."—BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL

C. J. VAN HOUTEN & ZOON.—WEESP-HOLLAND.

GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

The Note Paper of the Day.
For Private and Professional use.

GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

See Watermark in Each Sheet.

GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

Can be obtained from all Stationers.

GENTLEMAN'S NOTE.

1s. per 5 Quire Packet.
Court or Heraldic Envelopes to match, 1s. per 100.

UNEQUALLED for INFANTS, CHILDREN, and INVALIDS.

SCOTT'S Midlothian OAT-FLOUR

BISCUITS & OAT CAKES.

EIGHT FIRST-CLASS EXHIBITION AWARDS.
Highly recommended by the Medical Profession.
SOLD BY ALL CHEMISTS AND GROCERS.
A. & R. SCOTT, LTD., GLASGOW, MANCHESTER & LONDON.
By Special Appointment to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Bouillon Fleet.

PURE BEEF AND NOTHING BUT BEEF.

For BEEF TEA. A delicious Cup can be made with the addition of Boiling Water only.
SOUPS Made in the shortest possible time without the aid of Butcher's Meat.
GRAVIES ENRICHED.
MADE DISHES GREATLY IMPROVED.

Ask for "A FEW PRACTICAL COOKERY RECIPES."

Bouillon Fleet.

SOLD EVERYWHERE IN BOTTLES.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.

PULVERMACHER'S WORLD-FAMED GALVANIC BELTS, for the cure of NERVOUS DISEASES, have received Testimonials from three Physicians to Her Majesty the Queen and the leading Physicians of Nine London Hospitals, including Forty Members of the Royal College of Physicians of London.

The distressing symptoms of NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, Loss of MUSCULAR POWER, RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, PARALYSIS, EPILEPSY, &c., are speedily removed by means of Pulvermacher's World-famed Galvanic Belts, which convey the electric current direct to the affected parts, gradually stimulating and strengthening all the nerves and muscles, and speedily arresting all symptoms of premature waste and decay.

Dr. C. HANDFIELD JONES, F.R.C.P., F.R.S., Physician to St. Mary's Hospital, says: "I am satisfied that Mr. PULVERMACHER is an honest and earnest labourer in the field of science, and I think he deserves to meet with every encouragement from the profession and scientific men."

Dr. H. A. ALLBUTT, M.R.C.P., 24, Park Square, Leeds, writes, October, 1888: "I always recommend with confidence Mr. PULVERMACHER'S BELTS. Ladies recovering from illness incidental to their sex will find these BELTS of vast assistance in restoring lost nerve power."

For Full Price List and Particulars, see New Pamphlet, "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY." Post free from

PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC DEPOT,
194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
(ESTABLISHED OVER 40 YEARS.)

Now Published in one
HANDSOME SHILLING VOLUME
Post Free.
"MR. GEO. THOS. CONGREVE on
CONSUMPTION
AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.
Showing that direful disease to be Curable in all its Stages; with observations on
ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS,"
ETC., TOGETHER WITH THE NEW APPENDIX
TO THE
WORK on CONSUMPTION,
CONTAINING
226 MOST INTERESTING AND AUTHENTIC CASES
That have appeared in the Weekly Journals and Monthly Magazines from 1881 to the present time, with
NOTES APPENDED TO MANY
SHOWING THE
PERMANENCE of CURE.

N.B.—The work "ON CONSUMPTION," by itself (in paper covers), may be had for SIXPENCE (post free) from the Author, Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E., or from the Publisher, Elliot Stock, 62, Paternoster-row, E.C.

The Thirty-First Series of Weekly Cases is now publishing.

NOTICE TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN"
Who may be personally or relatively
INTERESTED in THIS MATTER.

MR. CONGREVE will give ONE RECENT CASE, NOT PUBLISHED in this Journal BEFORE, EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

BRONCHITIS.—CASE of a LITTLE BOY in IRELAND.

'I have tried all other remedies for my little boy, and they have failed. Mr. Scott, of this place, who has been cured by your treatment, recommends it strongly to me." So writes the father on the 30th of November last.

The patient (5 years old) was troubled with a hard and rending cough, for which little relief could be obtained, and which was rapidly prostrating him.

In a month after using medicine and advice Mr. O'Kane writes me:—"My boy is going on well."

In the next letter he says:—"Thank you a thousand times for the cure you have made in my child's case. Your medicine ought to be known all over the world."

Writing me on 11th July last, to know if I would advise sea bathing, he reports:—"My boy continues quite well.—Yours truly, A. O'KANE, DUNGIVEN, Co. DERRY."

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

FITS.

EPILEPSY OR FALLING SICKNESS.

If you want to be permanently and speedily cured of this distressing complaint, discard prejudice, and write to THE SECRETARY, Burwood House, Burwood Place, Hyde Park, London. He will send you (Gratis) full instructions for cure, and advice on diet.

A BOX OF PATTERNS POSTAGE FREE

FIRESIDE SHOPPING

SEASONABLE NOVELTIES NOW READY

FANCY DRESS FABRICS—CHOICE DESIGNS & SHADES

ECROYD'S SILK WARP HENRIETTAS and other DRESS FABRICS. Newest Shades. RICH, SILKY & DURABLE

FOX'S (PURE INDIGO WELLINGTON DYE) SERGES SUITINGS, HOMESPUNS, And TENNIS FLANNELS.

RICHARDSON'S LINENS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD Including every requirement for the family. "Suggested Outfit" on application.

Special Novelties in FANCY DRESS FABRICS.

Twenty New Ranges: The Teesdale Spray, Fife Brocade, St. Louis Black Border, &c

FLANNELS & BLANKETS without advance from the lowest prices for a time.

Parcels paid in U.K. Cash with Order. Very Special Prices. Supplied direct by

ELLWOOD BROCKBANK, The Warehouse, SETTLE, YORKS.

Harris' Flax Embroidery Threads

The only Flax Embroidery Threads used at Royal Sc of Art Needlework, South Kensington. Obtainable th

ART SHADES and BRILLIANT COLOUR

Exceeding in Artistic Effects the FINEST SILK, at ONE-THIRD the cost of Filos

WILL WORK ON ANY MATERIAL.

COLOURS TRUE TO SHADE, EXACT MATCHING GUARANTE

Kept in Stock in every size and shade by the Manu turers. If you cannot obtain the sizes and shades you quire at the shops, write direct to the Mills.

For the BEDROOM, DRAWING ROOM, PANELS, SCREENS, CURTAINS, TABLE-CLOTHS, LADIES' AND CHILDREN'S DRESSES, ECCLESIASTICAL AND ALL HIGH-CLASS NEEDLEWORK.

HIGHEST AWARDS Wherever EXHIBITED.

Thread Cards of 250 Shades (fast dyed washing colours), in fourteen sizes; and washing instructions free.

CAUTION.—Beware of inferior and thoroughly unreliable Imitations, and see that every Skein bears the signature.

J. HARRIS & SONS, Derwent Mills, Cockermout

And of all First-Class Dealers and Fancy Repositories.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

That BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR possesses very valuable qualities as a food for all classes, at all periods of life except earliest infancy, has been attested by eminent dietetic authorities, as well as by universal public experience during over thirty years.

Interested attempts to set aside these facts in favour of other foods only appeal to ignorance and prejudice, and it remains true that no other kind of food can serve the special purposes of Corn Flour.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS

TRADE-MARK. REGISTERED

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
VEST WOOL
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRAPERS & HOSIERS.

If any difficulty is found in obtaining, apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKS.

PRIZE MEDALS WHEREVER EXHIBITED

Dewhurst's Sewing Cotton

TRADE MARK.

ASK FOR THE "THREE SHELLS" BRAND

STRONG, EVEN, ELASTIC.

JOHN DEWHURST & SONS, LTD BELLE VUE MILLS, SKIPTON

Gold Medal, Paris Exhibition.

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is the mo perfect emo lient milk f preservin and softenin the skin ev produced! soon rende it soft smooth, and white; entirely removes and prevents all roughness, redness sunburn, tan, &c., and preserves the skin from the effects of the sun, wind, hard water, more effectually than any other preparation. No lady who valu her complexion should ever be without it, as it is invaluable at all seasons fo keeping the skin soft and healthy.

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists; free or 3d. extra by the

Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham

DIRECT FROM THE MILL

SOCKS Gent's 4-ply Fingering, Plain or Striped.

Post Free.

STOCKINGS (Ladies' Full Size in Black or Greys.)

KNEE CAPS.

ONE SHILLING

MUFFLERS

GLOVES Ladies' and Gentlemen's.

Send P.O. or Stamps to

FLEMING, REID & CO.

The Worsted Mills, Greenock.

100 Patterns of Knitting Wools (which need not be returned) sent Post Free. Please mention this paper.

WALKING IS NOW A PLEASURE TO ME.

COMFORT FOR THE FEET.

Corns and Bunions may be removed, and Enlarged Toe Joints reduced, by using THOMPSON'S NEW FRENCH CORN PLASTER. Those who are troubled with the discomfort of Corns, &c., will be glad to have attention called to this remedy, as it removes pain very speedily.

"It is a simple Plaster, thin as Silk, and comfortable to the Foot."—Lady Maude.

Sole Proprietor, M. F. THOMPSON, Homœopathic and Dispensing Chemist, 17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW, and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH.

Packets 1s. 1½d.; post free for 14 stamps.

Ask for Thompson's Plaster, and Beware of Worthless Imitations.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life, Evangelistic Effort, Christian Testimony, Christian Work, and Missionary Enterprise.

RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY, BY REV. DR. CULROSS. Page 20.

REV. DR. PENTECOST IN SCOTLAND. Page 12.

[The late Mr. R. Baxter.]

PRINCIPAL

Dr. CLIFFORD'S New Departure 9
Rev. F. B. MEYER'S Exposition 10
Some Scottish Missions—3 11
The West London Mission 13
The Work at Costers' Hall 14
Young Women and Temperance 14
National Temperance Congress 15
Major WHITTLE in Glasgow 15
Talk about Colportage 16

CONTENTS.

ISABELLA MACPHERSON.—Chapter 2 17
The Poor of East London 18
Mrs. POOLE'S Story for the Young 19
Portrait and Sketch of late Mr. R. BAXTER .. 21
THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE:—
Addresses at Cheltenham, by Canon Bell, Dr. Donald Fraser, Rev. Hubert Brooke, Dr. Clemance, &c. 23
Conference at Hammersmith 27

No. 1031.] FRIDAY, NOV. 1, 1889.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 1½d.

ST. GILES' CHRISTIAN MISSION.

LOST WOMEN OF ST. GILES.

£500 URGENTLY NEEDED.

THE Readers of THE CHRISTIAN will, I know, greatly rejoice to learn that much blessing has already been given to the efforts amongst LOST WOMEN.

THE NIGHT SHELTER in Drury-lane, and the two other HOMES OF RESCUE, have been in full working order since their opening in the summer, and as the winter advances all three of the places will be doubtless crowded. The expense of fitting up these Homes and starting the Work was very considerable, and the strain upon the funds during the holiday season caused us some anxiety.

If some £500 can at once be raised to meet outstanding liabilities, we shall be encouraged to go forward in the trying season that is coming on. All moneys to clear off this amount may be sent either to F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C., or to

Yours sincerely,

GEORGE HATTON, SUPERINTENDENT,

4, AMPTON STREET, REGENT SQUARE, W.C.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

GEORGE HOLLAND thankfully acknowledges receiving from M. W. B., 20s.; A. V. S., jewellery; T. O., plants for the gardens around the Homes.

The Infant Day Nursery. Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Free Ragged Day Schools. Children's Services. Classes for Rough Boys. Shelter for Girls and Boys, &c. Work amongst Young Women and Elder Girls. Work amongst Lads and Young Men. Bible Classes for Men and for Women. Mothers' Meetings. Various Clubs. Mission to Inebriate Women. Midnight Meetings. Common Lodging House Services. Gospel Temperance Meetings. Evangelistic Services, and other Missionary Agencies in operation.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE BENEVOLENT OR STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.
J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman.
Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

For 103 years this Institution has visited and relieved the destitute sick, by an entirely unpaid agency, consisting of over 240 Christian men and women.

Funds are urgently needed.

The Committee will be thankful for the Society being remembered in the testamentary arrangements of the benevolent.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF DISTRESSED WIDOWS (applying within the first month of their widowhood). Established 1823. President: The Right Hon. Lord Charles Bruce; Treasurer: John Deacon, Esq. It would be scarcely possible to estimate the benefits conferred by this Society in granting relief to poor destitute Widows for more than sixty years. Its object is one that should appeal to all who have hearts to feel for the trials of their poorer neighbours. Every case is thoroughly investigated before relief is given.

Contributions will be thankfully received by the Secretary at his office, 32, Sackville-street, W.; or by Messrs. Williams, Deacon & Co., Bankers.

SAMUEL RAYSON, Secretary.

DESTITUTE CHILDREN'S DINNERS SOCIETY.—Funds are most earnestly needed for this Society. They had last year 65 Dining Rooms open, and gave 367,679 Dinners. The demand for these dinners is greater than ever. Subscriptions or donations may be sent to the Treasurers—viz., Lord Kinnaird, 1, Pall Mall East; William Fuller, Esq., Stoughton Grange, Stoke, Guildford; to the Secretary, H. Morton Carr, Esq., 89, St. George's-square; or to the Bankers, Messrs. Barclay, 1, Pall Mall East.

THE WOMEN'S VILLAGE MISSION, PALESTINE, has been established one year. During six months thirty visits have been paid in the villages round Jerusalem, and in the city itself; 986 sick relieved; and 31 Gospel meetings for Women have been held. The English Deaconess House, Jaffa-road, Jerusalem, is the central household of the Mission. Ladies are invited to join this Missionary Association. Help is asked to defray expenses. Contributions may be sent to the Treasurer, the Rev. H. PELHAM STOKES, or to the Hon. Sec., Miss M. A. LLOYD, 143, Clapham-road. Ladies are invited to apply personally from 3 to 5 on Tuesdays.

WOMEN'S ANNUAL CONFERENCE for the Deepening of Spiritual Life, to be held (D.V.) in the Lecture Hall of the Congregational Church, Blackheath (close to the Railway station), November 13, 14, 15. Meetings at 11 a.m., 3 p.m., 7 p.m. (quiet hour), and 8 p.m. Prayer Meeting on Thursday and Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Bannister, Mrs. Tottenham, Miss Bell, Miss Mason, Miss Agnes Moore, Miss Hull, and others will take part.

THE GEE-STREET MISSION, Goswell-road, appeal for funds to give the Poor Sunday breakfasts, and for expenses to carry on the work for God and the poor in that district. Messrs. Barclay, 54, Lombard-street, and Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, 29, Falcon-square, will thankfully receive subscriptions.

THE COMMITTEE of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, earnestly plead for help for the poorer patients who are attending the Hospital for medical treatment. Contributions in money and clothing will be gratefully received and acknowledged by the Committee.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee will receive two Ladies for 50 guineas each for two years, board, residence, and instruction included. A few vacancies for midwifery and other students.

Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

SAILORS' REST, Naples.—City improvements cause removal to front street, opposite shipping. For purchase of house, funds are urgently needed before December. An English nobleman has given £100. Donations to Messrs. MEURICOFFRE & CO., Naples, or Office of THE CHRISTIAN.

THE SUFFERING POOR.

THE LONDON SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Is in URGENT NEED of DONATIONS for AID to the POOR by Tickets for Coal, Bread, Lodgings, &c., which are available all over London and Suburbs; also for its Convalescent Homes at Bournemouth and Sandgate, with 185 beds.—Donations will be most thankfully received by JOHN JAMES JONES, 98, High-st., Homerton, London, E.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN

Evangelical Tract Society

AND PRAYER UNION,

48, Malvern Road, Kilburn Park, London, N.W.

TRACTS. — English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Dutch, Danish, and Norwegian, Swedish or Welsh.

MISSIONARIES and other workers needing Foreign Tracts, are invited by the Committee to write for supply for one month's personal distribution. The application should be addressed to The Superintendent, SAMUEL E. ROBERTS, and if possible the cost of postage of the tracts should be enclosed.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS IN "The Christian"

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Thursday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor. Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. [illegible] LONDON, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage 2d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

DEPTFORD MEDICAL MISSION

Has been established to meet a TERRIBLE SPIRITUAL AND PHYSICAL NEED ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE THAMES.

£500 URGENTLY NEEDED to close the first year Free of Debt.

Account of the work forwarded by post.

CAPTAIN C. A. WHITE, Hon. Treasurer.
F. A. PRING, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., Director.

188, DEPTFORD HIGH STREET, LONDON, S.E.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The THIRD ANNIVERSARY of the GLEANERS' UNION will be held on Friday, November 1. There will be a CONFERENCE at 3 p.m., in the Lower Hall, Exeter Hall. Chairman, Sir John H. Kennaway, Bart., M.P., President of C.M.S. Devotional Address by the Rev. S. A. Selwyn, M.A., Vicar of St. James's, Hatcham. Short Accounts of Gleaners' Union Work, and Open Conference.

In the Evening an AGGREGATE MEETING in the Large Hall, Exeter Hall, at 7 p.m. Doors open at 6. Hymn-singing at 6.30. Chairman, The Right Rev. the Bishop of Bedford. Speakers—Rev. E. A. Stuart, M.A., Vicar of St. James's, Hatcham; Rev. Henry Simon, M.A., Vicar of Holy Trinity, Bordesley; Hon. and Rev. W. Talbot Rice, M.A., Vicar of All Saints, [illegible]; Dr. S. T. Penn, who has just arrived from East Africa; Mr. Graham Wilmot Brooke, who has just arrived from West Africa.

Tickets for Conference, Free. Tickets for Evening Meeting, Reserved Seats, One Shilling; Platform, Clergy and Young Men, Free; Body of the Hall, Free.—Apply to the SECRETARIES, Church Missionary Society, Salisbury Square, London, E.C.

ALL FRIENDS WELCOME.

FULLERTON & SMITH at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, November 18 to 24. Note the dates.

Educational.

EDUCATION.—High-class School for Young Ladies.—Principal, Mrs. HALE, A.C.P. and F.S.Sc. London, 1 and 2, Carlton-mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.—Visiting masters, certificated governesses, and careful personal supervision with home comforts. Pupils prepared for any examination. Instruction made pleasant, and no overworking countenanced. French, German, Latin, drawing, class-singing, and drilling are included in the school fees, which are moderate. Tennis and recreation grounds. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, and Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Prospectus and testimonials on application to Principal.

PREPARATORY CLASSES, North London Collegiate School, under the superintendence of Miss BUSS.—Students are prepared for the Cambridge Higher Local, Froebel Society's examinations, &c., &c. Afternoon classes open to Ladies in the neighbourhood are held for dressmaking, painting, &c.—Address, the HEAD MISTRESS, Miss Toplis, 232, Camden-road, N.W.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Educational and Christian Home for Girls. Indian children received.—For terms and references, Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, Pevensey-road.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

MANADON VILLA SCHOOL, Tavistock-road, Plymouth.—The Misses LANE receive a limited number of Resident and Daily Pupils, whose education and Christian training are conducted with the utmost care. Preparation for all the Local examinations. References to parents of present and former pupils.

CHERTSEY HOUSE LADIES' SCHOOL, Red-hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS invites reference to Gentleman of high Christian standing and to parents of past and present Pupils. Prospectuses on application.

SOUTH DEVON.—Home for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Thorough education, [illegible] with every home comfort and Christian training. Resident English and foreign governesses and visiting masters. Preparation for [illegible]. Healthy situation; liberal table; [illegible] terms. Two pupils [illegible] (30 guineas per annum inclusive). Prospectuses and references on application.—Miss MORLEY, Mount Vale, Courtenay-park, Newton Abbot.

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Rosehill [illegible]—Principal, Miss BLAINE.—The Rev. W. H. Bennett, Incumbent of St. James', Ryde, strongly recommends this School as an Educational Home for boys (number limited to six). [illegible] resident nobility and gentry, [illegible] pupils. Terms 40 guineas per [illegible].

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Home School for the Daughters of Gentlemen.—Two [illegible] Girls can be received on special terms at the Rectory. Earnest Christian training. Finishing masters and [illegible]. PRINCIPAL, Stuart's Library.

BELLE VUE, AMBLESIDE.—Good School for Girls. Principal, Mrs. FLEMING. Healthy situation; [illegible] large rooms, garden, tennis [illegible]. Thorough and liberal teaching. [illegible] Examinations. Resident foreign and English governesses. Masters. 30 to 50 guineas. Reduced terms for children under 12.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Apply to PRINCIPAL. School re-opened Sept. 18.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.

DELTA, 98, Kensington-park-road, W.

TWO DAUGHTERS OF GENTLEMEN would be received at half usual fees, to fill vacancies in superior old-established School, near London. Fine house and grounds. Liberal table, home care and comfort. [illegible] terms. [illegible] professors and masters.—A. P., Wride Bros., Stationer, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate, E.C.

HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Dinas-[illegible].—A Minister's Wife and Daughter [illegible] receive [illegible] to prepare for Senior Local Exams. Good Home. Terms for Board and [illegible] Pupils. Mathematics and French [illegible]. Reference kindly permitted to Rev. Principal, 3, Eighbury-place, London; and to Ministers if required.

A. M. B., 135, Tudor-road, Dinas-[illegible].

EXMOUTH, SOUTH DEVON.—Very desirable Christian Home for young Ladies requiring good education, or children with parents abroad. Also highly suitable for Ladies wishing board.

Miss SHEPSTONE, Geneva House, Exmouth.

SUPERIOR HOME SCHOOL for Girls from [illegible] years of age. Successful preparation for all exams. Little boys also received [illegible] by Mr. R. J. H. Chichester, M.B., B.S. [illegible]. Highest references and testimonials. Health resort.

Principal, Broomfield Villas, Endcliffe, Sheffield.

VACANCY in good Home School [illegible] Young Ladies received. Individual attention. Home comforts. Terms moderate and inclusive. Half-term October 30.

PRINCIPAL, Lindum Villas, Matlock, Bath.

THE WIDOW AND DAUGHTER of [illegible] pastor, both highly educated, receive English girls for French and general [illegible].—Address MADAME ROMAN, Valence, [illegible] Thorn, York.

GERMAN LADY wishes to find [illegible] in family where [illegible] French [illegible] in return for [illegible] English, paying a small sum for board.

MILDUS, Burleighfield, Loudwater, Bucks.

WANTED IN SCHOOL, [illegible]

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL, WELLINGTON, SHROPSHIRE.

A High-class School for the Sons of Gentlemen. Established 1845. Principal: DR. CRANAGE, M.A. Vice-Principal: ROBERT WESTON, Esq., M.A., T.C.D. School re-opened September 22.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—[illegible] are prepared for business or professional life. The [illegible] include all the various [illegible] [illegible] the last twelve years pupils have obtained [illegible] than [illegible] distinctions, [illegible] [illegible] in the United College of Preceptors, and [illegible] Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian [illegible] employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.

Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to [illegible] parents of Christian principle [illegible] his very select and [illegible] with regard. A [illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] boy.—Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, [illegible] Valley.

MANY CHRISTIAN PARENTS, who at the present time are seeking a School at which to place their Sons are invited to write to the [illegible] who [illegible] YOUNG GENTLEMAN'S BOARDING SCHOOL [illegible] of the Principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of the Gospel teaching maintains a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class Education.

[illegible] are always eagerly sought after. ELEVATED GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, [illegible] from London, and afford especial facilities for out-door recreation.

Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several of the Vice-Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to this School. Terms moderate.

Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION.—MR. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. Lond., receives [illegible] Sons of Gentlemen. Pupils are thoroughly prepared for [illegible] English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German and mathematics, and have been successful [illegible] Local and other Examinations. Terms [illegible] Mrs. W. [illegible] Mr. [illegible]: Rev. T. Cr[illegible] Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. [illegible] Pugin, Rochdale; Mr. and Mrs. E. Bratton, Gothic Lodge, Exeter, Downend, London; Rev. [illegible] Mr. Marsh, St. Leonards.

TO MISSIONARIES and Parents going abroad.—A comfortable, Christian Home, in the country, near London, for young Children, who would have a mother's care, with Christian training, and receive a thorough education. French, music, &c. Terms moderate. References kindly permitted to ministers.—For particulars, address W., 48, Dames-road, Forest Gate.

CHRISTIAN GOVERNESSES, Companions, and Lady Housekeepers of high principle are frequently supplied to Ladies seeking such, by application to the Governess Registry, Soho Bazaar, Soho-square, London, W. Testimonials never dispensed with. Free of all expense to parents.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

SCRIPTURE READER, &c.—Wanted, by a Christian Man, total abstainer, employment in Mission work, either as Scripture Reader, District Visitor, or Village Evangelist. THOMAS JOHNSON, 7, Albion-road, Stoke Newington, Reigate, Surrey.

November 1, 1889.

The Christian.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we hope to give portrait and sketch of Rev. Thomas Connellan, of Athlone, Ireland, lately a Roman Catholic curate.

We have frequently touched upon the responsibility of the landlord in regard to the unhealthy habitations in which so many of the poor are compelled to live. It would appear that under the recent Artizans' Dwellings Act, the vestries in the Metropolis have the power to destroy, without compensating the owners, property dangerous to health and "incapable of repair." Last week the Islington vestry ordered the destruction of nineteen houses of this class, one of the vestrymen stating that "they would be almost committing murder by allowing such places to remain." The description given of the places cannot be repeated here. That our poor labouring people should have to huddle together in such vile dens, and to pay high rents for them, is not creditable to our Christianity.

To our thinking, one of the most interesting and suggestive items of news in the papers of last week had reference to the severe illness of Mr. Charles Bradlaugh, M.P. The fact is communicated to the press evidently with the sanction of Mr. Bradlaugh's married daughter, who is said to be acting as his nurse. She desires to thank friends at home and abroad for their expressions of sympathy, and gives the following telegram that had been received:—

India sorrowing; universal prayer for your father's recovery.

It is very gratifying to find, from the words we have italicised, that Mr. Bradlaugh's pronounced disbelief in a God who hears and answers prayer has not found acceptance with those who recognise his influence as a public man; and it is no less satisfactory to find those nearest to him do not scruple to make the fact known. We sincerely join in the petition that comes from India, and would add to it another—that this hour of Mr. Bradlaugh's bodily weakness may be the time in which the powers of the unseen world shall be revealed to him, and that his restored powers and gifts may be devoted to a service which, unhappily, has in the past been either scouted or ignored. Nothing is too hard for the Lord. Prayer has been made to this end in numerous Christian meetings.

In these days of active and varied philanthropy, when numberless schemes are being propounded for improving the condition of the people, and when Socialism is putting in so strong a claim to attention, there are one or two very real perils which should be recognised and faced. Thus, it is too often forgotten by its advocates that the subtle but inevitable tendency of State control, State compulsion, or State provision, whether it be in education, housing, employment, or relief, is to lower the individual character, and to weaken personal Christian responsibility. To feed a man's numerous children for him, to find him a nice house to live in, with regular and accessible employment, and amusement during leisure hours, and to relieve him when out of work, does not teach him to help himself, and leaves him at the end no better morally than he was before. But the more serious danger is lest the working classes should be led to look upon bodily comfort as the highest aim in life, lest the material interests should (perhaps unconsciously) be magnified, to the neglect of those which are for their eternal welfare.

On this point the following remarks by a speaker at the recent Diocesan Conference are timely, and deserving of attention:—

The invitation and the promise of God for the poorest are, "Seek ye first the kingdom of your heavenly Father and his righteousness, and the food, and drink, and clothing which ye need will be added unto you." We must beware of putting the poor, even the poorest, in a lower human class than our own, as if for us the things of the Spirit were the things of price, but for them the things of the body. If a working population have faith, temperance, industry, fortitude, a sense of domestic obligation and responsibility, nothing can well prevent their becoming prosperous; but try to make an idle and reckless population comfortable, and the chances are that you will make them more idle and reckless, and will not save them from being miserable. Watching the advance of democratic socialism, I know of nothing which those who are possessed by a Christian love of their brethren will have more at heart than to bear witness continually on behalf of spiritual things; and if they long to see the working people more comfortable, and are ready to labour for everything which will make the outward accessories of their lives more worthy of Christian fellow-citizens, they will feel it to be the more necessary to bear that witness plainly and continually.

In a visitation charge delivered at Canterbury last week, the Archbishop of Canterbury said that the problems affecting the English Church very deeply were those of "poverty, temperance, purity, and lay work," and he went on to add that his hearers knew that there was

A class of suffering people who could only just exist, hanging on a sharp edge of illness, hunger, uncleanness, physical and moral; incapacity, mental and bodily; in full sight of abundance, luxury, and waste. It was absurd not to know that the proportion of the evil to the palliatives in use was more formidable than of old, and it was impossible to think that any material or secular education was the only way to abolish the virus of self-indulgence, or the pleasure of extravagance, or the passion for wealth, or the recklessness of extreme poverty.

After basing upon this the consideration whether in the face of such a serious condition of things, bickerings and controversies ought not to be silenced and postponed, the Archbishop insisted that

Our wealth must consider whether it is not time to devote some real proportion of itself, after the manner of our Father's wealth, to religious solution of the problems, which, left to themselves, can solve themselves only in whatever may be the natural outcome of despair.

It is satisfactory to find Dr. Benson thus insisting upon the relation between Christianity and poverty, and we trust that his words will find an echo in many hearts, and rouse many who may have hitherto been thoughtless in the face of coming troubles, to exert themselves in the task of doing something to lessen the burdens of the wretched.

The great prominence which in so many biographies is given to the death-bed utterances and testimonies, though it is not to be altogether deprecated, sometimes seems to have the effect in the mind of the reader of almost obscuring the testimony afforded by the life. Such should not be the case, for in most instances the death-bed is only the reflection and culmination of the daily walk and conversation. It was once remarked to Whitfield, "What a glorious testimony to Christ your death-bed will be," and the evangelist answered, "No, I shall not wait until then. My life shall be my testimony. My death will be silent."

The native races in Bechuanaland have, through a committee, made an address to their chief, Khama, expressive of their admiration for his noble efforts, "successfully carried on for many years," to prevent the introduction of intoxicating drinks into his country, and adding an expression of their hope that "Her Majesty's Government, being now in the occupation of the country at the chief's invitation, will cordially co-operate with him in his efforts to prevent the introduction, sale, or barter of strong drink in the land." We sincerely trust that this appeal may not be disregarded. Missionary work would be far more fruitful in results, if, unfortunately in only too many cases, the British trader did not follow in the track of the preachers of the Gospel, and unscrupulously introduce one of the most potent enemies of Christianity.

Rev. H. C. Shuttleworth, who has plenty of opportunities of obtaining accurate data upon which to base his opinion, has recently stated that Atheists are declining in numbers, and we observe that in other quarters testimony is borne to the fact that Atheistic Secularism is losing much of its influence. It goes without saying that if Christians boldly face such questions as the condition of the poor in our large towns, and insist upon legislation upon Christian lines in regard to them, much of the antagonism to Christianity must and will pass away.

During the French Exhibition a series of International Congresses have been held in Paris. One on Intemperance or Alcoholism drew to it able physicians, economists, philanthropists, and statesmen, and was presided over by M. Léon Say. There seems to have been remarkable unanimity as to the dangerous and even poisonous nature of the alcoholic drinks which were coming in, with the alarming perils attending them, and the serious departure of some parts of France from a traditional sobriety. In the whole of France the consumption had trebled in thirty years. The relative extent of the use of alcohol in several countries was illustrated in the Congress, namely, France, 3·8 litres per head; England, 6; Prussia and Switzerland, 7; Belgium, 8; the United States, 8·5; Sweden, 10·33; Denmark, 16·5.

It is a hopeful sign when men of eminence are constrained to look at this subject, to array facts as a warning cry to European nations, and to urge immediate Governmental action.

In The Christian Union there is an extremely interesting paper on a mission of the American Board to Japan. The missionaries and their wives are living on the site of abandoned Buddhist monasteries on a mountain slope to the east of Kyoto, the ancient Japanese capital. They have renounced everything but a bare subsistence, are living in their white tents, and working with a never-failing enthusiasm for the advancement of Christ's kingdom. The spirit of love among them, and manifested in all their dealings with the Japanese, is said to be overcoming obstacles, dispelling prejudice, and meeting with the greatest success. A late meeting held by them is described by a visitor as like a return to Apostolic times. Certainly we have not to confine attention to the Acts of the Apostles for proofs of the working of the Spirit on the Lord's servants.

Thousands of the upper and middle classes of England sympathise with the movement to secure to the toilers just remuneration for their labour. They protest, moreover, against modern customs that are heavily increasing service in households on the Sabbath. They very much regret, however, the growing disposition to hold trade-union demonstrations on that day. No less than four of these took place on Sunday week to the serious disturbance of neighbourhoods in London. Above all others, working men ought to guard against the secularisation of the Lord's Day. This in the end will bring inevitable sufferings upon their class and their children. Working men cannot change the character of the English Sunday without being their own enemies.

For interesting accounts of Gospel work in Spain, we would refer our readers to the quarterly periodical of the Spanish Evangelisation Society, entitled Times of Refreshing in Spain. It may be obtained (price 3d.) from the Religious Tract Society, 99, George-street, Edinburgh. The current issue contains an article from the pen of Rev. D. R. Kilpatrick, of Glasgow, describing his recent visit to several centres of evangelisation in that priest-ridden country.

Naturally, considerable excitement has been caused in temperance circles through the exposure, at the National Temperance Congress, of the fact that a number of dignitaries of the Church of England, including some earnest temperance reformers, are interested in a great brewery business. It seems that the Clergy Mutual Assurance Society derives a portion of its income from an investment of £20,000 in the Worthington Brewery Company. Among the directors are some clergymen who are well known in connection with the temperance movement, and it is hardly surprising that they should now be charged with having conducted the business of the Society on principles inconsistent with their public professions. In answer to the charge, it has been explained that the investment was made by an official of the Society, unknown to the Bishop of London and Canon Ellison, whose names appear in the attainted list. Doubtless many Christian people will learn from this the lesson that it will not do for them to be indifferent to business operations carried on under their sanction and auspices. The lesson has, moreover, a wider application, for it is not a rare thing for influential names to be associated with undertakings of a doubtful character. It is to be hoped that the clergymen referred to will speedily clear themselves from the stigma of deriving financial advantage through connection with the drink traffic, against which many of them are fighting so bravely.

Sailors of many nationalities frequent Zanzibar, and it is sad to realise that, immediately they set foot on shore they are surrounded by temptations of an appalling character. There is not a single agency at hand to reach these men, no counter-attraction to the haunts of vice and traps of ruin. A Strangers' Rest is a very pressing need, and we rejoice to state that efforts are being made to establish one. Such an institution would also be a light in the midst of the darkness to a large native population enslaved to Mohammedan error and Pagan superstition. Friends willing to help in founding a Rest at Zanzibar are invited to communicate with Mr. J. T. Isaac, Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.

Dr. Marcus Dods has published (by request) a sermon preached in connection with the Edinburgh University gathering on September 29. Its title is, "What is a Christian?" and the text: "As many as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." The text implies the answer that a Christian is one who has been born again, and become a son of God, through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. But the preacher's purpose seems to have been to reduce the idea of a Christian to the lowest possible terms. He specifies two theories of the Atonement: (1) That which regards propitiation as its essence; and (2) that which considers Christ's death to be the expression of God's redeeming love, and sufficient to cause men to feel rightly towards God and towards sin. He adds: "Both theories of the Atonement produce good Christians."

With regard to another fundamental truth, Dr. Dods says:—"Similarly we must not too hastily conclude that even a belief in Christ's Divinity is essential to the true Christian. To the mature Christian it is essential, no doubt." But neither the title, nor the text, distinguishes between true Christians and mature Christians. The British Weekly, not inaptly, describes as "Theological Blondinism" this endeavour to show how thin a thread may unite a man to God; on how slight a foundation he may walk, and yet be a Christian. Is the Free Church, which, for "the Crown Rights of the Lord Jesus Christ," gave up everything, so soon reduced to this: that the Divinity of the Son of God and the expiatory character of his work, may cease to be held as vital truth? Can the successors of the men who, in 1843, counted all loss for Christ on a not more important issue, now delight to honour those who subvert that which their fathers held to be truth dearer than life? Or can they tamely see elevation to their chief places made subservient to the undermining of the faith once for all delivered to the saints?

SOUTHWARK Y.M.C.A.

This Association held it annual meeting in Christ Church, Westminster Bridge-road, on Thursday evening last week, under the presidency of Mr. S. Gurney Sheppard. The report of the secretary, Mr. G. F. Assiter, told of good work done during the year with encouraging results. The number of new members and associates who have joined is 103, making the total 218. During the year a gymnasium has been opened, and the usual educational classes, evangelistic services, &c., have been well attended. The Young Men's Home, which offers, at moderate charges, board and residence, has also been well patronised.

Mr. A. J. Mundella, M.P., in the course of a lengthy address, said he had seen the fruits of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in this country, in America, and in the colonies, and he had no hesitation in saying that its value was beyond estimation. Short addresses followed from Mr. R. K. Causton, M.P., Revs. Burman Cassin, Newman Hall, and J. Jackson Wray.

SCARBOROUGH.—Two interesting drawing-room meetings for ladies have been recently held here by Mrs. Somerset Gardner, when she gave addresses on Ritualism and the Confessional. The importance of Christian people being instructed on these points is evident to all.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on special services being held during this week by Mr. Opie Rodway, at Shaftesbury Hall, Torquay.——That God will abundantly bless and enlarge a special effort being made to reach Roman Catholics in the South of Ireland.——For continued blessing on the Protestant mission to the Bretons at Quimper.——For blessing upon Gospel services, to be held in the large hall of Shaftesbury House, Margate, every Sunday, for the 500 navvies employed on the drainage works of the town.

BIBLE-CLASS UNION.—The autumn social gathering of this Union, composed of Bible-classes in houses of business, took place at Exeter Hall on Saturday last, and proved to be a profitable meeting. About 450 friends partook of tea, and the numbers were greatly augmented at the public meeting at seven o'clock. Mr. George Williams presided, and two stirring addresses were delivered by Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston, of Clapham, and Rev. Llewellyn Caley, of Brixton. The hon. sec., Mr. G. S. Greenfield, 53, Buckingham Palace-road, S.W., will be glad to give any information on the B.C.U. and its work.

A BOLD STEP HAS BEEN TAKEN by the boys of the Old Hall School, Wellington, Salop, in making themselves responsible for the support of a lady medical missionary in India. Miss L. Jenkins, L.R.C.P., who has for some time held the post of house surgeon at the Hospital for Women, Marylebone-road, London, is now going to take a similar position at the Hospital for Women, Benares. Her support will cost over £100 per annum, which the pupils of the school have undertaken (with what help can be obtained from "old boys") to raise. An additional sum will also be needed for the lady's passage, outfit, &c. Might not many another school put its hand to the Gospel plough in the foreign field in an equally practical manner?

